[illegible] Gordon [illegible] ey, and M[illegible] Ch[illegible] after the meeting Wednesday they thought the money as listed in the adopted budget could be used for any purpose the council designated and would not necessarily be restricted for capital expenditure.

Christian said he assumed the council could do whatever it decided to do with the money.

Kean said that since the $100,000 is listed under "Reserve Accounts" in the city budget, the council legally could appropriate it for any purpose. However, he pointed out, since the $100,000 exists in the budget as the result of closing out some capital items, if the council used the money for a non-capital expenditure, such as salaries, it would face the problem of finding revenue for the salaries the next year.

City - parish employes have presented a salary adjustment plan which would cost about $227,000. Action on the salary adjustments has been deferred until February when the true amount of surplus for 1963 will be known. The combined city and parish budgets provide a total of $100,000 for salary adjustments.

Minor Change

A minor change made in the parish budget provides an account with one dollar in it for library facilities. This will make it possible to appropriate during the year any available monies into the account for possible library expansion.

wrought by the Industrial Revolution, millions upon millions emigrated to North America, contracts to F. G. Sullivan, apparent low bidder on all three projects. Sullivan bid as follows: $18,226 for construction of St. Ross Street, Newton Street and Violet Street; $15,063 for construction of Denham Street as a mud and dust relief street and installation of a sewer collection line in the street, and $11,316 for construction of Welcome Heights Drive.

Awarding of the contracts was recommended by the Capital Improvements Expediting Committee.

The council also took the following action on that committee's recommendation:

Ordered construction of Goodwood Boulevard from its present end 250 feet west of Sharp Road, provided that right-of-way is donated.

Authorized the purchasing agent to accept the low bid on repair of the Cottonwood Avenue Storm Sewer after bids are opened Dec. 16.

The city and parish council adopted the following yearly tax ordinances for 1964: beer, liquor, insurance, sales, occupational license, four-mill ad valorem, public conveyance, public utility, seven-mill ad valoreum and one-mill ad valorem.

beheaded. Peter had been cast in a dungeon, but had escaped and departed the city.

Child of Holy Spirit

Yet he could not abandon those who would learn of Jesus without right knowledge of him. The apostle traced the words. "When his mother Mary had been betrothed to Joseph, before they came together she was found to be with child of the Holy Spirit."

It was a disturbing affair, even then. "Her husband, Joseph, being a just man and unwilling to put her to shame, resolved to divorce her quietly."

In those days, Matthew had been overseer of toll collections on the Damascus Road in Galilee, not far from Nazareth.

How bewilderingly things had changed since then—for him and many more, beginning with the old wood-worker, Joseph.

Behold, an Angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream, saying. 'Joseph, son of David, do not fear to take Mary your wife, for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Spirit."

Matthew paused, listening. Cries of the sentries in the wall towers sounded the last watch of night. He blew on his hands to warm them.

From the start, slings and storm had surrounded those who called upon the name. Stephen had been stoned to death. Others were imprisoned. The Kanhedrin had forbidden them to speak, on pain of death. Yet, a constant embrace held them fast.

Matthew took up his pen again recording how it all started, beginning with that whispered word from on high to Joseph about his bride.

"She will bear a son, and you shall call his name Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins."

With his penchant for record-keeping, acquired in his days in Galilee, Matthew had gathered extensive notes during his days with Jesus about [illegible] birth and genealogy. [illegible] tuck the notes in a m[illegible] [illegible] on his neck, depo[illegible] them at a friend's house [illegible]

For a while, after the resurrection, the apostles had their headquarters in a spacious Jerusalem house provided by Mark's mother, a rich widow. But the intensifying blows of the suppression forced them to scatter.

Matthew, after the others had fled in the wake of the series of arrests and persecutions of 42 A.D., may have retreated to the shadowy, labyrinthine passages of the old King Davids' Wall, shelter of many poor and hunted men.

There, in some dim and dank niche, he supposedly bent over a stone ledge, transposing his notes and memories to a scroll of papyrus, in four 3-inch columns across the sheet, each about 30 lines long.

Then, with ink dried, he would roll the written portion on one stick, unrolling blank paper from another, and start a new rank of columns.

In the cavernous chambers of the wall, dark forms stirred on the stone floor, shuffled to their feet, mumbling. Gradually, as usual, a group gathered about Matthew, bringing barley bread, cheese and skins of watered wine.

In their stress and longing, deep affection bound them together. "My brother in the Lord," they would greet each other, with kisses of peace. "My sister." "What news has thou?" Good cheer your heart."

After blessings over the bread and drink, they ate and sang a quiet hymn.

At some crucial juncture, a warning reached the apostle. He slipped out of the city in darkness, leaving the unfinished scroll to be copied and circulated.

Queen City

In Antioch, perhaps, the queen city of the East, with its temples to Apollo and Artemis, he may have set down further information about Jesus' coming.

He tells nothing of the angel's announcement to Mary, nor of the reason why the birthplace was in Bethlehem instead of Nazareth, nor the shepherds [illegible] But he had informa[illegible] [illegible] governmental affairs. [illegible] as tax agent, when [illegible]ered ruled.

He proved to be one of the best ends in the district.

End Bob Schmidt, presently touring Europe with his parents, captured the Scholastic Award. It was a closely contested award, school officials having to go back to the 61-62 school year to determine the winner. In that year, Schmidt had straight A's while runner-up Bob Skoog had three A's and a couple of B's Skoog accepted accepted the award for Schmidt.
