This kitchen plan saves me a hundred steps every day

LET ME make one thing clear right at the start. As much as I'd like to take credit for having worked out my kitchen arrangement, I can't do it. It was all the result of a lucky accident. Here's the way it happened:

I was getting a new Armstrong's Linoleum Floor in my kitchen. George Kane and one of the men from his store came out to install it. They discovered that some of the floor boards were in bad shape. "No use putting down a fine new floor like this until we get things right underneath," Mr. Kane said. "I'll get a carpenter to fix it, but it's going to mean you'll be torn up for an extra day or two." That's how my refrigerator got left out in the middle of the room. There wasn't any other place to put it.

I was a little upset by the idea until I made a discovery while I was getting dinner that evening. Never in my life had I been able to cook a meal with so little effort and waste motion. With the refrigerator so close to the sink and the stove, everything was right there within arm's reach.

When Mr. Kane came with the carpenter the next morning, he said, "We'll try to have your refrigerator back where it belongs by evening."

"I'm not so sure I want it there," I said. I'd been doing a lot of thinking and some measuring. There was room enough behind the refrigerator for the little dining nook I'd always wanted. I saw, too, that I could get an extra cabinet and add some badly needed storage and work space in an island arrangement. I could get even more storage room with some shallow cabinets on the wall space that the refrigerator had been wasting.

So, instead of just getting a new Armstrong Floor, I finally wound up with a whole new kitchen. I know it's a little unorthodox in plan, but I wouldn't trade it for any other kitchen that I've seen. If we ever build a house, I'll just duplicate this kitchen—right down to the Armstrong's Linoleum on the floor and on the cabinet tops.

This step-saving kitchen, planned with the refrigerator in the center of the room, cuts down housework. Another work-saver is the easy-to-clean floor of Armstrong's Linoleum. The design here is Style No. 5810 in Armstrong's Embossed, a type of linoleum noted for its modern texture and beautiful color. It's easy to see how much it adds to the attractiveness of this kitchen. That's Armstrong's Linoleum on the counter tops, too—and there's Armstrong's Cushiontone® on the ceiling to quiet noise. For a free list of furnishings and a complete plan of this room, just write.

As I said, I can't take credit for the idea behind my kitchen plan, but I can for the floor I picked. I hadn't realized how many steps I'd save by moving my refrigerator to the center of the room, but it was no surprise to learn that Armstrong's Linoleum was a work-saver, too. For a few months after we were married I had a forgotten floor that taught me a lesson I haven't forgotten. That's why the first thing I said to Mr. Kane was, "I want linoleum, and it must be Armstrong's."

Write for the "Decorator's Answer Book"—It's filled with dozens of Hazel Dell Brown's do-it-yourself decorating ideas for every room in your home. Whether your house is new or old, you'll get helpful suggestions from the 32 pages of full-color illustrations. Slip 10¢ into an envelope now (40¢ outside U.S.A.) and mail to Armstrong Cork Company, Floor Division, 5011 Pine Street, Lancaster, Penna.

READER'S DIGEST* reports the same research which proves that brushing teeth right after eating with COLGATE DENTAL CREAM STOPS TOOTH DECAY BEST

Better Than Any Other Way of Preventing Tooth Decay According to Published Reports!

Reader's Digest recently reported on one of the most extensive experiments in dentifrice history! And here are additional facts: The one and only toothpaste used in this research was Colgate Dental Cream. Yes, and two years' research showed brushing teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream stopped decay best! Better than any other home method of oral hygiene! The Colgate way stopped more decay for more people than ever reported in all dentifrice history!

No Other Toothpaste or Powder Ammoniated or Not Offers Proof of Such Results!

Even more important, there were no new cavities whatever for more than 1 out of 3 who used Colgate Dental Cream correctly! Think of it! Not even one new cavity in two full years! No other dentifrice has proof of such results! No dentifrice can stop all tooth decay, or help cavities already started. But the Colgate way is the most effective way yet known to help your dentist prevent decay.

What to do when your house is on fire

Call the Fire Department!

Always know the telephone number of the nearest Fire Station . . . the location of the nearest fire alarm box. Turn in the alarm immediately!

Think first of personal safety!

Warn all members of your family. Get them together. Count noses. Lead them to safety outside. If smoke is bad, wrap towels or clothing around mouth and nostrils.

The first few minutes count!

Always keep Underwriters-approved fire extinguishers on hand. Use them to control or extinguish the fire, if possible.

Stay out of a burning house!

If fire is out of control, don't return for valuables or other possessions. You may be trapped by flames or overcome by smoke. Life is one thing you cannot replace. Let the firemen do the work . . . stay clear!

What to do before fire strikes

See an Agent of one of the North America Companies. If you do not know who he is in your community, write us and we'll see that he gets in touch with you. He'll make sure that your insurance gives you full protection against loss by fire.

What's more, he'll give you friendly, competent advice on all your insurance problems. And he'll show you how little it costs to have the best protection, expertly tailored to your own needs. You'll feel safer knowing, too, that your insurance will be placed in one of the oldest, strongest and most progressive organizations in the business.

DRY

Speed Queen Washer and Dryer Home Laundry

INSTEAD of paying $250 to $300 for just a washer alone . . . why not buy a Speed Queen Washer and a Dryer? The total cost is very little, if any, more! Then your clothes will come through not only sparkling clean, but also DRY, ready for ironing.

With your Speed Queen Washer, you can whisk through an average week's wash of 7 full loads in one quick hour. (One tubful of hot water will do the whole job.) When you're through washing, 2 or 3 loads of clothes will be already dry so that you can START IRONING IMMEDIATELY and easily finish your entire week's wash, ironing and all, on the same day. It's really the most sensible, and certainly the most economical way to do your washing. See your Speed Queen dealer or write Speed Queen Corporation, Ripon, Wis. for literature.

Books

Of great interest this month to parents, educators, and anyone having to do with children is the 32nd annual celebration of National Children's Book Week scheduled for the week of the 12th. "Development in a child of the priceless habit of reading books that have the salt of life in them," says the experts, "will eventually make him aware of values and capable of selecting the finest for himself." The theme, as indicated by the poster (shown above) designed by William Pène du Bois, is "Make friends with books."

Wild Flowers at a Glance by M. C. Carey and Dorothy Fitchew. (Pellegrini & Cudahy) Price $2.75 . . . An interesting, pleasing, and unique pocket-size guide book which describes and illustrates (in color) 264 plants commonly found in the United States, Canada, or the British Isles; or (as a result of natural spread) in all three places. Some of the English popular names (Jack-by-the-hedge, Codlins-and-cream, etc.) may puzzle American readers, but most of the subjects can easily be identified by the scientific names (helpfully explained), descriptions, and pictures (arranged by color). Especially useful for travelers, it will also bring English-speaking plant-lovers closer together. (Don't overlook the 6-in. measure conveniently die-stamped into the back cover.)

Your Mortgage, by Frederick H. Allen. (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, Inc.) Price $2.00 . . . In 90 pages of questions and answers the author discusses most of the problems of home financing that confront prospective home owners. He covers how and where to get a mortgage, title insurance, surveys, F.H.A. and G.I. loans, appraisals, costs, and many other phases of the subject. A study of this excellent book should help home buyers and owners to save money and avoid pitfalls that lie before the unwary.

Your Child's Leisure Time by Mildred Celia Letton and Getting Along in the Family by Jane Mayer. (Teachers College, Columbia University) Price 60 cents each . . . These are two pamphlets in a parent-teacher series written in simple, informative style with the purpose of fostering a better understanding of the mutual task of helping boys and girls to grow up successfully.

Landscape for Living by Garrett Eckbo. (Duell, Sloan & Pearce, Inc.) Price $10.00 . . . Although this handsome and unusual book does not tell "how to lay out your home grounds," it is, for anyone interested in what landscape architecture (or design) is and does, or should do, one of the most illuminating and exciting volumes that has appeared in a long time. A "serious analysis, in terms of theory and practice, of landscape development in our culture," it is not light reading, but it is well worth any effort needed to read it carefully and thoughtfully. The modern format and arrangement reflect Mr. Eckbo's dynamic, broad-gauge ideas and approach. As his professional work is having a profound impression on its field, so this book should profoundly influence its literature, readers, and practitioners.

Menaboni's Birds by Sara Menaboni, illustrated by Athos Menaboni. (Rinehart) Price $10.00 . . . Since childhood, Italian-born artist, Athos

Menaboni, has been deeply interested in birds. In 1938, his Georgia-born wife helped him discover that he could make them the subject of his other major interest and life work—painting. To paint them, he must know them; to know them, he must live with them. So his models, from tiny sparrows to wild geese and eagles, share both outside and inside of his home (described in THE AMERICAN HOME July, 1946) and even his studio (to be described in an early issue). This, his wife's story of their

Look out it bites!

A Picture Story by Lilo Hess from Three Lions

What does? Why, this odd, not unattractive, white-flowered plant that grows in a small area in North and South Carolina. Its name is Dionaea (from a Greek name for Venus) muscipula (meaning fly-catcher); or, in English, "Venus fly-trap." Why such a name? Watch . . .

Unwary beetle (above), fly, or other insect climbs leaf stem to the two-lobed blade, hinged in the middle, edged with long, curved bristles. On the upper surface of the apparently harmless leaf are three pairs of sensitive hairs. As the insect touches them, the leaf closes, traps it, holds it! (right) Digestive fluids from the hairs gradually dissolve the prey, which the leaf then absorbs

It Bites! (Begins on page 10)

Sometimes this voracious herb will bite at (though not off) "more than it can chew"—e.g. a finger, or a wholly indigestible and non nutritious pencil (see below). Normally, several hours, or days, after a meal of spider, fly, or whatever it captured, the leaf unfolds, ejects the uneaten tough parts, sets itself for another

A lover of moist, sandy "bottom lands," Venus fly-trap is not easily grown "in captivity." If you can get one, try it in a pot of silver sand and black, silty soil; or a dish of loose, peaty soil and live sphagnum moss on top of a layer of gravel or other drainage material. Water daily, but don't let stagnant water accumulate

"Never underestimate the power of a—" Venus fly-trap! This folded leaf (perhaps with victim inside) resists a pull of nearly 2 ounces as registered on the postal scale

? Are You a ? Ready-made Parent ?

MARION HAMMETT

As the divorce rate has increased in the last decade, thousands of husbands and wives have taken on a new role. They have entered a marriage which makes them ready-made parents. Some walked into the part with their own idea of how to play it. Others decided to play it unrehearsed.

Either way, these men and women who acquired a ready-made family found that they were faced with problems of which they never even dreamed.

For instance, there was the case of Mary Dawson. When she married Bill, she knew, of course, that he had been divorced two years before she even met him. She also knew that there was a boy, about twelve years old, who lived with his mother in Cleveland.

What Mary didn't know was that Bill's ex-wife would send the boy to New York to live with his father. The idea of sharing her new and romantic marriage with a grown child was something Mary hadn't bargained for. The boy's obvious resentment of his stepmother wasn't much of a help, either.

As an intelligent woman, Mary decided to face the problem squarely. She read books on how to bring up children. She was kind and tried to be understanding. She did everything she could think of to make the boy happy. But no matter what she did, it was always wrong. The boy was sulky and disobedient.

Mary never complained to Bill about the problem. She tried hard—oh, how she tried. In desperation, she finally visited an old friend, Sara Deming, who was chief of a large social work agency. If she didn't get some advice soon, Mary felt that her marriage would break up.

The social worker told Mary that the boy's resentment was based a good deal on his feeling of insecurity.

"But why?" Mary wanted to know. "We've done everything to make him happy. He has a good home, and I've done everything I can think of."

"Yes, but don't you see," Sara Deming said, "that a child's affections are not elastic. He had always divided his affections between his parents. Now an outsider takes his mother's place in his father's life. It takes time for a child to figure out how to divide his loyalties."

This tricky question of divided loyalties is haunting children and married couples all over the country. All too often youngsters are the ones who suffer most when a home is broken up. Remarriage by the parents may bring happiness to them, but it leaves the stepchild facing an emotional maze with little more than a sense of loss to guide him.

Youngsters are much more conscious of their emotional surroundings than many people realize—especially people who are in love. It is hard for a child to fit his loyalties into this new pattern of having one of his parents replaced by a stranger.

Mary Dawson listened to all this. She certainly felt sympathy for the boy and knew that the breaking up of Bill's first marriage must have been a blow to him.

"But what about me?" Mary asked. "Don't you think the boy is old enough to recognize that I have some rights? I married his father because we love each other. I have a right to some happiness—happiness without the care of a resentful youngster under my roof."

"Of course," said her friend. "But all that should have been discussed before your marriage. Your husband should have recognized his responsibilities to his boy. The child needs a father as well as a mother. Also as adults you can think things through more clearly. This boy needs a better break than most other

Who and where are the Rowleys? Your article in THE AMERICAN HOME for June 1950 stuck in my mind for over a month until today I just had to look it up again.

How can you torture me with such ideas—Candied Rose Petals, Potpourri, Vinegars, etc.—and not a recipe! I thought, "O.K., so just the idea is offered—find out for yourself," and hied myself 30 miles to the Gary Public Library. So now all the librarians go around with worried expressions; each one is sure she had seen it somewhere but, no, it wasn't in that book.

Do you suppose your Mrs. Rowley would take pity on us? And I do think more pictures and in color of her garden would be appreciated by all of us beginners. So many wonders are described by you and so few show, I don't think you do her or us justice.

—MRS. RUSSELL BRUNO

We've loved your attitude for years, and now that we are living in this old house (built in 1786) in a wee borough with little chance to shop except by mail, you're nothing less than a godsend.

Wonder if you ever really think about that angle when you're getting March copy together in November. There are those of us who have lived in cities always, who, suddenly, have to travel miles to shop. By the time we get to any shopping center—and browse and stumble trying to locate the mart we need, it's time to meet father in the parking lot (which we never can find)—so we've learned to do a lot of things for ourselves.

Without you we'd be desolate. But we came our own chairs which we've dragged home from a country auction. We bring home dismal cupboards and either restore them to their original wood or, if they're pretty well "beat up," shall we say, we haul out all of the last five years' copies of THE AMERICAN HOME and hunt up some painting suggestions. So—thank you for assembling your booklet for us.

Lots of times I can't see my house, because I live in it. But I know full well that those of you who can be thrilled by an old house would swoon at the possibilities in this one.

The house is warm and lovable. It has all-plank walls, one plastered ceiling which is now painted yellow. Layers—8 or 10—of wallpaper were steamed and pulled off. Then we got

with these frostings*

(Note: Each recipe makes enough to fill and frost two 8-inch layers.)

CHOCOLATE-WALNUT FROSTING

- | | |
|--|----------------------------------|
| 3 tbsps. butter or margarine | 2 ¼ cups sifted powdered sugar |
| 6 oz. pkg. semi-sweet chocolate pieces | ¼ tsp. salt |
| ½ cup hot milk | ½ tsp. vanilla |
| | Diamond Walnut halves and pieces |

Smooth and creamy for Devil's Food or any chocolate cake. Melt butter and chocolate together over hot water. Stir hot milk into sugar and salt; add vanilla. Add chocolate mixture, beating until thick. Spread on cool cake. Decorate sides with chopped Diamond Walnuts; arrange plump walnut halves on top to complete the luscious picture.

Do you know you get over 2 full cups of kernels from just one pound of Diamond Walnuts? It's true!

Diamond Walnuts always give you more usable kernels per pound.

DIAMOND FRUITED FROSTING

- | | |
|-------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1 egg white, unbeaten | ½ tsp. vanilla |
| Dash of salt | ½ cup chopped raisins or dates |
| ¾ cup sugar | ¼ cup candied cherries |
| 3 tbsps. water | ½ cup chopped Diamond Walnuts |
| 1 tsp. light corn syrup | |

Combine first 5 ingredients in double boiler; place over boiling water; beat with rotary beater about 4 min., till stiff enough to stand in peaks. Remove from heat; add vanilla and beat 1 or 2 min. more. Fold in fruits and walnuts. Looks and tastes gorgeous on white cake—spice cake, too!

No kitchen cupboard should be without these! Ready-shelled Diamond Walnuts in 8 and 4 oz. tins. Vacuum packing keeps them fresh, crisp for convenient, instant use all year round.

ORANGE-WALNUT FROSTING

Just tart enough to be the perfect pickup for dainty gold or angel cake. Stir together 3 tbsps. soft butter, 1 tbsp. grated orange peel, ¼ tsp. salt and ½ cup sifted powdered sugar. Beat in one egg yolk. Gradually add 2 cups sifted powdered sugar alternately with 2 tbsps. orange juice and 1 tsp. lemon juice; beat till creamy. Spread on cool cake. Decorate with Diamond Walnuts—crisp pieces in the center; big, golden halves around the edge.

More mix magic—remember packaged frosting mixes when you're really rushed. Just be sure to dress 'em up with Diamond Walnuts!

The beautiful color scheme in this attractive room was inspired by the floor. It was planned with Texfloor® tile—the new, long-wearing, low-cost linoleum with the textured look. Pattern Nos. 601 and 602 are used.

down to the last layer—pages out of hymnals, papers, pieces of everything!

It was built for a residence, then came the canal with its tow path and it became a canal house where guests were cared for overnight—many undoubtedly slept in the loft. And the big fireplace in the Keeping Room cooked good food for them.

How did I get into all this? I only started to send my order, hoping that I could offer the book to several gals who come here each Thursday night to the Putter Club. It's just that.

Right now one of the gals who never painted anything is doing canisters and is in the labor room. The canisters may be born any week now. Shall we notify you? She's using one of your designs.—KAY MORRISON

Several months ago when a recipe I submitted was selected and won a prize, my friends flung at me, "Well, you have the time!", as though time were the only requisite. So from here on I defend myself.

I have been thankful many times that as a bride (I could barely boil water, as the saying goes), I decided to do two things: attend a cooking school, and subscribe to THE AMERICAN HOME magazine. Since 1933, I have faithfully clipped each month's recipes and filed them after successful preparation and serving. My utmost satisfaction occurs when my results are comparable to the pictured recipes. All I know about cooking, I learned. But I must confess I come by it naturally. My mother was a wonderful cook. Although I refused to take lessons from her, I must have absorbed her talent. And my father was a food-dabbler, the artistic type—a sprig of parsley here, a dash of lemon there. From him, I inherit whatever flair I have. So, when I hear, "You have the time!" as the one concession to an accomplishment—be it cooking, rearing my daughter, decorating my home, or holding my husband's interest after 17 years of marriage—I take the comment with a grain of salt and thank my lucky stars that I take the time. No one person has an option on time. It's for free!—LEE MARIE BUSICCO

Two booklets on hooked rug making that will be of much help to the beginner as well as the veteran rugger. Hooked Rugs in the Modern Manner gives very concise instructions for hooking and has a number of shaded designs suitable for floral hooked rugs. From Rags to Riches is a supplement to the above. It covers dyeing, giving names and descriptions of colors. Also full instructions on how to shade flowers and leaves.

Plant Disease Handbook by Cynthia Westcott. (Van Nostrand) Price $7.50 . . . This book, says the author, is "a hybrid composed of purely technical information crossed with admonitions to the layman . . . a compendium of valuable information on diseases of plants grown in gardens or in the home in continental United States." The information is "filtered through and somewhat colored by" her own experience, which makes it the more accurate and valuable. It is a book that everyone who wants a better garden should have access to; if not as owner, then through library, classroom, garden club, or study group. We admire it for what it attempts and does. We get from it a thrill of paternal pride, for it was THE AMERICAN HOME which, in 1937, published the first of her more important articles on plant protection. Since then, as this 746-page book testifies, she has come far in the knowledge of plants and their troubles and in understanding the people who grow them—or try to.

Home Electrical Repairs by Alfred P. Morgan. (Crown Publishers) Price $3.00 . . . In more than 200 pages Mr. Morgan has included 160 excellent illustrations and detailed instructions that will make all the normal home electrical problems, and some of the more complicated ones, seem very easy for a home owner with a few tools and a normal aptitude for handling them. The problems that are discussed and illustrated run all the way from splicing wires, fixing plugs and small appliances to small wiring jobs in the walls of the house.

LIGHT UP YOUR WISH. This Christmas let your greeting shine out above all others. A snow scene on one side and "Season's Greetings" on the other are hand-painted in bright Yuletide colors on this wax "card." It comes with two wicks, and it is mailed in an individual box. 4" x 3" high. 6 for $2. 12 for $3.85. Ppd. No c.o.d.'s. Dutch Treat Shop, 5932 Germantown Ave., Philadelphia 44, Pa.

A LITTLE TAFFETA SUIT has a velvet collar and cuffs edged with braid, and the nipped-in waist has a pretty petal effect. Tiny rhinestones sparkle from black buttons and it has a full circular skirt. Raspberry-wine, sapphire-green, midnight-black, autumn-brown, bright navy, or aquamist. Sizes 9 to 15; or 10 to 16. $8.95 plus 20¢ post. Gilchrist's, Boston 2, Massachusetts.

"DEARIE, DO YOU REMEMBER . . . then you're a whole lot older than I!" Send these as a good-natured jab to an old friend for Christmas. Plastic reproductions painted in a gleaming gold finish look like solid pieces. Ford, $1.95; Fire Engine, $3.95. Also: Conestoga Wagon, $3.95; Concord Stagecoach, $3.95. Ppd. Jenifer House, New Marlboro Stage, Great Barrington, Mass.

STAR OF BETHLEHEM FLOWERS will be arriving in Goldfarb's before long all the way from South Africa. Known to the natives as the Wonder Flower, they have adopted the Christmas name because of their star-shaped blossoms. An off-white color with no fragrance, they last for several weeks. 25 buds in a box, $2.50 prepaid. Del. after Nov. 15th. Goldfarb's, 160 E. 57th St., N. Y. C.

BANGLE BRACELETS. A teen-ager will love the chunkiness of an 18-k gold-plated bracelet sporting a Kiss Timer. Whirling around a dance floor on December 31st about midnight, it might even be the center of attraction! $1.50. With the Dice Bracelet, a young vixen might gamble on anything from an increased allowance to a good-night kiss. $1.25 prepaid. Gift Clues, Beacon 2, N. Y.

GRANDMA MOSES PLATES. She has been called America's greatest living primitive painter, and here are some lovely examples of her warm-hearted work. Hang these translucent white china plates over a sofa or use them at a buffet supper. Decorated in brilliant colors, with colorful scenes of American country life, $3.25 ea.; $12.50 doz. Ppd. Robin Hood's Barn, Sudbury, Mass.

THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS invite your favorite people over to share the magic that is December 24th. Fill this chafing dish with Welsh rarebit, lobster Newburg or chicken à la king spiked with sherry. Copper and brass, it holds a full quart, stands 9" high and will take a full can of Sterno. $7.95. Two-quart, $12.95. Prepaid from Pee Wee House, Culver City, California.

MILK GLASS AND ROSES. Romantic as you please, this old-fashioned vase has a lace and dewdrop pattern with a crimped edge and was actually handmade from the original mold. The fluted edge makes it extremely graceful for flower arranging, and you'll use it, filled with African violets, to highlight a curio shelf. 4" high, $2 ppd. Artcraft Products Co., Box 876, Cleveland 22, O.

SKI SKATES will have the pigtail crowd whooping down snow-covered hills until suppertime this winter. And don't worry about nasty spills, because the grooved bottoms on the skis encourage good balance. 13" long, adjustable for children from about 5 to 13. Order them now for your hellion and all his pals. $1.25 pair. Prepaid from Robert W. Kellogg Co., Springfield, Massachusetts.

NON-OVERFLOW PIE PANS • END OVEN-SCRAPING

Never again need you tussle with a charred, baked-on oven mess! Non-Overflow Pie Pans have grooved rims to catch the juices that bubble over the edge of the pie. "Foodproof with the oziest berry pie," says a leading magazine. Aluminum; bake standard 9" pie. Work-savers in your own kitchen—and useful, appreciated gifts.

Yes, More Brilliant Than a Diamond!

Amazing New Discovery

Write today for the FREE illustrated booklet that tells the full story of the latest miracle of science—the story of a glorious jewel discovered in the laboratories of one of the world's largest corporations. Read all about the Kenya Gem that so closely resembles a diamond that only an expert can tell the difference.

More Fire!
More Brilliance!

Yes, this marvelous gem has more brilliance, more fire and a more dazzling display of color than the finest diamond of equal size. And yet you can now own a brilliant one (1) carat unset Kenya Gem for only $24. Kenya Gems run from 1/2 carat to 8 carats, all expertly cut; also men's brilliant, stylish rings and ladies' rings, brooches and earrings.

If you wish, you can buy on EASY PAYMENTS.

The Cinderella of Science

Kenya Gems are the sensational discovery that you read about in the Jewelers' magazine and The Sat. Eve. Post, "the only thing on earth more brilliant than a diamond." It is a true gem, crystallized by science instead of nature.

BEST FRUITCAKE YOU EVER TASTED!

Rare Treat For You, Your Friends or Customers! Old Southern FRUIT CAKE

Never before such lavish quantities of rich, imported fruits, and crunchy nuts — OLD SOUTHERN FRUITCAKE is chockful of Tennessee black walnuts, almonds and plump jumbo pecans! OLD SOUTHERN FRUITCAKE, made from a secret recipe cherished by one family for five generations, has a light but moist texture that melts in the mouth. You've tasted fruitcake, but until you've tasted OLD SOUTHERN you don't know what a gourmet's fruitcake really is!

OLD SOUTHERN comes decked in cellophane and tinfoil as befits ITS MAJESTY — in a gay holiday tin (perfect for cookies when you've regrettably eaten the last crumb of Old Southern Fruitcake). Two sizes of OLD SOUTHERN FRUITCAKE: 3-pound — $4.50 and 5-pound — $7.50.

Safely cartoned, mailed free to any point in the U. S. in plenty of time for holiday arrivals, OLD SOUTHERN FRUITCAKE is the gift you send to all your Gift List, to your customers and employees — to the Boss. Don't forget to provide extra quantities of OLD SOUTHERN FRUITCAKE for yourself and family.

Hurry, hurry, order today. Check or M.O. — NO C.O.D.'s please.

5 Reasons for Tampax

(as monthly protection)

- No pins, belts, external pads
- Designed by a doctor
- Worn internally (no odor)
- Cannot be felt by wearer
- Adopted by millions of women

4 more Reasons

- Made of pure surgical cotton contained in slender applicator
- Combining downright comfort with daintiness
- Your hands need never touch the Tampax
- You need not remove during tub or shower bath

other advantages

- ✓ Tampax causes no bulges or ridges under clothing
- ✓ Tampax improves poise and saves embarrassment on "those days"
- ✓ Tampax is easily disposed of (much smaller than other kind)
- ✓ A month's average supply will slip into your purse

Sold at drug and notion counters in 3 absorbency-sizes (Regular, Super, Junior) to meet individual requirements. Economy box lasts about 4 months. . . . Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

In making wreaths, the Williamstown "Greens Committee" follows the "assembly-line" pattern

MAUDE ADAMS JOHNSON

GOOD DEEDS... from Christmas Wreaths

Up in the "woods and templed hills" of Williamstown, Massachusetts, the members of one of the country's smaller garden clubs have, in a subtle but simple way, discovered that hard work can be fun and at the same time profitable. This has proved true especially in connection with the club's annual sale of Christmas greens which consistently, for several years, has been a big success.

Since hundreds of articles have to be literally handmade for this event, which takes place about a week before Christmas, the preliminary work has to be started long before that [like the editorial work on a December issue!—Editor]. It begins with the scouting for material with which to make the wreaths, sprays, swags, and other ornamental arrangements which come under the general title of "Christmas decorations." These scouting and collecting expeditions are supervised by the club's so-called "Greens Committee," which is appointed to assist the membership in the search for and use of suitable materials. The familiar evergreen sprays and cones are by no means the only things gathered by these Christmas-sale enthusiasts. Dried weeds, seed stalks and pods, and all kinds of roadside, field, and forest material are brought home and stored away in attics and cellars in readiness for the next stage of the project, when many of them are artfully camouflaged so as to be hardly

Photographs by Randolph Trobolt from Acme

The annual Christmas greens sale is held about a week before the holidays in the village Inn. As much care goes into the display as into the making of the decorations

Who Runs America?

RUNNING AMERICA is the joint job of 150,000,000 people. It's the biggest job in the world today—keeping it running for liberty and for freedom. And the whole world's watching to see whether Americans can do it!

IN MUCH OF THE WORLD today, the people have resigned from running their own countries. Others have been quick to step in—first with promises of "security"—and then with whips and guns—to run things their way. The evidence is on every front page in the world, every day.

FREEDOM COMES UNDER ATTACK. The reality of war has made every American think hard about the things he's willing to work and fight for—and freedom leads the list.

But that freedom has been attacked here recently—just as it has been attacked in other parts of the world. One of the most serious threats to individual freedom has been the threat of Government-dominated Compulsory Health Insurance, falsely presented as a new guarantee of health "security" for everybody.

THE PEOPLE WEIGH THE FACTS. In the American manner, the people studied the case for Socialized Medicine—and the case against it.

They found that Government domination of the people's medical affairs under Compulsory Health Insurance means lower standards of medical care, higher payroll taxes, loss of incentive, damage to research, penalties for the provident, rewards for the improvident.

They found that no country on earth can surpass America's leadership in medical care and progress. They found that able doctors, teachers, nurses and scientists—working in laboratories where Science, not Politics, is master—are blazing dramatic new trails to health for Americans—and for the world.

THE "GRASS ROOTS" SIGNALS CONGRESS. In every community in the Nation, people stood up to be counted on this important issue. Thousands of local women's clubs, civic groups, farm, business, religious, taxpayer, medical, educational and patriotic organizations spoke out—giving the great United States Congress its unmistakable Grass Roots signal from home!

And ever watchful, ever sensitive to an alert people, The Congress saw that signal, and heard the people speak out, loud and plain. That's democracy in action. That's the American way!

Today among the 10,000 great organizations on militant public record against "Compulsory Health Insurance" are:

General Federation of Women's Clubs
American Farm Bureau
Federation
National Grange
Veterans of Foreign Wars
National Conference of Catholic Charities
American Protestant
Hospital Association

American Legion
National Association of
Small Business Men
United States Chamber of Commerce
National Association of
Retail Grocers
National Retail Dry Goods
Association
American Bar Association

recognized. For this phase of their activities, the willing workers gather in various homes for all-day painting parties which, for reasons obvious to all homemakers, usually center in the basement. Here tables are set up for the members' convenience, newspapers or other protective covers are spread out, paint cans are opened (with the customary difficulty), brushes for different purposes are chosen, and the enjoyable task of transforming the drab and the dun into the bright, sparkling, and gay begins. Spikes, plumes, and variously shaped seed vessels, weeds, grasses, and branches are lightly touched with white, silver, and gold to prepare them for the more modernistic compositions. Some may be tinged with the more prosaic red or blue, but evergreen sprays, cones, and berries are, in the main, left in their natural condition for making wreaths, swags, and other traditional decorations.

After a few days of painting, wiring of cones, and sorting of evergreens, the busy club members move to other homes where the work of actually making up the wreaths, etc., is to be done. Here, the project follows the assembly-line pattern: as soon as a wreath is given shape by binding small pieces of sweet-smelling balsam to a wire-ring frame, it is passed along to the "trimmers," who give it the final artistic touch and the stamp of originality that is so sought after by the public. For this particular purpose, cones and berries are bunched and wired together in an intimate way not ordinarily seen in nature; this, too, gives opportunity for the expression of the personalities of the different workers. However, it is in the making of the other, less formalized, arrangements that the members of the club get a real chance to show the versatility of their ideas and add materially to the value of the different articles when, at last, they go on sale.

On the morning of the long-awaited and generously publicized event, the finished products are picked up at the various workrooms and taken to the village Inn, where they are arranged and displayed to best advantage. The wreaths are hung in the midst of a gay yuletide setting, colorful table and mantel arrangements are effectively grouped, tiny decorated Christmas trees have a place of their own where they shine and sparkle irresistibly. Everything is hung or spread out in a well-planned profusion that not only appeals but also creates a joyous Christmas atmosphere and a general feeling of good cheer.

At the appointed hour, the doors of the exhibit rooms are thrown open, the public surges in, and the buying begins. While the spirited selling continues, no one has time to think of anything else, least of all of the hours of hard work that have led up to it. But at the end, after the last item has been disposed of, the weary, but happy, members of the Greens Committee and the club pause to rejoice that once more their efforts have been amply rewarded, as several hundred more dollars have been added to the fund that is used by the club to sponsor various worthy causes.

What sort of causes? Well, of late the profits from the Christmas sales have been donated to the local Cancer Fund, to swell the annual Red Cross drive, and to aid a nearby hospital. But, don't forget that, in addition, the sales that made these contributions possible provided many families of the community with tasteful, original, decorative arrangements with which to make their holidays brighter and more enjoyable, that they probably could not have made themselves or otherwise obtained. And remember, furthermore, that the hours spent in gathering the materials and turning them into merchandise were happy hours for all concerned. Is it any wonder that we of Williamstown think of our project as something that benefits everybody—something that, like Portia's quality of mercy, "blesseth him that gives and him that takes."

Tiny Christmas trees, bright and sparkling with tinsel, shining balls, and other traditional delights make their appeal from a well-chosen corner of the exhibition

At a designated time the doors are opened, the people surge in, buying begins. For a while no one thinks of anything else. Then comes the happy realization—another success!

Everybody's Doing It

HOPE DAHLE JORDAN

Mostly, sheep are four-legged animals who spend their time in pastures. But there's another kind! They have two legs, they drive on Sundays through the nicer, newer suburbs. They copy this, they copy that. . .

Do you remember the days when we had big hair-bows with little girls attached to them? Today, we have huge sheets of glass with houses attached. Right now, probably the feature in a home most frequently imitated with the greatest lack of judgment is the picture window. The first picture window was an inspiration, planned by someone with the soul of an artist, the imagination of a poet. The result was a masterpiece which brought a beautiful vista right into the home to be enjoyed. It was planned for a purpose. The second, twentieth, hundredth picture window was planned for that same purpose: to frame a lovely view. To picture! It was functional, and the function was beauty.

Now imitation, not the flattering kind, has set in like a disease and everybody who builds or remodels simply must have picture windows. And what do they picture? Why, streetcar tracks, or garbage cans, or traffic-congested highways, or a brick wall, or other "picture" windows where the draperies are tightly drawn day and night because "it's like living in Gimbel's show-window." Perhaps, as in one Chicago home, the immense window faces directly into the nearby window of the house next door. A "picture" all right. A moving picture. But neither family enjoys it.

The picture windows not only bring the outdoors into the home; they put the inside of the home right out on the boulevard. If you drive in the evening in the districts where new homes are being built, how many dozens have you seen with an immense window overlooking traffic, a big lamp or a vase of flowers squarely in the middle of it—and nobody in the room? A picture, all right! But not for those who live in the house, and that is where

Comfortable viewing arrangement around a "picture" window for a view that isn't there!

Everybody's Doing It

. . . or how
a magnificent idea
can be abused

the type of imitators without common sense have made their mistake. They planned from the outside in, instead of from the inside out.

A few years ago the prevailing cry was: "You simply must paint your woodwork white! Everybody's doing it . . ."

As in the case of the first picture window, it was some really inspired person who had first created beauty in a home—this time with cans of white paint. Then, the good imitators, those with taste and sense, picked up the idea. Then came just plain imitators and, when the fad for white woodwork was at its height, it was criminal the way slavish people daubed paint over beautifully grained wood for which, today, we would pay almost any price—if we could get it. But "white" was the rage, you know!

Today, there's another prevailing cry. If you paper or paint a bedroom or kitchen or even a living room, what are you advised? . . . "you simply must have one wall different from the rest. Everybody's doing it!"

It's become a formula: three walls plain, one wall figured. Or, vice versa. Follow the crowd. Does it make sense in your home? Who cares? The alcove, the dining bay in a living room, the reason behind the original inspiration for combining wall-papers or paints—is it there in your home? No. We'll just say "eeny, meeny," and there will be the wall that will be different from the others. Common sense? Good taste? No, we'll just be sheep and tag along with the rest of the crowd.

When you copy, be sure there is a reason. If you spend the money to put a large pane of glass in your home, you want the pane, not the pain! Be wary of fads. What everybody else is doing in their homes, you think over a long time before you do it.

Roscoe Laing

Fred Gund

Picture windows can not only bring the outdoors into the home—they can also put the inside of the home right out on the street corner. Common sense dictates that if you crave a picture window and have only a street view, that the house be set far enough back on the plot to gain maximum privacy

Nowell Ward

Maynard L. Parker

Keep enough in the budget to plant yourself in if your "picture" is to be your neighbor's garage or drying yard! We can't all have dramatic sea, desert or mountains. Make your own lovely "picture"—but be sure you can control it after you've contrived it. Decorator, Martha Weaver of Barker Brothers

stark

It's Pink and Pretty NOW!

There had been the usual haphazard caravan of prospective buyers who had looked at the stark, ugly stucco house before the Goods came along, but they were all afraid of it. The known list of necessary repairs scared them. The mention of termites can be and usually is terrifying for the reason that termites may be known to exist, but the extent of damage they have done remains guesswork. One wall of the den-sitting room had caved in. The whole house was in sad need of a paint job. It was overgrown with a thicket of shrubs and a tangle of vines. The neighbors, with a natural prejudice against a dark, empty house, had tried to have it condemned and, failing that, were about ready to buy it and tear it down. Now, its proud owners, the John V. Goods, do not pull a long face about any of this. To be sure there were termites. The house had gone to seed. It needed a lot of work to reclaim its respect among its comfortable, well-kept neighbors. The Goods could see this themselves. What they couldn't see, they were told. What they accomplished is little short of a miracle.

Mr. Good, an embryo architect who studied architecture in college and then became a legitimate-stage and later a motion-picture actor, did the structural work in their project; Mrs. Good, a former actress, the interior decorating. Together, they brought the great gift of willingness to work for a home, the rare gift of vision that could see the charming, comfortable home they have now. It's relatively easy to restore a historical gem—but research on pseudo-Mediterranean stucco jobs is scarce. Few good reclamation examples exist and, because our South, Southwest and West Coast are studded with these "hopeless" houses, the Good house should spur many another back into respectability and good living for their owners.

The neighbors did not get the house condemned—because the Goods bought it and promptly set to work. The caved-in wall of the den-sitting room was easily understood and the cost of repair in this case could be fairly accurately determined, just as the cost of painting could be done. The broken wall was not a serious matter. Being a hillside house, downhill drainage had been neglected in late years. It merely meant diverting waterfall to the right and to the left of the house and rebuilding a few feet of brick wall. It was the termites then that had everyone buffaloed—everyone except Mr. and Mrs. Good! They were younger, more optimistic than any of the other prospective buyers, and they, to their eternal gratification, took the chance. It was a gamble but it paid off. The underpinnings of the house were solid. The termite damage was negligible. While investigation was going on, however, they added some modern structural foundation strength which is only a wise precaution in rejuvenating an old house—especially one that is hung on the side of a hill. As a result, they have the comfortable assurance that their perch is firmly, substantially grounded.

Mr. Good planned, and with the help of competent carpenters and masons, executed all of the major and minor remodeling changes. Fortunately, architecture is not merely an art of putting up a front. In this case, it included breaking through the back wall of the living-room fireplace from the dining-room side so that both rooms now share the pleasure of the same open firebox. It called, too, for

Orchids in the Bronx

JEAN HERSEY

My husband and I have been raising and flowering orchids in our New York City living room for more than three years. Today, 16 snow-white blossoms with golden stamens are open on one Coelogyne plant. Another of our favorites has the beginning of a flower spike which, the book says, will climb six feet before it blooms. Apparently, we'll have to raise the roof!

There's no telling what will start you raising orchids. The small nunlike flower part in the heart of the one called the White Nun Orchid was our original undoing; almost immediately after we saw it we bought our first plant. The blossom of the Butterfly Orchid, with the figure of a dancing girl in the center, led us on to buy our second plant. Then, when we met the variety in which is a miniature replica of a small Dutch boy, complete with breeches, we were lost.

Out of our experience we say that anyone can grow orchids in the home—some orchids, that is. One enthusiast raises them in a city hotel bedroom window. [We grew one for three years and flowered it in our A. H. office—Horticultural Editor.] Like the baker who grows them in Brooklyn and an engineer over in New Jersey, all kinds of people are trying this increasingly popular and most satisfying pastime. The culture is simple, the rules are few, the delightful rewards are numerous. You, sir, can raise a corsage for your best girl or your wife; you, madam, can grow the bridal bouquet for your daughter's wedding. Moreover, the fun begins months ahead of flowering time and continues long after it. Not only the blossoming, but the whole growing cycle of an orchid is thrilling to watch.

The first big event is, naturally, your first flower. But an even greater thrill comes with the second. The plant, when you bought it, fresh from the nursery, might have been all set for the first blooming. But a year later, the second flowering shows that it has completed its rhythm of growth under your care. You have grown it successfully! And not in a greenhouse.

Among the joys of orchid growing are these: The flowers last on the plants in perfect condition for from a few weeks to three months, depending on the variety. Many orchids are fragrant; so much so that the aroma of a flower can scent a whole room. Orchids behave with great individuality; the respective growing habits of the different kinds are varied and interesting to watch and study.

Popular misconceptions about orchids include ideas like these: 1. All orchids are of the big "mink-coat" kind. In reality, there are thousands of others than those flamboyant lavender-purple sorts; they come in about every rainbow color, even blue; some grow singly, some in sprays; some are large, others are small, etc. 2. All orchids are delicate. Actually a good many are surprisingly tough and hardy, resistant to changes in temperature; some will even withstand a light freeze or two. 3. All orchids take seven years to bloom. The fact is that you can purchase mature plants ready to flower for you in a few weeks, and which will bloom annually thereafter. 4. All orchids are prohibitively expensive. Not so. Plants of blooming size for house culture can be bought for as little as three dollars each. 5. All orchids must be grown in a greenhouse. Well, we have proved that they will grow in a living room. Some kinds flourish on an ordinary window sill; others grow well in a simple glass case which can be purchased or made at home. One big enough for a dozen plants should cost under ten dollars to build. In general, the best location is an east or west window. Strong light is essential, but it need not be continuous all day. A south window is ideal if you hang a light-breaking shade of cheesecloth or a thin curtain between plants and window glass from March through October.

Photographs by Mark Tidd

Mrs. Hersey tells about their orchids, but the whole family enjoys them. Above, Mr. Hersey repots one, flanked by two Cypripediums. Here is the "orchidarium" in their living-room window

Of the details of home orchid culture, one of the most important is, don't overwater. Roots as well as tops need air so, when you do it, soak until water runs out the bottom of the pot, then wait until the roots are dry before doing it again. The drier a plant, the lighter it is, so by "hefting" a pot you can, with experience, tell when a watering is due. In an "orchidarium," a plant in a 5-inch pot will usually want water once a week; loose in the average house, every day or two. Frequent spraying of the top is necessary—at least once a day, and oftener if possible. Keep a filled rubber bulb sprayer handy and give your orchids a squirt whenever you think of it. However, if you forget to water them for a few days, no harm will result. Incidentally, rain water is better than tap water. Other than watering, orchids need only a few minutes' daily care, and little or no feeding since they get their sustenance from the water and the air. Hence, first thing every morning, open a window for a few minutes to freshen

Short on Ready Cash—Long

Corner of living room showing staircase wall, record unit, hanging shelf built by me. Betty made the slip covers and curtains. Dining room corner cupboard was my creation. Table is also a "Murdoch original"

When a young couple starts out to furnish and decorate a house today, it's no picnic, since many of us aren't overloaded with money, to say the least. By making most of our furniture by hand and using color to point up the entire scheme, we think the problem has been pretty well handled, and we're quite proud of ourselves.

We did buy three good basic upholstered pieces, a bedroom set, and a few Early American antiques, but after that there was very little left. So I, being brave and untried, decided to make the rest of our furniture. I'd had absolutely no experience.

First I made the corner cupboard shown in the dining-room picture. It took a lot of figuring and plan-drawing, but the actual work was surprisingly quick. Everything was done with hand tools. You should have seen my shoulders snap up and my chest expand when some caller would make a beautiful remark about the "fine old piece in the corner." Such compliments naturally gave me more confidence, and by now if you dropped in, you'd see many original "Murdoch" pieces. Besides all the furniture, Betty did the slip covers and made all the cottage curtains. We also hung the wallpaper, paneled the walls, built closets, painted and refinished furniture—things we would have written off as impossible just a short time ago.

I wouldn't have believed—until I'd done it—that I could panel a fireplace wall, but we decided knotty pine would provide the right background for Early American furnishings—so I was elected! I made the table from a butter churn and a bread board

There's Something Evolutionary

Unobtrusive baseboard convectors spread the heat at floor level along outside walls. This one has fins to heat the air as it passes in bottom and out top

CAN NOW BE CONTROLLED

Ever since the days of the flint, when man's heated comfort depended on how successfully he could strike a spark, we've seen constant improvement in heating devices. The years have brought many developments which add to existing heating practices and equipment, reducing the discomfort of drafty floors, uneven heat, and a feeling of chill even though the thermometer indicates that the temperature is high enough for body comfort. The improvements have been more evolutionary than revolutionary.

To cure a general lack of sufficient heat isn't a great problem, except in an economic sense. Usually this can be remedied by installing a heating plant with a larger capacity or insulation, weatherstripping, and storm windows to reduce the heat loss. The big problem, however, is the lack of real control, which causes the greatest amount of discomfort. The news in heating today is the means of gaining control, and the resulting satisfaction from the heating plant.

The old, heavy, cast-iron radiators and the hot-air systems are slow to respond to the need for supplying or shutting off heat, and cause uneven heat with overheating and severe chilling of the rooms. With automatic heating systems, in the periods between the intermittent operation, the warm air rises to the ceiling so that temperature at times becomes 15 degrees or more cooler near the floor than at the ceiling. This is known as stratification. Children playing on the floor are apt to get croup, while father is comfortable in a T-shirt up where the air is warm.

Changes in outside wall temperatures due to weather variations necessitate adjustment of the inside air temperature to prevent discomfort. Also the different exposures of rooms vary the heat loss and make one room chilly today and warm tomorrow when the wind shifts. Cold drafts in a house that is tight against air leaks can come from cold rooms, stratification, and concentrated blasts of heat.

Uneven heat with extreme variations of room temperatures, due to the slow response to heat needs, is overcome by several means. In old hot-air systems a blower can be added for positive circulation of the heat. With steam and hot-water systems, the new, lighter cast-iron radiators heat up quickly, and are

Masterpieces

Marvelous new approach to ceramic accessories for the house, 70 beautiful pieces have been executed in Stonelain, a fresh slant on high-fired ceramics. Each piece is signed by the famous American painter or sculptor who created it. Includes vases, ash trays, bowls, platters, cigarette boxes, pitchers, tiles, sculptured figurines. You can buy them now in most department stores and gift shops. According to the Associated American Artists, who should know, since they're the distributors, this is the first time painters, sculptors, and ceramists have joined up to bring you beautiful home accessories in the ceramic field at prices which in many cases are lower than those which are mass-produced.

How to Garden on a Button

MAURICE B. KYNE

The finished product as made by author's father for this article. It will last for many months

Many hobbyists enjoy making miniatures, and one of the most delightful ways of indulging this desire is the making of miniature gardens—yes, real, living gardens—on buttons! To prove how simple it is, these pictures show how a tiny cactus garden can be made, complete with sand and peat moss, in a very short time. By adding a few drops of water about once a week, you can persuade it to live contentedly for months. For the demonstration we used a button, but a small coaster, a milk bottle cap, or any tiny dish with holes in it for drainage would do. Small, slow-growing kinds of cacti and succulents comprise the plant materials, and little sea shells, pebbles, and bits of broken rock and bright-colored glass can be added to give variety in texture and color.

Editor's Note—It is gratifying to get this latest, convincing evidence of the continuing interest in this pleasant hobby. During World War II, we heard about button gardens and about Mrs. Florence Way Casebolt of California, who apparently originated them. Her first, featured in a miniature Mexican table setting made for the Red Cross, proved so popular that she got the idea of making them for patients in a Navy hospital, and then others. Quickly they proved their value as something not only to be enjoyed by invalids and shut-ins, but also that they themselves could make. So add to their score an important place in occupational therapy. For additional information about them consult Mrs. Casebolt's attractive pamphlet—"Button Gardens and How to Make Them."

2 Add a few carefully chosen pieces of rock around dominant cactus feature, but leave a little space between them. Paper-napkin work surface prevents mess, soaks up spilled cement

3 Fill in gaps around cacti and stones with two or three smaller plants (succulents) of suitable size, shape, and color, using only enough cement to anchor them. Don't overcrowd

This kind of gardening involves no work clothes, calluses, sore muscles; it can be enjoyed anywhere, at any time, by anybody

4 Finally, sprinkle with clean sand to cover button and cement, and tuck in bits of peat moss around base, this to absorb and hold the moisture needed by the plants as they grow

Two little houses in

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Steinmann is small, livable, has plans for a future. Of natural red-cedar siding, it is enlivened with interesting architectural details, gay color

Wisconsin

In the pretty little town of Monticello, located on a river which winds through Wisconsin farm country, is this small red-cedar home of the young Edward Steinmanns, shown at left. Only 28 x 48 feet, architect brother, John, had to do a little finagling as to plan, but it was worked out with a resulting simple rectangle, both attractive and economical. A future addition is planned so that the house can grow at the rear to take advantage of the rolling meadow view, give privacy for outdoor living. Red-cedar siding was used for exterior, the soffit of the overhang painted chartreuse for a note of color, the little "front" porch of red brick. An extruded window in the living room set at an angle to deflect light, and prevent glare or reflection, opens to the street side. Dining-area, bedroom windows are mere strips of transoms for privacy.

One steps into a little hall, formed by a good storage wall on the right and a partial partition topped with plants on the left which shelters dining area. Living room is thus sheltered from entry door, yet hall, dining and living rooms are actually one big area without separating walls. There is no door between kitchen and dining area. The Steinmanns say they like the combination of the two areas because both the diminutive kitchen and small dining area borrow space from each other and give an amazing sense of openness. The eating counter is a natural for messy little boys and Mrs. Steinmann can be feeding her son lunch, doing the laundry and setting the table for dinner for four without taking more than a few steps in any direction.

Living-dining area has walls of natural fir plywood except for wall backing the couch where there are open shelves and the plywood has been painted a deep leaf-green. Ceilings are of 16-inch square white insulation tiles. Over the attractive angled window in living room is a lighting trough where the siding of the exterior has been repeated to give interesting detail to the indirect lighting.

Chartreuse draperies, a club chair of same tone, a couch covered in tropical-patterned chintz in coral, green, yellow, and gray add their notes of color to the pleasantly woody room. Howard made the

Channel makes it simple to fill each section with desired amount of down or feathers. Pat and plump for equal distribution, pin off, go on to next section

WITH THREE OR FOUR old feather pillows and the kit shown above, you can make a professional-looking comforter. Ten yards of satin, processed to prevent feathers coming through, ready-cut for sewing, in your choice of ten colors. Kit also holds enough matching thread, tailor's chalk, the right needles, even a tape measure and pins. Instruction book gives step-by-step directions, tells how to clean old feathers. The necessary $4\frac{1}{2}$ pounds of new filling, half down, half feathers, costs about \$4.25. From Blair House Fabrics, kit is \$10.95. Matching drapery fabric, 90¢ yd.

MUCH for Little

GARDEN THIS WINTER in a greenhouse you can easily make yourself. Vimlite, a wire-reinforced plastic glazing, is excellent and economical for such a house; a roll 50 feet long, 3 feet wide (enough for greenhouse shown) costs under $25. It is strong, easy to work with, and lets the sun's heat into the indoor garden, while affording protection from the cold. Instructions for building the greenhouse can be had from Celanese Corporation of America, Plastics Division. The Vimlite permits light to pass, but diffuses it. There are many glazing uses for the material, and it can be formed into interesting Christmas ornaments, too

Shutter kits contain all the parts, side stiles, cross rails, louver assemblies, all hardware, and a set of instructions for putting the parts together easily

Frame of stiles and rails is assembled loosely, then louvers are fitted in place with a screwdriver or button hook, and the stiles are tapped tightly together

Protruding tenons are sawed off, rabbet is cut on power saw or by hand with a rabbet plane, and ends are trimmed to fit window. Long shutters can be cut in two at rail

First coat of finish is applied, then assemble shutters with hinges and complete finish. Paint or shellac can be sprayed with gun or vacuum attachment

Here is a six-panel set of shutters cut through the middle. Either the top or bottom, or both, can be folded to the side, or closed to suit the light conditions at the moment

MIRRA-TILES are really little decorating miracle workers! They're 4½-inch squares with adhesive backing that will stick to any flat surface—plaster, wood, metal, even glass. What-not shelf shown was made with one strip of 18 by 4½ by ¾-inch wood and two end pieces, 3⅝ by 4½ by ¾ inches. It took six tiles (they come packaged 12 to the carton) to cover shelf surface. Remaining six make asymmetrical backing right on wall. Wood edges were hidden with about 3 feet of ¾-inch Mirra-Trim. Add ½-inch round dowel, six more tiles, and you've a guest-towel rack and primping spot for small lavatory. Use Mirra-Tile to frame a picture, fill in wall between windows, above and around fireplace. From L. & S. Mirror Mfg. Corp., 12 Mirra-Tiles, $2.00, 8-foot roll Mirra-Trim, $1.00

INDOOR SHUTTERS for your windows (see pictures above) can now be bought to fit the small budget. They come disassembled from "Paul Heinley's Movable Shutters," all the parts cut and drilled with accurate mortises and tenons for quick and strong assembly with small steel pins and a minimum of tools. The only cutting that is necessary is for the protruding tenons, the fitting to the window frame, planing the rabbet on the vertical side pieces, and possibly the cutting to make two shutters out of one as was done in the example shown above. Prices vary with the window size. The cost of the complete kit for six-panel shutters in the larger-than-average window above was only $25

Room to Bake a Cake

Room to bake a cake?—doesn't have much meaning at first glance, does it? But this is a story about a kitchen which, in spite of having all its fancy-dos, literally didn't afford enough working surface to bake a cake.

Mrs. William H. Trout's kitchen was like that. It was loaded with equipment, but the arrangement was bad, it was cluttered, there was a surplus of discomfort and a minimum of working space. Not for long. With careful shifting and rearranging, all planned beforehand, Mrs. T.'s kitchen today is a delight to the eye and a joy to the cook.

The floor plans speak for themselves, tell you the story much better than we could. Nothing has been removed from the room, but the difference in spaciousness is incredible. There are also many small innovations which serve such a large purpose. For instance, the built-in knife rack on the wall behind the range, the measuring spoons and cups hanging from hooks, the plant shelf high on the wall, safe from possible accident, the cookbook in a sunny, sensible place at the window, always at hand, never needing to be searched for.

Mrs. Trout is an excellent cook, enjoys it very much, and deserves a fine kitchen. She also likes to enjoy life in other ways, and we think her solution is perfect: comfort while she's cooking, faster work, more time off.

To omit butler's pantry would have doubled cost, so old cupboards were modernized to do better storage job

AFTER: And all this was achieved without drastic structural changes. The range is now completely out of traffic lanes, yet near the table and mixing center. Colors are soft pink, gray, and white. Lime-green chairs against the mellow brick wall and airy fish-net curtains lighten the room. Now a super-efficient kitchen and a dramatic setting for any meal of the day

AFTER Crowding at the breakfast table is passé in the new kitchen. There is light, a view, and comfort. Three armchairs insure it. The asymmetric shelf that backs up to the freezer is probably the world's smallest workable planning center. It takes care of a radio, telephone, bulletin board, and blackboard. Freezer is completely accessible but not in the way

Photographs by Nowell Ward & Associates

Life goes on as usual in the kitchen, even when daughter Franie cooks buckwheat cakes for school friends. Skillet and range utensils hang on the wall above range. Cookbook hangs open on rack by window where there is ample light and no chance of its being splattered

Built-in cabinets had all the faults of the pre-kitchen-planning era: no toe space, counters too low and shallow, wall cabinet doors in the worker's face, and traffic routed straight for the cook's corner. To do a creative cooking job would require a saint

How and What to Buy

How do you choose your dinnerware, glassware, and table linens? If you're the type who sees something exciting and simply can't resist it, no matter how it goes with the rest of your things, prepare now to mend your ways! The appearance of your dining table is every bit as important as that of your living room. Choose your pieces carefully and responsibly—you'll be amply rewarded. Three periods are represented in these pictures—Provincial, Traditional, and Modern. You can use them as a springboard of ideas from which to make your own selections. There's general agreement, among those who should know, that all three periods can be mixed with success, and a great deal of the china shown today does just that. Be sure you're delighted with it, though, because you'll have to live with it quite a while.

At the upper left, sturdy, homespun Provincial is shown, good for country or ranch-house furnishings, excellent foil for Early American surroundings. The Traditional display suggests more formal living, a feeling of elegance. Then our new-found friend, Modern, especially good in our wonderful streamlined houses or a ranch house with contemporary furnishings. Prices, in all cases, are approximate.

A quarter-turn to garage, extending walk alongside it—and house fits nicely on 50-foot middle-of-the-block lot!

JOHN LEONARD RUSH
A.I.A., architect

A Ranch House is

Long a champion of good, livable small houses, Architect-owner Rush builds himself an economical, distinctive home in Detroit proving all his theories sound, disproving many staid local theories

It's Roomy, Ranchy

-and buildable on a 54 ft. lot

When the neighbors in the staid old Grandmont section of Detroit returned from their winter vacations—lo and behold—in 76 working days a different kind of house had grown on the corner of Abington Road. It seemed Architect Rush had built himself a low rambling home, without basement or attic, no plaster and only one door. He had even dared to make it colorful!

One enters the house under a long, covered porch, and proceeds to any part of the house without cutting across the living room or disturbing the privacy of the sleeping quarters. There is direct, quick access to the kitchen. Equipment is arranged so that food is stored, prepared, and served without lost motion. The well-located utility room contains the heating plant, electric water heater, laundry and storage units; is accessible from outdoors as well as from the central corridor inside. There is a separate outside entrance to the architect's study, egress through the utility room.

A sloping ceiling in the living room makes the room seem far larger than it really is, and a floor-to-ceiling fireplace, of the same brick used outside, kept down costs. Sliding aluminum windows, ample closets with sliding doors, indirect fluorescent lighting, steel cabinets in the kitchen, a bath and dressing room for each bedroom, are some of the major comforts Mr. Rush has been able to incorporate in his economical, but distinctive little home.

The dining area in the living room is planned for easy service from the kitchen, in no way disturbing to the conversational grouping of furniture around the fireplace wall. The ample kitchen provides room for a table and four chairs facing a window. Master bedroom, 15 x 15 feet, beautifully proportioned to take furniture as now arranged or future rearrangement—a luxury seldom found in a small house! Now that Thanksgiving Day is standing in the wings, when we raise our voices in gratitude, let's also give thanks for the "father" of English pottery, Josiah Wedgwood, who is responsible for this month's table setting. During the restoration of Colonial Williamsburg, many fragments of Queen's Ware were sifted from the soil, some clearly showing the Husk design, made by Wedgwood as early as 1770. The pattern, of ribbons, laurel, and flowers on a grayish-purple background, is lovely. "Wisteria," a chalice-type goblet by Tiffin, in ruby-violet color, ties in beautifully, the deepest color being at the base of both bowl and compote, with clear crystal stem. Notice the "Bridal Wreath" pattern in Tudor plate, designed by Oneida Community Silversmiths. The cloth is "Lyric" Craftspun Fabrics—linen color, all cotton, and endlessly washable—from Scranton Lace.

Our centerpiece can hardly be called "floral" this month, since you can eat practically all of it! Fruits and nuts are introduced to each other, with a few chrysanthemums joining the party. Economical, perfect for Thanksgiving, and when all the fun is over, it becomes a part of your week-end menus.

Campbell Soup Company

To meet the budget these days is a problem, isn't it? But here's one good way: Serve soup for lunch. You know, every day 27 million Americans eat soup for lunch, according to a U.S. survey. Simple meals built around soup, folks find are so appealing, so delightfully varied and so quick to fix. Economical, too, and that's important, as we all know. Here are suggestions I've prepared for 28 budget lunches built around soup. Each offers sizable portions—including 7-ounce bowl of soup. Do try them!

And especially for the Children

Soup is ideal for all children, especially when prepared with milk. Doctors recommend soups when the baby is ready for his first chewing foods. These eight Campbell's Soups, prepared with milk, are especially suitable: cream of asparagus, beef, chicken with rice, green pea, tomato, vegetable, vegetarian vegetable, and vegetable-beef.

SIR, and MADAM, remember those solemn vows you made last Thanksgiving, and the year before that, ad infinitum? "Never again," you moaned, as you left the groaning board. And meant it—then. Well, unless acute discomfort and profound torpor from overeating is part and parcel of your Thanksgiving fun, here's your "out." Here's how you can have your tradition and eat it, too. And, just as important to you, ma'am, add to tradition and the eating time in the living room where the rest of the folks are. My soul is full of envy of those ancestors who could start with a rich cream soup or opaque bisque, go on to turkey or a crown roast and all the fixings that went with them and, with scarcely a belch, on and on to two kinds of pies and heavens knows what all. Now I'm not saying my stomach capacity is not as great—I sadly fear it is. But what should be a family feast day, all too often turns out to be two work days for mother, lots of dull and yawning adults, some cross and cranky kids. So it doesn't make sense, and we've known it for years. And year after year after year we've made the good vow of "never again." Some women have gone so far as to insist the family eat out on Thanksgiving.

Now there IS heresy. I'm not tradition-bound, not one whit. Yet we have so few traditions in America, about Thanksgiving and Christmas being family and in the family home I have strong convictions. The traditional extending of the stomach I can do, and have done, something about. Heed ye. What follows is good, plain sense. Good sense in the eating, good sense in the managing. Result? What should be a day of thanks IS a day of thanks—for the tradition of Thanksgiving, the beauty of this great country, the blessing of family get-togethers made so simple in this day of speedy transportation.

Now, let's plan a good Thanksgiving. We've agreed, I guess, that a rich soup is, for a 1950 Thanksgiving dinner, not a good starter. But a hot, spicy, fragrant bowl of soup is the right beginning for all good company dinners, and here you have it—a clear, radiant, and beautiful soup. And even more beautiful, it is far better if made the day before. So there's one burner cleared for THE day. It does its stuff whichever menu you choose and, what's more, of the aromatic spices and vegetables you've strained out (I'm ahead of myself) not one smidgen is wasted. Out of the "leavings" comes a delicious week-end chowder supper.

The iced salad bowl is the glamorous sort of thing the Stork Club in New York or Charlie's in Minneapolis, or dozens of other elegant eating places in the country, do all the time and charge for out of this world, considering how easy they are once a housefrau gets on to the idea. I do not like the word "basic" but here I have to use it, for that's all this is. Basically good food, so good all by itself it does not have to be fussed and fumed over. But if it be basic materials, do not mistake it for "plain" fare. It is served with éclat, in your company-best silver bowl, and lots and lots of ice (stingy on the ice is the housefrau touch), all of it snapping crisp. That's why customers pay high and pay gladly for it. But me, I'm a housefrau (except on ice and dramatic dishes) and I know how little time or money it takes to duplicate it. So why don't we—more often? It's all you'll ever need with a crown roast—and the time it saves. Here again, like the soup, it's at its very best if done far ahead of time. Likewise the pear salad, stuffed with Roquefort or Blue cheese. Cold, cold they must be to be wonderfully refreshing in the mouth after all the turkey you've just eaten. Pop the pre-stuffed pears out of the refrigerator, already set up on their green beds of water cress or endive. Give the Lorenzo dressing you've pre-made a quick shaking, add the water cress you've pre-chopped and tucked away in waxed paper and there's another lush course—THAT quick!

The turkey's a big boy—too much frame and too little left-over-makings for my money on anything under 16 pounds. An oyster stuffing and a bandage of cheesecloth oozing fat, has kept him moist and succulent—with nary a basting. The crown roast, looking so special, and not special at all because the butcher's done most of the fancy work, the sausage dressing not over-fat and different because of the apple slices and raisins in it. And right here, lest I forget, even the traditional "apple sauce with pork" is done the easy way. There are apples in the dressing, apple sauce topping the baked onions. Another serving, another dish done away with!

Baked onions appear on both menus, because both main courses have been sweet and filling. Onions give the needed tang and bite. The mashed potatoes or mashed turnips inside them are for tradition's sake and the exact amount to counter-act that bogged-down feeling we've been talking about—remember? Heaping bowls of mashed potatoes, two kinds of turnips or whatever—a great good look of plenty they give to a Thanksgiving table. That I know. But I also know that if they're there, they'll be eaten, and therein lies the trap. The turkey dinner menu does include a bowl of mashed potatoes, but there's a spacing of chilled pears between and the dessert is lighter.

And now our dessert. For the crown roast dinner, a cranberry and apple pie, with open crust to show the red and honey, to catch the eye. Exactly right it is, too, made extra big for extra big portions, for it's a tart and gladsome finish after all that's gone before. On the turkey dinner menu, something strictly of my doing and a bit of telling it needs. No Thanksgiving turkey dinner is Thanksgiving to me without a grand finale of pumpkin pie. To me, they're practically Siamese twins. But—and a big but it is—it's the pumpkin pie that always "dood it!" Not only stopped me, but stopped the kitchen program, for I do not like pumpkin pie long out of the oven. Mine is a light pie, but even so it seems to "sot" in its way if it's made too far ahead. The problem, not to have have a sodden pie on the same schedule calling for a wallower of a bird that takes every inch of oven. Wedge him in the oven, and there wasn't room for a very thin snowflake between the racks.

Came the double-barreled idea of a pumpkin pie that could be made ahead of time, a pie that didn't fill me to the gullet when I'd reached capacity with the thinnest soup, the most turkey and a chilled, refreshing salad. What? A pumpkin pie that has everything a pumpkin ever hoped to do. It is bland and smooth on the tongue, rests lightly on the stomach. The spices are in the ginger cookie crust. It's all done in the refrigerator—a day ahead. It comes forth plump, golden and proud. But for heaven's sake, keep a secret, can't you? Ask your family if they'd like pumpkin ice cream in a refrigerator crust instead of the same old pumpkin pie. They won't know, but their instant reaction will be a quick, violent "no." You go serenely ahead and make it. Hear the "ah's" when you serve it. Preen yourself to full width when they exclaim "well I never thought"—and they will, they will.

Now, if you're not too exhausted reading about how easy the doing is going to be, will you turn, please, to page 90. Mr. Swift, I believe, it was, bragged about using everything but the "squeak." Well, I've gone him one better. There is nothing, but nothing, you've done for Thanksgiving that can't be used that same week end. Had I had my way, it's the left-overs (and is that a sacrilegious word to use about those good things!), they would have been in full color, the very paper itself spiced and flavored, that all might know how leftover turkey in an herb-scented pie CAN give pleasure or leftover sausage stuffing give forth a second or even unto the third serving. Choose your menu, and out of this plethora of words, see how easy a good, big Thanksgiving can be. A happy Thanksgiving to all.

Combine: 1½ cups light brown sugar
2 tbs. cornstarch
½ tsp. ground cinnamon

Add: 1 large can evaporated milk, and cook in top double boiler until thick. Remove from heat.

Add: 2 tsp. gelatin dissolved in ½ cup cold water and stir well.

Add: 4 egg yolks, beaten (save whites for meringue). Blend well and cool.

Fold in: 1 cup cream whipped to hold shape but not stiff. Pour in large refrigerator tray and, when partly frozen, take out and stir thoroughly, then pour over:

SPICED GINGER COOKIE CRUST

1½-2 cups ginger cookie crumbs, rolled fine.

Mix: ¼ cup dark brown sugar

¼ tsp. nutmeg

1 tsp. cinnamon

Combine with crumbs. Work in 4 tbs. melted butter or shortening. Line pie plate (bottom and sides) with mixture, pressing very firmly with back of spoon. Should be about ¼" thick. Pour pumpkin filling over and freeze.

Just before serving, put over top pre-cooked molasses meringue or garnish with a ring of chopped crystallized ginger. Time the taking out of freezer as you would any hard-frozen ice cream, for both the crust and the filling must not be too hard to cut easily.

Mix in large, heavy saucepan: 1 qt. chicken stock (or 1 qt. chicken broth)
1 qt. canned tomatoes
2 cups diced celery
¾ cup chopped carrots
1 large onion stuck with whole cloves (about 2 dozen)
2 diced seeded green peppers
2 bay leaves, dill or blade of mace
Sprig of parsley
2 tsp. peppercorns
2 tsp. salt
Dash of cayenne

• crown roast of pork

Cover tip of each rib with a cube of salt pork (or square of raw potato). Tie strips of bacon around bottom section. Fill center with:

SAUSAGE, APPLE, AND RAISIN STUFFING:

Put through meat grinder:

1 medium-sized onion
2 stalks celery (stalk and leaves)
2 sprigs parsley
2 lbs. sausage meat

Add: 5-6 tart apples, sliced very thin and sprinkled with ½ cup brown sugar

½ cup floured seedless raisins

Grated rind 1 small lemon

½ tsp. nutmeg

Season heartily with black pepper and salt

(Amount depends on how highly seasoned your sausage is)

Toss until well mixed, bind with a little hot water.

Fill center of roast. Allow 30-35 min. per lb. at 350°. Remove cubes of pork or potato and the bacon and top each rib with the frilled paper panties your butcher gave you. Garnish platter with stuffed baked onions alternated with hot red cabbage or, if you prefer, mashed potato mounds alternated with glazed apple quarters or cinnamon apples.

• Manhattan, Rhode Island and Connecticut clam chowder

Dice and try out 2-inch cube fat salt pork in heavy skillet. Remove scraps. Slice 2 medium-sized onions and lightly brown in the fat. Remove and save onions. Cube and cook in same fat 3 cups potatoes. Cook over low flame about 10 minutes, stirring often. Remove potatoes to large saucepan. Mince hard part of 1 qt. clams, add to the potatoes (set aside the soft parts). Add fried browned onions. Cover with boiling water and simmer until potatoes are nearly done. Strain off water. Simmer gently for 30 minutes soft part of clams, 1 cup stewed tomatoes, your leftover "strainings" from the Essence of Tomato soup, plus any onion casualties suffered when you boiled them for Thanksgiving dinner. If you have clam juice, add it now. Strain over cooked potatoes and onions.

Add: 2 cups scalded milk }
1 cup thin cream } or 3 cups rich milk
2 tbs. butter

Salt and pepper to taste

Serve with oysterettes or over split pilot crackers which have been moistened in cold milk.

Important: Reheated, this chowder is even better, so make it ahead of time if you can. Serves 6 bountifully.

1. Spicy Potato Slices—To leftover mashed potatoes add broken bits of cooked bacon. Add chopped parsley, chopped onions (or onion juice) and green or red peppers, or both. Bind with the bacon drippings.

Form in long, small roll (large slices are harder to handle), wrap first in waxed paper, then in aluminum foil. When wanted, slice and fry in skillet or form in balls and fry in deep fat.

2. Finger-in-the-pie—Mix together leftover mashed potatoes and apple sauce, ($\frac{1}{2}$ potatoes to $\frac{1}{3}$ apple sauce). Divide and to $\frac{1}{2}$ of this mixture mix in leftover sausage stuffing or cooked sausage. (Leftover ground meat may be used, too.) Spread evenly in round, greased tin. Add remaining mixture and spread evenly. Starting in center, scoop out with finger a concentric circle about $\frac{1}{2}$ in. wide and deep enough to hold filling. Fill crevice with leftover sausage stuffing, sausage, or ground meat. Bake in moderate oven, until top is browned. Additional sausage in lower half of mixture not necessary, but makes this dish a more substantial meal, better proportion of meat to potato.

"I can fairly see the dirt walk off by itself!"

writes Mrs. Robert J. Burns of New Brunswick, N. J.

Thank you, Mrs. Burns, for this quotable quote. Like any woman who washes for a husband, two boys, and a baby girl, you've been tempted to try other laundry products. And like these other women, you have found no substitute for Fels-Naptha.

Fels-Naptha's mild golden soap and gentle, active naptha plus the new "sunshine" ingredients make white clothes whiter and colored fabrics brighter. May you and all Fels-Naptha's friends live long and prosper—and may Fels-Naptha always make your washdays lighter and shorter.

Always use Improved Fels-Naptha—the only laundry product that gives you three washday advantages—

1. Mild, golden soap.
2. Gentle, active naptha.
3. Finer "sunshine" ingredients for extra, brilliant whiteness and clearer, brighter colors.

Good Victuals from Thanksgiving's

THE BIG FEAST IS OVER—but there's Friday, Saturday, and Sunday coming up. Nine more meals before we quite get the festive feeling and the festive eating out of the way for another year. Christmas, of course, is hot on our heels, but Christmas is different. Lots of good eating going on at Christmas, but we think of it as fun and parties, rather than just eating. At least I hope you do, for there'll be plenty of that spirit on our Christmas food pages.

But here, here—it's the day after Thanksgiving and in spite of the mountains of food consumed, you wish with all your heart the refrigerator were made of rubber, or you had at least two of them to take care of the leftovers you've jammed in there. Well, stop sighing. Do you realize, ma'am, that practically everything in there is practically pre-cooked, needing only some deft touches to yield forth really good victuals the rest of the week end? I'm telling the absolute truth when I tell you that often I have cooked a turkey on some non-hectic mid-week day for the sole purpose of making this turkey pie for fastidious guests on a hectic week end. It is Herman Smith's recipe. It's called Turkey Santiago. It's in our recipe booklet in case you didn't clip it. It's sheer heaven—and in just one little way have I ever been able to improve upon the original recipe for this turkey pie. I mix chopped parsley in the crust—to give a tang

• chocolate-almond macaroons

Beat 3 egg whites until stiff. Fold in, very slowly, 1 cup sugar, $\frac{1}{8}$ tsp. salt, and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup finely crushed almonds. Mix these thoroughly before folding into egg whites. Pour over this $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups shredded coconut.

Melt 2 1-oz. squares unsweetened chocolate. Pour over above and fold until all white "streaks" disappear. The less handling, the better the macaroon. Chill. Work with 2 teaspoons and spoon out on a baking sheet, first greased, then fitted with brown paper.

Bake in a 275° oven for 30 minutes. Leave oven door open and bake another 10 minutes.

Moisten the back of the paper for easy removal.

to the richness of the ripe olives, the dressing, the gravy, and the crust.

You may have scads of clever tricks with leftover mashed potatoes. Most people are defeated by them, however thrifty they be or cunning about concealing leftovers. Here are two things I have done with them, and I pass them on for what they may be worth to you. One can be done before you put the leftover mashed potatoes back in the refrigerator—ready to slice and fry whenever you want them, a neat and space-saving foil-wrapped roll in your refrigerator. The other is a one-dish meal. "Finger-in-the-pie" I call

• leftover turkey (or chicken) casseroles

1. In a greased casserole put $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 can of corn (kernels, not cream style), depending on amount of turkey used. Cover with slices of turkey. Pour over this a rich cheese sauce, made with cheddar-type cheese and a hint of onion juice. Cover with bread crumbs mixed with Parmesan cheese. Dot with butter. Reheat in oven until turkey is thoroughly hot and sauce bubbles. If top is not browned, run quickly under broiler flame.

2. To leftovers of above casserole, or to further extend a wee bit of turkey, begin as above, adding the following before crumb and cheese top is put on.* Heat together:

- 1 cup tomato soup
- $\frac{1}{2}$ small onion, chopped
- $\frac{1}{2}$ clove garlic, chopped
- 1 small bay leaf
- 2 whole cloves

Strain over first mixture. Cut 3-4 hard-cooked eggs in halves and place around top.

*If first mixture has already been cooked and is a leftover, take out of casserole and reheat in double boiler. Replace in casserole and add tomato sauce and eggs over it.

it, because it's just that. You mix the mashed potatoes with apple sauce and put it in a tin. With your bare finger you start in the middle and gouge out a concentric circle. Fill it up with your leftover sausage stuffing—or plain cooked sausage. Toss a salad, heat some rolls—and it's a fine looking meal you'll have.

Remember when you were reading about the soup and I told you to be sure to save everything left in the strainer? And I also cautioned you—or should have—to save all the casualties when you scooped out the onions for baking. Well there, with a few clams and precious little else, you have the makings of a good chowder. Note, please, its title on the recipe card. You can't embroil me in that with-or-without-the-tomato battle. I come from Maine. Milk, not tomatoes, is a hallowed tradition. But in Rhode Island and Connecticut they do use tomatoes—and since when have they not been New England?

Who on earth can make the stuffing come out even with the roast or bird? I can't, but there's no problem with the oyster turkey stuffing—it's all been eaten up, Santiago style, in that good turkey pie. But if it's the

Nan was ready to weep on husband Bob's shoulder. "Just look at my floors!" she wailed. "Ugly worn spots are beginning to show—and they were so lovely!"

"Looks bad," Bob said. "And no wonder! Look at the punishment floors take, day after day, from scuffing feet! Floors get more wear than any other part of the house."

"But here's a tip, honey!" Bob went on. "I've heard that real wax is the best bet to protect floors—because the hard wax surface takes the wear. Let's try it!"

Nan's happy now—knows there's nothing like genuine Johnson's Wax to beautify and protect her floors. Now they look like new—and will stay that way!

One timely tip made Nan's floors bright...her heart light!

Nothing else gives floors such lasting beauty and protection as genuine wax!

Floors stay like new when protected with a gleaming carpet of genuine wax—Johnson's Paste or Liquid Wax. Because it's the wax that takes the wear!

Scuffing feet can't mar the hard, genuine wax finish. Dirt and water don't penetrate the tough, protective wax film. A dry mop whisks dust away. Wood floors never need costly refinishing. And linoleum lasts 6 to 10 times longer!

If you really care about your home, you just can't afford to use anything but genuine Johnson's Paste or Liquid Wax. It takes a little more time to use than self polishing waxes. But you need apply it far less often. And the results speak for themselves!

Genuine Johnson's Wax comes in two forms—Paste and Liquid. So many people like Paste because it's highly concentrated. Liquid is especially easy to use, and dry cleans your floors besides. Both protect and beautify your floors with a hard, lustrous film of genuine wax. It's a good idea to keep both on hand. You'll be delighted at what genuine Johnson's Wax will do for your floors!

For lasting beauty and protection insist on genuine crowd roast you've settled on, there's bound to be lots of stuffing left. The first Finger-in-the-pie used some of it; here's another variation. Use biscuit mix, put your finger in it, exactly as you did before, fill cavity with sausage, glaze lightly with apple sauce mixed with a little brown sugar and you have a pretty fancy dish of biscuit to set before your king. Or, save the sausage stuffing for Sunday's brunch, and serve it between layers and layers of pancakes, with hot maple syrup in which you've melted your butter. Secret! Two blobs of butter on top looks very lavish but actually a little butter melted with the syrup saves over everybody serving himself to cold butter. Yea, verily, even a fourth way to use your leftover sausage stuffing. A big biscuit on the bottom, a layer of sausage, then a smaller, thinner biscuit and, atop of it all, a dab of apple sauce with a sprinkling of brown sugar. Quick and glamorous accompaniment to a salad or a can of hot pea soup. By this time, there's no way of my telling how much turkey you have left, really. There may be enough for one or both of these casseroles. But there should surely be enough shreds and bits to do the second of them, for a can of condensed tomato soup and some hard-cooked eggs do a powerful good job of extending a meager bit of turkey. It's a leftover of a leftover—can you top that?

Sometime during the week end, you'll have time to pop in a tray of the very, very good lemon cream and forget it until you need it. It's the same lemon sherbet recipe in our recipe file, using $\frac{3}{4}$ milk, $\frac{1}{4}$ cream and beaten again when half frozen. In case you think I bragged about going Mr. Swift one better, I'll just prove to you it was no idle boast. I've even thought about using up the extra oven space and extra oven slow heat in case you made a meringue for your pumpkin pie. These chocolate macaroons are a quickie to make if I ever made one, and easy to keep—until the family spots them. They bake happily with a meringue—same temperature, same slow cooking. They're delicious with lemon cream but good heavens, they're good without anything else at all. I've done—and there's not a thing in the house to eat!

boys his age since he faces a difficult adjustment, which they will never experience, and therefore requires more understanding.

Finding the emotional stopgap is a major problem to stepparents like Mary Dawson. Experts on such matters agree that you had better recognize it before you try to solve it.

In discussing the care of stepchildren with two child psychologists, we learned that one of the first moves for stepparents to make is to include the child in your emotional budget. Make every effort to give the child a good deal of affection. It won't be long before you begin to get it back.

Go out of your way to include the child in many of your activities. Create an atmosphere of family life—not an imitation honeymoon. The investment you make in the child's emotional security can make a marriage happy or bankrupt.

Look at this ready-made relationship from all angles, including the child's. There will be no compass to guide you except the understanding and insight which you bring to bear on the problem. But you can hardly go wrong if you remember how important it is to make the child feel wanted and loved. Keep that goal ever in your mind.

Dr. Margaret Mead, the famous anthropologist, said in her recent book And Keep Your Powder Dry: "From broken homes come our delinquents and neurotics; from unbroken homes come the ordinary Americans, terribly impressed with the fragility and importance of those homes which made them into regular fellows, not children about whom other children whispered and whom teachers and neighbors commiserated."

A recent publication of the U.S. Children's Bureau says that difficulties at school, conflict with authority, social withdrawal, and stealing are all symptoms of maladjustment. And the lack of a sound family relationship does cause maladjustment.

Often, of course, a stepparent faces problems which are actually the fault of the real parent. Susan came up against such difficulties when she married Ken Darrow, a widower with a 13-year-old daughter.

Betty was blonde and lovely and the apple of her father's eye. He frankly spoiled his adored child. Since the death of his first wife, Betty knew that her father would grant her every wish and she took advantage of it.

When Susan married Ken Darrow she fully expected to have trouble with Betty. She was quite aware that the child was spoiled and selfish. But she was determined to bring Betty up as if she were her very own daughter.

"I don't want to be a comic strip type of stepmother," Susan told her friends. "If I can do a good job in

"Here . . . hold this, will you? I just remembered that this is the day of the week I put Drano in drains!"

Dangerous sewer germs lurk in every drain. No liquid disinfectant can budge the muck they breed in. It takes Drano to unclog drains and keep them running free and clear. bringing Betty up, we'll all be happy."

This wasn't as easy as it sounded. When Susan bought a new dress, for instance, and her husband admired it, Betty burst into tears of jealous rage. She couldn't bear to share her father's admiration with anyone else.

When Betty was disciplined, she would complain to her father. There would be a scene. Ken Darrow was torn between the knowledge that his wife was right and the fact that he was unaccustomed to disciplining his darling daughter.

Virginia Clary, Director of Social Work for the Juvenile Court in Washington, D.C., undertook to analyze Betty's problem—still looking at the angle of emotional security.

"Just think what the death of Betty's mother meant to that child. She was left frightened and insecure. Gradually her father's strong devotion came to the rescue and Betty felt that she was entitled to all of it."

We wondered aloud whether Ken Darrow's strong sense of responsibility precluded his right to marry. As he saw it, Betty had reached an age when it was important that she have a mother to guide her. He worried about bringing up an adolescent girl by himself. When he fell in love with Susan, it seemed like the perfect answer. Miss Clary agreed that Mr. Darrow should have married the woman he loved.

"The child needs something more than good care, however," Miss Clary said. "She needs special understanding to get past that period when a stepmother's very presence seems to threaten the child's whole world. Love is the best antidote for fear. The problem in this case seems to be to convince Betty that her father loves her just as deeply as he ever did."

There are no cut-and-dried rules which would apply to all stepparents. But conscious, intelligent effort will avoid some of the obvious pitfalls.

If a new wife is sure of her own place in the family, she will find it much easier to sidestep that peculiar sense of rivalry which mars so many second marriages in which children are involved. This often begins when the stepmother tries to ration her husband's love of his own children.

"Where that happens," Miss Clary said, "there is almost no end to it. The child and the wife vie with each other so much that it forces even the smartest husband to take sides."

It is not difficult to find the reasons for such actions. Children such as Betty were part of their fathers' lives before they remarried. They are links with a past in which the second wife never shared. So often women are possessive in their love of a man.

The fact that many women are possessive in their love makes it doubly difficult for the second wife to be fair to her stepchildren. She wants her man to herself. It takes character to accept a former marriage sensibly. And the presence of the children is a constant reminder of a previous intimate relationship.

Existence of a nagging fear that the husband might have loved his first wife better can make the second wife feel insecure. Constant doses of such mental poison can so upset even a devoted wife that she unconsciously takes it out on the stepchild.

Men make better stepparents than women in most cases. They are not as possessive in their love. Nor do they have to spend as much time with the children.

The man who marries a woman with children usually accepts his responsibilities more gracefully. Such cases as that of Dick Sawyer are quite usual. When he married Peggy she was a widow with two children.

When he first called on Peggy, he made it plain that he was visiting the youngsters as well. But he was careful not to force himself on them. The children received the same attention from their mother that they had always got. In addition, they had a new father to read to them, take them on picnics, and show a genuine interest in them. In a short time they were a happy family unit.

Dr. Sydney Berman, psychiatrist with the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, explains the success of this family very simply.

"Each member of this family," says Dr. Berman, "feels secure in his own place in that family. The wife knows that her husband loves her. And the children know that both their mother and stepfather love and want them."

"If both parents are alive it is important to know just where the child's loyalty lies. If the stepparent is intelligent," Dr. Berman says, "the child's loyalty can be expanded to include another person."

This psychiatrist also stressed the importance of discussing the future step-up of the family before marriage. This should be done in order that each member of the family knows what his responsibilities will be.

A child's world is very small and easily shaken. It is difficult for him to accept important changes unless he is aided over the hard bumps.

The situations in which men and women face stepparenthood vary, like human nature itself. No two cases are exactly alike just as no two men and women are alike.

However, the psychiatrists and child psychologists stress the need for each member of the family to have a deep sense of security in his niche of that family. A child needs to feel this most of all. It is up to the adults responsible for his care to give him that sense of security.

I added two closets in our bedroom, either side of the window, forming a nook for the vanity. Revolving rack holds Betty's shoes

Room-width shelves for books were built along one wall of the guest room. We papered the ceiling and one wall in clover patterned wallpaper, painted remaining walls leaf-green to match. Painted decorations, gay peasant curtains add color to our kitchen

Short on Ready Cash

material, your job is half done. It's that first impetus which is so necessary to get you started.

Two walls in the living room were left unpaneled, and we painted them a soft yellow. The upholstery is predominantly forest-green, so we used this shade to trim the curtains made from sheeting. The braided rug combines practically all the colors in the room, and gives it a homey touch.

We wanted the dining room to look cool and easy, so we carried the green tone over from the living room, and it forms a nice background to our "original" pine furniture. We conjured up two closets where there were none in the space on each side of the bedroom dressing table. I also solved a troublesome shoe storage problem by making Betty a revolving rack from wire clothes hangers and a little wood.

We gave the kitchen a shot in the arm by painting Pennsylvania Dutch figures and designs on the walls and cupboards to relieve the plain look of solid light yellow which was used throughout. Betty made curtains of a brilliant peasant design, making the place shout to be admired.

It was a lot of fun, we saved money, and it's good to have your friends compliment you and exclaim over what geniuses you've turned out to be. We know.

How to Care for Linoleum

EASY DATA
for future reference

Photographs by F. M. Demarest

Proper care of linoleum, whether inlaid or felt-base printed, will add years to its life and attractiveness. Brand-new linoleum should not be washed until it has been in service for a few days. Use damp cloth or mop and mild soap. Rinse thoroughly, allow floor to dry completely. Never use scouring powders, harsh abrasives, or strong soaps. Be careful not to flood with water—this loosens cement in joints.

After floor is completely dry, apply thin coat of water-soluble wax. Several thin applications, buffed between each application (if not self-polishing wax), are much more satisfactory than one heavy coat of wax. Printed linoleum usually has coat of lacquer applied at the factory. It may be re-lacquered, but if waxed, all traces of wax must be removed before lacquering. Never use lacquer, varnish, or shellac on inlaid linoleum.

1. Built-in Bookcases add dignity and charm. Plan them with or without cabinets, according to your needs.

2. A Television Corner provides an attractive setting for this coming "must" in home furnishing.

3. Frame a Picture Window in the soft luxury of Weldwood. This "one wall" treatment is gaining popularity.

4. Corner Cupboards bring grace, charm and convenient storage space to your dining room or breakfast nook.

5. Panel the Fireplace Wall to accent and increase the appeal and livability of your living room.

6. A Dining Room Wainscot can make a striking improvement in either traditional or modern rooms.

7. Half-High Storage Wall makes the ideal division between living and dining sections in small homes.

8. Dress up the Foyer to create a good first impression. Weldwood paneling here adds real luxury.

9. Set off a Bay Window with Weldwood, and watch it become a commanding point of interest.

10. A Bright Breakfast Nook can come to life as part of a large kitchen. Weldwood makes this easy.

11. Playroom Ceiling of Weldtex® Squares goes up quickly and easily. Squares fit 16" on center joists.

12. Panel the Wall behind your bed and bring real distinction to your bedroom. It's inexpensive.

Beauty

STARTS IN THE PLANNING

For a bathroom that excites admiration, architects and builders suggest style-matched plumbing fixtures. For extra beauty, we suggest Eljer, in lovely pastel colors, or immaculate white. You will get quality; the finish of Eljer Fixtures cannot fade, become dull or lifeless. Bathtubs have an extra-thick enamel coating, fused to a rugged, rigid, cast-iron base. Vitreous China Lavatories and Closet Combinations resist stains and are impervious to all ordinary acids, because they are real china. So, be sure . . . write Eljer Plumbing Fixtures into your plans.

Ask your plumbing contractor, builder or architect to help you select the exact combination of fixtures you want for bathroom, powder room, kitchen or laundry. For free booklet, write Eljer Co., Box 192, Ford City, Pennsylvania.

Do wire hangers cave in under the weight of your garments? You can make a hanger twice as strong by binding two hangers together firmly with adhesive tape

A pair of work gloves comes in handy for cleaning Venetian blinds. Turn gloves inside out to expose soft lining. Put on gloves and simply wipe dust off the slats

A square of cellophane attached to the side of your paper shopping bag with gummed tape makes a handy pocket for a shopping list. The list can be consulted without removing it, and there's little danger of it being lost

Drawer-liners can be made in a fraction of the usual time. Remove drawer and turn it upside down on table and use it as guide in cutting liner. There are no sides to interfere with folding or cutting the lining paper

A soap dish of the type used on bathtubs makes a handy holder for the soap when scrubbing floors. Bend wire clamp on dish with a pair of pliers so that it fits rim of pail, then slip dish in place. Easy to remove and store

KENTILE®

The Asphalt Tile of Enduring Beauty

The parts of your doorbell system are: the bell, the button, a transformer as shown, or a battery for the low voltage power supply, and the necessary wiring

How to repair a doorbell

Here's a home maintenance job that's physically easy, not messy, and takes very little time. Since all doorbells work on low voltage current, there's no fire hazard or danger of shock. To find the trouble when the bell won't work is a simple matter of checking the circuit until you find the bad spot. If it's the button, transformer, or battery, install a new one. If tightening connections or cleaning doesn't fix the bell or chimes, get new ones. Use #18 bell wire when a new length is needed. If the bell rings constantly, or the transformer is hot to touch, look for bare wires that touch, separate and tape them.

Idea and photographs by Walter Ian Fischman

First remove the button from the wall and test it by bridging the two wire connections with a short piece of wire. If the bell rings, the button is the culprit. Before getting a new one, try tightening the screws; that may cure the trouble

Contact the transformer or battery terminals with a bell. If the bell clapper makes any sound or motion, the power supply is good. Also check at the house fuse box for the transformer fuse or loose wires

With the power supply in order, test the wiring for breaks. Remove the bell and twist the wires together. Scrape the wiring bare at short intervals and touch it with wires from the bell. The bell will ring until a break is passed. Splice and tape all breaks

A strip of emery cloth to clean dirty contacts and a screwdriver to tighten loose wires will cure the only troubles that are apt to stop the bell itself from working. Check these before using the bell to test the wiring and power

If the clapper doesn't strike the bell when it moves, bend the arm with small pliers. Adjust it a little at a time and test the tone of the bell after each adjustment

Bend the contact tab with pliers to change the vibration speed of the clapper arm. On some bells there is a screw to make this adjustment

How to service door chimes

The electric circuit and its servicing are the same for chimes and bells. The operating heart of chimes is one or two solenoids and a sliding rod. Take the cover or back of the chimes off and remove the solenoid to clean it. In some models the solenoid can be cleaned without dismounting it

Be careful of the little spring that is on some rods. Its purpose is to return the rod to the original position after striking the chime, and it won't work properly if damaged in any way

Dip a pipe cleaner in cleaning fluid and swab out the inside of the solenoid. Also clean the rod with the fluid. Reassemble the chime. Do not oil it. Oil isn't necessary and will catch dirt quickly. Clean the chimes once a year

It's Pink and Pretty, Now

(Begins on page 50)

Daughter Sharon has a pink room, too, shares it with constant companions, Annie B. Good and Brenda.
Assorted windows cleverly treated sealing unnecessary doors that destroyed wall space, moving, removing, or adding partitions, enlarging windows, completely revamping a tired kitchen, and adding storage space in almost every room.

The main drawback to a hillside house, and Mr. Good knew it, is the lack of outdoor sitting area. Surrounded by views, the views must be enjoyed from within, unless there are flat outdoor plots where one may relax with a sense of security. Although their house seems to hang from a crag, Mr. Good has, by bulldozing into the hillside, gained two outdoor terraces, and then, by building a catwalk from the dining room and kitchen level across to the top of the garage, contrived an outdoor living room that is as spacious as many back yards.

While Mr. Good swung along on his rugged remodeling bender, Mrs. Good was at work on the interior-decoration plans. For years the old house had slumped beneath the weight of dullish, almost willfully ugly, decoration, but Mrs. Good is a colorist with an airy disdain toward age limiting the attractiveness of a house. With a firm and convincing hand, she yanked the defeated house up on its wobbly, worn high heels and gave it a lesson on what the best-dressed old houses are wearing. It was her notion they should be allowed old possessions for adornment but, to refute the charges of fence-sitting, the old house and the prized old furniture should, must, be stepped up with modern colors and new, timely fabrics. We need only glance at the house to know that behind this free-wheeling judgment Mrs. Good has hold of a vital principle of artifice. The house may have had

Built-in space so small,
faucets had to be set in
on side of lavatory!

Old bathtub encased in wood frame, glass shower door—who'd dream it could be the tiny, old bathroom!

Pinched for Space?

Here's a penny-pinching answer that's a beauty!

With rents and building costs so high, it makes sense to "make do" with your present living space. And what a wonderful way to "make do"! For hidden beneath the beauty of Hide-A-Bed* is a full-length, full-width Simmons innerspring mattress . . . the most comfortable bed you ever dreamed on!

And these double-duty beauties are made to last! When you see them at your dealer's, note the strong, lifetime steel bracing. Note, too, that this sofa is always plump and new-looking. You sleep only on the mattress, never on any part of the sofa, so sofa seats don't flatten out.

Opening and closing your Hide-A-Bed is really easier than making the ordinary bed. Fold it away in the morning (bedding and all).

It's ready in seconds for heavenly sleeping at night. Special Simmons base construction prevents rolling toward center.

• Hide-A-Bed comes in many smartly styled fabrics •

It's Pink and Pretty, Now

its more chipper days but it was never more beguiling to the roaming eye.

With considerable skill and imagination she has swished through the house with soft, modern color, carrying it with a consistency that gives it a personal accent. Her color is pink. It's an all pink house. She takes off with a fine, strong leap from her color springboard by painting the outside of the house a definite pink trimmed with rich, dark foliage-green. Plants—pink and white geraniums. Then, from entrance hall to living room on to bedrooms, and back down to the kitchen (the house climbs up the hillside on four levels) she uses pink with a slide-scale that shades from pastel to sun-faded pinkish terra cotta, or to coral-pink. But—every wall in every room of a pink house need not be a shade of pink. In the living room, pink steps down to become only an authoritative accent note in a green room and, in the den-sitting room, pink becomes an undertone combined with brown walls. It's a color scheme that maintains momentum without monotony.

If Mrs. Good has depended upon imagination, let's say it's an enlightening imagination that warrants ear-bending. Most of us know when we get what we want in our homes, but it's something else to see a rosy future in a dull gray has-been!

Today's Most Modern Windows

Bertram Weber, Architect

..are WOOD Windows!

It's modern to have windows that give you extra protection from heat and cold—windows that are quiet—beautiful, architecturally correct windows that take any kind of decoration to satisfy your preference for color.

You'll get all these advantages—and more—by choosing Ponderosa Pine window units. These pre-assembled, pre-fitted, weatherstripped windows have a natural insulating quality. They are quiet because wood absorbs sound. Their smooth surface takes any kind of finish and holds it. Remember, too, that fixtures for curtains, venetian blinds, etc., are easy to attach to wood windows.

choose from Many Beautiful Styles

Ponderosa Pine windows come in a wide variety of styles—with standard screens and storm sash to fit. Chemical treatment at the factory gives them further protection against decay and moisture absorption.

Two-way table for $17.30

Idea, Donald and Jane Choate

Photographs, R. C. W. Davis

You'll need a 4-foot-diameter circle of $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch plywood; 3 27-inch-long and 3 13-inch-long galvanized pipes for the double set of legs, one set short for coffee-table, the other for dining height; 3 flanges to fit pipe; 1 quart paint; 12 $\frac{5}{8}$ -inch heavy wood screws—total cost in Clifton, New Jersey, \$17.30. Flanges and pipes (pipes threaded on one end) are bought from your local plumber; a lumber mill yard can saw the 4-foot circle for you. Sand the plywood thoroughly, attach the flanges, and enamel both top and legs with two coats of paint, then apply a coat of varnish to preserve it. Screw legs in.

Draw circle 7 inches in from table edge, using pencil and string. Bisect circle. Strike arcs through 2 and 3, using X as compass point. Attach legs at 1, 2, and 3

HOW to get the rooms you want... with the

In traditional salt-box house, Dr. J. Benton Egee found ample room for professional suite as well as living quarters for his family of five

Photographs by Fred Gund

HAROLD WALLIS STECK

Office has warm, friendly atmosphere. Fluorescent lighting, linoleum floors, soundproof walls add modern efficiency

Living room runs across the south end of the house, is flooded with sunlight. Deep storage closet at side of fireplace provides space for logs and card tables

Solution in a Salt-box

As if a country doctor doesn't have enough problems to face when he starts, he must also solve the problem of where to live. And that's far from simple when you remember that he must combine office and residence in one house. Dr. J. Benton Egee of Newtown, Connecticut and designer Lester Balstad put their heads together and came up with a real topper.

In design, traditional Connecticut salt-box lines were followed so that the house would be in harmony with the 200-year-old village. The professional suite was planned to be an integral part of the exterior design of the house, and this area has been worked out so that (thanks to the salt-box) it is a separate zone from the family living quarters. Each part of the house functions individually with its own entrances and exits—yet the effect is that of a single unit.

The professional suite has a large waiting room which connects with Dr. Egee's office. Lavatory room and large closet between the two rooms have soundproof walls. The office also connects directly with the treatment room. There is a connecting door between office and garage so the doctor can reach his office without going through the reception room.

The living quarters provide ample provisions for the four children. The house has many closets plus storage facilities for books, records, hunting and fishing equipment. It has been designed for year in and year out country living. And the doctor has a home-office arrangement in which neither interferes with the other.

the atmosphere—not directly on the plants, but near by or in the next room. Next, a little water if needed and always, a spraying of the tops. As an added favor, let a 1000-watt bulb shine on them for a few hours at dusk in winter.

In summer, orchids enjoy a vacation outdoors, in an open, airy, but sheltered, place under trees where sunlight filters through the branches. Here they will need frequent watering if rains don't provide it, and all the foliage-spraying you can give them.

Five orchids that we have found easy to begin with (of course there are others) are: Brassia verrucosa from Guatemala, which will flourish on a kitchen window sill; has slim, spidery flowers in exotic tones of green-yellow with black and purple markings. Oncidium varicosum, one of the "butterfly orchids"; each blossom resembles a ballet dancer with full skirts. Cypripedium maudiae, a "lady's slipper" type, white, veined green; unlike most, it needn't dry out between waterings. Epidendrum radicans, a roadside weed in Costa Rica; leafy stalks bear small orange-red flowers in spikes; easy to grow. Coelogyne cristata, from the Himalayas; drooping sprays of snow-white, fragrant flowers, January to March.

[For more about orchid culture see Mrs. Hersey's "Garden in Your Window" reviewed February, 1950—Ed.]

This is the greenhouse that Keith built

Why a son of ours should develop a mania for raising orchids is beyond me. His father still calls irises "flags," and while I like to think I have a green-thumb soul, the actual digit seems to be but slightly verdant. Hence our surprise when, at sixteen, Keith began using words like "Odonoglossum" and "Zygopetalum," writing letters to odd addresses, and receiving strange objects wrapped in moss—orchids, if you please! Knowing that orchids are not happiest in an ordinary house, for months I endured daily sprayings of the sun porch and the soaking of orchids in kitchen sink and bathtub on Saturday mornings. Then I accepted the inevitable and found myself walking around the house with Keith, seeking a spot where he could attach a little greenhouse. He chose the sunny side of the garage (which, we then stipulated, must not be defaced) and made a plan and a list of needed materials.

An old discarded chicken house supplied 2 by 4's for framing, and tongue-and-groove siding. A lumber company cut and notched 2 by 3-inch sash bars to take the 16 by 24-inch panes of glass. A dismantled barn yielded 1 by 12-inch boards for the benches. The heating question then arose and although, to a man who calls irises "flags," the $60 thus far invested seemed a lot to "squander on pampering flowers," to me, who had lived too intimately and too long with too many orchids, almost any sum that would give quick relief seemed justified. Keith studied various complicated systems, but as spring was coming, I suggested a common electric heater with a thermostat, and he got one. Placed on the floor across from the door, with the thermostat hung a foot from the roof, it did nobly. He aluminum-painted the woodwork to preserve it and tone it in with the garage, and at last spent a glorious day installing his orchids. (He also grew annuals for our garden, and enough melon plants for the neighborhood!) Soon we came to love the warm, earthy smell of the greenhouse and rarely came indoors at night without first stepping into his little plant domain.

Having proved that it was practical, a grand hobby, and a potential source of income, Keith then had to demonstrate that it was portable. Needing a larger house we, surprisingly, found one. So that summer, he reversed operations, carefully packed the glass in cartons, took the woodwork apart and bundled it for storage. Before he could rebuild, he became eighteen. It was college vs. military training, and the latter won out.

The orchids are in moss-filled boxes atop one of my fruit shelves where the sun can reach them; whenever I pass, I spray them with a syringe. On his last furlough, Keith said, "I think I'll put up the greenhouse before I go to college next year. You could run it for me, couldn't you?" I thought of my fruit shelves and heard myself saying, "Oh, yes. And we can try a cinder-block foundation, and that oil heater you read about."

Their problem was a puny plot!

ETHEL McCALL HEAD

Frederic Barienbrock, A.I.A., architect
Julius Shulman, photographer

What you see before you is the triumph of imagination over the facts of life, for here, indeed, was a problem in space—living space, that is. Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Strauss had a lot 50 feet wide and only 35 feet deep, on which to construct for themselves a comfortable, attractive, long-lasting house. And they did just that, although it took a lot of good, smart planning.

The property fell away to nothing in the back, which accounted for the 35-foot depth. Hence the Strausses decided on a two-story house, very little garden space, and they planned their outdoor living area in the rear, in order to enjoy the view of the hills and sea. The entire idea was to make an awful lot out of an awful little.

The outside is built of cement plaster and horizontal wood siding, with vertical battens. The roof-deck is a good idea in case they should ever decide to make an additional bedroom of it. Inside on the first floor there's a living-dining room, kitchen, and lavatory. The living-room floor is of blue concrete, with the dining, or bar end, covered in blue linoleum with cherry stripes. Furnishings in the living room are both muted and brilliant, combining cherry-red, yellow, gray, and white.

Mr. Strauss' bedroom is strictly masculine, but Mrs. Strauss goes far opposite in her own bedroom's furnishings, using white string rugs, peach bedspread, and feminine fripperies throughout. The two separate bedrooms can become one enormous bedroom by eliminating the folding doors. Sun-deck can become another bedroom.

No room for wasted space here! Small, beautifully planned to make the most of a minimum, look what they achieved—a living-dining area, kitchen, terrace, lavatory, garage. Terrace is made of concrete blocks, grass planted between them

Two good bedrooms, each with sizable wardrobe, plus a roomy bath, linen closet. If desired, practically the whole top floor can be opened up into one big room. Sun deck can become an additional bedroom if needed. Roof is built-up asphalt, with insulation

B & G Hydro-Flo Heating

Radiant Sunny Warmth...plus All Year 'Round Hot Water

From seven to seventy, everyone loves the cheery comfort of B & G Hydro-Flo Heating

Your heating system can be the cause of more lasting satisfaction—or more regret—than any other single part of your home. So why not be guided by the experience of others and select B & G Hydro-Flo Heating? Hundreds of thousands of homes today are enjoying the comforts and economy of this radiant heating system.

B & G Hydro-Flo Heating is a forced hot water system. That's why it can be automatically controlled to deliver a mere blush of warmth on mild spring and fall days or a full quota of heat in zero weather. You have a choice of radiators, baseboard panels, convectors or concealed radiant panels.

Hot water, too—all you can use

What is more necessary to the modern home than an ever-ready supply of hot water? You need loads for automatic washers, showers, daily household tasks. A Hydro-Flo System produces all you can use, winter and summer, day and night, at trifling cost.

Amazingly economical

B & G Hydro-Flo Heating will delight you with its economy of operation—it burns just enough fuel and no more! No overheating to cause fuel waste... but plenty of heat when you need it most.

If you have an old-fashioned hot water heating system it can be converted easily into a modern forced circulation system with B & G Hydro-Flo equipment. Ask your heating contractor.

for cleaner
heat, lower fuel bills!

That warm air furnace of yours can't work efficiently if it has to drag its air through a set of dirty filters. You'll gain comfort and save fuel if you . . .

Replace them with new FIBERGLAS DUST-STOP FILTERS

A new set of Fiberglas DUST-STOP* Air Filters will let your furnace breathe freely . . . give you clean heat and plenty of it. It only takes a minute to "change 'em now", but it will save hours of cleaning and dusting if you do. And, what you save in fuel will more than cover the small cost of the new filters.

Get genuine DUST-STOP Filters from your furnace serviceman, hardware dealer or department store today. Better buy two sets, so you'll have some when it's time for that midwinter replacement. OWENS-CORNING FIBERGLAS CORP., Dept. 8-K, Toledo 1, O.

In Your Home's Defense

STANLEY SCHULER

It was one of those lovely late summer days. I was in the garden—weeding between the flowers and dreaming the while of the things we could do about the place—when my wife called me to the phone.

It was a friend down the road. He went straight to the point. "I was wondering," he said. "What do you think we ought to do about this rifle club business?"

"What rifle club?" I asked. I had never even heard of one.

"The one down in the village," he said. "You heard they bought that piece of land back of your place, didn't you?"

"I never heard any part of it," I said in amazement.

"Well, I haven't got the whole story myself," he explained. "But here's what I heard."

It was really very simple. The rifle club, which had for years been shooting on borrowed land close to the village center, had bought a 20-acre tract on the road only 200 yards west of my house. It was undoubtedly ideal for a rifle range. But it adjoined my property, was just across the road from my friend's, and the hill against which the targets would be erected towered over the property of another friend to the south of my house.

"But can't we do anything to stop it?" I asked as my friend caught his breath. "I don't want a rifle range in my back yard. And neither do you. This is a residential zone, isn't it?"

"In an A Zone," he said simply, "it is perfectly legal to establish a club. All you have to do is get the town's permission. The rifle club's asked for that, and the case is going to be heard by the zoning board of appeals three weeks from Monday."

"But what can we do?" I asked.

"Well, we ought to get up a petition—why don't you write that?—and then everyone in the neighborhood ought to go down to the hearing and fight."

We talked further, discussing the pros and cons of the case. When I had a better idea of what the petition ought to contain, we hung up.

I returned to the garden. The sky was just as blue. The wind just as gentle. But the pleasure of cleaning the flower bed was gone. And my dreams of the future had been supplanted by the desperate thought that maybe we should move.

Suddenly I was faced with the unpleasant realization that our home—the home my wife and daughters and

"We wanted only the best heating for our new home," writes Emerson Snyder of Meyersdale, Pa. "After investigating many makes of heating units, we chose a Delco-Heat Conditionair. We're convinced it gives the most dependable and economical heat on the market."

Home owners like Mr. Snyder have found Delco-Heat solves all heating problems. That's because Delco Units are engineered by General Motors especially for today's popular-sized homes—and are always installed by heating specialists. The North Side Heat Co., of Somerset, Pa., installed Mr. Snyder's unit.

Delco-Heat Conditionair—with exclusive "Roto-power" Oil Burner—automatically heats, cleans, humidifies and circulates the air in your home. For automatic heat with any type of fuel, see your nearest Delco-Heat Retail Distributor.

Your Home's Defense

I loved—was threatened. The advantages of living in the country would be nullified. Our property, paid for with our hard-earned life savings, would lose value drastically. And who could tell when the little girls would wander into the line of fire, or when a bullet would ricochet off a rock and through our windows?

Not many homeowners, I grant, wake up to find a rifle club aiming in the direction of their homes. But for every deadly nuisance such as a rifle club there are a hundred people who have an idea that they should be allowed to build a store or a public garage or a multi-unit dwelling in your neighborhood.

Should you let them do it, or should you argue? That's the first question you must answer. As a United States citizen and a property owner, it is your privilege to voice your opinion. And you should.

I was a babe in the woods. So, I discovered, were my neighbors. The town zoning regulations restricted our area to residences, but it was perfectly legal for the rifle club to set up a target range in the 20-acre tract behind my house if the town gave them permission. The club had requested such permission and the matter was to be considered by the zoning board of appeals three weeks from Monday. We, my neighbors and myself, decided to fight the granting of permission which would ruin our investment and family future.

None of us had ever gone before a zoning board. Consequently, ours was not a highly organized campaign. We did not hire a lawyer—not because we wouldn't have appreciated his advice—but because we felt that as ordinary homeowners we could win more sympathy by ourselves.

The petition I drew up was simple. The "whereases" and "be-it-resolveds" were held to a minimum. It merely stated the facts as my neighbors and I saw them, and wound up with the hope that the zoning board would deny the rifle club's request.

I typed several copies of the petition and put them in the hands of people who would circulate them. Every person contacted was given the full story, asked to sign the paper and urged to attend the zoning board meeting. "And don't be scared to get up and say your say," we told them.

The hearing three weeks later was held in a room at the town hall. People overflowed into the corridors. They weren't all there for our case. Other petitions were to be discussed, too. The gas company wanted to build a huge tank behind somebody's house. A woman in the one-acre zone wanted to divide her big house into apartments. Somebody wanted to build a store in another residential area. Our turn arrived at last, and the lawyer for the club was on his feet pointing out the value to the community of the rifle club and detailing the virtues of its proposed new range. He was a big, blustering man, and he talked too loud and made the business sound over-simple. But finally he was finished.

We presented our petition, and then, one by one, my neighbors rose to identify themselves and to give their reasons why the rifle range should not be established.

There were arguments, of course. Maps were brought out and studied. Accusations and counteraccusations were made. In all, we must have taken an hour before everyone had run out of words, and the board proceeded wearily to the next case.

A week later, the zoning board's decision was published. The rifle club's appeal had been denied.

Every part of the country has its own way of handling petitions for zoning changes or variances. But regardless of the rules, there is an established method of meeting the problem—if it is a problem.

First, remember that there is power in numbers. By this I do not mean that the more people you have on your side, the more pressure you can exert. Pressure tactics are necessary sometimes. But in many cases—particularly with a voluntary government body—they may backfire.

But zoning boards are bound to be influenced by the number of people who express themselves. For instance, if our petition in the rifle range case had been signed by only ten homeowners, it might not have been given much attention. Or if only six of us had appeared at the hearing, the board might have figured that no one was really seriously worried about the rifle range, so why not grant the club's request. But because we showed up en masse, and because all but the most timid got on their feet to speak their minds, the board could see that many people were aroused and worried.

Second, organize your campaign. In most zoning cases no elaborate campaign procedure is necessary.

Just prepare a simple petition stating the facts. This serves not only to argue your case before the board, but also crystallizes the thoughts of the people who sign it.

Get all the signatures you can. Be sure there is a good turn-out for the hearing. And see that your people get up and voice their opinions.

That's all there is to the campaign, unless the case is of such town-wide interest that you should organize a pre-hearing publicity rally.

Third, make sure of your facts. Anyone who appears before a zoning board has two types of ammunition, his opinions and the facts of the matter. The former may or may not have value; but every American is at least entitled to express them. The latter, however, are the sum and substance of a convincing argument.

Sound facts make a good impression, but if what you state as facts cannot be supported they make your arguments sound suspicious.

Looking back now, I think that's one thing that hurt the rifle club. The map their lawyer used did not show a critical house. The lawyer said that .22 caliber ammunition would be used exclusively. But it turned out that the club would also use larger caliber ammunition.

Such embarrassing situations can be avoided, if before you go to the zoning board hearing, you make certain that everyone on your side knows what he is talking about—that if he doesn't know the facts he will leave the talking to someone who does.

That, in short, is all there is to defending yourself, your home, and your neighborhood against an undesirable deviation from zoning laws.

But note that these are purely last-minute measures.

One other step that you would do well to take in anticipation of trouble: Organize your neighborhood now.

I am a member of an organization that calls itself the Mianus River Valley Property Owners' Association. Despite the name, it isn't a very imposing body. It is nothing more than the banding together of the majority of the homeowners in my neighborhood. It has the usual quota of officers; it even retains a lawyer. Beyond that it has no rigid organization. We pay a dollar annual dues and special assessments when necessary. We meet only when the occasion demands.

Now I know that if ever I'm confronted with a zoning-variance fight, I can reasonably expect the association to come to my support. For whatever affects me, in the long run, affects the entire community.

Zoning regulations are created to protect property owners from the encroachments of a restless, commercial world. There is legal machinery for changing the regulations if the change is in the best interests of the majority in the community, so the zoning laws are not really in the way of the wheels of progress. And not every request for a zoning variance is dangerous and something to oppose. Many, perhaps most, are perfectly legitimate, even necessary.

But when someone requests a change that is obviously out of line, if you value your home and love it as your anchor in an unsettled world, you have every right to fight for it. It may be an unpleasant business, but it's one you cannot ignore in the defense of your home.

How can I tell what rug cushion to choose?"

"It's easy lady... just look for the name OZITE... there are many reasons why it's the one and only cushion for you!"

years have proved that genuine

CIRCLE TREAD
OZITE

makes any carpet look and feel twice as rich... and wear twice as long!

Why risk your rug with cheap imitations of OZITE... or why pay more for products that cannot equal OZITE? Over 25 years of service under America's carpets and rugs is positive proof of OZITE's superiority. Much of the first OZITE made is still in use—soft and luxurious as ever! Insist on genuine OZITE... the finest quality carpet cushion made.

Be sure it's the genuine...
LOOK FOR THE NAME OZITE
in every square yard!

OZITE IS MADE OF ALL HAIR
... reinforced with an adhesive fabric center. No other material equals hair for cushioning action—and Ozite stays springy for a lifetime. Contains no re-used materials.

OZITE IS SOFT, BUT NOT SPONGY
... won't tire you to walk on it, or give a creepy feeling to your carpet. Keeps sharp heels from pounding through to the hard floor.

YOUR RUG ACTUALLY BREATHES WITH OZITE
... Ozite's porous texture makes vacuum cleaning more effective than with carpets laid over a smooth surface. If the carpet becomes wet, Ozite promotes drying... less chance of dry rot, compared with non-porous lining.

ODORLESS AND MOTHPROOFED
Ozite is odorless because it is "Ozonized"—a valuable point compared with other material. It is Permanently Mothproofed with a substance that kills moth-worms.

OZITE WON'T BURN—AIDS FIRE SAFETY
Touch a match to Ozite and it only chars, doesn't burn. Compare that with other materials which readily burst into flame! Ozite actually is valuable in retarding fire.

Ozite keeps rugs from scuffing or slipping. Keeps floors warm in winter... safer for children to play on. Ozite won't discolor or in any way mar varnish or wax.

How to make Lampbases from Cement

1 Cut a piece of plywood 4 inches larger on all sides than the base of your lamp-to-be. Cut hole in center to fit cone in angel cake pan. Oil outside of pan lightly, place as shown. (The base is made upside down—it's easier)

2 Make a wooden box form of 1-inch rough pine or use scrap lumber. Inside dimensions of box form should be 1 inch wider and 1 inch higher than pan. Also make wooden stand from scrap lumber as shown in picture #7

3 Drive nails into plywood to hold form securely in place. Set plywood atop platform (picture #7), built high enough so pipe "stem" of lamp will just touch floor

4 Cut piece of 3/8-inch plain plumbing pipe as long as standard for wires and shade is to be, plus depth of base. You also need one elbow and short piece of same pipe for wires at bottom. Put washer on long pipe

Photographs by Peter Gowland

Washer should fit just inside narrow end of cone. Prevents cement from running out. Place pipe through cake pan, elbow at bottom of base. Fill cone with cement

Make cement mixture of one part cement, two parts sand, and three parts small stones. Wash stones clean before adding to cement and sand. Cover elbow and short pipe. Smooth bottom with board

Use level to be sure long pipe is set perfectly straight through cake pan. Cement is still wet so pipe can be moved into exact position. Let stand until really dry

Remove cake pan. Run wire up through bottom, elbow piece, and long pipe. Cover pipe with piece of large-diameter bamboo. Attach electric unit to wire at top of pipe. Seal inside before adding plants. Outside may be painted

“The queen was in the kitchen” bottling herbs; the king, in the garden, hilling up roses

MARY ALICE ROCHE

Indoors and out— the Rowleys keep busy

Photographs by Jack Roche

When the radio announced, “Heavy frost tonight,” I had a feeling we would hear from the Rowleys and, sure enough, next morning, they telephoned that the house was full of chrysanthemums; did we want any?

When we got there, we found Mr. Rowley hilling up roses. “Hello, Roches,” he called. “Putting the garden to bed at last.” “So now you can both take it easy?” we asked, and he laughed. “Go on in and see Marion about that.” She was in the kitchen bottling dried herbs. Mrs. Starr, who had stopped for some roses (cut, like the ‘mums, to save them from the frost), was writing labels. “Coriander seeds,” said one. “They’re for your potpourri, aren’t they?” I asked.

“And to put on cookies,” said Mrs. Rowley. “That’s one of the nice things about herbs: they have so many uses. Thyme, for instance, is good with chicken and a must for clam chowder, and I’m sure it’s what makes my salmon pastry roll so popular.”

“And this is sage,” I cried in triumph, after sniffing several boxes. She nodded. “Another favorite. Especially because it stays in the garden all winter, along with lavender and the broad-leaved, frosty lambs-ears that give lively silvery touches to my Christmas greens. One year, I made little wreaths of herbs alone, with tiny bunches of dried lavender for accent, to hang on guest-room doors. My guests took them home to put in their linen closets, too!”

“Wasn’t sage one of the herbs in Charlemagne’s garden?” said Mrs. Starr, looking up from her work.

“Goodness!” cried Mrs. Rowley. “Don’t get me started on medieval herb gardens. That is one of my hobbies. Yes, herbs played a big part in that romantic age, and were credited with many virtues. Indeed, a popular saying was, ‘Why should a man die whilst Sage grows in his Garden?’ Dill was supposed to cure the hiccups; caraway, to restore falling hair, besides being used for comfits; and rue was thought to ward off disease, insects, and witches, and to cure forgetfulness—besides being used in salads. . . . But I told you not to get me started on herbs,” she laughed, “because I have a dried arrangement that I must do today. Want to go up to the attic with me while I get the makings?”

Mrs. Starr had to go home, but having been up in that attic before, we gladly followed up the stairs, then up the ladder into the big, exciting space under the roof. It smelled of summer, happiness, and childhood. Perhaps it was the great bunches of grasses hanging all about, but, for a moment, I was a little girl again, playing in the sweet-smelling hay-loft of my grandfather’s barn. Does anything, I wonder, conjure up happy visions the way a familiar fragrance does?

Mrs. Rowley told us how, on their wedding anniversary in June, she and Everett took a day off—from their homework—and drove around the countryside, stopping at farms to buy bunches of different kinds of grains—wheat, rye, barley, etc.—to dry while they were still green. "Soft green," she explained, "is a color so often lacking in dried flower arrangements. Yet it needn't be if you start collecting the proper things early in the season. These are especially good right now—" indicating boxes of lovely green flat fern.

"Now, how did you do that?" we asked in astonishment.

"Just put them on newspapers under the carpets," she answered, "walked on them all summer, and there they were by fall, all nicely pressed. But today, I have to use all yellow material, for a friend saw an arrangement I did last year and asked for one just like it." And, as she spoke, she added to her basket stalks of yarrow from the perennial border, and goldenrod and milkweed pods.

Downstairs again, we watched her set up a plain background panel that would show up the lines of the arrangement, and start filling a soft yellow vase with the dried material. As we watched the arrangement take shape, I thought of Mr. Rowley's amusement at our suggestion that now they could take it easy. I told Mrs. Rowley and she laughed, too.

"No, garden activities don't stop just because the flowers stop blooming," she agreed. "This is the time when we begin to use all the things we have grown and harvested. Herb products and flower arrangements are only two of them. There are lots more, especially with Christmas coming. That reminds me, I have always wanted to try making little angels out of the bleached pods of my unicorn-plant—you know, what the catalogues call Proboscidea. But in the meantime, that is, tomorrow, I must get busy on my herb jellies."

That was something I particularly wanted to know about, and I listened attentively as she told me what to do.

"Just make your apple jelly as usual," she said, making it seem as easy as easy. "Crabapples are best, of course, but I have run out of them by now. Then, toward the end, drop a bouquet of fresh rosemary or rose geranium leaves from the plants you potted up to grow in the kitchen. Cook for the last few minutes, then remove the herbs before pouring the jelly into the glasses."

We thought again how nice it is to be a friend of the Rowleys. And as we said good-bye, gathering up our chrysanthemums, the potted plants they gave us, and a little bundle of herbs I had snatched from the kitchen rafters, we decided that there was little chance of our ever finding the Rowleys really taking it easy. They would always be working hard—and having a wonderful time doing it.

Two Little Houses

From the bedroom hall looking into living room, with its natural fir plywood walls, to concealed entrance and partial partition, topped by plants, which gives privacy to dining area

In living room, natural wood and leaf-green wall are set off by colorful patterned-chintz couch, gray Broadfelt carpet. Open counter between kitchen and dining area has red linoleum top modern web chair, his clever wife the yellow seat and back.

In the dining area there is simple natural wood furniture with pink, chartreuse, and wine cotton upholstery and repeated for draperies. Again the bootied red-cedar siding is laid up between wall and ceiling to create interesting detail. The partition which shuts off front door, topped by plants, serves as storage shelves for dishes and silver on the dining side.

But modern-minded Steinmann's pièce de résistance is the handy and handsome open counter between kitchen and dining area where family meals are served and which is perfect for informal buffet suppers. Gay red linoleum tops this counter which is a continuation of kitchen drainboard and work surfaces, and the floor is of same tone. With a light blue ceiling in the kitchen and yellow siding above the light trough, it is a joy to look into this efficient little kitchen. A Bendix sets right next the kitchen stove to eliminate service area.

At the end of the living room is a modest little hall, with a very convenient door to the back garden (later to be used to connect the new wing to present dwelling), from which open two bedrooms and the bath. The nursery, in yellow and white, is beautifully planned for the activities of a lively little boy. There are low cases with doors in which he can arrange his little cars and trucks, open shelves for books and stuffed animals, and ample floor space for play.

Certainly the young Steinmanns have everything in a first house that they need for pleasant, informal family living. Despite the limitations of size, their first home has given them plenty of good living and offers excellent expansion possibilities for the future.

The Donald Begers Disprove a Pet Theory

Hipped slate-surfaced roof is cemented and rolled. Wide overhang gives weather protection to front entrance and garage

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Beger, tired of constant moving during the war years, decided to settle in Spring Green, a charming little Wisconsin village, and asked their young architect, John Steinmann, to design them an unpretentious, small house which would fit their informal way of living and the rural setting of their property. Less than 1,000 square feet in area, it is placed sidewise on the land in relation to the street. The masonry wall of the garage, skillfully incorporated within the structure of the house itself, is all that is visible to the passer-by. Planned for the climate, it is low to the ground, out of the wind, with a forced-air oil-burning furnace and adequate insulation keeping the Begers snug during the long, cold winters, yet provided with circulating air ducts to make the house cool during hot summer weather. Refuting the erroneous belief that a wall of glass is impractical in the Wisconsin climate, where winters are severe, is the treatment of window area in the Beger house. Across the entire length of living and dining area are fixed walls of glass with French doors to the terrace. This glass, going within eighteen inches of the floor to the ceiling, is of 1/4-inch double-paned plate glass. Condensation is eliminated by the use of Silica-Gel (a moisture-absorbing material) placed in perforated copper tubes between the two panes of glass. Because the wall of glass opens to the south, the Beger house gains heat in the winter months from the sun, but because of the different position, during the summer, of the sun in the sky, the overhang shields glass area from excessive heat. All this adds up to careful planning for the conditions of the Middle-Western climate. The red-cedar siding was also handled with weather in mind; to avoid constant painting, the wood was left natural and simply given three coats of preservative to seal it against wind, rain, sun, and snow.

The wide overhanging roof on the front gives good weather protection to garage doors and front entrance as well as a covered passage from car to house. The soffit of the overhang is of corrugated aluminum with a screened ventilating strip giving excellent circulation to roof area for summer cooling. On the rear terrace, the overhang shelters the living-dining-room glass area and gives shade for outdoor living.

From the entrance door, one steps into a small hall area with adjacent coat closet on the right and kitchen on the left. On the east wall of the living room a low built-in mahogany case with oak top provides open shelves for magazines and closed storage cupboards. Beyond this is the living area with furniture grouped around a spacious natural fieldstone fireplace and the wall of glass to the garden. The jog in the living room at the entry provides good circulation to kitchen or bedroom wing without crossing main living or dining area—good planning for so compact a house. This arrangement, also, gives privacy to the dining corner and its adjoining quick-meal counter which is the only separation between kitchen and dining space.

Over the window-wall is an indirect lighting trough of mahogany which gives a soft, diffused light to the sea-green plaster ceiling and walls of the living room. Floors throughout the house are of white oak; doors are birch and casework is of mahogany with oak tops except in the kitchen where green linoleum tops the counters.

The fieldstone fireplace is equipped with four metal grilles in order that the heat of the wood fire may be circulated to the room. Simple open shelves for books and a recessed spot for the radio with a closed case for wood storage make the end of the living room effective.

Since Spring Green, the Beger's village, is also the home town of the famous Frank Lloyd Wright, long a pioneer in the field of modern architecture, it is interesting to note that he came to see this little house because he was pleased to find that the young architect, John Steinmann, was demonstrating that good modern design is not restricted to any one part of the country or any particular climate.

Heating (Begins on page 58)

also more attractive. Convectors for hot water and steam are still lighter in weight and quicker to supply heat when the thermostat calls for it. Convectors, enclosed in cabinets, are out of sight where they don't conflict with furnishings and decorative schemes. Cool air enters at floor level, is heated, and passes up and out through a grille near the top.

To cure stratification the heat supply must be made practically continuous. This can be achieved with careful adjustment of modern heat regulators and circulating equipment of hot-water and warm-air systems. Instructions are available to heating contractors for improving the performance of old warm-air systems by adjustment and the changing of a few minor parts to provide effective continuous air circulation.

Concentrated blasts of heat are prevented by good design and locations for registers, radiators and convectors. Baseboard radiators and baseboard convectors are particularly good in this respect since they spread the heat along the outside walls of rooms at floor level.

The new thermostats are more sensitive and there are even controls to anticipate the effects of outdoor temperature changes and electronically modulate the heat to counteract them. One thermostat with well balanced radiators or registers will keep the house comfortably warm most of the time. But individual controls for rooms or selected zones, costing about $100 each set, maintain comfort all the time, regardless of changes in room heat needs due to shifting of the winds and sun.

Innovations of all types contribute to the continual evolution of home heating, but for comfort the objective is equipment quick to respond to heat needs with almost continual supply or circulation of modulated heat and really sensitive control of the whole operation.

no wonder 85% want Oak Flooring!

★ "We had oak floors in our old house, and they were as good the day we moved out as when they were laid. They gave us a higher resale value too. So naturally we wanted oak when we bought this house."

★ "When we moved in we redecorated and bought new furniture. We didn't worry a minute about whether it would clash with the floor, because oak blends beautifully with any style. And keeping it clean and sparkling is so easy it's a joy!"

★ "So now we're all settled down, and it's certainly a relief to know we'll never have any of those expensive floor replacements, because oak lasts a lifetime. No wonder 85% want oak flooring!"

Lift up your Old Coverlet

If you have an old coverlet that you've been afraid might just disintegrate with further use, pull it down off the shelf and give it a face-lifting job. I literally restitched an age-worn red and navy woven coverlet on my sewing machine. Strengthening seams were made about half an inch apart, lengthwise and across the material. To match the original colors I used navy thread for the top stitch, and filled the bobbin with dark red thread. Use a good-quality cotton thread and regulate your machine to a small-sized stitch. Working at intervals, it took me a week to re-weave the spread. Now the fabric is firm enough to go through the washing machine.

Free! VITAMIN GUIDE BOOK

Tells how to get—at little cost—the new "Red" Vitamin B-12 recently described in Reader's Digest

Without cost, you can be well informed on vitamins in only 20 minutes' reading. This informative guide book explains the purpose served by vitamins, gives you an understanding of unitage, and will show you how to read a label and compare values so you can get the most for your money. Tells about the newer vitamins—Choline, Inositol, Folic Acid and the "Red" Vitamin B-12 recently dramatically described in Reader's Digest in a story of blood regeneration that thrilled millions. Folks taking vitamins are amazed, on reading this book, that it is not necessary to pay $4, $5, $6 or $15 for the vitamins they have been using. You, too, once you know how to measure values as explained in this book, can save up to 40%. So, stop buying vitamins blindly. room. The Rushes' daughter's room is a combination study and bedroom—and any young girl or young man will vote for that. The closet for this room is in the hall leading to her private bath. The architect-owner's study is so planned that at any future time a hall can be built through the daughter's room and provide a third bedroom with access to the second bath.

Mr. Rush says that Mrs. Rush was the inspiration behind the interior planning—she, being a California gal whose dreams of a truly western ranch house with lots of refreshing color, was not deterred by the Michigan traditions of a somber house. That's what Mr. Rush says—and we believe him. But we say: Take one sound architect, a gay and practical woman, and you have a home, not just a house!

NEARLY right isn't good enough!

...especially in home insulation

YOU INSULATE your house only once; the job must be done right the first time. And when it's done right, you'll say, "Why did I wait so long!"

Yes, why keep on throwing away up to 30¢ of every dollar you spend on fuel? That's almost one-third of your fuel budget, totally wasted.

You can save that money, up to 30¢ on every fuel dollar . . . and have more comfort besides . . . simply by insulating with Johns-Manville Rock Wool, "blown" into the hollow exterior walls and attic spaces of your home.

BUT REMEMBER—your choice of a contractor is all-important. You can't SEE the difference between good and poor work in insulation.

You can be assured of good work when you call the approved Johns-Manville "Blown" Home Insulation Contractor. He is trained to "blow" J-M Rock Wool scientifically, in full measure, to give you utmost benefits. Ask him about easy monthly payments—FHA approved terms.

WRONG

The J-M Contractor is trained to cover attic floor areas like these evenly, leaving no "thin" spots between joists to rob you of fuel and comfort.

He completely fills all the hollow exterior walls and the heat-leaking spaces above and below the windows.

He blows Rock Wool to the right density in sidewalls, to prevent voids or "empty pockets" that leak heat and reduce efficiency.

FREE Write today for FREE copy of 24-page book, "Comfort that Pays for Itself." Tells the whole fascinating story of the insulating "wool" made of rock.

Tells how this amazing fireproof material is installed by air pressure . . . how it protects health, saves fuel, keeps houses up to 15° cooler in summer. Address: Johns-Manville, Dept. AH-11, Box 290, New York 16, N. Y.

Johns-Manville "BLOWN" HOME INSULATION

This FIREPLACE warms the whole room—even adjoining rooms!

CIRCULATES HEAT

● Build your fireplace around the Heatilator® Fireplace unit and enjoy the cheer of an open fire plus cozy warmth in every corner of the room. The Heatilator Fireplace saves heat usually wasted up the chimney. Draws air from floor level, heats it, and circulates it to warm all the room and even adjoining rooms.

Will not smoke

It's a scientifically designed form, complete from floor to flue, around which any style fireplace can be easily built. It assures correct construction, eliminates common causes of smoking.

Ideal for basement recreation rooms

Makes summer camps usable months longer

Adds little to cost

Substantial savings in labor and materials make a Heatilator Fireplace cost little or nothing more than an ordinary fireplace.

Proved by 23 years use

Your fireplace is a long term investment. So make sure you get the one fireplace unit that has proved itself for 23 years. Look for the name "Heatilator" on the dome and damper handle of the unit you buy. Accept no substitute. See it at leading building material dealers everywhere. Mail Coupon today!

ARE YOU A MODERN MOTHER WHO CAN FRANKLY TELL YOUR DAUGHTER These Intimate Physical Facts?

IS THERE ANYTHING ELSE YOU THINK I SHOULD KNOW BEFORE GETTING MARRIED, MOM?

YES, DEAR, REMEMBER
THERE'S A WOMANLY
OFFENSE GRAVER THAN
BAD BREATH OR BODY ODOR

Isn't it a comfort in this modern age for a mother to be able to speak frankly and openly to her daughter about hygiene (internal cleanliness). And of course a modern mother keeps up to date and is able to tell her daughter why she should always put ZONITE in her fountain syringe for health, womanly charm, after her periods and especially to follow this practice in her married life ahead.

She must make her daughter realize there's an offensive odor graver than bad breath or body odor which she herself may not detect but is so apparent to people around her.

And isn't it reassuring for a daughter to know: no other type liquid antiseptic-germicide tested for the douche is so powerful yet safe to tissues as ZONITE.

A Modern Miracle!

Modern women no longer have to use dangerous products, over-strong solutions of which may gradually cause serious damage. Nor will they want to rely on weak, homemade solutions—none of which have ZONITE's great deodorizing and germicidal action.

Developed by a world-famous surgeon and scientist—the ZONITE principle was the first in the world that was powerful enough yet positively non-irritating, non-poisonous. You can use ZONITE as often as you wish without injury.

Gives BOTH Internal and External Hygienic Protection

ZONITE actually dissolves and removes odor-causing waste substances. It gives external protection from odor, too! ZONITE helps guard against infection and kills every germ it touches. You know it's not always possible to contact all the germs in the tract but you CAN BE SURE ZONITE immediately kills every reachable germ and keeps germs from multiplying. Buy ZONITE today!

FREE! NEW!

For amazing enlightening NEW Booklet containing frank discussion of intimate physical facts, recently published—mail this coupon to Zonite Products Corp., Dept. AH-110, 100 Park Ave., New York 17, N. Y.*
