Honeywell Clock Thermostat

Owners say it's wonderful because it turns down the heat—automatically—when you go to bed, and gives you a nice cool room to sleep in; turns up the heat—automatically—while you're still asleep, and your home is warm when you get up. Saves you fuel, besides! Look in classified phone directory for your nearest heating dealer; have him install a Honeywell Clock Thermostat now. Or buy the plug-in model you can install yourself.

First in Controls

THE THIRD MEMBER of this domestic triangle, of course, is that old outmoded thermostat.

It has subjected the lady to uneven, unhealthful temperatures for years and she just can't stand the thought of another miserable winter. So . . .

"Before cold weather comes again," she says, "replace either ME or that tired old thermostat."

Fortunately, the gentleman's decision won't be hard to make, because a modern Honeywell Thermostat is often all it takes to correct an uneven flow of heat. So—there's simply no reason to consider discomfort a necessary evil.

And there couldn't be a better time to modernize than now. Fuel bills have stopped eating into your budget. Your heating dealer is not as busy as he was. Or as he will be, come next fall.

Call him today! Find out—now— about all the impressive improvements that have been made in heating equipment in the past few years.

Find out--now-about the new Honeywell Thermostats and other automatic controls that can make your heating system a better heating system. Whether you buy a new heating plant or modernize your present one, make sure you get Honeywell Controls.

You naturally want her to grow up to be attractive and sought-after, you hope she will meet nice boys and marry one of them. Of course you do.

When she's a little older you will encourage her to guard her charm and daintiness . . . you will, of course, see to it that, above all, her breath is sweet and wholesome. For, without such appealing freshness, her other good points may count for little.

Her best friend in this matter is Listerine Antiseptic. It has been a family standby for more than sixty years. Literally millions rely on it as the extra-careful precaution against halitosis (unpleasant breath). A night-and-morning "must" against offending and especially before any date.

You see, Listerine Antiseptic instantly freshens and sweetens the breath . . . and keeps it that way . . . not for mere minutes . . . but for hours, usually.

While some cases of halitosis are of systemic origin, most cases, say some authorities, are due to the bacterial fermentation of tiny food particles clinging to mouth surfaces. Listerine Antiseptic quickly halts such fermentation, then overcomes the odors fermentation causes.

. . . DON AYRES, A.I.A., one of the architects for the John Shura house, page 34, is certainly well equipped for his job. He's a graduate of the University of Illinois, B.S. and M.S.; attended Atelier Gromort of the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris: traveled in Europe; taught architecture for seven years in universities; past president of Architects of San Fernando Valley. And he's still a young man.

. . . HERBERT F. FIEGE, A.LA., who shares architectural credit for the John Shura house, on page 34, is originally from Manchester, N. H. After leaving Yankee territory, he took his Bachelor of Architecture at the University of Southern California. He is Director of the Architects of San Fernando Valley, and has been in partnership with Mr. Ayres since 1946, a happy combination of talents.

. . . MARIAN SCHWARTZ majored in art, with the idea of teaching it, but marriage sort of sidetracked her. Now she has two little girls who benefit from her talent when she illustrates the stories she tells them on the blackboard. She is active as a homemaker and in local civic, religious, and school work, handling publicity for her civic association. Her story about "United Neighbors" is on page 22.

. . . FREDRICK W. CASSEBEER, a fifth-generation pharmacist by profession, "discovered" iris (see page 32) 20-odd years ago. His first love was gladiolus, but later tall bearded iris claimed him as both fancier and hybridizer. Other interests are color photography, lecturing, writing, editing. He is ex-president of Men's Garden Club and treasurer of Horticultural Society, both of New York.

. . . MARGARET BALDWIN'S interest in découpage received its impetus from a friend in Bennington, Vermont. Since then, she and her husband have made a fascinating hobby of it. A graduate of Northwestern University in Evanston, she has lived on the North Shore of Chicago all her life, has a son at Northwestern Medical School, a younger one at Leland Stanford Jr. University. # YEAR-'ROUND AIR CONDITIONING

Now you can enjoy refreshing coolness in your home in summer with the same system that keeps you warm in winter. Chrysler Airtemp's new Year-'Round system provides an ideal temperature—set to meet your own desires—through every season of the year.

This compact, dependable unit circulates cool, filtered, dehumidified air to every room in your home in hot weather. A simple control adjustment and the same system provides warm, moisturized, healthful air during cold weather—controlled automatically.

You'll be thrilled with the wonderful indoor climate you'll have—personalized to your wishes no matter what the weather is outside. And you'll be amazed at how little it takes to own this Year-'Round unit. If you are building a home, you can obtain this comfort for less than 25c a day when purchase is included in your mortgage.

If your present home has a warm air heating system, a Chrysler Airtemp "Packaged" cooling unit may be added to your furnace and financed under convenient terms with very low monthly payments. Call your nearby Chrysler Airtemp dealer today. (He's in the Yellow Pages.) Or mail coupon direct to us for all the details.

Camellias-Kinds and Culture by H. Harold Hume. (Macmillan) Price $6.00. . . Like its eminent author's book on azaleas (1948), this scholarly but wholly practical, 271-page book can well be called the "last word" in its field-which has broadened greatly in recent years. As Dr. Hume says, garden camellias of today are not tropical, but temperate-zone plants; and they are grown under glass far outside the limits of their culture in gardens. The text covers all aspects of the subject and is helpfully supplemented by excellent drawings, halftones, and color plates.

The Joy of Flower Arranging edited by Helen Van Pelt Wilson. (Barrows) Price $3.95. . . This really different treatment of a familiar subject presents 105 pictures and captions in 12 sections, each featuring arrangements made by a recognized expert to typify one of the months in her home state. Each section is accompanied by a quoted poem and comment by the editor who contends that "arranging is a pleasure, not a task," and one that should be enjoyed with less "serious self-consciousness" and more relaxation. Hear! Hear!

Wildflowers, How to Know and Enjoy Them by Samuel Gottscho. (Dodd, Mead) Price $2.75. . . The author is an eminent architectural and garden photographer; 15 years ago, with the coming of Kodachromes, he became an enthusiastic student of wildflowers with which, previously, he had been only casually acquainted. In 192 pocket-size pages he tells how it happened, describes the rewards of hunting and photographing native plants, passes along plant-life infor-

To every suffering male who has to help do the dishes

Isn't it awful?

You've had a slam-bang day at the office. You're bushed. After dinner, you'd just love to sink down in your deepest chair, light a pipe, and relax.

But can you? Nope. It seems you have a little job to do. Your wife is out there about to attack the dishes. She says, "Now don't you bother, dear." But you know she's had a tough day, too.

So you tie that repulsive little apron around your middle and advance wearily toward the mound of dirty dishes.

Actually, however, you and your wife need never again come to grips with a dirty dish. For with the General Electric Dishwasher, you just turn one simple control, and it double-washes, double-rinses and dries dishes, silver, glasses, and pans—automatically.

This is a new G-E model, and—make no mistake—it's heads and shoulders above anything else in the field.

Engineered by G. E., it's dependable no end. And it has all sorts of extra advantages.

The Calrod® heating unit keeps hot-water hot, helps do the dishes clean and hygienically. The dishes dry to a bright glitter in electrically heated air. And the new G-E has a whopping big capacity—it'll hold a complete family service for eight people!

O.K., you say, but how much will this thing set me back? Well, as far as operating costs go, only a few cents a day. The original outlay (which varies according to the model) is not great. And the minute you put one of these wonder work-savers in your kitchen, the value of your house goes up. So it's a smart investment, any way you look at it.

If you and your wife want to bid the dishwashing headache a permanent good-by, drop in at your G-E dealer's today. You'll find it one of the wisest moves you ever made. General Electric Company, Bridgeport 2, Connecticut.

Trim and specifications subject to change without notice.

How the new G-E Dishwasher can be installed in your kitchen: (1) As part of the complete G-E Sink (above). (2) As a separate unit that stands alone. (3) As a separate unit that fits under your present work counter.

How we retired with $250 a month

"Seems queer, but it was the crash of 1929 that showed Janet and me the one sure way a salaried man can retire. No-we didn't see it coming. Like our friends, we had put our savings in investments. They crashed with everything else. Yet today we're retired and living in California, with a check for $250 coming in each month-as long as we live.

You see, I did some hard thinking then. Maybe I could save again. But how could I hope to tell a good buy from a poor one? I had no training.

"What's more, I was forty-two. My working years were more than half over already. I couldn't afford to speculate. And I didn't want to keep worrying about my future.

"I guess I'd been reading ads about Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plans for years. I'd always meant to write in and find out more about them. But I'd kept putting it off. Later-when I have more money saved up again, I'd say. (I thought you had to be rich to retire.)

Then, one afternoon, I happened to read another Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income ad. You didn't have to have a lot of money in the bank, it said. If you had fifteen or twenty good earning years ahead of you, your income could be absolutely guaranteed for life. A man of forty could plan to forget all investment worries and still retire at, say, 60. The only secret was to start in time . . . "Well, it won't cost anything to look into it, I said. So I cut out the coupon at the bottom of the ad and mailed it in. Pretty soon my mail brought a booklet telling all about Retirement Income Plans. It showed how I could get an income of $250 a month, every month, starting when I hit sixty. It was an income I couldn't lose, couldn't outlive! And meanwhile, it protected my family with life insurance.

Then and there, I decided . . I'd let Phoenix do my investment worrying. As soon as I could, I applied for a Phoenix Mutual Plan.

"Eighteen years pass faster than most folks realize. We enjoyed them more because we knew that we were financially secure. A while ago, I got my first Phoenix Mutual check and retired. Janet and I drove West. We've bought a little house in California and we're having the time of our lives-free from worries about jobs or dividends."

Then the average home-buyer goes into a "for-sale" house in 1960, a mere sink and range won't satisfy him. He'll demand, as standard equipment, a television set, dishwashing machine, clothes washer, and refrigerator. Fantastic predictions? Not at all. This crystal-ball gazing is surrounded by an aura of reliability and probability. This is the forecast of real estate experts who study trends and whose business it is to know what the public will want. They are drawn from the replies of 2,095 realtors in all 48 states and the District of Columbia who responded to a recent survey by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. More than 65 per cent of them agreed that those four items will be desired by the average family as standard equipment a decade from now.

It is certainly no surprise that most of the prognosticators listed a refrigerator and clothes washer, because that picture is shaping up more concretely every day. To the observer, however, the anticipated demand for a television set came as a surprise, although that one item has probably taken a greater hold on the American family, in less time, than any other single innovation.

There are other things which drew strong support as probable "musts" in the home of 1960: air conditioning, a home freezer, and a clothes dryer. Here the prophesying realtors were not quite so emphatic, but slightly more than half of them checked these features, too. Still some newer types of equipment apparently have not stamped themselves as essential yet in the mind of the public, although they all drew some votes. Only one of three of the forecasters, for example, said radiant heat would be standard in 10 years, while radar cooking and a visaphone

"How to Put a Picture in Your Picture Window" is the title of a fully illustrated 16-page book. It shows how you can get the greatest enjoyment out of your picture window by making the outdoors into a living mural, an ever-changing, ever-beautiful "painting" by nature. It is very simple. And it is thoroughly practical and authoritative. All the planting plans were designed by an outstanding New York landscape architect.

You will find in this book a wealth of other helpful hints, too. Ideas for window drapes. Skillful sketches showing how to arrange furniture to create conversational groupings that take full advantage of your picture window.

This book on indoor and outdoor treatment of large windows also includes data on use of *Thermopane** insulating glass to cut fuel bills, eliminate chilly drafts near the window and save yourself the bother of storm sash.

Diamothyst is .7 on the Moh's scal The greatest gem discovery in history, which is the result of experimentation of one of America's largest corporations, brings you Diamothyst, a gem with a refractory index higher than, and a dispersion factor greater than, a diamond. Its refractory index is about 10% higher than diamonds. It may seem fantastic to you as it did to us, but now you can have a gem that looks like a diamond and is actually far more brilliant than a diamond, and even many PAWN BROKERS have mistaken it for a real diamond. Yet you can have it at about 1/30 the cost of a genuine diamond. (Buy a Diamothyst instead of a diamond and save the difference.)

Our bathroom doubles as a powder room

WE LIVE in a one-bathroom house. Time and again Jim and I had tried to figure out how to build in a powder room. It just couldn't be done. The family bath had to serve guests, too.

"Can't you fix it up a bit?" Jim asked.

I groaned inwardly. Didn't the man realize that I had been struggling for months trying to make it presentable?

"We might as well face it!" I said. "That bathroom needs more than a little fixing up. It needs new fixtures, and big mirrors, and a new Armstrong Floor, and . . .

Jim's head jerked up. Usually I'm the meek and mild type, but I'd lived with that old antique bathroom about as long as I could stand it.

"Cost a lot of money . . . ," he started to say.

"We'd spend it if we could find a way to build in a powder room, wouldn't we?"

"Sure, but there's no place to . . . "

"Yes, there is," I countered. "We'll build in a powder room right where that old bath is."

"But what about us?"

"We'll use it, too. Maybe you wouldn't be such a grumpy old bear in the morning if you had a decent shaving mirror and a nice . . .

Jim smiled, and I knew I'd won. "If we're getting an Armstrong Floor," he said, "let's see my friend Chuck Brennan."

Mr. Brennan turned out to be a friend of mine, too. He had some wonderful ideas. "First thing to do is get rid of that bathroom look," Mr. Brennan said. Then he led us across the store to a wallpaper panel that pictured a tropical beach seen through half-opened shutters.

"I could work out a special design in Armstrong's Linoleum that would be like a path to the door," Mr. Brennan said—and suddenly I began to see it all.

Before the week was over, we had started work. Another week and it was all finished.

Jim was funny. The first morning he came down to breakfast he apologized. "Sorry, honey, but I'm afraid I splashed up the powder room a little."

As if he hadn't been splashing up that old bathroom for years! "It's all right," I said. "With Armstrong's Linoleum on the floor and Armstrong's Linowall on the walls, we don't have to worry-but, of course, there's still no law against wiping up your own splash."

Jim's eyes twinkled. "Believe it or not, honey, I did."

Our Own U.N.*

*United Neighbors

he United Nations has moved to New York City, away from Lake Success, which is about a mile from our little community. But our own "U. N."-United Neighbors, that is-will, we hope, always be here to reflect the same inspiring spirit of the oneness and selfless mutual aid which are the aims of the United Nations.

Our quiet street of new houses would be at home in almost any middle-class suburb in America. Here live Catholics, Protestants, and Jews. Our parents came from many lands. We are mechanics, optometrists, merchants, salesmen, editors, engineers, printers, railroad men, jewelers, civil servants, taxi owners. Most of us are home owners for the first time. But our new combined spirit has kindled an extra glow in the warm feeling of pride we have in our homes.

We quickly learned that, when you are budgeting for a new home, figures on paper seem pat and simple; but that, soon after you move in, you discover need for previously undreamed-of items of equipment. An extension ladder to check roof or gutters is a headache when it costs $60. To make a new lawn or renovate an old one, you need a roller-price $12. Once a wheelbarrow was something cute to grow ivy in; now, full-grown, for real work, it means another $18. All this was most discouraging until words here and there across back fences showed that the problem was not bothering any one of us alone. So we talked it over, and twenty of us decided to buy needed equipment co-operatively. After our first purchase (a set of magnesium ladders), our "United Neighbors" really blossomed. Here is what we have bought to date, with total cost and the cost to each of us:

EQUIPMENT	PRICE	INVESTMENT PER NEIGHBOR	IF RENTED
12-ft. magnesium ladder 32-ft. magnesium extension	$ 20.00	$1.00	$1.00
ladder	60.00	3.00	2.00
2 sets safety feet for ladders 18-in, fertilizer and seed	4.00	.20	_
distributor	9.00	.45	.75
Lawn roller	12.00	.60	1.00
Lawn aerator	10.00	.50	1.00
Total	$115.00	$5.75	$5.75

Note that each neighbor's total investment is exactly equal to one day's rent of the items from a local garden store. Currently, we are considering the purchase of a floor waxer with sanding and buffing attachments. It will cost each of us $2.25. But I have been renting an inferior one for two days a month for one dollar a day!

Naturally, like the U. N., we had to develop a modus operandi. No one is obliged to help buy anything he might not need or want to

Stopover on the way to a Dream House

ETHEL MeCALL HEAD

Bill and Betty Froug, like most young couples, found that their champagne tastes did not fit their beer budget. Bill had been on a Navy sub-chaser during the war and Betty served with the Red Cross in India and the O.S.S. in China. During those years they were both dreaming of the time when marriage, a home, and children would be a reality.

Arriving in Los Angeles after their marriage, they decided that nothing would do for them but a very modern house. Since they both were fond of the ocean, it seemed a smart idea to buy a lot looking out to the great Pacific and build a modern house of redwood and glass including every possible new idea.

It did not take long for them to wake from this rosy dream to the realization that they would have to settle for a home less glamorous. Modern dream houses with a view of the ocean come high. So the young Frougs bought a little house of somewhat questionable architectural ancestry. Despite is lack of distinction, it was a solid little house with two bedrooms and a den where Bill could write. At this time he was senior staff writer for the Columbia Pacific Network. Now he has been promoted to Director of Program Writing for the Columbia Pacific Network which means the future modern house is coming closer to reality.

Since the little house they bought is considered definitely to be only a stopover on the way to a dream house, Bill and Betty decided that they would not buy one single thing for their present home that would not later fit into the redwood and glass architectural masterpiece, and they have lived up to it.

What they have done on the inside of their little nondescript house is amazing! There are two points to make very clear in the story of the young Frougs—not only did they buy good modern pieces, but they knew they would be far better off on their limited furnishings budget if they had professional advice.

As Betty put it, "We wouldn't dream of doing our new house without an architect, and we felt we would use our money far better if we had a decorator help us on furnishing the stop-over house. Betty MacMurray, a young decorator who had studied at U.C.L.A, and had sound practical experience as well, was delighted with the sensible approach of the young Frougs, and together the three not only had a lot of fun "fixing up" the little house, but they balanced the budget to a fare-thee-well!

Betty MacMurray pointed out to Bill and Betty that it would be wise to allow a certain portion of their furnishings budget for paint. No matter how simple and good their furniture and draperies might be, the dingy color scheme of the little house would contribute nothing to creating a good background. So from the very start paint had its share in the making of this attractive home.

To start with the Frougs had a little "vestibule." And it could not be dignified by any other name. But clever Betty, the decorator, had an idea. She, herself, painted the wall opposite the entry door chalk white and upon it painted a free-form design in black with a single startling red circle in the center. Of course, as Betty Froug says, this entry wall is in such contrast to the drab exterior of the house that when the door is opened for the Fuller Brush man or a delivery boy, they gasp a bit and promptly ask to see "the rest of the house," no doubt thinking, "How queer can people get?" It may be freakish but it's cute.

The living room was of good proportions though the bay window on the street side was something of a stickler since the Frougs did not go for the ruffled-curtain and spinning-wheel type of décor. Chalk white for ceiling and fireplace wall and a sort of chocolate-candy brown for the other three walls were first on the agenda. The background was now set for the Frougs' furnishings program, so they got busy and started shopping.

A white, closely woven cotton rug and white desert-cloth draperies, with plenty of fullness, tied together the brown walls and white ceiling. "Now," said Betty, the decorator, "we can get color into the room through the furnishings."

Since those who are devotees of the modern school of thought always like a cool, uncluttered kind of living, it is interesting to see how few pieces make this attractive room. There is a small linen-covered love seat upon which are pillows in yellow, white, and gray plaid. Two African campaign chairs, both with black frames, but one in chalk-white canvas and one in yellow. (Later in the new modern house, these chairs will go on the terrace.)

There is an Eames chair in red to pull up by the fire and a single "proper" yellow armchair. So far one couch and four chairs! Only two tables were needed. A slatted bench, low and simple, went into the problem bay window. With a big Mexican jug filled with greens and plenty of room for magazines, the bench is a good filler-upper for the protruding bay.

In front of the fireplace is a handsome three-topped Greta Grossman designed table with walnut finish for the wood tables and black iron for the legs. The bookcase on the end wall is one of Bill's creations. He says he made it in 45 minutes, using pumice block for supports and three pine boards stained terra cotta to match the dining room color scheme. It is easily dismantled if the Frougs wish to use it in another room and will be fine for one of the children's rooms in the new house.

Over this simple bookcase hangs a good modern print, "Composition 1933" by Jean Miro. The interesting white plaster head

Betty discovered in her mother's attic on a rummaging jaunt during a summer's visit en famille. Where it came from none can say, but it is just right in this modern room and always causes talk.

Flash! Just as this story was going to press, Bill happily phones to say, "I've made a terrific couch for the living room and the love seat has been moved to the den." And it's a honey! Too late for a new photograph, but at least we can report on the full-length couch made by Papa Froug! He had birch precut at the lumber yard for the frame which he put together. Betty MacMurray he'ped Bill design the couch and ordered the foam rubber with which he upholstered it. The legs and arms of iron he had made at a welding shop for $11.00, but felt he was not sufficiently versed in the fine art of upholstery so had the cover put on by a professional. It is a handsome modern print called "Big Catch," putty-toned and white with intriguing-looking fish swimming eternally (they are mustard-colored). Over the back is a fish net (bought at Army surplus to further the marine theme).

The "dinette" was given new life by using terra-cotta-colored paint on the wood wainscot and a James Mills wallpaper in free-PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 92

o better way to spend a day in the country than to attend an auction in "Historic" hall, on the village green or the lawn of an old house where a sale is going on. Watch for the red flag hung along the roadside, which announces to one and all that here one may find just the right chair, chest of drawers, little washstand, or even a dowry chest. If you live in the city, there are second-hand stores and thrift shops abounding with dusty treasures at small cost. All the pieces shown on these pages were the worse for wear, with chipped-off paint and scars from many years of hard use. Learn to look beyond the layers of paint and study the lines of a piece of furniture. Often good lines are hidden under pseudo-rococo scrolls, shells, and appendages no words can describe, but they can come off more easily than you think. Watch for basic lines and always buy with a definite use in mind for each piece. Many old pieces were originally planned to be painted, and several kinds of wood were used in a single chest or chair. When old paint is cleaned off, the varied woods have sometimes acquired a soft patina, blending in a pleasing whole. Then we use a natural finish. If woods are badly matched, don't despair; a good cleaning, fresh paint, and our American Home Patterns will add that touch of distinction that will make totally unrelated old pieces of furniture fit comfortably into your scheme of living. Just try it once!

 Here's a basic paint removal and refinishing process for stripping and repairing of battered antiques such as this interesting table-bench we found. Finish in natural wood tones, or paint with authentic designs 2. Use a good paint remover and lots of it. Allow to stand 15 minutes or so. When paint blisters, scrape off as much as possible with a putty knife. We removed 12 coats so operation had to be repeated 4 or 5 times

3. When you have scraped down to raw wood, be careful not to dig putty knife into surface, which is temporarily softened by action of paint remover. Some paint will have been absorbed into wood pores

4. Sanding will help to remove most of paint, but a little left will not spoil the finish. Fill all holes with wood putty, smooth level with wood surface. Sand entire table—first with medium, then with fine sandpaper ADDITIONAL STEPS ON PAGE 30

5. We unscrewed cleats from bottom of two table-top boards, then planed smooth inside edges of table boards to fit tightly when glued together. We replaced a worn part of seat with piece of seasoned pine, placed "breadboard" fashion at one end

6. We made simple wooden clamps of scrap lumber (or use two inexpensive pipe clamps). Before clamping boards together we brushed glue thickly on inside edges of top

7. We drilled ¾-inch holes in the old, smaller screw holes and screwed the table top back onto the cleats. We then carefully filled the holes, using glue and wooden pegs

8. Wooden pegs, were cut from ¾-inch pine dowels ½-inch long, hammered firmly into drilled holes, leaving the tops uneven until glue had dried. Cut pegs even with chisel

9. Pegs sanded smooth. Brush on table generously, mixture of  $\frac{2}{3}$ boiled linseed oil,  $\frac{1}{3}$  turpentine. Allow to set a few hours. Wipe off surplus. Let dry 24 hours. Repeat

10. Rub well between coats. Use a soft cloth. Repeat above procedure 4 or 5 times. Dry thoroughly for a week or two. Polish with soft cloth. Wax and rub again and again

11. Table bench with top tilted makes comfortable seat with storage space. We made a blueprint pattern so you can build a "Hutch" table. PATTERN 1282—50¢

Description	Blooming Time	Where to Plant	Comments
Large, imposing, orchidlike flowers on well branched stalks 2-5 ft. tall; in wide range of clear colors; marked by prominent caterpillarlike beard on 3 lower petals (falls). Grow from plump rhizomes	Late May early June	In full sun, well-drained soil. Use alone in solid beds, in mixed borders, or as large clumps of one variety as point of interest along gates, fences, walls, etc.	Most popular and useful of all the iris. Spectacular garden subjects; highpoint of the spring flowering season. Plant, and divide old clumps, in summer after flowering stops
A small edition of the above, with short stalks—not over 1 ft. high	April & early May	In spring flower borders to bloom with tulips; in rock gardens
Medium-size butterflylike flowers on slender wiry stems 2-4 ft. tall; narrow grasslike foliage. Light blue ta purple, white, magenta. Clumps have long, fibrous roots	Early June	Does best in well-drained or only moderately moist soil, full sun. Fine as large clumps in mixed border, in front of shrubs, as a hedge	Characterized by clear colors especially effective in mass. Pleasing companion plants for Oriental poppies. Plant in fall or early spring
Large, flat, saucerlike flowers on reedlike stems; both single (3-petal) and double (6-petal) forms. Clear colors veined or mottled in white and blue, purple, mauve, maroon shades	Late June early July	Thrives particularly well in moist, swampy ground, but must have plenty of sunshine. Best at edges of pools, ponds, and brooks	Showy, exotic flowers that extend the iris blooming season into July
Stiff, open blooms atop short stems. Blue, purple, white, yellow, brownish, English kinds have broader lower petals A dwarf type similar to the	Late May June	Best grown in rows in the vegetable or cutting garden; but also good for the mixed border Use in early spring	Useful principally as cut flowers. # Fifteen Years in the Making

ETHEL MCCALL HEAD

Photographs by Robert C. Cleveland

Long and low, this redwood house painted barn red with white trim sits on crest of hill. Bricked porch, adjacent terrace made outdoor living room

I on't misunderstand this title! Actually this house was built recently in the normal length of time it takes to construct any home. But what makes it interesting is that the John Shuras, who lived in a suburb of Chicago, started dreaming and planning their California home a full fifteen years ago! Immersed in business, cold winters, too-hot summers, and the raising of son, Herbert and daughter, Patti, Mr. and Mrs. Shura still cherished the hope that eventually, some glorious day, they would come to California to live where they would at long last have time for hobbies, be able to putter in a garden and enjoy the sunshine by day and the cool evenings on the Pacific.

Their dream was nurtured by five different vacation trips to the West Coast and each time they became more sure that for them California would be the end of the trail. In Riverside, just outside of Chicago, they lived in a section of winding streets, tree shaded, but in a formal English stone house. This type of house was a far cry from the casual, informal kind of California ranch house that the whole family admired. But on the trips to California, Mrs. Shura would pick up a nice piece of furniture of the farmhouse type, a lovely old bottle, a bit of Mexican glass which would someday be right at home in the West along with everything else she had gathered.

As she puts it, she couldn't do anything about the cold English exterior of her Middle Western house, but she refused to carry that kind of living inside. She collected comfortable informal things and made a warm, hospitable ranch-house kind of atmosphere. Let cold winds blow, let summer heat pervade the rooms, she was undaunted. The California ranch house of the future got a very good start a long time ago back in Illinois!

Then, at last, the wonderful moment arrived when the Shuras were to retire from the hectic life and come to California. At this point, young Patti, in high school, felt it was nothing less than tragic to have her parents haul her away from her friends to the hinterlands. Of course, now she loves California and, engaged to a young Californian, expects to live there the rest of her life.

The Shuras were smart. They did not rush out and buy the first ranch house they saw or the first lot that the avid realtors showed them. They had waited fifteen years and they could afford to take their time and be sure they made the right decision.

Finally, they decided on a beautiful site in Encino. Partly because in that charming little community the streets are winding and there are lovely trees which reminded them of Riverside. And also, because the whole area was so beautifully suited to the informal kind of ranch house they had always wanted.

Rolling hills, gently climbing to make beautiful patterns against the sky, gnarled old walnut trees, quiet countryside only a short distance from the university where Patti was enrolled and close to the city, without its turmoil. No wonder they felt that the site they bought was just about perfect.

With the help of architects Don Ayres and Herbert Fiege the Shura family achieved exactly the kind of plan and ranch-house architecture they had dreamed of for fifteen years. Since Mr. Shura, long active in business, had already discovered that the retired life could sometimes be a little dull, he decided to sub-contract the house and be on the job daily. It was a new and interesting experience for him.

The house is set above the road on a level plot of ground with the hills sloping gently up behind it. In front of the long low barn-red house is an old grove of walnut trees. The paved brick terrace commands a lovely view of the grove and distant vistas of San Fernando Valley. All main rooms are, therefore, oriented to this lovely panorama.

In modern fashion the garage is attached to the house, but its doors open at the back to a spacious motor court. This makes the house look much longer and larger from the front than it actually is, yet the plan is thoroughly functional for it is but a few steps from the car to the back door.

Built of redwood painted barn red with white trim, the house has a cedar-shake roof and a long, bricked, and covered porch adjacent to a spacious paved terrace for the outdoor living the Shuras dreamed of for fifteen years. On this long porch, there are two Dutch doors, one leading into living room and giving easy circulation to the bedroom wing and one opening to the corner of the dining room adjacent to the kitchen. It's easy with this arrangement to serve meals on the terrace since everything is within reach.

Note that opposite the main entrance door into the living room is another door giving access to a small paved terrace at the back of the house, so any part of the house is easily accessible to outdoor living—good planning for country living. The Shuras were bound too long by bad weather in the Middle West, so now they have taken advantage of every little sun please Turn to page 100

Deep flounce decorates windows of living room and dining room, which open onto porch. Colorful small print in many shades blends in beautifully with the braided carpeting. A fine little house, typical of the Northwest where lumber is plentiful, here is an all-frame-construction beauty, designed by Winnifred L. Ceis, and built by Philip L. Ceis for $8,500. The porch, carport, four rooms, and bath are all closely knit together in a compact unit. Dining area, kitchen and utility room are combined into one large room, with fixtures providing the separation. In only 720 square feet of space, Mr. Ceis has managed to produce maximum efficiency.

The house is built on a concrete slab placed on 12 inches of gravel fill. Asphalt tile throughout is cemented to the slab. Knotty pine is used for most of the interior facing; wood sheathing and cedar facing applied vertically to the exterior and left in natural color. The utility portion of the kitchen has double laundry trays, hot water heater, and automatic washer. Roof surfaces are covered with a built-up tar and gravel roof. The house is heated with six electric heaters, distributed one to a room, except in the living room, which has two to insure balanced warmth throughout.

This little place, although quite small, presents quite a formidable front toward the street. One of the main reasons for this is the continuous slope of the roof over the porch, house and carport, which gives the impression of unusual width. Also, the treatment of windows and wood surfaces is awfully good for a small house. The windows are large and the wood surfaces broad, and this combined with the low sweeping roof and the vertical facing goes a long way toward producing a good-looking house. Mr. Ceis was able to do an exceptionally fine job in this case for only $8,500.

GOOD FAMILY LIVING IN 1037 SQUARE FEET

uring the war years, young Robert Heuel and his wife dreamed of the house they would build when the constant moves from one-room apartments, shacks, and hotel accommodations were behind them. They both agreed on the fact that the house would be modern in character, small, and informal.

And here is the dream come true. This house is just a little over a thousand square feet in area—1,037 to be exact. And it not only has a spacious living-dining area, but also three bedrooms, a wonderfully efficient and attractive kitchen, and a furnace-laundry room on the first floor. No basement, contrary to average Midwestern methods of building. Since Robert Heuel is a commercial artist and designer, he planned his own house for his way of living. But it looks like pretty good living for any young family with a couple of children. And there is plenty of emphasis on outdoor living and play area for the two lively little boys. Anyone with children can appreciate this.

Their lot was a real find. It is 105 by 172 feet, on the outskirts of a little town within easy commuting distance of Milwaukee. There are lovely old white oaks, red oaks, and hickory trees on it, so the little house is set off by a wooded grove with plenty of space for two little boys to enjoy freedom.

Young Heuel chose channel-shaped concrete blocks which are light in weight for garage and back portions of his house, since this was a good basic material to withstand Wisconsin winters and to give good insulation value against both cold and heat. And the foundation is a concrete slab—despite the generally PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 94

"Before" picture shows all the angles, most of them bad, which confronted Wilson Coles when he took on the job of doing over this apartment. Landlord said "no" to structural changes, so color was used to cover a multitude of architectural sins

Color is the key in A Flat

ROGER STURTEVANT

Door in recess shown in "before" picture at left was unused. With it blanked out by Venetian blind and drapery, looks like a window, gives space for chest

t took wily work on the part of decorator Wilson Coles to make two abject rooms in a San Francisco flat into one colorful living room. With all structural changes taboo, he could make only the simplest deletions. The dangling chandeliers and the picture molding, of which there was plenty, could be removed-and that was that! But carte blanche in the matter of paint gave him full scope for his specialty, color-and he took full advantage of it.

He used it first to obliterate all the breaks and angles in the bay window and all the "busyness" of the wall. They got a good heavy coat of rich brown paint, as did the Murphy bed. To make the wall bed a decorative asset, a single wide shelf at the top took the place of the two bracket feet, plain wide boards cover the original fancy molding around the mirror. Heavily glazed with white wax, they emphasize the colors reflected from other parts of the room. Some wall areas are painted russet yellow, a happy foil to the deep brown and a space-making color. The other walls are beige, blending with the russet and yellow.

Wall-to-wall carpeting in a soft brown is used in both rooms to create one solid plane of color under foot. Moderately scaled furniture skillfully repeats colors and patterns. Accent colors are used sparingly but effectively, not to attract attention to themselves, but to heighten interest in colors around them. From floor to ceiling, through color these two small rooms become one spacious unit.

Small-scaled, clean-lined furnishings do their part in the transformation. But it's color on the walls that blots out the ugly and eye-distracting breaks and angles. The unbroken expanse of warm-toned floor covering adds to space

There's a Murphy bed behind that mirror. A few plain boards and paint job made a decorative focal point out of an eyesore. It reflects the play of color and pattern so skillfully handled to bring two rooms together, presents a pleasant picture to all who enter

Place and Show

The big story in this setting is its versatility. First of all it is decidedly June-like, with its burgeoning pinks and rich, redolent roses presiding over a gathering of Spode, cinnamoncolored glassware, silver, and gold. Then too, the bowl in which the flowers are shown has many uses. It is a 13-inch lily pond shape which can be used for floating, say, a few gardenias. Or, as we've done it, candles and larger flowers with various length stems will fit beautifully. At other times you have a tray for canapés or snacks. You'll see in the smaller pictures that the set includes the large dish, a 5-inch crystal candle block, six individual candle holders. Keep your roses well watered until the minute you start working with them-you know what happens otherwise. These particular roses are the garden type.

Even the table cloth had roses on its mind-it's a dusty rose linen scalloped in gray. "Rose Briar" plates are delicately fluted to accentuate gracefully a dainty wreath of roses. A modern Danish influence shows up in the sterling silver bowl and sandwich tray, with hand-wrought and hand-chased borders. Salad or dessert plates are of a wonderful shade of cinnamon in "Horizon" design—something new and different. Take a real good look at the silver—departure in sterling flatware. With a high-luster finish, the rose design at the tip of the handle has a center of 14-karat solid gold inlay. This is a perfectly exquisite pattern, and will fit like a glove with either traditional or modern company.

There's something eternally wonderful about roses and candlelight—perhaps that's why so many poets poetize about them—it is certainly the reason we chose them for our June setting.

here isn't a little boy or girl we know who wouldn't be tickled to death to have one or the other of these rooms for his or her very own. As far as the fundamentals are concerned, these two shown are not much different from just any bedroom, but by just using a little imagination and, incidentally, some AMERICAN HOME patterns, we've put them practically in a class by themselves.

The room below is for a rough, tough, straight-shooting son of the Lone Ranger. The Ranger and his horse, Silver, gallop all over the wallpaper, and simple, strong prebuilt knotty-pine furniture helps the western feeling along. Wears well, too, as does the linoleum on the floor. The denim bedspread will take a beating and stand up under it, which any mother will appreciate.

Nursery stories come to life in the little girl's room on the opposite page. The walls in this case are plain, since our "Storyteller" patterns painted on "unpainted" department-store furniture, and printed in Glosheen draperies and bedskirt, dominate the scheme. Rug is soft cotton, spread is of Koroseal plastic, which only needs cleaning with a damp cloth. Adorable pictures of childhood characters complement the entire picture. It's the kind of room in which any little girl could rule over her favorite subjects with the greatest of pleasure. DETAILS OF THESE ROOMS ON PAGE 115 aithful though they may be, table linens eventually reach a point where they are no longer the crisp, lovely fabrics they once were! Inquiries from homemakers started us thinking about the possibilities of restoring all kinds of linens. After extensive tests in our home equipment laboratory, we found that proper procedures with good all-purpose dye will give you linens gay and bright, linens guaranteed to make any table proud! The popular trend toward colored cloths gave us every opportunity to use our imaginations in vivid Mexican colors and in pastels as well. Even though our original idea was to find a way to make worn linens crisp and usable, our tests were so successful in achieving specific colors to match china patterns, that we'd like to pass along to you who may be budget-wise a real money-saving idea. Colored cloths usually are more expensive, so why not buy inexpensive white cloths, then dye them for the occasion-showers, holidays, anniversaries-or to match each of your china patterns! Adds a sparkle that the traditional white cloth may not give. Check this page and page 60 for tips to make the dyeing job easier-and to obtain the more unusual colors follow the manufacturer's chart for combining standard colors in correct proportion.

To dissolve dye so linens won't be streaked, place package of dye in enamel pan, then dissolve with boiling water. Pour into tub through cheesecloth placed over large strainer

Try this tip to get the exact color you want. Secure 4 x 6-in. sample with safety pin to corner of cloth you are dyeing. Place both the cloth and sample into the dye bath, making sure they are submerged

Beef stock in these

Just about everyone likes the good taste of beef. Here are seven soups, made with beef stock or with beef prominent.

BEEF NOODLE: Deep-flavored beef stock, pieces of beef, egg noodles.

BOUILLON: (Beef Broth) A clear broth delightfully flavored with vegetables.

CONSOMMÉ: Beef broth, accented with tomato, celery, carrots, herbs, and strained to a clear amber.

OX TAIL: Good beef stock, meaty ox tail joints, barley and vegetables. This is a robust, English-style soup.

VEGETABLE: Lots of different garden vegetables in a full-bodied beef stock.

VEGETABLE-BEEF: Vegetables, barley, tender pieces of beef, in a rich beef stock. A "square-meal" soup!

SOUPS Which are your favorites? Which ones are new to you? Which would you like to try next?

America is becoming more and more a souploving nation. Indeed, a recent U.S. survey shows that every day 27 million people eat soup for lunch. With soup being served so frequently, more and more different soups are being triedsuch as beef, clam chowder and many others. Each, of course, differs in recipe, in ingredients and in cookery-to vary your meals delightfully. Yes, soup's a delicious, nourishing and economical way to feed your family well. You can "soup-shop" right here, on this page.

Soups with a Chicken Stock

rour soups with but a single thought-to give you the fine flavor of chicken you like so well: one with rice, one with vegetables, one with noodles, and one with cream.

CHICKEN with RICE: Chicken-rich broth, fluffy rice, tender pieces of chicken. A great allthe-family soup.

CREAM of CHICKEN (Illustrated below)

CHICKEN NOODLE: Hearty chicken broth, golden egg noodles, pieces of chicken. A popular "best-seller".

Other thick and hearty soups

You'll choose one of these when you're seeking a delicious, substantial, yet different soup.

BEAN with BACON: An old-fashioned thick bean soup, plump beans, flavored with bacon. A hearty "he-man" soup.

CLAM CHOWDER (Illustrated above)

PEPPER POT: Pieces of meat, macaroni, vegetables, and substantial meat stock make this fine Early American-type soup.

SCOTCH BROTH: A hearty main-dish soup, prepared with choice mutton, barley and vegetables. A soup-not a broth!

Principally vegetable

Each of these seven soups owes its special goodness to one or more vegetables, as its main ingredient. Soups here will help you when you're planning meatless meals.

CREAM of ASPARAGUS: A smooth purée of choice fresh asparagus, and creamery butter, with tender asparagus tips.

BLACK BEAN: Delicious purée of fine black beans, expertly seasoned. Once enjoyed only at famous restaurants.

CREAM of CELERY: Crisp garden celery, extraheavy whipping cream, delicate cuts of celery.

CREAM of MUSHROOM: Cultivated mushrooms blended with extra-heavy whipping cream; mushroom pieces.

GREEN PEA (Illustrated in the menu below)

TOMATO: America's favorite soup. Luscious tomatoes, creamery butter, gentle seasoning.

VEGETARIAN VEGETABLE: A fine, flavorful vegetable soup, luscious garden vegetables. mingled in a delightful vegetable broth.

How Now Brown Cow?

ur bovine friend with the big brown eyes and the mournful moo would cause an awful lot of travail if she ever disappeared from the face of the earth. No more cream, butter, milk, cheese—and, cruel blow to the slimmers, no more yoghurt. Considering that we use up about fifty-seven billion quarts of milk a year, produced by twenty-five million bossies, let's not contemplate such a supposition, but concentrate rather on the delight and healthful nourishment we derive from the dairy.

Everything shown here has some form of dairy product in it: cream of cheese soup, smooth in content, sharp in taste; cucumbers in sour cream, one thing we generally help ourselves to until we feel guilty; a cottage cheese and aspic salad that is a honey to present to your guests, and doesn't cause half as much trouble to make as you'd think; veal and noodles all sauced up with good flavors and sour cream to boot; and a buttermilk pie, the kind our mother used to put out on the porch to cool, warning us to "touch it and I'll tan you"—knowing there wasn't a character strong enough to resist it.

Milk is the star performer. It is practically a perfect food as it is, starts the newborn off to a healthy life and keeps its importance through our entire span. It's just as necessary for adults as for children, although we're apt to forget it when other liquids begin to wean us away from the milk habit. You can buy it raw, pasteurized, homogenized, or with Vitamin-D. Buttermilk is made of butter liquid or of souring culture added to fat-free milk. There are also two kinds of canned milk—evaporated and condensed.

Butter has been in use for four thousand years and we hope it sticks around. Even the Greeks had a word for it—boutyron. For a long time it was used as a cosmetic, healing ointment, lamp oil, and hair pomade—but today we've got it where we want it—right on the table. Keep it cold, clean, and covered.

Cheese is practically a national pastime by now—in fact, you can start almost as good an argument about cheeses as about politics. Some like them strong, others leave the room when Liederkranz breezes in—but everyone eats cheese in some form or other. And as for sour cream, it tastes so rich, adds so much more to anything it touches, we're surprised that it isn't too fattening. As far as we've discovered, the things which taste best usually hang on your hips.

Ice cream gets the last paragraph here, but it's practically the first word a child learns—thereby showing the child's good sense. It's one thing the world has in common—even Nero ate it—never loses its value as a dessert, a party essential, a nourishing friend any time of the day. And on such a sweet note we shall end.

Governor Dewey examines one of the calves on his dairy farm

A Most Distinguished Milkman

Thomas E. Dewey, Governor of New York, discovered his love of dairy farming when as a 16-year-old boy he spent a summer pitching hay and milking cows on a Michigan farm. Now Governor of one of the leading dairy-product states in the country, he has a dairy farm of his own in Pawling, where he works with his two sons pitching hay, milking cows, and running the tractors. This is his real home, and every time he gets the chance you'll find him close to the earth, a farmer in truth as well as in name.

The farm includes about 100 head of cattle, most of which are Holstein with a few Guernsey and Brown Swiss included to raise the butter-fat content. They average about 67,000 pounds of milk per cow per year, and half-a-million pounds of milk a year are shipped from the Dewey farm for commercial distribution in New York City. Since the Governor's main interest lies in furthering efficiency and cost-cutting processes among small dairy farmers, he gets a lot of real satisfaction out of the fact that his own farm operates on a profit basis. Very often Farmer Dewey can be seen discussing new methods with neighboring small dairy farmers.

When asked about some of the experiments he has conducted on his farm, the Governor gets enthusiastic about the projects which he fostered. One was the introduction of pen-stabling, where one man operates milking machines for four cows at one time.

Not all of the milk on the Dewey farm finds its way to the big city, however. The Governor and his family are enthusiastic milk drinkers, and it is also used in many of their family recipes, two of which are printed on the following page. It's a far cry from the Governor's office to the bucolic life of a farmer, but Governor Dewey has successfully combined these two careers, and we are glad to introduce him to AMERICAN HOME readers this month.

a reluctant chef-and the recipe here, the secret I pried out of her! We had been shopping and looking at her friend Margaret Derby's house (and what a love of a house! On our July cover and inside too-pink and pretty as life). We wound up in the Weston den, kicked our shoes off and bogged down. By eight o'clock, too tired to pull ourselves together and go out, Irene quickly put together a body-building dinner of steak and "those" potatoes. How, how, cried I, such potatoes outside a restaurant and why "those" potatoes? Well, it seems that occasionally she and Lee go to the desert and in their favorite eating place there order a steak and "those" potatoes. They have no name-everybody knows what "those" potatoes are-and trust Irene to ferret out the way they're done! There are many things, alas, I cannot cook to my own satisfaction. Hashed browns headed that list. It seems like I'd tried every recipe, every hint ever printed on good hashed browns at home-and gave up trying. Loving them though I do, I reconciled myself to eating them only when I ate out. Note past tense! Not even Christ Cella can do them betterand believe me that's good.

SOME KIND FANS chuckled with delight over my March description of a typical caterer's wedding buffet-lukewarm, pasty looking chicken à la king and watery peas-likewise lukewarm. Well, here's another in that same category-most chicken salad, and that goes for restaurant or home served. The spurned leftovers, 80 per cent celery, and thinned-out mayonnaise-you know what I'm talking about. Well, ma'am, I recant every blasphemous thing I've ever said about chicken salad-and so will you, once you've eaten Vera's. It's not leftover ingredients, it's not insipid tasting-it's inspired, A spécialité of hers and clamored for by man and gal.

"MIKE" AND RANDY are two of my most favorite people in the world. I am never too busy or too work weary to plan time out with them. You know her as Ethel McCall Head. Randy is her husband. Chalfant R. Head-architecture his profession as well as his hobby. I guess Randy would be a pretty rich fellow, did he not spend so much time on youngsters who crave a home above all else. A born missionary is Randy-and who would reform a good missionary? Randy is a good cook in his own right-but we've so much to catch up on that when I'm there, Randy will come out of his drafting room, whip up the very best creamy salad dressing I-or you ever ate, and turn the rest over to Mike, who can cook with her left hand alone better than most can cook full time with all hands. In their little modern house (published in THE AMERICAN HOME, of course!) a pass-through and an open door makes the kitchen-and Mike the cook-part and parcel of our living room conversations. In no time at all down goes the partition, slam bangs the door, soup's on, and no better eating anywhere. The pineapple cheese pie is hers, one of many good things she has cooked for me. Try this one and then we'll ask for more-shall we?

ANNE IRWIN, sportswear buyer for the Boston Store in Milwaukee, has more than a local reputation as a good cook -and this recipe of hers is a quickie she can make up the night before a party. Working girl or no, any good appetizer that can be made in advance of a party is a mighty handy recipe to have—and here's a really good one that takes care of a large and hungry group. If you don't like it quite so richly bland, add some chopped green pepper and chopped parsley to the cheeses before rolling it. It's good both ways and remember, the richer it is, the less they'll eat-and sometimes that's very good indeed!

A profitable trip, wouldn't you say? Perhaps a better title than "Good Victuals from Good Friends" would have been "Eating My Way Across the Country," but both are absolute truth-so help my figure! RECIPES ON PAGE 64 easy-clean Caloric Gas Range saves work and shortens my kitchen hours. It is porcelain enamel inside and out with the completely removable broiler that washes in the sink like a dish.

IT'S AUTOMATIC - Automatic thermostat keeps the oven at just the temperature I set. And my oven clock control gives me a carefree afternoon while my Caloric automatically cooks a perfect oven meal.

COOKING IS FASTER-I find that Flavor-Saver Dual Burners instantly give me just the heat I want for boiling, frying, simmering or keeping food warm until serving. And there's no lingering heat to cause potshifting or pot-watching.

SO COMPLETELY DEPENDABLE - I enjoy the dependable way my Caloric works. And the Caloric people guarantee to replace burners and door springs for the life of my range.

How to Dye Heavenly

When color of fabric in dyeing solution looks three to four shades darker than desired color, use tongs to bring corner with pinned sample to surface. Unpin sample. Put cloth back in dye until test is finished

Rinse sample in cold water until water is clear, then pat between paper towels. Press until dry. (Paper toweling protects ironing table cover from staining.) If sample is too light, continue dyeing fabric until desired shade is obtained

Another way to avoid streaking-do not place fabric under running water to set the dve. Fill the sink with cold water, then dip cloth evenly through water. Repeat this dipping until water is completely clear

Our Menu Maker does everything

A bsolutely the last word in clean, convenient storage for your recipes. Everything at your fingertips instantly. Made of strong, heavy steel, the box comes in either black and white or red and white. Compact and free from bulk, it's only six inches by eleven inches, yet you can file 1,000 recipes in it with ease! Set it on your pantry shelf or your kitchen counter top. Lift the lid, there are all your favorites classified from appetizers to vegetables, with additional indices for menus and your own specialties.

An added feature is a helpful weights and measures table, which can be mounted on the inside of the Menu Maker cover and will always be in view for ready reference and information. With the Menu Maker comes an augmented and newly organized set of stiff, preprinted index cards—45 of them—making your new Menu Maker fingertip convenient and every recipe instantly available. Also included without additional cost is a sample supply of specially designed cellophane envelopes into which you can place each recipe to keep it spotless while in use. These envelopes are waterproof and greaseproof. They also make for easier filing and our readers have purchased more than 18 million of them. Priced at only $2.00, the Menu Maker will pay for itself by helping the busy housewife plan her meals in advance and buy foodstuffs more efficiently and economically.

 Anne Irwin's "first call" oz. Roquefort cheese pkgs. cream cheese oz. cheddar cheese (soft)

Juice of one onion 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce 1/2 lb. pecan meats

Mix all ingredients, except pecans, with electric mixer. Add half the pecans, shaved fine. Form into ball, place in small bowl which has been lined with waxed paper. Let stand in refrigerator overnight.

Remove cheese ball from refrigerator an hour and a half before serving. With rolling pin crush remainder of pecans between layers of waxed paper and add about two tablespoons chopped parsley. Roll cheese ball in this, completely covering the outside. Garnish with chopped parsley.

hashed browns— Weston style

Serves 4

Pare 2 large baking potatoes. Leave whole for the moment. Place medium-sized heavy skillet over fire. Add 1 tbs. bacon or ham fat. Tip skillet so that fat covers entire bottom of pan. While skillet is getting good and hot, shred potatoes on medium flat grater. Place immediately in hot skillet, and pepper to taste. Turn fire up slightly and cover. When butter is melted, remove cover. Move skillet around occasionally for even browning. When good and brown underneath, turn with a long spatula, as you would a pancake. Brown other side. Allow 10-15 min. total time. Garnish with parsley and sprinkle chopped chives over top. Caution! If they cook too long they become soggy. (I potato cooked in a 6-inch skillet is enough for 2 people.) turn heat to very low. Dot butter over entire surface of potatoes, salt and

Irene's chicken piquante

Serves 6

1 hen or 2 fryers—cut up—roll in flour—fast fry until brown.
Lift from frying pan into large stewing kettle and cover with cold water,
Add: 1 large onion

(chopped or cut up fine) green pepper 1 clove garlic cup celery

1/2 lemon-rind and all

Pepper Dash of cayenne

1 bay leaf

If one desires to be really elegant, an extra chicken breast may be added to make more white meat.

Simmer until meat will fall from bones (1 hour to 1½ hour). Lift chicken from liquid into separate bowl. Take out bay leaf, lemon, and discard. When chicken is cool enough to handle, remove from bones, cut into bite-sized pieces, and return to separate bowl. When liquid is cool, place in refrigerator. Skim off grease. When ready to serve, heat liquid and thicken to desired consistency (2 tbs. flour to 1 cup liquid). Add chicken and 1 can sliced mushrooms (liquid too, if desired). Serve from tureen over boiled white rice. Have a side dish of finely chopped parsley to sprinkle over all. Crusty French bread, a green salad, and ripe olives complement this and make it an ideal "fork" supper.

Her husband's "scare" saved Peg's floors from ugly wear!

"Look, Peg!" Her husband pointed to worn spots in the doorway. "We'd better do something quick. It will cost a fortune to refinish our floors."

"They're looking worse all the time," Peg told a neighbor the next day. "But look at the wear they get. No wonder our floors are getting so shabby."

"It's not too late to save them," Peg's friend said. "Try waxing your floors with real wax. Then wax will take the wear, not the finish underneath."

can buy one for $44.50.

"Look at 'em now!" Peg bragged later. Thanks to genuine Johnson's Wax her floors are lovely—and they'll stay lovely—never need costly refinishing.

Your floors, too, deserve the gleaming protection that genuine wax gives!*

Don't wait. Delay may prove costly. Today's the day to begin protecting your floors from wear with genuine Johnson's Wax.

It takes a little more time to apply genuine Johnson's Polishing Wax than self polishing waxes. But it gives longer-lasting protection, so waxings are many months apart.

And waxed floors are really easy to keep clean—much easier than carpeted floors. A dry mop whisks dust away.

Genuine Johnson's Wax comes in two forms—Paste and Liquid. Many people like Paste, because it's highly concentrated. Liquid is especially easy to use, and dry cleans floors as it waxes. Both give your floors real wax beauty and protection. Use either (or both) for the loveliest floors your home ever had. New cellulose sponge mop means you need not use high stepladder when washing tile to the ceiling or washing high cabinets. Mop has a self-wringing attachment; can be used for thorough rinsing, too

Paste wax gives a wonderfully hard, durable finish to counter tops which receive lots of wear. For easy application, electric floor polisher can be used, then buffing pads added to give that lovely high luster

Because cream wax is so effective in removing dirt, Venetian blinds are a perfect place to use it—the wax dries fast, then can be polished with just a light touch. Non-oily, cream wax gives coating which sheds dust

Keep small throw rugs from slipping while you vacuum! Try running vacuum cleaner crosswise over rug. Some manufacturers have two-speed motor on their cleaners, low speed designed to overcome the slipping problem

Before scrubbing linoleum floors, floor brush attachment for your vacuum cleaner picks up particles of dust and lint as if by magic. Ample length for ease in using can be obtained by joining the wands in attachment set

Coat of varnish sprayed over painted metal screens will keep paint from peeling and screens' eventually rusting. Because the flow from spray attachment is accurately controlled, a professional finish is always obtained

The clean-up job after a session at the sewing machine can be a real headache! New feature on carpet sweeper gives spring-action which adjusts to thickness of carpet, means no bearing down to pick up clinging threads

Training in homemaking starts at an early age. Little ones can be entertained as well as educated with new miniature sweeper on the market—does a full-sized job with same adjusting brush action as the big one

Water-soluble wax gives a brilliant polish and durable protection to fiber rugs. Because it allows air to pass freely through rug fibers, life of rug is lengthened. Use of wax applicator spreads wax more evenly and easily use. Only ten of us were interested in a certain concentrated plant food for use in liquid form which had given good results in my garden and for which I had been paying $1.00 a pound. We bought a 100-lb. drum of it (for $19), divided it with the help of a baby scale, and the price per pound for each of us dropped to 19 cents!

Our method of purchase is simple. Whichever neighbor can buy the best product at the fairest price does. The item remains in basement or garage of the last user. If I used the roller last, last fall, it would be my responsibility over winter. A chart noting the present location of each item is posted in the basement of the most centrally located house. We, too, have a "Security Commission," which is actually an "out-of-commission" department. If anything needs mechanical repair work, our mechanic member or our electrical engineer does it. And one of us has access to brazing and welding equipment if needed.

But efficient co-operative buying is not all we get. In a casual, but truly helpful way we have co-operative education and manpower, too. By education. I mean little short cuts and the know-how that some of us impart to others. We decided, for example, that there should be a wheelbarrow in every basement, so one man offered to show the others, during the winter, how he had made one. In a short year my husband has learned, in that way, some carpentry, some masonry, and considerable general repairing.

When extra manpower is required for special jobs, it is always voluntary, never drafted. During our first summer in our new homes, we all developed what one wife called "patio fever." Making the patios was clearly a job to be done in unison, so vacation weeks were planned well in advance. At the proper time, forms were built in the various yards and when the ready-mix truck of concrete arrived, five earnest men were waiting to shuttle quickly back and forth between truck and each patio site. In two weeks, five patios were finished and we lost little time organizing weekly patio parties. Cementing patios had led to cementing friendships.

When it came to gardening, most of us were as green as the grass we hoped to grow. But that won't last. In coldframes that we'll build (together) we will plant different kinds of seeds. When the seedlings are ready to be set out, we'll swap, thereby eliminating duplication and surpluses; and each will enjoy a variety of plants.

It thrills me to think that, a year ago, we were all strangers. We still go to different churches, hear different languages in our parents' homes. But, when need arises, we couldn't run faster to help our own brother. Truly, we are United Neighbors.

were checked by an even smaller number of realtors, since they are both still knocking on the door.

Big city families will not necessarily generate the greatest demand for each of the essential items. The outlook is best in towns of less than 10,000 population for every home, 10 years hence, to have its own air conditioning and home freezer.

"Only one bathroom?" Mr. Average Home Buyer will ask critically in examining the floor plans for the home of 1960. "And look at all those steps to climb a dozen times a day" his wife will add.

Those reactions will express the demand for two bathrooms and onestory construction. And the average family will be just as insistent, said more than 70 per cent of the experts, that their new home have bigger windows and more insulation, and be located on a larger lot than is currently the practice.

Television, which has changed the living habits of many families and stirred up countless controversies, is stamping its influence on home design, however. One of the experienced realtors. Mrs. Lillian R. Moebus. Brooklyn, reported that despite the trend toward one-story homes, a few families are insisting on second floors to get the children out of range of the television set at night. And Mrs. Moebus offered a special hint to builders: "Stop putting large picture windows on the street, unless that is where the view is. These windows should be placed to suit the scenic location, which usually is in the back."

A separate dining room, for example, will raise eyebrows as much as a potbellied stove does today, in the opinion of two-thirds of the forecasters. And a basement will be an item to take or leave, according to about the same number of realtors. The remaining third, from the cold areas of the country and the largest cities, however, believe that basements will be worth what they will cost in 1960.

Two of the popular features of today's building—flat roofs and fewer partitions—will not revolutionize architectural design for the home a decade from now, but will find little favor, with the trend for fewer partitions still exerting more influence than flat roofs. Fireplaces will be a controversial item, the ultra-neat eliminating it because of its ashes, and the more traditionally minded keeping it because of its warmth—both literal and figurative.

Two-thirds of the realtors agreed that costs would be higher in 1960. The amount of rise "depended on world conditions." But these trends do show that the public is striving for a higher standard of living, is making every effort to insure a greater degree of human freedom, hope, and progress.

How to protect the money you tie up in frozen foods!

When you stock a freezer with food, it represents a lot of money to you . . . too much money to take a chance on losing.

That's why it's important to be especially careful in selecting the food freezer you entrust with the safety of your food.

Everyone knows that you can save money when you buy food in large quantities, or in season when it is plentiful and prices are lower. But what happens to those savings if food is not kept at its prime? Only a truly dependable freezer can keep that food safe.

The Frigidaire Food Freezer is dependable in every way! It is powered by the Meter-Miser, the world's most famous cold-maker. It is made by Frigidaire . . . makers of America's No. 1 refrigerator.

And the Frigidaire Food Freezer will keep food frozen, for months on end, safely, deliciously . . . at low cost. We suggest you remember that when you choose a Food Freezer.

Before: An ugly radiator in the bay window of this middle-aged English-style house. Problem: How to camouflage it without cutting down on the heating?

It's Evading the Issue!

JESSIE WALKER

The issue, in this case, being an ugly radiator set smack in the middle of a bay window in the Martin Sandlers' dining room. An eyesore, yes, but certainly a necessity in the long cold winters of Illinois. How to hide it, or make it less obtrusive without in any degree interfering with its necessary function.

Decorator Marion Heuer, a clever lady sparkling with ideas, was called in by the Sandlers to help redecorate their house. Mrs. Heuer devised this simple but attractive radiator screen made of metal lath on a metal rod framework, trimmed with curlicues at top and bottom. It's completely movable for cleaning.

Shopping for Iris

and purples are valued particularly to give accent and contrast against shrubbery, etc. For more intimate spots seen from close by there are appealing warm shades-bronzy reds, tans, browns; pastel-tinted pinks and creams. And for those seeking oddity or beauty in individual flowers, there are fascinating muted blends, and "plicatas" with a light ground color edged or sanded with deeper hues. Bearded iris are economical, for a single rhizome will form an attractive clump in a few years. For an immediate bold effect, three to five rhizomes of a variety should be planted. Hence it is advisable to invest in just a few varieties at a time in your favorite colors. It hardly pays to acquire older varieties-least of all the excess from your neighbors' gardens! Progress in hybridizing has been so rapid that any variety more than ten years old is surpassed by available new ones. Many general nursery catalogues list bearded iris, but unfortunately, in many cases, offer the older kinds. To obtain the newest and best, order from an iris specialist; of these there are many.

Next in importance, in our opinion, are the Siberians. Their small but graceful, clear-colored flowers on slender stems combine beautifully with other perennials that bloom at the same time, particularly Oriental poppies. They are especially stunning planted en masse or as a long, hedgelike border. Like other perennials with long, fibrous roots, these iris should be bought as small clumps rather than single divisions which take some time to make a representative showing. However, once established, they multiply rapidly and can be left alone for from six to eight years. They are virtually free from diseases and pests (even the destructive iris borer) and thrive equally well in dry or moist spots. Like the tall bearded kinds, they are best obtained from specialists because the general nursery trade seldom stocks the most desirable varieties.

For rich, moist soil, especially if the garden includes a brook, pool, or swampy spot, nothing surpasses the Kaempferi iris which, with their large, flat, saucerlike blooms opening in late June and early July, lengthen the iris season. While their color range is not nearly that of the tall bearded, theirs is an exotic beauty, frequently enhanced by the veining and mottling of the flowers, which are so unlike the bearded type that they even tend to attract a different kind of fancier. Heretofore, they have been less widely grown than their beauty merits and their advocates recommend, largely because the sources of supply have been so meager that the average person has found them hard to get. in them, wider distribution of a larger selection should follow. Many gardens could use bulbous iris to good advantage. Both Dutch and English varieties produce fine cut flowers for both home and show arrangements. They can be planted much like tulips or daffodils in the mixed border or in round or oval groups, but being primarily useful for cutting, they are best handled with that in mind and grown like gladiolus—in rows in the vegetable or cutting garden. The bulbous, dwarf Iris reticulata, on the other hand, is a charming subject for rock gardens and early spring borders. Most bulbous iris are easy to obtain, being listed generously in the catalogues of seed stores and dealers in bulbs of all kinds.

Spuria iris (a species name with no "spurious" or false implication) are a type seldom seen in gardens though useful where moist, rich soil abounds. They grow from rhizomes, but their flowers closely

Division and replanting of old clumps (principal chore in iris growing) is done in the quiet midsummer period, after flowering ends. Finger points to rhizome of this husky 2year-old clump. Note fine root mass development

The same clump divided into six or eight strong, new plants, each with a piece of rhizome and some healthy roots. Old leaves have been cut back to "fans"; reduced surface lessens evaporation while new plant gets established

Prepare new site a week or more in advance by digging in plant food. After soil settles, make two holes with ridge between, and set plant on it with roots spread out and downward. For bearded iris, be sure there is good drainage

Rhizome is at proper depth and roots are well spread out. Now fill with enough soil to cover just to base of leaves. Water to settle soil and fill any cavities; add more soil if necessary. Water occasionally until new leaf growth starts resemble those of the English and Dutch bulbous kinds except that they are much larger and have very tall stems. Others not well known are the various crested iris which nevertheless, are good subjects for naturalistic plantings in partial shade. Their blossoms, mostly from light lavender-blue to white, have a wildflower "feeling." The most important species in this group are I, tectorum, which gives a charming woodland touch when scattered through glades and along partially shaded banks; I. cristata, better adapted for the perennial border, and the fragile-looking little I. gracilipes, suitable for rock gardens.

Shopping for Iris

Our common blue flag (I. versicolor), widely distributed, usually in swamps, is perhaps the best known of the so called beardless kinds, but it does not compare in beauty with the many wild, southern swamp-land species and their countless hybrids, both natural and man-made. All the beardless types lend themselves to graceful flower arrangements, but are not effective in garden enclosures. They need wilder, swampy conditions in order to do themselves full justice.

Practically all kinds of iris are planted in midsummer or early fall, but it is best to place orders well in advance to insure early delivery and cream-of-the-crop roots. Before ordering iris of any type, do three things: (1) choose a suitable location for each kind, remembering that the majority prefer full sun; (2) study, during iris season, in gardens of fanciers and hybridizers, the many types and varieties to be had; and (3) select the kinds you can afford in the colors you prefer.

Most iris are planted shallowlyjust deep enough so their rhizomes or crowns are covered flush with the ground surface; but prepare enough space-in breadth and depth-so their fibrous roots can be spread out. The best type of soil depends upon the kind of iris to be grown, as already noted. All kinds will benefit from the addition to the soil of a certain amount of humus or organic matter, though bearded iris need less than the others. As a rule, fertilizer should be added only when the soil is being prepared. At that time, my preference is a little bonemeal or superphosphate.

Bearded iris should be lifted, divided, and re-set every two or three years. Bulbous iris should be harvested and replanted like tulips, every year or two. The other types can remain undisturbed for up to ten years, depending upon the vigor of their growth and the time it takes them to become too crowded to flower well.

To prevent iris-borer injury (which afflicts mainly the tall bearded types). dust or spray with DDT or rotenone insecticides at about ten-day intervals from mid-April until blooming time.

R. M. ROSS

Enjoy your lunch at the beach without worrying about getting sand in it. Simply take an old card table, remove the top if it's in very bad shape. Otherwise leave it on

Measure down 1 ft. from top of leg, saw off what remains. Use this sawed-off piece to measure length of the other three legs. Place leg against something solid while sawing Place frame on piece of plywood and mark off section to fit top of frame. Place plywood on solid footing and carefully saw the top piece for the table, following outline

Cover plywood with oilcloth if you care to, paint legs and frame if needed. When dry, nail covered top onto frame with thin brads, and it's done. You have a fine table for all your outings, low enough for little ones to reach easily, collapsible and portable form design above it. The ceiling is white to match the louvered doors and Betty MacMurray found a handsome modern-type ceiling lamp hanging low over the table to replace the ugly fixture originally in this room.

Draperies are the same white desertcloth as was used in the living room. Four Eames chairs with metal legs. two in natural wood and two in black lacquer were purchased and the table -why bring that up? Well, it's a makeshift for the moment, an old kitchen table that Bill painted terra cotta to match the wall. He is eventually going to build a handsome modern table which their good friend and professional advisor, Betty Mac-Murray will design for him.

In the den which was to be Bill's work place for the night work always a part of a writer's life, Betty, the decorator, designed a desk with shelves which Bill built himself. Conceived on the same principle as everything else in the house, it can move to any room in the eventual dream house and not be out of place.

In spite of the fact that Bill never had more than a nodding friendship with a hammer, the desk is very successful, and Bill is rightfully proud of his work. Built of 5/8-inch birchveneered plywood which cost about $27.00, Bill spent all of one dollar for a single chrome leg and about two dollars for finish materials. The desk fits into the corner with a diagonal slant to the front. Hung on the wall overhead is a bookcase and under it are compartments for paper, carbons, and envelopes.

Such a desk can be easily taken from its present position to be moved to the future house and will no doubt make an excellent study desk for young Susan, now 21 months old or little Nancy, but three months, when they reach the age for poring over geometry problems and such!

The Frougs wisely felt that there was little need for spending money "tricking up" the nursery. It is a functional place. But Betty Mac-Murray picked a warm yellow for the walls to make it a cheerful spot for the children. Then, she couldn't resist painting a gay little mural on the wall by Susan's crib.

In the master bedroom, the walls were painted a deep blue. A very good-looking modern wallpaper was used only on the one wall behind the bed. The draperies and the bedspread for this room are yet to come. for Bill and Betty want to get something good which will last for years instead of trying to finish it cheaply only for effect. And wise young people they are, making the right start.

With the advent of young Nancy on New Year's Eve, Bill began to feel that the den was hardly a quiet spot for the breadwinner of the family. It is so placed that it is a passageway between bedrooms and kitchen (in the modern house circulation will be considered to avoid such bottlenecks).

Since the young Frougs want at least three children, and may be in the same little house during this period of young offspring, Bill decided to do something about his work room. He called an architect friend (remember Bill and Betty are great believers in professional advice) to ask if it were possible to build a room on the back where the writer could be insulated from the family.

After careful study of the problem, the architect felt that for the dollars involved it would be a poor investment. For a time Bill continued to work on week ends in the den, but with Susan toddling about, play pens and all the paraphernalia of the young underfoot, it was hard on the whole family and they all showed it.

Now up to date, Bill had only produced one simple bookcase, the desk and recently the great masterpiece of the big couch for the living room. However, undaunted, with the aid of a helpful neighbor, Bill converted one section of his two-car garage into a study for himself.

He only spent $135.00! Celotex and plywood did the trick. The desk, proving it was a handy movable piece of furniture, moved out to the new study. The love seat moved into the den which can now serve as a playroom for little Susan and a little family sitting room. On the nights when Bill has to work, he is happily ensconced in his new garage-study. On a week end he can work peacefully without even hearing the activities of two young daughters and one wife! What more could a man ask for, says Bill?

The story of Bill and Betty's home is important because of their attitude. Not only did they make a good modern background for living in an old house, but everything they bought is good enough and right for the future dream house. And never did they make a false move that cost them money or grief by not turning to professionals for advice.

Just wait a few years and we will give you the story of the modern house of redwood and glass overlooking the Pacific. And in the meantime, doesn't it look as if the young Frougs, Susan and Nancy, are doing nicely?

accepted belief that winter climates require a basement. To set off the hard texture of the concrete slab, partially exposed above the ground level due to the contour of the land, and the coldness of the concrete blocks, the designer used red cedar siding to give a softening and rich texture to the house.

With an eye to economy of maintenance, the natural-colored concrete with the red cedar siding only stained and oiled, and the composition roof were good materials, Heuel felt, for there is no paint to keep up, except the trim of the steel casement windows and the gray-green 12-inch fascia boards which run around the house to roof level. He believes he has a house impervious to climatic conditions, dry rot, and damp basements, and has eliminated many overhead costs he would have encountered in a more traditional method of building. layout is carefully planned to keep walking back and forth at a minimum.

The living-dining room is across the front of the house with a wall of glass on the east end by the dining group, a huge corner window in living area giving north and west exposures and the entry door on the north wall. The size, 15 by 26 feet, is ample to allow a pleasant dining end, an intermediate wall with a love seat and table next to a storage closet and a spacious living end with fireplace recessed on the south wall. Sand-colored plaster ceiling and three walls are accented by the dining end wall of deep bluegreen. The brown asphalt tile floor in 18 x 24-inch blocks is colorful with the sand yellow and thoroughly practical for a family with two young sons. The fixed glass windows are draped with colorful "Little Men" pattern material in chartreuse, red, green, and black. The plaid of the dining chairs picks up the same colors. Recessing the fireplace was a good way of giving extra depth to the living end of the room as well as providing a sense of seclusion from the dining area. Of natural brick with bluestone hearth and open book shelves, the fireplace is balanced by a red planting pocket the level of the couch in the corner, over which hangs a pastel-toned landscape.

The bedrooms are modest in size. Corner windows in the parents' bedroom open to a view of the secluded rear lawn and the same view to the rear offered by the southeast corner windows in the boys' room. The studio is a small room with a good bank of windows to the north, so that Mr. Heuel has good light for the work he sometimes brings home over the week end. This room, with its gaily painted cherry-red radiophonograph combination is, as well, a fine playroom for the two boys who can play their records and scatter their toys without needing to use the main living-dining area at all. The door to the garage means there is direct access to the house for unloading groceries from the car and for shelter in bad weather.

Tucked between two wings of the house at the back is a paved terrace with a barbecue fireplace which the Heuels use a great deal during the summer months. It is right off the kitchen and easily accessible for serving outdoor meals and can double as a hanging yard for Mrs. Heuel, whose laundry is but a few steps from it.

Everything in this little modern house in Wisconsin has been planned to provide informal, comfortable living for a family of four. It is a house which emphasizes easy housekeeping for a young mother, colorful interiors and low maintenance costs. No wonder the Heuels are happy in their version of the postwar house!

Let's Face the Facts

In the rising expectations of the modern family lies the strain —and strength—of the home

EVELYN ARDIS WHITMAN

When I was a girl," said my elderly neighbor, "home wasn't like it is today. There were eleven of us in our family and there was plenty of work and fun for all of us right in our own house. We didn't have to go traipsing around the country looking for trouble."

Like my neighbor, many people are alarmed at the changing pattern of family life. It is true that home is not as it used to be. Is the change inevitably for the worse—or is there a growing strength and vitality in this new phase of family living?

A family is a group of individuals united by ties of blood and affection and, above all, by a common purpose. It is a group of people finding in each other sustenance for the ego, a sense of belonging and sharing, of meaning and permanence. It has always been so. It is difficult to believe that a time will ever come when it is no longer so. But the common purpose of the family may alter. The sustenance and meaning human beings ask of each other may change. Such a change has occurred in our lifetime.

Ask the average husband—the good-natured, indulgent, dish-wiping husband of the cartoons—if he expects a great deal of his wife and he will probably chuckle as he says, "Who, me? I'm lucky if she gets my breakfast! Women never had it as easy as they do today!"

It is a dubious truth even on the surface. John Doe might be surprised if he followed Mrs. Doe around during a housekeeping day! In any case what he expects of her in other and subtler ways, has assumed alarming proportions since grandma's day.

Love, with a capital L, has invaded the home via Hollywood. Enlightened by the movies and magazines, the modern male expects his wife to be sexually competent, attractive, youthful, and glamorous. Nor is that all. Gone are the days when the wife who murmured, "Yes, dear, how wonderful!" between the stitches on the family socks, seemed to her husband a finished conversationalist, a perfect fireside companion.

Financially, too, he expects a sturdy and seasoned partner, who asks neither quarter nor shelter, who can not only save his money, but share his worries and help with the family earnings when the need arises. As the mistress of his home, he expects her to understand nutrition and design, marketing and psychology—and, above all, he hopes to find in her comfort, solace, appreciation, understanding, and a spark of joie de vivre!

The modern woman herself hopes to find, in the circlet of her wedding ring, a great many things which grandma wouldn't even have dared to want! She looks for understanding and broods darkly when she doesn't get it. She hopes that her husband, who did not resemble Clark Gable when she married him, will somehow do so as time goes on. She dreams of long intelligent conversations in the firelight and never ceases to hope that anniversaries will bring her roses, and moonlight nights restore the romance of being eighteen. She expects her husband to forgive her when she is out of sorts, respect her desire for a "life of her own," remain faithful to her in thought as well as in deed and regard her as a person.

Around their children, modern parents build a dream of even more colossal proportions. Once upon a time, a parent's duty was done when he had fed and sheltered his offspring, taught them to obey and given them the precepts of right conduct. Today's parents, thoroughly injected with the virus of the psychologists, worry over such nightmares as "giving offense to a child's dignity," "failing to meet his emotional needs," "disturbing his sense of security."

Prodded by their anxieties, they try to enter a child's world, to think as he thinks, to feel as he feels. They seek to make their children self-confident, to keep them "socially adjusted," to interest them in "creative pursuits," to painlessly impart the necessary tidings about Santa Claus and the stork. Humbly accepting the dictum that an unworthy adult should not ask for a child's respect, they struggle to be the perfect parent, the alter ego of their children.

Inevitably, they must ask a great deal of these children in return. Johnny and Susan are the outward symbols of their parents' success in a highly inflated profession. If the chores they are asked to do are less than they used to be, the sum of the attitudes and skills required of them in order to be a credit to their parents, is far greater.

As family expectations rise, so do the expectations of society. There is so much to do, so many places to go, so many causes and crusades to support! The engagement calendar, hung from the mouthpiece of the telephone, is in danger of becoming the coat of arms of a frantic generation.

The truth is that, in our generation, the human beings, in and out

Face the Facts

the family, demand far more of ch other mentally and emotionally an they ever did before.

This fact has more to do with the anging pattern of home life in merica than any other phenomenon our time. It subjects the family much stress and strain—a strain hich is the cause of many of our trent problems. Yet it is not the sing expectations which make the ouble but the inability of people meet them.

The other day, I heard the mother a twelve-year-old say, in obvious ewilderment, "I simply can't underand Bobby. He always acts as if here were a generation between us." o doubt. And with reason, too!

It is not possible that parents ould thoroughly understand their nildren nor that children should have emplete and unfaltering confidence their parents. It is not possible for usbands and wives to "move connuously to one music" or achieve a lationship such that "there is never cross word in our house." It is ot possible to keep a house cometely immaculate-nor can anyone form the world in a single lifetime. We need a great deal more lighteartedness in family life. We need cut our soul-searching in half; we eed to cuddle the baby and rock him sleep; we need to play with our hildren and laugh heartily at our istakes. We shall never be perfect usbands or wives or mothers or thers or citizens and we might just s well start scaling down our exectations to that unfortunate fact. But when we have learned to relax, e have met only half of the probm. The rising demands on the famy do not spring from nowhere. They oring from an honest need-and they dicate a direction.

We cannot live as our grandparents id, in spite of the people who so oudly long for the past. The world as grown far too complex. Once pon a time, parents could hope to now all that their children knew. nd a little more besides-a very alutary state of affairs! Husbands asily outdistanced their wives in nowledge and wives could see, at he end of the techniques of houseeeping, the boundaries of what was equired of them. Today, as the goals nd achievements of each member of he family multiply, the family itself forced to widen its horizons.

The world has grown more troubled, oo. People have psychological difculties which belong to the age they ive in, difficulties which could not be resolved by going back to the past. They seek for help in the family ircle and the sympathy they get is ralueless unless it is based on an understanding of the problem.

Face the Facts

the very faults of the family today, out of its instability and groping, emerge goals for tomorrow's family.

We do not always think well of our own generation but troubled and demanding as it is, it has taught us these things about family life:

THAT a happy and successful home is not dependent on authority but on parental qualities significant to the children.

THAT men and women are growing less "different" in their aspirations and goals and may some day manage the genuine companionship of equals.

That people who marry for love instead of economic reasons must make it an experience of maturity as well as of youth.

THAT there is nothing sacred about the way a house is put together and it is good to experiment with walls and roofs and gardens and furnishings until they fit the life of the family.

That home must not compete with the world outside but cooperate with it to the end that the goals of society and the goals of the family may be the same.

This is a faith for intelligent people and it brings us to an inescapable reality of our time. If we are to achieve our goals—and relax as we do it—the home of tomorrow must be a planned home and the homemaker must be trained to a profession rather than a skill.

It takes, the psychologists tell us, a mental age of three to scrub a floor, of five to wash clothes, of six to darn socks! But it takes imagination and wisdom and a very high I.Q. indeed to plan an environment.

Such planning is the scope of, and the reason for magazines like this one. Their life has been short compared to the life of the developing family. Short, too, has been the life of the pre-marital clinics, the course in family relationship, and the child study groups. We are still feeling our way, but we have set our feet on a road that belongs to us.

We must not think of the home as failing because it does not live by the patterns of the past. Nor must we panic under the present barrage of clamor and denunciation. When millions of good people worry aloud over a beloved institution, it is a sign not of death but of life.

For the first time in history, people everywhere are beginning to acquire a clear, articulate understanding of what a home could be, of what ultimates in experience human beings could bring to each other—and they long for it as a thirsty man for a drink of water. It must be the aspiration of our generation to provide the skills and planning which will make such a home a possibility.

pocket possible wherever they can.

The living room is a lovely room. Its size is increased by the high, open-beamed wood ceiling. Walls are of Douglas fir and the braided carpet in variegated colors goes well with the woody character of the room.

A bold fireplace wall, made of used brick with rich, textural quality, is set at one end of the room with bookcases on one side and a concealed case for the television set on the other. Mrs. Shura did not want the stark ugliness of the television set to intrude on the comfortable homespun and farmhouse quality of the room and wisely had it concealed in the wood paneling.

Small windows on the back side of the room are effectively draped with muslin Dutch curtains bordered with print in tomato, yellow, black, and white, but the great bank of windows opening to the porch and view is wisely left uncurtained except for an overhead flounce of the same print.

Mrs. Shura, who started collecting the things for this room fifteen years ago, still has not overcrowded it. Nearly everyone who comes into the room comments on the open, airy feeling of it. On the end wall there is a small game table with a pair of tavern chairs and on the other side of the bedroom-hall door is a small spinet piano.

An arm chair and the small couch are covered with wool plaid in warm reds, green, and white. There is a rocker by the fireplace with head rest and seat of the same plaid, an attractive harness-maker's bench cut down to coffee-table size, a beautiful old pine table by the window and small tables where they are useful.

A plate rail marches around the entire room and upon it Mrs. Shurakeeps her collection of Early American china, copper, and brass, Mexican glass accents in lovely blue and amber, and even a few things of good design but questionable heritage. She tells of how many years ago she started collecting and her friends thought her a bit odd.

"One day a friend who had just put up an enormous amount of fruit and jellies was showing me her laden shelves, but I could hardly notice the jars of fruit for I had spotted a shampoo bottle, yes, an ordinary commercial bottle, but of a beautiful shape and color. The friend gave it to me, and years later asked me where I had found that lovely collector's item!" Mrs. Shura relates the story with amusement and to prove that she does not feel a lovely thing has to be an antique to be enjoyed.

The ranch-house dining room seems to invite leisurely dinners in the candlelight. All the windows are banked on the view side with shelves for colorful glass or china. There is a wainscot of vertical Douglas fir above which is a fine pattern print wallpaper in mustard, white, and raspberry, which also covers the ceiling.

But a step away is the kitchen. It's a beauty which would startle the original early Californians living in their ranch houses without running water. A simple U-shape, with one end given over to Thermidor range unit topped by a copper hood. All casework is natural Douglas fir with black HL hinges and drainboards of handsome terra-cotta tile. The sink, dishwasher, and quickie eating counter are all under the bank of windows opening to the lovely east view.

Splatter-dash linoleum on the floor in tones of red, yellow, and white is banded in plain yellow and has in its center an amusing cocky rooster design. There is a blue and vellow medallion-print wallpaper used for walls and ceiling with a perky flounce of print in blue and tomato red over the top of the window. The breakfast counter becomes a handy spot for serving outdoor meals.

Off the kitchen is a most efficient little laundry room with stationary covered tub, washer, and wonderfully roomy floor-to-ceiling storage cases. The second small bath is placed just off back entry and adjoining the den.

The Shuras only needed two bedrooms, one for themselves and one for Patti, but they wanted to have space for son Herbert and his wife, still back in the Middle West. The little study with its fieldstone fireplace is a comfortable sitting room. yet easily converts to a guest room.

There is a pleasant bedroom for Patti which has a view to the orchard. It is surprising to discover that only the furniture for Patti's room was bought after the Shuras arrived in California and built their house. All the other furniture in the house, including eight barrels of china, came from the Riverside house and had been collected always with the California ranch house in mind.

In the master bedroom at the back of the house, wood is used for two walls with fine print wallpaper on the ceiling and remaining walls. Red and white checked gingham spreads are used on the four-poster beds and there are crisp organdy curtains at the windows. The bath is available both from master bedroom and hall.

This California ranch house may have been fifteen years in the making, but when you see the Shura family enjoying it, there is little doubt it was well worth it. Son Herbert and his wife Jean, back in the Chicago area, swear they are about to repeat the pattern of Shura Seniors. In their apartment they have started collecting, too, for the time when they can come west and live.

Liberty Gardeners

Within 5 weeks from the start of the campaign for increased home gardening and food preservation, 23 citizen meetings in 20 states were held by Extension Service leaders and local co-operating groups. Interest continues PROGRESS keen, especially in the food preservation phase; men's garden clubs are notably active. In Illinois, resolutions urged the Governor to appoint a special committee "to implement the citizen movement." Indiana group urged that commercial growers promptly advise consumers of crop surpluses available for canning.

Plant tomatoes. Canners' stocks are reported low and labor and price conditions have hindered contract negotiations for acreage production. So, as always, tomatoes will be one of the most important and valuable garden crops.

"Thrift, thrift, Horatio!" as Hamlet remarked, has special meaning for gardeners, viz.: Don't use seed, fertilizers, spray materials wastefully. Even dealers in lawn grass seeds urge light (but even) seeding-and only on thoroughly prepared soil, at the right time.

Quality seeds are major factor in garden economy. In New York State tests of 70 kinds of flower seeds from 35 sources made in 1950, 70% germinated satisfactorily, 85% were correctly labeled, true to name. (Another argument for buying the best from reputable dealers.)

Warfare against rodents is an important phase of any food conservation campaign. The rats in the U.S.-about one to each of our 150 million people-destroy, every year, an estimated 200 million bushels of grain. It costs us-you and me-about $2 per rat per year to feed them. One pair today, if uncontrolled, can mean 50 by next Christmas. In addition to the rat menace, food loss and soilage by mice is another problem in many homes, hotels, and eating places.

But a powerful weapon is, fortunately, now available in the form of rat and mouse poisons containing a new chemical, Warfarin. Slow-acting but fatal in its effects, without unpleasant taste or odor, it is eaten readily and without suspicion by the pests. Properly used, it is not dangerous to children, pets, poultry, or other livestock. Developed by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, it offers a new and a real hope for the conquest of rodent depredators and thieves.

Little things count in gardening, too. A roll of cellophane tape, for example. Suggested uses: For temporary taping of rough spots on wooden handles of tools and wheelbarrows; for protection (and prevention of loss) of finger rings worn from either sentiment or necessity when gardening; for sealing partly emptied seed packets until needed again; for covering cracks in the skin of ripening tomatoes so as to exclude rot organisms and prevent spoilage; for fastening vine shoots to wall or trellis until they take hold.

How a loving mother can easily explain to the 'Bride-to-Be'---These Intimate Physical Facts

No other type liquid antiseptic-germicide tested for the douche is SO POWERFUL yet SAFE to tissues as ZONITE!

In this modern age of outspokenness, it's such a relief for a mother to be able to talk freely to her daughter about the intimate facts

She will certainly tell her daughter of the importance of putting ZONITE in her fountain syringe for complete hygiene (including in-timate feminine cleanliness), for her health, charm, for married happiness—and always after her periods. She will make her daughter realize there's a womanly of-fense graver than bad breath or body odor-an odor she seldom detects herself but is so apparent to others around her.

And a modern, up-to-date mother will be able to explain to her daughter why no other type liquid antiseptic-germicide tested for the douche is so powerful yet safe to tissues as ZONITE.

The ZONITE Principle Developed by a Famous Surgeon and Scientist

Modern women no longer have to use dangerous products, overstrong solutions of which may gradually cause serious damage. Nor will they want to rely on weak, homemade solutions—none of which have ZONITE's great deodorizing and germicidal action.

The ZONITE principle—developed by a famous surgeon and scientist—was the first in the world that was powerful enough yet positively non-irritating, non-poisonous. You can use ZONITE as directed as often as you wish without the slightest risk of injury.

ZONITE'S Miracle-Action

ZONITE actually dissolves and rezontte actually dissolves and removes odor-causing waste substances. It promptly relieves any itching or irritation. It helps guard against infection and kills every germ it touches. #### Before You Buy a House am a real estate broker. I have sold a great many houses over the past years. Recently, one of my prospective purchasers said to me, 'You've been selling houses a long time. You must know all the answers. How would you buy a house?"

That question intrigued me. In a strange community, what points would I, who had found homes for so many others, consider important? LOCATION-The gag, "This house is a five-minute walk to the station if you run," has a great deal more truth in it than the humor allows us to see. Very often people will find a home they like and purchase it without thinking about how far it is from the school, shopping facilities, and business. I have had houses relisted for sale within 30 days of purchase when the family found out, after moving in, that commuting to business took the husband four hours a day.

THE HOUSE-While I am not a construction man, I suggest that prospective buyers check the following. Turn on the water faucets to make sure the pressure is all right; look for rotted beams under the house; look for any obvious plumbing leaks; inspect the roof and ceilings for leaks; make sure the cellar is dry; be sure the car fits in the garage. If a house is closed, either have the water and heat turned on before buying or have the seller guarantee they are in good working order. Have the seller turn over any guarantees he has from contractors who worked on the house. Make sure a two-family house is in a two-family zone, and check how the apartment is registered with the local renting authority.

UPKEEP-Before purchasing a home the buyer figures out monthly costs to run the house. These figures usually include interest and amortization on the mortgage, taxes, heating, and insurance. Before buying, check this at the bank to verify the mortgage payments and at the municipality to see if the taxes are correct. If the house is a new one, chances are the property has not yet been fully assessed and the taxes may be changed later. In a case like this, get an idea how much similar houses in the neighborhood are taxed. Find out from whom the seller purchased his fuel and check there on the amount of fuel used for heat the previous year. I say these things not to imply that most sellers are dishonest, but rather because many sellers guess at these figures and are quite inaccurate.

considered in monthly costs. In new homes they will amount to between 1/2 per cent to 1 per cent of the cost of the house a year, and in older homes between 1 and 11/2 per cent a vear. I emphasize these points because I have seen many young purchasers buy homes figuring the carrying charges to the last penny, and when it turns out to be higher than expected, lose the house.

FINANCING-In purchasing a home where there is a mortgage commitment from a lending institution on the house, usually the cost of getting the mortgage is paid by the purchaser. Find out how much it is and be prepared for it. Insist on a pre-payment clause in the mortgage permitting the paying off of larger sums or the mortgage in full when so desired. This is very important, because when reselling the house the new purchaser may not want the mortgage and if it can't be paid off, it may stop the sale. ACT OF BUYING-In looking for a home in a strange community, go to two or three reliable brokers. A broker is more interested in seeing a buyer satisfied than the owner of an individual house whose only concern is selling. The broker depends on buvers' recommendations for new business and will not try to sell a house he knows isn't right for the buyer. Besides, he knows the community and the houses therein and can save immeasurable time in finding the type house sought.

Do not buy the first house that looks good. Wait, and see several homes with two or three brokers. However, after seeing a house through one broker do not let another broker show the same house. Otherwise, it might lead to legal complications if the house is purchased. When finding the desired house, always make an offer, as many sellers have their houses listed at a higher price than they will take. On the other hand, do not lose the house because of a small difference in price. If a house is worth so much it's also worth a little more. Be logical, not stubborn. I have seen a $30,000 sale fall through because buyer and seller were too stubborn to agree on a garden hose worth about five dollars. Above all, do not let relatives and friends make the decision whether or not a particular house should be bought. They are not going to live in it. The buyer should decide.

Have a lawyer look over the purchase contract. His fee is cheap in the long run on an investment of thousands of dollars. Then have a title search insurance policy which insures against any fault in the title. At the closing of title, make sure to have adequate fire, extended coverage, and liability insurance on the house. Then move in.

"Since buying my Ruud-Monel automatic Gas water heater I never have to wait for really hot water. Now I get all the convenience my washer was designed to give. Believe me, RUUD-MONEL, and GAS, are the answer to faster, cleaner, automatic laundering."

RUUD-MONEL is fast and modern!

Ruud-Monel, with selective temperatures up to 180°, is especially engineered to keep step with the hot water demands of automatic washers. It enables you to wash load after load at the higher temperatures required by modern home sanitation standards. Your washes not only look clean-they are clean-really white, and bacteria free!

RUUD PRODUCTION is determined by the materials supply-Monel, steel, zinc, copper. Monel, in particular, is short because it is a vital war material. During this period when Ruud water heaters will be made in limited numbers, high manufacturing and performance standards will be rigidly maintained. mmmmmm

Long-lined Beauty

ere's an excellent example of a formal house which still fits into the plans of a young, modern, and career-minded homemaker. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Nye and their small daughter Penny have lived here for several years, and Mrs. Nye has combined keeping house with keeping shop beautifully, for in her small workshop she uses her talent as an artist most successfully by painting toy buckets with colorful animals, which she sells as fast as she makes them. And she's with Penny all day long.

The long lines of the house give the impression of great size, and yet there are only three bedrooms. Because of careful planning, its formal simplicity suits their way of life and provides the background for their traditional furnishings. The plan includes essential rooms only, with the result that each one is spacious and comfortable. The test of its success is that Mrs. Nye has ample time for both homemaking and her own career, which is saying a lot.

Window Highlights

Our Decorating Department answers the questions most often asked about curtain and window problems

Q. Is it necessary to use draperies and glass curtains with Venetian blinds?

A. No, not if the decoration of the room is keyed simply. However, the function of the Venetian blind is to control light and give privacy to room, the same as any window shade. And you will find that most rooms need the color and softness that draperies and/or curtains give.

Q. Is white the best color for Venetian blinds or shades?

A. Not unless the room scheme requires it. Generally they are best done in the same color as wall and woodwork or in a color that blends with the wallpaper (if used). Sometimes a dramatic effect is obtained by doing them in a contrasting or bold color-this requires a "knowing" hand. Q. Should all blinds in a house match?

A. Where windows are located so that they are seen from the street, it is a good idea to have them all the same white or neutral color that blends with the exterior. However, interiors should be planned accordingly. Glass or casement curtains could be used in the color desired for the interior scheme.

Q. In making a chintz window shade out of an old shade, is the chintz put on over the old shade?

A. No, the old cloth is removed from roller and the chintz is tacked to old roller. A casing is sewn in the bottom of chintz to hold old slat.

Q. What is the correct length for draperies?

A. To the floor, generally. In a simple or provincial room or where certain small, high windows prevail as in some modern and ranch-type houses, they may hang to the sill or apron. but the average window demands full floor-length draperies.

Q. What width material is best for draperies?

A. For average window, 50-inch width, one width to a side. Traversed draperies require double the width in material of space they are to cover when drawn. This applies to picture windows and window walls, also,

Q. Should draperies be lined?

A. Yes, unless a sheer effect is desired. A lining not only protects the drapery from strong sunlight, but makes it hang better. Heavy textured

Window Highlights

- Q. How should draperies be finished at the top?
- A. With French pleats, box pleats, cartridge pleats, shirring, or straps.
- Q. What are traverse draperies?
- A. Draperies that are attached to a traverse rod or fixture that allows the drapery to be drawn simply by pulling a cord. They can be used for either (or both) drapery and glass curtain. These are stocked by most drapery departments.
- Q. Are valances and cornices used today?
- A. Yes, especially where a certain decorative-style or period is wanted.
- Q. What is generally considered the right depth for a fabric valance?
- A. One-eighth to one-fifth the length of the window from top to floor is a rule followed by professionals.
- Q. When a cornice is not used and the brass rod shows between the draperies, how can this be remedied?
- A. Cover the rod with the drapery fabric or use a wooden pole painted the color of drapery or woodwork. If the draperies are to be stationary and not traversed, short metal side arms may be used for hanging them. Q. Can a valance be used to make a
- A. Yes, raise the valance above the top frame a few inches. To make window appear wider, extend the valance and drapery beyond the side short window look higher?

- Q. What drapery treatment can be given a window with radiator beneath? A. If the radiator is no wider than window, draperies can extend to wall beyond window and hang floor length. Simply attach drapery fixture to piece of wood built out from top of window frame so that drapery hangs free of radiator. Otherwise hang to sill.
- Q. How should bay windows be
- A. For a smooth, unified appearance run the glass curtains all the way around the bay. Use one pair of draperies to the sides and finish with fabric valance over entire unit. Glass curtains could be sill, apron, or floor length. For formal effect, glass curtains as well as draperies should hang to the floor. Ruffled tieback glass curtains are perky and pretty at bay windows in informal room with or without draperies.
- Q. What are glass curtains?
- A. The sheer curtain that hangs next to the window, diffuses the light and adds a certain amount of privacy.
- Q. How full should they be?
- A. At least twice the width of window. Very sheer curtains as many as three times. Never skimp with sheers.
- Q. How long should they be?
- A. Sill, apron or floor length. Never half way or between apron and floor which, like a woman's skirt that is too long or too short, looks awkward.

Springtime is "get-ready" time for next heating season. Don't go through another long winter of being hot one instant, cold the next!

Call your heating dealer today. Ask him about automatic heat controlled by the PENN heat-anticipating thermostat. This thermostat has the uncanny ability to 'anticipate" temperature changes and start the burner before the room can become uncomfortable.

In addition, this exceptionally accurate control stops fuel waste caused by HOT-n-COLD heating. And for even greater fuel economy of automatic day-night control, also get the PENN Tem-Clock. For automatic heating at its best . . . get PENN heat anticipation . . . it costs no more!

Scotts UNIQUE

Second successful year coming up for this exclusive product of Scotts Lawn Research. SCUTL met and defeated Crabgrass on thousands of lawns last year. Ask for it at your dealer's or write Scotts, Marysville, Ohio.

NO MIXING, no fussing with sprayer. Apply dry as it comes from the box.

EASY TO USE from handy shaker box or with a spreader.

SAFE in recommended usage will not harm lawn grasses, persons, birds or pets.

Apply SCUTL to your lawn and Scuttle Crabgrass (also known as watergrass, fall grass, finger grass) before its millions of seeds mature to become a worst pest next year. J. E. Reyerson, Dawson, Minnesota writes; "I have been on my knees the past 4 years digging up Crabgrass. Now after using SCUTL, all I see are the dead plants."

STOP CRABGRASS before it ruins your lawn . . . three or four treatments with SCUTL will do it. The cost is nominal.

"Pardon the interruption—but I just remembered this is the day of the week I put Drano in all the drains!"

Dangerous sewer germs lurk in every drain. No liquid disinfectant can budge the muck they breed in. It takes Drāno to unclog drains and keep them running free and clear. Use Drāno once a week—every week. Won't harm septic tanks. Makes them work better. Get Drāno today at your grocery or hardware store. Also available in Canada.

GET ALL THE ADVANTAGES OF THE FAMOUS TRADE-WIND CLIPPER VENTILATOR!

Here's the most modern kitchen ventilating system. The Super Clipper is installed in a metal or wood cabinet directly over your stove and removes the cooking fumes, grease and heat from both the stove and at ceiling level. Keeps your kitchen and your entire house cool and fresh—cooking odors, oven heat, greasy smoke and steam all are instantly removed. Two metal air filters trap the grease and dirt and are easily washed in soapy water. No other kitchen ventilator does the complete job that the Super Clipper accomplishes. Simple to install in existing or new homes.

FOR KITCHEN, BATH, DEN, LAUNDRY

Trade-Wind also makes these famous ceiling models which are hidden above your stove to catch the greasy smoke, heat and odors, and get rid of them quickly.

Here is nearly every mishap that could befall a table: stains, heat rings, scratches, cigarette burns. It may not be necessary to refinish entire surface. See below

How to spot-finish a table

Photographs by the author

Checked or "crazed" varnished or lacquered surfaces can be renewed. Use pad of fine steel wool dipped in rottenstone paste. Rub until surface is smooth to touch. Wipe off with rag dipped in thinner. Apply two coats of wax and buff

ROBERT WORTHAM

To remove heat and alcohol rings, moisture stains: mix a thick paste of powdered rottenstone and paraffin oil, available at hardware stores. Apply to damaged areas with a soft cloth, rub with grain of wood until ring or stain disappears. Clean surface, then wax and buff to polish

To fill deep scratches, gouges, cigarette burns: use shellac stick of proper color, available at paint stores. Fill damaged areas slightly above table surface; sand with steel-wool pad dipped in above paste until filled area is flush with table top. Clean, wax, buff

Paper stuck? Saturate area with warm paraffin oil, let stand a few minutes, scrub lightly with fine steel wool. Table sticky? To remedy, rub table with coarse cloth dipped in paint thinner, clean off, wax surface, then buff. Use paraffin oil to polish between periodic waxing

How to get enough HOT WATER!

Add up your hot water needs BEFORE you add an automatic water heater.

Don't make the costly mistake of buying a new water heater to meet only your present needs. It will surely fall short later if you add a new bathroom or an automatic laundry or a streamlined kitchen.

The automatic Rheem gas water heater is rated to show exactly how many gallons of hot water it can supply. A washing machine, for example, needs 15 to 36 gallons, a tub bath 12, shower 10, dishes about 1 gallon per person.

Your plumber can recommend the correct size Rheem so that you will always have enough hot water. Because it's AUTOMATIC, you'll never have to bother with lighting, waiting, or servicing. And, because it's built by the world's largest maker, you can always rely on Rheem.

Laundry and Dishwashing machines may need hotter water to operate properly. The Rheem thermostat dial can be set up to 180°. Burner goes on and off by itself, conserves fuel.

Rheem Makes Models for all fuels. All are backed by the Good Housekeeping Guaranty, the A.G.A. or U.L. seals. Call your Rheem Reliable Plumber, listed in the Classified Directory.

For lasting beauty from the floor up!

gives a satin-smooth, natural finish to FLOORS, PANELING, UNPAINTED FURNITURE

- Won't Scratch or Mar
  - · Will Not Darken With Age
    - Outwears Other Finishes

UNEQUALED WHERE A NATURAL WOOD FINISH IS DESIRED

More and more, the natural wood decor is gaining in popularity. New dens, dining areas, rumpus rooms, even living rooms are being enriched with the beauty of wood grain. If your plans call for wood, bring out its natural beauty with shellac—the finish that provides a richer, longer-lasting surface.

Shellac is Easy to Apply—Easy to Maintain dries fast, simple to retouch and keep beautiful.
