

If you're still waiting, read this...

IF YOU ARE STILL postponing the pleasures of having a Hammond Organ in your home, let these typical Hammond Organ owners tell you why you shouldn't wait.

From a famous American humorist: "Like a friend of mine (who doesn't know middle C from his elbow) I learn everything from memory. I figured it would be a year before I'd be able to play a recognizable number on our Hammond. Actually, I could play four things the first week. At 45, I'm doing something I was certain I'd never be able to."

From a couple in Washington: "Neither my husband nor I have any musical background, but we are able to play after just a few lessons. The stimulating challenge and pleasure that our Hammond Organ brings each day is invaluable."

From a young man in Wisconsin: "Though I live in a rooming house, my Hammond Organ doesn't crowd me. My downstairs neighbors listen nightly for my impromptu concerts and are enchanted by the beauty of this marvelous instrument."

From a family in Pennsylvania: "Financially we are in no position to undertake years of instruction for our three youngsters. So we chose a Hammond Organ because it is so easy to learn to play. What other instrument could let them range so freely in a world that has never been discovered to its farthest limits?"

From a Grandfather in New Jersey: "Friends warned me against letting the neighborhood children play so delicate and costly an instrument as my Hammond. I told them it is no more expensive than other fine instruments and for all its sensitivity, it isn't delicate."

Your local Hammond Organ dealer offers a variety of convenient terms. Many dealers give you up to 3 years to pay.

Why wait any longer? Admit it - there's really no reason why you can't begin to enjoy music's most magical hours now.

Complete price of the Spinet Model, (above) is $1285, f.o.b. Chicago, including built-in tone equipment and bench. Requires a space only 4 feet square. For further details see your nearest Hammond Organ dealer or mail the coupon below.

Nothing washes all your dishes as fast, as easily as TUFFY.

-because only TUFFY is tough enough to scrub crusted pans, gentle enough to wash finest china and silverware

TUFFY washes finest china ... takes off sticky food faster than dishrags, sponges. Never scratches.

TUFFY scrubs pots and pans... whisks out messy foods that clog a brush. No food sticks to TUFFY.

TUFFY washes silverware ... digs out food that sticks in fork tines. Then TUFFY rinses clean as new.

Your heating comfort guaranteed with Blend-Air! Add summer cooling whenever you're ready

A $1,000 Coleman Comfort Bond, issued in your name, guarantees that your Blend-Air installation will keep every room warm as toast. Magic Blenders installed in the walls of each room keep temperature uniform from floor to ceiling. (See the diagram below.)

GOT A HOME YOU CAN'T HEAT? No such thing. Even old homes with narrow stud spaces accommodate Blend-Air's versatile new 3½-inch air tubes. They deliver the supply of warm air, or cool air, to Blenders in each room. Pre-engineered and prefabricated to install in a new or old home simply, quickly.

HERE COMES THE COOLING! It's easy to add Coleman's cooling unit whenever you're ready. Cost? Only a few dollars a month. Same system, same tubes are used to deliver fresh cool air. You're twice as comfortable because the unit takes twice as much moisture from sticky summer air as most other systems.

savings add up with Coleman fuel-burning efficiency. It gets every last bit of heat from winter fuel. In summer a special Water Miser saves 97% of water costs over old systems—and 25% of electricity. Space is saved with the compact furnace and cooling units you can install anywhere, out of sight.

EVERYBODY'S HEALTHIER when climate's right. In winter, Blend-Air warms thoroughly, keeps your floors warm, keeps the house cozy. When needed, moisture is added to prevent excessive dryness. An efficient filter screens dust, dirt and pollen from the clean fresh air intake. Summer cooling is dry and healthful.

WANT ONE ROOM WARMER? Or cooler? Easy. With Blend-Air heating you not only have overall temperature control for the whole house. You also have independent control in each room. A work-free, automatic heating-cooling system that's economical to operate, easy to regulate for year-round comfort.

THE MAGIC BLENDER DOES THE JOB BETTER

It's installed in the walls and, in winter, blends room air with freshly heated furnace air to maintain constant comfort. In summer, mountain-dry cool air is blended and distributed the same way.

friend confided recently: "Budgets give me the creeps. After we were married, my maid of honor invited us for dinner, and all was fine until dessert. There was no whipped cream on our shortcake! Our hostess said her budget did not permit whipped cream. Since that day, I've always felt that budgets do away with all the whipped cream in life." "How is she now?" I asked. "She's fine. Her children are in college, and she and her husband are traveling." I didn't ask how my friend was—I knew that whipped cream, in various forms, had been straining her purse strings considerably.

Never before have there been so many wonderful things on which to spend a pay check. And never before has there been greater need for wise money management. You may not be able to buy happiness, but improper handling of money can leave you wide open to a lot of unhappiness-and you don't have to unbalance your mind in order to balance your budget!

A budget is an adjustable thing, geared to physical tastes and temperament. A talk we had with Sarah MacLeod, Home Budget Consultant for the Society of Savings in Cleveland, confirms this. "Several years ago," she said, "I set up a budget for a family of five. Each week they put a little aside for their three children, and with the rest were quite comfortable until spring. Then they would go into debt. I suggested that they might be spending too much on Easter. But it wasn't that at all. It seems that both husband and wife had been born in Italy, and had, years ago, sung minor roles at La Scala. Now, each spring, when the Metropolitan Opera comes to Cleveland, they can't resist going. They knew, the wife said, that it wasn't right. Of course, I assured her that it was right for them to go to the opera which they so enjoy-if they plan for it. Well, last spring I met them at the opera, and the husband shook my hand warmly. 'It's worth it;' he said, 'hearing performers like this. I don't mind carrying my lunch twice a PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 12

DACRON

Thankful for their luxurious air! New marquisette curtains of "Dacron" are beautiful when you buy them... and because of their outstanding resilience... they stay beautiful. So crisp—so fresh—so elegant—they enhance every room in your home.

Thankful for their ease of care! New curtains of "Dacron" wash easily . . . dry quickly . . . keep their first-day crispness washing after washing. They need only a whisk of the iron at most.

Thankful for their long wear! Practical curtains of "Dacron" resist the harmful effects of sun and dampness, soot and radiator heat. Because they won't sag or stretch, they retain their original drape, body and styling after long, hard wear.

No other fiber gives curtains so much of all three —lasting beauty, long wear and easy care. See these new curtains of "Dacron" polyester fiber today in your favorite store.

week! It means our opera fund gets $1.50 a week. This year we had enough to hear all performances, pay for the baby-sitters—and it didn't get us in debt.'

"Not all money management problems are that easy to solve," Miss MacLeod continued. "I remember the wife of a Cleveland newspaperman some years ago who told me that they were on the verge of divorce because he was too ambitious. She broke into a torrent of tears, leaving me guessing why a woman would want to leave an ambitious man. Her husband's eagerness to get ahead was the cause of their financial entanglements, however. Out of their income, it appeared, he was taking 25 per cent a week for himself, spending the money on clothes, dinners, entertainment, and generally upon living exceedingly well-while his wife struggled to run their home and to care for the family on the rest. Yet the husband was looking ahead. The wife prudently persevered-she is quite prominent in club circles now, since she is the wife of one of the leading newspapermen in the country."

Some people, like my friend who loves the whipped cream, have the notion that the purpose of a budget is to increase savings by cutting down on the things we enjoy. Actually, its real purpose should be to cut out the waste in order to leave money for the things, enjoyable and necessary, that we really want. To some people, personal appearance is very important. Others would be willing to spend less on their clothes and more on their homes. Some families spend relatively large amounts for recreation, while others spend less for entertainment and more for food.

So a wise thing to do is to organize a Want List. Real necessities, of course, must be given the right of way. If you can't have what you want immediately, see if you can cut down elsewhere to achieve it. Here are a few suggestions:

Are you paying for extra help, or for special services which family members could pitch in and do temporarily? Can you remodel or make some clothes at home? Do you take advantage of sales and cash buying? Can you reduce insurance premiums by paying annually? Can you pay part of the rent with services to the landlord? Can you raise some of your own vegetables? Can you refinance debts? What about entertainment that calls for ideas instead of cash?

Arguments over money will disappear when each member of the family understands how money must be spent. Though budgeting is a 50-50 proposition, most experts agree that it is primarily a woman's job. "And rightly so," says Miss MacPLEASE TURN TO PAGE 14

MAKES A COMPLETELY NEW KIND OF WALL ENAMEL!

A CINCH TO PUT ON... PRODUCES A VELVETY SURFACE... WASHES READILY NO HARSH "FRESH PAINT" SMELL... WEARS FOR YEARS

If you've ever admired the way the finish on your car, refrigerator, stove and washing machine keeps freshlooking despite wear and water, here's exciting news for you.

For the very same material, alkyd resin, that makes these sprayed-on, baked enamels so enduring is now available in air-drying wall finishes that you, or a professional painter, can easily apply in your home. They're brands made with WALLKYD.

A snap to handle! So simple that the man of the house can paint ceilings while the rest of the family does walls . . . and the result's a treat. You'll be amazed at how uniform your work is, how free from brush or roller marks, laps, runs and sags.

Dries quickly! Fast enough so that furniture and drapes may be replaced in the evening when you paint in the morning. And you can wash walls the next day if necessary. No drawnout "tender" period.

Coats any surface . . . walls, ceilings, trim . . . plaster, wallboard, metal, wood.

Dirt disappears with soap and water! Wash away (scrub if need be) fingerprints, chalk, pencil and crayon scrawls, dirt smudges, dust accumulations. They come off with ease. Even repeated washing doesn't mar the velvety smartness of a WALLKYD-base finish.

Ever-lovely! Never have colors pastels to deep tones-been so faithfully reproduced. This finish lasts longer, too . . . has more resistance to scratching, marring, chipping.

"Covers" more readily. You get more coverage per coat with solventthinned WALLKYD-base enamel because there's more pigment and color (more paint) in every gallon.

No annoying "wet paint" smell! No burning fumes to bother eyes, nose or throat.

Get a wall enamel that gives you all these advantages . . . a brand formulated with WALLKYD. Write for a list of the manufacturers using WALLKYD in their wall enamels.

WALLKYD also increases the weather resistance of exterior paints

Makers of exterior coatings, in increasing numbers, are also turning to WALLKYD. Man hours - yours or those of the painter you employ - are the most expensive item in painting. That's why there's such a demand for WALLKYD-base exterior paints that last so much longer than conventional house paints.

What advantages WALLKYD adds! It makes wall enamels roll on freely - brush readily - dry fast - take repeated washing and scrubbing.

To get full advantage of the many improved properties imparted by WALLKYD, today's finest alkyd for flat wall enamels, make sure the manufacturer guarantees a minimum of 85% WALLKYD in his "vehicle solids".

Budgets Do Work

Leod, "since women do 85 per cent of the nation's spending."

DON'T BUDGET TOO RIGIDLY

Many budgets break down because urgencies are not figured into the plan. Unexpected guests, or unexpected medical, school, and repair expenses will plague you if you don't allow for them. To estimate such expenses, refer to last year's bills for such items—allow for them.

Another frequent cause of budget failure is trying to fit your spending into some Procrustean percentage. Hundreds of inflexible tables have been published-and they are discouraging. But experience has shown that there are some fundamentals. Income taxes, savings, food, shelter, operating expenses, clothing, and advancement are the usual divisions. To these must be added an allowance for payment on debts. But use whatever classifications you choose-the important thing is to be sure that allowance has been made for every known item, and that there is a reserve for unexpected emergencies.

The budget below may serve as a starting point for you. It is based on average figures for the nation.

SUGGESTED BUDGETS FOR A FAMILY OF FOUR

Income per r	nonth
after taxes	$225	$250	$300	$400	$500
Savings	18	25	40	80	110
Food	90	95	105	120	130
Shelter	40	45	50	70	90
Operating	20	20	25	30	40
Clothing	22	28	35	40	50
Advancement	35	37	45	60	80

The categories, of course, need a bit of explaining. Under Savings, we include social security, bank deposits, life insurance premiums, investments, and hospitalization insurance. Operating expenses include winter fuel, gas, electricity, telephone, household supplies and services. Advancement is a blanket category covering such diverse things as church and charity, furnishings, automobile, carfare, medical expenses, education, reading, recreation, travel and vacation, gifts, barbers and beauty parlor, etc., plus small sums for the private use of each member of the family-important budget safety valves, these.

As Miss MacLeod maintains: "Household and personal accounts should not be looked upon as an obituary of past spending, but should be used as a guide to get more satisfaction, happiness, and value out of the income in the future."

What about the wife's income? In these days when working wives are no longer exceptional, how should their earnings be budgeted? Miss MacLeod says: "Theoretically, the wife's earnings should be used only for savings, time payments, allowances for household expenses incurred PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 79

Don't wait till this happens. Cover over your cracked ceilings with beautiful, crackproof Upson Ceilings.

Discover the easy, clean Upson way of ending your cracked ceiling problems. So inexpensive, lasts a lifetime, adds true beauty to your home.

The Upson way covers over your old, cracked ceilings with beautiful Upson Kuver-Krak Ceilings. There's no need to tear down plaster, no extra expense, no dirty mess. Call a carpenter or do it yourself...either way the job is finished in a few hours.

Here's how:

First, nail up thin strips of wood, called furring strips, directly to your present ceiling. Then nail exclusive Upson Floating Fasteners to furring strips. Sharp prongs firmly grip Upson Ceiling sections from behind, but don't show through. This eliminates visible nailholes.

After Fasteners are up, just clinch Upson Ceilings into place, apply moulding and paint as desired. And there you have a smart, modern ceiling like this . . .

Isn't the Upson way quick and easy? And you have permanent ceilings that won't crack—ever! But only Upson offers this method, so see your lumber dealer and insist on the name "Upson" for a better, more beautiful home.

Start planning now. Send 10c for beautiful, full color, 32 page IDEA Book and Direction Sheet. Packed with ideas for remodeling. Mail coupon today!

"How Can a Dust Cloth Cost $200?"

THE lady is talking about us. We're the pirates who've put a price of $2 on an ordinary-looking 12" x 18" dust cloth. Our conscience is perfectly clear, however. When you put into a dust cloth what we have, you can ask twice $2. When you can save a woman hours of cleaning time a week, you can name your own price! Our price is $2.

woman hours of cleaning time a week, you can name your own price! Our price is $2.5.

This Conniver Cloth of ours—and we are the only ones in the world who sell it—is guaranteed to keep dust and dirt from clinging for dugs at a time to any surface it touches. You touch it gently on woodwork furniture, venetian blinds—any dust collector—and it applies a tough coat of invisible film that refuses to tolerate dust, dirt and grime. You can't see this coating or feel it. It does not hide, discolor, or in any way change the appearance of the finish it covers. Instead it brings out and enhances the original lustre of a lovely finish. Also used to clean and polish cars, prevent rust on tools and firearms, etc.

"I didn't even see the window they'd cleaned it with Windex Spray!"

Word travels fast about Windex Spray. For it cleans windows, mirrors, all kinds of glass surfaces in half the time it takes other glass cleaners. And it does the job so well. Glass shines bright; stays bright longer! For there's no waxy dust to clean afterward—no waxy film to attract dust later.

Windex Spray is a thrifty buy, too. Specially economical in the big 20-oz. size. Get it today, at your grocery, drug or hardware store. Also sold in Canada.

So fast, easy, thrifty, it outsells all other glass cleaners combined!

"April Fool or no April Fool this is the day of the week I put Drano in all the drains!"

There's no fooling about it—dangerous sewer germs do lurk in every drain. And germs breed in muck that liquid disinfectants can't budge. Drāno's churning, boiling action dissolves the muck—and keeps drains germ-free and freerunning. Make one day a week—Drāno day. Put Drāno in every drain for about a penny a drain. Also makes septic tanks work even better. Get Drāno today at your grocery, drug or hardware store. Also available in Canada.

There's nothing like DRANO . . . to keep drains free-running and sanitary.

NEWS for your home

PUSH-BUTTON TRAVERSE ROD

There's a new, easier way to open and close draperies of the traverse type than the old-fashioned, handover-hand method. Right in the "How easy can life be?" department! Drawmatic is the trade name, and indicates that the operation of drawing your curtains or draperies is now automatic. How? By means of an electric unit attached to any standard traverse rod. And installation should be fairly easy, because it's only a matter of fastening the control box to the wall and threading the cords which lead to the traverse rod above. Since the box (illustrated herewith) measures only 5" x 7" x 4½", it can be concealed under the draperies. Just plug it into any electrical outlet; watch your draperies open and close with a mere flick of a switch. Three models are available for various size windows up to 35 feet. The standard unit, which handles widths up to 22 feet, costs about $79.95.

MOTORIZED WINDOWS

When it frames an outlook worth seeing, the value of the big, single-sheet picture window is something nobody could deny. But of course, the disadvantage of such unbroken glass areas has been the fact that they were stationary. So we are happy to report to those who enjoy viewing the world (or their neighbors) through transparent walls, that you can now have picture windows which not only open and close, but can do so by push-button control—the whole thing, not just a section, can be raised. Vita

See "Where Credit Is Due" on page 146

Automatic Windows is the trade name, and sizes are varied enough for anybody, for there are 32 of them, ranging from 66" x 42" to a whopping 96" x 72"—big enough to please the most ardent big-window devotee. They come complete with bronze mesh screens that roll down to cover the opening when the glass is raised. To keep you cozy in winter, two sheets of plate glass are used with air sandwiched between to act as an insulator. Frames are of baked-on gray enamel (perfectly paintable), and they are weatherstripped. What they really cost you installed depends, of course, upon local labor rates and the amount of work necessary to set them up in your window space. Without installation, the 66" x 42" size comes to $498. They're not in the cheapies class (plate glass and electrical mechanisms seldom are), but the joy and the ease and the beauty they afford will tempt many a homeowner when he wants to build a view into a room.

OPEN SESAME

This one really makes you feel like a Houdini, for it is an amazing device called Autosonic that lets you unlock your garage, open the doors, and turn on a welcoming light-just by pushing a button on the dashboard of your car as you approach the garage! You don't leave the car till you're in the garage. Here's the gist: The button in the car sends sound waves to a microphone above the garage door. Then the mike sends the waves to an electronic control box tuned to your individual wave length. The control box, in turn, throws a switch which unlocks the doors, opens them up, and turns on the lights. Of course, it works in reverse and locks up behind you when you drive out. In addition, a companion button inside the house or garage does the closing and locking once your car is safely inside. Autosonic operates any overhead door in single or double sizes. The price, about $250, plus installation.

Durham's School Gets a Face-lifting

ctober 10, 1953, was a big day in Durham, Conn., and a busy one for a small army of representatives of the local garden club, P.T.A., Lions, Boy and Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs, American Legion, and other organizations. They had gathered to landscape the public school with II truck-loads of plants donated by the State Nurserymen's Association, following a plan designed by Helene B. Warner, landscape architect of nearby Middletown. By midafternoon, the broad front of the building was transformed with a handsome foundation planting, the workers had enjoyed a lunch served by garden club members, and a long cherished dream had come true.

In 1950, when a large wing was added to the school, the Garden Club had decided that the building deserved a real landscape job. But lack of funds and the fact that it was not a county school combined to prevent action. However, that same year, the Nurserymen's Association, in conjunction with the Extension Service of the State University, embarked on an eight-year program of planting demonstrations that would give each of Connecticut's counties in turn an example of community beautification and thereby stimulate local pride and lead to increased intelligent planting of homes as well as public buildings. Each year a county would be chosen by lot, and letters invited from citizen groups, on the basis of which a town in that county would be chosen as beneficiary. In 1951, Granby in Hartford County was the winner, and several of its buildings were given attractive settings. In 1952, the County of Fairfield and the town of Bethel were selected and the latter's Stony Hill fire house was planted. PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 30

Durham's School

When, early in 1953, Hartford County won the draw, the Durham Garden Club saw its opportunity and rallied around it some 28 other local groups, business interests, etc. with the result that a convincing majority of more than 50 letters received by the over-all project committee from six different towns gave the victory to Durham. By that time, Miss Warner's plan was ready and approved by the garden club and board of education—which had already voted $500 toward the club's original project. Since the nurserymen would provide the plants, this sum was used to construct two black-top paths essential to the new plan. The board also pledged funds to maintain the school planting. And so, on the October 3rd weekend, an enthusiastic group of citizens, old and young, assembled to dig, enrich, and prepare the designated planting areas for the big doings on October 10, when the accompanying pictures were taken. The work left no time for ceremony, but a fortnight later, the students, garden club members, and others met for an outdoor dedication program of music, flag salute, and brief addresses. And now, the garden club has launched a new project—the planting of shade trees from street to school!

Eleven loads of plants, worth approximately $700, were contributed by the nurserymen. The local fire department sent a tank truck, hose, and men to water the newly planted shrubs

PAINTS

A complete line of paints chemically engineered to do the job better Off the Press

Carlson's Guide to Landscape Painting by John F. Carlson, N.A. (Sterling Publishing Co.) Price $6.00. Both student and amateur will find inspiration and help in this book by one of America's foremost landscape painters. It covers every phase of landscape painting with simplicity and clarity. We heartily recommend it to the weekend painter for its authoritative guidance in getting one off to a good start and showing the way to accomplish his great desire for pleasure of expression with color.

Effective Home-School Relations by James L. Hymes, Jr. (Prentice-Hall) Price $4.65 . . . A sound, clear, often amusing book, offering an intelligent approach to the problems of parent-teacher cooperation. Dr. Hymes is both father and educator, and he has a fine understanding of people in general and children in particular. Practical guidance on running parent-teacher meetings, use of films and pamphlets, and an excellent bibliography.

Lace and Lace Making by Marian Powys. (Brandford Co.) Price $7.50. . . Miss Powys, well-known authority on lace and lace making, has studied and worked with lace as artist, craftswoman, professional, collector, museum expert, and lecturer. In this book over 100 large photographs identify 142 types of lace and illustrate its history. There is a special dividend, too—complete instructions and drawings for making pillow lace and needlepoint lace.

by Narcissa Chamberlain. (Hastings House) Price $4.50... A new Chamberlain picture book, edited and captioned by Mrs. Chamberlain. The wonderfully clear, graphic photographs are Samuel Chamberlain's.

For the lover of good Americana and excellent decorating sense, this book can't be beat. Each section of the house has been wisely segregated into a chapter for easy references. A book truly worthy to follow in the footsteps of Salem Interiors and Beyond New England Thresholds.

Wild Flowers of America (Crown Publishers) Price $10. . . . Perhaps the most sumptuous flower book of 1953, this 8" x 10" volume presents full-page reproductions of 400 paintings, most of them done for the Smithsonian Institution by Mary Vaux Walcott, wife of its then Director, and a few by Dorothy F. Platt. Also 71 pages of introduction, glossary, concise flower descriptions by Dr. H. W. Rickett of the N. Y. Botanical Garden, an identification chart, and index.

Only American-Standard Kitchens permit so many shelf and drawer arrangements that you can change at any time

THE only way to have a kitchen that is always convenient . . . that really meets your changing needs, is to install an American-Standard kitchen.

One exclusive feature of this always-new kitchen is convertibility whereby you can change drawers to sliding shelves or to a combination of both at any time. Look at the combinations of drawers and shelves illustrated . . . just a few of the many arrangements

Another exclusive feature is the new American-Standard counter top. The smart Micarta top in a scatterline pattern forms one continuous easy-to-clean surface from the top of the back splash to the no-drip, raised front edge. The plastic surface will not scuff, discolor, fade or scratch. It comes in five attractive colors.

Other important features are all-steel cabinets with baked-enamel finish; sound-deadened, snug fitting doors . . . and a famous American-Standard sink of rigid cast iron with a thick coat of acid-resisting enamel.

For your work-saving kitchen, see your American-Standard retailer. He's listed under "plumbing fix-tures" or "plumbing supplies" in the Yellow Pages of your phone book. UNDERSINK AND BASE CABINETS can be changed in a few minutes from shelves to drawers or to a combination of both that will provide perfect storage space to you. Shelves in wall cabinets are adjustable at one-inch intervals so as to store both large and small items conveniently.

A FOOD STORAGE CENTER like this with four sliding shelves is a must in any kitchen. Actually each of these shelves will hold 15 No. 2 cans. Think what a storage boon that is to any kitchen.

NEED DEEP DRAWERS? Just see how conveniently these two big, roomy nine-inch deep drawers fit into this cabinet. You'll find these jumbo drawers are a wonderful help in storing pots, pans, or vegetables.

4 BEAUTIFUL

GARDEN-MINDEDNESS is evident everywhere. Around the dominant Japanese black pine, Clarence Prentice developed for Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Christy, Jr. this entrance planting of evergreens which is effective all year, and spectacular when in bloom

A CONCENIAL CLIMATE with generous rainfall much of the year largely accounts for the abundant beauty hereabouts. This portion of Mrs. Grinstead's spring celebration is dominated by a flowering crab and graced by daphne, clematis, double early tulips, and pansies

MAGNIFICENT VISTAS challenged Trevor Roberts, former owner of the Julian Wright home facing Puget Sound. Here, he used Pinxter azaleas and double camellias in a boxed-in bed bordered by tulips, violets, rockery plants. A flowering almond completes his complement to a view

SEATTLE GARDENS

ORIENTAL INFLUENCE adds distinction. The antique stone lantern, brought back by the owners from Japan, makes an enchanting companion to a 40-year-old Japanese maple. This planting designed by Kubota Gardens for the Raymond B. Mattsons bloomed just a month after the house was completed

Here is the house America is demanding—and getting. Seven ample rooms for a family of four, or five, or seven! A split-level plan with the privacy and comfort of a two-story house, with the convenience of a one-story plan! Two bathrooms! A well-planned kitchen, a separate television and playroom, separate utility room, three generous bedrooms! Plus year-round air conditioning that lets you make your own climate whatever the weather outside may be!

This deluxe model home sells for $24,500 complete in Syosset. New York, and the price includes the lot. It might cost you more, or less, to build it, depending on where you live. But this is no mass-produced house in a huge development with all the savings that modular construction effects—it was built by a builder with the same kind of materials and labor that you would use, and of course he makes a profit on the sale of each model; so your chances are pretty good, price-wise.

The exterior is a combination of blue-green spruce hand-split shakes (which accounts for that handsome, rugged textured look) and white painted brick. Old gold is the color of the door and flower box. That smart white asphalt roof not only looks well but serves as an excellent heat reflector in the summertime.

There are three separate levels to the house, each connected by a short half-flight of stairs. The garage, recreation room, and utility room occupy the first level. On the main level are the spacious living room with wood-burning fireplace, the dining room with great glass windows on two sides, and the kitchen with plenty of room for a breakfast table. There's a door in the dining room that lets out onto a flagstone terrace with a good-looking barbecue backing up the fireplace. Up a few steps from the living room are three bedrooms and two baths.

The house is heated in winter and cooled in summer by a 3-ton General Electric winter-summer air-conditioning unit located in the utility room. The model we photographed at Syosset featured Hotpoint automatic washer and dryer units, a freezer, an electric ironer, and a Domestic sewing machine in this utility room with space to spare. There is also a gas-fired Duo-Therm incinerator which reduces both wet and dry garbage to minimum ash without smoldering fumes or smoke. In the kitchen, the range, 9½-cubic-foot refrigerator, and dishwasher are all Hotpoint equipment. Because of its great merit, AMERICAN HOME has selected this house as Blueprint Home No. 28. You can order complete plans and specifications on page 126.

including air conditioning!

Winter or summer, you make your own climate in this beauty.

Its three-bedroom split-level plan is tops for real family living

FIRST LEVEL: A good recreation room which can be all things to all families—it's a TV room, a den, a study, a guest room, or a rumpus room for teens or their parents. When children are very young, it makes an ideal playroom within Mom's earshot, for it is only a few quick steps down from the kitchen, and it joins the multipurpose utility room, laundry, and sewing room

What You get

THIRD LEVEL: Three bedrooms, all large enough to welcome twin beds. Well-planned closets have sliding doors, and are arranged to provide good storage without disrupting wall space for convenient placement of furniture. There is a small bath off the master bedroom, and a large one off the hall is equipped with a built-in vanity, a full-length mirror, and an additional linen closet

BUILDERS: WYATT AND COONS

To achieve openness, there's plenty of glass, and living areas seem to flow into each other. But bedrooms are isolated for quiet and privacy, and the third bedroom, which can serve as a workroom, guest room, or maid's room, is completely separated from rest of the house

RICHARD O. EVANS

LOVE IT-THEN DESIGN IT

Designing his own home is a challenge and an opportunity for any architect. It certainly was for me. Having been raised in a handbasket, with no home town in particular, some self-examination was needed before planning this home for my family. We had to answer such questions as: "What is a home?" After free-booting for so many years without the physical aspects of a house of our own, we decided that "home" must be an individual experience, a state of consciousness wherein is found happiness, quietude, and a haven of rest from the business world. Here are some of the other things we found that add up to a definition of what a home must be—for us.

A home must be something indigenous to us—not stereotyped or borrowed. The European architecture we had seen during the war, including the International style on the Continent and the Georgian in England, made us determined to design something functionally and organically American. We decided that Americans have a rich heritage and need not borrow from the flotsam and jetsam of the thinking of the rest of the world. We like a serene appearance in a home—no gables, no sloped roof—and if we were asked to name the style of our house from the outside, we would call it "Early American Packing Box."

We desire an environment of friendly trees, so we bought the lot that had more of God's natural trees than we could find on any other. Our home was designed to nestle in them. Because we want plenty of light in the house, the living room has clerestory windows at an 11-ft. height which gives us a good throw of light at all times. The entire south wall of the living room is light—sliding glass panels which let us see our trees as they meet the ground and yet act as an effective barrier against inclement weather. We pulled the outside into other rooms, too. The skylight in the gallery allows us to see the tops of our tallest trees, and the moon and the stars at night. In the kitchen, two banks of windows, one at counter height, the other at ceiling height, allow the greatest parabolic throw of light.

In plan, we like openness, and a change in the shape of the rooms as we walk from one to another. The bedrooms are away from the living and work areas, for privacy. Since a single bathroom serves more than one bedroom, the bath is compartmentalized. An extra bedroom is entirely separate from the PLEASE TURN THE PAGE rest of the house so that it can be used as a workroom, or for a maid or for guests.

Our home must be easy to maintain, so we built it of wood and of stone. The floors of our living room adjoin those of the exterior terrace, and they are craborchard flagstone, sealed and waxed. Our interior walls are combed, grained oak; our exterior walls, stained cypress. Our scientific heating (a combination of radiant and convection types) is all in the slab.

We love music, and in order to enjoy to the fullest the privilege of music transmitted by record and radio, we required sound-conditioning. In the living room we have the closest thing we could achieve to true stereophonic sound.

We knew the effect we wanted in décor, and we achieved it through a monochromatic scheme based on mellow wood tones, picked up by small but intense color accents. The simplicity of early Chinese sculptures was in rapport with our thinking, so we used them, along with some furniture of Chinese design, to give a full round to the spatial relationships of the interior of our house. We enjoy good detailing, so we paid attention to such small, but amusing things as making recesses in the floors for rugs—so that rugs are flush with the bare parts of the floors, and the danger of tripping is thus obviated.

No one should design a home without loving it first. After you love the general idea of it—then design it in detail. Once it is built, the best test of a home is that those who live in it should enjoy it, and that they should communicate their joy in their home to the people who live all around them.

How to Upgrade

No. 2 or No. 3 common lumber is about half the price of select, so save yourself cash with these upgrading methods. One important thing is to cut around bad defects

Push out loose knots and fasten them in place with household cellulose cement. Wipe off excess cement and, before applying finish, sand off all traces of glue

A cupped or warped board can be flattened by covering the concave surface with wet rags. Leave the rags in place until the resultant swelling has flattened surface

Fill small cracks and checks with wood filler or a mixture of glue and fine sawdust. Sand filler smooth when dry. Cut around large cracks and salvage good wood

Small dents can be raised by filling them with water and pricking the surface with an awl. Another way is to steam the dents with wet blotting paper and a warm iron

Remove stains and discolorations with a good commercial woodbleach (available at hardware and paint stores). Rubber gloves are necessary to protect your hands

Lumber

HURRARD H. CORR

Lower grade lumber may be a bit rough from the milling operations of the manufacturer. Sanding will smooth tl. minor defects, and planing will correct major roughness

Maybe it looks too rough—but if you intend to paint your work or follow directions given here, low-grade lumber can produce good work

$5.76 vs $12.60

The lumber from which this foyer table was made cost only $5.76 (in New York area). If it had been built from select lumber, it would have cost $12.60

Stretch lumber dollars on these two

Lumber for attractive structure above cost only $6.40. Better lumber would have come to $14—a waste, since finished product was painted anyhow. Comparable savings are effected by building room divider below with upgraded lumber. Know-how for this one is in Pattern 2044

he fascinating play of color and pattern and light on an overlay lamp of her grandmother's, inspired Mrs. Helen Thielker, of Long Island, to assemble the fine collection sampled here. To make this enchanting crystal, a core of glass of one color is enclosed in one or more layers of contrasting glass; then the top layers are cut away, in various patterns, to reveal the inner core. Hence the names "overlay" or "cased" glass. Actually, in the technique of making cased glass, no modern craftsmen have surpassed the ancient Romans. But the Roman variety was opaque, used for cameos-it was the glassmakers of Bohemia who put in the sparkle centuries ago, and who developed many decorative motifs characteristic of this glass. In Victorian times, overlay glass was made, and highly prized, in many European countries-and in America as well. The pieces which Mrs. Thielker acquired in antique shops and auctions throughout the East, include:

1 One of a pair of bottles. Blue overlay was cut away to show circles of clear crystal. 2 One of the owner's favorites—a small bud vase. 3 Whisky glass, cut in a variation of the cane pattern. 4 Long-stemmed wine glass—hob-star cutting. 5 Cut-away motifs were expertly designed to point up the handsome shape of this 12-in.-tall vase. 6 One of a pair of rare tumblers. Paneling at waist catches and reflects myriad lights, underlines its slenderness. 7 Scalloped cuttings taper to fit panels of sturdy mug. Handle is engraved with monogram "C N" in old English lettering. 8 Charming and simple cruet with blue stopper, clear handle. 9 Brilliant cutting of eight-pointed star, popular motif on clear crystal, effective on overlay. 10 Like a ruby crowning a diamond, bowl of this wine glass rests on notched, clear crystal stem. 11 Frosted grape motif makes an arabesque border which plays up the simple beauty of the paneled ruby glass of this wine bottle. 12 A wine tumbler very similar in paneling and decoration to the bottle above. 13 One of a pair of vases. 4 GOOD WAYS TO BARBECUE

HOW TO CONSTRUCT A SIMPLE BARBECUE PIT

Tree rings are third-circles of concrete sometimes used for building tree wells. If you live where nurseries stock them, they make dandy, durable, and quickly constructed barbecues. If you don't, you could adapt this idea to brick.

To absorb the drainage, you need a bed of sand, crushed stone, or earth around the base of the barbecue, and such a bed might even be planted. Here the bed is finished off with fluted, rounded curbing. If you can't get it, brick would do nicely.

You need: 11 tree rings; 4 sections fluted curbing; one sack mortar; a 24-in. diameter grill; 2 steel bars. First fill a 3-in. deep hole with mortar for the foundation. Keep it level. Set the first row of rings

Between third and fourth row, set in steel bars, as shown. They support grill. Decide upon material you will use for fire bed sand is ideal for this purpose. In operation, coals for fire are laid on sand, below grill Leave small drainage holes between sections of first row. Using mortar on top of, and between, each block, build three rows. Keep the blocks level all the way around

Finally, a half-row, made of two rounded sections, finishes the barbecue proper, acts as a backsplash, and protects the fire within from wayward breezes

THE ONE OUR READERS ORDERED. We've made construction patterns for every kind of barbecue under the sun, but the one at your left, more than any other, is the type that most of you have been requesting. It's substantial, but not too large (10' x 12' x 7' high) for even a smallish back yard. It has a roof for shelter, so the party can proceed even if the rains come. There is an oven, a grill, and a sink for washing up. There is work counter and cupboard space. If you want to bring in wiring, you can even mount an electric spit there, though our blueprint does not provide for it. All other know-how, Pattern 2042

YOURSELF

Bucket Barbecue— It Works Wonders

You can do the best steak you ever tasted in a plain bucket, using nothing but crumpled newspapers for fuel. Skeptical? So were we. But we tried it, and the result was pure perfection. We are happy to be able to report, too, that this method will work in an indoor fireplace as well as out of doors.

Buy steak streaked with fat, and leave the fat on. Rub with olive oil (this is important) and seasonings, and place in a folding grill. Then put a double sheet of crumpled newspaper (black and white only, no colors) in an ordinary galvanized bucket. Light paper, and let it warm bucket. Just before it burns out, add second paper. When it blazes, set grill atop bucket. Add paper, a sheet at a time, as required. Dripping fat helps the fire, and you'll have a steak with a real charcoal flavor in a matter of minutes.

GOOD FOUNDATIONS FOR YOUR OUTDOOR LIVING

For a feeling of strong separation between each brick, set them down on a carefully drained and graded surface and cement them, leaving a deep raked, grouted joint Redwood, cypress, or cedar logs set in a sand and gravel base make an unusual pattern. To ensure stability, cut the logs to a uniform five-inch thickness

Square paving tile with a slight grout of cement makes an attractive and easyto-care-for terrace. Tiles are laid on leveled area. Provide drainage if needed

Bricks set in pairs alternately make this striking terrace. Grouting of cement is almost level with surface of brick to form a strong contrast of red and white

You can pour your own pre-formed concrete paving blocks in wood forms for a barbecue area like this. Plant grass or a sturdy creeper in the dirt between the blocks

The Landlord said: "Buy-or Get Out!"

ROSEMARY WEATHERRED

A SUCCESS STORY

Let's face facts right from the start: The Gilford Crowells who so successfully remodeled this Houston bungalow outside and in (see the next two pages) were better endowed for the job than the average couple. Gil, now advertising manager for a paint company, is a former theatrical scenic designer. His wife, Ruby, wields no mean paintbrush herself. Monroe Shakno, who happened to be the contractor they called in for the job, turned out to be authentically Pennsylvania Dutch. a man with enormous respect for excellent craftsmanship, and a great fund of knowledge about the folk art of his native region. The team, and the teamwork were better than average—but the problem that the Crowells faced was a very typical one indeed.

Back in 1942, when houses first became scarce in Houston, the Crowells found themselves house-hunting. After the standard, discouraging search, they settled for the mediocrity, shown at left—vintage 1920, and for rent. They accepted it thankfully as a temporary shelter for themselves and Gil, Jr.—it would do until the time came for building a first-class dream house. A couple of coats of paint inside and out made it habitable, and that was all the Crowells ever intended to do in behalf of that particular house.

But no sooner was the paint dry than their landlord announced that the house was for sale. That meant "Buy, or Get Out"—and since the Crowells couldn't Get, they regretfully Bought.

After a careful appraisal of the house's assets and potentialities, remodeling plans were drawn up, and Mr. Shakno entered the picture. To the nondescript street façade, they gave a decidedly Neo-Classical flavor—and there it stands, for all the world as well poised as a tiny Greek temple. Off came the porch and the awkward attic overhang with its Cyclopian eye. Up went an impressive doorway flanked by carriage lights, and the two front windows were made more important by giving them shutters. A good color scheme with some contrast, a nice low framework of shrubs, a pair of antique urns for accent—and lo! The Crowells ended up with a dream house after all.

There was more exterior remodeling than meets the eye here, for this house, like so many others of its type, is much larger than it seems from the front. To the rear, the Crowells added a rental apartment with its own entry. A trim patio and greenhouse complete the facilities for good living they evolved on a site they didn't think could ever afford them such blessings. The reaches within offered fertile field for their decorating talents and for the kind of cozy and appealing furnishings all three Crowells love—Look around!

Partly Pennsylvania Dutch, partly Early American, even partly Mexican—all the rooms have a warm, provincial flavor. The living room fireplace is painted a fine, unconventional blue, an effective contrast for the Hessian andirons and other antique appointments

- Young Gil's bedroom is early 19th century in character. Carving on the shield of the antique bed suggested the use of wallpaper inspired by American Federal decoration
- 2. Dry sink next to the rocker in the living room looks pretty, and earns its keep handsomely, for it houses the Crowell's radio and record player. Ruby decorated the interior so that the lid is as attractive open as closed
- 3. The Crowells were delighted when Monroe Shakno assured them that the little picture above the antique dough box was a very good "Blessing on the House"—a charm against evil spirits without which no authentic Pennsylvania Dutch household is complete
- 4. A junk shop in Mexico yielded the Crowells' own majestic bedstead. Its condition was appalling when Ruby discovered it, but it was dismantled forthwith, packed into their car, toted home, and beautifully restored

-So They Stayed!

(Begins on page 57)

It's mighty useful to be a professional if you want decorations such as these. But stencils and patterns of similar motifs are available to those who have more will than skill. Note on the preceding page that the Crowells did not get "cute" with the important shutters on the front of their home

From her kitchen wallpaper, Ruby borrowed some engaging French Provincial figures and enlarged them many times to cheer up the cabinets—and the cook

Any sconce becomes pure dream stuff if you paint a garland of flowers around it. The same motif would be delightful at a window—either on a cornice below the ceiling line, or used as a border all around the window. Painting Pattern 1500. (Another version, page 103.)

Oblong braided rug (below), ideal for hearthside or bedside, is warm, colorful, and reversible. Neatly turned corners give it an unusually trim look. Make it of strips of old woolen clothing, dyed any color you wish—and make it larger, if you like, by adding more rows. We tell you exactly how in Pattern 1501

pattern called poised in any dish, and set the pretty of candlestick an paper napkins

Vou're a lucky gal these days when it comes to outfitting your table, for the design of new tablewares has caught up with current requirements. A good example is this china with its platinum band softly stroked on. Very formal—if you wish it to be. But the designer also had other uses in mind. The new, deep, rimless shape makes the dishes easy to fill and to manage at a stand-up buffet affair. Then there's the very fashion-conscious mix-match feature, for the china comes in white and four excellent colors, good alone or together, as we used the white with the pink. If you owned a service for twelve, composed of four settings in three different colors, think of the variety this one set of dinnerware would afford you! And we'd like, too, to call your attention to the intelligent serving pieces—the well-and-tree platter, the graceful and generous sauce boat, the pert salt and pepper.

With this new china, crystal in one of the best traditional shapes—"Oxford" is the name of the pattern, and its design is based upon that of some of the finest, and most ancient lead crystal from England and Ireland. The sterling flatware, a new pattern called "Waltz of Spring" is, like most good flatware, timeless, and well poised in any company. As a grace note, we added the three-in-one sterling shell dish, and set off the whole against an Irish linen damask cloth the color of water. The pretty ceramic lady watching it all is mighty versatile herself; she's both candlestick and centerpiece, and her skirt is slitted to receive flowers and folded paper napkins—for fun, or for real use on a buffet table.

Family Food

From the Kitchen of Mrs. Dahlstrom

Michigan, our Guest Editor this month. Having raised a family of five, she's truly qualified—and it is a real pleasure to welcome her to our American Home Family Food pages. Look at the picture and read the recipes, and you'll see why we selected her. You'll not need to make a trip to a gourmet shop for any ingredients. Nothing exotic. Nothing world-shaking. But, oh, oh, such good food! Every bit of it delicious and different, hearty and imaginative. Bravo to Mrs.

Dahlstrom, who really can cook! We were intrigued with the enjoyment she gets from her cooking, the way she can concoct new recipes with just whatever she finds in her refrigerator. And we could tell from the recipes she submitted that she kept her menus full of variety, and the family palate ever tempted.

First, there is a Crusty Lamb Roll, one of the few supremely good ways we have ever seen to use up leftover lamb. For a marvelous meal, serve it up with a bit of leftover gravy or a mushroom sauce. It is plain to see that the Dahlstroms, one and all, love cucumbers, for one of her daughters has sent us two family recipes for this vegetable: one, a creamy, delicate soup; the other, my very favorite relish—cucumbers in sour cream. That Vegetable Noodle Casserole is a perfectly swell luncheon dish, or try it with sliced cold meat for a simple dinner that will leave 'em all satisfied. Skillet Pork and Limas is another of those Dahlstrom variations we are so fond of. Working with simple, quite ordinary ingredients, Mrs. D. turns out a good hearty casserole or one-dish meal to tempt family and friends. BUT you have never lived until you eat her Onion Biscuit Squares. They are just out of this world, they are so heavenly. Serve them with steak or hamburger for a first try, then use them as I do, with practically everything. To conclude, we have a Deep-Dish Apple Pie-it is so easy to do, and the tang of lemon sets it apart from the usual recipes.

Now don't you agree with us? Seven recipes that we consider tops for family eating, simple preparing, and economical marketing. To those of you who feel that every minute in the kitchen is a wasted one—try cooking this way. Replace that grim look with a grin, and start having fun cooking. Before you know it, you'll enjoy it.

Onickie Cues for DEVILED HAM

FAMILY TIRED OF BAKED BEANS?—Then give them variety by adding a can of deviled ham to baked beans. Top with a couple of spoonfuls of molasses. Bake until bubbling hot. IT'S IN THE SOUP: For a good hearty flavor, stir one can deviled ham into one can of cream soup.

WITH SOUP OR SALAD: Hammy biscuits. Just before adding liquid to biscuit recipe or mix, stir in one can deviled ham. Mix. roll, cut, and bake as usual. Delicious with fruit salad.

IT'S IN THE SAUCE: Prepare medium white sauce, stir in contents one can deviled ham. Add chopped eggs or chicken, or use as is over broccoli or asparagus.

DEVILED SNACKS: Blend deviled ham and cream cheese; add a dash of Worcestershire sauce; spread on dried beef slices; roll as for jelly roll, cut into bite-size pieces.

DEVILED HAM ROUNDUPS: Mix deviled ham with a couple tablespoons mayonnaise. Spread on split English muffin. Place tomato slice on each muffin half; top with slice of cheese. Broil until cheese begins to melt and brown-or bake in hot oven about 10 minutes. Serve with pepper and onion rings.

DEVILED TATER TOPS: Creamed or scalloped potatoes become a main dish special when you add deviled ham.

LIKE SPANISH RICE?—Stir contents one can deviled ham for extra flavor; then sit back and accept applause.

Home-baked Danish pastry! Fun to do-and marvelous made with pineapple with balanced flavor

To begin with, all Del Monte Pineapple gets a head start on flavor—because we grow our own selected strains of prime fruit, on our own tropic plantations. Then at harvest time, we capture those plump, pedigreed pineapples just when natural tartness and sweetness balance perfectly.

That's why the very first thing people notice about Del Monte Brand Pineapple is a true-to-the-fruit goodness that's specially refreshing—never too tart, never too sweet. So choose any one of the five handy styles—if it's Del Monte Pineapple, it's a promise of distinctive tropic flavor.

PINEAPPLE PASTRY, DANISH STYLE

1 No. 2 can (2½ cups)
DEL MONTE Crushed
Pineapple

1/4 cup sugar 1/4 cup cornstarch

1/2 teaspoon grated lemon peel

2 cups packaged biscuit mix 1/2 cup milk

1/4 cup melted butter or margarine
2 tablespoons sugar

1 tablespoon red Jelly or Jam

Combine pineapple, ½ cup sugar, cornstarch and peel in small saucepan. Cook over low heat till thickened (about 5 min.). Add to biscuit mix the milk, melted butter and 2 tablespoons sugar. Mix thoroughly; knead 1 min. on lightly floured board. Divide in 3 equal parts; roll out each piece to 6x8". Cut 3 strips about ½" wide from long side of each rectangle. Place remaining 5x8" pieces on greased baking sheet. Spread pineapple mixture down center of each 5x8" piece, 1 inch from edges. Fold edges over and pinch corners together. Criss-cross 2 strips of dough on top of each pastry; place remaining one down center. Brush exposed dough with cream; bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) 25-30 min. Cool; garnish with jelly. Cut in half for 6 servings.

Anne's Notebook

NNE BARNARD

GOOD OLD-FASHIONED IRISH STEW with piping hot biscuits crowned with parsley shamrocks will give a lilt to that St. Patrick's Day dinner. Whether Irish or no, lift the spirits from March income tax doldrums with the gaiety of Erin. Remember to make the stew a day or two ahead-easier for you and tastier, too.

TANGY SPINACH SLAW is fitting and flavorful for St. Patrick's Day. This dressing does it: Combine 1 tbs. each salad oil and lemon juice. Add salt, garlic powder, onion salt, and pepper to your taste. Pour over ½ lb. chopped fresh spinach mixed with ½ cup chopped celery. Serve cold.

A CROWNING GLORY-DEEP DISH CHERRY PIE, spiked with grated orange rind, gives cheer-and gets cheers all around. One crust, of course, and add 11 teaspoons of grated orange rind.

FRUIT OF THE SEA it's been to epicures these thousands of years, but to most American families, it's been just plain fish...treated as a stepchild to vary the menu or when religious observance forbade meats. Not so with our European friends who make a ceremony of its preparation, poaching it in wine, garnishing it with toasted, slivered almonds, bedding it down with a fine, frothy sauce.

With a greater VARIETY OF READY-TO-EAT FROZEN FISH coming our way, we can whip up fish dishes fit for royaltyquicker than quickies with a guarantee of no unpleasant handling or odors. Halibut and salmon steaks, fillets of ocean perch, cod, and haddock are available, no matter what the season.

FROZEN PLAIN or BREADED SHRIMP, SOUTH AFRICAN LOBSTER TAILS, AND SCALLOPS, all cleaned up, so to speak, for you, are not to be overlooked. Most of our friends thrill over these taste appealers.

FISH STICKS-newest addition to the frozen fish family-are going great guns, I hear. Uniform in size, dipped in a special batter and breaded.

FISH STICK MAYPOLE in March is a clever trick to attract thoughts of the Spring that's a-coming. Wrap a slice of bacon around each fish stick and broil. Ideal for luncheon or as a snack. Sure to be a hit with the small fry-and a good way to whet their appetites for sea food. PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 78

"How can they get both a dryer and a washer in there?"

"The best surprise is the way it washes. I've never had clothes come out so clean."

Mrs. John Self, Chicago, Illinois

That's because the Duomatic washes a new way—by hi-lift, deep surge Tumble Action that opens every fold to jets of hot, sudsy water. The famous Bendix Magic Heater that keeps washwater hot and hard-working is built right into the Duomatic. That's another reason Mrs. Self's clothes sparkle with cleanness.

With the Bendix

"It's a washer, it's a dryer, it's everything. That's what delights me."

Mrs. O. A. Sharpless, Atlanta, Georgia

Set the dials just once; the Bendix Duomatic washes, rinses and completely dries—in a single continuous operation. Or you can use the Duomatic as a washer only . . . as a dryer only. It's completely versatile. You can even stop it to add or remove clothes. (A handy trick when you find Junior's socks under the bed.)

DEEP-FAT EDITH RAMSAY

Calling these beauties "deep-fat fryers" has been one of the biggest of understatements, for homemakers soon learned how many other jobs they can do expertly (see below). But even if you use it only for frying, you'll find that an automatic fryer takes a messy job off your hands. and that it takes the "indigestible" out of fried foods. And of course, since they plug into any household outlet, fryers are invaluable in kitchenettes, in overworked kitchens, or even in an adequately wired barbecue area. If you're blessed with a range equipped with a deep-fat fryer attachment, you won't need to go out and buy one—but read on anyhow, to get new ideas for its use.

Why are fryer-fried foods more digestible than those tossed in a skillet? Well, the answer is thermostatic control which cooks each kind of food at the correct temperature. With the old-fashioned skillet method, foods became grease-soaked if the heat was too low, or burned if the heat was too high—unappetizing and hard to digest either way. The time and temperature chart which comes with an electric fryer, plus the thermostat which obeys the instructions you give it, fix all that. This control also permits you to use the same fat over and over because, for complicated chemical reasons, even strongly flavored foods like fish and onions leave no traces behind in the fat if they were cooked at the correct temperatures.

Fryers have really come of age now. When they first appeared on the market, they consisted of merely a pan, a basket, and a thermometer. But Mrs. America demanded and got the features that make restaurant models so efficient. Here are some:

- Extra-sensitive thermostats calibrated to keep cooking fats constantly at the right temperature so the fat cannot overheat and burn or break down.
- Signal lights which flash on when the fryer is put in operation; off when the correct fat temperature is reached.
- Drain spouts to pour out the shortening easily. They are located high enough on the fryer for the clear fat to drain off, leaving the dregs in the bottom of the fryer.
- Drain baskets with special brackets which enable you to hold the basket up over the cooking well to drain excess fat from the food. Detachable handles, so the basket can be stored in the fryer.
- Seamless interiors designed for the easiest cleaning possible, and exterior surfaces which shine like new in seconds.
- Heating elements which give such an even distribution of heat that crumbs are no longer burned to a cinder when they fall to the bottom.
- Added accessories, such as utility racks for cooking steaks, hamburgers, etc., and special baskets for popping corn.

OTHER JOBS THEY CAN DO

Of course fryers fry well, but if you will really use them for all they're worth, you'll have a whole flock of new menu possibilities.

Let's talk about those SAVORY FISH SAUCES that lift any meal to new heights of eating pleasure.

FOR AMANDINE SAUCE . . . chop coarsely ½ cup of blanched almonds and mix with 3 ths. melted butter or margarine. Add grated peel of 1 lemon, 1 tsp. lemon juice, ½ tsp. paprika, ¼ tsp. salt, and ½ tsp. pepper. Especially good with fried or broiled fish.

RÉMOULADE SAUCE with a French accent is simple to do despite its fancy name, and it couldn't be better than with cold shellfish. Start with a cup of mayonnaise, add 2 tbs. finely chopped sour pickles, I tbs. each finely chopped capers and chopped parsley, ½ tsp. prepared mustard. (Be sure to press out all moisture from pickles and capers). Mix well and add a bit of tarragon and chervil if you fancy herbs.

PIMIENTO SAUCE—Colorful, and really a fast one to prepare. Sauté 1 chopped pimiento (about 2 tablespoons), ½ cup of butter or margarine. Add a tablespoon of lemon juice. It's done! Elegant with any kind of poached or broiled fish.

DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE is always in demand with our crowd, no matter the time of year. So I really celebrated the debut of the new 20-0z. pack of chocolate cake mix by whipping up a huge layer cake all dressed up with a FILBERT SEA FOAM FROSTING. Just sprinkle one cup chopped filbert meats on frosting right after spreading. Make plenty of frosting if your folks are sweet toothers. Yellow and white cake mixes come now in 20-0z. packs, too. With 14-0z., 16-0z., and 20-0z. packages now available, everyone should be happy.

LUSCIOUS "NESSELRODE" SAUCE gives glamor to many a dessert. Quick to do and so good. Melt 12-oz. jar of currant jelly over water; add small can diced candied fruit and 2 tbs. rum or rum extract. Chill.

when it comes to breakfast, many people (and especially the men) are definitely not in an experimental mood. For years the gals have been asking me: "How can I get variety into my breakfasts, and still get my husband to eat the new things?" It's not easy, and the girls like a change, even if it is only a visual one—so why not serve your menfolk's favorites, but in slightly different form? Here are two ideas.

IF HE LIKES SAUSAGE, try LINK SAUSAGES IN PANCAKE BLANKETS instead of sausages with pancakes. And speaking of sausages, those which burst in the cooking need no longer elicit silent oaths from you: just dip them in hot water before frying—it really works.

IF YOUR GUY LIKES BACON, team it with broiled pineapple rings. Good too, he'll say, with scrambled eggs

because of her absence from home during the day, and for her personal business expenses—carfare, lunches, business clothing, etc.

Allow for large bills: Everyone has large bills which fall due at certain times during the year, and which cannot be met out of one pay check. One good way to meet them is to chart the dates on which they fall due, divide total into monthly sums, and start a reserve fund.

Weigh the merits of service. The services you buy may be human or mechanical. Are you better off paying wages to a cleaning woman, or making payments on a vacuum cleaner? Is it better to invest in the services of a laundry—or in a washing machine? Whatever your decision, put down its cost in dollars and cents.

Food. At different financial levels, potatoes is potatoes—the choice that you make is between hamburgers and steak. The main purpose of a good budget is to make you think.

Clothing. Proceed with caution. A rise in business position may mean more gold braid for him immediately—and for her eventually. The best course is to allot a certain sum for clothing, and to spend the money as the need arises. If you can, it is wise to buy really good clothes for your basic wardrobe. But to do this, the purchase of winter coats and good suits may have to be staggered so that Bobby gets a coat one season, and Janie gets hers the next year.

Savings: To take care of sudden emergencies, the ideal way is to build up a bank account equivalent to six months of regular income. Life insurance protection should be at least sufficient, in the event of the husband's death, to take his wife and family through the school years of the children. Think of your savings as a bill that must be paid—and pay yourself first—every month.

Budgeting needn't take the whipped cream out of life. It simply means that you can have only the whipped cream you can afford. Here are some important fundamentals:

- Face your income. Be brutally honest, and think in terms of net income, after taxes.
- Use credit wisely. Buy only what you can really afford, thinking in terms of annual expenditures.
- Put your spending plan in writing so you don't change too frequently.
- Don't bore your friends with your budget. A budget is a good thing, but it's your business.

when I Sat Down to Iron

To begin with, I wasn't too fond of ironing. Walking is all right, sitting is nice, and lying down is wonderful. But standing in one place for hours has never appealed to me, so the prospect of ironing always depressed me so that I wasted half the week just dreading it. However, the news that I was to bring into the world still another customer for whom to wash and iron produced drastic changes in my approach.

The doctor told me to keep off my feet as much as possible. And I took him very seriously. I was determined to sit down while ironing, so I crept to the nearest dealer to buy a shiny new adjustable-height ironing table. Springs sprang, levers clicked, the thing raised and lowered. And it seemed my change to new ironing techniques would take place without incident

It didn't. I had reckoned without the relatives. First came Aunt Bess. an advocate of the "You can't teach an old dog new, etc." Without naming any old dogs in particular, she hinted that the ability to iron from a sitting position was something one was born with. She made dire predictions about sit-down ironing. But recalling the predictions she had made about the future of television. I decided that hers was not the last word on the subject.

Next came Cousin Jane, a member in good standing of the "Onlyseven-children-hardly-keep-me-busy Liars Club." Her contention was that three or four minutes of adjusting the ironing table and bringing up a chair was too much trouble to go through for the luxury of sitting down during the next five hours of ironing. Then my neighbor, who loved to think of herself as a pioneer woman, turned in a rather fine performance, too.

But reinforced by my husband's encouragement, I gave sit-down ironing a try. It went rather slowly at first. My shoulders tired just a little as I brought new muscles into play. But the tiredness disappeared as I became used to the new position, and all things considered, I felt wonderful -no aching back, no sore legs, and not a trace of that all-over tired feeling. My critics dried up in even less time than it took the clothes to dry.

Of course, the story has a moral: Most new homemaking methods are worth the small effort it takes to master them. I think I've made some converts, too, with my version of the "you're never too old to learn" story.

A direct challenge to the woman who doesn't use Tampax

Are you always serene, confident, perfectly poised . . . no matter what time of month it is? Or do nagging doubts on "certain days" make you feel constrained, uncertain, embarrassed.

Have you ever worried about odor? With Tampax sanitary protection you wouldn't have to. Tampax is worn internally, prevents odor by preventing exposure to the air.

Have you ever worried about ridge-lines? There are no belts, no pins, no bulky external pads with Tampax. Nothing can show because Tampax is invisible, once it's in place.

Has chafing ever bothered you? You can't even feel Tampax once it's in place. You even wear it (without giving it a second thought) in tub or shower.

Tampax has other advantages. For example: it's easy and convenient to dispose of-user's hands need never even touch the Tampax. But why hesitate? A real woman-saver is the home of the Alan C. Stickneys of Los Angeles, and there's a host of ideas in the side of the house devoted to the preparation, and enjoyment of food. At one end is a dining room. Next to it, a service room houses freezer and laundry, plus cupboards for the dining room's china, silver, and linen. Then the kitchen proper, with its U-shaped work area and its excellent storage which keeps everything where it is used. Beyond that is the sunny breakfast area pictured above.

DATA MARTHA B DARBYSHIRE

Pot and pan cupboard which keeps everything at a see-what-you're-after, no-stoop level, is typical of the exceptionally good storage in all parts of this home. No wonder they're good! In the early years of the Stickneys' marriage, Mr. S.'s business kept them on the move, and they occupied ten houses before having this one built to their order. By then, Mrs. S. knew what worked and what didn't-and the wealth of her experience was incorporated here In this cupboard, just a step from the range, there's a file for racks and flat pans, and two substantial shelves at arm level for the big, heavy cooking utensils. Lids are easy to find in a bin on the door, and the supply of soft drinks kept at the bottom is always easy to check. Into the top cupboard go bulky, seldom-used things and when they're needed, there's no digging for them, either!

Salads that Sing of Spring— easy with Canned Fruit Cocktail from California

5-Fruit Waldorf

1 No. 2½ can fruit cocktail
½ cup sliced celery
½ cup chopped walnuts
Salad greens
Mayonnaise or cream dressing

Drain fruit cocktail well and mix lightly with celery and walnuts. Serve on salad greens and top with mayonnaise. Serves 6.

Variation: Instead of mayonnaise, serve Lemon-Honey Dressing in a separate bowl, to be spooned over the fruit at the table. Make the dressing by combining equal parts lemon juice and honey.

Fruit Shimmer Molds

1½ cups drained canned fruit cocktail
1 package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
½ cup cold water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 3-ounce package cream cheese
Salad greens

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Stir in cold water and lemon juice. Cool until slightly thickened. Fold in well-drained fruit cocktail and cream cheese cut into small cubes. Chill in individual molds until firm. Unmold on salad greens and garnish with cream cheese balls if desired. Makes six 6-ounce molds.

Thrifty, too. Next time you spoon out fruit cocktail notice how closepacked the bright, freshtasting fruits are. Your own eyes tell you you're getting lots for your money. Golden cling peaches, pears, grapes, pineapple, cherries—neatly cut, instantly ready to use in fruit cups, salads, desserts. Remember when you shop—the larger cans are your thriftier buy!

Deep Fat Fryers

• It's an electric saucepan, casserole, or deep well-cooker. Drain off the fat, and its accurately controlled temperature will do an excellent job on soups, stews, baked beans, creamed dishes, entrees, sauces, candies, cereals, eggs, custards.

• It doubles as an electric chafing dish for Newbergs, rarebits, etc.

- It blanches vegetables for freezing, and cooks foods for canning.
- It bakes potatoes and apples.
- It steams puddings, vegetables, frankfurters.
- It freshens rolls, crisps pretzels and the like, and prepares brownand-serve breads.
- It is a good sterilizer for baby bottles—you'd need no other one.
- It pops corn—by the basketload, and deliciously, in no time at all.

Anything else? Dozens of things your instruction book will name many, but you'll think up other good uses of your own.

THEY'RE EASY TO CARE FOR

Their care involves no big production, but like all electrical appliances, you must treat them with a certain amount of respect. For example, never put the part containing the electrical element into water. The lid, racks, and basket may be washed with your dishes.

A damp cloth wipes the outside to a shiny newness.

Paper toweling does an adequate job on the interior in most cases. If food has burned or dried on the interior, drain out the fat, put enough water in the fryer to cover the hard-to-remove particles, and turn on the heat. Let the water boil a few minutes. If you like, cream of tartar, baking soda, or a detergent may be added to the water.

If the interior becomes discolored, it is perfectly safe to use steel wool or a soap-impregnated pad.

USE THE SHORTENING LONG

Good care of shortening will lengthen its life, and that good care only involves the simple task of filtering the fat after every three or four usings. If you do this, it will stay fresh and smokeless through many fryings. Filtering is easy if you use a kitchen strainer with cheesecloth or a facial tissue. Or you can buy strainers with disposable paper filters that exactly fit over a three pound can of shortening.

You can store used shortening right in the fryer. But of course if you do, you'll be able to use your fryer for frying only.

As to the kind of shortening, all the manufacturers agree that a hydrogenated shortening or vegetable oil is best. Butter, margarine, unprocessed animal fats, olive oil break down too fast for deep-fat frying.

LOVELY ... but something vital is missing

It's a beautiful room but the thing that makes it unlivable is something you can't see—or touch —or sit upon.

The vital missing ingredient is COMFORT. It's either too hot or too cold. The air is either too humid or too dry—drafty or stale because it doesn't circulate properly.

If your home has these comfort defects you can easily cure them and enjoy the greatest luxury any home can have—with a Lennox Perima-flo Heating, or Heating-and-Cooling System—the most modern comfort-producing system known.

Everything about Lennox Perima-flo is different and better. It is scientifically engineered to provide an invisible curtain of gently-moving, conditioned air between the outside weather and you. In winter, it stops outside cold—at the outer walls—in front of windows and doors so no cold can seep in. And, in summer, with Lennox Air Conditioning added to your system, a Lennox curtain of coolness stops summer heat from entering the house.

From wall to wall and from floor to ceiling, the temperature is kept uniformly even, always. And you breathe only fresh, clean, healthful, tempered air, all year round.

The entire development of the Perima-flo principle of indoor comfort was pioneered by Lennox engineers—who have a tradition of 59 years of leadership.

Whether you are planning a new home—or want more comfort in your present home—get in touch with your certified Lennox Dealer. He is a skilled factory-trained home comfort engineer. Get the full story of Lennox comfort—and the easy-pay plan—and you'll get a Lennox—the finest system money can buy.

PLAYROOM Plenty of space for parties, games and TV—without upsetting the rest of the house.

Multiply THE LIVABILITY AND COMFORT

OF YOUR NEW HOME WITH A CONCRETE BASEMENT

LOOFF

Whether you buy or build it's good arithmetic to have a basement. It adds valuable space without subtracting from lot area as above-ground rooms do. It divides your house into two levels that enable you to keep the upstairs clean and new by putting tools and equipment and such activities as dances, parties and games downstairs. Finally, a basement multiplies the livability and comfort of your house.

A basement provides generous space for storage, heating and airconditioning equipment, laundry, workshop, hobby and playroom. It leaves more room for lawn, flowers, outdoor living and playing. It keeps the upstairs warmer and drier and is a cool summer retreat.

A basement is an extra measure of safety, too. It provides an excellent refuge from tornadoes, hurricanes and atomic blasts. This is especially true if, in addition, the first floor is concrete.

Whatever building costs are in your locality, a concrete basement gives you more space for the money than equal area above ground. It needs little maintenance and serves at low annual cost.

To get more information write for the free, illustrated booklets, "Concrete Basements for Homes" and "You Too Will Like a Concrete Home." They are distributed only in the United States and Canada.

"Twenty Questions" Builds a House

winfigspel—that's how the door plate at the home of the Fred Van Deventers reads, and while we're still puzzling it out, the door is opened by pretty Florence Rinard Van Deventer herself. Flashing her famous smile, she explains, "Twintigspel is Dutch for 'twenty questions.' You see, our radio show, 'Twenty Questions,' really built this house for us."

But there's nothing showy or theatrical about the white country home. "We wanted the place to have the feeling of an old farm," says Hoosierbred Fred Van Deventer who, with his wife, planned the single-story, T-shaped home. It nestles cozily among giant oaks on a five-acre woodland tract in New Jersey, far enough from New York to be real country yet within easy commuting distance from their studio.

Outside, we notice the vertical batten construction, roofed with a deep overhang across the front to form a long, family-style porch. Within, we see that the ten rooms are distinctly divided into efficient working, living, and sleeping areas, entirely without wasted space. In the center, everyone who enters is attracted to Florence's sun

Twintigspel is surrounded by five wooded acres complete with an enormous pond, well-stocked with fish. A true rambler, 103 feet overall, the house has separate wings for living, working, and sleeping, plus a breezeway and two-car garage room, the scene of many a family gathering and informal get-together. Large parties can spill into the adjoining living and dining rooms or are held downstairs in the paneled basement TV playroom.

Years ago, it was in search of recreation that the Van Deventers first began playing Twenty Questions. "Those were days when we couldn't afford many evenings out at the theater or movies," Van reminisces, "so we had to rely on the old parlor games for entertainment."

The family's keen wits, plus Florence's gift for informal party-giving, made the game such fun that Van, a radio newscaster in Detroit, took his family on the air with it in 1946. Their son Bob (who was not present when we photographed) was the original juvenile on the show, which went on television in 1949 and has become one of the most popular of programs.

Despite demands of starring on this weekly bout of wits, Florence continues to run her own home. Besides being acclaimed as a cook, as concert pianist, and active clubwoman, she is also an enthusiastic gardener. While she tends the "ordinary old-fashioned flowers" in her formal garden, Van doctors the grass, or practices putting on the green he added last year, just below the terrace.

More of the Van Deventer cleverness is reflected in the rest of the grounds, planned for outdoor games and activities. The house is set atop a slight slope overlooking their three-acre pond which is always well stocked with fish. There's a business-like badminton court, too. So whatever your likes, you are sure to have fun visiting at Twintigspel—a house built by sharing a favorite family pastime with the whole nation.

Delightful 25-foot front porch is formed by wide overhang of the roof over a raised flagstone walk which continues into breezeway overlooking the terrace and pond at back of the property

ith a Razor

MAURINE MYERS REMENTE

ome people reach for their glasses when they read a new magazine. But when I sit down to read, I reach for a razor. This practice started several years ago when I found that my basement was flooded with stacks of old magazines that I didn't want to throw away before I'd had a chance to clip coupons and items I wanted to save. After I had looked at the pile, feeling hopeless. I decided that this was the day I'd start a new system. That's how I took to the razor!

Now, as I peruse each new magazine, I remove miscellaneous items which intrigue me. New recipes, household hints, coupons for interesting booklets, even ads for unusual gifts -all are lifted from the pages with a razor. These clippings then go into a large manila envelope to be filed whenever I find a few free minutes.

For my recipes and household hints I use a metal file that holds 3" x 5" card that I bought through a coupon offer! For larger things, I use a shoebox decorated with wallpaper and sectioned off with dividers from a stationery store. I file under my own private categories, such as cleaning shortcuts, laundering tips, decorating ideas, party games, and table settings. Before starting any major operation, such as house cleaning, I brush up on the how-to-do-it-easier ideas in my files.

But probably my pet project is the gift file. In this are divisions for every member of the family. Other gift classifications include baby shower gifts, wedding gifts, and birthday gifts. As I scan the magazines, any ideas that seem to suit a certain person are clipped and filed under their names. Then when a special occasion arises, the files provide a ready assembled list of suggestions.

Before the razor habit set in, many a frustrating hour was wasted in search of something I knew I had seen but couldn't remember in what magazine or in which issue. Now coupons are clipped, filled out, and sent before I have time to forget.

For many years I flipped so casually through magazines, not realizing the almost inconceivable amounts of money that were spent by publishers and advertisers for the benefit of the reader. I've found my formula a big help in making that money work for me-something that would never happen if the magazines were left molding in the basement.

How to make a Wire Fish

Materials: flat board large enough to accommodate design;
finishing nails; #12 wire for small fish, #9 for larger fish; small hammer; soldering iron;
solder and flux; large washer; file; cutting pliers; copper mesh scouring pad; sandpaper;
black paint and brush

With heavy black pencil trace fish on the board. Suggest a species, but don't get too detailed. Too many soldered joints will weaken the finished piece, so keep design simple. Sketch in the gill line, and indicate a spot for the eye. Eye is made from a washer soldered in place

Drive nails firmly into board, along inside edge of all outlines. Space one-nail length apart, except on sharp curves—there, place nails quite close, permitting wire to curve smoothly around outline

by Long Distance

When you're far away from someone, there's nothing like a telephone call to bring you near. The sound of a warm, familiar voice and the eager exchange of personal news is almost as satisfying as an actual visit.

Near or far, wherever they are, friends appreciate your calling. Long Distance calls cost little—especially after six every evening and all day Sunday. Then you can talk from Cleveland to Detroit for as little as 40¢; Chicago to Omaha for only 85¢; New York to Los Angeles for only $2. (These are the 3-minute, station-to-station rates and do not include federal excise tax.)

Somewhere today there is someone who would like to hear your voice.

YOU SAVE TIME WHEN YOU CALL BY NUMBER. When you're calling out-of-town, it will speed your call if you can give the operator the number you want. It's easier, too.

Make a Wire Fish

Start at mouth and bend wire around outside of nails, back to starting point. Be sure wire is firm and smoothly round with no buckles or bends. If necessary, drive a small nail outside, close to wire, to hold securely in place. Form tail, fin, and gill in same manner

Clean ends of wire with steel wool; coat with paste flux. To make a joint, hold solder against soldering iron until it melts. Then let molten solder flow from iron to meeting point of wires until it fills joint completely. If solder has a rosin core, flux is not necessary

Open copper mesh pad
until it forms a long stocking-like tube. Use
pliers, or heavy shears,
to split tube lengthwise.
Open and stretch over fish body, fitting mesh down over nails. Solder mesh around body, making certain it's firmly bonded.
Remove fish from board,
trim mesh with pliers,
file rough edges smooth

Suspend fish with strong thread and apply flat black paint to both sides. Be careful not to get too much paint on brush or the mesh will fill in and the paint may form unsightly blobs. Dry 24 hours. Repeat painting if necessary

When dry, mount your finished wire sculpture on the wall. This one is hung over a fireplace. To supplement marine motif, we placed a glass seine ball and a segment of fish net on the mantel

They Used Both

OWNERS: MR. & MRS. FRANK R. MILLINGTON

This pleasantly rambling house grew from a smart small core. The Millingtons first built their big living room and bath, and made it double as sleeping quarters. Son Dick slept in a bunk in an alcove, and the kitchen occupied space now used for dining. To the left of this, there was a big garage. After living here long enough to get their second wind, they turned the garage into a big country kitchen with enormous fireplace, and added a pantry-utility room. A pair of very generous bedrooms and a bath were the final additions

Living room opens up into the spacious dining room which served the Millingtons as a kitchen until their new country kitchen was built

Brains and Brawn

NANCY C. LANGLEY

When you sit and dream about building a farm house for yourself, the woolgathering can be delightful—you can change the plans frequently without fear of wasting cash or of unforeseen difficulties. And if you're furnishing your own labor, and bringing no background or experience to the task, you don't have to fear blisters or callouses either—when you change those plans in your dreams. But when you take over a bit of unimproved farmland and set to, it's a different matter. You'd better be equipped with good planning and as much information as you can acquire. Fortunately, the Frank R. Millingtons had both the plans and the information before they started to build the house you see here.

Though Frank had only a high school course in drafting to back them up, they did do most of the building themselves, and Frank even produced some of the furniture. But they took it easy, a bit at a time. They started with a one-room affair—the big living room—plus a kitchen, bath, and garage. Later, the garage became a wonderful country kitchen, a pantry-utility room was added, and they built excellent bedrooms for themselves and their son, Dick.

Both the temporary and the final arrangements worked well, and the building of their house presented even fewer difficulties PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 102

If you can't see much difference between the Before and the After, that too, was part of the plan, for when the Millingtons decided to build their house piecemeal, they started with the big living room, and finished it well. The compromise that they made was to sleep here temporarily until the bedrooms could be added. The windows which at first flanked the fireplace became the doors into the bedrooms

You'd never believe a "Modernfold" door could make a room so much bigger

"The corner behind this closet door was just waste space until we installed a 'Modernfold' door. Now it's my 'vanity corner'—in more ways than one! Not only does a 'Modernfold' door fold within the doorway-freeing the area around the door for more furniture—but it actually turns a closet or doorway into something graceful and decorative...and among the 38 colors we could choose from, we found just the one we wanted!"

Gives you extra years of service, too!

No other folding door has "Modernfold's" "extra" steel construction, with opposing double hinge plates both top and bottom. Notice how "Modernfold" folds evenly along its center line instead of zig-zagging from side to side. This prevents warp and twist—means greater strength, better appearance...and longer life. "Modernfold's" covering—finest obtainable vinyl fabric—needs no paint, washes with soap and water.

Your "Modernfold" distributor is listed under "doors" in your city classified directory. Consult him today—or mail coupon. When planning new construction or remodeling, see your architect. His professional advice can save you money.

than they had anticipated. But before breaking ground, they were well armed with information. First, they found out all about the building ordinances they would have to cope with—what size footing was needed for single dwellings in their area, how many feet higher than the roof the chimney had to be. Such tricky and technical requirements can cost you a lot of time, work and money if you don't know about them to begin with. They also armed themselves with books and manuals which gave them the data they needed about electrical requirements, plumbing, building a good fireplace, etc. They planned to build on a slab, because they found this to be an easy method of construction, and one suited to their area. Before putting it down, they had guide lines in place, and they checked to see that drainage under the floor was good. Next came the setting of frames for the wall studs and roofing. Friends and neighbors helped with this, but people less fortunate might call in professional help for such work. Wood construction is redwood throughout, with commercial mill sashes and doors. Used plumbing fixtures, picked up here and there, were installed. All window and door mouldings and casings were run up by Frank on a secondhand power saw-he'd never used one before but, after having built most of a house, he figured that he could cope with a power tool. Working as a team, the Millingtons installed their own roofing, too-first a layer of 15-lb. felt paper, then 90-lb. composition roofing, put on with hot tar.

When they had their second wind, the Millingtons tackled the additions to their home. But all this had bent their bank account badly, so, when it came to furnishing, Frank pitched in again. He rigged up a carpentry shop, and, with some professional help, he turned out many of the reproduction Welsh dressers, tables, and benches which, together with the antiques they possessed, and the lamps, braided rugs, and coverlets skillfully restored by his wife, give to the interior such a warm and welcoming air.

This 15' x 18' master bedroom, unusually large for a house of this size, was well worth waiting for. Walls are hand-waxed redwood; floors, as in all the rooms, are painted black, waxed, and lavished with antique braided rugs, beautifully restored. Much furniture throughout the house is antique, and only fine reproductions could supplement it. When the cost of building their home prohibited buying such luxuries, Frank Millington set up a workshop and turned out tables, benches, and dressers which are worthy companions to their heirloom possessions

o prove to his wife how easy it was to run a home, Alfred Toombs took over her housekeeping duties. After the first day, he realized why Mother Nature had saved women from beards—"No housewife could possibly find time to shave." At the end of a week he claimed: "Housekeeping is the toughest job I've ever tackled. It uses all the known muscles."

Including imaginative muscles! If a woman goes at it right, she can use her home to exercise her creativity—and be a better housekeeper to boot.

Shopping certainly calls for agile thinking; and the leaner the purse, the more imagination it takes. A husband may look upon meat-buying as a simple routine; but when he sits down to a goulash as tasty as tenderloin but costing far less, he should thank his lucky stars that his wife has used her imagination instead of his dollars. And who ever heard of a good cook not using plenty of ingenuity?

Sometimes, however, a wife may misuse her imagination in regard to her cooking by thinking of herself as an ugly drudge sweating over a hot stove. She should see herself as her mate sees her; for every right-minded husband would agree with Thomas Wolfe: "There is no spectacle on earth more appealing than that of a beautiful woman in the act of cooking dinner for someone she loves."

Cooking calls for idea-begetting questions-such as "what else?" and 'how else?" and also "what other shape?" Mrs. Maynard F. Soule, of New Hampshire, is one of many who have thought up new forms for old foods. When her son celebrated his seventh birthday, she made him a cake in the shape of a train. She pushed back the top layer of one section to slant like a locomotive, frosted its top and sides, then mounted upon it a smokestack made of Lifesavers. The headlight was a bright, red candy. The boxcar was frosted yellow and the caboose red. For the wheels on the engine and on the cars, she used round chocolate cookies.

In thinking up what to cook and how to cook it—in thinking up new ingredients and new shapes—in every aspect, cooking can challenge imagination; and when tackled creatively, it can serve to enliven our minds.

Dishwashing? There's a creative plus to this chore which we men should recognize. We men know that our ideas pop best while we are shaving. The same absence of distraction, the same soothing sound of running water, and heat, likewise tend to help us cook up ideas while doing dishes. I know from experience that many an idea for which I had been groping during the day has come to me while scraping a plate or polishing a goblet.

Not be Humdrum

One of Hollywood's top scripters, stumped for ideas, takes out the family vacuum cleaner and cleans rugs all over the house. This relaxes his imaginative muscles—flexes his mind so that he can go back to his creative chores with renewed power.

Laundry work? Even this offers woman an opportunity to exercise imagination. A woman author told me: "I can do my best creative thinking while ironing. Any activity which keeps the eyes occupied in one spot, while leaving the mind relatively free, is a distinct aid to mental concentration. In a way, it is like fixing the eyes on a single light, as is done in hypnosis."

And laundering is beset with little problems which challenge imagination. For instance, a New Jersey woman loved loopy hooked rugs but detested the marks which clothes pins left on them. So she thought up the new stunt of sewing a four-inch piece of muslin on each side before she put them in the tub.

Bed-making seems like a cut-anddried activity. But even this can be creatively attacked, as was proved by a Buffalo woman. She figured that the average housewife annually walks four miles and spends 25 hours just making one bed; so she thought up a way to cut the distance to a little over a mile and cut the time to 16 hours per year. Here's her plan:

"Start at the head, smooth and tuck in one corner completely, from bottom sheet to bedspread. Move to the foot on the same side, tuck in that corner, and work across the footboard. Now move up the opposite side, from bottom corner to top." This does away with detouring from head to foot and side to side— just one circuit and the bed is made.

Outwitting pests is often a poser to homekeepers. At a summer home in Canada, our hostess put on a "catchthe-ant" contest while we were visit-PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 106

To put it one way—because good design doesn't go "out of style". You see patterns similar to American in collections of antique glassware; American, itself, is the pride of thousands of tables across the country. We've been making it for three generations now, and today the "line" has grown to 180 different shapes — all crafted by hand. Yet American is surprisingly inexpensive. (The pieces shown here range in price from $1.25* to $5.50*.) You'll find it in better stores everywhere — for a charming gift, or for your own pleasure. In open stock because it's made by the Fostoria Glass Company in Moundsville, West Virginia.

ing there. In her kitchen she had hung up a colored scoreboard on which she had listed the seven members of her family, including Sleepy, the long-eared beagle. Penciled checkmarks recorded how many ants each contestant captured each day. Before we left, the mother had 68 ants to her credit; her son Teddy, 53; while Sleepy had just two. There was even some suspicion that Sleepy had had an assist from Teddy.

We can also think creatively on how to make our homes safer and more livable. A neighbor recommends a Comfort Tour, on which a housewife would ask herself: "What could I do to this room to make it cosier? Are ash trays near the chairs? Are pillows where they're needed? Are magazines and books easy to reach? Are lamps of the right height and rightly placed?"

We might well make periodic Safety Tours to check up on wiring, on scatter rugs, on floor wax, on the strength of stepladders, and on anything else that might court accident or fire. The main point is to anticipate. When we notice a pair of shoes on the stairway, we should foresee a loved one tumbling down the steps headfirst.

And prevent it. When we see a carving knife left within easy reach of a child, we should look ahead to what that might mean. When we see piles of newspapers in the cellar, we should hear the sound of a fire siren, and see to it that no engines need rush down the street to our house.

And while we're touring, what about a Beauty Tour? On this round, we should ask ourselves: "What could I do to make this room more attractive? What junk could I discard? Should I rearrange the furniture? Should I get that picture reframed? Could I add a spot of color?"

Rearrangement presents countless alternatives. We can avoid lugging heavy pieces from here to there and back again if we use our creative powers as one woman did. She simply drew a map of each room on a scale of one foot to the inch. Then she cut out pieces of colored paper to represent each piece of furniture, in scale. By moving these about, she could arrive at new layouts without moving any real furniture until she was sure of her plan.

A man and wife could think up at least one new idea a week to make their home more livable. Most of these improvements would be trivial, but they might hit upon something novel, as did Mrs. Anna Schisler. Her kitchen table, sink, and counters varied too much in height; so she bought an old piano stool and painted it white. By raising or lowering this, she can now sit down to her work at just the right level.

In the home of a friend, I noticed that the side of the refrigerator served as a bulletin board. How? Simply by using magnetized discs to hold pieces of paper against the refrigerator's steel wall. The array included shopping lists, memos of appointments, and even clippings of cartoons that might amuse the family.

Sometimes an idea for greater convenience calls for an alteration, like the one thought up by a New York woman whose family harmony was marred by a towel problem. She had her husband construct a linen closet between the bathroom and the bedroom, with an opening into each room. By this simple device she made sure that towels are within reach, even when the bathroom is occupied.

Even baby-sitting can lend itself to creative effort. This claim of mine was challenged by one of my married daughters. She and her husband wanted to attend a dance one Saturday. On Friday evening she seductively approached me: "Daddy, we can't find anybody to sit for us tomorrow night. Why don't you do it as an experiment to prove that baby-sitting can be as creatively productive as you say it can be?" "Okay, I'll do it at the rate of $10 an hour-not to be paid by you, but by someone else," I recklessly boasted. Luckily, I had 24 hours in which to think up that evening's project-writing a piece for a magazine. That triumph puffed me up. But my oride was punctured when I read about 81-year-old Mrs. Fannie G. Smith of Springfield, Mass., who baby-sits about three nights a week. Does she twiddle her thumbs while doing so? No. She invents new designs for mittens, and has scores of original patterns to her credit as a result of combining creativity with custodianship.

Homekeeping is less humdrum when looked upon as a series of creative challenges. The more imagination a woman puts into her domestic arts, the better she succeeds; and by striving to think creatively she can't help keeping herself mentally more alert, and therefore more attractive, as the

We found this old-time rooster painted on a small bar—and thought of 1001 ways he'd look fine. With the aid of our painting pattern, you can apply him to synthetic fabrics using artists' oil paints, or you can deck out cotton fabrics with him in textile paints. Pattern 1507

The motif around the sconce is a second version of the one shown on page 61—it's roses and anenomes instead of roses and cornflowers. Don't overlook its possibilities—for example, above a dado in a hall, dining room, or bedroom, or used as an exquisite border in a feminine bedroom. Painting Pattern 1506

The tiny cross-stitch called "petit point" is an ancient and popular needlecraft which permits smooth outlines and subtle coloring. Use it for table linens in this Chinese motif—lanterns of various colors hanging from flowering branches. Done in mercerized cotton thread, it's washable. Pattern 1483

Patterns, and color, and plenty of it—on your dishes, on your cloths, and even on your flatware! That's the news. As you see, patterns go with solids, or with other patterns—mix them for a casual look, but never mix them casually, for using pattern with pattern requires judgment. These are good examples, fresh as your Easter bonnet, and bound to look smart for much longer. First, we spotted a canny black-and-white rooster on tan grounds, and set him up upon a linen cloth whose gay printed motifs take you on a kitchen tour. Table No. 2 (below) is "in clover" with the first Russel Wright dinnerware to be decorated. The shapes are all svelte, the colors soft and sophistocated, and we poised it on a plain woven placemat. No. 3 features china imported from England—a new blue-bodied ware which resembles Lowestoft. The porcelain-handled cutlery is

English, too. We set it all off by a cloth of the deepest blue. Just to show how far you can go in the mixing of patterns, we experimented with the setting above. But this dinnerware with its gay geometry, and the rose-printed linen cloth are also excellent solo performers.

For something really different, take a look at Table 5. Here are ceramic pieces with a variety of motifs in the most luscious hues: sand with brown spatter glaze, copper, pewter, and woodtones. And when we say "variety," we mean just that. Each piece has a completely separate design relating to its own use -there's a platter (not shown) with a carving-knife-and-fork pattern, a gravy boat that sports a ladle design, and others. Below, it sets on a reversible straw mat in natural color with brown stripes. We're winding up with a ware dressed up with ye olde favorite rim (No. 6), the kind of trim which used to be so formal, and now has a whole realm of new uses. The body of this dinnerware is very sturdy, and it withstands not only breakage. but even high oven heat. We back it up by a harlequin cloth.

YOUR PAINTING CONTRACTOR

t takes a good paint brush to do a good job, and good brushes are expensive. For this reason, the problem of keeping brushes clean, soft, and in good working condition is a matter of great importance to homeowners and craftsmen. A clean brush is more pliable, works more easily and efficiently, and lasts much longer than one that is carelessly cleaned and stored. If a brush is not properly cleaned before it is put away, it may be completely ruined, for the residue of paint usually dries so hard that it is difficult to soften and remove it without seriously damaging the bristles. It only takes a few moments to clean a brush the right way-if you get at it promptly after using the brush. It's quicker, too, because it takes a lot more time and effort to clean a brush that is filled with hard-caked dry paint. When a paint job is interrupted for a few hours or overnight, you can omit thorough cleaning-wipe the brush well, rinse it thoroughly in cleaning fluid, wrap it in heavy paper or several layers of newspaper, and lay it flat. The cleaning solvent will prevent the hardening of the paint until you start to work again.

How to Care for Your Paint

Use the proper solvent to clean your brushes. For oil paint, use turpentine; for lacquer, use lacquer thinner; for shellac, use alcohol; use water for water paints. Press brush with flat side down, forcing liquid well up into heel. Repeat until brush is clean

If dried and hardened paint still tends to cling to the bristles, particularly in the heel of the brush, spread the brush out flat, separate the bristles with your fingers, and carefully scrape the adhering material loose with the flat side of a knife blade

As the twirling operation may have tangled up the bristles, they should be straightened out from the heel toward the tip before the brush is stored. Use a paint brush comb as shown here. You can buy one at a local paint or hardware store for a nominal sum

For long-time storage, wrap the brush in heavy paper about five times as long as the brush width, and twice as wide as the length from ferrule to bristle tip. Fold the paper from the bristle tips to the top of ferrule, wrap brush completely, and tie with string MORE ON PAGE 120

Rinse the brush again in solvent and twirl the handle rapidly in the palms of your hands (with the bristle end down) to force out the rest of the cleaning solvent. Do this in a jar or a pail to Save the solvent for future cleaning operations. Pour the used liquid in a jar, cover and let it settle 24 hours. Then pour the clean part off for use next time you paint

Children are always welcome in this lovely kitchen

When you're preparing meals, children seem to pick that particular time to make the kitchen their headquarters. As a result, a routine job can turn into a trying task. This can be easily remedied by separating your kitchen into a cooking section and a dining area. An open-shelved unit lets you keep an eye on the children, gives them the feeling of belonging, and keeps them away from the dangers of hot stoves and spilled foods.

On both sides of the room, the floor of Armstrong's Linotile helps make kitchen living easier. Where the children play, Linotile takes a lot of abuse from tracked-in dirt and scuffing feet, but that's where it really proves its durability. It will last for years without showing wear, for the design goes all the way through the tiles. It's also the easiest of all Armstrong Floors to maintain.

For the cooking area Linotile is also the ideal floor. Being greaseproof, its lustrous surface is unharmed by fats and cooking oils. Linotile should not be confused with linoleum cut into squares. Special processing makes it tougher, longer lasting. See your local Armstrong merchant soon for an estimate on a floor of Armstrong's Linotile for your home.

Send post card for free booklet. It gives you complete information about Armstrong's Linotile. Floor above is Armstrong's Linotile No. 173, with 3-inch strips of No. 174 and No. 177. For a floor plan and list of furnishings, write to Armstrong Cork Co., Floor Div., 5403 Plum St., Lancaster, Pa.

ROBERT NOLAN

Our house is known by the natives as the only house in these parts to have the garage on the third floor, the living room on the second floor, and the mailbox on the roof. It was built, despite pro-Colonial subdivision prejudice, on the site of the stable of a once-grand estate that reeked with a tradition of lost fortunes and burnt houses. Our lot was number 13—the last to be sold—and contained a 30-inch-thick retaining wall that ran neatly through the center of the property. Anyway, we built on the wall, and used the concrete stable floor as a foundation, pouring a three-inch topping for our finished floor. For seasoned building material, we bought up old framing lumber from a wrecked house, and when passersby saw us using old lumber, it just strengthened their original opinion of anyone who would buy such a lot for a home.

The house plan was determined by three factors: the excellent view down our hillside, the sloping lot, and the necessity for two potential main entrances if visitors approached away from the garage-side. At present, the house is approached over a cantilevered concrete extension of the garage floor, past three Japanese-type wood carvings on the carport wall—namely, those old characters, "Seeno," "Hearno," and "Speakno." Ten steps inside lead down to the living room, where essentials for raising our children are on one level. The lower floor is unfinished (we use it as an attic might be used) and it provides an extra room and a large porch which is our "destructive" room—here we let the children "express" themselves.

ARCHITECTS: THOMAS J. NOLAN AND SONS, A.I.A., LOUISVILLE, KY.

The walk to the front door from the garage is protected by a rail. The children can step right outside from their bedrooms, through the door at right

DONALD K. FOOTE

After six months in a two-room apartment had convinced my lovely wife and me that we had to have a place of our own with outdoor space in which to relax and play, we scanned many magazines devoted to homes and gardening, and soon found ourselves minus our savings, but the proud possessors of an 1885 vintage house and lot. Dirty and run-down, it was not a home, but it was solidly built and had character. A few months of cleaning, painting, papering, etc. turned it into as friendly and snug a little home as any two people could ask for.

Outdoors, in the front, was a lawn with quite satisfactory flower borders. But the backyard was a mess, a terrible tangle of weeds, berry vines, and trash within precariously leaning fences. However, we had space to work with and, under the rubbish, rich black topsoil. Most of the magazine pictures we had studied suggested country estates, but from them we learned the principles of landscaping, and we finally worked out a plan incorporating what we wanted in our garden, namely: (1) privacy; (2) a paved area protected from the cold Pacific Ocean winds; (3) a storage shed; (4) a large lawn; (5) a few fruit trees; (6) a border area for plants; (7) an ornamental barbecue that would double as a safe trash burner; (8) a service area and clothes-drying yard. (At first we thought that we had only to go to a nursery occasionally, buy a plant or shrub, bring it home and plant it where we thought it would look nice. Our garden, as planned and worked out, proved how ridiculous such a method would have been.) After drawing a scale plan of the area, we began doodling with curves as advised in the books, making dozens of layouts before, at last, a master plan was evolved. Later, as we cleaned up the yard, we decided that, doing all the work ourselves, we would grow vegetables the first year, thus destroying the weeds as they appeared, and preparing the soil for later planting. To prevent soil-washing and run-off, we terraced the site for our shrubs and flowers, but left the lawn area slightly sloping. Five dogs in adjoining yards made fences a must, but to avoid a boxed in effect, we painted them green, put the paved patio in one rear corner to round it off, and moved the tool shed from near the house, where it blocked the kitchen view of the garden, to the other corner and painted it green, too. For a windbreak along one side, we built a low fence and planted a privet hedge (that will in time obscure it); someday, only the tops of trees on neighboring yards will be visible above it, giving an illusion of forest plus the privacy and wind control we sought. Already, in a bustling metropolis, we enjoy relaxation, outdoor living, and beauty.

Like people, flowers need love and care to thrive . . . and that includes a balanced diet.

Take geraniums, for instance. Two identical plants can be potted at the same time, treated to the same sun, moisture, organic fertilizer. But if, at the time of potting, half a spoonful of FTE is mixed in the soil for one of them, what a difference it makes. You get healthier, greener leaves, more and bigger blooms.

FTE stands for "Fritted Trace Elements" . . . in other words, essential minerals in slow-soluble form. They are to plants what vitamins are to people. Mix FTE in the soil when you plant seeds.

Because of the slowsoluble feature, the growing plants will continue to get the essential minerals that they need all season long.

The same thing is true for rosebushes and shrubs. When you plant ... or transplant them ... add FTE to the soil. Come blossomtime, they'll pay for their balanced mineral diet in size, number and color of blooms. That's because FTE provides iron, manganese, copper, zinc, boron and molybdenum, all needed for healthy growth.

Ask your dealer about FTE...distributed in 1-lb. to 50-lb. packages through E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc. Normal application is 1-lb. per 400 sq. ft. Some commercial fertilizers come with FTE already added...the label will tell.

How to make a

Cardboard Nursery

f you, too, dislike to throw away the cardboard food containers available in every kitchen, why not use them for rooting cuttings of favorite plants or growing seedlings of new ones? Ice cream cartons, and cereal and dog biscuit boxes are handy types, and a simple waterproofing operation will make them last for several months even when filled with soil. If, when you set the plants outdoors, you plant container and all (so as not to disturb the root system), it will gradually disintegrate. But be sure to work some high-nitrogen plant food into the soil around it to feed the microorganisms that hasten its decay.

To prepare those that are too large, simply cut them down to three or four inches high, punch several quarter-inch drainage holes around PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 132

The lusty fuchsia cutting shown above is growing happily in an inexpensive, durable container made by coating a discarded ice cream carton with melted paraffin—the kind used to cover glasses of jelly, etc.—as pictured. Melt it in any convenient receptacle until fluid, quickly immerse all parts of container, then set aside to dry

What a wonderfully simple way to become Successful Gardeners

First, we planned our complete garden with the help of Ferry's Home Garden Guide.

 Like so many other home gardeners, this young couple is taking advantage of Ferry-Morse experience of 98 years.

Ferry's Home Garden Guide is crammed with "short-cut" tips on how to get soil ready for successful flower and vegetable seed planting.

We never thought of buying anything but Ferry's Seeds.

Smart folks! When the difference in cost for a complete garden is only a few pennies, they know it pays to buy the best—Ferry's Seeds. It was easy to put in our Ferry's Seeds.

A loose, porous, absorbent mixture of soil, sand, and peat moss or vermiculite makes a good seed bed as well as a good rooting medium for cuttings of herbaceous plants or woody sorts, such as roses. Make cuttings three to eight inches long with a very sharp knife. Cut diagonally, just below a bud or eye; remove all the leaves from the lower half, and some of those from the upper portion; and thrust the cutting half its length into the moist, but not sopping wet, soil. To keep the soil (and the air around the cutting) moist, cover with a preserve jar, plastic cover, or other convenient device, and place the container in a shaded, not too warm place until new leaf and shoot growth shows that rooting has taken place. Then, if the season permits, set it in a sheltered spot in the garden until the plant is large enough to go in its permanent position .-- C. C. CHUVAX nother plant-protecting trick that A can be performed with the familiar, already paraffin-treated, square milk container, devised by Eagle Boy Scout Don Newman of California, is reported by ROBERT GILMORE.

Don cuts both the bottom, and about two inches of the top from the old cartons and sets the bottomless boxes over his young plants to protect them from cutworms. But then he thrusts a thin wooden stake or label inside one edge of the container and slips the top portion of the container down over it, making a slit just big enough to take the stake. The lid thus serves as a shade or parasol on hot, sunny days. And if a cold or frosty night threatens, he simply slides the cover farther down on the stake so the little plant is snugly enclosed as long as the threat of frost injury continues. Then he slides it up again.

pring means planting time. So it is in order to remember, first, that proper soil preparation and seed sowing are vital to crop success; also, that despite all mechanical aids and gadgets now available, the old-fashioned hand methods are still efficient, even if not as speedy or spectacular. Even if your equipment doesn't include the latest labor savers, you can still, with spade or spading fork, rake, hoe, and willing muscles, get completely satisfying results.

We'll assume that your ground has been dug over at least spade deep (or plowed and harrowed, or rotary-tilled if the area warrants), and a dressing of manure or compost has been turned under in the process. Also, that you have raked the surface to a good seedbed, working in plant food and lime if the need of either or both was revealed by physical examination or chemical test. Now for the four steps illustrated and numbered here.

1. Mark the row with a line stretched taut between two stakes, and open a furrow, using as much of the corner of the hoe blade as necessary to make it the right depth. Keep PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 134 close to the line but don't push it aside and get a wavy trench.

2. Follow the line carefully in scattering seed thinly and uniformly. Regular spacing now will simplify thinning of the young plants later on.

3. You can cover the seed with soil as is, but a thin covering of compost, leaf mold, or peat moss first will give the seeds a real boost by retaining moisture around them, providing a good rooting medium, and making it easier for the seedlings to emerge.

4. Firm the soil (or compost) cover by treading the row, for close contact between seed and moist earth makes for quicker germination and growth. Finally, rake a little loose soil over the row to serve as a mulch and retard evaporation and drying.

Amaryllis

for gifts, and, maybe, enjoy the thrill of originating a new variety good enough to propagate and introduce.

To supplement the pictorial directions: the amaryllis likes best a porous, sandy, slightly acid soil, such as a mixture of equal parts loam, sand, and leaf mold or compost; but it is generously tolerant, so use what you have. The roots are fleshy and tender, so if you loosen the soil at all, don't go deep. The normal growth cycle starts in midwinter when a mature bulb sends up its flower stalk. At this time, water enough to keep the soil moist, not wet; give more during the flowering period.

If you want to raise seed rather than buy it, use a small brush to transfer some pollen from one of the dusty stamens to the central, sticky pistil of the same or another flower which will start to fade within a few hours. (An unpollinated bloom, on the other hand, will keep in good condition for days.) The receptacle at the base of the flower will swell and grow into a pod in a month or so; when it ripens, collect and plant the seed as directed on page 48. Then (or when the last flower fades if none was pollinated) cut the stalk back to an inch or so and induce good leaf growth all summer so as to build up food and energy for another season's flowers. The plant can be put in the garden (in or out of the pot) until fall, or kept in any bright, sheltered place indoors.

In the case of seedlings, until one flowers, it is best to keep it growing steadily and not give it an autumn rest. As soon as it is three to four inches tall, it can receive an increasing amount of sunlight and an occasional light feeding with your favorite house plant fertilizer. The plants are not temperamental and need no babying, only a repotting in fresh soil (done carefully so as not to injure the roots) whenever the pot seems definitely small for the growing bulb. An inch of clearance all around is just about right. When the first bloom appears, its beauty will repay you for all your time and work.

Going back to the old plant that has flowered and been carried through the summer, lift (and pot it if necessary) and take it indoors before frost touches it. Withhold water, remove leaves as they dry, and put the pot in a cool, dry place until December; or until new growth appears, showing that the bulb has "rested" enough. Then treat it as you would a newly bought and freshly planted one, controlling the development of the flower stalk by increasing or decreasing the heat and moisture supply. Anything up to 75° F. is all right, but a fairly steady 65° will give more gradual, and longer lasting, beauty.

Build your own Flagstone TERRACE

lagstones make handsome terraces-and more people can now profit by that fact, thanks to the technique suggested herewith. Usual methods of installing such terraces are too difficult for most amateurs, and having professionals do it is expensive because of the amount of skilled labor required. But there is a way to make your own terrace even if you've never seen a mason's trowel. It's called the "dry method," and it doesn't even need special tools. No complicated cement work is involved, and anyone can do a good job of it using regular garden tools, a broom, and a hose. You'll get results which look professional for no more than the cost of the stone, cement, and sand that you use.

First, level the spot selected for the terrace. If winters are heavy, it is advisable to put in a bed of cinders or coarse sand to prevent frost heave from cracking the work. Give the whole area a slight pitch so that rain water will drain off in a suitable direction; then cover with a layer of sand about two inches deep, maintaining the same pitch. Set in the stones, leveling them by working them into the sand, and push sand under any unsupported points to make stones firm. Mix mortar as described on page 138, and add coloring if desired. Then work mortar in between the stones with a broom, and sweep off excess. Wet it down several times with fine spray to make cement set.

Whether you use a sand or cinder base (a must if you get heavy winter freezing), be sure to grade in a slight pitch for terrace drainage. A rake used upside down makes the job easy

Build Your Terrace

(Begins on page 137)

After the base is leveled and pitched, lay down the stones. Fit them together as their shapes permit, but leave a gap of at least a half inch all around each stone. For over-all leveling, place a two-by-four on each end of terrace, and a third board across the other two will indicate any high or low spots. If necessary, work additional sand under stones to make them firm

Mix cement, sand, and color without water. Use 1:2 mix of cement and fine sand, or 1.3 mix with coarse sand. Add color to suit your taste. Sweep mixture over flagstones with a push broom and work it well down into the cracks until all gaps are filled and level. Then sweep extra mix off the surface of the terrace before wetting down

Use an ordinary garden hose, with the nozzle set for a fine spray, to wet down the sand and cement mixture. At the same time, wash the stones clean of any mix which remains on their surfaces. Without flooding the terrace, repeat the wetting down several times at intervals of about fifteen minutes. It's a good idea to dampen the terrace once or twice a day for the following week to help the mortar to cure. It isn't entirely necessary, but it will make the mortar stronger and will help to keep cracks from appearing later on t began after a Garden Club meeting at which a woman spoke on "Slips in the Kitchen." My wife apparently drank it all in, and from then on, human habitation was no longer the prime destiny of the structure I had long cherished as Home.

First, the kitchen became a chapel for something called a "prayer plant." "See," my wife pointed out one night. "See, how it folds its little leaves as evening softly falls."

Next, came the unearthing of our large, substantial bowl containing a green and white striped snake-plant, given us eight years before as a housewarming present. A symbol of longsuffering survival, it was just the thing for our household, being so heavy that neither cats nor children could knock it over. It had even lived through the onslaughts of our catbefore-last, who insisted on making her bed in it, scattering soil helterskelter as she scooped out its gritty depths to fit her form. Once, when she took a new batch of babies there, five of the plants in the clump were prostrated and earth was peppered over a newly painted shelf nearby. With the cat family removed to the cellar, my wife salvaged, and repotted the plant victims, and was delighted with the results. Thus she was ripe for the Garden Club advice.

One evening, arriving home after a hard day, I found my daughter burning the hamburgers and potatoes and my wife at the sink absorbed in PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 140

Sure, there's a little bit of Homer in all of us. Gardening just wouldn't be gardening if you couldn't get excited about new things.

But in gardening, too, it's also nice to have some "old reliables" to fall back on. Tried and true varieties of roses, for example. Also Vigoro—complete, balanced plant food.

Vigoro just had to be good to get where it is. And each year, we make it better than the year before. That's why today, amateur and expert gardeners have made Vigoro the best-known and most-used plant food in the world. What better proof of quality could you ask for?

There are now two kinds: Regular Vigoro . . . and new Instant Vigoro that's soluble in water. Both can make any plant grow and thrive even in plain sand.

operations with knife, spoon, flower pots, and plants. Her attention arrested by my ejaculations, she explained that she was "separating the Sansevieria—snake-plant to you," adding, "Do you realize that it has been growing in the same bowl for more than eight years?"

"Well, why not? It's a good bowl; not even chipped," I observed.

"What? Eight years in one pot? Disgraceful! But I've been doing something about it." And she led me proudly to the back hall where, beside the ski rack, were 15 flower pots tufted with leaves of the thing we were talking about. "After a while, when they've rooted," she observed, "I'll move them to where we can enjoy them." . . . That proved to be my desk, the dining and living room window sills, and shelves beside where the bowl had stood. She was going to paint the shelves in "a day or two," but after some months had passed, I did it. Meanwhile, my wife brought home some more slips—of what she said was Cissus rhombifolia. A few weeks later she cried gleefully, "Yes, they're all growing! Now I'm ready for some real slips."

"Slipsonia be damnetoides!" I retorted in garden club lingo. "What are you slipping over on me? Is this a home or a botanical garden? And if these things that are overrunning the place aren't slips, what are they?"

"Oh, they're slips, all right, but not a true test of the green thumb. Next come geraniums, and after that, African-violets . . . And Jeremy, just think. Peggy Jones grows those without even knowing how she does it; and she's so dumb at bridge. It's very economical."

"When you have a good partner," I murmured absent-mindedly, whereupon she said severely, "I mean slipping plants,"

I saw what she meant—ten or more plants for the price of one. But there was always that One that had to be bought. Also, as I tried to point out, we didn't need any more with those 15 snake-plants on hand. "Oh, but they're all of one kind," she protested, "and the joy of growing plants indoors is to see if you can succeed with a lot of kinds."

And you will too, once you try the LAWN-BOY. Its improved features take the problems out of lawn tending. Be sure you own one of these aluminum LAWN-BOY power mowers. They're America's best known. The deluxe 18-inch model costs about $89.95.

LAWN-BOY

Many a Slip

I had another idea. Why not sell some of the Sansevierias and get money to buy other plants with. That, I suggested hopefully, would save her all the trouble of this slip business. From the glance she gave me, I might have been a cutworm. "Trouble? What do you mean? It's Fun. There's a whole book on it-House Plant Slipping Is Fun. And the lecturer said there's nothing so soulcleansing as tussling with Nature." ... So in came a scent-leaved geranium (to the tune of $1.75) whose three dozen leaves were soon removed and potted to grow into individual new plants. (And darnedifolia, if they didn't-in time!) Thus the rest of the kitchen, the pantry, and my den windows were soon given over to wrinkly leaves that smelled like lemon if you pinched them—which I was told not to do. And then Africanviolets took over such remaining windows as would afford them morning light. They proved tricky, less docile. But when even three took hold, my wife cackled like a hen that has laid a velvet egg. She had succeeded! The Garden Club would be so proud of her. And she could try some other methods, afterwards.

"After what?" I asked innocently. When she replied "After we sell these," my heart leaped and I thought if only more men could know the joy of having an advice-taking wife. I congratulated her and offered to help. "When do we start?" I said. "Oh, Jeremy, that's wonderful," she cried. "I knew you'd be interested. I'll let you know about the sale as soon as the club decides."

"But what has the Garden Club got to do with it?"

"Why, everything," she chirped. "Our expenses have been terrific this year, and we must do something to raise money. You see, we want to get Rosemary Flowers as lecturer next year—on 'Exotic House Plants that Even a Husband Can Grow.'"

I staggered out to the kitchen. Evening was softly falling and the prayer-plant was folding its "dear little leaves." "All right, you pray, little plant, and I'll pay," I murmured. "Twixt root and tip, there's many—too many—a slip."

To you're going to buy a house. Like anything else it takes judgment and a knowledge of what to look for in terms of condition, quality of workmanship, and grade of materials used. Styling we'll leave to you.

Starting from the outside, check the foundation. If it isn't well constructed, the whole house will suffer. The walls should extend at least 18 inches above ground, be of uniform thickness, and have a smooth surface. Holes, uneven spots, or broken corners indicate poor workmanship or the use of inferior concrete. Pick at the wall with a pocket knife-if it powders easily, you'll know it is a poor grade and may cause trouble. Check the foundation for vertical cracks at the same time. Cracks (other than thin, almost unnoticeable ones) indicate that the house has settled because the foundation was not set on secure footings.

If your choice is a wooden house, first thing to check is the condition of the exterior paint. Worn, chipped, or stained paint means that the cost of a paint job should be added to the purchase price of the house. If there are blisters, an expensive job of scraping will have to be done, and the blisters also indicate either a leak in the roof or gutters, or that moisture has condensed on the back surface of the siding. Such a condition can cause siding and framing to rot.

If shingles are used on the walls or roof, look for warps and splits, and check the grain. Edge-grained shingles are superior to, and will outlast, the flat-grained variety. Measure the amount of exposure—the less, the better; a 24-inch shingle should not be exposed more than II inches, and a 16 inch, not more than 71/2 inches. All shingles should be attached with rustproof nails.

Stucco walls should be free of cracks, crazing, and discoloration, for any of these defects may mean that a resurfacing job will be necessary.

Brick and stone should be checked for cracks and to see that they are well pointed. If the mortar doesn't come out almost to the surface of the masonry, leaks which can only be corrected by an expensive tuck-pointing job are likely to develop. Also, look for surface deposits of white salts (efflorescence) which are caused by moisture penetrating the wall and dissolving the salts in the masonry. If such a condition exists, it often indicates leaks in the roof, leaks around the doors and windows, or that the flashing is not doing a proper job of diverting water.

All flashing, gutters, and downspouts should be of rustproof metal, and the downspouts should have splash blocks or should empty into dry wells or drains to divert water away from the basement after a heavy rain.

If possible, investigate the basement after a heavy rain to see if it remains dry. Waterproofing is at best time consuming, often expensive, and sometimes impossible on an existing house. Walls and floor should be free of cracks and, preferably, should have smooth surfaces. Vertical support columns in the basement should be of masonry or steel construction to give lasting support to the floor above. Look up at the beams supporting the floor. The joists should be x 8", or larger, on 16" centers, with girders at right angles if the span supported is great. While you are still in the basement, see if there are any signs of termites or rodents, particularly around windows and at the top of the foundation.

leating and hot-water equipment should be of sufficient size to service the house and any further additions that you may plan. If the heating plant is not to your taste, add the cost of a new plant to the house price.

The best plumbing is brass or copper, and will last almost indefinitely. Galvanized pipe will last fairly well if the local water is not too corrosive. Check the water taps to see if the pressure is good and continuous. Fixtures, tubs, and sinks should be sufficiently modern not to need replacing for esthetic reasons.

Upstairs, check the attic roof for leaks and water stains that may mean you'll need to re-roof. If the attic isn't insulated, you may have to add in this further cost, depending upon the climate and your needs.

Check all doors and windows for tight fit and for easy operation. See if screens and storm sash come with the house-they are expensive to buy and have fitted. Plaster ceilings and walls should be free of cracks (which indicate settling of the house) and from stains (which indicate roof or plumbing leaks). Floors should be either hardwood or covered with an evenly laid composition flooring.

Few houses that have been in use will be in perfect condition, but if you check the structure carefully, you will be able to estimate exactly how much it will cost you to get the house into tiptop condition.

Suppose YOUR bathroom goes out of service

Between your house and the street is a buried pipe line — your house sewer. If that fails, so does your bathroom. During the war cast iron, the time-proved material for soil pipe, was hard to get. Non-metallic substitutes were used, and frequently they fail through crushing, settling, root-penetration. Note the picture of non-metallic pipe crushed out of shape by soil settling. Today there is plenty of cast iron, and you do not have to use any substitute. Read the illustrated story of plumbing drainage in the booklet offered below. Prevent the failure of your home sanitation. If you build a new house or replace a house sewer, always insist on

Living room has the darndest built-in you ever saw, for the bulkhead of stairs leading to the lowest level provides a large table surface and a wide shelf behind the sofa

The dining room is off by itself—but it is really part of the living room. The built-in cupboard above the table is a boon to the accessibility of china and glassware

This open planning makes good sense for large-scale entertaining in a small-scale house. The master bedroom is separated from the living room by the fireplace wall and by sliding flush-panel doors (open when this photograph was taken). Thus the bedroom's area can be added to that of the living room when a big party is in progress. To give the bedroom a living-room air, the space was so arranged that the beds can be lined up against the walls

CLOROX makes linens more than white... it makes them sanitary, too!

Yes, Clorox-clean linens look better because Clorox bleaches really white, snowy-white. And Clorox-clean linens are safer for family health. No other home laundering product equals Clorox in germ-killing efficiency!

Besides a better-looking, safer wash, Clorox gives you a deodorized wash. And Clorox conserves your cottons and linens. It's extra gentle on fabrics, free from caustic, made by an exclusive, patented formula. And Clorox, a liquid, contains no undissolved gritty particles to damage wash and washer!

A Clorox-clean kitchen is a compliment to you!

There's not only pride there's protection in having your dishcloth, drainboard, sink and floor Clorox-clean. For Clorox is more than a stain remover and deodorizer in routine cleaning . . . it is also one of the world's great, non-poisonous disinfectants. See label directions for the many uses of Clorox . . . America's favorite!

When it's CLOROX-clean . . . it's SAFER for family health!

Look...it's new!

Formica is the wonder surface that can bring new color, new life, and new cheer to your tired drab kitchen. Your remodeling plans may call for a major overhaul like the illustrated kitchen or simply replacing rotted, worn-out sink and cabinet tops. Either way it's beautiful, colorful Formica that changes "before" to an "after" that's fun to live with for many, many years.

Formica is unharmed by boiling water, alcohol, fruit acids, and cleaning alkalies. Its super-smooth surface wipes clean with a damp cloth — never rots — resists scratching and staining.

Look in your classified phone book under "plastics" for the name of a Formica fabricator who can work this miracle in your kitchen.
