What makes Heirloom Sterling so special??

There seem to be as many reasons as there are brides who love this fine solid silver! The youth-fulness of Heirloom* Sterling patterns is enormously appealing—original, yet timeless. And every piece is made to be used with loving pride. The graceful knife handle is forever wedded to the blade . . . in fact, Oneida Ltd.

re are will replace any Heirloom Sterling knife that youth-ever loosens or separates!

Now—the wonderful new "Six-plus-One" place setting gives you all the usual six pieces, plus an extra teaspoon—at a special placesetting price. In all the Heirloom Sterling patterns, at a store near you!

For more pleasure from family room and workshop, muffle the noise Beautiful new ceiling softens the sounds of parties and power tools.

Install it yourself — a free booklet tells how

You can tone down the noise of your home workshop with Armstrong Cushiontone. This modern ceiling soaks up the sound of power tools before it becomes racket and costs little more than an ordinary ceiling. With Cushiontone, you can quiet a fourteen-foot by sixteen-foot room yourself for less than $50.

Entertaining is more relaxed when your family room is sound conditioned with Armstrong Cushiontone. No longer will scuffling feet, shrill voices, and blaring TV build into nerve-jangling din. Good looking as well as quiet, Cushiontone in the new Full Random styling will add a lot of luxury to your room. Cushiontone's washable white paint finish is easy to clean, and it can be repainted as often as you like.

It's easy to install the 12" x 12" Cushiontone tiles by either nailing or cementing. Whether you do it yourself or want a professional job, see your local Building Products Dealer for advice and supplies. He'll be glad to help you plan your job.

now I know what to get him for Father's Day!

"Right now — while he's hauling out that last load of ashes for this Spring — I'm calling our heating contractor to order a Father's Day gift — a new heating system. Think of it! No more furnace-tending, no "hot-'n-cold" living like we've had this past winter!"

And, to make doubly sure your new heating system delivers the steady heating comfort it was engineered to provide, ask your heating contractor to install Penn Heating Controls. The new Penn horizontal room thermostat maintains temperature within one degree. Its amazing "weather sense" anticipates temperature changes before they occur and immediately compensates for them.

If you're buying a new heating system, or modernizing your old one, insist on Penn, the "think-ahead" thermostat that ends "hot-'n-cold" living.

PLEASE—Small children, first! We all rejoiced at the successful report on the Salk polio vaccine—and, naturally, we all want our dear ones protected—but, remember, the demand still far exceeds the supply. Children and expectant mothers should have priority. Don't jeopardize their supply. Don't pay black market prices. Everyone's turn will come!

CARPET IS SO EASY TO CARE FOR

With soft beautiful carpet, you can sing "goodbye forever" to scrubbing and waxing hard floors. Carpet is so easy to "pick up" and keep clean. A whisk of your vacuum keeps it delightfully fresh and full of life...so lovely to look at, you feel that extra thrill of pride in your home.

But there's so much more in carpet than meets the eye. Carpet brings relaxing peace and quiet, soft friendly warmth, cozy comfort—an atmosphere of hominess and security that makes every member of your family feel "there's no place like home." Today, more than ever, your family will appreciate the quiet comfort and restfulness of carpet.

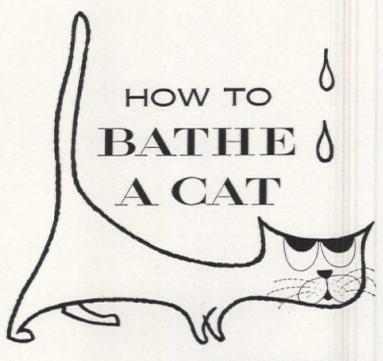

Lovely, long-wearing carpet costs far less than you think. And it's so easy to buy on convenient budget terms. So why not start enjoying it now? Ask your dealer to show you the wonderful colors and textures of today's new rugs and carpets.

CHAFFEE KING CASTLETON

It is comical, and a little sad, to see the lengths that some people will go to bathe their cat. Also the lengths they will go not to bathe their cat. It's hard to say who looks upon the operation with greater repugnance—owner or beast.

I know of one lady who spends a lot of painstaking time tying wads of cotton cloth around each of her cat's feet. These come off promptly. She then precipitates both herself and cat into a life-and-death bout in the kitchen sink, with frustrating results, to say the least. Before you can say "Dick Whittington's cat" she finds herself scratched and bloody, soaked with water, and in tears. The cat is wet, mad, scared to death. The kitchen is sopping.

There is, however, a more enlightened school of thought. One which follows the mind-over-matter, or man-over-cat, philosophy. This school observes the following tenets:

- r. Have only four inches of water in the tub. (Otherwise the cat gets the engaging idea he is about to be drowned.)
- 2. Have the water at room temperature. (Even when not serving claret.)
- 3. By petting and fondling, get the cat in a relaxed, trusting frame of mind. (This can be accomplished if he hasn't heard the water running, or seen the purposeful gleam in your eye.)
- 4. Holding him firmly but gently with one hand, suds him all over with the other. If he struggles, lift him out immediately. Place him on a towel on your lap. Pet him. Fondle him. (If you can, at this point, make him think you have other designs than drowning him, to you goes the crocheted bathtub. If he purrs, we add the mink-lined washbasin.)
- 5. Put him back; finish your task. Never lift his feet up to immerse his body. He must be able to stand at all times. (Of course we won't guarantee where he stands; it is usually on your chest.)

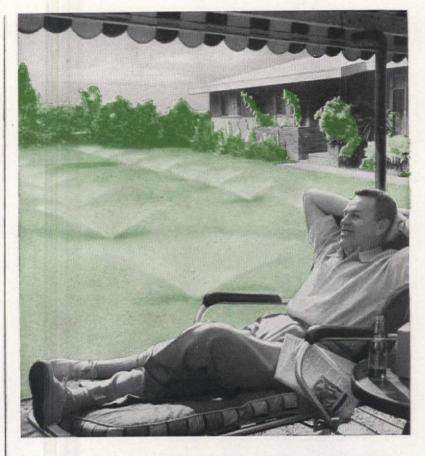

Having tried this dubious system for a quarter of a century, I have now evolved, through trial and error, a foolproof method:

Stand the cat on the lawn, in no water at all, thus relieving you both of anxiety. Rub his coat all over with a cloth immersed in a pan of suds, prepared earlier. This way, one can get the fur as clean as a pelt in a furrier's window—without having the cat at any time in closer contact with the hated element. Then take a damp, clean cloth and "rinse" him of the suds, still with no water touching his sensitive skin. Wash his head with a damp washrag, careful to bring no soap near his eyes. You can likewise successfully wash his ears. Let him skip off, to dry himself on a sunny lawn. When you catch him again, comb out the loose hairs, and he will gambol around you with delight. Then, of course, the finale: in a spasm of gratitude he will roll round and round in a nice dust bath of his own choosing. This is to discourage fleas, and drive his owner crazy.

UNDERGROUND LAWN SPRINKLING SYSTEM

 N^{o} more hose to haul. No more shifting sprinklers. No more wet feet.

Water your lawn right as rain with a permanent, all-weather Goodyear Underground Sprinkling System you can install yourself.

Because it's all-rubber this Goodyear system won't rust, rot, or clog with scale. Withstands freezing conditions. Soil conditions or fertilizers don't bother it. Just bury it and forget it for years and years.

Because it's all-rubber it's the easiest system in the world to install. All you need is a knife and a spade. No trenches to dig.

And it fits any gardening budget. The material for a 10-head system to cover a 20 x 50-foot lawn may cost as low as $37.50. And you can pay for your Goodyear system with a home improvement loan.

Your hardware or garden-supply store can give you all the information you need to plan your Goodyear system. Drop in today or write for free literature to Goodyear, Industrial Products Division, Box 63, Akron, Ohio.

DO IT YOURSELF-IT'S THIS EASY

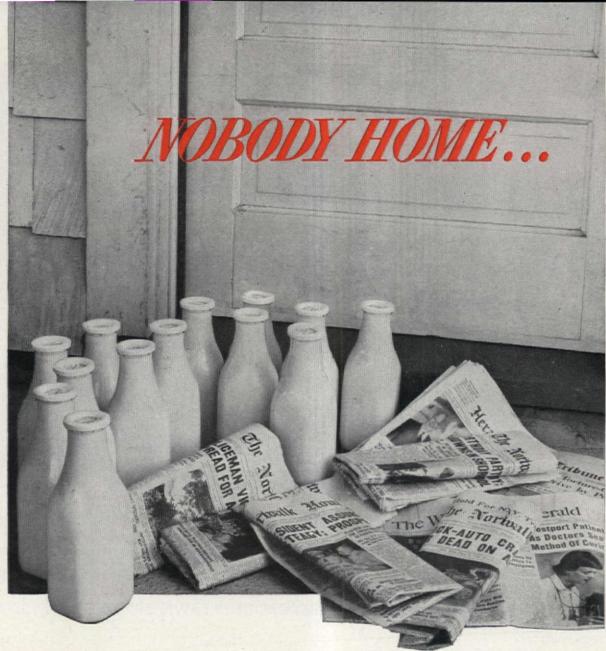

FIRST, plan system. Mark sprinkler-head locations with stakes. Lay rubber pipe along stakes.

NEXT, cut pipe at stakes. Roughen ends. Cement fittings to pipe. Tie heads to stakes.

THEN, test system. Untle heads. Slit ground 6-8 inches deep. Sink system, heads ground-level. Tamp.

HAZEL MeGINNIS

Welcome Thief!"

Tell neighbors where you can be reached. Ask them to call police if they notice anything suspicious of contentment. It was good from vacation! With a sweeping gesture, my husband threw open the door. We gasped—our home had been ransacked! Drawers were open, contents strewn about—even the refrigerator door was ajar! After the first shock of disbelief, we called the police, who shook their heads, then asked questions: How long had we been gone? Just what had been taken? Had we notified the police that we planned to be gone, so that their patrol car could make periodic checks? Who was taking care of our mail—and of other give-away signs of our absence?

We gave sighs

I sank down exhausted—I couldn't believe that this had happened to us! We live in a respectable neighborhood, know all our neighbors. It was appalling to think we could be so—so vulnerable! It wasn't a neighbor, assured the officer, but someone who knew our habits, knew we were gone. How? He pointed to an accumulation of circulars at the front door, to the still-drawn shades. "Bet you even left a note for the milkman," he said. "One of the surest ways to let a professional burglar know how long you'll be away. It's better to phone or write to the company to discontinue delivery." Our vacuum cleaner and electric mixer were gone. He asked if we had the serial numbers. We didn't, of course. No point in checking pawn shops for them now.

We searched the house. Yes, quite a lot had been stolen—things we would miss, that would cost quite a sum to replace—John's new overcoat, our silver flatware, grandfather's watch, record albums. The list was long—grew longer as the days went by. We hadn't thought about the power mower till my husband went out to mow our long-neglected lawn. Another $108 loss! The pity of it was that the thieves would probably sell the lot for a fraction of its worth—and in such a way that we would never be able to reclaim a bit of it. Well, we learned our lesson. The detectives' suggestions were ones we would surely follow. And they cautioned us to remember that burglaries can occur when you're absent from your home for only a few hours, or less.

A Friend in Need

We got a chuckle out of that little story and we hope you did too. Best thing about it is that it isn't an isolated case.

Many a time each day, telephone men and women go out of their way to help someone in trouble. Their friendly, neighborly spirit is one of the nice things about telephone service.

BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

Its Incomparable Tone Tells You . . . it's the CONN'MINUET"

First by Every Comparison

By tone alone . . . tone of incomparable richness and beauty . . . you will choose the Conn "Minuet!" But, when you find the Minuet first by every comparison—in range of performance, ease of playing, and smart appearance—you'll realize fully what a happy and fortunate choice you've made. Your Conn Organ dealer will be glad to tell you about the purchase plan that puts a Minuet into your home for a relatively small down payment.

The TONE TEST is the TRUE TEST Hear, compare, let your ear decide—for here is truly magnificent sound, unequalled in spinet organs!

STATE.

Lock windows, skylights, all doors. Drawn shades are an invitation to professional thieves, so leave shades up, drapes open—any movement inside house can be seen by neighbors. Turn off outside lights, but leave an inside light burning in a back room

"Welcome Thief!"
(Begins on page 8)

Notify the local police when you plan to be away, and for how long. Ask them to drive by the house at least once a day to keep eyes open for any signs of suspicious activity

Put all valuables, cash, jewelry and important papers in a safe deposit box, or a burglar- and fire-proof safe. If neither are available, leave your valuables with a trusted neighbor—or take them along—well-insured

At all times, here are good rules to follow:

- I. Be certain that your home is always securely locked.
- Wear any valuable jewelry—or rent a safe deposit box for jewels and negotiable securities.
 - 3. Keep a list of serial numbers of all your appliances.
 - 4. Invest in burglary insurance.
- 5. Above all, remember that the thief is a menace to all homeowners. Don't make it easy for him.

Help to lower that grim statistic—47 burglaries committed per hour in the United States. And if you should be the victim of an armed burglar, don't resist. Keep a clear head so that you can aid the police later on. As my detective friend said: "Better a clear head—than no head. Possessions can sometimes be possessed again, but the lost life is irreplaceable."

STANLEY II. BRAMS

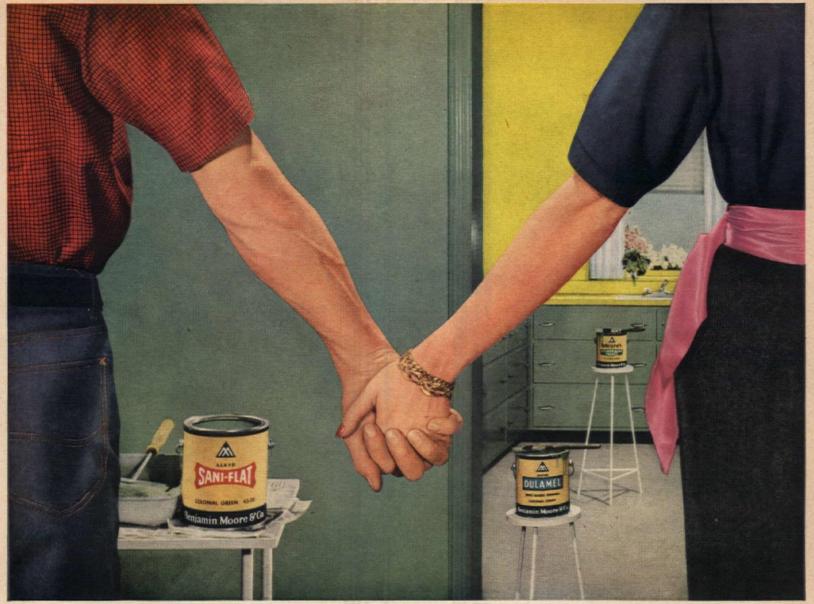

Then you trade an old car in for a new one, you're better off if you phrase one question differently than most people do. Knowing the trade-in allowance alone, is only part of the story. You'll know how much the new car really will cost if you ask the difference between the new car's price and the allowance on the old one. Let's suppose that you figure your 1954 Superb Six should be worth about $1700 on a 1955 Superb whose retail delivered price is around $2400. If you ask about the difference you'll have to pay, your expectations will be confirmed if the answer is $700. But a dealer who gives an allowance of $1600 may be giving you a better bargain than one who "allows" $1750 -a fact you won't realize if you ask only about allowance.

The reason is a technicality known in the auto trade as a "pack"-a bulk charge included in the price of every car. It can be legitimate, or illegitimate—and either way it sounds plausible. When it's legitimate, the pack lumps such items as manufacturers' excise tax, charges for preparing the car for retail delivery, and similar necessary expenses, often invoiced as "E.O.H." (excise tax, overhead, handling). It is never broken down-first, because the "E" is part of the rather carefully concealed wholesale price to the dealer; second, because, due to intricacies of accounting, the dealer may not know the precise excise tax until some time after he pays a rounded billing to the factory.

Because it is never broken down, unscrupulous dealers can add more than they should to E.O.H. If a salesman quotes an allowance figure at which you demur, it costs him nothing to add $50 to the allowance. He just tacks that $50 onto the selling price! You gain nothing. In fact, you may be worse off dealing with an agency that pads its prices.

Reputable dealers and manufacturers alike look askance at the pack. But since the law prevents manufacturers of cars from putting a fixed retail price on their product (they merely suggest a list price), the shady aspects of pack will be with us-as long as car buyers continue to shop for "high" trade-in allowances instead of striking their bargains in terms that can't be tricked up.

So forget about the allowance. Instead, specify the new model you want, including all "extras." Then have the dealer appraise your old car and quote the difference between its worth and the new car's total price. If you're buying on time, be clear about the terms. Then shop for the best buy.

Looks and washes like baked enamel. Resists steam, cooking spatters, grease, and alcoholic beverages. Same lovely colors as Super Kem-Tone. Many years ago, D. Roy Miller, a Philadelphia artist and art teacher, first dreamed of a Utopia where youngsters would rise above the maze of man-made obstacles through a simple, but universal, medium—the medium of art. Recently, in Philadelphia's Independence Square, he saw his dream come true. There, strung from tree to tree, were paintings from every corner of the globe—childish scrawls by three-year-olds, paintings by talented 16-year-olds, and by every age between. Viewed as a whole, they represent life as seen through the eyes of children the world over.

There are 1000 paintings—and more are coming in from all over the globe—even from behind the iron curtain. Youngsters are achieving, through their own good-neighbor policy, world understanding and peace. Not through dull discourses on remote lands, not through text-book sermons on brotherhood, but by a visual, cultural exchange of picturespictures that point up similarities, not differences, that reveal an inherent bond, expressed and understood by peoples of all ages, that exude spiritual unity, a prerequisite of political unity. A little girl from Illinois, who submitted a rural scene, wrote on the back of it: "I think it would be nice if all the kids who lost their homes in the war could live in my little red house. This is for World Peace!" And written on the back of a painting from a lad in Nigeria, French West Africa: "Nawfija is a good town. They fighting for education. . . . Thank you for high knowledge of remembering us in such a way that invites education, that we shall be joying with you as our Mother Civilized nation. We are full of gladness of this invitation. Thank you, thank you, may God Creator bless you more and more so that you always will giving such a help of waking us in education of any kind."

"This 13-year-old is saying everything I can say, and more," comments Mr. Miller. It took more than just a dream to get his idea rolling. It took 20 years of hard work and planning, thousands of dollars of his own money, mountains of correspondence, and good old-fashioned faith in the basic decency of human nature. "Ninety-four countries have helped me," says he, "and my faith has not been shaken. If we teach children to know each other today, we give understanding to the adults of tomorrow."

Widely known in the Philadelphia area for his contributions to education and culture, Mr. Miller, co-founder of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts Country School in Chester Springs, Pa., calls his venture the Children's United World Art Foundation, and hopes it will strengthen the aims of the United Nations. With the help of two volunteers, he spent months in preparing the exhibit, and put in hours of exhaustive work-stringing up paintings each morning, taking them down at night, reinforcing broken clothesline, recovering wind-torn cellophane, barely taking time out for food. "I lost 14 pounds in two weeks, but it was worth it," he says. "We deplore destructive forces in the world. but too few are willing to take a constructive stand involving personal time and money. Our crusade has already proved that nations politically opposed can be united in a common cause.'

So that the rest of us may have an opportunity to see his exhibit, Mr. Miller has made plans for a "World Premiere" in New York City this summer. Next stop planned is Washington, D.C.-and then "the length and breadth of the world." This is indeed a significant attempt to bring unity and understanding to all peoples-brought about through the fresh, untainted sights of children and the unwavering faith of one man.

In Philadelphia, thousands of people came to look at pictures from their little friends around the world. And they liked what they saw!

Dear American Home:

For Christmas, my husband and I exchanged our gifts with love—27 yards of muslin to make sails! You see, Charles, a city fireman, has always dreamed of a sailboat, although the strict budget we live on made one seem like a dream. But last spring we heard of a used boat for sale, bought it with our vacation money, refinished it in our backyard, and the dream became a reality. The AMERICAN HOME being part of our family life, I felt this family project might interest you.

After a summer of sailing, we decided to make a new suit of sails—more for show than blow. The fun it was! And how we draped them over everything to stretch them out—finally using the back part of the Fire Department engine room.

It's customary, in winter, to have wiener roasts every Sunday that Daddy's home, but when we were sailmaking, wiener roasts were more frequent so that we could get to work early in the evening. It means so much to have a project that the whole family can enjoy, for young Bill, 6, and Susan, 4, helped pull the cloth through the sewing machine, and Charles sewed away valiantly with his needle and palm. Our mission was accomplished with flying colors—for when we hoisted the sails, admiring people came from all around to take colored pictures.—Julie Harner P.S. I've an idea how Betsy Ross felt when she finished the flag!

DIANA and MEIR GILLON

Many people smoke, many drink, some even sniff cocaine or breathe marijuana. I just read. The most alarming thing about this vice is that the insidious way in which it gets a hold on you is so carefully encouraged by your elders. The first time you see your son or daughter smoking a cigarette, you remonstrate mildly—at best deliver a tolerant smile. You certainly don't rejoice and congratulate. But the first time you see the innocent child deep in a book, you sigh with relief. At last, you think, he is becoming profitably employed. At last he is going to be quiet for hours and hours at a time. You pat him on the head—you may even offer a rich reward. After all, he has learned to read.

With a lot of children, you will be doing no harm. There are those who can take reading or leave it alone—they know when to stop. But there is a percentage (and who can say when or where one of them is likely to turn up?) for whom the first contact with the printed word is the beginning of a rake's progress which will eventually leave them hopeless victims of bibliomania.

The tendency can first be detected when the infant, long past bedtime, is discovered hidden in a corner spelling out a story about Dolly and Sambo. Mark this occasion-mark also your own historic comment: "You'll ruin your eyesight, reading by that bad light." It is only the first of many. At eight or nine, the addict is stodging through Scott and Dickens, puzzling through Ibsen and Shaw. In between the stronger meat, he sandwiches comics and The Laziest Girl in the Fifth. The habit is already a vice. It doesn't matter what the child reads, so long as he reads. Trash and gems go down with almost equal enthusiasm. At 18 or so, the addict is protected, in a way, by the intellectual snobbery of his age group. He may read either trash or literature, but not both-because of what his friends might say. When he goes to work for his living, too, there's hope, for unless the addict is unwise enough to find employment in a library, bookshop, literary agency, or publisher's office, he'll have to stay away from the stuff for a steady eight hours a day.

It is with marriage—and, in the case of the female, maternity—that the antisocial potentialities of the vice become evident. Outside discipline removed, meals are delayed or inadequately prepared because the fish or meat has come home wrapped in a newspaper, possibly in Italian or Polish, which the addict has not encountered before, and is thus determined to decipher. Plunging virtuously into a cookbook to learn how to make pastry or pie crust, the addict is entangled in designs for cherry conserve or zabaglione which read more beautifully than poetry, and read on and on through the book till lunch time. Piles of socks reduced to a network of holes sit stacked in a basket—darning and reading don't combine.

It's what America wanted

-and it's going great guns

You see pictured here an automobile long awaited and long expected by the nation's car buyers.

It is a Riviera—the "hardtop" that Buick pioneered for the entire industry six years ago.

But it is a Riviera with separate doors for the rear-seat passengers—and that's the combination now taking the country by storm.

It's easy to see why.

Folks wanted the sleek and racy "convertible look" styling of the hardtop—but they wanted it with the room, comfort and convenience of a true 4-door sedan. And here they have it all...

The full and open airiness of the Riviera...

A completely unobstructed view to both sides, with no center doorposts above the window line...

The extra-generous legroom, headroom and hip-room of a full-sized Buick Sedan . . .

Front doors and rear doors—and all four of them hinged at their front edges for greater safety, and to assure easy entrance and exit.

But not by a long shot is that all.

This new kind of automobile is coming off the production line in the two lowest-priced Buick Series—the budget-tagged Special and the supremely-powered Century.

So you get the last word in automobiles with the sizzling might of a V8 engine of 188-hp or 236-hp. You get it with the spectacular performance and better gas mileage of the new Variable Pitch Dynaflow.* And you get it with the easy-to-take prices that have helped sweep Buick into the top circle of America's best sellers.

Why not drop in on your Buick dealer and take a firsthand look at the newest idea in new cars? With demand for the 4-Door Riviera pushing production capacity to the limit, the sooner you see it—and place your order—the sooner you can have one for your very own.

JOHN T. WILSON

oo many times after a hard day's work and a long drive home, I found that what I considered my driveway, my children and their friends regarded as the perfect landing field for their two-wheeled jet jobs. Sometimes I had to move as many as six bikes before I could get to the house. Finally I decided to do something about it, and went down to the lumberyard. There, I bought seven 8' lengths and one 6' length of 2 x 4, a pound and a half of 16-penny common nails, and a quart of house paint. I used three of the eight footers for the long horizontal pieces, and cut the ten 281/2" verticals from the other 8' lengths. Then I cut the 6' length in half to make two 3' crosspieces. The only tools that I used were a hammer, saw, rule, and combination square. When the rack was finished, I gave it two coats of house paint for protection. It didn't take long to persuade the children and their friends to rack their bikes, and now I am able to drive in the empty driveway and put the car away without any trouble.

LIEBERMANN: Concerto for Jazz Band and Symphony Orchestra. The Sauter-Finegan Orchestra and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra conducted by Fritz Reiner

RCA, LM-1888, one 12-inch LP disc

Something that your reporter had been expecting to happen took place, at long last, in Chicago recently when Fritz Reiner and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra introduced a new work by Rolf Liebermann. This, to all intents and purposes, would be a concerto grosso whose title, however, is Concerto for Jazz Band and Symphony Orchestra. The concerto grosso form, as you may be aware, is more or less that of the concerto for piano and orchestra, except that the solo instrument is replaced by several. In such a situation, the solo group-or, as we longhairs call it, the concertinoand the main orchestral body hand the themes back and forth to each other in short or long takes, either side, depending upon the whims of the composer, monopolizing one or more of them. Now Mr. Liebermann chooses a full-fledged jazz band, the Sauter-Finegan Orchestra, for his concertino, which is surrounded, no less, by the Chicago Symphony, all under Mr. Reiner. (The reverse side offers the Richard Strauss Don Juan which -good as it is-gets only a mention here, since the Liebermann is the real story. Reiner conducts the Chicago Symphony alone

The composer argues, and rightly, that-"Toward the end of the 19th century, 'art' music lost contact with the practical dance music of the day. And in the 20th century, symphonic music, which was once so closely bound to music for practical use, has become completely emancipated, with the exceptions found in European culture (Bartok, Stravinsky). The fact that certain composers introduced jazz elements into symphonic works during the thirties (for example, Honegger in the last movement of his Piano Concertino) does not contradict this statement, for though associations occurred of jazz, no real dance form was employed." Therefore, Mr. Liebermann holds wide open the door for jazz dance forms. I must admit that I found his composition exhilarating. He knows full well the technique of creating an entente cordiale between erstwhile strange companions. This performance is right out of the top drawer; "real cool," as we shorthairs call it.

B.G. IN HI-FI: Benny Goodman and an all-star aggregation, delivering 14 of his favorite pieces in new versions, besides one new one CAPITOL, w 565, one 12-inch LP disc

Since we're on the jazz tack, let's continue, shall we? There is no doubt about Goodman's greatness as an executant. Nor, for that matter, about his gifts of leadership. Here, in the midst of some remarkable

For all its advantages, the American-Standard kitchen costs surprisingly little. Be sure to see it demonstrated by your American-Standard retailer—he's listed under "kitchens" in the Yellow Pages of your phone book. He'll be glad to help you plan, for either a complete new kitchen or step-at-a-time remodeling. American Radiator & Standard Sanitary Corp., Pittsburgh 30, Pennsylvania.

Three big drawers provide wonderful storage space for bulky items. And no matter how heavily the drawers are loaded, they slide smoothly, easily.

Three sliding shelves fit into the same cabinet. Notice how easily they accommodate even the tallest cans. Each shelf will hold up to fifteen No. 2 cans.

Dozens of combinations of drawers and shelves are possible. Thus, you can easily change from one combination to another, as your storage needs change.

Have all these extra features you've been wanting "Convertible" utility cabinet lets you place shelves and drawers wherever desired for storing bulky items. You can even use appliances right on the shelves.

Wire shelves let you see what is stored at the back of a cabinet . . . are adjustable at one-inch intervals to hold varied items. Note useful cup-or-condiment rack.

Handy hanging shelves can be attached beneath wall cabinets, giving valuable extra shelf space. Handle-free cabinet doors open at a touch from underneath.

Lift-out cutlery tray makes place setting easy...just carry it to the table. It fits snugly into the cabinet drawer, keeps your silverware neat and ready to use.

Corner cabinet with revolving shelves brings items within easy reach . . . makes use of space otherwise wasted. Another example of usable storage space.

Handle color-guards accent any decorating scheme . . . can be changed at any time. Five color choices to match or contrast with smooth Micarta counter tops.

NEW STYLE FITTINGS add beauty, charm and personality to this

American-Standard Bathroom

Now, for the first time, you can have fittings with handles in a wide assortment of colors to blend with your American-Standard bathroom fixtures . . . and these fittings can be personalized by adding your own monogram! Yet the Monogram line is just one of the new styles of fittings being introduced to make an American-Standard bathroom the smartest one you could own.

But the new fittings are not the only exciting features of this bathroom. Notice the twin lavatories—think how they will relieve busy traffic peaks! Both lavatories and toilet are of easy-to-keep-clean vitreous china. The roomy bath is made of durable cast iron with a thick, smooth coating of gleaming enamel.

All American-Standard fixtures are made to last as long as your house. All come in smart styles and a choice of decorator colors that keep their sparkle through the years: corallin, blue, green, grey, brown, ivory, and white.

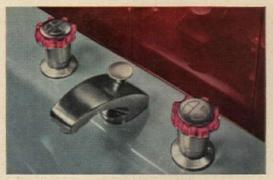

EVEN WITH NO DOWN PAYMENT, pay as little as $5.29* a week for the bathroom fixtures shown. Ask your American-Standard retailer to show them to you. He is listed in the Yellow Pages of your phone book under "Plumbing fixtures" or "Plumbing supplies." You Wouldn't Believe It, but...

a beautiful soul hides behind the plain face of this $35 a month two-family house

Here are the people who proved to themselves that beauty and taste have nothing to do with the size of pocketbooks or the dimensions of rooms . . . and were astonished when we found it news

IT IS MORE THAN NEWS:

It is a heart-warming example of how one family, in spite of limited income and neighbors' jests, made a quiet and lovely background for their private lives, and won many friends and influenced many people. We were won; we hope you will be influenced by what they have done. Meet our friends, the Arthur Burkes of Fairfield, Connecticut, and come visit with us in their home.

"Some people think we're crazy, doing so much in a rented place..."

"THERE ISN'T A THING WE CAN'T TAKE WITH US." The storage wall is portable, the tall cabinets come apart in two pieces. Arthur himself installed the TV and hi-fi. Obelisk is one of several he made; Magdalen collected and repaired the porcelains

It takes a lot of courage to be different from the crowd. There is an awful mental vacuum that afflicts many of us—I am as familiar with it as you—a sort of suspended state of "temporariness" in which we make do for such a long time, pushing our plans further into the future, until the temporary becomes the reality, and we exist in a perpetual state of donothingness.

The Arthur Burkes broke this pattern and began to live for now. In doing so, they at first sensed a subtle form of censure from friends and neighbors who thought it rather queer that the Burkes would spend so much time and effort, not to mention money, fixing up somebody else's property when they might better be putting something aside for the house they hope to build some day, for the twins' education, and so on.

"We close the door," said Magdalen Burke, "and enter our own private world." Call it a form of escapism if you will. We prefer to call it a sharpened perception of the true meaning CONTINUED ON PAGE 112

"IN A BANDBOX YOU HAVE TO BE NEAT!" Above, the twins' room, with chests and dressing table papered by Arthur, shades and curtains made by Magdalen

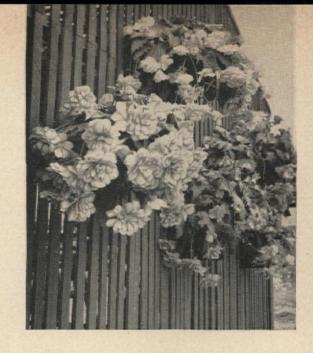

WINTER ARRANGEMENT

"IN SUMMER
IT'S NICE TO HAVE A CHANGE."
The living room, left, has two faces for different seasons. Furniture is switched to different walls, oriental rug is replaced by an area rug, and Magdalen puts up a different set of curtains. They splurged on silk for winter draperies ($60), paid $4 for the cotton rug, $65 for secondhand sofa and wing chair. Many of the pictures were homemade: Arthur assembled the wooden utensils above, matted and framed them. Magdalen matted portraits of the twins, Denyse and Geraldine, in the same small print fabric she used for bedroom curtains

Degonias

Basic ingredients: tuberous begonias, cup holder, individual pie foil, clay for anchoring—and a conversation-piece wooden object that can be changed from a flat, solid base to a dish of various shapes by raising and adjusting the oval concentric rings of which it is made.

Flat, the "container" is an ideal base. Pushed up in this manner, it becomes a fruit bowl. For our arrangement, we kept one side and back high; the other, low.

> Turn buds to follow curve of bowl, and add flowers and leaves in the same rhythmic pattern.

> > How to

See "Where Credit Is Due," page 116

Exotic yet adaptable, they are easily used to make big drama—indoors or out

No water in this container! A cup holder supplies water enough for begonias, but to guard against spills we set holder in a pie foil, covered the foil with leaves.

Use flat-opened flowers in low part of bowl. If stems snap off, don't worry—with only a half-inch of stem, they last for days if they have just a bit of water.

Arrange Them

"B" is for begonias—brilliant, bountiful, and a boon when you want color in splashes or broad masses, indoors or out—and especially where there is more shade than suits most flowering plants. The rapid increase in the number of enthusiastic growers is due in part to this shade tolerance, plus versatility and relatively simple cultural demands—and in part to remarkable progress in developing improved, more lovely forms. Basically, they fall into four classes: those grown from bulbs, from fibrous roots, from rhizomes (creeping rootstocks), and from round, flattened tubers—and each, save the bulbous, includes many species, varieties, and hybrids. Those shown here are all tuberous-rooted.

The flowers in the arrangements at your left and on page 98 are of the more familiar garden, or bedding, type with blossoms sometimes single, but often very double and camellia-like. Above, such plants are cleverly used in "shadow boxes" that relieve the monotony of a board fence in the Portland (Ore.) garden of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Wolf. The "title picture" is of a specimen of one of the magnificent new double, trailing

Moving a house to your land—instead of building it there—may not be the best thing for everyone. But it gave the Prices the home they wanted, where they wanted it—with room enough for expansion

Moved from a Dam

Site and Remodeled Twice

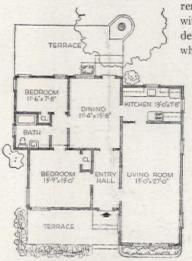

FRANCES D. TAYLOR

You have to be fairly desperate to buy an old derelict of a house for $900, knowing that thousands of dollars, and thousands of hours, will be required to replant it and make it take root in new land. Well, Vera and Walter Price were desperate. Same old story. Back in Houston after the war, they could find no home to buy, nothing to rent. They did happen to own two beautiful acres in the country, bought years before as an investment—but since the area was still undeveloped, no workmen would travel out that far to build a house for them there.

Then one day, a real estate agent told them of a ramshackle bungalow sitting square on the site of a proposed new dam. Price, $900. Why not buy and move it to their own country property? With misgivings, they bought. Moving it was no simple matter, for there was a deadline, and all house movers happened to be overbooked. But finally the house was cut in half, loaded onto two trucks, moved, and set up anew. There followed long months of unaided work, Walter doing his share weekends and after hours. Vera painted it inside and out—she still prefers hooking rugs!

Eventually, they moved into their home, and so big and beautiful it appeared, that they thought they'd enjoy it forever. But a few years, and one baby, seemed to shrink it in size. By then, however, they were so devoted to the place and to the lovely residential neighborhood that had sprung up around them, that they remodeled once again—this time with professional help and wonderful results that made the whole project worthwhile.

1st Remodeling: Partitions aplenty came down to turn the old shack into this cozy home with spacious living room. They replaced an old front porch with a trim brick terrace, added a rear terrace, put in new floors, new windows

Living room above is product of first remodeling. To achieve it, the Prices threw down partitions between three tiny rooms. In remodeling #2, it became the master bedroom, and they added a new living-room wing (below) complete with fireplace, paneling, picture window—and beautiful floors to show up the hand-hooked rugs for which Mrs. Price is famous

OWNERS: MR. AND MRS. WALTER PRICE HOUSTON, TEXAS

2nd Remodeling added new living room and carport. See in photograph how utility room gives carport importance, adds width to house. Old living room became master bedroom and bath; back terrace was roofed over; other rooms were unchanged ure it's a super club house, but what did you expect from AMERICAN HOME—a shack? Sure we say you can put it up in a tree (if you have a nice big tree to accommodate its 8' x 12' over-all dimensions). It was designed as a tree house, and isn't it better to help the kids build a sound one than to trust to luck and the rig they'll probably throw together themselves? But don't worry if you haven't the right vegetation—we've blueprinted two versions, and the second can sit very well on the firm earth of your own backyard. And boy! What a club house it makes. A couple of built-in bunks, weatherproof construction that won't tax Dad's skill nor drain his bankroll.

Real rugged construction allows for plenty of rough-housing; easy maintenance—and best of all, safety. The unit designed for use up high was engineered to make it safe for kids. The floor opening for the rope ladder is fenced off so there's no danger from accidental falls. We've even used metal framing anchors on framing joints; the whole job will be absolutely sturdy even if you've never nailed two 2 x 4's together in your life. Windows are screened, and hinged plywood sheets can be dropped down when it rains.

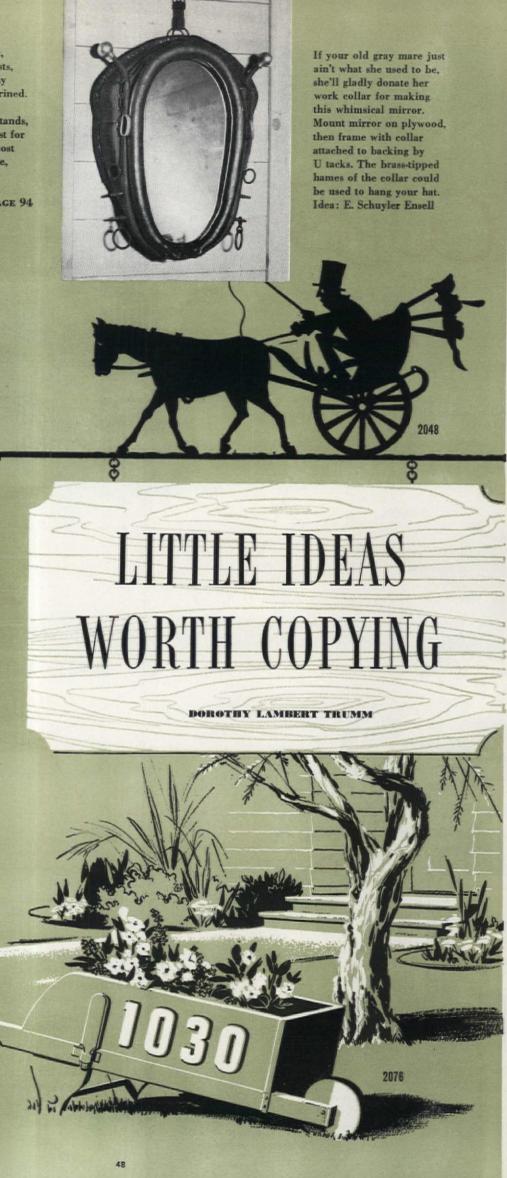

Our Pattern 2073 (75¢), tells you all you need to know in order to build it. Along with blueprints and a list of materials, we've even included extra sketches to show how it can be hung in a variety of differently shaped trees. Better send for your set, grab your tools, get the gang together—and start building!

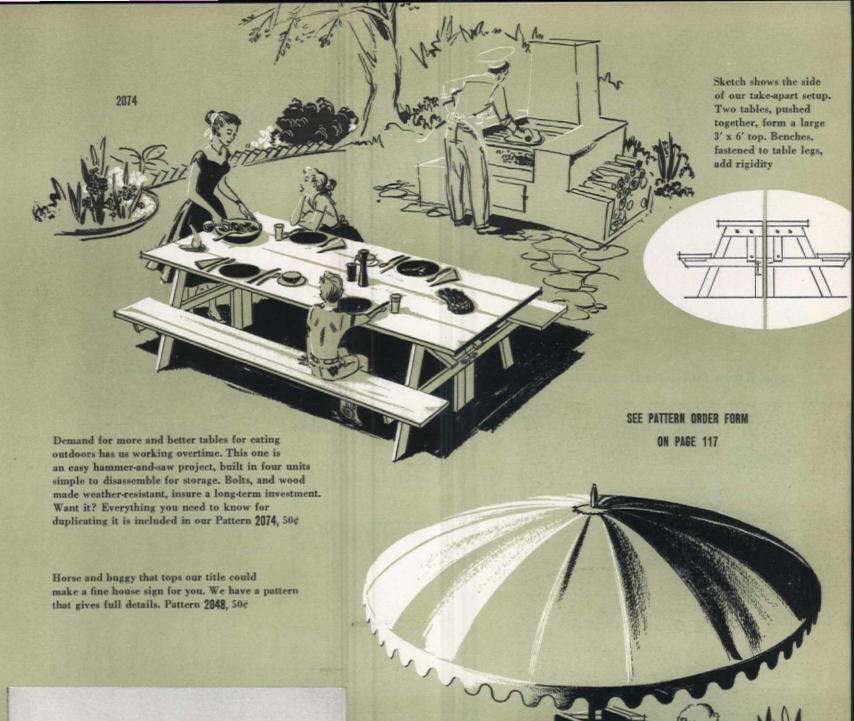

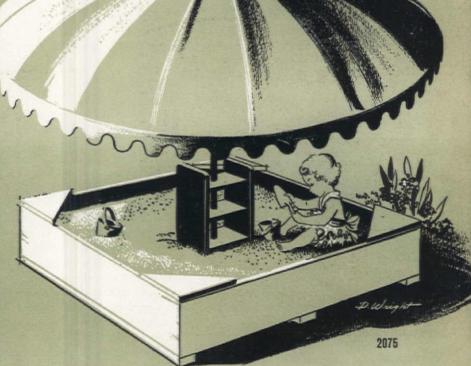

To trick up an old buffet for a game room, paint it gaily in red and black, or what you will—then top it with an awning made by covering an old set of bows from a buggy. Add 1/4" plywood panel at back. Idea: E. Schuyler Ensell

Even if this weren't such a gracious way to announce your street number, our wheelbarrow planter would be a delight! It moves around to put color where it's most needed as the succession of blooms change in your garden—and its mobility guarantees adequate sunlight to whatever plants it contains. It's easily yours, for we've made it into a full-size transfer construction pattern—just press onto plywood, then cut! Pattern 2076, 75¢

For our favorite members of the Sandbox Set—a generous big one rigged up so that they can play under the protection of a standard 6' beach umbrella. An overdose of sun is no better for young skins than for old ones, so this arrangement should assure happy days followed by no painful burning at night. Drainage holes in box permit rain water to seep off the sand. Of course we have a construction pattern to enable you to build one—Pattern 2075, 50¢

Nautical lamp post could mark the entry to your home by the sea—but we have a strong hunch that its twins will spring up near many a home on the range. The 4 x 4 post should rise 6' above the ground, be set $1\frac{1}{2}$ ' into the earth, and be reinforced with concrete. Cut top to fit lantern collar. Cross bar is a 2 x 3, across which sails your proud ship. If you can't catch you a real anchor, make one of plywood. We suggest painting post, anchor, and heavy chain white, the boat your favorite color. Nail white house numbers to the ship's port and starboard before you screw it into place

So Simple a Child Can Transfer Them to:

PAINTED SURFACES (ON WOOD, METAL)

CANVAS BOARDS · DARK WOODS

LIGHT WOODS · TEXTILES

Numerical System for Each Step Makes This Revolutionary Method Even Easier!

Here is news . . . real news: You can transfer our painting designs directly onto light, or dark wood, onto painted or unpainted wood or metal—without scorching the wood or blistering the paint! If you faithfully follow our simple directions, good results are assured, and so easy it is that a child can do it successfully! The transfer method isn't perfect for all surfaces, however, and for such high fired materials as glass, some ceramics, and the like, we recommend the tracing method instead. But what a boon our new transfers are for the materials we list—and what sure-handed results they produce!

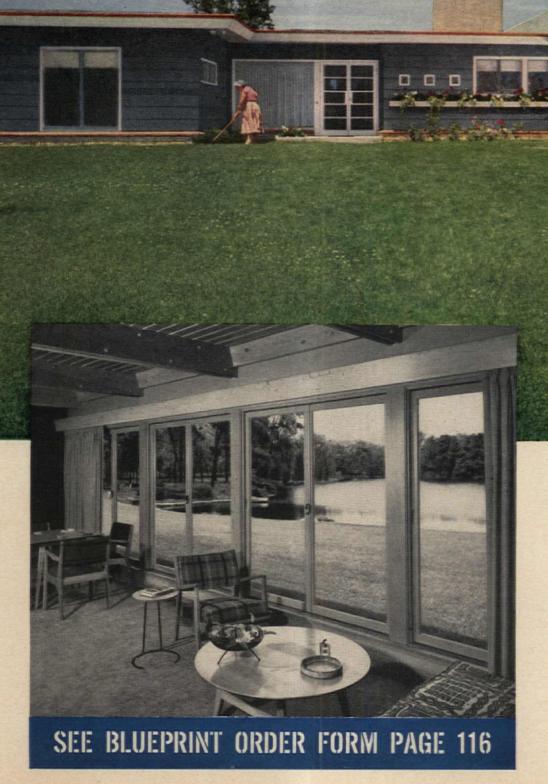

See, at the top of the opposite page, what wonders they do for the kind of inexpensive pine accessories so many of us own. Such small pieces are charming "as is"—but oh! so much more individual and "your own" when graced by crisp, young-in-heart motifs designed especially for them by the well-known artist, Clare McCanna. Our transfer patterns "take" equally well on light wood or dark and this one has a numbered color key to make matters even easier. It's Pattern 1604, and contains 30 small motifs by actual countall yours for 75¢. You can do really big things with the second transfer pattern we show, the lovely floral motifs and rococo scroll borders that grace one of W and J Sloane's finest imported chests. Sloane's graciously permitted us to copy the designs. You can paint any chest armed with our Pattern 1605, price $1. The playhouse that doubles as a work table was designed by our own Dorchen Trumm to lend enchantment to your nursery. Pattern 1606, for $1.50, includes a complete construction pattern for the "house," plus transfers for the flora, fauna, and fancies adorning it.

Custom-Designed Plan You Can Buy

With its pretty planters, its two well-shaded entries, and its interestingly composed fenestration, the house gives you a broad welcome from the front. The rear, almost entirely glass, is arranged to extend the most cordial of greetings to a view—or to any pleasant surroundings, even if they aren't spectacular. Living room at left has sliding wood windows, and there are more in the den which is separated from this room only by a low built-in

See "Where Credit Is Due," page 116

This is an elbow-room house, so forget all about our Blueprint #45 if you're primarily interested in fitting a maximum number of rooms into the least possible space. It was designed to order for a family who built it on a large tract of land (including two bass-stocked lakes!) near Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and its plan and abundance of windows would do well by any agreeable site. But in terms of spaciousness, it is luxurious without being extravagant, for its 2,020 square feet of main floor area offer a heap of good living to a medium-sized family. Each bedroom has its own bath, and for people who really like to stretch out, those downstairs bedrooms are perfect. In addition, there's a 14'3" x 12' bedroom upstairs, a haven with its own private sundeck—ideal quarters for an older person, for a teen-ager with expansive hobbies, or for any creative individual who wants to be of the family, but not always in it.

Spaciousness begins right in the entryway with its array of closets (storage throughout is exceptionally good, and there are vast storage areas upstairs). The generous living room that teams right up with the den is just the thing for people who hate being fenced in (only a low divider separates the two—yet in use, they really behave as two rooms). If Mama likes elbow room, this house will really pamper her—its kitchen, pantry, laundry, and utility room guarantee against crowding and overlapping. For meals, the breakfast room is completely off by itself, and when there's a gang to feed, the den, with its masonry floor, is just a few steps from the kitchen. Even the double garage is oversized, has plenty of space for two cars plus a good workbench for the Master.

A JELL-O SALAD

MAKES THE MEAL

MONTEREY SOUFFLÉ SALAD

1 package Lemon Jell-O • 1 cup hot water

1/2 cup cold water • 2 tablespoons lemon juice

1/2 cup mayonnaise • 1/4 teaspoon salt

1 No. 1/2 can tuna fish • 3/4 cup diced cucumber or celery

1/4 cup sliced stuffed olives

2 tablespoons chopped pimento

1/2 teaspoon grated onion

JELL-O IS A REGISTERED TRADE-MARK OF GENERAL FOODS CORP.

This magnificent salad is the meal! Dissolve Jell-O in hot water. Add cold water, lemon juice, mayonnaise and salt. Blend well with rotary beater. Pour into refrigerator freezing tray.

Quick-chill in freezing unit (without changing control) 15 to 20 minutes, or until firm about 1 inch from edge but soft in center. Pour mixture into bowl and whip with rotary beater until fluffy.

Fold in remaining ingredients. Pour into 1-quart mold or individual molds. Chill until firm in refrigerator (not in freezing unit) 30 to 60 minutes. Unmold on salad greens. Makes 4 to 6 servings. (For a party salad, outline bottom of mold with strips of pimento before filling.)

caesar salad

• Wash and break into fair-sized pieces mixed salad greens—in quantity about the equivalent of 4 heads of romaine, (Purists use romaine only. I prefer the variety of color and crispness assorted greens give.) Roll up in a towel and store in refrigerator. Put cut clove of garlic into 4 tbs. olive oil. Let stand several hours, remove garlic. Remove crusts from 2 slices bread. Cut each into 16 cubes, fry golden brown in a little of the garlic-scented oil. Wrap or cover until ready to toss salad. In small bowl, reduce 6 fillets of anchovies to paste. Add balance of garlic oil, 1½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce, 6 tbs. French dressing.

At serving time (at table, if possible): rub bowl lightly with garlic and sprinkle salt over inside of bowl. Add salad greens, croutons, and contents of small bowl (anchovies, oil, etc.).

Break into bowl 1 coddled egg*. Pour directly over egg the juice of 1 lemon. Grind over bowl black pepper (about 1 tsp.). Sprinkle over greens 4 tbs. grated Parmesan cheese. Toss well and serve immediately.

* To coddle egg, Remove egg from refrigerator to remove chill. Have water boiling in both top and bottom of double boiler, then set aside off flame. Drop egg gently with spoon into upper half of boiler. Let stand one minute (off flame) and remove egg.

BLENDER MAKES FINE

CRUMBER

LET'S CUT HAM THIS WAY

To make the most of a ham, don't bake it all at once—prepare it for a number of different uses, and freeze or refrigerate sections till needed. Have your butcher saw it in half crosswise, just in front of the little oblong bone that lies on the surface. Then give each half the treatment shown above. With a very sharp knife, cut through outer skin, and follow the vein of fat till you've entirely freed the oval piece containing the bone. These pieces are fine for baking.

Idea: Carmen R. Waid

Nothing is wasted this way. Narrow shank end of the "steak" cut, and the main part of butt end, are splendid for frying with eggs. Residue of bony pieces is good for boiling and soups. Leftover scraps can be used in dozens of ways: hearty salads, mousses, etc.

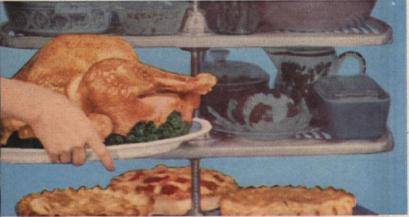

With the ovals easily removed for baking, the rest of the ham is intact to yield as many as a dozen fine steaks. If you don't bake the ovals, they are also good to slice down for sandwiches.

New G-E Revolving Shelves put all foods at your fingertips!

Shelf turns just like a "Lazy Susan." With G-E Revolving Shelves, there are no hard-to-reach corners. A simple turn of the wrist puts all food in full view because the back area turns to the front. For instance, when you want to get at a jar from the rear, you don't have to reach like this. Instead . . .

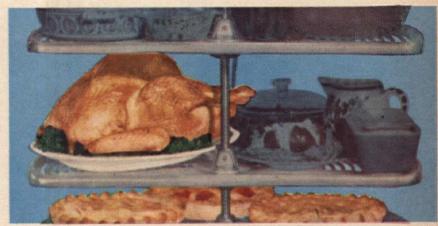

Revolving Shelves are adjustable—up or down! These wonderful, new shelves eliminate the problem of squeezing large items into small space. For instance, when storing a large turkey in your refrigerator, you don't have to remove any of the foods or rearrange the shelves. Instead . . .

Simply turn the shelf, and the jar rides to the front, right at your fingertips. You see what you want at first glance. You pick what you want without overturning other foods. And it's so easy to turn the shelf, too. G-E Revolving Shelves turn smoothly and silently, on nylon bearings.

Just press a button, revolve the shelf, and presto! the turkey fits. The space between the shelves can be easily increased or decreased, as you wish. With G-E Revolving Shelves, you simply raise the shelf for larger, bulkier items; lower the shelf for small, flat ones—like pies—without removing any of the foods.

These sturdy shelves give you 15 per cent more shelf room!

In the comparison at right, the red area indicates the extra room gained with

LARGER SHELF AREA

Revolving Shelves; the blue area indicates the space lost. These extra-large shelves give you 15 per cent more shelf area than in previous corresponding G-E Refrigerators with old-style shelves.

Furthermore, the new G-E Refrigerator-Freezer with Revolving Shelves is TWO complete appliances in ONE!

There's the true, zero-degree freezer on top, with its own separate refrigeration, its own separate door and insulation plus ice cream rack and juice can dispenser, 1 Mini-Cube® and 3 Redi-Cube® ice trays. The freezer can hold up to 89 packages of frozen foods as long as a year.

The automatic defrosting refrigerator section is also a separate appliance with all these convenience features: automatic butter conditioner, adjustable door shelves, roomy vegetable drawers, famous G-E sealed-in refrigeration system.

Now in G-E Mix-or-Match colors! Available in canary yellow, turquoise green, petal pink, cadet blue, woodtone brown and white.

VALERIE KRAFT

Shop once a week for staples; twice weekly for fruits, meats, and vegetables if your refrigerator is too small for a week's supply and you don't have a freezer. Buy the "specials"—but shop with a list.

Study food ads; be on intimate terms with prices. What price a bargain—if you can't recognize one head on?

Buy jumbo sizes of anything you use constantly. Check a few weights and measures and you'll soon learn that the food manufacturers generously throw in free ounces on their big sizes. Besides the big sizes make for smoother living—you don't run out of things . . . (so often).

Clean out refrigerator, check shelves the day before you load up. Many a nice vegetable soup or vegetable plate has thus been turned up—and who doesn't enjoy a free meal?

Get the swing of the seasons. A grape is a grape is a grape—whether sixty or fifteen cents a pound. Magazines and newspapers alert the homemaker to seasonal delicacies coming up—with new recipes to make them even more alluring. The family of one who ignores asparagus in season is truly one deprived. Make a habit of reading magazine and newspaper menus—they jack up interest in meal planning, along with new ways to cook and serve.

Careful use of your refrigerator is an art in itself. It can save many a food dollar a year. Refrigerator boxes not only stack well, look neat, and are easy to clean—but they are made of materials which will conduct the cold right to the food you are cooling. Paper bags, on the other hand, act as insulators, and the refrigerator's motor has to work overtime to cool the food through the paper. Regular defrosting will also cut the electric bill. For less spoilage of fresh fruits and vegetables, the hydrator needs to be completely emptied, thoroughly washed and dried each week. Clean, drain, and dry the fruits and vegetables before putting them in.

Get hep to the way your other kitchen appliances can help out the budget. A pressure cooker can tenderize the end of the roast for that free weekly soup, as well as turn inexpensive cuts of meat into culinary delights. Your electric coffeemaker conserves those expensive beans by brewing the exact number of cups you desire, at the exact strength. Your dishwasher can save soap grains by going into action just once a day, and even your toaster can help out by converting stale bread into toasted crumbs.

A modern refrigerator with a nice big freezer compartment is a joy, but a separate freezer in or near your kitchen is downright ecstasy. Put your heart into learning the most effective way to use this wonderful kitchen helper. If you watch CONTINUED ON PAGE 113

SPACE SAVERS: Mid-way wall units add extra shelves, and handsomely! Mid-counter unit has a drop-leaf that forms a desk or counter when you need it, but folds up at other times to leave the floor area free

COMPACT BEAUTY

EDITH RAMSAY

A complete, house-sized kitchen that's a far-sight smaller than a small living room rug? Of course it can be done—with modern built-in equipment, inch-thrifty cabinets, and modern planning that "centerizes" your work to save space, time, motions—and you! First, the news about the St. Charles cabinets that don't tolerate idle walls. Those "mid-way" units above the sink hold dishes in space that's usually wasted, and their sliding glass fronts are slanted to allow headroom for work at the counter below. Fluorescent lights under them illuminate your chores, and also show off the cabinets' pretty contents. The glass-fronted Lazy-Susan corner cupboard is another space saver that lets you see your best china, and still protects it. But one of the cleverest "space misers" we've seen is the mid-counter utility unit. Floor-to-ceiling storage here (it comes 1234" or 2434" deep), but the mid-section is a sturdy drop-leaf—a vanishing desk or a sit-down counter to complete the refrigerator area. (Our wonderful model here is St. Charles' own Sue Egan.)

Because we heartily endorse sit-down work, we want to point to the special virtues of the sit-down sink. It's a double affair in stainless steel—one side is standard depth for dishes; the other, used for washing, paring, and sorting of fruits and vegetables, is only four inches deep—you can reach all of it while you sit. What's more, the door front below the shallow section is recessed to give you plenty of knee room.

LITTLE FLOOR AREA is needed for a big cold-storage job. This 8.3 cu.-ft. refrigerator and 6.3 cu.-ft. freezer, installed in special cabinets, may be stacked, as shown here, or they may be placed side-by-side, at any height WOMAN SAVERS: This is a sit-down kitchen. STEP SAVERS: Every pot, pan, and lid you'll ever need berths in the slide-out trays under the burners, or in a drawer under the no-bend oven. And how good it all is to look at, too!

In this easy-on-the-eyes kitchen, done up in high-fashion pink and aqua, hidden virtues are almost as important as visible ones. These cabinets offer a wide choice of drawer and shelf arrangements, plus many convenient accessories. In this case, there's a sliding cutting board to the left of the sink, a sliding towel rack and door storage under the sink. Base cabinet at the counter where most foods are prepared has a top drawer divided for cutlery, and tin-lined drawers for sugar, flour, and bread. The cabinet over the burners houses a stainless-steel hood and ventilator. Storage is built all around the modular range—a deep drawer for tins and lids under the oven, sliding shelves in the cabinet under the burners, and plenty of top storage, too.

Glass won't rust. You know that. So it's easy to understand why there are so many ads about glass-lined water heaters. But here's something else you should know:

HEATER IT'S PROTECTION AGAINST LEAKS!

In the ordinary glass-lined water heater, chemicals in the water can wear the glass lining away—until finally they're eating into the bare metal. And when that happens, it's only a matter of time before the tank springs a leak.

So? So Rheem—the world's largest maker of automatic water heaters—has developed Rheemglas—a glass lining with a frit so tough it can resist the chemical action of aggressive hot water! In exhaustive tests, subjecting Rheem tanks to severe water action, the Rheemglas lining stood up so well that it clearly proved its superiority.

explains, "my husband's mother was born and reared in France and came to this country fully trained in fine arts of French cookery. The soup pot. her use of herbs, just a touch, but what a difference! The frequent dash of wine. All done with the artistry of a skillful cook. I wasn't a young bride, but still pliable enough to see the difference between the staid cooking I had been taught in college, and imaginative cooking of Mother Kiene." I'll wager that even those who insist they do not "like kidneys" will fall for this one-hard. Don't ask them, just make it and see!

Now about that chowder, with little crab-meat balls and sunny butter floating on top. Believe you me, I'll never have to make good my promise to eat the pot and cord, because it is truly a wondrous thing. Not a fish chowder, but full of many of the good things that come out of the briny deep, blended into a heavenly concoction out of this world good. If it took hours over a hot stove, it would still be worth it, but here it is-in 20 minutes flat! The pickles are there. because in New England we always serve them with a bowl of chowder or lobster. You will, I trust, excuse the seeming ego of its name, and if you don't write and tell me you absolutely love it, I shall be truly disconsolate. Miracles of quality with speed like this don't happen often, and you who are Good Victuals fans know it, what's more. Anyhow, it's very proud I am of this creation, and happy to share it with you. CATHERINE CHRISTOPHER et others aspire to the day when a home-model Electric Brain will be available. I can wait. The automatic washer we unwittingly allowed on the premises a few years ago is all the cerebral machinery I can cope with. That glistening appliance, hailed so joyously as a symbol of triumph over drudgery, is taking a rather stiff psychological toll. I live with the sensation that our relationship—my washer's and mine—is but an armed truce, that this mechanical Gargantua may one day break the bolts that bind him.

These thoughts might have remained blissfully subliminal except for Mr. Krumfort, the man who installed our washer. During the 23 years he has worked with machines, Mr. Krumfort has acquired respect for THEM. He claims communion with them, and listens to the "beating of their hearts." He is wont to refer to pulse instead of r.p.m. and he takes something from his tool kit that looks suspiciously like a stethoscope to me!

"Machines have souls," says Mr. Krumfort, "They don't like to work for people, and that's a fact." He deplores man's persistent folly in making machines more efficient all the time, gives me the uneasy impression that they are just cat-and-mousing it with us human beings, and have already plotted an Industrial Revolution that will roll history back like a moving picture in reverse. Of course, come the Revolution, my washer will probably be carrying the oriflamme.

Ever since Mr. Krumfort got me off on the wrong foot, I have felt like a Simon Legree, a sweatshop operator, exploiting the motor heart and steel muscles and wire arteries of a brooding, resentful slave. And subsequent evidences of malicious whimsey on the washer's part seem to support Mr. Krumfort's thesis.

A creature of moods, my washer goes to work in girlish merriment as the water gushes merrily in. Then comes the long, weary sigh just before the rinse cycle, and the reluctant shudder that precedes its hysterical spinnings. In the stretches, the water mumbles, whimpers, and delivers incantations that sound like damnitall-damnitall-damnitall. Once it had a tantrum, jumped up and down like a basketball guard. How cunningly it contrived to keep between me and the switch!

Furthermore, I have to pamper its digestion. It can't accommodate just any old soap the way my stupid but faithful agitator-wringer washer did for 13 faithful, unquestioning years. This automatic personality requires water softener if I use soap, and will spit out detergents like a naughty child if I fail to measure the amount required with the exactitude of an uncertain mother preparing her baby's first formula.

Once the washer clattered something fierce, and Mr. Krumfort found a bobby pin in its innards. You'd think I'd put ground glass in my husband's meatloaf the way Mr. Krumfort went on! Another time, an offbeat clicking worried me and Mr. Krumfort came, all solicitude and reproachfulness. He gave the patient a few reassuring pokes with a screwdriver, then turned it on. It purred contentedly. Mr. Krumfort was sure I'd imagined the symptoms. "There seems to be nothing wrong with it now," he opined, adding, "Maybe you make it nervous."

Take a quick taste while mixing. You'll note something special in this salad. It's the sunny, summer-bright flavor of California's own ripe olives. Hurry up—and taste!

3/4 cup ripe olives
1 1/2 cups diced
cooked chicken
3/4 cup diced apple
1/2 cup diced celery
3 tbsps. lemon juice

3 tbsps.
mayonnaise
3 tbsps. cream
½ tsp. prepared horseradish

Lettuce

Cut olives into large pieces. Mix together the olives, chicken, apple and celery and sprinkle with lemon juice. Blend mayonnaise, cream and horseradish and mix lightly but thoroughly with chicken mixture. Serve on lettuce. Garnish each serving generously with additional pieces of ripe olives. Serves 5 to 6.

To make more meals sing with California flavor, pack ripe olives in the picnic basket...put them on TV trays...and pass a bowlful when guests drop in. There's a bright, friendly greeting in that "welcome bowl" of California's flavor-packed ripe olives.

But any addict can knit—combined with fiction, this salves the conscience and can even be done with a complicated fair-isle pattern.

In cases of mild illness-enough to keep the patient in bed, yet allow full use of hands and eves-you would think the addict might be satisfied. Normal human beings welcome such times to catch up on books they've put off reading. But the addict's palate is jaded-practice has bestowed such an appalling facility for licking up the printed page at a glance, that even historical novels sold by weight need only a few hours' digestion. His family does not just have to change library books, but must dash on a ceaseless shuttle-service-like a hedge-sparrow feeding a cuckoo-between patient and library

The addict may make rules to fight the craving. No reading before 9 P.M., for instance. Leaning over the morning paper while the cereal cooks doesn't count—nor do quick glances at a magazine while bath water runs, nor at the evening paper while waiting to collect the children at school. That's not reading—that's just keeping up with current events.

An addict myself, I only visit the library once a week. I ration myself to one novel and something informative. But we're a big family. If the others ask me to change their books, and if I happen to pick up things I think they ought to like rather than those they actually want-well, what do they expect? After all, I only go once a week; it's a long walk; and 12 books weigh a lot. I suffer a good deal because of this control system. People are always snatching their books from me just when I'm doing a preliminary skim to see if they really would like them. They don't realize I must have that weekly dose, and they never try to speed up their own reading. It isn't fair-after all, I only ask them to get through two books in the time it takes me to read twelve.

It's hereditary, too. As I put the children to bed, the youngest—just five—moans, "Oh, Mummy—I must just finish my book." And the awful thing is that I pride myself she's rather bright for her age!

f I ever blow my top, it won't be because of my too-small, suburban home, or my two small kindergarten-agers. No. If I ever blow my top, it will happen on a Friday morning between 10 and 11 o'clock. How do I know? Because that's when I do my weekly grocery shopping at our fine, new, big, air-conditioned supermarket with its too-narrow aisles.

But it isn't the unalterable aisles that enrage me-it is my sisters in the housewives' sorority. At least 90% of them must drive cars-but if their auto driving can be judged by their driving of food wagons, I don't know how they make it!

No driver would abandon her auto in the middle of a highwaybut she's perfectly apt to park her food wagon in the middle of an aisle and wander back for forgotten items while traffic jams. No two women would stop their cars for a chat on a busy highway; but they stop their wagons for a gossip, completely inconsiderate of the rights of other shoppers. Where auto parking is parallel to the curb, you wouldn't let the front end of your car jut out into the street-but haven't you seen many a food wagon parked at an angle to the shelves in such a way that other customers can't pass it conveniently? Near the meat counter of our market, space has been provided for the orderly parking of wagons -but plenty of women still take their wagons up to the counter, thereby keeping one other woman (or two thin ones) away!

Aside from traffic, my pet peeve is the woman who brings along her children-and lets them run wild through the store. In my neighborhood, we take turns keeping each other's youngsters so Mamas can shop unhampered. But if you can't make such an arrangement, why not shop when your husband can keep the kids?

When you're almost finished with the ordeal, and waiting to check out, what about the woman who reserves her place in line by leaving her wagon there-while she meanders back to finish her shopping? I don't mean an occasional forgotten item, but a whole flock of things. Nothing makes me quite so mad! The rest of us were courteous enough to finish our shopping before we got into the line.

So if you read in your paper some morning of a woman who went berserk in a supermarket-don't be surprised if I'm the one!

companions, he reveals, personally, and with their aid, of course, those qualities that have ever stamped him the kingpin jazz musician of our time. (He's amazingly versatile, too, in that he does equally well on other occasions sitting in with "classical" musicians.) The new item presented is Rock Rimmin, for which Mel Powell, a high-caliber pianistcomposer-arranger, did the basic sketch. After that it's improvisation. within limits. Unusually good, too. when you hear it a few times.

YMA SUMAC-MAMBO: Eight pieces in all, written for her by Moises Vivanco and arranged by Billy May; CAPITOL, H 564, one 10-inch LP disc

Miss Sumac is a product of the Peruvian Andes. The Mambo is a product of Cuba. This results in some of the eeriest, most exciting, flashiest sounds I have ever heard. The lady mambo's with high shrieks and low ones, with growls, with sounds like insistent buzzers. This is hot music, and of a quite different kind. It's practically arson.

YVETTE GUILBERT: An historic collection of typical song interpretations. Guilbert accompanied at the piano by Irene Aïtoff

ANGEL, 64011, one 10-inch LP disc We're still in the popular vein, if you've noticed, though the idiom is anything but American and in some ways hardly French. For Yvette Guilbert was an exclusive manifestation. She sang popular songs, yes, but to them she brought a fantastic equipment of imagination and intellect, besides a voice capable of all sorts of unusual effects. Certainly no one has come along to sing in the style she affected. To my mind, a songwhether serious or popular-calls for interpretation, and song interpretation, to me, is characterization virtually all the time. Yvette Guilbert did nothing, if not characterize. Witty, penetrating, human, remarkably clever at making an implied point ever so innocently. In short, I fell quite in love with this disc. Incidentally, the recording is a transfer from others made in France in 1933 and 1934. And, as an extra dividend, there are graceful explanatory notes by the altogether sympathetic Carl Van howers in June are apt to bring with them bounty much different from April's variety—especially if planned for a bride or a mother-to-be! This clever Shower Tree makes a gala bearer of gifts for such affairs. For the trunk, anchor a well-formed tree branch, about six feet high, in a Christmas-tree holder. The small gifts are suspended, mobile-fashion, from an umbrella-like "shower head" made of coat hangers. Be sure that the "trunk" has a branch from which the gift load can hang free.

A SHOWER TREE YOU CAN MAKE YOURSELF

To fashion the "shower head," bend seven thin wire coat hangers as shown (use pliers). Wrap thangers with adhesive-backed tape on the bias—it isn't apt to foul up if first cut into short strips. Tape hangers together, then bend to form a graceful "umbrella." If the gifts cause the tree trunk to tip, weight down the holder with a rock or two.

Tint the trunk and the umbrella with a rubber-base paint, then garnish the umbrella with fresh flowers and ribbons in the colors of your choice. Cover the tree holder with sod, moss, or artificial grass "planted" with flowers in orchid tubes or wrapped in florist's tape.

THERE'S THEM THAT \ LIKE IT...

The Duane Fosslers, of Houston, Texas, feel amply rewarded for the work they put into building their own handsome patio (described in our April 1955 issue). Alone, or with friends, they enjoy relaxing in their informal outdoor "family room"

AND THEN THERE'S THEM THAT DON'T

MARY EDITH BARRON

If you are wistfully dreaming, through a stuffy office window, of getting back to nature by building a six-foot garden wall and patio, you may be in for a surprise. Recently, at a meeting of our club, members hopefully suggested that the annual party be held at our home. "It's no trouble for Edith—in their big patio," they said.

"No trouble?" I sighed, and wondered at the ignorance of some indoor entertainers. My enthusiastic friends have always showed up after the scene is set, exclaiming that the garden is a picture, and if the patio were theirs they'd do nothing but sit and revel in its inspiring beauty.

"When?" I ask, under my breath.

But I, too, shared the illusion of my club sisters before we remodeled and followed what we thought was a trend toward the primitive—simplicity in living room design and furniture, fresh air, burning wood, old clothes, and the great outdoors captured in 60 lush feet of back yard with picture windows to bring it all inside. Alas! Nobody prepared me for the long hours of work connected with the tie of the primitive to a city lot. The Carolina jasmine and crimson bougainvillaea vines that roof the sheltered portion of our patio give us color the year round, but they also shed leaves and flowers to be swept daily. We welcome the chatter and songs of birds, but their mess is another matter. Sitting in a clean patio when the garden is unkept is like trying to relax inside in one spic-and-span room while around you the rest of the house is dirty and disorderly.

So we weed, rake, mow, and snip faded and dead blossoms. Then we hose the patio. And no garden is really ever ready for company until it has been freshly sprinkled. Those picture windows have to be polished, with many a sturdy elbow motion.

In San Diego our evenings are always cool enough for heat. We bring armloads of wood to last the evening. Charcoal is arranged underneath the grill. The table is set with an appropriate centerpiece. Special party themes call for additional decorations. I often make flower-shaped candles in jelly molds and "plant" them in flower beds, among the shrubbery, or in the bird bath. Lighted at night, they look like burning blossoms.

Saturday has been spent getting the garden ready for guests. But where's the food? Maybe we'll mix our salad at the table or barbecue the steaks as we drink and nibble appetizers. We might even assign small duties to our guests. But let's not kid ourselves. It takes advanced preparation to ensure good eating.

Old clothes for the back yard are as outmoded as bloomers. Fashion gives us an exciting variety of patio apparel to choose from, though she's firm on protocol. And manufacturers are brightening the market with a colorful array of patio gadgets ranging from stainless steel grills to charcoal tongs and magnetized pot holders. Getting back to nature? In our patio we haven't had a chance! It's taken time, but we've learned that patios are for special occasions.

There are, however, certain definite advantages: Our small house no longer pants from the pressure of weekend or weeklong guests. We just overflow into the patio. With a little help and some borrowed chairs, feeding 60 is as easy as feeding six. Serving outside may be more trouble than eating from the kitchen table or trays, but the food tastes better and fellowship comes spontaneously. Also, there's something mighty satisfying about working in soil. It controls the figure, lessens tension. And in the evenings, how wonderful it is to flop on a redwood couch and peruse the heavens.

Patios are not a break with convention—outdoor living is complicated. But if you don't mind work and you like to entertain (no party gives itself), you'll find that a walled garden is pleasant and rewarding. On the other hand, if you're dreaming of old clothes and a soft seat in primitive surroundings, you'd better take your cushion and pitch a tent in the wilds, away from friends and clean-up challenges.

Dear American

SO YOU CAN'T AFFORD YOUR OWN HOME?

So you want a home and think that you can't afford one? Why not? When my husband and I were married, I was 18, he was 19 and earning $33 a week. Within that first year our son was born, and right after that, my husband secured a job paying $54 a week. Even on this limited income, we had the obsession of owning our own home. One day we saw an ad mentioning a new subdivision, fully improved, opening up not too far from the city. I helped things along by doing work at home, and, by paying a small amount each month, we owned a lot 60' x 135' in a year and a half.

Then we started tramping from one builder to the next, comparing prices and materials. We finally decided on one of the contractors, and a semi-finished Cape Cod. What a thrill to see our home go up! Four months from the time it was started we moved in, with plumbing, heating, and electrical work already installed. Afterwards, we worked on a cash basis, buying only what we could afford each week.

Some people may say, "Yes, but to buy a semi-finished house, you need to be a real handyman!" I disagree. I say you need to learn as you go along, and not to be afraid to profit from your mistakes.

-MRS. ALICE ROM

FROM SEED TO SHOWPIECE

I had an experience which has much in common with the "tall tale" told in the article, "Eat Your Pear and Have It, Too," in last December's issue. Two and a half years ago, my husband and I received a box of fruit from Miami, Florida, and I planted one of the mango seeds in a flower pot. As the weeks went by, a tiny green sprout appeared. I kept the young plant well watered, put it outdoors in the sun, and by fall it was five or six inches tall. I brought the plant into the house for the winter and set it in a warm room by the window. The next spring I returned it to the yard. By fall I had to transplant it to a larger pot before returning it to the warm room.

If any chill were in the air (not unusual for our part of Kentucky), we would hurry the mango into the house, not to mention switching it in and out for the various seasons. This walking around with a growing plant, which, each time, loomed larger, reminded me of the play, Hellzapoppin', for all during the drama, a bellboy was trying desperately to deliver a little plant to a lady. He went about the hotel lobby, paging Mrs. Blank, who was never available. The plant grew into a large tree before the play ended, with the bellboy last seen perched in its branches, still calling the lady.

Now our "Hellzapoppin'" plant is set in an even larger flower pot. It has grown to a height of almost three feet, has two branches extending out from the main stem, and has become a showpiece to our friends.

-Mrs. Edna M. Bagian

WE DIDN'T WANT A LIVING ROOM

When my husband and I decided to build a new house, we took a survey of ourselves: we had been blessed with only one child; we were in a business which takes six full working days for each of us; we felt we needed some land on which to unwind on holidays and Sundays. Also, my husband had gone back to his boyhood hobby of raising and training pedigreed racing pigeons. When we finished listing our needs and wants, we realized that the room we didn't seem to have in our plans was a living room!

You see, we decided to eliminate everything in the house that wasn't absolutely necessary to our everyday living. We knew that we must have two bedrooms (of moderate size), one bathroom (of large proportions), a compact utility room in place of a basement, and a huge, comfortable kitchen that doesn't look like an experimental laboratory. Our plans also included a large, two-car garage with plenty of storage space above and a nice loft for the racing pigeons. All on a half-acre of land!

Soon we'll be moving into our new home, and we're wondering just how we'll like not having a living room. But, with our busy schedule and informal way of life, we think that sitting at a nice, big kitchen table or in a rocker in front of the kitchen fireplace will be all the "living" we -Mrs. Mary J. PERFECT TOOLS FOR LIGHT GARDEN JOBS

These are True Temper's floral tools—extra small and just perfect for light garden work like digging bulbs, transplanting, and cultivating around small plants. Ladies (husbands, too) like them for jobs that don't require full-size tools but which are a little too big for hand tools.

They're beautiful and sturdily built. Blades are finest forged steel. Handles are Northern Ash, fire hardened to seal the grain against wear and weather.

Get True Temper floral tools at your hardware or garden store —individually or in pre-packed matched sets. . . . True Temper Corporation, Cleveland 15, Ohio.

Handsome Hydrangea

E. HAMILTON FAIRLEY

f the 30 odd hydrangea species, the most popular are the hardy, big, shrubby H. paniculata grandiflora (called by nurserymen "Pee Gee"), much used as a lawn specimen with its big panicles of white flowers that turn pinkish, then reddish brown; and the smaller, less hardy French type, including varieties and hybrids of H. hortensis (or macrophylla) whose trusses are white, pink, or blue. These are sold by florists as Easter pot plants, but they also make a beautiful display grown as a border or hedge where the winters are not too cold, and in large pots or tubs for terrace or patio adornment as shown above. The flower heads are borne in profusion, but on the previous year's stems which, therefore, must not suffer frost injury. With garden plants, this may mean winter protection with leaves. evergreen boughs, burlap, etc.; tubspecimens are commonly removed, after the leaves fall, to a shed, deep cold frame, or other frost-free place.

Variation in flower color is caused by soil conditions involving acidity, iron content, or both. In a soil naturally alkaline (sweet) or made so by the addition of lime, a plant tends to produce pink or reddish flowers; in an acid soil, or one made so by the addition of sulphur, aluminum sulphate, peat moss, etc., bluer flowers can be expected, the intensity increasing with the degree of acidity.

After the flower heads fade, prune only enough to keep the plants symmetrical and bushy and, of course, free of dead wood.

IMPROVED! ACTS EXTRA FAST IN SPRAYING LAWN WEEDS AWAY!

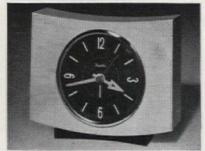

New End-o-Pest Rose Dust controls more rose pests and diseases* than any dust or liquid ever offered. Controls not only aphids, black spot, and all common pests, but also those that are resistant to other insecticides or fungicides such as red spider and powdery mildew.

Formulated from new materials, End-o-Pest Rose Dust is available in handy, refillable dust gun container or economical 3-lb. canisters. And that's not all! In addition, there are other Vigoro gardening aids made to control specific pest and weed conditions in your area. Look for them at your dealer's.

SUMMER ALL YEAR

Coast to coast, you find them everywheresheltered areas that are open in summer, but glass-enclosed later on. They need furnishings designed to meet indoor and outdoor requirements

This furniture takes to the same sort of life as your house plants-it flourishes indoors or out, according to season, and thus meets a very special need. So enamored of outdoor living are we that most new homes, and many old ones, now sport a terrace or patio. Fine-until winter comes. Well, we've had about enough part-time outdoor living, so terraces are now growing roofs and removable glass to become year-round garden rooms.

Here are three furniture groupings designed for such roomsall made of materials that withstand some exposure and the ravages of growing things-plants, pets, and progeny. In the first (top left) imported rattan is woven or used slat-fashion to form chair seats and table top, while gold anodized aluminum frames add suave sparkle. The completely separate basket seat of the "Lazy Bowl" chair is equipped with nylon bearings that glide smoothly back and forth as you shift weight. All pieces are light enough to tote when you want to move out on the lawn.

In the group pictured directly above, chair seats and backs are sturdy, scrubbable yacht cord, woven in one piece, and made fast to wrought-iron frames to achieve an elegant air. Table tops, including that of the capacious dining table, are gray slate.

Frames of the comfortable sectional pieces illustrated at the left are made of simulated rattan. Table tops and shelves in this grouping may be black lacquer, or a wood-grained plastic that is ideal for holding plants. See "Where Credit Is Due," page 116

HERE MARBLE IS TOPS

Bathrooms are something special in the Herbert M. Kieckhefer's home, for they are furnished as continuations of the bedrooms, and equipped with these handsome marble-topped built-ins designed by Mrs. Kieckhefer. In the master dressing room-bath shown above, note such un-bathroomy touches as the antique mirror, crystal sconces, ball-fringed curtains. There's also a tufted screen behind which the toilet is concealed. In the daughter's bathroom below, green marble tops the washstand and sets the color scheme. Metal fittings are burnished to the tone of old pewter. Antique gilt mirror is illuminated by cove lighting

The tiny sewing corner at left is where Magdalen Burke made the curtains and bedspreads for her home (see pages 37-39). Walls are powder blue, with a tiny printed fabric used everywhere—curtains, chair pad, on a screen which hides a roll-away bed, mats for pictures

GOT BEDROOM IDEAS?

The Burkes paid $65 for a secondhand French Provincial bedroom set and planned their bedroom around it. Arthur papered one wall in a black and gilt design on white—bedspread is only one Magdalen didn't make. Hanging lamps were made from the lids of two wicker baskets

In the Burke twins' room, an old iron headboard was painted green to match dominant color in wallpaper. Lamps are made from glass bells filled with artificial flowers. Note the unusual over-bed arrangement; a shelf to hold ornaments, plates following contour of headboard

Exciting new Weldwood textured paneling costs as little as $26 for an 8' x 12' wall . . . and it's guaranteed for the life of your home!

The subtle charm of texture is as old as Nature and almost magical in its power to attract the hand and delight the eye. Remember the first time you ever saw a weathered old barn or a piece of driftwood?

Now you can have all that touch-inviting texture in lovely Weldwood paneled walls!

There's Weldtex—the popular striated paneling that creates unusual patterns of light and shadow, fine for painted or natural finish. Planktex combines the texture of striations with smooth, fine-grained wood. Sea Swirl and Surfwood capture the weather-beaten beauty of wave-tossed driftwood. V-Plank spaces vertical grooves to give the effect of random planking; shadow line of grooves adds inches to apparent height of room.

Panel a wall yourself! It's easy with 4' x 8' Weldwood panels; still easier with V-Plank and Planktex that come completely pre-finished by skilled woodcraftsmen—they're even waxed!

SHADE WHEN YOU WANT IT

In this case, a tall eucalyptus tree provides shade at one end, but a partial roofing would also serve. Upright trellis, covered with jasmine, affords privacy—and fragrance

GARDEN TOOLS BY SPECIAL DELIVERY

A "tool tuckaway," placed stategically near to your flower beds can invite you to do a lot of weeding and snipping that might otherwise just be skipped. So often an urge to dig a few weeds, clip a few dead blossoms, or do a bit of pruning departs as quickly as it comes upon you—simply because it's just too much trouble to traipse back to the garage or tool shed to get trowel, weeder, shears, and the like. That's where the tool tuckaway comes in—a converted old RFD mailbox that houses an extra set of hand tools. Place it on a firm standard or base in a convenient, but unobtrusive spot. If your garden is large, two such caches may come in handy.

Paint it an appropriate color (and add, if you like, a decorative or humorous motif). Then, to beautify the base, plant a not-too rampant vine or a climbing rose (a thornless variety that won't scratch when you grab for that weeder!). In no time at all, greenery will grow enough to cover the standard and then can be trained up over the box itself.—Helen Houston Boileau

Does the work of a Lawn-Sprinkler and Soil-Soaker and Does it Better!

Guaranteed to lie flat! Will not roll or shift position! Stays where you put it! Water openings on one side only. Will not wash away soil or damage delicate roots when sprinkling, or wet under side of foliage when soaking.

The only practical way to sprinkle or soak uneven terrain, terraces, long narrow strips, rectangular, square, or oval areas; between vegetable rows — all those hard-to-get-at places! Waters a strip about 25 feet wide entire length of sprinkler, with average water pressure.

Special triple-tube nickel-plated couplings — male one end, female other end — several sprinklers can be joined. Made of beautiful green plastic. Tough, thick walls prevent tearing, snagging on thorns. Won't fade, rot, or mildew. Easy to clean and keep clean.

Swan Lawn Sprinkler

Swan also offers you a plastic sprinkler with water openings all the way around tube — not a combination sprinkler and soaker. Available in 20, 35, and 50 foot lengths.

he world, from a swing, is a wonderful thingand it's a safe world, too, when youngsters have a swing like this one in which to fly (but not too far) through the air! No sharp edges, no sliversand the sides of this inverted tire tube will carefully cradle even a very young swingster. To make one like it, all you'll need is an old tire and some rope. I used a 700 x 15 tire, but even a truck tire would do-in fact, it would make a dandy king-sized version. Make two chalk marks on the tire, dividing it in half. Saw through these marks until you come to the beads. With a sharp razor, cut away the tire from one half, leaving the beads to serve as a hand-hold and as a handy place to tie the rope. Next, turn the tire-half inside out (this is not difficult if you pull back on the beads and push at the center of the tire). Then, using heavy-duty rope, string it up on a sturdy limb-and watch all the fun! DATA: NORA DILTZ Here's an extra something for the kids-and it's a cinch to make!

Your modern new small home needs just as fine a heating system as a larger home does, and when you choose steel pipe radiant heating you get it . . . at no more and possibly less cost than you might pay for conventional systems. Where space is a factor only radiant heating allows you to utilize every inch of floor and wall space for living . . . because the heating coils are concealed in the floor or ceiling. Truly "invisible" heat! More, you'll experience a new kind of comfort . . . warm, draft-free floors, no "dead spots," vital, spring-like warmth, greater cleanliness.

*Various surveys from all parts of the country indicate an average cost of $1.00 or even less per sq. ft. of floor area for steel pipe radiant heating systems.

CONSULT YOUR ARCHITECT, BUILDER OR HEATING CONTRACTOR BEFORE YOU BUILD

Because your radiant heating system will be an integral part of the house, and must be planned right down to the last valve and pipe coil before construction is started, tell your architect, builder or heating contractor in advance that you want "invisible" steel pipe radiant heating. He will plan accordingly for mutual satisfaction, savings, and your lifelong comfort.

of family life and home. In finding their own personal compromise, the Burkes have given their two teen-age daughters a beautiful and tasteful background in their formative years which will inevitably shape their standards of home in their adult lives. Magdalen and Arthur themselves have had the pleasure—the treasure -of living the young years of their marriage together in a beautiful home with the special pride that comes in working and making things together. That is why we publish the Burkes' home, with a hope that it may be the needed spur to start you living for

The photographs you see on pages 37-39 are no six-weeks wonder. They represent a span of several years work, and the expenditures have occurred over a like period. Every bit of work the Burkes could do, they did themselves. Many things they thought at first they could not do, they learned to do.

"There was a monstrous furnace in the kitchen, there were no doors, cabinets, or closets. The walls were beaverboard. The bedrooms were very tiny, and there was no separating wall between the kitchen and living room." This, from Arthur Burke.

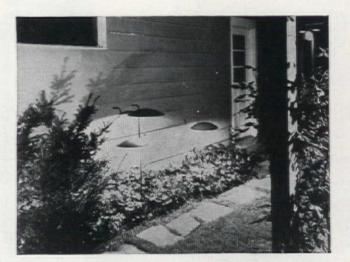

Yet the Burkes continued to chip away at these problems. Arthur brought home boards, sawed them, planed them, smoothed them; made the storage wall room-divider between living room and kitchen, made sliding doors to convert bedroom nooks into closets. He put in chests and dressing tables in the twins' room, built the two tall cabinets in the living room, and installed television and hi-fi in them. Magdalen sewed far into the night, many nights, making bedspreads, curtains, draperies (two sets: one for winter, one for summer). Together they continued to paper, to paint, to plan.

They saved on some things, spent more than they should on others. The sofa and wing chair were bought secondhand for $65; but materials for the living room cabinets came to $145, even with Arthur doing all the labor. Their three-piece bedroom set was a secondhand buy at $65, but the television and high-fidelity equipment cost $395.

Arthur and Magdalen handled their decorating with the skill of professionals. To "push back" the walls of the small living room and kitchen, they painted and papered everything possible one color-rose. The basic color came from their 9 x 12' American oriental rug which cost them $180. To get a feeling of change during the year, in summer they switch the sofa and tall cabinets to opposite walls, put up a different set of curtains and draperies, take up the oriental rug and put down a cool cotton area rug.

The Burkes no longer are the "different" ones in their set, we're happy to report. Quite a few friends and neighbors who have spent pleasant evenings in their cozy living room have come back again, with a new respect for the Burkes-to ask their help, to seek their advice in doing something about their own rooms. If you've found one idea, or resolved on any single course of action from reading our story on the Burkes-don't thank us; thank the Burkes, who had the courage to do something about it in the first place.

"MUSHROOM" LIGHTS

Right out of a fairy story, these forest-green lighting fixtures on stakes will brighten paths along your house and garden, spotlight a flower bed, or beckon guests' cars into a narrow driveway. Made of weather- and rust-proof aluminum, they are available with cord sets-only one electrical connection is needed for each grouping. Lightolier, Inc.

Lighting that charcoal fire in your barbecue needn't involve a lot of smudges and soot. Save up a supply of milk cartons, fill them with charcoal, and have them all ready for your next cook-out—the waxed cartons will ignite, and burn right along with the fire!

12 Ways to Beat It

your food budget as carefully as we're suggesting, you'll be so far ahead of this game that you'll have the money for advance investment in the seasons when prices are lowest.

Set a budget—then plant your feet—and stick. There's much satisfaction to be had in coming up on the sunny side of that specific sum allotted. Don't just stick the extra quarter or dollar back into your coin purse—put it in a piggy bank where it will start you toward a longed-for kitchen item—some pretty dishes, new stainless steel cutlery. You won't get bored with food economizing this way.

Clip and redeem coupon offers on food and grocery items regularly, and put the dimes and quarters into that food-savings piggy bank. That way you won't find the coupons

REMINDER TO OUR TULSA READERS

"The Do-It-Yourself Shop is growing in sales every day," according to a spokesman for the Brown-Dunkin Company. Why not drop in to see them? You'll find the complete line of AMERICAN HOME patterns for everything from a fireplace wall to a beautiful quilt—all with easy-to-follow directions.

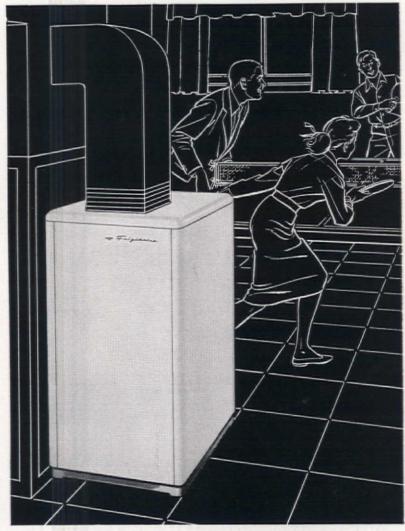

"too much bother," or let them run beyond their expiration dates. Coupons besides saving money, introduce you to new items on the market too.

Get acquainted with the fun of "can" canning. Putting up a bushel of apples or peaches is a lot of fun if you make it a Saturday family project. And how everyone who has cut a peach or pared an apple enjoys the fruit thereof when you put it on the table later! Your biggest saving comes from using peels, cores, etc., for jellies and jams. Pickle making is fun too, and many varieties can be gleaned from a peck or two of cucumbers. Then there are watermelon rind pickles; and orange and grapefruit peel jam, which can even double as gifts, and lovely ones. Get wise to pressure cooker canning -keep a few pint jars handy at your stove to save those leftover soups and stews.

Never, never let your food economies show. Don't spoil a good steak by mentioning that you bought it on sale. Never rattle on about your food economies to your friends, unless you feel you can honestly be helpful—they are most likely to sum up your efforts as "stingy." Yet by buying and planning ahead, by freezing, canning, and scanning the ads you can, even in these days of high prices, set a lavish-seeming, hospitable table without any taint of penny-pinching.

Add Summer Cooling to your heating system

New Multi-matic Frigidaire Conditioner

WALLPAPER TRICK

etting paste on the ceiling is a principal hazard of do-it-yourself wallpapering-especially if you don't have a border paper. Here's how to avoid the pitfall by using waxed paper to "take up" the surplus paste:

- 1. To allow for exact fitting of ceiling contours, cut wallpaper strips an inch longer than the height of the wall. Be sure to match up designs of paper before cutting.
- 2. Apply paste to wallpaper.
- 3. Measure width of wallpaper roll. Cut strips of wax paper, 4" wide, to fit across top of wallpaper strips.
- 4. Apply waxed-paper strips directly to paste on back of each strip of wallpaper. Let one inch of waxed paper extend above top of wallpaper.
- 5. Hang wallpaper in usual manner. Press top against the wall-ceiling joint, mark and trim paper to fit.
- 6. Remove waxed paper from the back of wallpaper, and press wallpaper into position. Waxed paper may be pulled off easily, as it doesn't absorb the paste.

TAPE TRICK

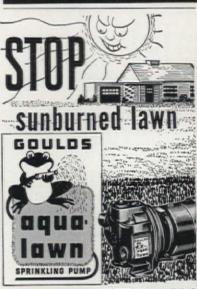

To save yourself steps in sewing, use a strip of hemming tape. It's adhesive-backed fabric, pressed on with iron for a strong, washable bond. 101" length, 98¢. Dritz Co.

Water Clings and Cleans!

from a faucet with Spring-Flo Aerator

Water is transformed by a faucet with Spring-Flo. Comes from the tap in a higher-velocity bubbly stream that clings and spreads, instead of splashing! The bubbly stream dissolves and mixes soaps and detergents more thoroughly. Makes suds aplenty-washes cleaner, faster! Spring-Flo's clinging water spreads into the hard-to-get-at crevices-rinses more efficiently!

LOOKS, TASTES BETTER

Millions of tiny air bubbles completely aerate, replenish lost oxygen. Trap clouding gases, off-tastes, odors, then flow and vanish-leaving water crystal-spring clear, mountainstream fresh!

Leading faucets are Spring-Flo equipped. Ask your plumber!

Your most important summer "accessory" isn't shown!

Together with the Japanese shoe, the over-size wicker carryall-and the delightfully unexpected revival of the parasol-comes another important Summer "accessory" that adds even more to your femininity: Tampax.

Tampax is so important in helping you maintain the light, lovely look of Summer at all times. It never betrays its presence in any manner . . . not by a belt, a pin or a telltale "edge" line...not even by odor.

For Tampax is worn internally ... in the really nicer way that many modern women use protection. The Tampax itself is safeguarded by a disposable applicator so that your hands needn't even touch the pure white cotton. It's quick to insert, quick to change, easy to flush away.

It goes without saying that you can swim, shower or tub while wearing Tampax. (Have you seen the new bathing suits? . . . Scantier than ever and definitely two-piece.) Tampax is handy to take on trips . . . a whole month's supply slips into your purse.

Cool and comfortable, Tampax prevents chafing and irritation on "those days"...does away with "special" perspiration problems.

Why remind yourself constantly it's "time-of-the-month" by buckling yourself into a hot, uncomfortable belt-pin-pad harness? Change to lighter, freer Tampax-and be glad! ... Choice of 3 absorbency sizes at drug or notion counters: Regular, Super, Junior. Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

OLA GLADYS HYLTON ATE YOU an

The mysterious-looking package, insured and boldly labeled, arrived while we were helping friends to celebrate their anniversary. Tense and excited, we watched our hostess snip strings and remove mounds of excelsior. Then she drew out the artistically tied box, untied the ribbons, opened it, and instinctively cried out, "Gosh, what is it?" For inside was an oblong black tile on which a nude woman sprawled with outstretched arms, bulging breasts, and an elevated, grotesque toe. Obviously, it wasn't an object of art. What could she do with it? Instantly we labeled it as a "goshgift," bound for the attic.

Perhaps you are a natural-born attic stuffer, so that one more "goshgift" creates no problem. My mother was like that. There never was anything too big or too little to store, out of sight and out of mind, in her gigantic attic. Or maybe you are the type who can't bear to get rid of anything-because, someday, you may need it.

If you belong to either school of behavior, forget this-keep collecting and stuffing. But if you want to rid your home of non-essentials and stave off receipt of gosh-awful-gifts, read on. This is your salad, tossed just for you.

Here is why and how I do it, and the way it works for me.

Twice, I've been faced with the almost insurmountable task of disposing of an incredible number of things accumulated over a 50-year period in two huge old houses.

he first time, what looked like an impossible job was mastered by an obscure relative who arrived unexpectedly, and, to our satisfaction, took practically everything-including the moths-for storage in her attic, awaiting the day her son would begin housekeeping. Glory be! I shudder for the bride when she finds her house completely furnished.

In the second house, Mother left her attic accumulations for me to dispose of. Blocking my entry to the attic proper was the most gruesome thing I've ever seen-a highly polished, solid walnut frame, four by six feet, surrounding an "In Memory" tribute to my grandmother. Once inside the attic, it took six of us three days to sort and dispose of similar treasures.

After these two experiences, it was clear to me how I could avoid accumulations and "gosh-gifts" by establishing two customs: 1) I would so arrange my house that, if necessary to move, I could get out in four hours; and 2) I would tell my friends and relatives not to give me anything requiring space, unless it had at least three uses.

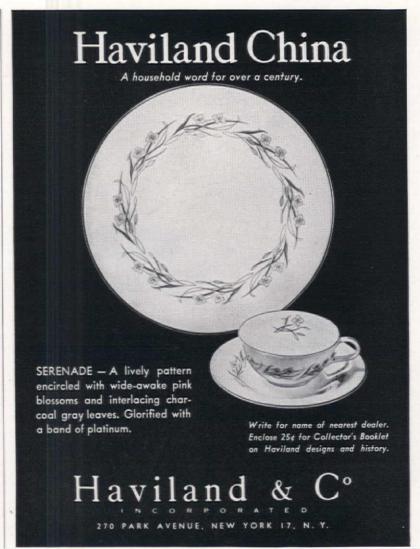

This is how I make these two ideas work. First, as soon as I accumulate too many things for our current use, I send them where they will be used. Nothing lurks in cupboards or closets waiting for that one occasion-except in a drawer of articles for parties and holidays, and this drawer must not be crowded. No clothes hang waiting for occasional use. If not worn, out they must go!

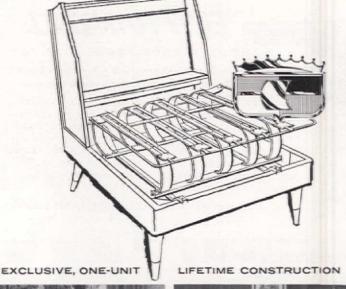

The second custom is fun for friends and relatives who help to make it work. It requires more thought in selecting gifts, for they have to know how we live-if we are to enjoy it.

We have saved ourselves from receiving endless "gosh-gifts" by this simple formula. For example, a wine bin! What three uses can you possibly think up for one? It's easy to count three against one-it takes up space, is devilish to dust, costs a lot of money. And then there was the melodeon! A friend who was moving offered us her treasured instrument. But, put to it, she couldn't think up three uses. Still another friend offered us a 50-gallon brass kettle. Where, in our compact little house could we place such a thing? And what could we, a family of three, do with anything that size?

With thought, you too can avoid giving and receiving attic-bound "gosh-gifts." Giving should include something of you-your thought, affection, and consideration for the person who unties your gift and lives

TIPS

Blunting nail tips reduces chance of splitting wood, as nail cuts fibers instead of parting them. Set head on solid surface and tap point with hammer to flatten it

When nailing along edge of board, you can minimize the chance of splitting the wood by staggering nails as shown. Driving nails at an angle increases holding power

Access makes the heart grow fonder!

OLD KITCHEN SINK-NEW GARDEN POOL

MARY E. SHEPHERD

"Tou could make a pool like that," said my companion at the Boston Flower Show, as we admired the huge reflecting pool in the center of the great hall, with its lovely setting of primroses, pansies, forget-me-nots, ferns, shrubs, etc. "Smaller, of course," she added, answering my protestations that it would cost a good deal to have even a small metal pan made. Then a stranger on my right spoke up. "Oh no, it needn't. My husband made me a tank and it worked beautifully."

Determined to be defeated, I explained that I had no husband, nor any man in my family; nor any outdoor water supply except the rain barrels. Also the garden was just right-and finished-except (as I suddenly remembered) there was no moist place where I could grow primroses.

"I still think you could have a pool," insisted my friend as we drove home. "Why, out in the barn you have about everything but the kitchen sink, and-

"Wait a minute. I do have an old iron sink out there. It must be nearly three feet wide and four long"-and I began to think hard and fast. The idea grew rapidly, and before long the sink had been carried out to a spot by the back porch, near the end of a down spout or conductor pipe from the gutter. The barn yielded more pipe, including an elbow, and by that time the neighbors, learning of the project, came to offer help.

After the sink was well scoured with steel wool and a cleaning powder, the drain hole was plugged with a wooden stopper, waterproofed with a plastic made for leaky chimneys, and given two coats of aluminum paint which were allowed to dry thoroughly between applications. Then the inside of the sink got two coats of waterproof deck paint of just the bluish-aqua tint that was so effective in the reflecting pool I had seen at the flower show.

ext, the sink was fitted into a hole dug to receive it, one end being set about an inch higher than the other. With the rain barrel removed, the elbow of pipe was fitted to the down spout and to another piece of pipe leading to the high end of the sink. This supply line was almost concealed by the shrubbery that had formerly hidden the barrel. If from time to time the rain water failed to keep the water in the pool fresh, a couple of pailsful from the house could easily be added.

Kitchen Sink

Next we placed old, mossy stones here and there, especially at the ends where they helped to hold the sink firmly in the ground and to conceal its edges and the supply pipe. Then came the planting. At the back, in front of the mockorange against the barn, we put rugged yellow iris from neighboring swamps. (We could have used Japanese iris or, considering the hard use the pool was going to get, the tougher Siberian kind.) Around the pool we put primroses, peppermint, an unusual, delicious variety of water cress brought from Ireland, and forget-me-nots. Cardinal flowers, from a wild flower nursery, pansies, and violas we "drifted" down along the area that is moistened by the pool's runover after every shower. A little farther away, a large specimen of the beautiful Pulmonaria saccharata or

SINK HINT

When you arrange flowers at your kitchen sink, tiny bits of leaves and petals may go down the drain. To avoid danger of odor or clogging, pour a tablespoonful of a chemical drain-cleaner in their wake lungwort (horrible name!) blends its pink and blue bells with the other colors; with its spotted leaves, it remains as a show piece after its flowers fall. The whole planting was informal and "all right." Luckily, nothing was delicate; for small neighbors sometimes wade in the pool on hot afternoons, the dogs seem to think a drink from it is just a bit more tasty than one from their orthodox water dish and the family cat tries repeatedly to catch the frog that makes its home in the pool.

When fall comes, the sink is taken up and stored under the back porch whence, each spring, it comes out for a fresh coat of paint and to be reset in its place. I'm sure that around many a country home there are old horse troughs, set tubs, and other outmoded devices that similarly could be put to good use. Certainly, never did so little money spent in a garden return such pleasure for all who enjoy it as did the insignificant investment we made in our kitchen-sink pool.

Now you can save at least 20% and combine all your essential home insurance in a single, simplified policy

Homeowners who have been buying separate policies, or who have been risking loss because they felt they could not afford adequate insurance, will welcome North America's Homeowners Policy.

This single, simplified policy combines the protection of a number of policies—provides all essential home insurance in a convenient package. There is only one low premium to pay—at least 20% lower, in fact, than what you'd have to pay if you bought separate policies.

North America's Homeowners Policy protects you against loss caused by Fire—Theft—Lightning—Wind—Explosion—Hail—Riot—Vehicle and Aircraft Damage—Vandalism—Smoke. It covers your house and other structures on grounds—your personal liability—your household goods and personal property—and your additional living expenses caused by any of the above perils.

Developed by the nation's oldest stock fire and marine insurance company—Insurance Company of North America—the Homeowners Policy is now available in most states and Provinces of Canada. No longer do you have to buy a separate policy for almost every coverage. With North America's Homeowners Policy, you can simplify your insurance—know what you have—get superior protection at the least cost.

See your North America Agent or Broker today. If you like, he'll arrange payment on the easy, annual payment plan so you can budget the cost of your insurance. Insist on North America's Homeowners Policy—to be sure!

ROSE PEST

ood news for gardeners is the development of a multipurpose, push-button, pressurized contain-(Aerosol bomb) containing not only a fungicide (Phygon) for the control of the destructive black-spot disease of roses, but also insecticides that kill Japanese beetles, aphids, thrips, and mealy bugs that attack roses, gladiolus, and other garden plants. The formulation employed in this new type "bomb" combines a form of the proven, widely used fungicide named above with pyrethrins and rotenone, which are among the less toxic of the effective insecticides. Thus it can safely be used (following directions, of course) both outdoors and indoors. The convenient 12-ounce dispenser, plus a coupon worth 50 cents toward the purchase of a pair of Kleencut Rose Shears (which cut and hold flower stems), costs $1.49 at garden supply stores. Bostwick Laboratories, Inc., Bridgeport 5, Conn.

SAFETY TIPS FOR USING INSECTICIDES

nder an amendment to the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (Public Law #518, 83rd Congress), which becomes effective on July 22, food shipments bearing residues of pesticide chemicals in excess of established tolerances will be contraband and subject to seizure as adulterated. This means that commercial growers of food crops have a responsibility, under the law, of marketing such foods in accordance with tolerances which normally would not be exceeded if the applications of the pesticides are made in accordance with the directions given on the packages in which they are sold.

Similarly, the home gardener who uses pesticides, even though he does not offer his crops for sale and thus come under the law, has no less a responsibility to protect those who consume them by following the manufacturer's directions for their use and keeping the amount of residue left from spraying or dusting at the lowest possible level, certainly well below the legal "tolerance level." Manufacturers of spray materials and dusts spend much money and effort on research upon which to base their recommendations and directions. In fairness to them-and as a matter of just plain common sense—read everything on the label of a package of any insecticide or fungicide you buy or are given before you even open it, let alone use it.

There are other important rules to follow, too. Here they are, with grateful acknowledgment to the National Agricultural Chemicals Association's News and Pesticide Review:

Keep the pesticide out of reach of children, pets, and irresponsible persons. In case of accidental poisoning by any material marked "poisonous," call a physician or get the patient to a hospital at once.

Keep the material in the original container, tightly closed, and properly and legibly labeled.

Never give a neighbor or anyone a portion of a pesticide chemical in an unlabeled container.

Store all such materials in a safe, separate room, or locked cabinet, or closet, or on a high shelf, where they will not be exposed to excessive sunlight, heat, or cold.

Do not store where food or feed materials are stored or handled.

Observe special precautions to minimize the chances of residue on the edible portions of plants treated.

the edible portions of plants treated.

Wash hands and face after spraying or dusting.

Do not smoke while spraying or dusting.

Avoid spilling insecticidal chemicals on the skin or the clothing. If material is accidentally spilled, wash immediately and thoroughly to remove it.

Avoid inhalation of sprays (or vapor from them) or dusts.

Wash clothing worn when using the materials before a second use; in the event of continued spraying or dusting operations, wash it each day.

When using pesticide chemicals around pet or livestock quarters, or where animals are fed, cover (or remove) food and wash containers.

Be especially careful not to contaminate pools containing goldfish, etc.; see that dust or spray is not blown into or across them.

In using hormone-type weed killers (such as 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T preparations), have separate sprayers for the use of them alone. Removal of residues from such implements is very difficult, if not impossible; evenminute amounts carried onto valuable plants in subsequent sprayings with harmless materials may kill or seriously injure them.

Dispose of empty pesticide containers so that they present no hazard to human beings, animals, or valuable plants.

If in doubt about any of the above cautions or any other detail in connection with the use of pesticide chemicals, consult your Agricultural County Agent, or your State Agricultural Experiment Station.

the modern fashion in floors

A vacation house for all the family to enjoy is a typical expression of today's more informal, carefree living. This one has all the features of a full-size house, in an economical, practical one-room plan. It's a delightful little house that needs little housework—compact arrangement and modern materials chosen for easy care see to that! To keep the colorful floor of Armstrong Excelon Tile sparkling takes only five minutes a day. Made of tough vinyl plastic and asbestos, its smooth surface won't be harmed by anything you'd expect to spill on it. Even hot grease and harsh cleaners wipe away. And Excelon is unaffected by alkaline moisture, so you can put it down right over a ground-level concrete slab, or even in a basement. Install it yourself if you like—it's easy. You can actually cut it with scissors when you need to shape individual tiles. Best of all, Excelon is one of the most economical floors there is—it's the thrifty "modern fashion in floors."

Send for free portfolio, including sketch plans for this one-room vacation house. Just 26' x 30', it's designed to sleep four people comfortably, yet seems spacious, too. Detailed sketches of built-ins and a complete list of furnishings are included. Just send a post card to Armstrong Cork Company, 5506 Plum Street, Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

"I WAS REALLY STUMPED"

"I couldn't understand it. This new automatic is a honey, but Tom's shirts just weren't coming out as white as he likes them."

"Men are so finicky-what did you do?"

"Well, I knew Betty has a washer like mine, and loves it, so I called her. She said 'Try blue Cheer and see what happens."

"Did that make a difference?"

"I'll say it did! I'll never use anything else!"

"But you still use bluing, don't you?"

"Not with Cheer in my automatic. When you get washes that white, you don't need to bother with bluing or bleach."

"Hey! I'd better treat my automatic to some Cheer."

Is Blue Cheer Really Different?

Different as night and day from all other suds thanks to its Blue-Magic whitener.

And Cheer in agitator automatics washesclothes cleaner and whiter than any leading low-suds detergent—at half the cost. What's more, Cheer's recommended by the world's largest washer maker.

In any washer, it gets even new clothes whiter and whiter, wash after wash. So clean, so white you don't need bluing and —except for problem stains—no bleach.

And blue Cheer gets colors brighter and
