5 Good Homes Under $10,000

The varied arrangement of tiny openings in this new Armstrong Cushiontone ceiling tile adds new beauty-and new quiet-to your home.

Now another new Armstrong Ceiling-Classic Cushiontone!

It soaks up noise and gives your home today's smart new look

YOU MAY PREFER TEXTURED CUSHIONTONE. It's a new and distinctive ceiling tile for the home. It has a rich three-dimensional texture that crowns a room with beauty. It absorbs up to 75% of the noise that strikes it.

DO IT YOURSELF. Your Lumber or Building Materials Dealer will show you how to cover cracked ceilings with Cushiontone. His name is listed in the Yellow Pages under "Ceilings." Do the job this week end.

HERE's an entirely new idea in ceilings.

We call it Classic Cushiontone because the tiny openings casually scattered over the tile's surface bring a look of classic beauty to any room.

This new Armstrong Cushiontone design suddenly makes the ceiling area important. It can do wonderful things for any decorating plan.

Those tiny openings do double duty, too! They quiet a room by soaking up three-quarters of the noise that strikes the ceiling. The effect is delightful.

JOANNE B. YOUNG-TYPICAL DAY OF A LADY WRITER

Mrs. Young lives in Norfolk, Virginia, with her three small children and editor-husband. She wrote us of her typical day... "While turning out my story on Admiral Wright, I also put three loads of clothes in the washer, made eight peanut-butter sandwiches, applied one bandage and several kisses to assorted abrasions, sewed a tear in a pirate flag, helped locate 'Streak,' the turtle, and answered the doorbell at least nine times."

Jeanne O'Neill is a onetime one-career girl who now has many careers. A former advertising copywriter, she lives in Larchmont, N.Y., with husband John and two children. THE EDITORS

SALUTE TO AMERICANA!

Dear Editor:

I have just received my copy of The American HOME for August. It is, to my way of thinking, superb! The articles on Early American furnishings are so very interesting I bought four extra copies for friends.

-MRS. NOVA L. LEE

Dear Editor:

I wish to add my letter along with the many others that you have probably received telling you of the enjoyment the August issue has brought. I loved all the "Americana," it was wonderful! Let's always have a few pages each month along this line. I think too many other home magazines place too much emphasis on modern decor. The younger generation, becoming young homemakers, will not realize how beautiful and homey the new and old can be together.

How we retired in 15 years with Readers' Exchange $300 a month

"Miami is a real paradise for us! Swimming and sunbathing most every day-a garden that beats any seed catalog-and plenty of time to just relax. What's more, we're still young enough to enjoy it all. I'm only 55. But if I hadn't found the way to retire with an income of $300 guaranteed for life, my days would still be bound by the time clock and commuter train.

"Yes, that monthly check really changed my whole life. And it's just by luck that I came to get that check, too. It all started back in 1943right after my fortieth birthday.

"Sue gave me a surprise party that year. During the evening, Dick Lauman got up and jokingly proposed a toast-"To the first old man of the crowd.'

"Funny how that stuck in my mind. Days after, I found myself thinking about it. I had to agree with Dick. I was getting on. Actually, half my working years were over. It sort of frightened me, too. Especially when I thought how little I'd done to prepare for the day when I'd want to stop work.

"I had a good salary. But we just about managed to come out even every year. It almost seemed too late to begin to save. We could never save enough. And even if we didthere was always the danger of outliving our capital.

"Then one night I was glancing through a magazine. One of the ads caught my eye. And it really hit home! It told about a Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan That was the way a man like me-a man in his forties with a good salary and fifteen or twenty working years ahead-could use part of his present salary to buy a retirement income for later on. The coupon offered more information. I never was one to send in coupons, but this seemed too good to be true. I sent it in.

"A booklet explaining all the Phoenix Mutual Plans came back in the mail. And when I read it through, I was sold. Phoenix Mutual was for me!

"Soon after, I applied and qualified for a Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan. That was over fifteen years ago.

"Our first check came in May. Sue and I packed up and headed south. And, believe me, it's wonderful-no trains to catch-no appointments to keep-and, best of all, we have no worries about money. But we could never have done it at all without Phoenix Mutual.'

This story is typical. Assuming you start at a young enough age, you can plan to have an income of $20 a month to $3,600 a year or morebeginning at age 55, 60, 65 or older. Send the coupon and receive, by mail and without charge, a booklet which tells about Phoenix Mutual Plans. Similar plans are available for women-and for employee pension programs. Don't put it off. -THE EDITORS

The long arm of coincidence reached out to tap The American HOME on the shoulder, and as a result we were able to bring about a reunion between two old friends who'd lost track of each other. Although we wouldn't dream of becoming involved in lost-andfound or missing-persons activities, we couldn't resist the opportunity that presented itself in the following correspondence:

Dear Editor:

I am a subscriber to your very fine magazine and enjoy it so much. Recently, I saw a recipe for a "Baked Onion Casserole" submitted by an American HOME reader who had the same name as a lovely lady I knew some years ago. If your contributor is the same lady I knew, I would be most happy to renew our friendship. I would greatly appreciate having you contact her in this regard.

-MRS. HELEN R. FARQUHAR

We forwarded Mrs. Farquhar's letter and were so pleased to hear from Mrs. Farquhar just the other day. She writes ". . . through your efforts, I had a letter from my long-lost friend who is the same person I knew thirty years ago. She will be coming up this way in the fall and we have arranged a meeting which will, I am sure, turn out to be a real 'gabfest.' It was only through the recipe section in your fine magazine that this reuniting of old friends has taken place. Thank you for your interest and excellent cooperation."

The pleasure is ours too!

Your family tree can be a source of lasting pride and pleasure when you paint it into your home with our American HOME pattern. See it on our cover and you'll see what we mean!

This charming design is easy to paint and requires a small amount of effort to produce a great amount of pleasure. It need not necessarily go on a wall surface, although this is usually a popular setting. Try it on a door, on a large screen or on a room divider.

Grandparents' names are painted on the lowest branches. The names of parents are in the middle and the names of children go on the topmost branches. This tree provides for three generations.

People always enjoy seeing their names "in print," and how pleasant to be "in print" in such perfect company! The bright-red apple settings for the names add a cheerful note to this sturdy tree pattern.

You might even cut the design out of craft papers, glue in place over traced design, dry, then spray on a coat of protective shellac.

HOME-TYPE RANCH

DELORES BECKMAN

Then I read the real estate ads, I can't help feeling a little shabby. Such glowing terms as "prestige homes," "executive-type homes" and "exclusive country living" float before my eyes, and I can feel a distinct slide downward in my so-called pride-of-ownership. But the one phrase that really gives me the whammies is "ranch-type home." I don't know why it should bother me so much, unless it's because I live on a ranch, where I have a home. But that is as far as the comparison goes!

A "ranch-type home" is usually described with eye-catching phrases such as "set on a knoll," "indoor-outdoor living," "terrific view," "home of tomorrow" and "Provincial darling." Its interiors are pictured with such captivating descriptions as "built-in hutch," "dishwasher," "inter-com system throughout" and "pegged floors." "Low-cut roof with overhang" is almost indispensable when selling a ranch-type home. Most of these terms I understand, through wide-awake awareness; others, such as "chalet-type fireplace" and "wet bar," really take an awful lot out of me. When I begin comparing these glowing modern conveniences and luxurious extras with my own home-type ranch, I am sadly out of step.

One phrase often used is "casual ranch theme." I presume this means a ranch where you can live casually. No one lives casually on our ranch; even the gophers have to outwit the cats if they want to survive. The weeds grow with a vigor not even remotely casual, and the wood that burns in our fireplace (red-brick type) was not casually chopped.

"Pegged floors" is another term that intrigues me. Well, we do have pegged floors. They are pegged with holes made by furniture legs and rocks in the soles of shoes, and little boys with high hammers and low brains. There is even one peg where I dropped my steam iron point down.

Then there is that "inter-com system throughout." We haven't got that, unless you can call a cat getting caught in the screen door and being heard distinctly in the back bedrooms a system. My husband and children have an inter-com system all of their own, but it wasn't built-in. They were born with it. It consists of standing where they are and yelling at the top of their lungs until someone answers them. I use a system called "Maternal Radar" myself: get everybody on the beam, and if they don't stay there, spank them silly.

As for "home of tomorrow," when I consider how much this home cost us, and that it probably won't be paid for until my children are raising children of their own, it had just better be my home of tomorrow. And tomorrow. And tomorrow.

Then I get caught again with "indoor-outdoor living." This can fool you. You might think that it means living inside a house indoors, and outside a house outdoors. It doesn't mean that at all. It simply means that the indoors is taken outdoors, and the outdoors is brought indoors. Since I do not have any trees planted in my living room, nor sliding doors separating me from God's great outdoors with panes of sheer glass, I simply can't qualify here. Unless you can count having the kids put a baseball through the window (picture-type), the only outdoors we have indoors is when someone leaves the front door open.

Then there are those modern conveniences in the ranch-type home of today (and tomorrow). I refer of course to such extras as "dshwshr," "frpl.," "disp." and "cptg." My pride-of-ownership (built-in) goes soaring here, because we have almost all of these. We have a dishwasher: it's me. We have a "disp." (which is a garbage "disp.," naturally); in fact we have about seven or eight "disps": three cats, one dog, two raccoons and a fox, to mention just a few. These animals dispose of what garbage we have; and it is carried to them by another "disp.": an eleven-year-old boy.

but it is not "chalet type," so I'm not sure it counts. As for "cptg," I have no carpeting in my home. How on earth can people see my "pegged floors" if they are covered with "w/w cptg"?

et's rapidly take a few more of the familiar terms: "forced air," "terrific view," "wet bar" and "low-cut roof with overhang." Oh, yes, and "built-in hutch." We do have "forced air," if you can call a canyon breeze practically blowing the curtains off the rods a breeze. And what about our "terrific view"? From the "knoll" where I sit, I can see right down to the edge of the smog. There are cactus, poison oak, weeds, castor beans, a battered red truck, a 1948 tractor with collapsible disk, and a lane with forty-seven chuck holes.

I'm afraid that I don't know what "wet bar" means, so my ego thermometer will have to take a dip on that one. (All I know is, I don't think I would want a dry one!) As for the "built-in hutch," we keep all of our rabbits outside. (Outdoors.) Which brings us down to "low-cut roof with overhang." We have half of this: a low-cut roof. The only overhang, however, is an eaves spout loaded with leaves, and the nests of four birds who come every spring, spouting maternal instinct and pieces of string.

y the time I have reached this B far in the list of comparisons, I usually have to retire to my kitchen (unnatural plywood), and fortify my dwindling pride with a peanut-butter sandwich. This I take to my den (unpaneled), and turn on the airconditioning (I open the windows). I stretch out on the divan and take a good long look at my home-type ranch. I think it is a sure-enough, bang-up, lived-in, loved-in, beautiful, Provincial THE END darling!

Just ask us!

A digest of the most frequently asked questions by American HOME readers ... and our answers!

Q. What is the least expensive way to give a room a "new look"?

A. We know of nothing that will change a room more quickly than color on walls, such as paint or wallpaper. Both are available at comparably little cost. For instance, a dark brown or green colored wall when repainted a warm white turns the mood of a room from a dreary one to a cheery one! Wallpaper not only would add new color to a room but could, depending on the pattern, create a smart modern, provincial, informal or formal setting, depending on the furnishings.

Q. I own a house with brick veneer. Will it protect the brick to have it painted?

A. Brick and other forms of masonry do not, as a rule, require any protective coating. You may paint the brick if you wish to change the color, but once this has been done, you may have to repaint every four or five years.

Q. Cleaning house is my biggest headache. How can I simplify cleaning?

A. We have found that breaking down house-cleaning into a series of small, day-by-day jobs minimizes the work considerably. Instead of allowing chores to accumulate, do a little every day-then, you'll never be faced with the problem of a whole house waiting to be cleaned.

You've always known there's nothing like real paste wax for beautiful floors. With Beautiflor, the paste wax you pour, no messy scrubbing is ever needed as with self-polishing waxes. Easy buffing Beautiflor actually cleans and waxes at the same time . . . wood, vinyl, linoleum, cork and other floors, both old and new. (Just patch-wax places that get extra wear.) For real paste wax beauty and protection—the easier way—get Johnson's Beautiflor.

Q. How can children help in preparing a meal?

A. Children can take an active part in the preparation of almost any meal. A sense of accomplishment is their reward, and they're delighted to receive compliments on a job well done. With supervision, a youngster can make cake from a mix, string beans, shell peas, set the table. Find out a child's capability through guidance and patience. Their delight will be your reward!

Q. Are enriched foods as good as the old-fashioned foods?

A. Whether you use enriched foods or the old-time stone ground meals, unpolished rices, foods of similar type, is a matter of family preference. Enriched foods supply the same elements to be found in the unrefined foods and are generally much more popular. However, for those who like the coarse texture of whole grains, for example, unrefined foods certainly present no disadvantage. Remember, though: there is more nutritive value in food the family likes and eats than in food that stays on the plate!

Q. How can I improve my kitchen without investing in new appliances?

A. If your kitchen set-up is inconvenient or crowded, start thinking about rearranging the appliances to give you more service at their point of use. Could you move the refrigerator nearer to the sink and lessen steps between these two points? What about the toaster, the blender, the mixer—do you have the ultimate in convenience as far as placement is concerned? How about new storage shelves to accommodate small appliances? Or have you considered the possibility of a drop-down counter close to a window? Study your kitchen and you may find that the small changes add up to big improvements.

Her suggestions cover reading activities for children up to the age of twelve.

PLUMBING AND HEATING DIVISION

HATS OFF! is the order of the day as the Wrights entertain at an official garden party at Missouri House, their quarters on the Norfolk Naval Base in Virginia.

We pay a call on

Admiral and Mrs. Jerauld Wright

JOANNE BOESHAAR YOUNG

ur car turned onto tree-lined Dillingham Boulevard on the U. S. Naval Base at Norfolk, Virginia. On one side, a huge gray aircraft carrier steamed across the blue waters of Hampton Roads. On the other stood the stately houses built as exhibition buildings for 22 states that participated in the 1907 Jamestown Exposition, now officers' quarters.

We stopped in front of Missouri House, the handsome red-brick, white-pillared quarters of Admiral Jerauld Wright, Commander in Chief, U. S. Atlantic Fleet, and the Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic.

Our call was planned for late in the afternoon to give Admiral Wright time to fly home from Cape Canaveral, where he had observed a firing of the Navy's Polaris missile.

Scarcely had we rung the bell when the door opened, and we were greeted in quick succession by a white-coated Filipino houseboy, the admiral himself, and a gleaming golden retriever named "Monty," waving his red plume of a tail.

We stepped inside the wide entrance hall where guests from Charles Evans Hughes in 1907 to Prince Bernhardt of the Netherlands and Prince Albert of Belgium in recent years had been received.

Just then Mrs. Wright, stunning in a rustling black dress with bright rose print, hurried forward to give us a friendly handshake and a warm, welcoming smile. In a matter of moments we were relaxing with tall frosty drinks on the pleasant sunporch, the heat of the Virginia sun forgotten. How superbly this distinguished couple conveyed the warmth of their hospitality which they must extend to so many hundreds yearly as part of their Navy and NATO responsibilities!

"This is the spécialité de la maison," the tall tanned admiral smiled as he spread rich Stilton cheese, laced with Port wine, on crisp matzoth for us.

Missouri House has a thousand stories, we had been told, and we soon discovered that this was true. Nearly every object had an exotic origin or called to mind an anecdote of international flavor.

The enormous Turkish coffeepots we loved (how they would brighten a staff coffee break!), the squat milking stools the admiral bought "from under an Ethiopian," the three-legged tables he made from crosscuts of a mahogany log from Santo Domingo, and the handblown turquoise bottles

Mrs. Wright bought in Portugal to serve as lamp bases. Suddenly we realized how many unique clocks we had seen. Mrs. Wright laughed when we mentioned it, and we suspected an amusing anecdote was forthcoming. "Whenever we're in a bazaar—from Istanbul to the Flea Market in Paris—Jerry buys an old clock, or part of one, to fix up. And he always gets it working!" (continued) old English cupsoard was wired by the admiral to illuminate Mrs. Wright's china collection, which is the basis for her color scheme in the room. Among photographs on the table is one taken with the Pone during the Wrights' recent visit to Italy.

French and English furniture blend harmoniously with Danish ashtrays, Dutch crystal ducks, a Norwegian cookie dish, a pair of lamps made from Portuguese candlesticks. The oval portrait is of Stevens Thomson Mason, the admiral's great-great-grandfather, who, at the age of 20, became Michigan's first governor.

"HE CAN FIX ANYTHING" is the reassuring reputation of NATO's Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic. Mrs. Wright insists the admiral came courting only to get a chance to fix up this antique banjo clock of hers.

by Admiral Wright. The clock, located on the Wrights' sunporch, never fails to attract attention of guests. When the clock strikes, a windmill turns, sausages are ground, anvils hammered!

unusual umbrella stand is placed near this handsome sideboard in the entrance hall of Missouri House. The inscription on the stand says it commemorates the manufacture of the 25-millionth artillery cartridge case.

colonial wigstand is another conversation piece. On top can be seen a quaint bowl filled with pansies.

Mrs. Wright is famous for her lovely flower arrangements.

"You might be interested," added Mrs. Wright, "in knowing that the admiral's skill as an amateur clockmaker goes back many years. In fact, it was his interest in a broken antique clock that hung on the wall of my apartment that kept him courting me. He finally talked me into letting him take the clock to his bachelor's quarters to work on, and it has never stopped running since!"

Admiral Wright is also fond of woodworking, and a number of the tables on the Missouri House sunporch and in the library upstairs have been made by him from wood bought during his travels. Mahogany discs from Santo Domingo form the tops of five small tables which double as stools. The long coffee table was cut out of a whole log from Trinidad!

But the "friendly feeling" stems from the Wright family itself.

"I just don't know h

"I just don't know how to be terribly formal," laughs Mrs. Wright. "We love people, and it is a great pleasure to entertain in this really beautiful set of Navy quarters."

The Wrights invariably make you feel especially welcome. Just the surroundings make "small talk" easy, for their home contains so many conversation pieces . . . the gleaming antiques handed down from their own families along with the colorful and beguiling articles they have acquired in their world-wide travels. (continued) commodore isaac mc keever, Mrs. Wright's great-grandfather, looks down on memorabilia of a modern admiral's career. Young Bill sits next to lovely fireplace.

"Would you like to see my Ship Room?" the admiral asked our editor, Mrs. Austin. Of course she would!

Here was a room colorful in every sense of the word. A man's room, it contained mementos of a modern seafarer: a wastebasket made from a Japanese mortar shell he picked up when landed with U.S. forces on Iwo Jima; a drawing of French General Henri Giraud, whom Admiral Wright, then in command of a British submarine, spirited out of Vichy France to aid in the Allied landing in North Africa.

The Ship Room is one of the most colorful rooms in the house, and after a dinner party, the admiral always takes the men there for cigars and after-dinner liqueur. Here is where you would find the male contingent commenting on the fascinating old British "grog tub" with its graduated copper measuring pitchers.

At this point, "Monty" made a welcoming leap to the bottom of the stairs, and we were joined by the Wrights' seventeen-year-old daughter, brunette, brown-eyed Marion, and their engaging twelve-year-old son, Bill.

Marion showed us a few of her favorite miniature dolls in their native dress, which her parents had brought her from around the world. Bill related the hardships in the life of a boy forced to waste nine golden months a year in school. His sister gave him a look that said he was terribly young!

Together we went through the gracious green-and-gold drawing room to the dining room, which was arranged

The Admiral calls this his Ship Room

FLAGS OF NATO NATIONS are colorful on the mahogany desk-bureau from the old U.S.S. WYOMING. The pitcher, with its ship design, has been in Mrs. Wright's family since Revolutionary times.

GOLD ARAB DAGGER is souvenir Bill admires. Portrait is of family of the brother of Sheik of Kuwait.

"BUNG UP AND BILGE FREE" is the proper way to store this Royal Navy spirit cask, Bill Wright demonstrates. Grog tub with copper measures was gift of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten.

for a buffet supper. Candles in Georgian-glass holders, hand-blown in Austria, flickered on the mellow copper serving bowls. Tiny bright birds of carved balsa wood from Bogotá, Colombia, flanked Mrs. Wright's delightful arrangement of fruit in graduated crystal bowls.

Here heads of state have dined—and top military men from the United States and around the world; the secretaries of the military services and other high-ranking notables from that branch of our government; congressmen from this country and parliamentarians from abroad; all of these men of stature, frequently accompanied by their ladies. Here, too, in 1907, Nellie Custis Lee, daughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee, had attended a breakfast party.

It was a friendly house for all its beautifully appointed formality, with a cosmopolitan charm which it derived from its hosts. We were glad we had called.

But wait—Mrs. Austin would like to show you how the Wrights entertain. For this and for the Wrights' "Good Victuals," please turn the page . . .

In the last few years,
Mrs. Wright has entertained thousands of the world-famous.
Among her guests have been Prince
Bernhardt of The Netherlands,
Lord and Lady Mountbatten,

Field Marshall
Sir Bernard Montgomery.
But whether entertaining at a large official function,

a lawn party for the armed services, or simply serving her daughter in her own living room, Mrs. Wright is always the charming hostess.

The Admiral Cooks

JEAN AUSTIN

A discriminating gourmet cook, Admiral Wright has certain spécialités which he enjoys preparing with the skill of Escoffier, or perhaps I should say, the aplomb of an admiral. And since no dinner is complete without a good soup, let's begin with soup beautiful soup, the admiral contends.

As one would expect of a navy man, he has a fondness for the bounty of the sea, and now that he is stationed in tidewater country famous for its variety of shellfish, his choice is quite naturally a soup made of clams, oysters, crab or lobster. A rich lobster bisque is a frequent choice and a delicate clam soup brings accolades, especially at family dinners. Because of its high family as well as guest—rating, this favorite is one of the recipes you'll find graciously given for your Good Victuals file.

You will also find another typical main dinner dish—one recently served to visiting NATO officials—breast of chicken on Virginia ham with white wine sauce and new buttered-parsley MRS. WRIGHT'S HOBBY is collecting rare and beautiful old silver serving spoons. Their buffet tables, consequently, are strikingly handsome.

potatoes. One of the green vegetables inevitably served is string beans cut French-style and arranged in the serving dish like asparagus stalks, then sprinkled with slivered almonds. Homemade hot rolls and a green salad with French dressing complete this favorite dinner menu.

Another particular favorite of the Wrights is roast strip loin of beef with tiny roast potatoes, very crisp and piping hot, arranged around the platter.

The admiral's favorite dessert, crepes suzette, is also one of his great spécialités. He ceremoniously prepares his special sauce at the table, adds brandy, flambés it, and serves it with due deference on the delicate crepes which have been brought to the table piping hot on a silver platter.

Good Victuals

As for entertaining, the admiral is very firm on one point: at a buffet party there will be no plates precariously balanced on a guest's knees while he attempts to juggle with knife, fork, napkin and wineglass.

For this, as well as for good victuals, our twenty-one-gun salute to the admiral! THE END

That's right...all five

Intil just recently it was a rare and wonderful thing to find a well-designed home in the $10,000 class. For the past few years it has seemed as though most builders and home manufacturers were concentrating their efforts in the $15,000 bracket and above, leaving the average wage-earner literally without a new roof over his head. But, this year, a minor revolution has taken place in the home-building market.

The home-builder is discovering the great untapped market that needs attractive, efficient homes without the frills, extras and space that skyrocket the cost into five figures. As a result, the low-cost home is starting a new housing boom. It is estimated that over 200,000 families are ready to buy $10,000 homes. The formerly-forgotten man in the $4,000 income bracket can afford a $10,000 house because monthly payments usually do not exceed $80. The big problem in keeping costs down is getting land at a sufficiently low price to make a $10,000 price tag possible.

A great deal of the credit for the new supply of low-cost houses must go to the home manufacturer, who through volume buying and centralized production keeps material and labor costs low. Also responsible are lower loan costs and government-approved, smaller down payments. It is also reassuring to see the home manufacturer return to his original aim of producing quality, low-cost homes.

Five examples of outstanding homes in the $10,000 class are shown on these four pages. Four are made by home manufacturers, and one is built by a conventional builder. All of these homes give you the same high-quality materials you find in more expensive homes, and they're designed and engineered by some of the best architects in the country.

Financing the inexpensive home did not present many problems during 1958 since the government acted to free special-assistance funds providing mortgage money for homes in the $10,000 price range. Here are some sample approximate costs of the houses shown: Place Homes, Inc.—Chatham model. VA-qualified veterans may purchase it for no money down, while FHA buyers may buy for as little as $300 down, or even less. Monthly payments in either case would be about $75.00. The John Long house has a basic selling price of $9,950. Down-payment including closing costs is $300. Approximate monthly payments are $81.00.

Judging a Small House: When you set out to buy a small house, don't expect to find extensive space, luxury appliances or custom millwork. In most cases these are just the items you will be giving up to get a good basic structure that will serve your most important everyday needs. By studying the floor plans, you can see that basic room requirements are a living-dining area, kitchen, three bedrooms and a bath, with varying amounts of closet and storage area.

Remember, the smaller the house, the more important the planning. Make sure the types and sizes of the rooms meet your family's requirements. Try to visualize your family using the house. This will quickly bring to light both the good and the inadequate points of the house. Double-purpose rooms are often very valuable in a small home since the same floor space can be used for different activities at different times of the day. For example, the dining area is often combined with the living or family areas to save on space. Open planning eases small-house living because it creates apparent spaciousness and is also more flexible for family use than small, partitioned areas.

PIPE-STREWN AND DREARY—this is how the basement laundry looked before remodeling. It lacked storage space for supplies. Light from a single bulb and window was insufficient.

VIRGINIA E. THABET

Bright as a button and smart as the bow laid in the floor—that's the beautifully planned basement laundry in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph J. Guttosch in Northbrook, Illinois. Rudy is a professional photographer who often takes pictures for us in other people's homes. This time he had to go only as far as his own basement to take the pictures for our story. When Rudy and Jeanne, his charming wife, decided to "do something" about their dark and inadequate laundry area in the basement, they spent a lot of time planning what they wanted to accomplish.

With four active children—Kathy, 8, Tommy, 7, Danny, 6 and Jimmie, 4—there's always a lot of washing and ironing to be done. Since their kitchen space was at a premium, they decided to make a laundry room in the basement that would serve more than one purpose—and came up with a room that actually takes over five major jobs: (1) laundry, (2) freezer storage, (3) sewing, (4) pantry storage and (continued on page 68)

DOWN THE CHUTE! Soiled laundry from upstairs arrives in basement automatically. Kathy helps Mother sort clothes into roll-about hampers.

NOTHING TO IT! That's Danny's opinion of modern washday chores. But those dirty blue jeans might need pretreating in nearby laundry sink.

TOTE BASKETS! Clean laundry is folded and put in baskets until someone goes upstairs. This idea saves steps and keeps "all of a kind" together.

SEWING'S FUN! Kathy gets her first lesson on the portable sewing machine. No fumbling for supplies—they're within easy reach on pegboard.

STORAGE FOR EVERYTHING—including a dress form! Sewing machine in carrying case is stored below it. Compartment for ironing table is at left.

TO EACH HIS OWN! The personalized storage arrangement on rear side of laundry wall makes it easy even for little Jimmie to keep his toys in order.

FREEZING'S EASY—especially when there's lots of counter space to wrap packages on. Tommy takes a lesson from an expert—Daddy Rudy.

INTO THE FREEZER goes home-baked bread, but not for long! The Guttoschs get the most out of their freezer because they give it constant use.

TIME OUT! Glasses stored in cabinet above the twin-bowled sink assure easy entertaining for two now, or for full parties in future "rec" room.

REMOVABLE GLASS PANELS, which form the front of the Bolster greenhouse, are easily lifted out to convert it into a covered terrace. The panels are summer-stored in a special plywood compartment in the garage.

WITH PANELS IN PLACE, the Bolsters have a unique type of greenhouse that's really part of their home. If your breezeway or terrace is similarly placed, you can remodel it to function the same way by installing a fiberglass roof and glass-panel sides. And if you have neither breezeway nor terrace—but want a greenhouse like this—the obvious solution is to build one as an addition to your house!

breezeway all year round

HAZEL WARD ADCOCK

Looking for an idea on how to get more out of your breezeway or covered terrace—how to enjoy it summer and winter, for instance? Then maybe you can adapt to your own home the ingenious greenhouse idea of the Horace Bolsters of Arlington, Virginia.

In winter, Mr. and Mrs. Bolster have a real greenhouse that's an integral part of their home. In summer, by a simple conversion, they have a covered terrace that serves as an extension of their living room. Thus it's an area that never goes to waste—it's enjoyed all year round.

As you see from the pictures, the front of the greenhouse is made up of easily removable sections. The roof is of corrugated blue-green fiberglass—joined to the main roof of the house—and is supported by rafters painted the blue-green color of the fiberglass. Heat is supplied by a thermostatically controlled blower which feeds warm air from the house. An exhaust fan lowers the temperature if the greenhouse gets too warm on a bright day.

In their winter greenhouse the Bolsters grow a wide selection of "cool house" plants (which flourish in the temperature range of 45° to 60°) in pots, tubs and other containers. In summer, most of these plants are moved to shady spots in the Bolsters' garden.

MANY KINDS OF PLANTS can be grown in the 45° to 60° temperature range which is maintained in winter—among them azaleas, camellias, cyclamens, primulas, geraniums, cymbidium orchids. Auxiliary heater is ready in case house heating system fails.

GREENHOUSE-TURNED-TERRACE

lends distinctiveness to the house in summertime just as much as the greenhouse does in winter. And the fiberglass roof has the advantage of not blocking out light from the interior of the house, as an ordinary breezeway or terrace roof would do.

If shade is sometimes desired, however, it can be provided by attaching roller slat shades to the rafters—to cover the inside of the roof alone or long enough to shade both the roof and the front of the terrace.

sudden revival of an old,

DOROTHY LAMBERT BRIGHTBILL

MR. FEDERER uses a wide flat brush to apply the adhesive.

Découpage" or paper cut-outs (which they really are) we may consider an old craft with a new look. Dating back to the early 18th century, this stimulating and imaginative technique has always been popular with those who admire color and design but might hesitate to take up painting. Instead, they learn "découpage," truly an art, but one which involves "painting" with paper, scissors and paste rather than palette, paintbrush and easel.

However, there is more to "découpage" than cut-outbits-of-paper and a sharp pair of scissors. One needs a sense of imagination, a good eye and an understanding of the use of color. To "educate" your color sense, make a study of color as it is used in such ready sources as signs and magazine illustrations or, if possible, study the color about you when you visit art galleries. Note how color is used in any composition, the proportions of light and dark, the contrast and play of light and shadow.

Make rough sketches, not for design, but for color areas. Then, gather your materials from magazines, seed catalogues, old prints, colored papers, and even gift wrappings. Sort them in groups for subject matter, then each subject into a color group. Keep them in folders, boxes or envelopes. Large transparent envelopes available in photographic stores are helpful; you can see through them.

Next, you must learn to become an expert at cutting out. Practice, follow curves meticulously, don't overcut, don't undercut. Use large scissors for the first, rough cut-out of the motif you wish to use. Then switch to small, sharp scissors for the final cutting.

You might find it helpful to sketch in a rough pencil layout for your design. Or you could trace some arrangement that you admire for an outline. Then fill it in with your own collection of motifs.

The pattern we give here makes it simple to create a charming picture or to decorate an accessory. You will find that our easy-to-follow pattern makes this an attractive and simple hobby—a hobby that more and more people are turning to for pleasure and relaxation.

DÉCOUPAGE EXPERT Carl Federer works at his large table-desk. Note fine découpage examples in rear.

We start you off with wallpaper cut-outs, really the quickest and easiest source of supply for a design motif. We tell you how to cut, how to paste and how to create a composition, as told to us by one of the greatest experts in the field, Mr. Carl Federer.

Mr. Federer's interest in découpage was a natural outgrowth of his interest in his grandfather's business—that of manufacturing fine papers in Switzerland. Starting at a very tender age, Carl Federer turned out "paper handcrafts" in grade school that attracted considerable attention because of their originality and craftsmanship. Later, his unusual and charming greeting cards, valentines and Easter-egg decorations became widely admired.

While this fine artist had no special training in découpage, he did travel and study the finest collections in the United States, England, France and Italy. He has, however, had formal art training in the National School of Fine and Applied Arts and the Corcoran Art Gallery, both in Washington. Galleries that have carried Carl Federer exhibitions include "Olivieri" and "Past & Present" galleries in New York, a gallery at Grosse Pointe, Michigan, and the Baltimore Museum of Art. Various newspapers and magazines both here and abroad have cited Mr. Federer's excellent découpage technique.

And now, let's get started on our exciting new hobby! Be on the lookout for all sorts of pictures of flowers, birds, butterflies, animals. Search out pictures of things your family and friends are particularly fond of. In this way you can plan trays, boxes or pictures, truly personal and thoughtful gifts, that will contribute to their collections. We feel sure that you will want to go on to more complicated arrangements, but that comes later.

You will need the following:

1. Scraps of colored papers for backgrounds.

- 2. Very sharp scissors.
- 3. Excellent paper glue (one that will not turn paper transparent).
- 4. Clear lacquer for protective coating.
- 5. Several razor blades.
- 6. Optional—paint, small pointed paintbrush, pencil. With this equipment you can add form and depth.

We leave you now with a new hobby that will bring you many hours of pleasure. And how the compliments will come your way as admiring friends and family see the lovely products of your creation!

BRUSHING ON a protective coating of clear shellac or lacquer preserves paper surface.

THE FINISHING TOUCHES are given to the floral motif for a dramatic frame.

DRAMATIC PICTURE is composed of an oval floral motif cut from scraps of wallpaper. Several old frames have been painted and assembled to form an impressive over-all frame. The telephone-directory box and tin-can pencil holders are covered with wallpaper and cut-out prints.

mind but NOT your furniture!

Contemporary has to do with knowing yourself, your family and your home. How you live, entertain and your personal taste in many things, though seemingly unrelated, are actually important considerations in choosing home furnishings.

If you fancy a collection of fine silver pieces or admire china in a timeless, classic pattern, you are probably a traditionalist, which indicates that you will feel more at home in a setting like the one on the left. Here, the tableware and accessories will be more familiar to you and the designs more pleasing. On the other hand, if you admire the modern designer's contributions to home furnishings and have a feeling for contemporary textures and lines, you will prefer the dining-room setting on the right.

The costs for decorating the two rooms are about the same. Furniture, fabrics and wallpapers are in the medium-price group, and accessories add up to a similar amount for either scheme. Follow your choice, and if you should ever change your mind, you can change the background, without changing the furniture, and still achieve a harmonious effect.

he "throw it out and start all over" school of decorating is not for us.

Nor is it a practical idea in any case now that you've paid your money for furniture and taken your choice.

The "right choice," we'd say, should stand the test of changing fads in furnishings, the change in your own family requirements, and the change in room arrangements necessitated through change in your own personal taste.

The little girl who loves the somewhat feminine bedroom on the left may just grow up to adore Contemporary to the complete exclusion of pastel colors and ruffles. Brother may be evicted from a masculine décor to make room for a "live-in" grandmother who dotes on a flowery room.

The furniture in this bedroom setting is of solid rock-maple, in a design from the past that, nevertheless, holds its own very nicely in a surrounding of highly contemporary backgrounds.

In the Provincial treatment on the left, the informal theme of the room has been established by the flower-strewn wallpaper, checkered bedspread, and simplicity of the window curtains.

The contemporary setting on the right relies also on a wall covering, this one in a modern design of thin gold striations and gold flecks. The bed covering is a dramatic cotton print in the boldest colors possible, two of which are picked up in alternating stripes of woven basswood, to make a simple shade for the typical high-up window.

Taken by and large, the changes in this room from one style to the other are few; the character of the furniture makes the change handsomely and without compromise to taste in either example.

mind but NOT your furniture!

How Much An Hour Are You Worth?

Do you think of yourself as "just a housewife," whose time isn't worth anything because nobody pays you in cash?

LOUISE PURWIN ZOBEL

Don't kid yourself! Your time is not only worth real money; it is worth varying amounts of money, depending upon how you use it, how proficient you are in the services for which you use it, and how much it would cost you to have those services performed by someone else.

Have you ever stopped to consider the tasks which seem to take you forever and turn out half-done? Are there jobs you would love to have someone else do for you? Or have you contemplated a do-it-yourself program to replace some of the professional help you are now employing? Could you "earn" more in an hour of house-painting or home-permanenting than you could in an hour of window washing or lawn mowing? Only you can answer.

Of course money cannot buy the love and care and devotion a career homemaker gives her family and her home. And she cannot always budget her hours according to their dollars-and-cents value. But a realistic appraisal of what she can expect to accomplish in her so-called "free" time may reveal a pattern of accomplishment which could be changed to provide a financial advantage to the family exchequer. Concentrating on those tasks she enjoys most, therefore does best and fastest, and delegating to others the chores she finds most unpleasant and difficult, may make a real dollars-and-cents improvement in the budget. Calculating her optimum "earnings" is something each woman must do for herself.

Stop and think. Analyze the jobs you do every day. The jobs you take on occasionally. The jobs you pay someone else to do. The jobs you never have time for. Are you earning as much an hour as you should be?

If you will approach each of your heterogeneous activities with these thoughts in mind: "How long will it take me? How well can I do it? How much would it cost to have someone else do it?", you will have a clear picture of your hourly earning potential. You will have a sound basis for deciding which jobs you should tackle yourself and which jobs you should pay someone else to do for you. Unless you have already decided that your training and experience make it more practical for you to pursue a highly-paid career and hire someone else to take care of your children, the whole realm of child care, from formula and diapers to party transportation and help with homework, will be part of your daily routine. In this area your earning power can never be measured in money. But almost every other phase of homemaking lends itself to financial analysis.

Do you love to cook? Make your time in the kitchen pay for some help with a job you dislike and do poorly. You can transform the economy cuts into gourmet meals. You can freeze and dry and can the plentiful, inseason foods for later use. You can eliminate the expensive mixes and easy-do foods. Your time will be well spent: your pay check will show up in the diminishing food budget.

But if you hate to cook, try short cuts. Use prepared foods. Buy bakery desserts. Eat out once in a while. Where will you get the money? "Earn" it by finding something you love to do and do well, something you have no time for now. Reducing cooking time by a daily hour will release that hour to be spent more profitably.

Are you a clever shopper— a victorious bargain hunter? Or do you hate to shop, but consider it a luxury to order the groceries over the telephone or the children's underwear by mail? If shopping takes you two detested hours weekly and phone-order groceries and mail-order underwear would add five dollars to the week's bills, think what occupation you might substitute to earn that two-fifty per hour.

Do you have automatic laundry equipment you feel you must use for everything washable? Is it really an economy to do the sheets at home if you add the time spent in handling to the cost of soap and utilities? Sit down and figure it out.

Would it pay to find someone else to iron the girls' dresses? Or do you iron so well and (continued on page 71) hanksgiving, that romantic and festive holiday, originated in New England and has been celebrated ever since in the truly American, groaning-dinner-table style throughout this great country of ours. Each November, American women follow the example set by the good cooks of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut many years ago and offer friends and family a memorable dinner representing their best culinary efforts. Although all Americans agree that Thanksgiving is the time for expression of gratitude and spiritual feeling, they are not completely in agreement about the Thanksgiving menu! It is true that turkey plays the leading role in the dramatic holiday dinner, sometimes supplemented by goose and ham. But from there on, one finds anything from the chowder that is often served at Northeast dinner tables to the smoked salmon appetizer popular in the Far West. One thing is certain: Sumptuous eating is the order of the day! On these pages, we present menus of typical Thanksgiving dinners in the four major regions of our land. 3 ways to please ith light, lively Miracle Whip ne more ways you try it, the surer you'll be-there's nothing else like...

Light, lively Miracle Whip is America's favorite salad dressing!

- 1. Two-Tone Slaw. There are two secrets to this more successful slaw . . . its looks and its taste. Combine 1 cup Miracle Whip with ¼ cup cream, ½ tsp. salt and dash of black pepper. Add half the dressing to 2 cups shredded green cabbage; the rest to 2 cups shredded red cabbage; toss lightly; chill well. Arrange alternate portions of red and green coleslaw on lettuce. With Miracle Whip, you don't have to add flavor, the flavor's there. Bright, delightful can't-be-copied flavor that just suits modern tastes!
- 2. Sensational Salmon. Beat 2 egg whites until stiff; fold in ½ cup Miracle Whip Salad Dressing. Pile onto broiled salmon steaks or any fish fillet, and broil until topping is lightly browned. Garnish with parsley and serve to your delighted guests. Remember, only Miracle Whip has the flavor and texture that make this topping so superb. You won't find that flavor and texture in any other dressing.
- 3. Glamour sauce for vegetables. This savory sauce does exciting things for almost any vegetable. And it's failure-proof, too! Place 1 cup Miracle Whip in a double boiler over hot water; let stand 10 minutes without boiling. Add 2 tablespoons lemon juice; mix well and serve. In interesting combinations, or on simple salads, Miracle Whip is the dressing most people prefer. No other dressing gives you such certainty of pleasing your family and friends.

oes chocolate-making scare you? It shouldn't. For dipping is so simple if you carefully follow a few "musts." A creamy fondant is used as the basis for most chocolate centers, and we suggest you start out with a recipe, using cream if possible. First knead the fondant until it's smooth and pliable; shape it into centers by rolling small bits into balls between your palms. Now place them on waxed paper to dry. Let them dry at room temperature for a few hours or until a crust forms. Turn over so that the underside dries too. To make flavored centers, add a few drops of extract to the fondant and knead thoroughly. Patties are made by flattening the balls to about 1/4-inch thickness.

Cherry chocolates are our favorites, and here are tips to assure you of deliciously successful results. First, cut firm maraschino cherries in half and drain an hour or two on paper toweling. Then roll a ball of fondant about the size of a filbert nut. Flatten and lay half a cherry on it. Bring fondant up over it, covering all of the cherry. If the cherry is exposed anywhere, it will leak and be too sticky to dip.

There are three types of coatings you can use: The bittersweet dipping chocolate made especially for dipping purposes, regular milk chocolate, or homemade bittersweet coating. This last coating is made simply by melting together equal amounts of the unsweetened baking chocolate and milk chocolate.

To melt any chocolate, cut it into small pieces in a round-bottomed crockery bowl, using about a pound of chocolate at a time. Then set bowl over boiling water and beat until the chocolate is partly melted. Remove the bowl from the pan of water and stir rapidly with a fork until all of the chocolate is melted. The correct temperature of the chocolate for dipping is very important. It must be between 83-85° F. to be the right consistency. By using a heavy bowl and keeping it in 85° F. water, this temperature can easily be maintained. Milk chocolate will be stiffer at this temperature than dipping chocolate.

The temperature of the room is important too. It should be 65° F. or cooler. At this temperature, the chocolate coating will harden almost at once, giving a smooth glossy coating. To dip the chocolates, drop the cream center into the melted chocolate. Pick up the candy with to remove the excess chocolate and leave only a thin complete coating.

CHOCOLATE DROPPED from fork leaves a little string of chocolate used to make identifying mark.

a two-tined fork, tapping the tong of the fork against the edge of the bowl to remove any excess chocolate. Now, drop the candy from the fork onto waxed paper. As the candy leaves the fork, there will be a little string of chocolate which, with a simple twist, you can make the professional swirl of chocolate that appears on candy tops.

When the chocolates have hardened, remove from the waxed paper and store in boxes with fresh layers of waxed paper between the layers of candy. Cherry chocolates especially improve by being aged a week or two. The moisture of the cherry will liquefy the fondant into an especially delectable consistency.

tivities. Laundry supplies are stored in cabinets. Pegboard on walls is both decorative and functional.

(5) auxiliary kitchen. Now the whole family uses this room, and Jeanne no longer feels isolated doing the laundry in the basement as she did before.

A basement room always presents special problems, but they were beautifully solved here to prove that glamour can go hand in hand with practicality. Walls were furred out and hardboard surfacing was used to hide all the unattractive pipes which are an integral part of any basement. The ceiling was covered with acoustical tiles to keep noise from floating upstairs. A shocking-pink color scheme gives warmth and coziness. A custom-cut design in the floor? Not at all! These buttons and bow designs were cut from standard tiles and were so simple to do that any do-it-yourselfer could duplicate them. Since natural daylight was at a minimum, fluorescent fixtures were recessed in the ceiling to give good over-all lighting for any job Jeanne must do here. Additional fixtures were installed over areas where extra light is needed—over the sewing counter and the sink which is used for pretreating spots and stains before clothes are put in the washer.

Storage ideas galore were included in their plan. Sliding-door cabinets were built to store not only laundry supplies but extra canned goods since kitchen space is limited. Pegboard was used in large quantities to simplify storage of small supplies which often get "lost" in a drawer. Pegboard over the long counter next to the freezer provides a handy spot to hang ironed shirts, blouses and Kathy's dresses, as well as small freezer packaging supplies. Counters are triple duty—the sewing counter serves as a desk area for Jeanne or play spot for games. The counter next to the freezer is used for wrapping foods going into the freezer, is also a wonderful spot to sprinkle clothes. (continued)

LUNCH ANYONE? Canned-goods overflow is stored in basement—handy for unexpected company.

JEANNE ADJUSTS new ironing table to full ironing width when doing large flat pieces or full skirts.

IRONING-TABLE COVER spreads its wings along with the table; need not be removed to adjust width.

This will be used as a "downstairs kitchen" area while entertaining in the future recreation room Rudy is planning. Outlets along this counter can be used to plug in a coffeemaker, frypan or sandwich grill-depending on Jeanne had always longed for a spot in the house to use for sewing-and now she has it. She keeps the portable out on the counter most of the time. It's so easy to stitch up rips and tears in linens or clothes before they go into the washer if the sewing machine is out and ready for action. The old laundry chute was revised in this remodeling project. A flip-down door acts as a sorting shelf. Two laundry hampers were built to go under the chute. On wheels, they can be rolled over to the washer. Since Jeanne likes to sort soiled laundry into four categories, the hampers are divided.

How do they like their new room? The kids think it's the greatest place in the house to play. Jeanne says, "It makes washing and ironing almost a pleasure." And Rudy gave us a grin at the end of our photographing day, indicating his full approval. THE END

Push it like a vacuum cleaner! No lifting, no stoop! Clears snow in minutes instead of hours from any surface—even gravel or dirt. Slides on sleigh runners. so fast and so gladly that you are earning premium pay?

Are you gardener-in-chief at your house? If you love gardening and have time, you won't need to pay for outside help. If you are a dedicated gardener who buys seeds in packets, rather than plants in flats, you'll enjoy earning that difference in price. If you have enough land, you can make your gardening hours pay with fruits and vegetables.

But if you loathe the daily maintenance even the smallest and least elaborate garden requires; if your lawn is more brownish than greenish and weeds grow among your petunias; if snails feast on your begonias and mildew camouflages your roses, could you have someone else handle the garden routine? And could you use your time to better advantage?

Perhaps you'd need a good excuse to pay someone to clean your house every week but if you hate housework enough and can find someone who does it better and faster could you figure out a way to earn the money to pay her?

re your windows easy to wash Aand is this a job you don't mind at all? Or do they require sitting three-quarters over nothingness from a second-story sill; and do you always wind up with a late dinner, a cross disposition, and streaky windows? How much does a professional window washer, complete with ladder, bucket, and chamois, charge?

Perhaps you would rather paint than wash windows. A painter commands a good hourly wage. Redecorate a room, rejuvenate the trim, refinish some old furniture, and you'll earn a real income.

If you think you can repaper the breakfast room as well as a professional, the labor charges you can save will pay to have your car washed and vacuumed about 25 times. Or would you rather pay the paperhanger and wash the car yourself? If your experience indicates that you'll probably waste two rolls of paper, cut three fingers, and stain the floor, you'd better forget the papering and concentrate on the car.

Do-It-Yourself Tranquilizer

Surely you have read one or more articles about nervous tensions and how to release them. If you are a sufferer, you have probably received ample, unsolicited advice from sympathetic friends and family. Perhaps you have even queued up at the corner drug store for tranquilizer pills.

The kinds of tensions differ with people, as do the causes. Your surroundings, claim some psychologists, can actively aggravate your tensions. According to an article we recently read entitled "Designs, Colors and Tensions", warm tones of red, for instance, heighten unrest, while cool shades of green tend to be relaxing. If you are a highly-keyed personality, the article suggests that symmetrical shapes in the furnishings that surround you will quiet jumpy nerves. Designs and colors it seems, play a large role in affecting our personalities and our tensions.

While we found the article interesting to read, we concluded that the best person to seek advice from, if you are a victim of nervous tension, is your doctor. However, if there is anything to this design and color idea, we can be very helpful to you through our *E-Z-DU Wallpaper. For, in this collection, you will find all scales of designs, symmetrical and asymmetrical. There is every coloration that is plausible and happily the prices are calming. As an extra therapy, E-Z-DU comes ready-pasted and pre-trimmed so that you can hang it yourself . . . just cut, wet and sponge smooth on the wall.

People tell us that hanging E-Z-DU is a good way to work out nervous tensions and the results are so attractive in every room. Visit your Imperial dealer for an E-Z-DU demonstration and throw away your tranquilizers!

When considering a new home, you probably look for a certain style of architecture, a nice piece of land and a good neighborhood with schools, churches, stores and public transportation nearby. But just as important as the appearance and environment of your home is its floor plan. Poorly arranged space within a house makes it a difficult and inadequate place to live. This is particularly true in a small home where privacy, convenience and efficiency must be attained in a minimum area. A variety of imaginative and realistic solutions to these problems is shown in our five $10,000 homes.

JEANNE LAMB O'NEILL

WHEN DADDY COMES MARCHING HOME

Cigar Institute of America (where else would he dare?) that man invented work away from home in order to get away from his wife. Claptrap. Any bright gal knows that "The Office" was invented by a woman. (A Russian woman, for all we know!)

An office to put Daddy in is as vital as a playpen to put Baby in. With Daddy underfoot all day, woman's work would not only never be done—it would never get begun.

You see, every man is convinced that while he slaves in town, his wife, on the other hand, leads a life of splendor—lolling in the sun on a contour lounge, eating lotuses and playing with Baby's pink piggies. Come his "day off," he'll roar at a crumb on the floor or an egg-spoon in the sink, but perish forbid that you toil in his presence. It offends him to hear the rude rumble of the washing machine, the crass buzz of the vacuum cleaner.

So, to keep the peace and her house and her husband's illusions, woman had to create "The Office." But, being a woman, she had an ulterior motive. Woman really packed man off to work just so she could have him come home again each night at six.

For this is the delicious moment in woman's day . . . when Daddy comes marching home! This is Lindbergh landing in Paris, the Yanks liberating Rome! Excitement washes over the family like the swoosh from a city street-cleaner's truck. "Wipe your nose—Daddy's coming home!" "Don't squash the sofa pillows—Daddy's coming home!" "Yeah, I dare ya—Daddy's coming home!"

But this can also be, sadly, a whopping fiasco. In too many homes, Daddy's homecoming celebration has no more titillation, glamor or finesse than a dried lentil. It would certainly lead Mr. Fadiman's man who invented work away from home to invent Night Work Away From Home. This not being a bright wife's idea of a bright idea, herewith a gaggle of tips, taboos and laboratory-tested gambits to make your man's homecoming a thing of beauty and a joy for, say, five minutes, anyhow.

The keynote is preparation. You can't begin too early. Ten minutes after the lunch dishes? This may mean getting up at five A.M. to whip the house into the shining American HOME-type serenity which Daddy expects—but you need those afternoon hours for Putting Away.

Bear in mind his picture of glamorous and languid, lotus-eating You. Remove all telltale signs of your daily drudgery—vacuum cleaners, ironing boards, gaudy boxes of detergent to catch his eye, pails of gray water in the middle of the floor to catch his shin.

At the same time, remove all signs of children, being careful to preserve the children themselves, in as nearperfect a state as possible. Whereas no toys, books or other diversions should clutter the décor, the children's faces should shine with happy, intelligent, well-adjusted Gemütlichkeit. A moist washcloth should be whisked across their faces at the first crunch in the driveway.

Of course, you can't be held wholly responsible for what the children do or say. But you will be. So keep alert.

There's no need to discuss your personal appearance. We know you've applied a dot of red at the corner of the eyes to heighten their lustre. You've pinned things from the inside so it doesn't show. And, actually, it matters not a whit what you wear—so long as it's pretty as a picture, old as the hills, blue and something he gave you for Christmas, Mother's Day or your birthday.

But on to the big moment. Here the keynote is aplomb. Many a day of preparation has slipped down the drain through some zero-hour snag. Say Daddy happens to get the 5:15 instead of the 5:48. Try not to push your hair off your sweaty brow and shriek accusingly, "You're early!" On the other hand, if he gets the 5:48 instead of the 5:15, turn the corners of your dewy, freshly-rouged mouth up.

Always remember—he Tarzan, you Jane—he breadwinner, you lotus-eater. If, after eight hours of labor and fifteen years of marriage, he doesn't crush you in his arms like a clove of garlic, don't sulk. In fact, the basic secret of making pappy happy lies in what you don't do. Don't bring up money, going to the movies, men you could have married or minor repairs around the house. Let Daddy wallow in his tired blood in peace. This is not the time to pipe, "Did you know you had a spot on your trousers?" or "By golly, you're right, you are getting gray!"

Generally your conversation should be the same as if you were visiting a friend in a TB sanitarium—light, cheerful, uncontroversial, underscored with warm, mute sympathy. Work out some arrangement, too, for getting the children fed, read to, dunked, bunked and watered down without any help from anybody human. And speaking of children, you might want to copy a trick suggested by a friend of mine. To put Daddy at ease in his surroundings, she has little Johnny bring a check with his beer, and Johnny collects, too. But keep this trick in hand, or, first thing you know, Johnny will be starting a restaurant of his own, Daddy will give up working, and there you'd be—with all this priceless know-how on Daddy's homecoming and no Daddy coming home at all!

"It's Fun to Phone"

Putting more fun and happiness in the day is one of the things your telephone does so well.

It's fun to call up just to freshen up a friendship. It's fun to have those daily telephone gettogethers that mean so much in keeping you in touch with those you like and love.

So give yourself a relaxing break in the day's routine and enjoy a friendly visit by telephone.

It's always easy to do, whether it's across the street or across the country.

These happy moments are in addition to the telephone's indispensable help in contacting the grocer, hairdresser, department stores, dentist, doctor and making appointments of many kinds.

Day and night, upstairs and down, it's a great comfort to have a telephone close by.

"Here's how we saved 20% on fuel bills"

"When we bought our new home we firmly believed we were getting only the finest equipment available. Name-brand products had been specified for our kitchen, baths, utility room and our basement. The warm air heating equipment in the house was a widely advertised make."

"The first cold spell made us realize that something was wrong with our heating. Regardless of the thermostat setting, temperatures varied so much that we were never comfortable more than a few minutes. When the furnace came on, there was a chilling draft across the floor."

"A visiting friend noticed our discomfort. He had built a house, and installed a Lennox furnace. 'Ray,' he said, 'let me call Kalin's Heating and Air Conditioning, who installed my Lennox system. Whoever installed your furnace can't seem to adjust it. Maybe Kalin's can!"

"Kalin's sent out a man next day. There were a few minor deficiencies in the installation, but a single change he made in the controls completely revolutionized our comfort. He explained that it was mainly setting the blower control so that there was continuous air circulation."

"Anyway, the adjustment sure worked. For the first time, temperatures held steady, and those cold drafts we had been experiencing disappeared. We were never as comfortable as we are now. And—an unexpected bonus—our fuel bills are running 20% below what they were."

There is a Lennox Comfort Craftsman in your community who can probably do for you what a Lennox Comfort Craftsman did for Mr. Bledsoe. If your indoor comfort is less than you should expect, call him and describe the symptoms. His serviceman can diagnose the trouble with a few minutes of inspection, no matter what your make of furnace. And the chances are your trouble can be corrected at a very reasonable cost.

Should your furnace need complete replacing, your Comfort Craftsman handles the finest heating and air conditioning equipment available—Landmark* by Lennox. Your Lennox Comfort Craftsman is listed in the Yellow Pages of your phone book. Call him today. You'll be glad you did.
