Great Cooking Lesson: Magic with the plain potato

floors, ceilings, carpets, and furniture

What do you do when your home starts to look tired—when ceilings begin to peel and crack, or the kitchen floor loses its sparkle, or your living room looks a little too lived in?

These tight-money days, most people redo, remodel, revive.

Armstrong has some new ideas—fresh, exciting, innovative ideas in floors, ceilings, carpets, and furniture—that can help make any old home 1971-new.

Read on. See how many new ways Armstrong can help you.

When it cushions like carpet and cleans like vinyl, you're on Easy Street

Want to bring an old kitchen into 1971 in a hurry? Start your remodelling with Easy Street—a new idea in vinyl floors from Armstrong.

New Easy Street gives you the comfort of carpet with the easy maintenance of vinyl.

When you step on Easy Street you feel the "give". Just like carpet. That's because Easy Street has an extra-thick foam-cushion backing underneath. When you lift your foot, Easy Street springs back. Just like carpet. Some patterns of this new Armstrong floor even look like carpet.

But there's a side to Easy Street that no carpet can match. The top side.

Easy Street is durable, nonporous vinyl, so it cleans as easily as only vinyl can. If you drop an egg or spill some gravy, it's no problem. Easy Street comes clean with the swipe of a sponge or a mop.

There are no dirt-catching seams either because Easy Street comes in rolls 12 feet wide, so you can do practically any kitchen in one piece.

Easy Street is as easy on the eyes as it is on the feet. Queen Anne, the design in the kitchen on the opposite page, is offered in a variety of colors. So is Santa Fe, the popular Spanish tile effect (top, right). And Dunbarton, the classic French design (bottom, right). Virginia Brick, in addition to the red, comes in Colonial white. Want more information? See the box on the following right-hand page.

New kind of ceiling from Armstrong Chandelier Ceilings: the new height of elegance

If your dining room (or your living room) is showing its age, you can start it towards 1971 elegance with a new Chandelier Ceiling from Armstrong.

These are richly textured ceilings with an almost sculptured look. (The picture at the left gives you a guest's-eye view of a Chandelier Ceiling in the Chatham design. In the close-up picture below, you can see the rich texture and detail. See what we mean by a "sculptured look"?)

A Chandelier Ceiling is unlike any tile ceiling you've ever seen. In fact, it dosen't look like a tile ceiling at all. The edges of the tile aren't bevelled, so there are no "V" grooves between tiles. The rich texture flows smoothly from wall to wall. Is it any wonder that these new Chandelier Ceilings are already being seen in so many beautiful rooms throughout the country?

The Chatham design is acoustical, so it soaks up noise. All Chandelier Ceilings are fire resistant. And installation is a snap for the do-it-yourselfer. (Your husband can install one over a weekend.)

New design in furniture A new look in modern by Thomasville

The Critique collection is modern. Bright. Uncluttered. Bold. Yet it's somehow familiar—comfortable to be with.

Critique combines all the excitement of modern furniture design and materials with quiet undertones of traditional. It has today's bold, geometric shapes in brilliantly lacquered woods, with clear acrylic knobs and mirror-finish aluminum trim. To this we've added traditional touches like latticework and the classic detailing on the bed and mirror. The result is a combination perfectly suited to today's easy-going elegance—in a purely modern setting or in a modern/traditional blend.

The collection comes in dramatic white and a delicious assortment of colors, with many pieces for living and dining rooms as well as bedrooms. Any room you furnish in Critique is very likely to be the most exciting room in your home. In fact, even a single piece can be the dramatic accent that brings a so-so room to life.

For more information about Critique, and some examples of Thomasville's traditional collections, see the box below

New design in carpets Out with the old, in with the bold

New Adventure Prints'* are the latest word in the new lively world of indoor fashion. And—take it from your friend in the carpet business—these bold and sassy prints can go with anything: plaids, muted stripes, solids, or prints.

Adventure Prints are part of Armstrong's growing carpet line—a complete collection of shags, sculptured, patterned, and plush carpet—with literally hundreds of glorious colors to choose from.

And there's no guesswork when it comes to choosing the right fiber. Armstrong has selected the best fiber for each kind of carpet and labeled it "Armstrong Approved" So, both fiber and carpet are backed by one familiar name—Armstrong. Adventure Prints, for example, are made of continuous filament nylon for an unusually durable carpet with excellent resistance to soil.

To find out more about Adventure Prints and other Armstrong carpets, see the box below.

Now what about making your Indoor World 1971-new? Armstrong's new products and new ideas can make a beautiful difference in your home. We'd like to show you how. For a full package of literature covering Armstrong floors, ceilings, carpets, and furniture, just write to Armstrong, 7102 Pine St., Lancaster, Penna, 17604.

MONTH IN AMERICAN HOME

You millions of homeowners across the land might well ask this month. "What's a nice magazine like AH doing messing around with apartments?" Well, homeowners, take another look. Apartments are no longer the stepchildren of real estate-boxed-in stopgap pads on the way to something better. The new apartments are here to stay, and bless the breed of planners who are building the complexes you see in this issue—where people and the quality of living come first. The three examples we show-a city tower (pages 56-58), a country condominium (59-62), a suburban cluster (70-75)give you the idea. And bless the breed of home-furnishings designers who are producing the new, good-looking and efficient modules and systems-two words that you will be hearing a lot. You'll find systems and modular furniture decorating the apartments in these pages. They are space savers-so versatile they fit any room, so portable they go with you when you move. Vera Hahn, our Interior Design editor, has produced a special section beginning on page 63, featuring the latest designs in this field. By the way, apartment dwellers aren't the only crowded people—there isn't an idea here that won't apply to a house as well.

Any housewife, no matter what her space problems, would like to have the kind of laundry-sewing center you will find on pages 76-77. It was designed by Equipment editor Maidee Spencer and built for us by Armstrong in their splendid studios in Lancaster, Pa. Since we are in the time of the biggest home-sewing boom since the invention of the sewing machine, you'll undoubtedly find ideas here that you will want to incorporate in your own home.

Next month we visit New Orleans. Its marvelous mix of architectural styles, its gracious interiors, its famous Creole cuisine will make up the tenth American Treasury feature since we began this popular series a year and a half ago. Our Shrimp and Okra Gumbo, Bananas Flambées and Morning Call Doughnuts are guaranteed to bring the Mardi Gras spirit into your home, wherever you live.

ROIDER FOR

Record your child's birth and, with the help of Donald Duck, watch him grow. Add a Child's Prayer embroidery over the crib for a touch of nursery charm.

The Birth Record, copied from a rare old Pennsylvania Dutch "fractur," is sure to become a family heirloom. The design, stamped on creamy-white, 100 percent linen to fit a frame 14 by 16 inches, requires simple embroidery.

The Grow Chart is stamped on a piqué-like washable fabric and is completely bound with beauty-edge, a wonderful finish that will help keep the chart flat. You need only embroider the cross-stitch, sew on the 36-inch tape and add a dowel/varn hanger at the top.

The delightful Child's Prayer, with its little mother animals and their engaging young, has been our most popular nursery kit. The easy-to-do embroidery is mostly crossstitch. The frame, also available, complements the design.

LIESTY En Vermont

In Vermont, the Caldwell family is spreading the winter gospel of cross-country skiing and gaining converts.

In the Caldwell kitchen, Peter waxes up while Dad, Jennifer and Mom take in the crackling warmth of a fire before heading out for a day of cross-country skiing. Not pictured here but very much in the family skiing picture are sons Tim and Sverre. Cross-country awards the Caldwells have won top the mantel.

John and Hester ("Hep") Caldwell and their four children—Tim, 16, Sverre, 15, Peter, 14, and Jennifer, 12—live in Putney, Vt., where winter comes early and stays firmly underfoot well into spring. But for the Caldwells, the more white that piles up outside, the greater the delight inside as the family prepares for another season of cross-country skiing. Navigating on foot across snow is hardly a new activity. Out west, snowshoeing the mails preceded the pony express, yet the Brattleboro, Vt., Annual Washington's Birthday Ski-Tour Race—the first and only organized gathering of cross-country devotees—is a mere eight years old.

Both John and Hep teach at The Putney School. John, who skied in the 1952 Olympics, is coach of the U.S. Cross-Country Ski Team and a likely pick for the 1972 Olympics coach, a post he held at the games three years ago. On his local ski front, John has worked to establish cross-country trails which encourage the sport yet preserve the countryside. His passion for cross-country touring grew along with his family, for a child can learn the techniques as soon as he can walk—at least if he is a Caldwell. "We like to go out on our own and take the countryside as it comes," says John. "It's much more satisfying than using the power lifts to haul us."

Cross-country skiing has other advantages and John details them all in his manual, The Cross-Country Ski Book. Equipment is both light and inexpensive. Compared to downhill gear, which weighs an average of 23 pounds and costs more than $150. the cross-country equivalent scales in at less than 7 pounds and is priced under $75. Furthermore, cross-country touring can be immediately enjoyed by the beginner. It provides better exercise, is less dangerous and demands no retirement from its aging fans. Any terrain is fair game: untraveled roads, hiking trails, golf courses, farmland and abandoned railroad tracks. "We often let the boys lead us," says John, "and there's no telling where we'll end up." Yet the Caldwells never get lostthey simply follow their own tracks home again.

Through town meetings, Skip Stewart shows Californians how they can get things done.

On an afternoon's outing along the California shore, Skip Stewart roughhouses with son Brian, 9, and his older daughter Gretchen, 12, while Pamela, 4, and wife Barbara fortify their sand castle. Skip is a free-time photographer, bicycle buff, tennis player, and when all other excuses fail, a handyman around the Stewarts' 68-year-old home in San Anselmo.

Barbara and Lewis ("Skip") Stewart have learned to be powerful people. After working on a small-town newspaper outside Sacramento, Calif., and a stint in the Army, Skip came to San Anselmo, a little place just across the bay from San Francisco. He went to work for Pacific Gas and Electric, a company that brings power to the people, packaged not only in copper wires but in community progress like traffic lights and job opportunities and a fresh coat of paint for a dingy downtown.

In his job for PG & E, Skip is available for the price of an invitation to communities in northern and central California to help organize town meetings. These one-day bustle-ups coordinate the real authority and the action potential of groups like the City Council, PTA, Chamber of Commerce and any unaffiliated yet energetic souls. They gather in the afternoon, break into discussion panels, then regroup to work out a plan. Brought together, they find that while one organization may have access to civic funds another can muster up the manpower.

The combination makes things work. "It's not always magic," says Skip, who has so far helped to launch town meetings in 40 communities, "but things do happen. Game preserves have been set aside, bond issues passed, libraries built, trees planted and art festivals planned." Many of the towns have opted to make town meetings an annual happening. Last year Skip ran for City Council and won a seat; he joined the Marin Conservation League and the Sierra Club. And he has passed his enthusiasm for involvement on to his wife. Now Barbara breaks off from family chores to help restore an old mansion as a community center and spruce up its grounds for a public park.

"Many people feel frustrated by not being able to participate in the decisions which affect their lives," says Skip. "We tell them they can, then show them the way. The idea of a town meeting may sound corny, but I believe the significant aspect of these programs is not only the results but the fact that people are really getting involved."

GREAT HAIR: IT'S A MATTER OF CONDITIONING

Allegra Clark typifies the active California look. She keeps her beauty natural-but she works at it. Her dark blonde hair gets a semi-annual professional streaking. On the beach a hat protects her hair. She washes it twice a week with a shampoo for streaked hair and uses a protein conditioner after each shampoo. Allegra knows that great hair makes the hairdo.

Thick, shining, healthy hair is everyone's No. 1 beauty priority. Naturally, the more you know about what hair really is, the more intelligently you can put yours into glorious shape. Each strand of hair grows from a root embedded in a follicle in the scalp surrounded by tiny blood vessels that feed it and sebaceous glands that lubricate it. And as long as the feeding process goes on, new hair is produced. The healthier the under-the-scalp hair manufactory is, the shinier and healthier the visible hair.

However, modern beauty devices like those that enable you to have any color hair you want, make curly hair straight and straight hair curly leave their mark. But this doesn't mean that you are stuck with the hair you were born with if you want to keep it healthy.

The people who make hair-coloring products, curlers and sprays know better than anyone that glamorous artifice must be compensated for. Their answer is conditioners which keep hair in healthy balance.

There are basically two kinds of conditioner: the corrective conditioner (in cream or "instant" lotion form) that repairs damage, which you work into the hair and then rinse out; and bodybuilding conditioner (usually a lotion) that adds substance and improves texture, which you work into and leave on the hair. Many experts feel that even Until recently a working wife, Allegra gave up her teaching career to devote full time to baby Joanna and husband Paul, an industrial marketing manager.

Allegra Clark is a Los Angeles rarity-a native Californian and a walker. For daily exercise, she treks on foot to nearby Westwood Village to shop. Her sometime specialty: sprucing up her classic sports car for entry in local car shows.

hair in great shape can use a little preventive conditioning to hold at bay the effects of pollution, artificial heat, sun worship and swimming pools.

If your hair suddenly starts falling out, see your doctor for a physical checkup. But if your hair merely looks dull and feels brittle, if the ends split and break off, go to the best salon in town for a professional treatment. Then follow through with a faithful, corrective program at home: Use a cream conditioner two or three times a month; and after every shampoo (when you do not apply the cream conditioner) use an instant lotion conditioner. As hair health improves, use the cream conditioner less often-perhaps once a month-but continue with the instant treatment.

If your hair is oily, clumps together and is prone to dandruff, you probably shampoo two or three times a weekand it is then, paradoxically, that you need to condition your hair to make up for the effects of frequent washing, Although hair does not like dirt, it does not especially like water, either. A once-amonth instant conditioner will restore the balance. If your hair is dry, an instant conditioner after every shampoo is a must, a monthly cream conditioner a plus. A body-building conditioner penetrates the hair shaft, gives fine and flyaway hair more heft and substance and makes it smoother and shinier.

For added protection, choose a shampoo to match your hair type. Shampoos are designed for dry, oily, normal, tinted or damaged hair. They are medicated for dandruff, hypo-allergenic for sensitive hair and many have built-in conditioners.

Look for sprays, setting lotions, gels, home permanents and hair-coloring products that also contain conditioning agents. You won't have to look far, for nearly every big name you associate with beauty aids and hair care offers a wide choice of conditioning products.

Experiment until you find the right conditioning program for your hair. But remember, your hair can't be healthier than you are. Add a little basic, overall conditioning: enough rest, a decent diet, END fresh air and exercise.

A remarkable book that teaches your child the sounds of the letters. Funny words and pictures start your youngster laughing leave him reading all by himself!

> Send No Money-Mail Postpaid Card Today!

Now that your little one is walking and talkinghe's ready to start reading!

Remember the first time your little one said, "Mama," or "Dada"? Then he learned to say another word, and still another. Now, he knows so many words, you just can't add them up. He puts them together now. He talks in sentences—and all without a single formal lesson. It's only natural. Because he wants to learn. He's so curious, so eager to grasp his strange, lovely, exciting world.

And with BRIGHT AND EARLY BOOKS, he can learn to read just as naturally and happily as he learned to talk. So many little children have-from tiny two's to strapping six-year-olds - with the help of these enchanting and pertinent books by the famous Dr. Seuss and his fellow authors.

Why? Because Dr. Seuss knows what your child wants to know about-his very own ears and what they hear; his chubby little hands and what they can do; and (with the help of some fascinating bears) he can even learn to count and find out how numbers work.

So, Dr. Seuss and his friends use the simplest, clearest words to explain these ideas in clever little rhymes. But, the illustrations are the real key. Your child will love their bigness, their brightness - he'll go over them again and again. And he'll begin to put the words and the pictures together. With just a little help from Mom or Dad, your child will soon discover the magic of reading all by himself!

From this happy start on to bigger things!

The three BRIGHT AND EARLY BOOKS shown here are the starter books in the BEGINNING READERS' PROGRAM. They cost $5.85 at the publisher's catalog price. But you may have all three for only $1.65 as an introduction. They'll get your "begin-ning" beginner off to a happy start in reading. And then it's an easy glide right into reading regular BEGINNER BOOKS . . . they begin where BRIGHT AND EARLY BOOKS leave off!

How come the rooms you have in your head are never the rooms you have in your home?

You've probably furnished your home by going from store to store. Picking out a sofahere, a rug there, a chair somewhere else.

They looked great by themselves. But now that you've got them home, do they make your rooms look like you thought they would?

Or, since your furniture is supposed to be a way to express yourself, is it expressing you sort of tongue-tied?

The next time you have a chance to do some decorating, visit an Ethan Allen Gallery. We can help you have a home that can pronounce you correctly.

To begin with, instead of acres of sofas or beds or tables, all our furniture is displayed in room settings.

Sofas are surrounded by living rooms, beds by bedrooms and dining room tables by dining rooms.

All complete down to the last lamp, chandelier, clock, mirror, rug, tv set, painting, sculpture and wall papered wall.

It looked great in the store.

So you can see how all the things we make can go together.

And so, by talking with us, you can get ideas of how our things can be mixed and matched to go with the things you already have. To make rooms that are yours and nobody else's.

Walk around the gallery with one of our people and let him ask you about your home, your family and your style of life.

DECORATING Q's & A's

The fabrics on our traditional urniture are worn and need replacing. Is it absolutely necessary that I ecover them with a traditional abric or can I use one of a more nodern design?

Traditional furniture in modern dress ooks very fresh today. For example, a tylized flower design in a bright, modern palette looks very well on a wing chair. A tiny geometric print will likewise bring a Louis XVI chair into the 20th century.

We have an extremely small bedroom in which our bed takes up a great deal of space. I am wondering if it would be proper to place the bed catercornered.

You would find this a very awkward arrangement and not one that really solves your problem. Put the bed against a wall and rely on visual tricks to make the room seem more spacious. A single soft color in various shades and textures, mixed with white, will help. So will a window treatment that takes no floor space—such as shutters or shades within the window frame—either a mirror or mirrored wall, lamps that are low and unobtrusive and few accessories.

I would like to enhance my plain, solid-color towels in some way so that they can be used for guest towels. Can you help?

Make borders out of any preshrunk, washable material—ribbons, bindings or fabrics. Several narrow bands in various colors or one wide, boldly patterned band will turn the most ordinary towel into something special.

My husband wants a comfortable lounge chair in our living room, but everything I've seen would stick out like a sore thumb in our traditional living room. What do you suggest?

Try a Lawson-style chair, deep and wide with an ottoman and loose-pillow back, and your husband will be sitting pretty. You'll find that this chair will also blend with any style of decorating. Just be sure your husband tests it before you buy.

Every time someone walks across our new wall-to-wall carpeting, the footprints remain. This bothers me as it looks untidy.

If you have cut-pile carpeting, this is unavoidable. However, the shadows and highlights caused by footprints in cut-pile carpeting add a certain softness and dimension to the room that a twist or tight-loop carpet can't give. Learn to live with this carpet and the footprints will seem less and less obvious.

I want an all-white color scheme for my French Provincial bedroom. Do I vary the tones of white or try to keep them exactly the same?

It would be very difficult to get an exact match of carpet, drapery fabric and bedspread in all white. You will find most whites have a pink, yellow or gray cast. Don't choose a fabric by name, such as "bone white," for it could have almost any cast. Select your whites in one family; while they won't match, they should be of the same general shade. And keep in mind that an all-white room is most interesting when you have a variety of textures—shiny surfaces, for instance, mixed with velvety fabrics and shaggy carpeting.

Our bathroom has lavender ceramic tiles halfway up the walls. The color seems a hard one to work with, but I don't want to go to the expense of replacing the tiles. Any ideas?

Choose two more colors of the same intensity—rather soft but a bit stronger than true pastel. There are beautiful shades of cantaloupe melon, peach pink and sky blue available in paints and towels. Do the walls in melon, and hang a mixture of peach and sky-blue towels. Keep woodwork, soap dishes, towel racks, drinking cups and tissue box white.

I keep hearing about Roman shades. What are they and how do they differ from Austrian shades?

A Roman shade has horizontal pleats which stack up neatly as the shade is pulled up. These pleats can be pressed to give a sharp edge or left in soft folds. The Austrian shade hangs in scalloped swags that are gathered up as the shade is raised.

The Austrian shade is quite formal and goes best with Victorian furniture. The Roman shade is much more architectural and is extremely effective with clean-lined, modern furniture.

Apartments: designs in mind. Much of the new furniture that was introduced to the trade last October, and which is now beginning to appear in our stores, was designed for close-quarters apartment living.

Following is a selection of pieces from leading manufacturers, scaled and engineered for apartment dwellers.

- A server by Founders Furniture is 42 inches high and has a drop front so that it can also be used as a desk or mobile serving and eating counter.
- A small (15x30 inches), tidy-looking beverage cabinet by Lane has a generous bin that holds nine bottles and 14 glasses. The top of the unit lifts up to reveal a mirror-backed mixing surface.

- Charlton has an imported dining table that stores six folding chairs in its cone-shaped base. The white-plastic, circular top consists of a half-dozen removable trays with indentations to hold plates and cutlery.
- Rounded corners give Stanley's modern bedroom/dining-room group its special cachet and also prevent bruising when the furniture is used in small rooms. Surfaces are white plastic framed in dark wood; hardware is chrome.
- Beylerian signs in with a colorful, plastic "Combo Set," a small storage column of many uses that travels about an apartment or house on fat casters.

- Ethan Allen has a select group of occasional storage pieces in mellow, honey-colored yew wood that would furnish the smallest space with charm.
- A walnut-and-aluminum table by Bernhardt houses six low-backed chairs under a round glass top, thus freeing floor space. The firm has also added a mini-semainier (or chest of seven drawers) to their campaign collection.

Do-it-yourself system. Storage systems, such as those featured on pages 63–65, are a boon to apartment renters and homeowners. They turn do-nothing spaces into storage walls, and when you move, the component parts can be reassembled to fit new areas and personal needs. "Whatchamacallits" by Integral Cubics, Inc. get their start in life as packs of wooden panels that turn into 15-inch cubes or 15x30-inch double cubes that can be grouped and stacked at will. With the firm's Divide-A-Shelf, Add-A-Shelf and Add-A-Door kits, you can adapt the basic pieces to your own special storage requirements. Panels are finished in pepper red, Adriatic blue or Capri vellow and are also available in walnut and white. The "Whatchamacallits" booklet is free and tells you how to furnish your nursery, home office or dining room with a homemade system. For a copy, write to: Integral Cubics, Inc., 39-05 Crescent St., Long Island City, N.Y. 11101.

Modular milestone. In a recent contest for California designers, Hiroyuki Arai, a Japanese student at the Los Angeles Art Center College, won first prize for his modular seating system. The elements, made of plastic foam, can be combined as sofas, chairs, beds, tables and storage units.

Mirror, mirror. A mirrored wall seemingly doubles the size of any room, but is it worth it when you think of the cost of permanent installation? We saw the solution for just such a wall treatment in the Thayer Coggin furniture showroom recently. The wall was painted dark charcoal and 30x48inch rectangular mirrors were installed about 3 inches apart, wallmounted by plastic clips. (Mirrors are thus easily removed, with little wall damage.) Three remaining walls were done in silver foil for added effect. -Vera D. Hahn

The Most Exciting
Headache News In Years...

Doctors' Tests In Treating Nervous Tension Headaches Now Made Public

Results Prove An Extra-Strength Tablet That Needs No Prescription Just As Effective As The Expensive, Leading Pain-Relief Prescription Of Doctors.

If you're one of the many who get tense, nervous headaches, you should find these recent medical reports of the upmost importance.

Physicians who specialize in scientific research conducted tests on 826 patients, 507 who complained of tension headaches. The results proved that an extra-strength tablet that needs no prescription (Anacin) is every bit as effective to completely relieve nervous headaches as the expensive, leading prescription of doctors. Additional tests made by other doctors verified beyond a doubt that Anacin gives the same complete headache relief as the pain-reliever so powerful it needs a doctor's prescription.

After taking Anacin, headache pain disappears in minutes so its nervous tension and pressure on nerves vanish, too. Despite its strength, Anacin is not narcotic. Not habit-forming. You can take Anacin without getting dizzy or an upset stomach. Millions of headache sufferers must consider Anacin superior because it's America's largest selling analgesic.

To obtain complete relief from pain of a tension headache—it makes good sense to take Anacin® Tablets. You get the same powerful, fastacting headache relief as the leading prescription. Yet Anacin needs no prescription and is far more economical.

THE PLUMB LINE

GLOBAL CONCERN

As the world gets smaller, environmental problems that may have seemed to be local frequently turn out to be global. Dwindling open space of the natural variety is a perfect example. The urbanites among us who look out upon mile upon mile of buildings and streets have brethren, it seems, in Italy, Bulgaria, Syria and Brazil, to name only a few. In these countries, too, the pressure is on to enjoy pure space inhabited only by grass, trees and birds.

This was made plain recently in Washington, D. C., when architects and city planners from 15 nations got together to discuss our all too common woe. Most of the experts generally agreed on the culprits: land speculation, outmoded land-use patterns based on cities of the Middle Ages and movement from the country toward urban centers and seacoasts. In many cases, they noted that the newer suburbs offer fewer public parks and open spaces than older cities with a denser population.

Among the alternatives suggested were cities underground, in the sea, out in space or up in the air with simulated natural environments. A good start, it was thought, would be for the UN to take a worldwide inventory of valuable open space, then figure out how to retain it. One idea that seemed to us to make a lot of sense was to give tax benefits to those who are helping to preserve natural beauty.

RID THE RUST

Rust, one of those pesky, recurrent problems that flares up to trouble the homeowner, may have met its match. A Rust-Eraser that cleans rusted and corroded metals has recently been put on the market. The eraser is also said to remove scuff marks, stains and discoloration from tile, plastic, ceramics, china, wood, brick, stone and composition floors. The product, which looks like a dark-brown version of the standard rubber eraser, costs 99¢ and is made by The Coricone Corporation, Long Beach, Calif.

URBAN AND STUDENT RENEWAL

A pilot work-study program, designed to help solve the schooldropout problem and rebuild city housing, has begun in Rochester, N.Y. The idea originated at Eastman Kodak, the city's largest employer. Kodak proposed that a group of 20 students, a mixture of dropouts and those who lacked interest in school, attend regular classes for half a day and spend the other half applying what they learn to the renovation of houses that could be purchased by lowincome families. The students would be paid $1.85 an hour for the half-day work training.

In the project's six-month experimental phase, under the direction of Rochester Jobs Incorporated (an agency that helps the unemployed find work), the City School District of Rochester, the Metropolitan Rochester Foundation and Kodak, the students not only received training but also rebuilt a training center, rehabilitated four houses and began work on a fifth. After working on the renovation of the training center, one trainee commented: "I can't believe it. I never thought we could do it. For the first time in my life I've been involved in something worthwhile."

The positive results of the pilot project, and the development of two others, have led to a $1,000,000 U.S. Department of Labor grant for Rochester (continued)

Why don't you become a professional Interior Decorator?

It's a high-income field where a woman is in her glory. There is a good demand for decorating services and opportunities are abundant . . . even if you use only part of your time. You can train at home without interrupting your regular duties.

BY JANICE TRIMBLE

I don't think there are many fields today that offer more pleasure or greater rewards to a woman than that of interior decorating.

It is an ideal place to put your natural love of beauty to practical use. You can do this in a well-paid position or decide to go into business for yourself.

Do you enjoy doing your own decorating? Have you ever helped a friend solve a decorating problem? Then you may have the makings for success as a professional decorator.

Even if you've done no decorating, you may be one of many women with unsuspected talent in this direction—talent just waiting to be discovered.

You can now train for this work at home, in your spare time. No previous skills or experience are required for this training. Why not look into the many opportunities that interior decorating offers you?

A tremendously expanded field

It used to be that only wealthy people employed professional decorators. That's no longer true. Increasingly large numbers of homemakers now rely on the services of decorators. They know that a decorator can provide beauty and individuality — and can often save them money, too.

The work of a decorator is varied and interesting. It frequently takes you and your clients into smart showrooms and shops filled with treasures. You move in a world of fashion, creativity and ever-new challenge.

Designing and furnishing even a single room may earn a decorator hundreds of dollars; larger assignments may earn much more. Many women do well just in part-time work; their own homes often serve as showcases for prospective clients.

But decorators are busy in many areas besides homes. Their talents are employed in decorating hotel rooms, business offices, building lobbies, clubs and institutions. That's why the profession has grown so large.

What the LaSalle Course teaches you

The LaSalle Course in Interior Decorating has been prepared to give you practical, complete and up-to-date preparation for this exciting modern career. Lessons come to you by mail; they are as fascinating as the professional work itself. Much of the study material included is unique in a course of this kind. For instance, you get an attractive, simple-to-operate slide projector with color slides that show interiors almost as big as life on your wall. You also get professional sketching equipment, coloring materials, stencils that make it easy for you to draw room plans, and much more.

Step by step, you are shown how to develop your creative ability. You are taught the principles of color and design and the historic background of today's decoration. You are trained in the selection and use of furniture, fabrics, accessories, lighting. You learn how to achieve beautiful settings to delight your clients and build your reputation. Even before you have finished the course, you may want to apply your new knowledge to glorifying your own home.

At each step, you are given practical assignments which are then carefully reviewed by your instructors and returned to you. You are coached with care for your work as a decorator.

The LaSalle Course in Interior Decorating is backed by more than sixty years of leadership in the field of home education. More than 2,000,000 people have enrolled for home study courses with LaSalle.

REFURNISHING OUR STREETS

The visual chaos that assaults ou eyes as we walk down the streets of ou cities and towns results from the unco ordinated maze of signs, lights, traffic signals and street furniture.

The city of Pittsburgh has tapped one of its industrial-design firms, Peter Muller-Munk Associates, Inc., to create a standardized system of public-street equipment, including lights, traffic signals and signs, fire and police call boxes hydrants, newsstands, telephone booths, transit shelters and benches, mail boxes and trash receptacles. If all goes according to plan, the new street design should replace the old within six years.

Objects such as telephone booths and mail boxes will be built of modular elements to provide for flexibility and simplify manufacturing, reducing costs.

PLAYING ECOLOGY

Play can be educational not only for children but also for adults willing to have a go at the new ecology board games called Dirty Water and Smog. In Dirty Water, the player assumes the role of an administrator who must control pollution and maintain an ecological balance in local waters. Each of the players in Smog is an air-quality manager for his town, responsible for cleaning up polluted air.

The originator of the games is Urban Systems, Inc., a group of Harvard and M.I.T. professors and students with professional experience in ecology.

In addition to the games, Urban Systems has produced five experimentation kits for learning about ecology: Why Are Leaves Green?; Life in the Water; Predator-Prey; What Moves Life; and Life From Death. Price of the games is $10 each; the kits, $60. The address: Urban Systems, Inc., 1033 Massachusetts Ave., Cambridge, Mass. 02138.

Dow Bathroom Cleaner. Can you see yourself using anything else?

THE SAUNA EXPERIENCE: Discover how life can be beautiful at 200° F.

First, I put a fresh egg, right from the refrigerator, on the upper bench of my sauna, set the thermostat at 200°F, and flick on the stove. Sometime later I come back. It could be 45 minutes or an hour -the sauna would be hot enough-but it's more like two or three hours. I like the heat to drink every vestige of moisture from the air until the wood walls seem to glow and the pile of rocks on top of the stove are heated uniformly right through and hot enough, it seems, to make a drop of water dance. With wood-heated saunas, this state is called "ripened." I like to think the term applies to my electric sauna.

In the subdued light (I prefer a dim, blue bulb or one of those fancy, clear bulbs with the colored, flower-shaped filaments) I stretch out-gin-ger-ly-on the hot top bench, and there we arethe egg and I. My sauna is what I consider minimal size, just space enough for a lower and a higher bench and room to lie flat-my toes touch one wall, the top of my head brushes the other. I prefer lying down in an even level of heat. I also like the walls to lie down, and I had my sauna built so that the wood-cedar in this case, though many are redwoodruns horizontally. I think it's more restful than watching vertical lines marching around a small area.

It is not merely warm in here; it is a toenail-tingling heat and it treats my tight muscles like chocolate bars and slowly melts them. The sharp spray of thoughts I came in with, vectoring through my skull, grows heat-dulled and finally meanders off, unmissed. Then, without direction and unbidden, an awareness grows of the melting muscles, the sting of breath in the nose and a sense of the quickening heart as a physical thing, an actual pump, pumping almost audibly as it sends blood—hot as molten lead, it feels—through the body.

The skin is flushed and marbled by all this vascular activity. And the heat penetrates deeper and deeper. Shortly, the perspiration brigade is called out. At first, the thirsty, hot air absorbs any moisture, then faster it comes and soon rivulets then tributaries trickle down the valleys of the flesh.

Some people start perspiring almost immediately in the sauna, some take longer—and some react differently at different times. I seem to pop into a sweat when my general muscle tone is best, and when I feel a marshmallow dullness it takes much longer. Anyway, after 10 or 15 minutes it is time to cool the flames building within. I step out and into a coolish shower. Or if it is snowing, I walk out into the night of the deserted countryside and the flakes fall like a constant shower of tiny needles on my lifted arms. The body is so stoked by the heat from the sauna that it steams in the cold air and melts deep molds of itself in the snow bank I drop into. Sweeping my arms at my sides, I imprint an angel shape, laughing to see the snow crystals dissolve on this griddle surface that is me. The feet feel the cold first, leaving incongruous, bare prints to freeze (and baffle a deliveryman the next day). They pad me quickly and dripping back to the womb of the sauna. Water melted from the sky and water brought forth from the body mingle now in a mix of hot and cold with no clear idea of which is which. It's like dry ice. There's a tingling and a glow and it feels just plain fantastic. A gentle switching with a bouquet of birch twigs would enhance this glow, but my nearby birches seem to have leaf blight so I forgo this.

Stoked again and cooled again-it's the cycle of the sauna-and it can be repeated as often as you like. Then it all ends with a soapy, hearty scrubbing. Purists never use a towel; they let the air waft them dry. I can see why, because on soft summer evenings on my tree-shrouded hillside I sit on my deck in the soft feathers of a gentle breeze and it's marvelous. But that is not always possible. Gentle patting with a thirsty towel or a wrap-up in an enveloping terry robe will do the trick. Then lie down someplace quietly and purposelessly and let your body throb as the embers cool within you.

Unlike a steam bath, the sauna is not enervating, and soon, as you lie doing nothing more than feeling your existence, a charge of energy surges through your renewed body and mind. You want to do things—eat for one. Or finish that dull task you've been avoiding. Or play a game or write a letter or listen to music. Or even sleep, and you will sleep unbelievably well, because most everything you do after a sauna you do well—or so it seems. Oh yes, about that egg. Eat it. It's well-cooked by now. And what a kick to think that you were in the "oven" with it.

This is a personal view of the sauna because sauna—as the Finnish call it without the article "the" or "a"—is a personal thing. I'm a convert, but not an expert, so I'm not telling you everything about saunas but only what I know.

Everyone has favorite variations of the sauna ritual, and favorite saunas. For some, the only real sauna is burrowed in a hillside with the smoke from the stone-heating birch fire wafting about the room. For others, it's a log, lakeside sauna with a wood fire and a pleasant old lady—a sauna fixture in Finland—to scrub you almost skinless and rinse you with buckets of water.

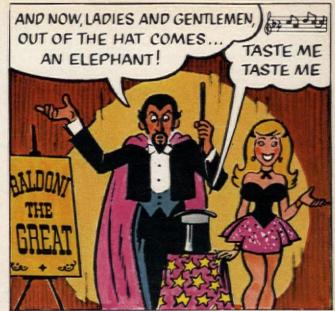

Compared to your favorite sauna, which you'll always think of as the "real" sauna, others are like reproductions of a painting—not the masterwork itself but a welcome reminder of the treasured original.

It is difficult for people who wilt in city heat when the thermometer nudges into the high 90's to imagine surviving long exposure to 200°F. or more, let alone enjoying it. Water, for heaven's sake, boils at 212° F. and if you lie beside a cooking egg, why aren't you cooked?

It comes to the old cab-driver cliché, the one that follows, "Hot enough for you?," which is: "It ain't the heat, it's the humidity." The human body can stand vast extremes of temperature as long as the air is dry. The relative humidity in a sauna, regulated by splashing water over the heated rocks, should never be over 20 percent and some bathers prefer 6-8 percent. In such dry air the temperature of Finnish saunas, which averages about 212° and even ranges up into the 260's, becomes more understandable. But it is still something one must experience to believe. Americans with private saunas usually set theirs at a range of from 175° to 210°, but, sadly, it is the policy for many public and club saunas to venture no higher than 150°. That's hardly a sauna at all, but then many things lose something in translation.

And speaking of translation, the Finns, who have used the sauna for at least 2,000 years, must be astounded at what has happened to their bath since its fame has spread in this (continued) country during the past 10 or so years. Still rare enough to be status symbols in the U.S.—though the sauna trend, as evidenced by apartment communities such as Sixty-01 in Redmond, Wash., (see pages 70–75), is gaining momentum—saunas are commonplace in Finland.

Look what has happened to the very word "sauna." Meaning "bathhouse" at its Finnish simplest, it has been used and abused in this country until its meaning has become badly diffused. "Sauna" has become an "okay word," loaded with class, to attach to almost any product that promises to reduce poundage or improve health and happiness.

But manufacturers are not the only ones muddying the term. Consider The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language. Its definition goes like this: "A steam-bath treatment originating in Finland, in which the bather is subjected to steam produced usually by running water over heated rocks." Now if you've read this far you know that that's wrong.

Let's try a new definition: "The sauna is a hot-air bath of extremely high heat and relatively low humidity that relaxes and cleanses the bather by inducing perspiration." That's better than the American Heritage try, but it is still lifeless and says nothing about the spiritual properties of the Finnish bath, a near mystical aspect that is rooted in antiquity. Many primitive peoples associate fire with a supreme being and it is no wonder that the sauna stove was considered an altar divine. Even today it is said in Finland: "Two places are holy, church and sauna."

It may well be that the Finns' reverent attitude toward the sauna has preserved it as an institution whereas other great bath cultures, such as the Romans', floundered and died in debauchery and disease. Without ritualization, the Japanese tea ceremony would be nothing more than a tea bag swished around in hot water. Without reverence, the magic mushroom ceremony of the American Indian deteriorates into a freakout on mescaline. And without its spirit, the sauna would slip into seedy disrepute.

I trust any image you might have had of a sauna as a tiled room with clouds of swirling steam and water dripping from the walls as well as the people has been successfully erased. To repeat, a sauna is not a steam bath. But to complicate things, steam plays an important role in the sauna. Water isn't "run" over the heated rocks, but from time to time it is splashed on them by the dipperful, vaporizing instantly and invisibly with its only evidence the sharp, new tingling of the skin and the searing of the nostrils. Suddenly it seems as if the temperature has shot into the intolerable range. Actually, it has dropped a little; it is the relative humidity that has risen sharply, causing this flash sensation that the Finns call löyly. Some believe it is the soul of the sauna. Some can't take it. (I bypass it more often than not since I disrespectfully let my wooden sauna bucket dry out and fall to pieces.)

Nor, to continue hassling the dictionary, is the sauna, strictly speaking, a "treatment," though devotees claim wondrous healing powers for it. Maybe it comes down to the notion that a feeling of well-being is well-being. And anything that can "cure" a bad mood has to have something going for it.

Enthusiasts can exaggerate, however, and the Federal Drug Administration watches carefully to make sure that no manufacturer makes unsubstantiated claims that its sauna is a "cure." (Subjective matters like spiritual uplift, of course, are out of the FDA's territory.)

As a reducing aid, the sauna might be of some value, providing you limit your liquid intake after leaving one; the weight lost from perspiring is replaced quickly when the thirst is quenched. Still, there are those who'll tell you the sauna helped trim them down. But don't count on it.

As an acne cure, the sauna has no magic in itself, but it does often help because it so thoroughly cleanses the skin. As a cure for arthritis, bursitis and other such ailments, there is no concrete evidence. At least nothing more substantial than someone saying he feels better after a sauna.

As a sobering-up device, the sauna has some validity—after all, alcohol, when used as an antifreeze, boils out of the radiator of an overheated car, and that's at temperatures well within the sauna range. But if a person needs sobering up he must be drunk, and not only is drunkenness unseemly in a sauna, but it can be dangerous. That stove is hot. As a hangover treatment, that's another matter. A sauna the morning after comes highly recommended.

As a cure for colds, again there is no medical evidence that the sauna has any such powers. But I can attest to its benefits at that "one's coming on" stage.

Respiratory troubles can be aggravated by the hot, dry air of a sauna, and hacking coughs can get hackier. Authorities advise people suffering from blood pressure irregularities—high or low—or elderly people to check with their doctors before using a sauna. Those with heart disease are advised to avoid the sauna, too, since the high heat does make demands on that organ. And anyone, even in the best of health, should avoid the possibilities of dehydration and heat stroke that overexposure to high, dry heat can lead to.

What are the concrete benefits of a sauna other than That Feeling? Ask anyone with muscles screaming after too many hard sets of tennis or an early-season skiing binge. Stiffness is just incinerated away. And there is nothing more satisfying when you are chilled through from the cold, and a furnace set vinced? Turn to page 44 and start planning your sauna.

SOME DON'TS FOR SAUNA BATHERS:

- Don't eat just before a sauna. The blood is busy helping with digestion and can't be two places at once. Wait at least an hour. Bathe now, eat later.
- · Don't smoke or exercise in a sauna.
- Don't wear anything metal into a sauna—even briefly. Earrings or medallions can burn you.
- Don't take pets into a sauna. Their cooling systems are different from yours and panting doesn't help them.
- Don't try for the higher temperatures with small children in a sauna. Their perspiration glands are not fully developed.

And the Finns might add:

- Don't violate the sanctity of a sauna (don't whistle, don't be noisy, don't swear, don't bustle around). And finally:
- Don't watch TV, don't read, don't even think. Just relax and give yourself to the experience.

These are modest sauna prices; the are dozens of sauna manufacturers as importers who stand ready-at costs i to $7,000-to put you in the bather seat in anything from a mini-sauna the generous family size. Am-Finn ar Viking, among others, offer a no-oblig tion custom-design service. You ser them the dimensions of your space ar they will design a sauna to suit.

Saunas in kit form, precut to fit you space, are also available. You, or hire help, put it together. Ehr-lite has suc a kit whose standard sizes can be varie in increments of two feet.

The sauna stove is the single mos expensive item and should be chose carefully so it will heat your size saun properly. If you use electricity, you wi need 220 volts for most stoves. Ga stoves are available, too. They wi need some sort of outside flue system so keep that in mind. There's always th wood stove-an idea more appealin than the fact. Not recommended.

There are a number of gadgets fo the well-outfitted sauna. Essential is heat-control thermostat. Highly desir able is an automatic timer-control box

You do not need a water source in the sauna. You really don't need a wooder bucket and a dipper, but if you are looking forward to the zest of löyly you'll find them necessary.

Handy is a timer that dings. Interesting is a thermometer that tells you the temperature you've reached, but more instructive is a hygrometer which registers the relative humidity in the sauna.

By Lawrence V. Power

The heady atmosphere of high-rise living apparently encourages a love for things green and natural. The potted palm and the home-grown avocado tree have, in fact, become as popular on the contemporary scene as the Eames chair or the Parsons table. Urban families with country yearnings can have the best of both worlds by filling the cool, architectural spaces of their modern apartments with the softness, color and warmth of indoor plants.

Success with plants has a direct relationship to the interest and enlightenment of the grower. However, overprotective growers tend to drown their plants, and the vogue for talking to plants suggests that some must be bored to death. (continued on page 104)

HELP ABOUT THE HOUSE

SQUEAKY FURNITURE NEEDS GLUE

Please tell me how I can stop the doweled joints in old chairs and beds from squeaking. I've tried regluing them, but to no avail.

Yorba Linda, Calif.

If regluing the dowels hasn't worked, chances are you: 1) didn't clean out the crystalized old glue that remained in the joints; 2) didn't use enough glue; 3) didn't get the glue into the dowel holes; or 4) didn't clamp the joints while the glue dried. Here's the correct procedure:

Pry open each joint as far as possible without actually taking the furniture apart. With a nail, ice pick or thin stick, scrape out all the old glue you can. Some will inevitably remain in the joint, but this should create no problem.

When all joints have been cleaned, use a glue injector (available from Albert Constantine & Son, Inc., 2050 East-chester Road, Bronx, N.Y. 10461) to fill each dowel hole with white glue, such as Elmer's Glue-All, Wilhold or Sobo, found in most hardware stores.

The key to success is to use plenty of glue, and to smear it over the wood surfaces surrounding the dowel holes, where it will augment the strength of the dowels.

When all joints have been filled with glue, push them together and apply clamps, weights or ropes to hold them rigid while the glue sets for 24 hours. Your best bet is rope. Wrap the furniture with several turns of it, then tighten by twisting the last turn with a stick, as you would a tourniquet.

Gluing furniture is a messy job. Make sure you do it over newspaper or a drop cloth. And keep damp rags handy to wipe off the excess glue that will be squeezed out of the joints as you clamp them.

REPAINT A REFRIGERATOR

We would like to change the color of our refrigerator. Is there a special paint we should buy?

Altoona, Pa.

Either epoxy enamel or ordinary interior enamel will do. The epoxy is more durable, but much more expensive and more difficult to apply. Whichever paint you decide on, be sure to go over the refrigerator first with fine sandpaper. If two or more coats of paint are needed, sand between coats.

MINERALS CLOUD WINDOWS

We use well water to clean our windows. However, the minerals in the water leave a white film on them. Nothing seems to remove it. How can we get our windows clean again?

Ellensburg, Wash.

We would suggest a household window spray. But if, for economy, you prefer water, use water from a dehumidifier or distilled water. Strengthen these with ammonia rather than soap or detergent.

What is the easiest way to prepare a painted wicker rocking chair for a new coat of paint, and what is the best paint for wicker? I would also appreciate a suggestion on how to anchor a foam-rubber cushion to the chair seat.

Rub the existing coat of paint with steel wool to remove the gloss. Then apply enamel from a spray can (brushing would be extremely difficult), following directions on the label. If a second coat of new (continued on page 52)

FURNITURE FINISH CAN BE PATCHED

The finish on the top of our dresser was damaged by spilled nai polish. Can we patch the finish or is it necessary to refinish the whole top?

Robbins, N.C.

If the damage is extensive, it might be easiest to remove the remaining finish from the entire top by sanding, then recoat with varnish, shellac or lacquer, depending on what was originally used as a finish for the dresser.

If only a few spots of finish were damaged, try patching. To patch, rub around the edges of each spot with very fine sandpaper in order to feather, or taper, the unharmed finish. Then apply enough thin coats of varnish, shellac or lacquer to match the original finish in thickness and color.

REVENT FURNACE FOR FIREPLACE USE

We have a beautiful fireplace, but have been unable to use it when the forced warm-air furnace is in operation. The suction of one of the coldair return grilles, which is located in the same room as the fireplace, pulls the smoke right out of the fireplace and into the room. Can the situation be remedied?

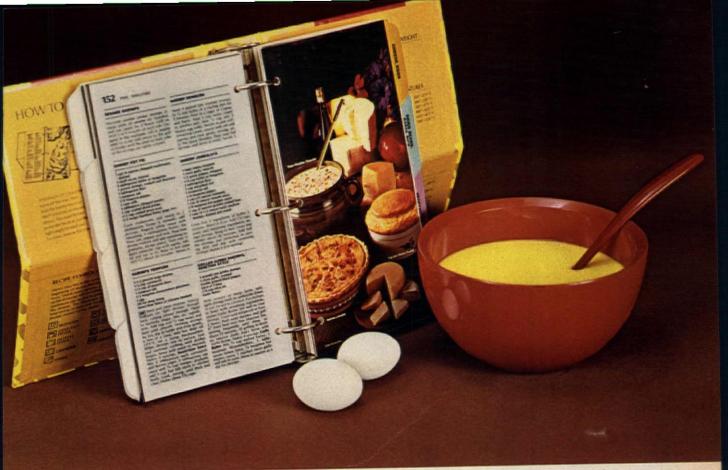

Quincy, Ill.

If your house has a basement, leave a basement window partially open to provide a source of outside air for the furnace. Or, if this doesn't solve the problem, a furnace installer may be able to add a duct that will bring outside air directly to the furnace.

Another idea would be to close, partially or completely, the cold-air grille which is in the same room as your fire-place, while also opening the basement window. If this helps, however, remember that it would not be wise to leave the duct covered when you are not using the fireplace, as your heating system could then be thrown out of balance.

easy 70's lifestyle: THE APARTMENT

Apartment living, once only a stopgap for newlyweds bent on eventually owning their own home, is becoming a favorite lifestyle for an increasing number of young families. Apartment units account for almost half the total of new construction. Apartment convenience, simplified upkeep and the avoidance of hefty down payments or scrambling for mortgage money have strong appeal. And with today's versatile storage and seating systems, even small layouts can serve many needs. Here you'll see several facets of this trend: in the city, with the Richard Saul Wurmans of Philadelphia (that's Mrs. Wurman above); in the country, with an "all systems go" Sugarbush, Vt., condominium; in the suburbs near Seattle, with a splendid new garden-apartment community. Plus: an 8-page insert of the latest space-saving furniture—add-as-you-go wall units, seating, sleep sofas—and 50 decorating ideas that help take the cramp out of uptight living.

flexible planning By Richard Saul Wurman creates a world of uses

Apartment living has been a revelation for city living tion for us. When we moved into our two-bedroom high-rise in Philadelphia's Society Hill Towers, we considered it an interim move—between our two-and-a-half-story town house in the downtown area and a house in the suburbs. But much to Dorothy's and my surprise, we've found that even with two active boys—Joshua, 10, and Reven, 8—apartment living is the best of all possible worlds. When we decided on the move, we knew we were in for a change in lifestyle—from spacious and cluttered to small and efficient. We sold or gave away 80 percent of our possessions, keeping only those that counted most. The natural assets of the apartment took any curse off its lack of space, a problem we countered through the use of multipurpose furnishings and by putting our walls to work. On the 27th floor of this concrete-and-glass tower, designed by I. M. Pei, with plenty of window area and no other buildings to impede our view, we can appreciate the sky in all its moods in a way we never could before. The light and sun are salubrious—not only for us but for the only clutter we allow ourselves, our plants. Since we love art and because we entertain a lot, we decided to let plants, flowers, people, sky, color and texture take the limelight, while casting the furniture in a background role. (continued)

Our living-room table is all things to all of us. Forme (left) it's a great place to work. For Dorothy it becomes a handy surface for cutting fabrics. For Joshua and Reven the table makes a project bench. For everyone it is a year-round garden display.

In planning our furnishings, we tried to make them as flexible as possible. Because of tight quarters, each room had to serve many purposes. We found that although our activities were many and varied, the furniture we required for carrying them out was actually minimal. Reduced to their simplest, our needs were: soft surfaces for sitting or sleeping; hard surfaces for setting things on; places for storage. Built-in furnishings might have been a logical answer, but we eliminated the idea because we considered them too expensive and permanent for a rental apartment. (continued on page 102)

You can't beat the system for solving one of the dilemmas of apartment living: how to find enough room for everything. Furniture manufacturers, aware of the problem, have now introduced a host of space-saving wall and seating systems, some of which you see here and following. For example, this bedroom of a compact, three-room vacation apartment in Sugarbush, Vt., uses a wall system as attractive as it is functional. Providing ample storage and a drop-down desk, it enables the 16x16-foot room to double as a study-sitting room. As with all systems, you select from a variety of units to design areas that are uniquely yours. (continued)

The bedroom's drop-down desk (right) boasts a generous work surface and storage area, ideal for a home office or teen-ager's room.

To show the versatility of the systems approach, we packed the apartment with wall-to-wall components, making each room into a multipurpose area. In the living room, shown here, the owner requested maximum storage, an accessible bar and an area for the TV. Since the system extended wall to wall and stacked up to nearly ceiling height, we finished it off with wood framing, thereby adding an architectural element to the room. The living-room seating system—a series of ottomans with connecting bolsters—offers almost limitless arrangements, ranging from an armless chair to a chaise lounge. The square, white-plastic tables are part of the seating system, fitting in where needed. (continued)

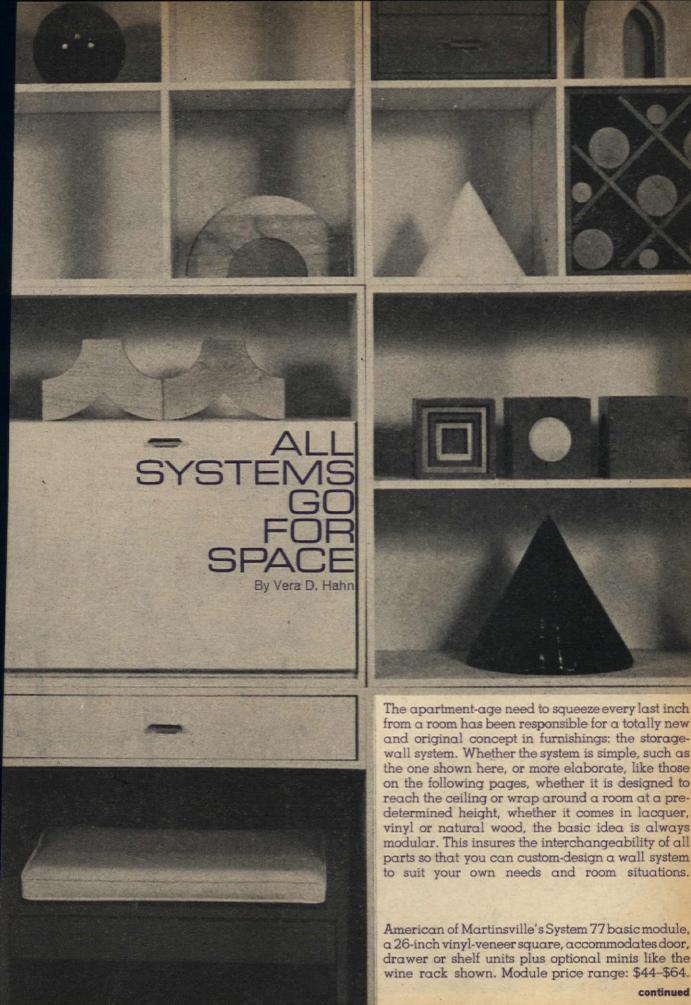

The galley (left) is set off from the dining area by a storage-serving counter finished in rough cedar to match the cabinets. Refrigerator wall was painted a bright persimmon to blend with the Formica splashboard and counter tops. The quarry-tile floor, by American Olean, keeps its mat finish with a swish of the mop.

Dining area's Interlübke wall system is a model of double-duty ingenuity. Seen below, it offers storage galore plus a pull-down dining table for five. Same area (bottom) shows the table back in its wall and a bed from the adjoining unit pulled out. When not in use, it flips up and revolves 180° to reveal a drop-down desk and shelves.

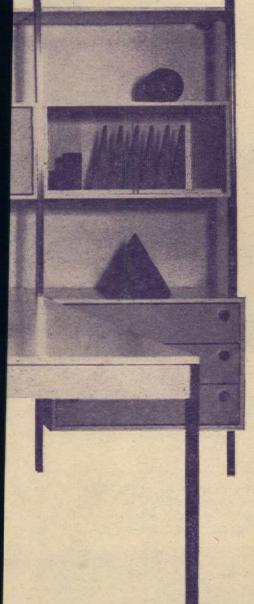

The 11x16-foot kitchen was divided into a galley and dining area by the addition of a serving counter. More space was gained by recessing the refrigerator into the wall. The biggest surprise of all, neatly stashed away in the dining-area wall, is a pull-down bed for a guest, plus enough storage to gladden any woman's heart. This system's units, like those of the living room and bedroom, can be regrouped to fit any kind of room.

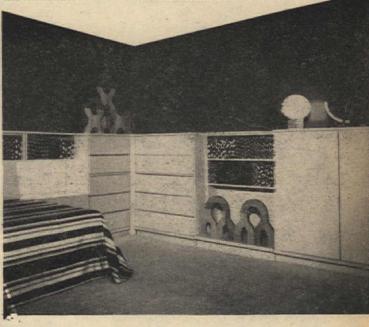

Pole-suspension system of 31-inch-wide vinyl components is by Directional Industries. Magazine shelf, record shelf, table desk and glass-door cabinet are among the elements shown. Poles come in heights of 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 feet. Standard cabinets cost $80–$100, drawer units $85–$90, shelves $10–$17.

Roland Carter's Lifestyle (right), for the Lane Company, features multipurpose walnut or white-lacquer pieces, like the dressing table/desk. The components are each 32 x 56 inches with stacking modules optional. The five-drawer unit is about $180, the two-door, shelved design next to it about $160 and the desk $120.

Basic height of Bernhardt Furniture Company's Unizontal system (below) is 47 inches, in varying widths, to complement low apartment ceilings. Stacking modules in 44-inch heights are also available. Design is simple, colors (lacquer over wood) are sharp. In addition to storage pieces, there are bookcase headboards, nightstands, bookcases and a desk chair. The door chest (right) sells for about $170; the bookcase next to it costs about $70.

MOBILE SEATING WITH STYLE

Variety is the name of the seating game with a versatile, move-anywhere system, three variations of which are shown here. Like the wall system, this newcomer to the furniture field spells mobility—something too long absent from the essentially static seating picture. Now a sofa can be literally broken apart into a pair of love seats, a love seat and chair, or it can be lengthened by extra modular units. Teamed with an ottoman, a portion of a sofa becomes a chaise—and arms are removable, too. Chairs can be lined up in rows or turned back-to-back, all depending upon the needs of the moment.

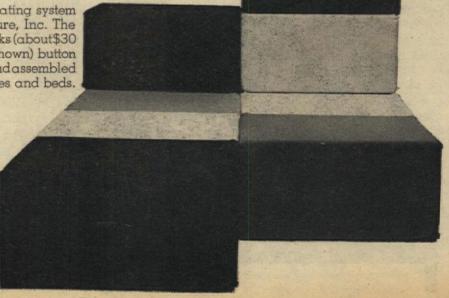

The Spiros Zakas firm makes this seating system, upholstered in suede cloth. Molded plastic frames are engineered for resilience. The basic units ($95 each) can be used side by side and back to back, as shown, or as Removable arms are the special feature of Selig Manufacturing Company's Elastomatic seating system (above). The three chairs are bolted together at the base. Construction is 80 percent urethane foam over steel and wood. Imported oatmeal wool tweed is used as a covering. Price for the unit shown: about $925.

Keyed to mobility is this seating system (right) from Founders Furniture, Inc. The individual urethane-foamblocks (about$30 each in the stretch fabric shown) button together, can be rearranged and assembled into sofas, chairs, chaises and beds.

DECORATING IDEAS FOR PROBLEM ROOMS

- 1 Divide an L-shaped room into separate living and dining areas by means of a freestanding divider with shelves and cabinets.
- 2 When inches count, cut doors in half lengthwise and hinge them; they will need less space to swing.
- 3 Use a mini-chest next to an armchair instead of a table.
- 4 Fit narrow boards between the rungs of rope ladders for a hanging shelf system.
- 5 Hang household linens from towel racks behind a screen.
- 6 Tailor your own radiator screens from junkyard window shutters scraped clean of paint, left natural and hinged together.
- 7 Cut a sheet of plywood the same size as your bed and suspend it from pulleys for a bed/storage canopy. Paper underside or cover it with fabric.
- 8 Balance downlighting from table lamps with floor lamps equipped with ceiling reflectors.
- 9 Back up your sofa with a bookcase no higher than its back; use the top to hold a pair of lamps.
- 10 Hide old-fashioned wall sconces inexpensively with half-round linen or parchment shades.
- 11 Hang your guests' coats on a handsome clothes rack to free the guest closet for family coats.
- 12 Personalize an entry that is too narrow for furniture with a wall-hung collection.
- 13 Take the shelf out of your closet and raise the clothespole; fit chests of drawers underneath.
- 14 Create a window reveal by boxing in your window with bookcases. Add to the illusion with a wooden valance.
- 15 Curtain the glass doors of your china cabinet for storage instead of display space.
- 16 Put closet doors to work. Cover their inside faces with pegboard.
- 17 If the landlord says dark painted walls are taboo, cover with dark fabric, using double-faced tape.

- 18 Break up a too-long wall with a fake chimney breast on casters. Use space behind for storage.
- 19 Invest in decorative screens. They can turn into anything from a divider separating entry from living room to a headboard.
- 20 Turn the 'second floor' of a no-longer-used bunk bed into storage for toys.
- 21 Eliminate very full draperies in a small room. Use tailored shades, vertical blinds or shutters instead.
- 22 Clutter makes a room look smaller. Group, organize, confine objects for a more spacious look.
- 23 Take advantage of the current craze for shiny, mirror-bright surfaces and wall treatments for visually larger rooms.
- 24 Consider open storage for your bedroom and bathroom. Neat piles of towels or sweaters on shelves are not eyesores.
- 25 Too many table and floor lamps tend to clutter a room. Try built-in lighting or wall lamps.
- 26 Tuck a semainier (seven-drawer chest) between two windows.
- 27 Turn a dining-room wall into a pantry via a wall system.
- 28 Instead of a do-nothing headboard, use a storage model for your bed.
- 29 Sliding and folding doors take less room than conventional ones.
- 30 An armoire is no wider than a chest but, being higher, it stores considerably more.
- 31 A pair of drum tables topped with a sheet of glass or acrylic makes a handsome, modern storage-dining table.
- 32 Consider storage hassocks; they now come in "with it" shapes and colors.
- 33 If your bathroom is a storage stepchild, use the back of the door for shelves.
- 34 Old-fashioned window seats were wonderful for storage. Adapt the idea to your bay window.
- 35 To make a room look larger, use a no-contrast color scheme.

- 36 A bare wood floor or wall-towall carpeting makes a room seem more spacious.
- 37 Furniture with a reflective plinth gives a feeling of lightness to a room.
- 38 Don't waste your walls. Put them to work with wall systems (see pages 63–65); move seating pieces and tables into the middle of the room.
- 39 To give a room airiness, try a few see-through pieces of furniture in acrylic, wicker or metal.
- 40 Hang draperies from the ceiling for a heightening effect.
- 41 A wallpaper that suggests depth and long perspectives gives an added spatial dimension to cramped quarters.
- 42 Collect little chests and antique boxes for decorative storage.
- 43 To free a precious drawer, hang your prettiest scarves from hooks in a straight line or pattern along a wall.
- 44 Older apartments often have built-in bookcases. Convert them into storage and conceal with a colorful window shade.
- 45 Make wall-hung storage boxes with your favorite paintings or graphics framed and hinged to serve as doors.
- 46 A mirrored screen can serve as a full-length mirror while creating looking-glass space that isn't there.
- 47 Discover the joys of an old cabin trunk. Permanently installed in the corner of your bedroom, it can be spray-painted or covered in a decorative fabric.
- 48 Instead of a dinette set, have a table and banquettes to store bulky, seldom-used equipment.
- 49 To keep a child's room tidy, line up hollow storage cubes in toy-train formation and paint wheels on the side.
- 50 The bathroom window of an older apartment is apt to be recessed. Brackets and glass shelves turn it into a medicine chest or cosmetic cache.

apartment
developments
to come.

SUBURBIA SUBURBIA WAS In this time of change, noth-ways enable ways enable ing is changing aster than the American dream of where and how to live. And apartment living. once anathema to Americans who wanted their own land under their feet and trees over their heads, promises to be the answer for many today. The reasons? Land scarcity, resulting in rising costs, for one. Another is the success of experiments like Sixty-01 in Redmond, Wash., winner of the National Association of Home Builders' Gold Nugget apartment award. An 82-acre, garden-apartment community 20 minutes south of Seattle, it combines a quality environment with the easy-living assets that homeowners could never hope to enjoy for the same money.

In planning Sixty-01, architect Frank August of Riley Bissell Associates, Newport Beach, Calif., gave prime consideration to preserving nature while providing modern amenities. (The project is named after its street address. The 500 apartment units (another 270 are scheduled for completion by the end of March) were built to disturb the fewest number of trees and to follow the sloping bowl-like contours of the land. A peat bog in the center of the development was dug out to create Swan Lake, the 10acre visual focus of the complex. The density of units per acre was limited to 8.3 (compared to a national average of 35). More than 200,000 new plants, bushes and trees, all native to the Northwest, were brought in to supplement the natural growth already there.

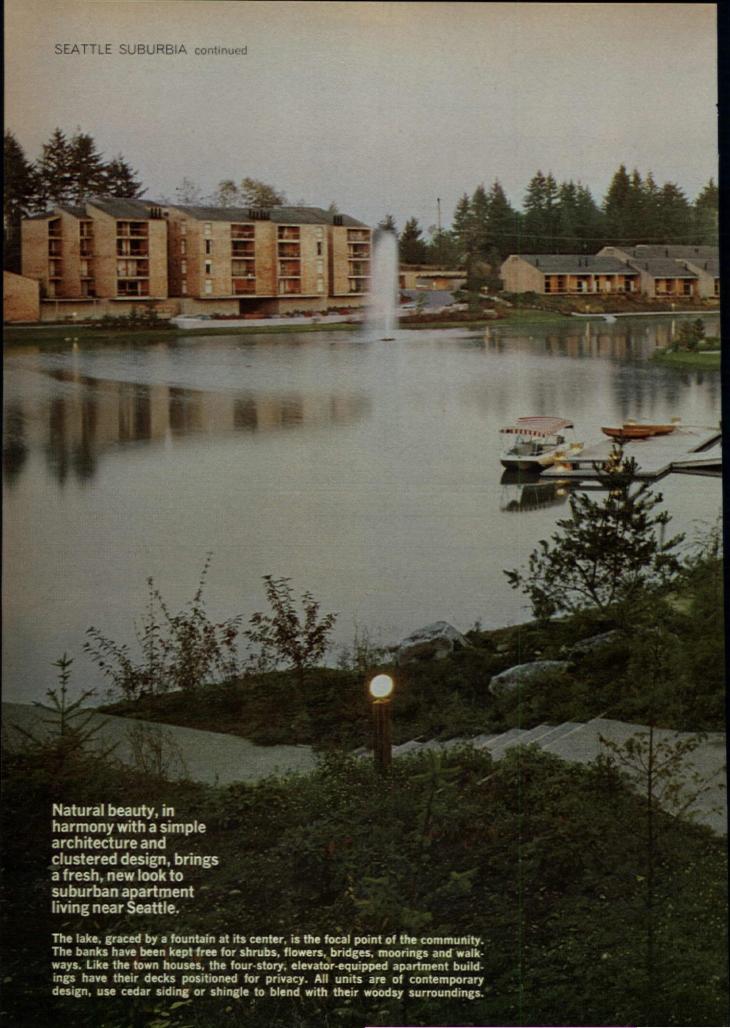

Today, pebble paths, foot bridges and walkways enable the community's 725 residents to enjoy the surroundings. An intricate system of outdoor lighting, consisting of unobtrusive globe fixtures, creates nighttime vistas as romantic as the daytime scenes are pastoral. Cars are garaged, out of sight. The asphalt roads they move on are narrow to discourage their use.

Simple shed-roof architectural forms echo the slope of the land. A mix of town houses and four-story apartment buildings, staggered for views and privacy, gives scale; the use of indigenous cedar shingle and siding adds textural variation.

Interior spaces are planned for maximum living and optimum views of the lake. Whitelinen draperies, used in all units, never compete with the natural beauty outside. For recreation, residents can choose among tennis courts, swimming pools (one is situated opposite the laundry room, making it possible to take a dip while clothes are drying), an athletic field, saunas and an exercise room. Use of these facilities plus lessons from a staff of professionals are free to residents and their quests. Three channels of closed-circuit TV are also provided: one focuses on the entrance gate, another on weather forecasts and community announcements and a third on old movies, live on-site shows and videotaped athletic events that have taken place on the premises.

The fact that Sixty-01 is sold out at an average rental of $240 when less-expensive apartments nearby are going begging indicates that people are looking for a better environment and are willing to pay for it. This lesson is an encouraging one for apartment developers of the future.

This apartment typifies the penthouse layout in all of Sixty-01's four-story buildings. The large living space is easily divided into sitting and dining areas, each with its own view of the lake below. Cedar-shingle walls and a pitched overhang turn the balconied deck into an outdoor room.

2

Apartment living and horses may seem an unlikely mix, but at Sixty-01 residents can board their own mounts at on-site stables. Seven miles of parkland bridle trails surround the complex.

3

Cantilevered boardwalks and footpaths around the lake are illuminated for evening strollers. The play of bold design and light on the water is just as enjoyable to those on the inside looking out.

4

Closed-circuit TV alerts the tenant to a guest's arrival. All visitors are stopped at the gate within range of a camera. The tenant, prompted by a call from the guard, turns on her TV to find out who the caller is. Two more closed-circuit channels feature movies and community programs.

5

With a fully equipped co-ed exercise room on the premises, residents find little excuse for not keeping in shape. A gleaming array of modern gear, and a staff to provide the expertise, is always on hand—whether the goal is to trim down, tone up tired muscles or just work off tensions.

6

The community sauna, Sixty-01's answer to the midday coffee break, is a favorite energizer for nearly everyone. What's the sauna experience like? For a first-hand account, turn to page 40.

7

Angled roof lines are a design hallmark of Sixty-01, even to the protective weather shield used on the mailboxes. Plastic skylight bubbles and metal chimneys hint at the modern amenities within.

Almost as much care has been given to the housing of cars as of people. The garages are cleanlined structures that keep vehicles from interfering with views of the lake and surrounding park. Globe lights on the garage exterior reflect a spirit of design consistency and unobtrusiveness.

essentials are stored by the sink between the drip-dry/mud closet at far left and the stacked washer and dryer. Sewing gear is at your fingertips, along the wall counter. When the sewing machine is folded into its well, the space becomes a home-office desk. Other work areas are planned for plant potting, flower arranging, package wrapping, laundry folding and cutting out patterns. Building diagrams, further details and Shopping Information are on page 78.

A spare corner becomes a laundry-sewing center with plywood built-ins for space saving.

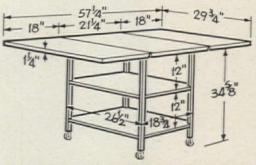

In the laundry-sewing center plan above, dimensions for some of the components are not included but can be determined from other measurements given. You may, of course, adapt the overall scale to your own space requirements. All plywood is 3/4-inch thick.

The arrangement you see here, and more dramatically in color on pages 76-77, has a lot of good sense going for it. For example, the drip-dry/mud closet, sink and laundry sections must all have water connections, and so they were grouped together. If the layout of your house prohibits such plumbing additions, consider building the sewing/ home-office wall alone. In this case, since your only electrical requirement is an outlet for the sewing machine and iron-which you likely already have-your costs would be for the counter, cabinet and closet construction and materials.

If the man of the house is a dedicated do-it-yourselfer, he can do the job himself with a possible assist from an electrician or plumber.

Making yeast dough, the high-rising basis of old-fashioned cinnamon rolls, is easy. It's fun, too, for the dough grows as you work with it. Yeast, whether the active-dry or compressed type, is a living plant. It needs warmth to do its job, particularly when it is set aside to rise. Keep it draft-free and warmed at a temperature of about 85°. You'll find it changes from a firm, heavy ball of dough into a big. light, puffy one. To learn how to bake with yeast-especially the knack of making fragrant cinnamon rolls-follow the steps below.

CINNAMON ROLLS

1/2 cup milk 1/4 cup sugar 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/3 cup shortening 1/4 cup warm water (105° to 115°) 1 package active-dry yeast or 1 cake compressed yeast

2 eggs 21/2 to 3 cups sifted all-purpose

3/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed 1/3 cup raisins

1 teaspoon ground cinnamon 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

1. Combine milk, sugar, salt and shortening in small saucepan.

2. Place over low heat and heat to scalding-that is, just until bubbles appear around the edge.

3. Remove from heat and let stand to cool to lukewarm. To test it, put a drop on the inside of your wrist. It should feel neither hot nor cold.

4. Measure the warm water and put it into a warm bowl.

5. Sprinkle or crumble yeast into water. Stir to dissolve.

6. Add lukewarm milk mixture, eggs and 11/2 cups of flour. Beat until smooth.

7. Add enough of the remaining flour to make a dough that is easy to handle.

8. Turn out onto floured board. Dust your hands with a little flour. Shape dough into a rounded ball, then flatten it slightly.

9. Pick up edge of dough farthest from you and fold it toward you over the dough. Push the dough away from you with the heels of your hands using a rocking motion. Turn dough one-quarter turn around.

10. Repeat folding, pushing and turning 5 to 8 minutes or until dough looks full and rounded. smooth and elastic. You will see tiny bubbles under the surface and the dough will not stick to the board or your hands.

11. Put the dough into a large. greased bowl. Turn dough to bring the greased side up. The lightly greased top will stay soft and stretch easily as the dough rises. 12. Cover the bowl with a clean towel. Set it in a warm place (the temperature should be about 85°) free from drafts. (An easy way to do this is to set the bowl of dough on a rack on top of a bowl of hot water and cover both bowls with a towel.) Let dough rise 1 to 11/2 hours or until it is doubled in bulk.

13. To test for doubled in bulk, press the tips of two fingers quickly and lightly about 1/2 inch into the dough. If dent stays, dough is doubled. If the dent fills in at once, let dough rise 10 minutes longer and test again.

14. Push your fist into center of dough and punch down. Pull edges to center; turn dough over. 15. Turn dough out onto floured board. Knead to distribute any air bubbles. Let dough rest 5 minutes. 16. Grease a 9x11/2-inch pan. Mix sugar, raisins and cinnamon.

17. Roll dough out to a rectangle 15 inches long and 8 inches wide. Brush with melted butter or margarine. Sprinkle with brown-sugar mixture.

18. Roll dough up, jelly-roll fashion, from the 15-inch side. Pinch edges firmly to seal. Cut into 12 equal slices.

19. Place slices, cut sides down, in prepared pan. Cover with towel. Let rise in warm place about 1 hour or until doubled in bulk.

20. Bake at 375° for 20 to 25 minutes or until done.

21. Remove from oven. Remove buns from pan and place on wire rack to cool. Makes 1 dozen.

Kraft Dinners: great ideas for good cooks on a budget.

Sausage can be defined as chopped or ground beef, pork, lamb or veal, often combined, with various seasonings and spices. Sausages differ from each other not only in the meats and spices used but also in the processing. The latter is the method used to classify sausage. The following will help you understand the world of sausage and aid you in your selection.

Fresh sausage is made from selected cuts of fresh, uncured meats, chiefly pork and beef. They should be kept refrigerated (1 week is the recommended storage time) and must be cooked before serving. Some of the varieties are:

Fresh smoked sausage is, as the name implies, smoked but not cooked. It, too, must be refrigerated and thoroughly cooked before eating. Store it no more than 1 week. Examples are: Country-style pork sausage Mettwurst Romanian sausage

Cooked sausage is made basically from fresh meats, though sometimes cured meats are used. They are thoroughly cooked and ready to eat but should be refrigerated. They will keep for 2 weeks. Included in this classification are:

Liver sausage Blutwurst Beer salami Braunschweiger Veal sausage

Cooked smoked sausage is prepared from fresh meats that have been both cooked and smoked. They are ready to eat, though many improve in flavor if heated. They can be kept, refrigerated, for two weeks. The two most popular ones in this group are the frankfurter or weiner and bologna. Others are:

Knackwurst Berliner Mortadella Vienna sausage Kielbasa Smoked links

Cocktail-style franks

Dry and semidry sausage is made from selected meats and prepared by means of a complicated and carefully controlled drying process. They are ready to eat and will keep 2 to 3 weeks if refrigerated.

Some examples are:

Chorizos Summer sausage Cappicola Cervelat Italian, German and Pepperoni Hungarian salami

Bring to boiling, stirring frequently. Add corn and sausages. Cover. Simmer 10 minutes. Stir in cream and parsley. Bring back to boiling. Correct seasoning to taste. Makes 6 servings.

KNOW YOUR ORANGES

Navel: This orange, easy to peel and section, is large and seedless with a thick, pebbly skin. It is a favorite for eating out of hand.

Valencia: This medium-tolarge orange with a smooth, thin skin and few seeds is ideal for juice and for sectioning.

Hamlin: This somewhat small, oval-shaped, thin-skinned orange is usually seedless and is excellent for juice.

Parson Brown: This large orange has a thin, pebbly, deepyellow skin often tinged with green. It has few seeds and is very juicy.

Pineapple: This is a large orange with a smooth, deep-orange skin. Almost seedless, it is very juicy.

Temple: Though called an orange, this is a tangerine. It is sweet, easy to peel and has an average of one seed per segment.

SAVING GRACES

Breakfast: the smart beginning. Are you and your family breakfast skippers or skimpers? And yet you're concerned about nutrition? This meal is without doubt the keystone of the day's nutrition picture. No one would consider driving a car with insufficient gas, but many think nothing of starting a day's activities, whether at home, school or office, without providing enough fuel for the body to function well.

A good breakfast depends not on what foods you eat but on the nutrients you get from them. What you eat for breakfast should provide you with one-fourth to onethird of the body's daily energy needs-i.e., calorie intake. You should include something from at least three of the four basic food groups: breads and cereals; fruits and vegetables; meat, poultry, fish and meat alternates, such as eggs and peanut butter; milk and milk products. Why not add a little novelty to your breakfast menu with cottage cheese, sliced tomato and whole-wheat bread? Or let a teen-ager eat a hamburger with all the trimmings on a bun and, say, peaches and cream. Strange? Maybe, but both will insure a good nutritional start for the day. Though some of your child's choices may seem far out to you, don't discourage him from varying the breakfast routine. What he selects will be bad only if it falls short of nutritional standards-just give him a little guidance.

Mayonnaise or salad dressing: What's the difference? Scanning the jars on the market shelf often brings up this question. Mayonnaise and salad dressing look alike in the jar and recipes normally call for substituting one for the other. The only difference seems to be in the price, with mayonnaise the more expensive.

First, their points of similarity. Both are classified as "spoonable" dressings, as opposed to dressings that pour. Spoonables are carefully blended with other ingredients in a salad or used as a binder in sandwich spreads and casseroles. They are somewhat alike in consistency but the difference lies in their formulas and flavors. Both may be kept on the shelf until opened and then refrigerated.

Mayonnaise is a creamy, uncooked dressing or sauce and consists of egg yolks, oil, seasonings and vinegar or lemon juice. In preparing it, the eggs and oil are beaten continuously to form a stable emulsion and make a smooth, homogeneous dressing. It has more eggs and oil than salad dressing and this accounts for its higher price.

Salad dressing is traditionally a cooked sauce made with egg yolks, oil, a starch paste, plus spice for extra flavor.

The two dressings can be used interchangeably, though many prefer the richer, more delicate flavor of mayonnaise in tartar sauce, green-goddess dressing or in spice and herb sauces, while using salad dressing to coat, bind or top a salad. Your budget, personal taste and the use to which you put the dressing should be your buying guide.

What we strove for was the built in look of uniformity and minimal space consumption plus the portability of ordinary furniture. Our living room, an all-purpose area in terms of living, dining and working, we furnished with cushions, tables, chairs and shelves. The varisized polyure-thane cushions, positioned for seats, backrests and foot rests, march down one wall as a super sofa. Not only do the cushions camouflage open storage behind them, but they also provide for comfortable lounging or sleep-over guests. Joshua and Reven use them as building blocks or string them out as mats for tumbling. The cushions, covered in a nylon-and-wool blend, were relatively inexpensive—$712 for all 22 of them—and they are practical because they can be reversed when they begin to wear.

Rather than fill up precious space with coffee tables or end tables, we built a shelf behind the cushions as a display ledge. By putting our art here rather than hanging it, we're able to change it as often as we like without making new holes in the wall.

We lined up three 5-foot tables with plastic tops as a place where we could work, dine or set our plant garden. The tables work as well for a family dinner as they do for a dinner party for 16. And the children revel in having all that space to spread out projects or puzzles.

Our storage needs were taken care of by standard industrial metal shelf units, sprayed white. The shelves closest to the dining table serve as a bar, sideboard and wine cellar. Others hold hi-fi equipment, recording tapes and books. Four chrome Luxo lamps, mounted on wheels and trailing long, coiled industrial cords, give the kind of flexible lighting we need since they can be moved and plugged in anywhere. As the children get older, or as we find our own activities change, the room can be adapted easily. All the furnishings, including the shelving units, are movable. A warm gray was chosen for the cushions, chairs, tables and shelf tops; as a backdrop, its neutral shade best accentuates people, our plants and our art.

The bedrooms we decided to make into two private havens. The boys' room was divided into two separate, equal-sized areas with metal shelving units sprayed white. To give the room greater light and air, we chose a shelving unit that stops short of the ceiling. Some of the shelves have closed backs that house each boy's private treasures; others have open backs to hold toys, books and collections that both of them use. Metal desks and beds that double as couches complete the room. We use our bedroom for lounging, working and sewing, too. Rather than fill up the space with chests, we put metal office desk-and-drawer units along one wall to serve as a work-sewing center.

All things considered—the flexibility of our furnishings in meeting the needs of an active family and the fun of putting it all together—the expense was surprisingly modest.

tile in my bathroom, but find that only half of them will stay up. The other half simply refuse to stay in place no matter how much glue I use. Should I try another type of glue?

New York, N.Y.

Since some of the hooks have stayed up, the problem is with the surfaces on which the troublesome hooks were mounted. Roughen these surfaces with coarse emery cloth or sandpaper, then try again with the same glue. If you find the tile surfaces hard to roughen by hand, try a sanding disc on an electric drill.

FACIAL SOAP CLEANS ANTIQUES

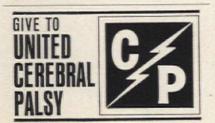

We recently inherited from my grandmother a lovely old chest of drawers with detailed carving. It is a dark, reddish wood—possibly mahogany—and in places it is veneered. The wood is very dry and needs cleaning. Can you tell me how to go about cleaning it? Also, how can we prevent further drying and deterioration of the wood?

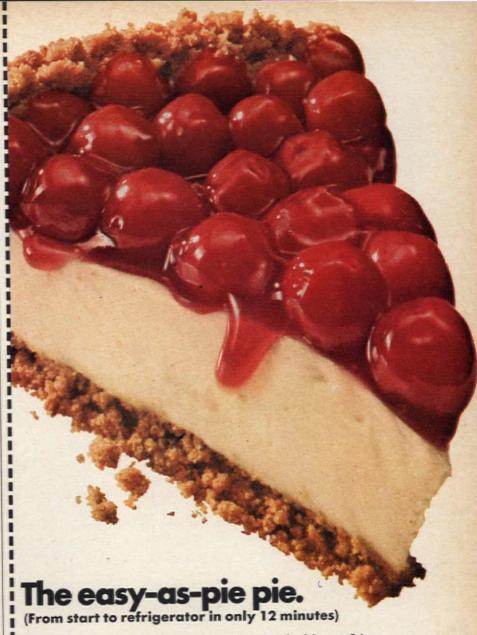

Windsor, Conn.

For cleaning, we suggest a solution of mild facial soap and water. Do not use a laundry or dish-washing detergent. On flat areas, use a soft rag to apply the solution. The carved areas will require a toothbrush and/or a cotton swab. In very tight corners, the dirt may have to be picked out with the point of a sharpened stick.

To prevent further drying of the wood, apply a light spray of lemon oil, crude-oil compound or other furniture spray that does not contain wax. If the wood dries out immediately after spraying, spray again and repeat until the wood looks normal. In the future, spray the chest whenever the wood begins to look dry.

Does talking to plants help their growth? Many plant lovers think so. There do appear to be two benefits from talking to plants. The first is that daytime talks give the plant carbon dioxide needed for photosynthesis. The second is that polite plant growers will look at their plants when they talk to them. And if invasions by insects and fungi are seen and caught early, a quick spray will probably solve the problem. Anyone can have houseplants that thrive. A little care and some understanding of their needs are all that is necessary.

Choosing the right plants. Proper selection and display of plants can delight both the amateur decorator and indoor gardener. Choose plants with an eye for overall scale, the size and shape of the leaves, as well as their texture and color. However, don't make the mistake of buying plants only for their good looks. Match the varieties you choose to the growing conditions in your apartment, insuring that they have similar requirements for soil, light and water.

Light. The need for light by a particular plant changes according to the variety, its age, daily temperature fluctuations, the time of year, and the part of the country you live in. Yellow, scorched or burned leaves probably indicate too much sun. Pale, spindly plants show a need for more light.

Most flowering plants need a few hours of sun in order to bloom and do best with a southern or eastern exposure. But there are shade lovers, like begonias, that are happy in indirect light and should actually be kept out of direct sunlight. Plants will do well even in areas which receive little or no light if you put them under fluorescent tubes. There are two or three types on the market especially designed for growing houseplants, but a common daylight type of fluorescent will also work. For best results, the fixture should be placed about 12 inches above the top of the plants.

Temperature. If the temperature in your apartment is comfortable for you, it should also please your plants.

Most plants prefer a cooler temperature at night than during the day, but, like people, they are not likely to thrive in cold drafts.

Humidity. The level of humidity in the air has much to do with your plants' success. If your apartment is very dry in winter, try grouping plants in a tray on a bed of pebbles or sand and keeping this area moist. Plants, a gregarious lot, get along better when they have company. Clustered together, they create a microclimate that will have higher humidity than the rest of a room. Misting of leaves with water is another way to counteract the dry atmosphere of most apartments. In addition to improving plant environment, by massing plants you will heighten their effect in a room.

Watering. Most houseplants die from watering—too much or too little. Because of too many variables, there are no hard and fast rules about when t water. Plants need more water during hot weather and pea periods of growth, less if they are in shade rather than direct sun. Even the type of container they are in affects water requirements. Plants in porous, unglazed clay pots, for instance require more water than those in glazed or plastic pots.

Watering is strictly a matter of common sense. If the soi looks and feels dry, the plant needs moisture. Remember dryness to the point that the leaves wilt is harmful. At the other extreme, very few plants can survive if their roots stand in water for long periods. Shower small plants in a tub or sink and sponge off leaves of large specimens. Provided there is adequate drainage, one good dousing with the water at room temperature is better than repeated light applications.

Removing yellowing and dying leaves will also help the plant. If a plant is not doing well, it may need more or less water. Perhaps a move to a sunnier or shadier spot is in order. Experiment a little. Don't wait until the plant is nearly dead before you decide to help it.

Feeding. Houseplants should be fed once or twice a month with a diluted liquid fertilizer. It is important to follow the instructions carefully, applying the fertilizer when the soil is slightly moist.

Vacation care. If you can't recruit a reliable neighbor or friend to water your plants while you're away, there are several ways to care for them without a plant-sitter. One method is to place your small plants in a bathtub padded with a half inch or so of moisture-saturated newspaper. You can also buy one of the many automatic watering devices on the market. However, make sure you choose one that does not just saturate the soil. Too much moisture cuts off the supply of oxygen at the roots and will bring your plants to a watery end.

Another method of vacation-time care is to place your plants in a plastic bag such as those obtainable from the dry cleaners. Give them a good watering first and then seal the bag tightly to retard evaporation. By doing this, water will not be needed for a week or two. And, whatever you do, don't put the bag in direct sunlight or your plants will stew while you're away.

Growing plants successfully may be more difficult for the high-rise gardener than it is for his suburbanite brethren, but with careful choosing, patience and proper care, any cliff-dweller can have a thriving indoor garden that a country squire would envy—even in the darkened depths of a back apartment on the 15th floor.

DEAR AMERICAN HOME

FIRST HOMES FIRST

I enjoy much of AH, yet "Haven in New England Snows" and "3-Family Co-op in Western Ski Country" [December '70], I feel, are only for the very small number of families interested. And for every family who owns a second home there are no doubt a thousand reader families who are simply hoping to improve their present homes in an interesting and economical way.

Mrs. Kenneth Cooke Kokomo, Ind.

You're right. Many of our readers are not second-home owners, but the imaginative design and versatility in function of both these houses can be translated into ideas for first-home owners, too.

CHRISTMAS ALL THROUGH THE HOUSE

"Christmas with the Skitch Hendersons" [December '70 AH] really set my family in motion. We've got enough projects in the works now to keep us going through next Thanksgiving. Thank you and the Hendersons for the inspiration. We enjoyed making ours an old-fashioned Christmas.

> Mrs. Richard Lucy Lebanon, N.H.

THE PLUMB LINE: CHEERS AND JEERS

My congratulations on The Plumb Line. AH, which by its very nature encourages acquisition and consumption, must continue to make its readers aware of environmental problems. Keep up the good efforts.

> (Mrs.) Carolee S. Hoffmeyer Chelsea, Mich.

I read with interest "Sounds of Silence" in The Plumb Line [December '70 AH]. Mr. Donley did not consult this consumer. If he had, he would have found that I, like most others I know, dislike noises from appliances, even if they are slight.

Among the most annoying are electric clocks that hum or click, some sewing machines -and vacuum cleaners! This last is such a grievance to me that although my cleaner is still quite new and works well, I would replace it if I could buy a noiseless one. I suggest that manufacturers not rely on theoreticians like Mr. Donley and do some research among those who actually use the appliances.

> (Mrs.) Kitty Byk Dresher, Pa.

A MATTER OF TASTE

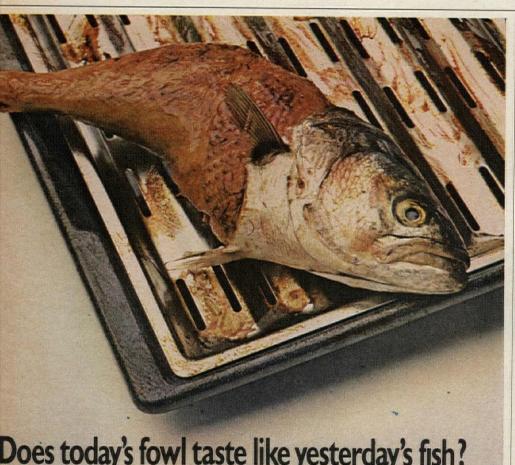

My compliments to Chef Jacques Jaffrey for his "Cooking Lessons," which are extremely clear and always work out successfully. Most of the dishes, though, seem to be French. How about giving some other great national dishes their due? Hungary's Dobostorte, for example. Chinese Lemon Chicken? German Sauerbraten and Potato Dumpling?

> Mrs. Frederick Halsey Syracuse, N.Y.

Yes, Jacques is French and his cooking reflects this. But he can turn his talents to all kinds of cuisines. We would welcome other readers' suggestions for great dishes they would like to see presented in simple, step-by-step pictures.

Letters to the editors should be addressed to Dear American Home, 641 Lexington Ave.,

IT PAYS TO READ THE LABEL

What's inside the can of food you buy—besides the product often so handsomely pictured on the label? Become a shopper who always reads the fine print and you'll be a better informed and thriftier consumer. Federal laws demand that the labels of all canned goods for interstate distribution specify a list of facts all aimed at giving you, the consumer, products of dependable quality and allowing you to get what you want.

The label on a can has these nine basic facts to help you:

- The product name must be printed clearly in a readable type size.
 - 2) The variety, style and packing mixture must be included on the label. This is to let you know, for example, whether corn is cream-style or whole-kernel or whether fruit is packed in water, light syrup or heavy syrup.

3) The can's net contents are listed. Those with weights of from 1 to 4 pounds and volumes of 1 pint to 1 gallon must list their contents in ounces, followed parenthetically by the appropriate whole-unit measure with remainders in fractions or ounces—e.g., 17 ounces (1 pound 1 ounce). With this information you know precisely how much you are getting for your money.

4) The name, address and zip code of the manufacturer, packer or distributor must appear to give you the identity and mailing address of the firm responsible for the product.

- 5) A listing of dietary properties must also be included on the label. This helps those who need special foods, such as salt-free vegetables or fruits packed with artificial sweeteners, and distinguishes the product from other styles of pack.
- 6) If any artificial color or preservative has been added to the food, it must say so on the label. Many products could not be produced without food additives, for they help maintain a food's color, flavor and texture.
- 7) If the quality of a product falls below federally regulated standards, the label must tell you so. A can of unevenly trimmed pears, for example, may be quite acceptable to you for they are perfectly wholesome, but the law states the label must tell you what you are buying.
- 8) Whether the product is domestic or imported, the label must include the required information in English.
- 9) The label will ordinarily list the ingredients in the product in descending order, according to the amounts used. The exceptions will be those products for which the Government has set up "standards of identity," a list of the item's basic ingredients which need not appear on the label. However, optional ingredients approved by the Government, such as salt, will be mentioned because you might need to know what they are or prefer a product without them.

These are the minimum label requirements. But many canners provide much more information, to give you all the help they can. You will often find some or all of the following: a picture of the product; the brand name that helps identify a product you have tried and liked; the size or degree of maturity, as in the case of peas, so you can buy according to your flavor preference; color; degree of seasoning; a statement on the number of cups of the product the can contains; and directions for using the product successfully.

Canners are anxious to give you what you want. Let them know if a label needs improvement. To them, it's you, the informed consumer, who counts. END

A boy, a girl, high and dry 'neath giant umbrella. Reproduced a silver-toned music box, anion a silver-toned music box, animating the awarding-winning melody, "Raindrops Keep Falling On My Head." A handsome lad, a winsome lass, sheltered from a sudden shower beneath a big umbrella. So authentic, so fine is the craftsmanship and detailing, the children, in colorful Alpine attire, seem to be waiting patiently for the clusive sun to shine again. LIVE LONGER AND BETTER one Of The Healthiest, Sunniest Climates In All America—Deming, New Mexico!

Your Own Ranchette Just $349-Only 6 a Month!

(*See Below)

Do you know people who wake up to sunshine 355 days out of each year . . . people who don't know what it is to be oppressed by humid heat in the summer or by the cold clutch of winter damp? Do you know people who can say that in their State the rate of cancer and heart disease is half of what the Nation as a whole faces? Do you know people to whom a suntan is a year 'round commonplace? We know such people. They live in New Mexico.

There isn't a place on earth where the air is purer, where body health is more lavishly bestowed. No place where the words at the top of this page — live longer and better — fit more than they do in New Mexico.

And in all New Mexico itself it would be difficult to match the climate and beauty of the region surrounding Deming. As spectacular as the northern portion, but without the cold of winter. As dry and pure as Arizona, but not as hot in the summer. And, as actively vigorous and prosperous as the city you now live in, yet without the fever, without the tension.

To live anywhere in New Mexico is to live better. The superb climate, naturally air-conditioned in the summer and brilliantly sunny in the winter—the breathtaking beauty of a lavish Nature—the young vigor of a state that is causing a business and investment boom—these are the reasons that tens of thousands of Americans already have come here to live.

Consider then: Here in the center of this miraculous climate and beauty are towns which have grown amazingly in the last few years. Las Cruces, for example: In 1950 it had 12,000 people. By 1960, 37,000 . . a rise of 300% in 10 years—and still growing. Like Tucson and Phoenix, this area has the same desert allure, where pure air, pure drinking water permits lovely towns to flourish. Statistics show the same 85% of possible sunshine, summer and winter, of Phoenix and Tucson.

of possible sunshine, summer and winter, of Phoenix and Tucson.

Beginning 3½ miles from the flavorful city of Deming (population 8,500) are 24,000 acres of former ranches whose farthest boundary is 28 miles from town. Spectacularly set off by the breathtaking Florida Mountains, this land is so typical of the romance of the southwest that it has been photographed for the covers of many magazines. In this lovely basin every DEMING RANCHETTE fronts graded earth roads already dedicated to Luna County in widths of 50 and 80 feet. Every Ranchette has direct access to avenues leading to three major highways—U.S. Highways 80, 70 and brand new Interstate 10.

DEMING is blessed with water which is called "America's finest drinking water, 99.99% pure." There are homes already built on DEMING RANCHETTES and they all have electricity. When you are ready to build your new home, electricity will be made available to you. Schools, hospitals, churches, shops, movies, golf course, tennis courts—are all located in the growing city of Deming. Fertile soil is yours for the planting. Almost everything will grow here when watered—fruits, vegetables, flowers, trees.

Deming's friendliness captivates the fancy of people from every state in the Union. To visit us is like going back to the warmth of one's own family. Here are the practical benefits of living anywhere near Deming.

GOLF—The Rio Members Country Club Golf Course is right in Deming itself. It is a beautiful course with the Florida Mountains towering in the background. You play 12 months a year and green fees are very reasonable.

HUNTING AND FISHING—What are you after? Deer, antelope, wild turkey? Or maybe bear mountain lion? Well, you can get deer, quail and big jack-rabbits right in your own backyard, in the Floridas. For really big game, and great fishing, try the Gila National Forest 60 miles directly north. Almost 2,000,000 acres set aside for camping, hunting and fishing. Just 65 miles to the northeast is the Dam-Elephant Butte Reservoir, the second largest man-made lake in the United States where you can boat, fish, swim or go water skiing.

boat, fish, swim or go water skiing.

HORSEBACK RIDING—You'll find the Florida Mountains enthralling.

Bring along a treasure pouch and join other rockhounds seeking amethyst,

INVESTMENT — More than 18,000 people have bought Ranchettes through the mail and on site.

The new U.S. Interstate 10 is now being built with interchanges right in the heart of Deming. Consider other developments such as the new Retirement Home and the new road being built from Palomas, Mexico (33 miles south of Deming) into the interior of Mexico and you will agree with us that Deming has a tremendous future.

And the price of your Ranchette? Just $349 for a full half-acre and low monthly payments of $6, including interest at the annual percentage rate of 6%. At this moment you may reserve as many half-acre sites as you wish but please bear this in mind: DEMING RANCHETTES is not an enormous development and land such as this goes fast. At these prices, you may want your Ranchette to be larger — one, two — even five acres. Send for your free color kit now. After you have studied the material sent you and discussed it with your friends or relatives, you may reserve as many acres as you wish. And you take no risk. Your reservation does not obligate you. You have the unqualified right to change your mind within 45 days after we send your Purchaser's Agreement, Property Owner's Kit, Maps and Photographs — 15 days to go through the portfolio, check our references, talk it over with the family. If, during that time, you should change your mind your reservation will be cancelled with absolutely no obligation. Then you have an ADDITIONAL 30 DAYS AFTER you have made your first monthly payment to change your mind and request a full refund of every dollar you have paid in. If this makes sense mail the coupon today.

Unpaid balance is scheduled at 67 monthly payments of $6 and 1 monthly payment of $2.95 for each ½ acre, payments including interest at the annual percentage rate of 6% resulting in a finance charge of $61.95, and a total of payments of $404.95, or a deferred payment price of $410.95. NOTE: If you order 2 half acres (1 acre), double all of the above figures except the period of repayment will remain the same. For 3 half-acres (1½ acres), triple the above figures, etc.

WHY RIP UP YOUR LAWN? PLUG IN ZOYSIA GRASS

By Mike Senkiw

people pour more and more money into their lawns. They dig. fertilize and lime. They rake it all in. They scatter their seed and roll and water it.
Birds love it! Seeds which aren't washed away by rain give them a feast. But some seed grows, and soon it's time soon it's time to weed, water and mow, mow, mow. . . . until summer comes to burn the lawn into hay, or crabgrass and diseases infest it.

That's what happens to ordinary grass, but not to Zoysia. Your Zoysia lawn drives out crabgrass and weeds all summer. It stays green and beautiful in bilistering heat. It cuts mowing % . . . it's perfect for summer homes and "problem areas."

There's no need to rip up your old grass. Just plug in my Zoysia, let it spread into turf like a beautiful, thick, pile carpet. Won't heat or winter kill, merely goes off its green color after heavy frosts, regains fresh new beauty every spring—never needs replacement! Every plug fully guaranteed to grow in any soll in your area.

To end lawn problems, send for free interesting facts and low prices of Meyer Z-52 Zoysta including Pre-Season Bonus Offer. No obligation.
