The Celebrating Victorian Revival

Surging popularity of Victorian styles is a tribute to the impact of the historic preservation movement. It has led to an explosive increase in suppliers of historical products — and to a rising number of new Victorian buildings.

BY CLEM LABINE

Back in 1973, when I founded The Old-House Journal, the term "Victorian" was a synonym for bad taste. Victorian houses were deemed white elephants; magazines such as House Beautiful were filled with articles titled: "Gloomy Old Victorian Transformed Into Cheerful Contemporary Home."

What a reversal of fortune! Today, Victorian styling is one of the main fashion trends in America. Developers find that neo-Victorian homes are among their best sellers. The new Victorian cottages and the 19th-century layout of Seaside, Fla., have triggered a reappraisal of traditional architectural values. Shelter magazines of today are more likely to feature a tasteful restoration than a remuddling "makeover."

In this Special Issue, we're saluting the Victorian Revival in both of its manifestations: The restoration of 19th-century Victorian buildings and the construction of new, neo-Victorian structures. While the technology and design philosophy of restoration is quite different from new construction, the same Victorian Revival products are used in both applications.

Explosive Growth Since 1976

The Victorian Revival has been a major factor in the amazing growth of the historical products market. In 1976, when I published the first census of the Historical Products Industry, there were only 205 companies whose products could be considered historically styled. Today, there are nearly 3,000 historical products suppliers — and the list is growing too rapidly to publish in book form. Instead, we keep track of those 3,000 companies in our on-line database. (The Victorians — those worshipers of scientific progress — would applaud our using the latest data-processing technology to document reproducers of their designs.)

The story of Bradbury & Bradbury Wallpapers (opposite page) typifies the blossoming of the Victorian Revival. The company didn't even exist in 1976. But today, Bradbury & Bradbury is one of the leading suppliers of documentary papers, and its designs show up not only in a vast number of 19th-century restorations and contemporary interiors, but also in countless magazine photos, television commercials, and motion picture sets.

The last decade and a half also saw a radical change in where and how historical products are used. Many of today's major suppliers started out selling architectural salvage items to restoration projects. But as restoration became more popular — and as competition increased for the dwindling supply of antique originals — many salvage dealers began to sell and/or manufacture reproductions. Today, many producers of historical reproductions find that more than 50% of their output is going into new construction, as opposed to rehab and restoration.

Another consequence of the Victorian Revival has been the rebirth of traditional craft skills. In painted finishes, for example, 15 years ago the art of marbleizing, stencilling, and graining had virtually vanished — surviving mainly among theatrical set decorators. For instance, when the interior of The Athenaeum of Philadelphia was re-grained in the 1970's, the project director, Roger Moss, had to recruit a grainer from England. But today, there are at least 35 U.S. grainers on file in our database — and probably triple the number that haven't officially recorded.

To get skilled craftspeople today, you don't have to go overseas, or hope that you can find a retired worker who hasn't forgotten trade secrets learned long ago. Thanks to the growth of the preservation movement, it is now possible to assemble teams of skilled American workers — many of them young — to undertake complex historical jobs like the restoration of the Michigan State Capitol (TB, May/June '90, p. 3).

Victorian Revival Design: From Sublime To GAU

Another fascinating aspect of the Victorian Revival is the emergence of a new "historical" style: The neo-Victorian. The new structures being built in the Victorian manner aren't slavish copies of the 19th century originals — just as Victorian buildings of the 1800's weren't slavish copies of the historical styles on which they were based.

There have been few serious critiques of the new neo-Victorian designs. The analysis by John Crosby Freeman on page 37 is one of the first attempts to apply critical analysis to this new genre. John uses his perspective as an architectural historian to evaluate the current crop of neo-Victorian house plans being offered by the mail-order plan services.

To my eye, there is a wide divergence in the quality of neo-Victorian design; some of it I find delightful. But most, in my opinion, runs from mediocre to GAU — god-awful ugly (a style terminology originated by Whitman Ball). Part of the unfortunate design is inevitable; there have been unskilled designers in every era. But another portion of the bad design is just lack of practice: Most of today's designer's simply aren't comfortable manipulating Victorian motifs. But this should improve with time and practice. In 1830, at the start of the Gothic Revival, most of the new Gothic buildings looked rather stiff and awkward. By 1860, however, there was a whole new generation of architects who were fluent in the Gothic idiom and who produced magnificent neo-Gothic compositions.

As far as Victorian Revival goes, I believe we're at the same stage as the Gothic Revival in 1830. There are some brilliant times ahead. ♦

Who And What's In This Special Issue

Suppliers of historical products have grown so numerous that it's impossible to provide a complete inventory of all Victorian Revival products in an issue of this size. If we tried to publish all the information on all 19th-century building products in our 3,000-company database, we couldn't afford to mail the issue!

To keep the task manageable, we sent a questionnaire to the 3,000 companies in our file, asking them which of their 19th-century products they felt were most newsworthy. From the replies to this questionnaire, the editors selected the items we believed most useful. The end result is a "Greatest Hits Of The Victorian Revival." — CL

BRUCE BRADBURY: Victorian Visionary

The success of Bradbury & Bradbury is the story of the Victorian Revival in microcosm.

His bearded blonde visage has graced publications around the country; his ever-expanding line of Victorian-inspired wallpapers appears in new buildings and restorations from New York to New Zealand, and he has preached the gospel of Victorian Revival to design professionals and homeowners for a decade. Low-key, charming, and thoughtful, Bruce Bradbury has made his success seem predestined; but the real story is more turbulent. The proprietor of Bradbury & Bradbury Art Wallpapers faced many bleak moments in his rise to the top.

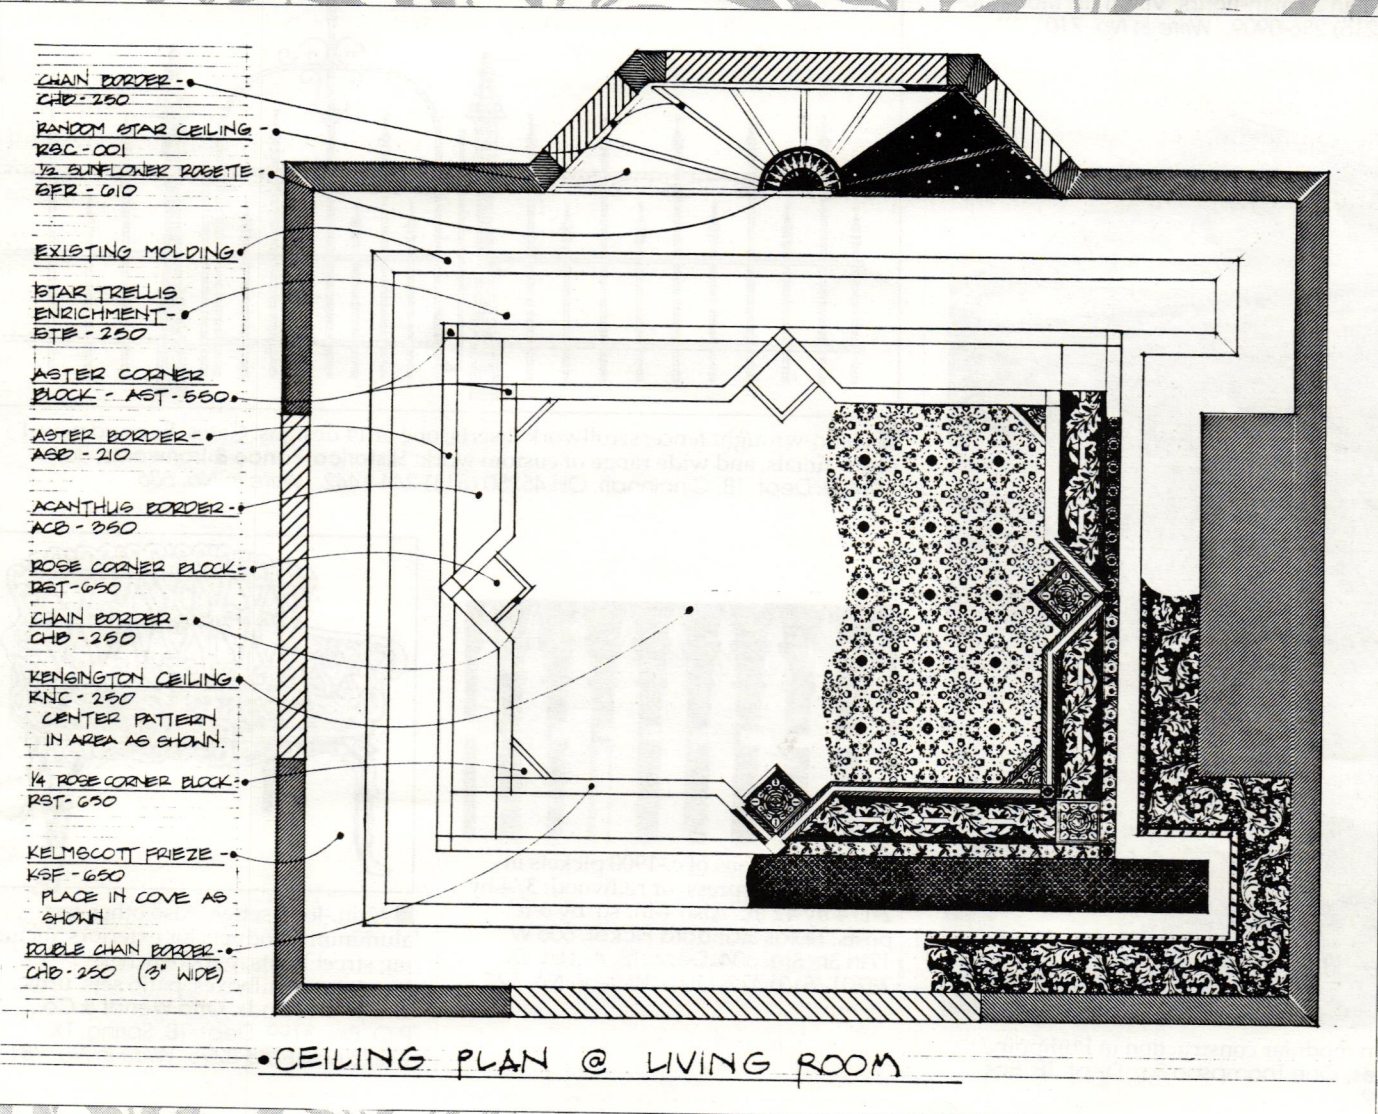

Certainly no one aware of his family tree would have guessed he would someday turn into a successful wallpaper visionary. "I'm a genetic mutation," he says. Born 43 years ago, he descends from Maine potato farmers. As a self-described "introverted, other-worldly kid" he dreamed at night of glorious rooms full of ornament; and at 13, he saw his first tangible representation of his fantasies: A Rosetti painting in a book in the school library. "I just lost it totally. I decided this is the way things should look," he recalls. His parents humored him. "They were sure I would settle down and be a lawyer or doctor someday; there's a long tradition of tolerance for eccentricity in New England."

He did not, of course, settle down. After four miserable years at "ye olde strict-y boarding school" in New Hampshire, he tried an alternative college in Florida for a year, and then set off on a decade of wandering. "I just wanted to taste the world," he says. He settled first in San Francisco, after what was meant to be a brief visit.

"We drove along Haight Street at sunset, and there were all these Pre-Raphaelite-esque girls in long flowing gowns," he remembers, his voice growing dreamy. "All my life I'd felt like someone from another planet, and suddenly I was thinking, 'Whoa, this is the planet I'm from.'" He worked happily for a few months as a janitor and left town just as the atmosphere started to sour. "Heavy drugs came in," he says, "and people weren't sharing anymore, they were stealing." He fled first to England, where he discovered the Tate Gallery's Pre-Raphaelite art collection and the William Morris house museum. "It wasn't a revelation to me at all when I got there and found out Morris did wallpaper," he says. "It just made so much sense."

For the next few years he shuttled between increasingly exotic places like Egypt, India and Crete and low-level jobs in Florida, where he earned enough to pay for his travels. Everywhere he went, he added to his mental storehouse images he would later apply to walls, and he always managed a stopover in London to visit the Victoria & Albert: "The papers there, oh god, they put me into a hypnotic dream state. I felt I could absorb them into my bloodstream." But not until he found himself stranded in an abandoned Himalayan village in

■ Part of the restoration of this 1854 Victorian house in La Crosse, WI, involved relining the chimneys with the poured-in-place Ahrens system. The cementitious lining not only made old chimneys safe for burning wood, but also restored structural integrity to deteriorated masonry. Ahrens Chimney Technique, Inc., 2000 Industrial Ave., Dept. TB, Sioux Falls, SD 57104 (800) 843-4417. Write in No. 244

■ For the Reading Terminal Head House, Philadelphia, the architectural joint venture of Bower, Lewis, Thrower/Cope Linder Associates with historic preservation consultant John Milner Associates specified cast stone extensively, including simulated granite cornice and simulated terra cotta elements. The Cast Stone Institute publishes a very helpful manual for designing and specifying cast stone. Cast Stone Institute, Pavilions at Greentree, Suite 408, Dept. TB, State Highway 70, Marlton, NJ 08053 (609) 858-0271. Write in No. 647

■ Detailing on this segmental arch uses handmade shapes from Glen-Gery. The firm has an extensive selection of customized and handmade elements that allow designers to replicate many traditional architectural styles. Glen-Gery Brick, 1166 Spring St., Dept. TB, Wyomissing, PA 19601 (215) 374-4011

■ Bluestone flagging can be used for traditional-looking terraces, chimney caps, and interior floors. Pennsylvania Bluestone comes in a wide range of pastel shades: Steel blues, mixed grays, light grays, buffs, pheasant, brown, and rusty variations. Robinson Flagstones, P.O. Box 208, Dept. PRESERVING OUR PAST AND BUILDING THE FUTURE HISTORICAL ARTS & CASTING

Over a century ago, craftsmen fashioned cast metal into elegant store fronts, grand entrances, canopies, light fixtures, furniture, fountains and a number of other architectural details.

A hundred years later, designers and craftsman at Historical Arts & Casting are creating traditional cast metal ornamentation with the same care as their predecessors in iron, bronze and aluminum.

COLUMNS — Schwerd columns are durable. Our 120+ years of experience in manufacturing wood columns has proven that the durability of a wood column depends upon the strength of the joint and the quality and thickness of the wood. Schwerd column construction was developed to meet each specific requirement. The wood is thoroughly seasoned Northern White Pine. The pride of craftsmanship and skilled techniques acquired by 120 years of specialized experience is applied. The resulting product is a "Schwerd Quality Column" specified by architects with complete confidence. Both standard and detail columns can be furnished from 4 in. to 50 in. in diameter and up to 35 ft. in length with matching pilasters.

RESCUE DETERIORATED MATERIALS WITH ABATRON PRODUCTS

Here are 3 uses for Abatron's Restoration Products. If you've got a different problem, call us. It's likely we have a formulation that will do the job.

■ WOOD RESTORATION

LiquidWood and WoodEpoxy give new life to severely rotted window sill, sash, frames, shutters, columns, decorative wood elements. The Abatron system is especially valuable when original wood must be saved for historic reasons. LiquidWood consolidant reinforces and waterproofs by hardening after penetrating*. WoodEpoxy is a structural adhesive putty that fills, repairs, and replaces missing wood. It can be sanded, milled, stained, etc., like wood.

■ CONCRETE RESTORATION

ABOCRETE: A patching and resurfacing cement/grout structurally and chemically superior to concrete. Welds permanently to concrete, metal and wood. Patches & resurfaces floors, driveways, work areas, structures, columns, decks, corroded pitted and spalled surfaces for industrial, marine, institutional and residential uses. ABOCAST: A family of solventless resurfacing materials. ABOCOAT: The toughest protective coatings. Special versions available for applications in subfreezing weather.

■ CRACK-INJECTION

ABOJET: Series of structural crack-injection resins is a proven method to restore structural integrity to cracked load-bearing elements, such as foundations, abutments, swimming pools, concrete pipes, columns, and sculptures. ABOJET resin is injected into the crack, filling and welding it. ABOJET makes a permanent bond that is stronger than concrete. Besides concrete, ABOJET can weld masonry, marble, stone, wood, ceramics, metals, stucco, and gypsum.

◆ Call or write for additional information on these cost-effective restoration materials.

THE LIBRARY PANEL

is manufactured with premium grade hardwood veneers over a lauan platform with 50# MDF stiles and rails. Each of the recessed panels is moulded with solid hardwood inside cove moulding pinned in place. Stiles and rails are bonded to the platform with adhesive only. Outside stiles are three inches wide, central stiles are six inches wide. Stiles are laid out on sixteen inch centers. All four rails are eight inches wide.

The panel is available in two sizes and four species. In addition to the four by eight foot panel shown, a four foot wide by twenty-nine and one eighth inch high wainscot panel is available in Red Oak, Cherry, Honduras Mahogany, and Walnut. All veneers are sliced to domestic thicknesses.

Panels are manufactured oversized and routed back to square. Butted edges do not require battens or moulding when installed with care. For a free brochure, and the distributor nearest you, contact Bill Powell at 1-800-626-1981.

EPO-TEK 301 and 301-2 epoxies dry clear and hard to repair or restore valuable antiques and artifacts without altering the original piece.

Its uses include (but are not limited to) restoration or repair of wood, ceramics, stone, porcelain, china and glass. The epoxy can be used to coat surfaces or to penetrate and bond porous materials and cracks in nonporous materials.

Clear epoxies for repair or restoration.

Both are two part, optically transparent epoxy systems with very low viscosities (comparable to water), and room temperature cure. When cured, they become extremely strong, hard, clear plastics with excellent bond strength.

MOISTURE PROTECTION: Roofing & Siding

■ Hanging gutters on an old Victorian often results in ugly metal straps nailed directly into roofing. With "The Mole" hidden hanger attachment, which works with most flat strap sizes, hangers can be hidden under shingles. Yosi Manufacturing & Supply, P.O. Box 263, Dept. TB, Waterford, CT 06385 (800) 872-9678. Write in No. 786

■ Eagle plaque was created by The Cedar Guild in the Victorian tradition of cut shingle applique. Cedar Guild produces custom-cut cedar shakes & shingles; matching odd patterns, lengths, and thicknesses is a specialty. The Cedar Guild, 51579 Gates Bridge East, Dept. TB, Lyons, OR 97358 (503) 897-2541. Write in No. 674

■ Custom turret tile in extruded concrete creates appearance of natural slate at lower cost. Firm has several roof tile designs — with 7/8" butt thickness for strong shadow line — in 20 standard colors, plus custom colors. Vande Hey Raleigh, 1665 Bohm Drive, Dept. TB, Little Chute, WI 54140 (414) 766-1181

■ Diamond-pattern metal roofing shingles are made from original 19th-century dies. Shingles come in galvanized, paintgrip, copper, terne, or terne-coated stainless. Firm also manufactures a wide line of traditional metal gutters and leaders. Conklin Metal Industries, P.O. Box 1858, Dept. TB, Atlanta, GA 30301 (404) 688-4510

■ Solid redwood gutters can still be found; Blue Ox Millworks is one of the primary sources. Select from one of their 16 standard patterns, or they'll run gutters to match your profile. Blue Ox Millworks, Foot of X Street, Dept. TB, Eureka, CA 95501 (707) 444-3437

■ Fancy-butt Western Red Cedar hand-cut shingles can duplicate any roofing or siding found on 19th-century structures. These fancy-butt shingles are a nominal 5 in. wide, and 16 in. long. Pressure-treated fire-retardant units available. South Coast Shingle Co., 2220 E. South St., Dept. TB, Long Beach, CA 90805 (213) 634-7100. Write in No. 423

■ Crown Molding provides a traditional-looking finishing touch to roof edges. Available in copper, painted aluminum, and PVC-coated. Firm also supplies traditional metal gutters and leaders. Berger Building Products, 805 Pennsylvania Blvd., Dept. TB, Feasterville, PA 19053 (215) 355-1200. Write in No. 758

■ Appearance of a sheet copper roof can be created by applying Thermo Copper Coating over less-expensive substrates. Material is a liquid formulated with acrylic resins and pure ground copper, which cures to form an elastomeric, waterproof, flexible membrane. It can be field- or shop-applied. Coating will gradually weather to a green patina; patinating process can be accelerated with Thermo Antique Solution. Thermo Materials, P.O. Box 9454, Dept. TB San Diego, CA 92109 (800) 882-7007. Write in No. 464

■ Metal shingles, cresting, and other trim pieces are produced on original turn-of-the-century dies by W.F. Norman Corp. The firm is largest maker of stamped metal architectural ornament, with a product line including tin ceilings, metal cornices, and hundreds of decorative elements. W.F. Norman Corp., P.O. Box 323, Dept. TB, Nevada, MO 64772 (800) 641-4038. Write in No. 52

■ Beaver-tail fiber-cement shingles for roofing and siding combine traditional Victorian look with economy and UL Class A Fire and Wind Resistant Label. Company also makes fiber-cement slate look-alikes in several colors — permitting creation of patterned roofs in the 19th-century manner. FibreCem Corp., 11000-I S. Commerce Blvd., P.O. Box 411368, Dept. TB, Charlotte, NC 28241 (800) 346-6147

■ New line of fiber-cement shingles that resemble natural slate has been introduced by P.N.F. Roofing Products. Available in units approximately 14-1/2" x 24", material has an integral slate-gray color, and weighs about 600 lb. per square. P.N.F. Roofing Products, 170 Ambassador Drive, Unit 2, Dept. TB, Mississauga, Ont. Canada L5T 2H9 (416) 564-3110

■ By overlaying shingles with cut ends, Liberty Cedar created this elaborate siding pattern for an outbuilding. Liberty specializes in heavy tapered shingles and shakes with butts of 5/8" and 3/4" in Western Red Cedar and Eastern White Cedar. Liberty Cedar, 535 Liberty Lane, Dept. TB, W. Kingston, R.I. 02892 (401) 789-6626. Write in No. 653

■ For installation and consulting on slate, tile, copper, and other types of traditional steep roofs, Bellvale has extensive experience with large buildings — such as churches, courthouses, etc. Bellvale Slate Roofing, P.O. Box 127, Dept. TB, Bellvale, NY 10912 (914) 986-5107. Write in No. 679

■ For the look that only a genuine slate roof can provide, Evergreen offers a full range of roofing slate in 11 colors. For repair and restoration projects, it can match any historical slate color from its extensive inventory. Evergreen Slate Co., P.O. Box 248, Dept. TB, Granville, NY 12832 (518) 642-2530

■ A top-sealing damper (controlled from the firebox) not only keeps moisture out of a chimney, but also shuts out birds and other pests. Units fit flue liners from 9 x 13 to 17 x 17. Lyemance International, P.O. Box 505, Dept. TB, Jeffersonville, IN 47131 (812) 288-9953. Write in No. 512

THERMO LIQUID COPPER A PURE COPPER COATING

Thermo Copper Coating is a unique, inexpensive alternative to copper metal sheeting — providing an attractive, long-life finish without the limitations, expense or problems of more traditional methods.

Specially formulated from acrylic resins and pure ground copper, it cures to form a flexible membrane with the bright, shiny appearance of a new copper penny. It ages with time and exposure to the elements like traditional copper sheeting. And, if preferred, the aging process can be accelerated to provide an attractive patina effect.

Thermo Copper Coating can easily be field-applied to roofs, mansards or walls, and substrates such as wood, metal, masonry, mineral surface roofing, granular and clay emulsion surfaces and composition shingles, or, can be baked on to metal substrates such as aluminum or galvanized metal in factory production.

Call or write Thermo Materials today to learn how you can put Thermo Liquid Copper to work on your next project.

Division 8 DOORS/WINDOWS

Doors, Windows, & Hardware

■ Craftsmen at Midwest Architectural Wood Products, a custom millwork shop specializing in wood windows, take precise dimensions of a round-top original prior to reproducing it for a restoration project. Midwest Architectural Wood Products, 1051 S. Rolff St., Dept. TB, Davenport, IA 52802 (319) 323-4757. Write in No. 146

■ Simpson Door's recently introduced special edition Centennial Door, featuring traditional lines and beveled glass. The firm produces a wide variety of stile-and-rail exterior, interior, and fire doors. Simpson Door Co., P.O. Box 210, Dept. TB, McCleary, WA 98557 (206) 495-3291

■ Late Victorian sash lifters are part of a large collection of 19th- and early-20th-century door and window hardware, cabinet and furniture hardware, mailboxes, wind vanes, etc. Crown City Hardware, 1047 N. Allen Ave., Dept. TB, Pasadena, CA 91104 (818) 794-1188. Write in No. 583

■ It's frequently more economical to restore old wood windows than to replace them. This proposition was proven again during the restoration of the Rookery Building in Chicago (Hasbrouck, Peterson, Zimoch & Sirirattumrong, Architects). Window restoration was handled by Specialty Glazing & Supply — a consulting and contracting company with expertise in window restoration. Specialty Glazing & Supply, 150 N. Schuyler, Dept. TB, Kankakee, IL 60901 (815) 937-5101

■ Solid brass reproduction cabinet latches are precision-cast for crisp appearance, and have stainless steel springs for durability. Company has a wide selection of Victorian door & cabinet hardware. Bathroom Machineries, P.O. Box 1020, Dept. TB, Murphys, CA 95247 (209) 728-2031. Write in No. 586

■ For longest life, shutters are constructed from all cedar with traditional mortise-and-tenon joinery, and held with teak locking pins. Available with louvers or solid panels. Vixen Hill Shutters, Main Street, Dept. TB, Elverson, PA 19520 (215) 286-0909. Write in No. 123

■ Developed in the 1890's to simplify housework, brass dust corners make cleaning stairs easier. They still serve the same utilitarian function — and add a decorative touch as well. The brightly finished solid brass units are made by the same methods and machinery used years ago. Conant Custom Brass, 270 Pine St., Dept. TB, Burlington, VT 05401 (802) 658-4482. Write in No. 62

■ Storm windows can be custom-designed for landmark buildings (such as the round-top storms above) so energy efficiency can be increased without sacrifice of historic aesthetics. Allied Windows, 2724 W. McMicken Ave., Dept. TB, Cincinnati, OH 45214 (513) 559-1212. Write in No. 69

DOES THE WORD POLYSTYRENE MAKE YOU SHUDDER?

Our all-cedar shutters endure for generations.

Cheap pine shutters with steel staples can fail in as few as five years. And plastic is . . . well, plastic. So to build the Vixen Hill shutter, we use only clear, Canadian red cedar. Joints are mortise-and-tenon, with teak locking pins. Both panels and louvers are of generous dimensions, ensuring lasting beauty for generations.

Classic fireplace protection yields construction benefits

Decorative, cast iron firebacks have been used for over 200 years, partly to radiate heat, but primarily to protect the rear walls of fireplaces from heat damage. Today, that protection also lets you upgrade quality with alternatives to common yellow refractory brick, e.g., white plaster, old paving brick and stones.

The Country Iron Foundry offers the largest selection of firebacks in the nation. Whether replicas of antiques or of contemporary design, all are meticulously handcrafted. They truly make the fireplace a room's focal point.

A request on your letterhead brings you our 24-page catalog of 32 antique and contemporary designs.

victorian revival design review

Mail-Order Misinterpretations

Much of our built environment is influenced by mail-order house plans. According to this month's guest columnist, purveyors of Victorian Revival designs are offering — in most cases — insipid, superficial historicism.

By John Crosby Freeman

Victorian "originals" of the 19th century that we admire today were themselves interpretations of earlier historic architectures. And those "originals" had their critics: During the 19th century, persons intimately acquainted with historic prototypes often expressed their disappointment with the differences between the revival and the original. "We don't copy old buildings," Victorian architects and builders shot back; "we make modern buildings using historic forms and ornament in a creative way."

Today's Victorian Revival designers and builders would probably raise the same defense to my appraisal. Because I admire 19th-century architecture so much, I can't help but base my critique on comparisons with 19th-century originals. And measured against that standard, most of today's Victorian Revival designs are pale imitations of their 19th century forbears.

Part of this divergence is due to economics. But there is also an enormous attitudinal difference towards historic architecture between the 19th-century Victorian designers and 20th century revivalists. Many who design Victorian Revival houses today seem to regard Victorian architecture as something foreign, in the same way an Ikebana flower arranger might regard a Victorian bouquet.

Victorian architecture came at the end of Western Civilization's 500-year fascination with

This is essentially a 19th-century Greek Revival shape whose popularity ran from the early 1800's through the 1870's. By the middle of 19th century, this Greek Revival shape was being ornamented with Italianate touches. The design shown here, however, has been given the "Fearless Fosdick" treatment. (Some of you may remember Fearless Fosdick of the Lil' Abner comic strip who looked like Swiss cheese because he was always getting riddled by bullets.) There's more to Victorian Revival design than an eccentric burst of ornamental gunfire. This design could be improved with alterations that emphasize its Greek Revival and Italianate roots: (1) For each foot of wall height (from foundation board to horizontal cornice) project the eaves 1 inch. (2) Provide frieze boards, with or without an architrave molding near the bottom, under all cornices. (3) Trade in the circle windows for some brackets, arranged in regular rhythm under the raking eaves of the front gable. (4) Widen corner boards to create pilasters to support the Greek Revival cornice. (5) Bury that contemporary abomination — the wood-framed chimney with vinyl siding — in the side wall and expose a real masonry chimney above the roof. (6) Move the bay window from the front wall of the living room to the side wall of the connecting back dining room. (7) Project the porch to the front plane of the garage, and extend it across the facade. (8) Move the garage entrance to the side and detail the front wall as an enclosed section of the verandah. Trade in the shutters and fish-scale shingles for a set of French doors under the verandah (where the bay window now is).

neo-classic historic forms and ornaments. Neo-classicism was often the canvas upon which many masterfully eccentric examples of Victorian architecture were created.

But today's Victorian Revival architecture comes at the end of 80 years of official contempt within the architectural profession for historic forms and ornament. Architectural styles are like religious congregations: They are only a generation away from extinction. For many decades, architectural schools have opposed searching for wisdom in architectural history. And one consequence is the superficial historicism of the Victorian Revival.

Architects and builders in the 19th century could justify their limited knowledge of historic buildings on the grounds of lacking local examples, difficulty of travelling to remote locations, and inadequate published information. Victorian Revival designers, who are locally surrounded by thousands of Victorian buildings and have access to a wealth of print and video information, can justify their ignorance of Victorian architecture only on the grounds of indifference. They are like Maurice Sendak's apathetic little boy Pierre, who faced life with an insouciant "I don't care!"

This "Before" and "After" is a capsule history of the Victorian Revival. Above is a two-story contemporary adaptation of a one-story cottage from George Francis Barber's Cottage Souvenir No.2 (1890) on the left. Comparing the original and adaptation reveals that only the general rooflines of the original survived the revival process. What's missing? Basically the Victorian detailing: All surface ornament, especially in the gables; all Stick Style banding; the central chimney; all ridge crestings and peak pinnacles; the Queen Anne parlor window; the verandah bracket arches. Perhaps modern pocketbooks dictated the stripped-down version. But to me, it seems the character has been lost.

The tri-gabled homestead style was a common Queen Anne cottage type from the 1880's well into the early 20th century. This 1990's version could be improved by: (1) Bringing the garage forward to the front plane of the verandah, extending the verandah roof over it, and moving the entrance to the side; (2) Substituting shingles for 2nd floor clapboards. An option would be to place beneath the raking eaves of the front pediment what is now called "gingerbread" (late Victorian millwork catalogs called this type of ornament "cornice drapery"), along with a peak ornament. The proper paint scheme is essential for this type of house. I'd paint clapboards a light color, 2nd floor shingles medium color, and gable shingles (along with verandah balusters and spindles) the accent color.

Muddled Messages

When scholars in the next century look back at the late 20th century, they will have no more difficulty spotting Victorian Revival architecture of the 1980's and 1990's than we do identifying Late Victorian architecture of the 1880's and 1890's. Perhaps they will categorize Victorian Revival under the heading of "Post-Modern Traditionalism" and declare it part of a general collapse of architectural convictions characteristic of a civilization undergoing fundamental change.

Post-Modern Traditional architecture created by inspired hands makes amusing reading for those who have acquired a taste for the light verse of its educated little jokes about "modern" and traditional architectures. Post-Modern Traditional buildings created by hands crippled with learning disorders or indifference makes dull reading; they are flaccid examples of modern as well as traditional architecture. Architecture is a public speaker; its worst crimes are the same as those of lecturers who bore us with sluggish speech and confuse us with muddled messages.

A Mail-Order Critique

I've examined the "Victorian" house plans offered by a number of mail-order plan services. Most of these Victorian Revival plans, in my opinion, fail to realize their potential and invest money with poor economy. It takes more than fish-scale shingles, towers, and wraparound verandahs to capture the energy and spirit of 19th-century design.

Clients who have purchased Victorian Revival house plans often ask me to diagnose weakness in the designs they have acquired and to suggest surgical removals, recommend plastic surgery, prescribe ornamentation, and advise a color scheme. In the following illustrations, I'll take a look at some typical mail-order Victorian Revival house plans and suggest how they could be modified to capture more original Victorian vigor. ❖

John Crosby Freeman is a former professor of architectural history and is responsible, during the last 25 years, for the reprinting of many 19th-century Victorian architectural stylebooks and patternbooks, published by The American Life Foundation. He is the Executive Director of The American Life Foundation, and is also a professional consultant on the architectural design and color of residential and commercial buildings in traditional styles. He can be reached through P.O. Box 430, Norristown, PA 19404 or (215) 539-3010.

A tendency toward conspicuous waste of space is evident in this large (over 4,000 sq. ft.) Victorian Revival plan. The great cliché of the 1980's — the atrium foyer — renders the splendid 2nd- and 3rd-floor spaces of the inner corner tower unusable. The glass-paneled frieze area of the verandah tower is inaccessible from the interior. The vast attic is not planned for living space. The entrance at the inner angle tower is quite splendid — but it is trivialized by repeating its entablature and roof at the corner of the wrap-around verandah. Removing this useless feature would open up a balcony area which could be made accessible from the master bedroom via a door set into a Late Victorian beveled corner echoing those in the end pavilions. I'd also replace the hipped roof with a simple gable-end roof embellished in the Late Victorian manner. The design would also benefit from ridge crestings and peak finials.

This is actually a neo-classical, three-bay, central entrance Georgian Revival hipped-roof house surrounded by a jumble of Victorian Revival additions. The vertical thrusts of the center gable and corner tower are intimidated by the hipped roof. The design could be improved by the following: (1) Change the hipped roof into a cheaper side-gabled roof (the attic could be made habitable by adding eyebrow dormers). (2) Raise the central gable/pediment to break free of the horizontal eaves of the main roof, and lower the main roof ridge to the new level of the pediment ridge. (3) Project the pediment forward to create a balcony over the verandah entrance; cover the sides and back wall of the balcony pavilion with regular-cut shingles and paint them the same accent color as the fish-scale shingles in the gable. (4) Raise the roof of the octagonal turret to break free of the horizontal eaves of the main roof by adding an ornamental frieze and architrave — with or without brackets. (5) Replace the pedimented gable over the garage with a semi-octagon dormer terminating in a low-pitched roof masked by a parapet; cover its base with decorative shingles painted the accent color. (6) Continue horizontal lines of the verandah roof around the octagonal turret with an over-scaled, decoratively shingled belt course painted in the accent color.

Vertical boarding and gable ornaments initiate an homage to the so-called stick style, but the design doesn't convey the full picturesque delights of folk medieval houses, which Richard Morris Hunt explored in his famous designs for Newport villas during the 1860's and 1870's. To complete what has been pretty well started, here are a few improvements I'd suggest: (1) Put double windows in the gabled projection; put single windows in the main facade. (2) Use heads, jambs, and sills as the basis for an artful web of simulated half-timbering made with flat boards. (3) Use simulated half-timbering to create a belt course that separates first- and second-story windows, and vertical boards that connect them. The recesses can be horizontal flush boarding or diagonal patterns of beveled-edge boarding. (4) Add an ornamental cap to the chimney so it will add its own picturesque note to the skyline. (5) Mask the odd-looking "ear muffs" of the gable eaves required by today's building codes with suitable ornament. (6) Enliven rooflines with cast-iron cresting and finials.

Pressing ink through a silk screen onto hangable paper

1972, with no money and almost no food, did he realize what his future held.

He Saw A Vision

Sitting on a rock there, he had a vision of his career: He saw himself playing three tiers of keyboards, producing incredibly beautiful harmonies with each one. He realized that each board represented an aesthetically oriented company, and he knew it was time to come home, to tackle Keyboard #1. Back in Northern California, he hounded a wallpaper manufacturer into hiring him.

"They had no openings, especially for someone with no skills. But I just didn't take no for an answer, and finally they relented," he recalls. He spent every spare hour learning all aspects of the business, and he took breaks only to travel to the V & A. On his way there in 1976 he paused in Brooklyn to meet Traditional Building's publisher, Clem Labine. "I'd held my dreams very tight inside until then," he says. "Victorian interiors then were associated with warehouses and pizza parlors. Clem was the first person who treated me like I wasn't daft." By 1979 he'd developed a line of 12 Victorian wallpapers, the first of which, Marigold, is still going strong.

At first he gave away his products. "I'd had such an outrageous time making them," he says, "that I couldn't imagine charging." Pressured by his clients, he finally decided to charge something, but copied his prices from a list at K-Mart and so made no profit. He was determined to take up William Morris's failed quest to bring art to the masses. His idealism faded reluctantly. "I realized that by pricing for a profit I could use the profit to make better wallpaper," he says. "And I realized the masses could care less."

He quit his factory job in 1979 but was not established enough to survive financially; he ended up broke again. "I was surrounded by these wallpapers that I believed in, living in a condemned house with no food and no heat. I didn't understand what had gone wrong, I didn't understand marketing. I cried myself to sleep." He started installing radios in freshly imported Mazdas, still pursuing wallpaper in his spare time. An article in The Old-House Journal and a few restoration assignments kept his business alive. The crews on the restoration jobs, he says, "knew how much I knew but they also knew I worked in a car lot, and they hid that fact from the older architects."

Finally, in 1981, emboldened by loans from his family and former employers, he put himself in business "just barely." He transformed a 19th-century military outpost 30 miles east of San Francisco into a factory, cobbling together the printing equipment himself. He was joined by John Burrows (who now runs his own Victorian furnishings company), and to his line he added "whatever excited me at the moment." Gradually, he took his market's opinions more seriously; he traveled the country looking at regional wallpaper and speaking to groups, "to see what people liked." Since 1984 he has been developing his current brochure, a series of miniature wallpaper replicas that makes designing with his roomsets seem as easy as coloring by numbers. And since 1985 he has supervised a Design Services department that does nothing but plan elaborate, custom Victorian ceilings "so that all the elements we've created over the years can be used in the best possible way."

His main collection now contains 100 patterns. He's copied 100 others, for such blue-chip restorations as Greenfield Village; and six initial designs appear in his new Edwardian collection. In addition to planning an all-encompassing computerized grammar of ornament, from Mayan to modern (that may be the second of the three keyboards he envisioned in the Himalayas, and he hopes to undertake it after the computer industry standardizes its graphics) he's trying to adapt computer technology to reproduce Italianate-style ceiling paintings on hangable paper. He's also expanding his early 20th-century offerings: "There's a real pent-up demand there," he says. As with his Victorian papers, he's covering many styles of the era, including Craftsman, Prairie, and Wiener Werkstatte, and he's striving for "what visionaries and architects were dreaming of — not what the average person bought at a hardware store."

A Strict "Revivalist"

He is not, then, a strict preservationist; he prefers to be called a "revivalist." "A title," he says "leaves room for evolution. My penchant is to go back to the originals and first copy and then learn and carry on from there. As Colonial is the foundation style of the Northeast, Victorian is the foundation style of the West. It set the tone. It was neglected, but now it's back to its proper place, and it will never disappear again. An astounding percent of our work is for new buildings, from careful copies to plays on styles. Victorian Revival has really moved into the mainstream." George Lucas is a Bradbury buyer; his company operates out of a Victorian Revival village. Linda Ronstadt is also a customer. "She's got an old Victorian in San Francisco, and she likes purples and violets." That's all her wallpaper manufacturer will reveal.

Keeping It Small

Bradbury & Bradbury produces 15,000 rolls per year — a load a large manufacturer could churn out in a day — and only once did it grow beyond the nine people its owner can manage himself. "I didn't have any fun then," he says. "I'd Peter Principled myself out of being a craftsman." Worse, a blue/white collar gap was developing, something he'd hated as a worker. "The printers are the shoulders upon which the business is run, and we treat them accordingly," he says. He's been asked to co-author a book on "bonsai" management, the art of "keeping a business small, trimming it, sculpting it, making it a work of art." And yet he sees his papers spreading ever farther. He has withdrawn virtually no patterns over the years. "I have no interest in making a few of anything," he says. "When I make something, I want everyone to have one, so they can all share the thrill."

What will keyboard #3 be? "I don't know yet and I'm glad I don't, or else I couldn't concentrate on #1 and #2," he says. "I never know what I'm going to do until I do it." ♦

HISTORIC LIGHTING

More Experience, More Styles

Lighting fixtures of many styles, sizes, and shapes are produced by Ball & Ball — the one constant source for quality historical products since 1932. Major restorations from Independence Hall in Philadelphia to Iolani Palace in Hawaii have called on our production and finishing experience to create the proper historic fixtures for them.

In 1989, we purchased the drawings and tooling of The Steinmetz Company — producers of unusually fine detailed commercial-sized lighting fixtures in the early 20th century. This was a natural expansion for our craftsmen and expertise. All fixtures shown here were produced in our own plant. We welcome the opportunity to quote standard or special designs.

■ Wall-mounted exterior light, 20" high and 13" across, produced from original Steinmetz Co. drawings. Hex-shaped cap, body, and base are made from cast brass. Glazing can be bent, hand-blown glass, or shatter-resistant plastic. In addition to exterior lighting, applications for this light include accent lighting for showrooms and passage lighting for corporate offices.

■ Custom lighting fixture made to client specifications with hand-forged iron body (rather than the brass tubing seen on most 19th-century reproductions). Fixture is 5 ft. wide, 3 ft. high, with 3 12" white glass shades and spun brass fonts.

■ Early 20th century turned, spun, and sheet brass lantern with shatterproof plastic. The "Union Jack" decoration can be changed, duplicated at the bottom, or made with three bands. Sizes: Large — 28" O.D., 52" high; Medium — 16" O.D., 28" high; Small — 9" O.D., 19" high. Small unit could use glass for residential installations.

■ Wall sconce, c. 1835, cast brass with hand-blown glass. Fixture is 28" high and 14" wide.

Lighting Fixture & Hardware Catalogs

Our new Lighting Fixture Catalog will soon be off the press. Write, call, or FAX for a free copy. Or Write In No. 766 on the Reader Service Card.

Ball & Ball is also the leading source of historically accurate house and furniture hardware, door locks, fireplace equipment, decorative and household accessories — both reproduction and antique. Repairs, copies, or polishing of your precious antiques are quoted on receipt of sample.

Our FREE Mini-Catalog provides an introduction to a full range of products and services. (Write in No. 293 on the Reader Service Form.) Or for $5 we'll send you (via UPS) our handsome 108-pg. product catalog. But even the catalog doesn't show all 2,000 of our hardware products. If you're looking for something rare or unusual, call or FAX us.

■ Frank Lloyd Wright designed this cast iron fixture for his 1905 renovation of The Rookery Building in Chicago. Ball & Ball was asked to renovate the 10 original units — and supply 6 new ones to match. The pattern in the fixture matches the rest of the iron lace in the building. A 19" square cast iron, brass-plated canopy trails 8 cast brass chains, 6 ft. long, supporting a 30" square main body, which in turn holds 4 corner globes and a central globe over and under the main body.

■ Lighting fixture made by The Steinmetz Co. to hang in a lower level hall of the U.S. Capitol. Made of cast brass, spun brass, and fluted brass tubing, it features etched glass on all 6 sides and bottom. It is 22" high to the column top, 19" across. Center of the bottom is hinged for bulb changing.

■ Two-tier chandelier, custom-made to complement an original 18th-century 3-tier fixture in a Pennsylvania church. The unit as shown is 48" high, 56" wide, and has 12 arms with hand-blown shades.

■ Early 20th century hallway lighting by The Steinmetz Co. for the U.S. Capitol, Washington, D.C. Ball & Ball had all the original drawings on hand to produce two additional lights to match the originals. (This fixture is just one of many that Steinmetz produced for government buildings in Washington.) Main body is spun brass, 32" dia., fitted to cast brass border supporting lost-wax-cast lion heads that hold 6 electrified arms. Overall dia. 5 ft. Exact copies, larger, or smaller versions of this lamp are available on special order.

■ Argand Lamp, c. 1800, reproduced for a restoration in Barbados. The fixture, 20" in diameter and 40" high, is cast, sheet, and spun brass with hand-blown glass. As pictured, the fixture has been adapted to accommodate 2 electric candles.
