Handsome 13 Dining Rooms

Cooking is so simple when your kitchen is planned around individual tasks. This corner makes baking easy. If flour is spilled, it's easily wiped up from Armstrong's Marbelle® Linoleum, Style 026. You get every speck, too, for the border, Marbelle Style 01, is coved up the wall to do away with dirt-catching corners. Counter tops are equally practical—they're the newest plastic, Armstrong's Corlon®. The style-Granette.

You'll find what you want in this kitchen

THE NEXT TIME you scramble through the cupboard drawers looking for a cookie cutter or search in vain for a piece of string to tie up a roast, remember this kitchen. It's designed for people who want a place for everything and everything in its place.

Here are cupboards galore . . . more than sixty . . . and each one is designed to hold specific items. You automatically put everything back where it belongs, and when you want something, it's there.

When you start your meal preparation, your vegetables are right under the sink. Pots and pans are where they should be, beneath the stove. After cooking a roast, it goes from oven to chopping block where it can be carved immediately and then put on the serve-thru counter without any wasted motions.

The top cupboards that you see over the sink can be opened from the dining room side, too, and that's a big help when setting the table. Silver and linen are strategically placed at the dining room entrance.

With every wish for an organized kitchen goes the hope that cleaning will be simple and easy. Floors are often the biggest task, but not when they're Armstrong's Linoleum.

If you've lived with Armstrong's Linoleum, you know it requires a minimum of care. Wash it only a few times a year, keep it waxed and swept, and it will always be sparkling. Spilled things can be wiped up easily, and you needn't worry about spilled fats or cooking oils because Armstrong's Linoleum is greaseproof-not just grease-resistant.

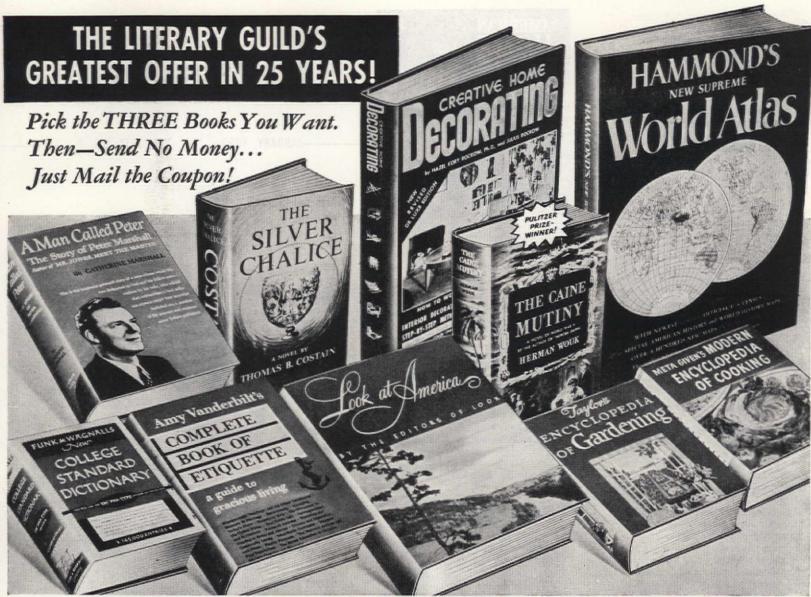

A kitchen like this might well be yours someday, so why not write us for a free floor plan? In the meantime, brighten up your present kitchen with a new floor of Armstrong's Linoleum. Your Armstrong dealer will be pleased to show you dozens of handsome styles, and any one of them will make your kitchen pleasanter and easier to work in-right now.

Boon to indoor cold frame gardening

Here's a new way to give your spring garden a running start . . . Treat the soil in your cold frames or seed flats with Krilium* soil conditionerchange it to "friendly" soil that gives seedlings "the chance of a lifetime" to germinate, emerge and thrive-to look more like the pictures on the seed packets when they mature! Then, too-more seeds come up, which means more plants at transplanting.

Soil Structure Is the Key... Soil scientists agree that soil structure is the key to productivity. Some soils are just naturally unfriendlythey have always been poorly structured. Some get that way through abuse. All are "problem" soils.

Krilium Changes Problem Soils to Friendly Soils ... It keeps soil loose, crumbly and porous-lets air circulate around and through the soil crumbs-permits water to drain off the surface and down to the plant roots where it does the most good . . . Krilium is easy to apply-merely work it into prepared soil. Its structuring effect is immediate-and lasting.

Get Krilium Get Krilium at your hardware, seed, feed or department store. Special garden formulation in 1-lb. and 5-lb. handy sizes . . . Full-strength formula for treating larger areas in 10-lb., 25-lb. and 50-lb. sizes.

DAD IN THE KITCHEN

Dear Folks:

With all due praise for the beautiful picture that workbench in the kitchen makes (October 1952, "Keep Dad in the Kitchen"), it just ain't practical! . . . Did you ever see a woodworker who didn't make sawdust, or litter the surrounding areas with shavings and bits of wood? I didn't, and I'm married to one.

When that man in the picture starts to use those woodworking tools, Mama isn't going to have time to knit; she's going to grab a dust rag and try to keep ahead of the sawdust that collects on those beautiful shelves and cabinet tops. And that louver door-ho, my! Mama won't like having shavings and sawdust all over the floor, either, to be tracked into the rest of the house every time Junior runs for a drink of water or to the bathroom. And pretty soonabout the second time she cleans all those shelves-she's going to demand that Dad get out of the kitchen and take his litter to the garage.

-SYLVA M. BROWN

PRESSING PROBLEM

Dear Sir:

Being a very interested reader, I am writing to you to ask... in the event of my coming over to America with my family... if you could give me the addresses of Diaper Services in the New York area.

so solly!

Dear Editor

If, as I suspect, the Oregon house of the Nelson Reeds on page 40 of your Sept. issue is located in Klamath Falls, Oregon, I suggest your copy would profit by the inspection of the state's climatological variations. Klamath Falls lies . . . on the eastern edge of the Cascade Mts. Eastward, the weather is approximately as temperate as a full-grown mountain lion, and the countryside about as lush as that around Las Vegas, Nevada. Annual precipitation . . . is in the 10-12 inch class and much of it arrives in a pileable condition. As for the Japanese influence on Klamath Falls architecture, I venture to say there has been little demand for the tar-paper homes introduced in 1942 by the War Relocation Authority . . . Come on out sometime. We'll show you our

eastern Oregon sagebrush and blanketed Indians. We may even find Jap.—ROBERT O. LEONARD

So Solly! Oregon's Indians aren't the only ones with red faces!—ED.

DROPPER-INNERS

Dear Mrs. Austin:

The current exodus out of the city to the suburbs presents a problem ... Where could we locate within commuting distance of the big city and still be out of reach of well-meaning friends and relatives who . . . find you before you find yourself?

Your visitor's unexpected arriva is explained smoothly by your lack of phone service and his desire to wish you luck personally . . . As for well wishers leaving me with pleasant impressions . . . there were impressions at hand level of every child who entered . . . The evidence remains or permanent file . . .

Happily, I can say, we have many real friends who make appointments with us out of respect for our time and theirs, who visit when our children and theirs are in bed. . . .

-GERTRUDE BROWN

BEFITTING FOOD

Dear Mrs. Austin:

Your articles in AMERICAN HOME are real treats. They describe food and how to prepare it as befits human beings. You don't use cute diminutives and the result is usually something good to eat—not an over-described mediocrity.—W. B. McMORRIS

WELCOME NEIGHBOR:

Dear American Home:

A thought came into my mind as I watched a new family moving in across the street from us. Wouldn't it be nice if all the neighbors would send a greeting welcoming them to the neighborhood?—HELEN W. KORTZ

Every detail is important when you are planning a new home. For one thing, you want to be sure that there are electric outlets in all the right places.

Telephone outlets need your attention, too!

Only by planning ahead can you be sure that your telephones will be exactly where you want them-that the wires will be concealed inside the walls. Built-in telephone raceways protect the appearance of walls and woodwork, let you add or change telephones later on without exposed wires. And the cost is surprisingly low.

Another World Hunger

ould you like to help feed souls that hunger for gardening information and contact with kindred spirits? To help the United States win friends in other lands and increase the bonds of understanding between us and the rest of the world? Would you welcome a new source of foreign plant materials and lore, garden publications, ideas, inspiration?

You can, by joining "Floricultura, The International Garden Exchange," paying annual dues of $1.00, and being as active-as a correspondentas you want to. Floricultura is a nonprofit, non-commercial, non-political organization of amateur gardeners-150,000 in foreign countries, perhaps 50,000 here. But its address is P. O. Box 71, Boston, Mass., and it is the American membership upon which its growth, success, existence depend.

This is how it works: Upon joining, you ask for as many names and addresses as you like of gardeners in countries of your choosing-gardeners who have already told the organization of their desire to hear from American gardeners and with them to swap ideas, seeds, catalogues, magazines, etc. As names of American members are not sent abroad, it is up to them to initiate the correspondence. Foreign language problems are solved by volunteer-member interpreters. Indeed, all Floricultura's work is volunteer. There are no salaries; all funds are used for printing, paper, postage, etc. In principle a gardeners' "Pen Pal" project, it goes much farther. Letters on file appeal for American home and garden magazines -odd copies or, better, subscriptions -for which those who seek them, being under dollar-export restrictions, offer to pay by barter. Before me are 40 such letters from 14 countries that I wish you, AMERICAN HOME readers, could share. They tell how you can enjoy the thrill of making new garden friends overseas; of making their gardening happier and richer; of helping to bring about a "one world" of garden-minded folk. They are holding out their hands and voicing their longing. How are we going to answer them?

On trips, use on car door. $5.98 ppd. Breck's, 302 Breck Bldg., Boston 10, Mass.

The Most Famous Paintings of eonardo da Vinci

THE LATEST EXAMPLE OF AN EXCITING PROJECT BY WHICH

The Metropolitan Museum of Art

WILL BRING THE TREASURES OF THE WORLD'S ART MUSEUMS INTO YOUR HOME ... for yourself and your children

24 Miniatures IN FULL COLOR—IN SIZE SHOWN >

including details of THE LAST SUPPER and other famous paintings ... with a 32-page descriptive Album

IVE HUNDRED years ago an illegitimate child was born in the little Italian village of Vinci. This unwanted child, named Leonardo, "grew up from the obscurity and humiliation of his birth to become the very incarnation of the Italian Renaissance and the patron saint of all who love beauty and truth."

Today the immortal paintings which Leonardo bequeathed to the world are scattered through the museums of France, Italy and England. To see them would require months of travel. Indeed, despite all precautions, some are slowly deteriorating with age and sooner or later will vanish into shadows of themselves.

Fortunately, The Metropolitan Museum of Art has reproduced the most famous of Leonardo's paintings in their present glory, so that families everywhere can enjoy them in their homes.

Once a month the Museum prepares separate sets of full-color prints, such as this. Each set deals with a different artist or school and contains 24 fine Miniatures (of the size shown) and a 32-page Album, in which the artists and their work are discussed, and in which the prints can be affixed in given spaces.

Thus, eventually, the most interesting and most representative work of every period, school and great painter from leading museums here and in Europe will be encompassed. In effect, as it proceeds, the project will be an informal but comprehensive course, carried on by the Museum, in both the history and appreciation of art. Yet the plan can be enjoyed by persons of all ages.

PRICE FOR THE FULL SET OF 24 MINIATURES

including a 32-page Album containing explanatory notes about the artist and his work: $1.25

PLEASE NOTE: Since The Metropolitan Museum is un-equipped to handle the details involved in this project, it has arranged to have the Book-of-the-Month Club, of New York, act as its national distributor. The selection of subjects and the preparation of the color prints remain wholly under the supervision of the Museum. All matters having to do with distribution are handled by the Book-of-the-Month Club.

"Saves money, too!"

When Armstrong's Temlok Sheathing is nailed to the framework of a house it not only makes the whole building strong and weather-tight—it also saves money.

Temlok Sheathing is made of strong wood fibers formed into big boards. It goes up faster than ordinary wood sheathing, so you save many hours of costly labor. Because Temlok is a good insulation, it helps to cut heat loss in winter and saves expensive fuel. In summer it keeps heat outside.

With Temlok there is little or no waste of material. Almost every square foot can be used. Also, there's no need for the usual layer of building paper over this kind of sheathing, because it's made with asphalt that protects each fiber.

If you're planning to build, it will pay you to make sure the plans include Armstrong's Temlok Sheathing. Ask your lumber or building materials dealer for the full details.

The Whole Town Owns

This House

A few years ago the town fathers of Atlanta, Ill. (pop. 1,300), gave their community a "memorial for the living." It is a fine old house located a bit out from the business district, and known as the Eminence Memorial Home. Under the supervision of Atlanta's Park Recreation Board, Eminence's 13 rooms house all kinds of community, cultural, and recreational activities. Eleven organizations, including civic clubs and the Scouts, hold their regularly scheduled meetings here, and the house's facilities are always open to worth-while civic projects.

It's a memorial to the present instead of the past. And just recently, it started playing an important role in the future of the town as well. For it now houses a kindergarten—a constructive and public-minded one which should make good citizens of Atlanta's small fry. About 22 children are enrolled now, with promise of more.

The Whole Town

Scoutmaster George W. Brock gives the Boy Scout cooking class a chalk talk, for Scouts must learn early to cook

Now, towns of this size are often kindergarten-less. Atlanta was, and its grade school just couldn't accommodate one. So a group of mothers got together and took their problem to the Park Recreation Board. Privately financed classes, held in the spacious, well heated basement of Eminence, seemed to be the answer. And a competent primary teacher and assistant were interviewed and approved.

And all did not go smoothly. The teachers had to be paid, and parents agreed upon $2 weekly per child. But the by-laws of the Home provide that its facilities can't be used for individual profit. And when some citizens couldn't pay, it didn't seem right to conduct private classes in the town's own building.

Obviously, the plan was to the best interests of the community, so the Board got around its by-laws in a most sensible way. It agreed to pay the $2 fee for all parents who couldn't afford the luxury of a private class. That made it an open-to-all project, and perfectly legal. To date, the Board hasn't been called upon to put up money for this purpose, but it's ready to do so.

The parents pay the Board, and the Board turns over the fees in full to the teachers. No rent is paid for the kindergarten rooms, and the Board leaves the operation of the classes up to the teachers, who shoulder all expenses and make their own policy. They do their own janitoring, too. So far, the plan has worked famously. Mothers are satisfied that their youngsters are getting constructive, supervised play, and valuable preschool training which will be of great benefit to them when they actually start going to school. And the Eminence Memorial is sheltering still another worth-while project, more than carrying out its tradition as a "memorial for the living."

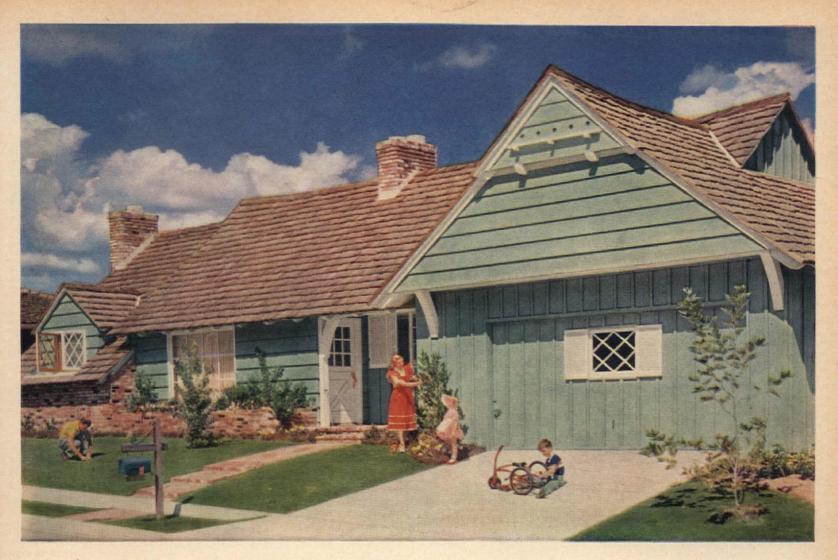

This place isn't for juniors only. It is used by Legionnaires and other civic groups for meetings and recreation five a good tradition enough time, and it triumphs—even over our foolish attempts to abandon it. Take the dining room, for instance. The family dinner hour didn't mean much there for a while, in makeshift "dining areas" which just didn't work. And so now, even in the smallest new houses, efforts are made to squeeze in a separate dining room. There is an urge for a dedicated spot, however small, especially arranged for the pleasant rite which takes place there. We show you herewith a fine assortment of dining rooms—all sizes, many styles. You'll note their traditional air, but note too, please, that they're blessed with a new point of view. In keeping with this new-old tradition is the furniture shown on this page and on our cover. It's Drexel's new "Cherry Highlands" group, inspired by American antiques the late Wallace Nutting illustrated in his celebrated book, Furniture Treasury. It's fine design honors our past, while its proportions suit it to today's rooms which could never take on Grandma's oversized furniture. It's traditionally American as blueberry pie, but there's good modern thinking behind the way we've led into it by placing one large piece outside the dining room proper, and the way we've tied it all in with the same carpet. New too, in dining rooms, are the colors and fabrics we've put together here.

We're grateful that the dining room's back, but its living-room exile did teach us a thing or two. Certainly it helped us happily over some fusty old taboos. For example, in the old days, only certain woods, certain wallpapers (mostly floral), certain pictures (still-life, often dead fish), certain rugs (Oriental or floral) and certain furniture arrangements (table, dead center) were considered "right" in a dining room. Now we've learned the value of light woods as well as dark ones, and even of such "outdoorsy" materials as metal-and-glass or the split bamboos which can make a dining room gay on a budget. If our view is good, or if the room furnishes better that way, we put the table by the window. And from plaids to landscapes, from chocolate browns to pale blues, any patterns and colors which warm our hearts we use here.

There's a subtle new look to dining rooms, regardless of their size, or the degree of their formality—and the key to it is in the fact that furniture no longer is labeled for one room only, that manufacturers are designing pieces to move from room to room. Even though it is on its own, the dining room is apt to open right off the living room—so we treat the two areas to harmonize visually, often starting with a carpeting practical for both. Notice that dining-room chairs make fine pull-ups in the living room, that chests are of a type which look well wherever you put them. See how dining rooms look better than ever with window treatments, and lamps, and ornaments which used to be earmarked (Heaven only knows why!) for living rooms only. And while the dining room got its new look, it learned other new tricks: thanks to Lazy-Susan tables, to synthetic rug fibers which spot-clean in a jiffy, to new table surfacings and fabrics, the dining room makes little added work in return for the downright comfort and sense of well-being it gives.

o you live where the winters are mild enough for plants to thrive without protection or artificial heat? And have you always wanted to grow orchids and other tropical beauties, but found them too exotic to stand the winds and hot sun of your found them too exotic to stand the winds and not sun of your locality? If so, you need—even if you haven't longed for—a shade house; what we, in Florida, call a "slat house." Down here, it adds to the joy of gardening as a greenhouse does up North.

With no problem of the soil freezing or "heaving," we laid the 3" x 6" concrete foundation for the wall of our 8' x 12' slat house on top of the ground, embedding two 5%" steel rods in it as reinforcement. The garage wall forms one of the sides of the

this Slat House for $156—so can you!

house which thus seems part of the garage and is unobtrusive; as it faces west, the plants get the benefit of the full afternoon sun, broken and softened, of course, by the slats of the snow fence that forms the roof and sides. The 2' high cement-block wall extends around three sides (except where space is left at one end for the door); 5' lengths of 1" galvanized pipe set 9" deep in cement in the top of the wall, about 2' apart, are connected at the top by slip fittings to pipes which, attached to the garage wall with floor flanges, form horizontal supports. The 4' wide snow fence is wired to the supports with its slats parallel to the garage wall on the roof, and horizontal at the ends and on the side. Where the ends of the slats butt together, they are covered on the outside and held firm by vertical wooden strips.

Orchids like half shade, half sun, and no wind; also a twice daily sprinkling of their strap-shaped, waxy leaves. This is a time-taking chore when one has up to a hundred plants on the benches and hanging from the sides and roof of the slat house. So I worked out a quick and easy way to water my orchids. One lawn sprinkler head attached to the garage wall and connected to a length of ½" pipe sends out a fine misty spray that reaches every plant in the house at a twist of the turn-on valve outside. It's effective and so simple!

They are the All-America Selections for 1953, carefully chosen and tested before being offered for American gardens. Ma Perkins (above), a bright, coral-shell pink Floribunda, originated in New York. Chrysler Imperial, a deep crimson-red Hybrid Tea, was developed in California

That makes a rose? Why, the same two complex factors that determine the nature and fate of every living thing-heredity and environment. Heredity, involving genetics and genealogy is, of course, the field of the rose breeders, hybridists, and producers. Environment includes not only location, climate, and soil, but also the cultural operations-planting, feeding, pruning, watering, etc.-that are the responsibility of rose growers, who may be commercial, or professional, or even amateur gardeners, like you and I.

The two new roses pictured here not only "have what it takes" to win acclaim, but also demonstrate the part played by background and breeding. They are the 1953 All-America Rose Selections, chosen by a panel of expert judges on the basis of 13 major qualities (floriferousness, hardiness, fragrance, etc.) and over-all performance during a two-year test in 20 official trial grounds in 15 states. Prior to that ordeal, in competition with thousands of other candidates, they had survived the critical scrutiny of the firms that originated them, of scientifically trained hybridists, hard-boiled growers, sales- and promotion-minded executives-all striving to give gardeners something new, better, and more beautiful. And still farther in the background is their parentage, the blending of ancestral "blood lines" in the effort to "accentuate the positive" and "eliminate the negative" traits that determine the ranking of a new rose.

In the "family trees" of these two roses appear many famous names-of both roses and rose breeders. One parent of Chrysler Imperial, for example, is Charlotte Armstrong, descended from Soeur Thérèse, a French rose of 1930; Crimson Glory, developed by the German hybridist Kordes in 1935; the famous French Souvenir de Claudius Pernet (1920); its parent Constance Pernet (1915), and the English variety of 1929, W. E. Chaplin. The other parent, Mirandy, also has Charlotte Armstrong as one parent, and an Irish rose, Night, developed by McGredy of Ireland, as the other.

Back of Ma Perkins, we find such notables as Fashion (a 1950 All-America), Crimson Glory, and Pinocchio; also Mme. Caroline Testout, who dates back to 1890; Sensation, Hoosier Beauty, and Premier from Indiana; Richmond, a 1905 novelty; Lady Battersea (1901), Liberty (1900); good old General Jacqueminot that came into the world's gardens in 1853, and the almost as ancient La France, of 1867.

So gardeners, if (or, better, when) you plant a Ma Perkins, or a Chrysler Imperial, or any other of the roses that are tested, proved, and offered year by year, pause a moment to pay tribute to the plant miracle entrusted to your care and to the generations of work it represents. And pledge it the care it deserves and needs in order to reward you with perfection.

DOROTHY MONROE

The people down Natchez, Mississippi, way are about as house-conscious as they come, but their idea of a fine home is usually the stately ante-bellum mansion, surrounded by formal gardens and reflecting a way of life that has long since passed from the scene. Barbara Blum, a Natchez girl who now lives in Dallas, had dreamed of owning just such a house before her husband, an electrical engineer, found that he couldn't fit his ideas on architecture and home engineering into a house that was traditional in any way, shape, or form.

So the Blums sat down with an architect to plan a modern home around Mr. Blum's ideas—with the understanding that if Mrs. Blum didn't like it, the deal was off and they'd head back to traditional. Well, you know how engineers are. Full of ideas and ways to save steps, time, and money. It didn't take Mrs. Blum very long to admit that while her Natchez tradition was a pretty one, nothing can compare with good modern if you want time to enjoy living in your home. Realizing that a compromise house is nothing at all, she succumbed completely to modern.

The modern design of this house fits in perfectly with the climate of Dallas which, as any Texan will tell you, is the best in the world. The exterior of the house is old brick and timber. Patio furniture and flowers in yellows and pinks complement tones of house and of the mimosa tree, and the brick and wood motif has been carried inside the house as well. For indoors-outdoors effect, Mrs. Blum, never one for half-measures, carried modern logic throughout in the furnishings—there's no evidence anywhere of nostalgia for her deep south background, no doting mementos mar the perfectionism of this strictly functional, but undeniably attractive, home.

The three bedrooms all face the garden area, while the living room fronts a quiet street. The west side, a busy thoroughfare, is devoted to storage purposes—and on that score, the Blums are very well fixed. They used almost every bit of west wall space for closets, a dressing room, a utility room, and bathrooms. Windows on this side are placed higher for privacy, but in the living quarters great areas of glass have been used to good advantage to create the feeling of greater spaciousness and greater enjoyment of the outdoors.

The southwest calls for a lot of outdoor living, and the Blums took good care of that—there's an enormous patio off the living room, a smaller one opens from the dining room and is also handy to the kitchen, and the master bedroom has a private porch of its own.

How to Slip-Cover a Studio

3. To cut boxing, measure from chalk mark on top piece to bottom of mattress. We suggest working on made-up bed so that the slip cover will fit perfectly without unsightly bulges

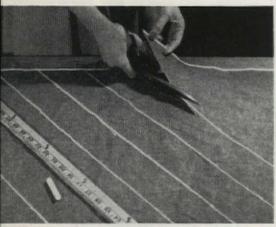

4. Boxing must be cut double width to allow for the heavy cording which not only looks smart, but also prevents the fabric from mussing. With yardstick and chalk, mark off width of boxing piece from selvage

See "Where Credit Is Due" on page 91

 Draw a straight line along chalk marks with a yardstick. Cut along this line. These simple measuring precautions will assure you a straight and even piece. Trim off the selvage

9. Cording for top and for bolsters is covered with bias strips, 3" wide. To make them, fold fabric diagonally so selvages meet. Crease, chalk crease, and use mark as cutting guide

10. Cover cord with bias strips using the cording foot of your sewing machine. Join strips with a diagonal seam. You can make miles of cording in a couple of hours with this attachment

11. Baste cording to top piece of mattress cover.

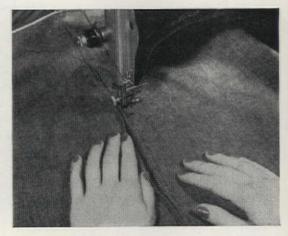

Notch fabric as shown when going around curved corners. Sew on sewing machine. If you plan to use thinner cording, pin instead of basting

15. When all rows of cording have been sewn in place, join boxing strip to top piece, which has cording sewn around edges (step 11). Hem remaining fabric at bottom of boxing

16. Measure bolsters. In order to retain square shape, it is necessary to cut one piece for each side, plus end pieces. Cording is sewn around end pieces, inserted between three sides

17. Fourth side of bolster cover is not corded. Long zipper is inserted to permit easy removal of bolster. Baste zipper into place as directed on package, then sew on machine with zipper foot

Couch

1. Start with the top piece. With bed fully made up, smooth fabric over top blanket. You can feel rolled edges of mattress through the coverings—outline them in chalk on fabric

2. If you're using a 36" fabric, one width isn't enough for most beds. Add a strip of fabric along back of top. In measuring for added strip, allow \(\frac{1}{2}\)" on each piece for each seam (2" in all for seams)

6. Hold boxing strip in position to determine how many rows of cording you will need to cover your mattress. We allowed four rows, plus the cording which joins the boxing to the top piece

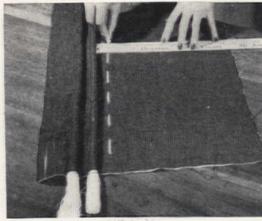

7. Now start on cover for the spring. Cut fabric for top same way as for top of mattress. For skirt, measure from chalk mark to floor. Allow for hem or double fabric, or line with contrast

8. Measure around top of spring. Add 12" at each corner for kick pleat (6" for each side of pleat). Starting at center back or in one corner, pin skirt to top piece. Pleat at corners

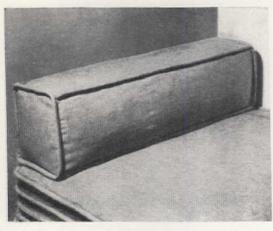

12. Cording for boxing is sewn into the boxing itself. Allow 1" at top of boxing for joining to top piece. Then baste first row of cording into place before sewing it on your machine

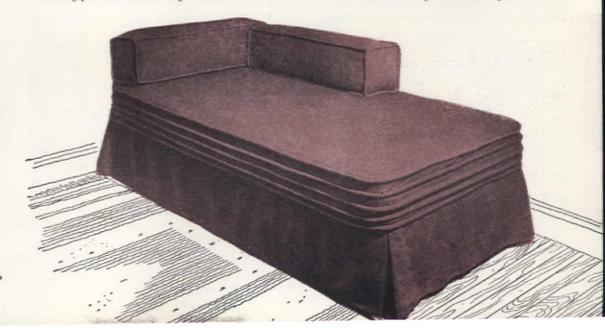

13. Because cord is thick, do only one row at a time. Baste second row of cording into fabric, then stitch. Here is how to measure and mark fabric for each row of cording you add. Baste along the chalk lines

14. This photograph shows clearly how each row of cording is set in fabric. First two rows are completed and third is started. Fold surplus fabric under cording and sew along chalk marks

18. Smart cover and bolsters turn a boxspring and mattress into a handsome sofa by day. A similar cover may be used for other types of studio couches, though skirt may have to be joined to boxing strip

Worth $5.00 to You?

his little house has one priceless ingredient—the priceless know-how of the skilled professional designer. We say priceless—actually, you can buy that kind of talent to plan your home for you—if you can pick up the bill. But so many people who build homes of this size today really can't afford the services of a top-flight architect or designer. That's why we're featuring this gem of a small house as our American Home Blueprint House No. 17. We show you the inside first, because that's how all good house plans start—from the inside out. The secret of the feeling of such spaciousness in only about 1100 sq. ft. lies in the open planning of that big area that encompasses living room, dining area, and kitchen. The large fireplace wall suggests the division of these areas—but actually the eye moves freely from end to end of this whopping big 28½ ft. spread. There are many plusses in this plan you don't ordinarily find in a house this small (next page). For example, the handsome fireplace, plus the wonderful barbecue grill in the dining area; the ample space for table dining plus the breakfast bar. Note that there's a traditional big bay window at the front—plus a modern glass wall opening onto the terrace at the rear.

OWNER: MR. AND MRS. ALDEN OLDS DESIGNER: WILLIAM STEVENSON BUILDER: BRUCE TEBBE ive bucks brings you the complete blueprints and specifications for this two-bedroom charmer—certainly a small price for the plusplanning designer William Stevenson and builder Bruce Tebbe created in such a relatively small space. The living area's unusually spacious (page 40), and the bedrooms have good closets and are easily accessible to the bathroom complete with stall shower. We don't quote costs because they vary so widely in different parts of the country. But 1100 sq. ft. or so (without garage) is a small house in any man's state.

The exterior is stained redwood siding with painted trim and shingle roof. New England might make it barn red; Ohio, yellow; Texas, tan—with equally effective results. The traditional design qualifies it for conservative neighborhoods, but the modern planning inside, the big glass windows which open at the back to good outdoor living, make it a house of today. In many areas, a two-car garage is a must. If it isn't in yours, think what a storage plus that big garage is.

Four-in-One Garage—Build it rom Our Pattern GARDEN The average family car is pretty reasonable. Build this nice garage from our TWO BICYCLES pattern (see Pattern Order Form, Pattern 2015, on page 93), and it will be happy to share the space with you. And if you already have a garage, just think what an attractive study, guest house, playhouse, or workshop this car house will make! As a garage, this very unusual one has plenty of space to share because we planned it carefully for people just like you who need something more than a garage. We know most of you have a serious storage problem, so we included a big storage bin that's just perfect for bulky items like porch furniture, trunks, and screens. We know most of you need a place for your workbench and tools, so we've set aside a good spot for them with ample wall space for shelves, and a window for natural lighting. From our own experience, we know that cars and bikes don't mix well, so we made a separate compartment just for the bikes, and it has its own private entrance. The kids may still have excuses for not putting their bikes away at night, but lack of storage space won't be one of them! And we didn't forget garden tools, either. Anyone who has stepped on a rake or hoe and had the handle crack him on the head knows that garden tools need a place of their own! People who want nice homes also want attractive PORCH garages, and so we've designed one that both you and your car will be proud of.

FLUORESCENT UNIT CORNICE BOARD 6" MINIMUM WHITE

or years we have all been familiar with fluorescent lighting in its use in shop windows, stores, offices. You may even have fluorescent lighting in your kitchen or bathroom. But it has taken these glowing wands of light quite a few years to break down the barriers of prejudice and gain acceptance in the living rooms of the home. Modern designers have been their greatest champions and have used these fluorescent units with strikingand sensible-effect. One of their most valued talents is their adaptability to function as a hidden source of light: illumination of any desired level, but so unobtrusively built in that you are rarely conscious of where the light comes from. Here are a few facts that may help you in your choice of a new kind of light where you need it .

Does fluorescent lighting change the color of home furnishings? Yes, to a degree, and so does incandescent lighting alter colors if we use natural daylight as our standard. During recent years, however, there has been a tremendous improvement in the color rendition of fluorescent tubes. Today there are fluorescent tubes that bring out all of the colors in all materials . . . foods and complexions included. First, decide if a cool or warm atmosphere is desired, then choose the De Luxe Cool White or the De Luxe Warm White to produce the desired effect. Fluorescent lighting now has not only acceptance but genuine popularity.

Are the fluorescent tubes limited in scope? No. during the last ten years rapid strides have been made in sizes. There are straight lengths from 6" up to an almost room-long 8', and circular tubes 81/2", 12" and 16" in diameter. Plastic- and glassdiffusing media for shielding the tubes have greatly improved in appearance as well as in efficiency. Is it a complicated matter to have fluorescent lighting installed? No, the permanently installed fixture, valance, or cornice fluorescent lighting is simply connected directly to the wires at the outlet-box location. In planning fluorescent lighting, the advice of experienced dealers or lightingfixture people should be sought. You have simply to outline your problem and they will show you how to achieve the effect you desire. In many towns and cities the electric service company maintains a staff of engineers and home-lighting specialists, who are glad to give unbiased recommendations for fashionable fluorescent lighting. If you have a seemingly peculiar or difficult problem, do not hesitate to take advantage of this free and tremendously valuable service.

Can incandescent and fluorescent lighting be used in the same room? Yes, most people prefer a subtle blending of incandescent bulbs in floor and table lamps and fluorescent tubes concealed behind valances and cornice boards.

You Need It

INCANDESCENT BULB

Is it necessary to have the hum of fluorescent lighting? No. Parts called ballasts are built into the metal channels of housing that holds the sockets and the tubes, and if quality ballasts are used there is no hum. An inferior ballast or poorly fabricated fixture may produce a hum. Naturally, all inferior parts should be avoided. Can fluorescent lighting be used in "period" rooms? Certainly. Here its ability to hide itself is of great advantage in rooms which may be poorly lighted by handsome but inadequate table lamps. It has been successfully installed behind such authentic architectural woodwork details as deftly curved period cornices near the ceiling of a room. The luminous tubes shed a clear soft light over the ceiling which is reflected downward as general illumination. Or they may be installed behind cornice boards of valances of draperies to shed light both downward and upward over the ceiling. Beneath obscure glass panels or tucked behind moldings, they can shed light upward and outward into recessed niches to light plants or collections. The new circular tubes can be recessed into the bowls of many period chandeliers to shed a soft glow over the ceiling.

- 1. Fluorescent lighting can keep unobtrusive company with elegant period furnishings, and provide adequate lighting where lamps are out of place. Simple cornice board above this bay window continues along one wall, conceals new slim-line fluorescent tubes
- 2. One 40-watt fluorescent tube in a recessed glass-shielded luminaire directs light downward over entrance steps, lighting the front door as well. Slanted white plaster wings at either side are good reflectors. How much more effective—and safe—than the usual dim bulb
- 3. Incandescent downlight from this light box supplements fluorescent lighting used elsewhere in room. Rheostat-controlled bulbs light all at once or in alternate panels behind squares of ribbed obscure glass
- 4. Soft-light fluorescent tubes in cove shed warm light outward over ceiling; daylight tubes behind obscure glass shed cool light downward. Both installations on this page in the home of architect John Lindsey, A.I.A.

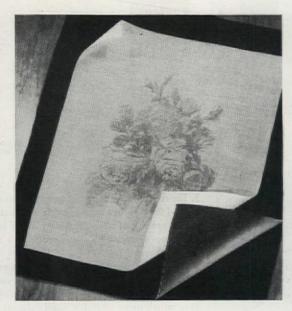

ere's a new horizon-"painting" pictures in rich silk thread on your sewing machine! It started with the "fashion" stitches, so handsome they inspired us to put on our fanciest thinking caps and come up with a way to use this innovation to enhance your home's wardrobe, too. We chose a floral design in the Old Master tradition, and did it up on velvet. It's not too difficult for a beginner, and it just can't look amateurish. The Singer people liked it so well that all 1,200 Singer Sewing Centers are demonstrating the technique on our pattern. But don't limit yourself. You can invent your own stitches, and use them, or ours, on a variety of fabrics to decorate chairs or boxesany place you'd use tapestry or needlepoint. And don't confine yourself to floral designs-crisp modern effects are splendid made this way.

The "Signature" stitch used for backgrounds, and mentioned in captions 3 and 5, produces an interesting texture when stitched in curved lines. To make this stitch, you unbalance the machine's tensions as follows: The upper tension is tightened, and the lower tension is loosened, to the point where the lower thread rises to the surface in a gimp-like effect when the machine is operated rapidly, and the fabric is moved slowly. The presser foot is removed, as it is for the outline stitch described below. Put in dark shadings first to bring out the form of the outlined motif.

1. You transfer this design to organdy, color with crayon, stitch it in silk on velvet backed with felt. First place the organdy over the tracing pattern, and trace clearly. Color the entire motif with wax crayons. Then press with steam to set colors and prevent smearing. This tracing on organdy acts as a reinforcement for the dense stitching which follows

2. Place velvet on top of felt, pile side up, then place organdy with transferred and colored design over this. Felt backing is essential here since it provides the firmness needed when stitching without presser foot. Baste all three fabrics together with silk thread, using diagonal stitches across fabrics

3. Use sewing silk for both bobbin and upper threading. A size 14 sewing-machine needle accommodates thread and fabric. Tensions are same as for regular stitching when outlining. For filling-in, use "Signature" stitch (see text). For both, remove presser foot, drop feed, set stitch regulator at neutral

Machine

We made a full-size tracing pattern of these full-blown roses, and included instructions for embroidering on your sewing machine. Try it on velvet, as we did, or try it on other fabrics to use as you'd use needlepoint—for footstools, chair backs, etc. Your local Singer Sewing Center demonstrates the whole process on this very pattern. (American Home Pattern 1458)

SEE PATTERN ORDER FORM ON PAGE 93

4. Place fabric under needle. Lower presser-bar lifter to put upper tension in action. Holding the needle thread in left hand, turn balance wheel forward until needle brings up bobbin thread. Position needle in fabric. Operate machine slowly and evenly. Control fabric with tips of fingers

5. Move evenly to form outline of design. Do one section at a time. Then fill in shaded areas, using "Signature" stitch to shape and express design.

Edges should be irregular to permit blending and shading next colors. Thread ends are tied on wrong side or concealed by stitching as work progresses

6. As work progresses, use curved nail scissors to trim organdy from design outline before solid areas are complete. Trimming lets you conceal frayed edges with stitches. Leave organdy on the background until the entire embroidery is finished

With SPRING on your mind

f you live where winters are white—and love them so—you'll soon share the delights of the cold, clear crispness with the early crocus and the snowdrop, those engaging and prescient citizens of winter whose mood is so in tune with your own. And if you live where winters are mild, there's a new softness in the air, a new lilt to your walk, now that another year is upon us—and you're grateful once again to the generous climate which brings spring so soon, and so richly.
But wherever you live, on fine days the first hints of spring in the air and on the ground stop you short. The earlyblooming branches can be coaxed into flower now, and it's time to bring a few indoors to make their magic season so much longer. So say good-by to the polished ruit, to the evergreen sprays, to serve you again in fruit, to the evergreen sprays, to which have served you so well, and will their own season. Now's the time to pledge the new year with something fresh—and these two arrangements are ideal for such celebration. In most parts of the country, a visit to your florist can furnish the makings if your own plantings cannot. Use some unopened hyacinths—two for one as

you watch the lovely chartreuse buds turn into brilliant, blossoms. For the centerpiece at your right, use tulips in bud, with forced flowering quince—the tulips will open later and last long, but a few may be opened right now by the warmth of your hand if you press the petals gently. Or, for a sunny scheme, use forsythia and daffodils this way. To force branches, pick them after a freeze, crush their stems, and put them in deep water in a dark, cool place for a few days before exposing them gradually to heat and light, and spray occasionally to prevent their drying.

eet a Cinderella-Meissen china in the Onion pattern, one of the freshest, brightest, most appealing-and most ancient -chinaware patterns there is. It's highly prized by collectors today-and no wonder! But it wasn't always so. In well-to-do households in Germany where it was made, the sturdy, clean-cut, blue and white of Meissen Onion was everyone's favorite-for everyday use. But come Sunday, gaudier, flower bedecked, gilt-edged wares took its place-while our Cinderella looked on from the kitchen. However, the Onion's lineage was the most distinguished of them all: it was the first dinnerware pattern used on true porcelain in Europe. For centuries Europeans had admired the fineness, the thinness, and the smoothness of Chinese porcelain, and tried in vain to imitate it. Finally the secret was mastered by one Johann Böttger, an alchemist in the service of the Elector of Saxony, who, in 1710, opened the West's first porcelain factory at Meissen, near Dresden. And here the Onion pattern was soon born. Or rather, reborn-for these early porcelain makers looked to China for pattern inspiration as well as for the porcelain formula itself, and the Onion pattern was an old Chinese motif, beautifully adapted to western wares. It was so dearly beloved that they kept right on making the Onion at Meissen through the centuries—but always in limited quantities, so that it's hard to come by today. Mrs. Harold Ruben of Beverly Hills is a Meissen collector whose diligence has been well rewarded. as the examples we show you herewith testify eloquently.

IF I WORE A VEST, I'd be popping the buttons this month, and no fooling. For one reason, I am just plain proud of our Cheapies Club members. Though we can't begin to use all the recipes that you sent in to us, it was a wonderful thing to read and test them and find out what darned smart members we have in our club! That testing, now, is still another of my reasons for popping my vest, for good food isn't apt to be slimming!

That Santa Claus gent is truly one smart cookie, for he manages to get for himself all the credit of giving, and is safely re-ensconced at that North Pole before those Christmas bills start coming in. Never was there a month when Cheapies were so desperately needed as this one! And we have five swell ones for you, all from fellow members, too. The Cradle is one of those ideas which makes you mad-wishing you had thought it up yourself. Basically, it is a creamed left-over made from whatever you happen to have on hand. It's the presentation of it which is so noteworthy. This simple but wonderful trick is to split lengthwise a loaf of Italian bread, and pour the creamed mixture into it. Cover with cheese and brown, and there you have a guest-worthy main dish. This reminds me of a Cinderella tale, this recipe—and the long loaves of bread are so much easier to come by than fairy godmothers! Fricasseed Potatoes are one of the "regulars" now at my house.

Company or just plain family, these provide the variety, the flavor, the glamor we like to have. Incidentally, you can get this all ready to bake, then let it stand two or three hours without its discoloring.

Any Jam Cake means just what it says-you can do it with whichever flavor of jam your family prefers. This is not a fluffy cake; it is a good oldfashioned country loaf cake. Slices with fruit are grand-that is, if you can keep your small fry out of it for that long. And your menfolk.

Here are but five-and there are many more coming in future issues. So you can see why I feel so proud of our members. Being a Cheapies cook means being so many things. It's not just grimly licking the budget problem. It's not merely serving adequate nutrition. Above all, it's not just "feeding your face" -awful, but apt, expression in so many cases. These three are done by us, but they are like learning the scales or finger exercises when you learn to play the piano. A "must," but then comes the fun of it all. For we get fun out of our cooking, we Cheapies cooks, and well deserved satisfaction.

Winter is upon us, and I made a note to myself to be sure to remind you of tomato aspics. Tomatoes do reach a pretty low ebb in taste and a high price, so don't forget that this is a good time for whipping a bit of color into your salads via tomato aspic. Don't save them for summer when tomatoes are cheapyou need them now, too!

If left-over hot cereals worry you, try this oldie: Cook up a little sausage and mix well with the cereal, then chill-slice, dust with flour, and fry it for the next morning's breakfast. And soups. Instead of making a "stingie" of them, toss things into the pot with a bit more recklessness, and have yourself a delicious Cheapie dinner, not just a soup. Too, when salads go uneaten for lack of available variety for "makings" switch them to a first course, before appetites lose their heartiness, before something better is in sight!

Paradise Rice came to us un-named, but was unanimously christened with that name by every taster. It is only fair to pass on to you the warning that came with it-don't cheat on the butter! And no reason to do so, for actually it is a most inexpensive main dish. The grated cheese cooks into a marvelous sauce. There just aren't words for this one; it is a case of tasting is believing. If your holiday entertaining is incomplete, here is an easy way to make a sensation, and one which won't break your piggy-bank.

TIPS ON CUTTING

With a twist of the wrist—and a turning of the knife—you can have real variety of shapes in the plainest of sandwiches. Here are nine patterns to follow! For easier cutting, hold the sandwich together with the thumb and first finger of one hand, then with a very sharp knife in the other hand, cut the sandwich in sections

Sandwich

For closed and open-faced sandwiches use fresh bread with a rather firm texture; for roll and pinwheel sandwiches, use fresh bread with a rather soft texture. So that sandwiches will be of uniform appearance with even edges, use adjacent slices of bread. Soften butter or margarine for easy, economical spreading, then spread to the very edges of the slices of bread. Melted butter or margarine makes a soggy sandwich, as does jelly, mayonnaise, or salad dressing-when using any of the latter, spread bread first with the creamed butter. High-color ingredients such as chopped pimientoes, eggs, olives, and pickles are a mighty easy way to get the plus of eye appeal. Try keeping fillings in shallow, easilycovered dishes rather than tall jars, so that it will be unnecessary to take the filling out of a long, narrow jar. A spatula is ideal for spreading fillings-has more bend than a knife. When spreading sandwiches for a crowd-and it's a cue worth using even when making sandwiches that go into the daily lunchbox-line up the slices of bread in pairs. Spread like fillings on alternate rows of bread in one operation, allowing about one-third cup filling per sandwich. Make all of one type of sandwich at the same time. Stack two or three sandwiches, and cut them all at once with a sharp bread knife. Sandwiches made up in advance should be stored in the refrigerator, but don't plan to keep them more than 24 hours. Sandwiches can be frozen in your home

SANDWICH MAKING ...

freezer and kept for several months. Allow about one hour's thawing time at room temperature. All varieties of bread will freeze well. The best fillings for frozen sandwiches are peanut butter, Cheddar, American, or cream cheese, sliced or ground meat, fish, or chicken. Egg salad and sliced eggs do not freeze well because the egg white becomes tough. We suggest not using mayonnaise, jelly, or preserves in sandwiches to be made and refrigerated or frozen unless peanut butter or cream cheese is spread clear to the edge of the bread before spreading with these fillings. Sliced tomato and lettuce should be tucked in just before serving, not before refrigerating or freezing. With a bit of imagination in combining ingredients, sandwiches can be extra-special eating. Try these combinations for the lunchbox, in-between-meal snacks, or for your next party menu (each combination makes filling for 4-6 sandwiches): 3-oz. package cream cheese and 1/3 cup canned cranberry sauce; 1/2 cup chopped dates, 1/2 cup peanut butter, 1/4 cup mayonnaise; 3/4 cup cottage cheese and 1/4 cup apple butter; 3/4 cup liver sausage, 2 chopped, hard-cooked eggs, 2 tbs. mayonnaise and I ths. chopped onion; I 3-oz. package cream cheese, 1/3 cup peanut butter, 1 tbs. orange juice, 1 tsp. grated orange rind, I cup canned beans in tomato sauce, 1/4 cup chopped, cooked bacon, 2 tbs. chopped pickle relish, 2 tbs. mayonnaise; 1/4 cup chopped avocado, ¼ cup mayonnaise, 1 tbs. lemon juice, ½ cup chopped cooked shrimp.

Idea: Cannon Homemaking Institute

Would you think a dozen dish towels could dress up a kitchen so well—all for about $5 and very little effort? Curtains are made from four towels, two for each side: sew rings on top, and you don't need to hem them. For four place mats, cut two towels in half and fringe the borders. Four chair-pad covers were cut from one towel each; half made the bottom, half made the top. The apron uses two towels—straps, pockets, and bib are cut from one, the lower part uses another. Bias tape trims the apron, binds the chair-pad covers, and the tie-ons for the chair pads.

In planning your new home to fit your budget, you will profit greatly by studying the scores of professionally planned homes in the 4-Square Home Building Service. The latest addition to this helpful Service is shown above.

Each of these homes was designed by a leading architect who shaped and blended materials effectively for beauty, style, comfort and lasting value. Weyerhaeuser has engineered each home for durability and structural economy.

You are welcome to study and use this Service without charge at the office of your local Weyerhaeuser 4-Square Lumber Dealer. See all the homes, colorfully illustrated . . . ramblers, colonials, low-pitched moderns, and many others, in a wide range of sizes and floor plans. Among them you will see the home that exactly fits your style preference and your family needs. Blueprints are available.

The coupon below will bring you a book illustrating over 50 of the designs in the Service, a folder describing the home shown above, and the latest edition of the helpful book "Professional Pointers for Home Planners".

MODERN TRADITION

Flexscreen has become a modern tradition — on today's modern and traditional fireplaces. That's because its loveliness, convenience and safety enhance any hearth . . . because there's a Flexscreen that's right for every home.

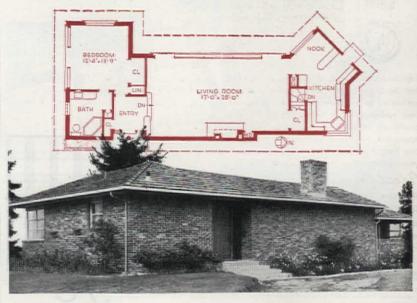

There's only one Flexscreen. It's the original wovenmetal fire curtain, with exclusive Unipull (the curtains glide open or closed at the touch of one hand). Positively spark-proof, yet its sheer beauty drapes your fires with a graceful charm that's sure to be envied.

There's a selection of beautifully styled attached Flexscreens—or you may have Flexscreen in a movable frame, if you prefer. Just insist on the Flexscreen label—at better stores everywhere. Write us for your catalog, at 153 Water Street.

OWNERS: MR. AND MRS. LEON A. SNOW ARCHITECT: HARRY E. NORDQUIST

A lot of people have the idea that a small house must automatically have small rooms. Well, this little brick home of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Snow says it just isn't so. The single 12'4" x 13'9" bedroom is a good deal larger than many so-called "master bedrooms" you'll run across in bigger homes, and the 17' x 28' living room is rated big in any league. Good planning, of course, has helped to make this house feel bigger than it actually is. The living room is neatly centered between kitchen and bedroom, with entry hall off to one side and a single step up, giving to the living room a maximum feeling of size. High ceiling and exposed rafters are used to give this room proper proportions. The house has also been planned for easy expansion so it will serve equally well for a family just getting started or as a retirement house.

To ensure privacy and quiet from the street, most of the windows are at the rear, facing the garden. Living-room window wall and the angled window of the dining nook face large brick terrace shown at the top of the page. You can look out at the garden from the bedroom, but can't see into the bedroom from the terrace. Louvered panels which roof the terrace were especially designed by the owner—they may be regulated to give complete shade when desired

Old Hat Rooms

Large dining room in the same house was always a dual-purpose room, but since its modernization, it does several jobs with more grace. Before remodeling, window seats were so narrow that an old sofa turned its back upon them, and the room was awkward to furnish. Now the complex of windows and pillars has been replaced by one enormous picture window and a long seat, wide enough to double as a guest bed. Redwood cabinets built under the other windows enhance the appearance and multiply the usefulness of the room. As in the living room, the ceiling beams and the molding have been removed to make the room seem years younger, and flush ceiling lights over the dining table furnish excellent modern illumination. The color scheme of soft green and rose spiked with copper is similar to that of the living room.

of view along with their new fabrics and furniture. The redwood paneling was stripped of its dark finish and returned to its natural color, and the walls and ceiling were painted dark green. The ceiling light and wall brackets were replaced by modern cove lighting. The bulky ceiling molding disappeared, as did the clumsy platform around the base of the fireplace. Instead of breaking up the wall area, the windows are now unified by soft sheer curtains which admit plenty of light though they're used wall-to-wall. The new color scheme of rose-beige, green, and copper now creates a restfulness the former profusion of conflicting patterns and stripes never could foster.

Matched For Effect

Don't know where to begin? Co-ordinated paper and fabrics do the job

Thanks to a lot of good planning on the part of a manufacturer, this inviting little room almost decorated itself. An identical floral print is used on wallpaper and glazed chintz, while its predominating colors-mauve, pink, pale green, and yellow-are available in faille

The wallpaper and five fabrics in this co-ordinated group would be effective in any combination. Here the print takes over on walls, at windows, and for the bed skirt, while the solid-color failles furnish the accent. Pale green upholsters the headboard and makes the bed throw, and pillows of pink and of yellow are the grace notes. The chair in the top picture is slip-covered in the mauve, punctuated with a pink cushion

Spring on your Mind

Use slender Haitian mahogany tray on simple carved wood base (for interest and lightness) and protect it from water stain by setting cup pin holder on irregular piece of dark-colored blotting paper. (1) Cover this with sphagnum moss laid in a rythmic or S curve, and place in holder a spray of forced Japanese quince not more than 14 inches tall. (2) Add shorter sprays, inserting them as close as possible to base

(3) Add tulips—partly open and even in green bud stage—on different length stems in spiral design, with foliage curved to follow lines of branches. Loop larger leaves and tuck tips in at base. Open one or three tulips by gently pressing petals back; cut their stems to 1 to 3 inches; place them low, close to main stem line as a focal point. Water should last 24 hours and, if replenished daily, keep arrangement fresh for two weeks if material was pre-conditioned in deep container (top picture). Forsythia and daffodils make charming yellow effect

Spring on your Mind

Hyacinths, jaunty as a new spring bonnet, and stalks of iris buds are used here with pachysandra tips a modern milk-glass compote. Buy pots of hyacinths in bud stage for longer life and fascinating chartreuse bud colors. To prevent the succulent stems from curling when cut, wrap ends with cellulose tape or wire to short green sticks for additional strength. Loop leaves, wire ends together for an inch or so

Anchor cup pin holder in compote with inconspicuous green modeling ay. Start design with spike of white or blue iris (in bud) to establish highest wint. (2) Arrange heavy, open hyacinth flowers at different levels, but low, ouping colors for distinctive effect. (3) Use the fat chartreuse hyacinth ads even lower, then insert the looped leaves in a sort of ribbon-bow fect around the base, being sure their ends are in water. Finish the arngement with a few end sprigs of pachysandra (Japanese spurge) or other ft, graceful evergreen foliage around base to give depth and stability

Much Ado About Datura

The interesting reader response to an article, "Our Debt to Datura," in the August, 1949, AMERICAN Home, seems to warrant more discussion of the striking plant called, because of its big white flowers, "angels-trumpet" and, because of its spiny seed pods, "thorn-apple." The handsome, bushy, annual species (D. meteloides) pictured in our story is apparently well known and widely grown in gardens, but a number of readers sought or offered information about other forms, including the wild D. stramonium, known as jimson (or Jamestown)-weed.

From Chicago Dr. W. D. McNally, chemist and toxicologist, wrote: "As several hundred accidental poisonings have occurred from the eating of seeds or other parts of the dommon jimson-weed, either by children taking the seeds for caraway seeds or adults mistaking the plant for greens or dried herbs. I believe you should publish a warning regarding this 'humble weed that is beautiful and easy to grow in gardens.'

A warning is justified, even though D. stramonium is hardly beautiful and rarely cultivated. Also it does have defenders. Mrs. J. M. Stoker, of Ohio, has plants in her garden whose leaves she dries and stores in paper bags. For, she says, "To me it's a miracle plant as it saved my life after three doctors gave me up to die. I had what they called inflammation of the bowels and was unconscious. When they left, saying they had done all they could, an 80-year-old neighbor asked if she could try an old family remedy. My folks assenting, she kept hot jimson-weed poultices on me all night. By morning, the swelling had gone down and next day I knew the folks again. When our doctor came, he was speechless. . . . I still use such poultices when I have quinsy to take out the inflammation.

"To make them, I soften the dried leaves in warm water, squeeze out all the water I can, and fry them in an iron skillet in enough fresh hog's lard to keep them moist, put them in a flannel bag made to cover the affected place, sew up the end, and steam the poultice as hot as it can be borne.

Datura

"I also make salve by cooking t leaves in lard until all the good out of them, squeezing them we straining the lard, adding a few dro of carbolic acid, and keeping it a jar in a cool place. We use it cuts, burns, and ivy poisoning. friend tells me that his father wou crush green jimson-weed leaves in l hand, dip them in cold water and l them under the horses' pads to cu sore shoulders in no time.'

Similar evidence came from Re S. E. Tull of Arkansas. When he w a farm boy in Mississippi, "a jimso weed poultice bound to a boy's fo or toes would kill the 'ground-itch' other infections over night. But t main use for the hard, prickly bu or pods was to put under an broody hen to break her of 'settin'

In his garden he also grows suaveolens, a tender tropical tree-ty species which he propagates from cu tings indoors. A plant will attain height and spread of 10 to 12 and a trunk diameter of 3 in. in o season. If all suckers are trimm off, a handsome tree will result. Ear in October the white flowers, 12 long and 9 in. across, begin to ope staying on the tree a whole wee folding up in the daytime, but night filling the air with a fragran like magnolia.

From Dr. R. Milton Carleton Chicago, we obtained facts about fastuosum, a species found around sites of ancient Inca temple operati room platforms in the Andes. In the surgical work, the priests employ strong concoctions of Datura as anesthetic. Drinking them, patier soon became numb, then went into deep coma for several days.

O. A. Marsh of Connecticut war to know how to keep the flower when cut, alive long enough to enj them. With him, "they droop aft 24 hours just as on the tree." We that seems to be their way and don't know how to change it. Bu considering their beauty, doesn't hours seem enough to ask of them?

As it was-a weed-ridden lower lawn of no particular shape framed by nondescript bushes incapable of hiding the house next door, especially from the upper level from which this picture was taken. Inadequate stepping stones between living-room door and service area; a hard-to-care-for border along the stark retaining wall at the back, and equally harsh concrete steps between the two levels. Contrast the larger picture, taken from about the same angle after the transformation (shown in three stages)

now their Backyard is a garden for living

DRIVEWAY TO GARAGE

ike Mr. Finley's famous turnip, the garden that was formerly in the rear of the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Dickson in Piedmont, California, "grew and it grew, and it didn't do no harm." H But it didn't do much good either, as far as giving them what they wanted was concerned. Actually, it was just a typical 60' x 50' city backyard with some unhappy grass and some shrubs and flowers, all planted at random. There was no outdoor living space, no privacy, nothing much to look at because there had been no planning, no forethought when it was planted. To complicate matters, it sloped steeply upward to the rear (south), and the house and yard to the east crowded in upon it. What the Dicksons wanted was a fairly large patio for leisurely living and entertaining, and which would also serve as a play area for the children. The problem was entrusted to the San Francisco firm of Osmundson (Theodore, Jr.) and Staley (John H., Jr.), PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 86

CITY

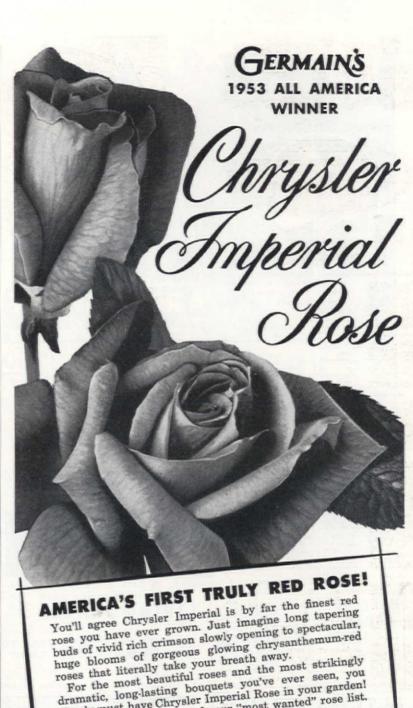

With the patio area leveled and its pattern laid out, 2" x 4" redwood headers were held in place by being nailed to firmly driven stakes. The four posts at the left are the framework of a redwood plant box beside which two broad steps enter the patio as the concrete is poured between the redwood strips. Note the four pipe supports for the future trumpet-vine trellis, the plant box, left open at the bottom for drainage, and, in the foreground, the top of the new, higher redwood retaining wall

Garden for Living

A. S. L. A., and solved as shown in the plan reproduced above, which was carried out by a contractor at a total cost of $1,437 which includes $140 for planting and a $150 landscape-architecture fee. Not only is the result thoroughly usable, enjoyable, and lovely to look at, but also the maintenance requirements are relatively small for the size of the garden, as the flower beds are all within areas outlined by walls or redwood edging strips.

Maximum use was made of the space outside the living room by leveling it all the way out to the abrupt slope and paving it with concrete laid inside squares marked off by 2" x 4" redwood headers set on edge. However, in the southeast corner, a small semicircular portion was made into lawn to soften the effect.

At the rear, a new and higher redwood retaining wall was built to support the upper part of the garden which also was leveled and made accessible by a flight of redwood steps. In front of the retaining wall on the patio level, a curving brick wall 18" high defines the patio area, provides a convenient seat, and supports a raised bed of flowers and shrubs.

Along the whole eastern side of the garden, a 6' screen fence of redwood grape stakes (an effective and very satisfactory, but often misused, material) hides much of the adjoining property. A 6" high, round-topped brick wall partially separates the patio from the service area, and the latter from another bit of lawn. The service area is further set off by a 6' vertical grid frame of 2" x 6" redwood. Potted plants on the horizontal members help to screen off the clothes reel beyond. Shade is supplied by a trellis attached to the house and already covered with trumpet-vines. Four pipes embedded in the concrete on a line extending the east wall of the living room support the trellis. Also a good-sized maple tree was planted in the patio and a smaller peach tree in the tiny grass plot. For the rest, the planting is mostly of flowers, for enjoyment outdoors and indoors

Trumpet-vines on a pipe-supported trellis shade the living-room door and part of the patio. Beyond the pipes is the redwood grid that screens off the service area proper planting and care. Sunlight for half each day and at least an average good soil are musts. Make a roomy hole a foot deep; dig humus and well rotted manure into next foot of soil and mix thoroughly; support bush in hole with graft swelling (union) at soil level, and roots spread out naturally, in cone shape and in all directions, as shown in sketch above

Start filling in topsoil, working it around and between roots with fingers or blunt stick (second view). Add more, firming it well with the hands, then by treading, until hole is about three-quarters full. Pour on a pail or so of water, and let it sink in before filling hole level full with soil which is left loose, not firmed. Don't use fertilizer at planting time; save it for surface feeding later on when plants are growing well

Mound up soil 6" to 10" high around each plant to prevent drying and dying of canes while roots take hold, and (after spring planting) until new growth starts. In fall, after ground freezes, cover mounds with straw or other litter to keep soil frozen and prevent injury from alternate thawing and freezing MORE ON PAGE 88

About frost time, prune canes of newly planted and old bush roses to 2' to 3' to prevent winter wind breakage. Delay real pruning until spring (before growth starts), when it can be severe or light, depending on which school you follow

Come spring, remove winter mulch and, as growth starts, the mounds of soil; but do it gradually. Prune out any dead wood; give first (preventive) spraying or dusting; work plant food application into soil, and water well

Keep soil loose (and weeds down) by cultivating, or with thick, loose mulch; when necessary, water deeply; dust or spray often, covering both leaf surfaces

For fewer-but larger and finerexhibition-type blooms, "disbud." That is, pinch out small side buds (indicated by pencil) so the large terminal bud will make maximum growth. This may stimulate growth of buds in lower leaf axils, which, also, should be rubbed off as soon as seen. A second ration of plant food applied (in accordance with the manufacturer's directions) when the plants start coming into bloom, will be definitely beneficial

Cut blooms at right stage (before buds open fully), and properly. Get a good, long stem for effect, but leave at least two leaves on the parent shoot. Use sharp knife or shears; cut, slantwise, just above a leaf on outer side of the cane. As shoot arises from bud in that leaf axil it will grow outward and help develop an open-headed bush

In Winter Plant with an Ax

Clear your land wisely and you'll get better landscaping—cheaper

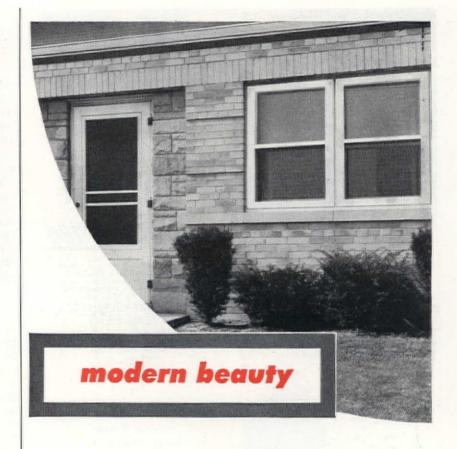

ADELE ERISMAN

It's common practice these days to bulldoze a building site before construction work starts. In many cases it would be far better—aesthetically more satisfying and economically more profitable—to think twice about ruthlessly destroying all the trees and "worthless brush." For one thing, compacting the soil with heavy machinery makes uncongenial conditions for the roots of trees, shrubs, and lawn grasses. Again, hidden among the growth that contractors consider a nuisance to be gotten rid of as quickly as possible may be plants that you will long for when, on starting your landscaping, you have to replace them at considerable cost. Also, judicious thinning can produce or frame many lovely vistas, as in the instance illustrated in the pictures on this page.

Friends of ours who bought two wooded acres on a rocky hillside and "landscaped" them by leaving winding paths, clumps of bushes, little groves of trees, and an occasional single specimen shrub, have now, at a fraction of what it would have cost to grade and plant, a home lovely with flowers and ferny dells, birds and berried branches. There are no formal beds and borders

PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 90

With either masonry or frame construction, fine wood windows complement architectural lines. Like good carpeting and quality furniture, they create an impression of warmth and hospitality.

Among modern windows, R.O.Ws are outstanding. Snug-glide construction insures a pressurized fit during all seasons. And—only R.O.Ws have the patented R.O.W lift-out feature—allowing safe and convenient washing—inside the house.

Plant with an Ax (Begins on page 89)

to be invaded by weeds, no lawns to fuss with; but there's plenty of shade in summer when it is needed and sunlight helps to warm the house in winter. Their upstairs living room is like a "tree house," with a view into the interesting realm of leaves and birds.

You see, they did their landscaping, their "planting," mostly with an ax, which is a tool of great possibilities when judiciously handled. And they have something that couldn't have been duplicated by the cleverest landscape architect starting with an expanse of bare, bulldozed land because every plant belongs where it is. It grew, thrived, and was happy because Nature had put it there. All they bought were some good saws, axes, pruners, ladders, etc., and a book or two on how, when, and why to prune and on how to recognize, appraise, and make the most of good trees, shrubs, and other plants. They also had a Government bulletin that tells what trees to thin in a wood lot, and how to do it-gradually, so as to prevent excessive drying out of the soil from sudden exposure to unaccustomed sunlight and wind. They learned to identify the various plants and how to make the desirable ones more vigorous and attractive by wise pruning, thinning, and feeding. In effect, they did a large-scale "weeding" job, removing the overcrowding. less desirable species so as to make room for the valuable, wanted ones.

A wild hedgerow may be a gold mine of shrubs and shrub effects. Many a plant that we destroy as a weed or because we do not recognize it, has potential value. My nursery catalogue lists, "White swamp azalea, balled and burlapped, $4 each"-yet that is a common plant in wet soils where blueberries abound. Also "Downy shadblow, 2-3 ft., 75 cents"; that is the little wayside shadbush with gray, striped stems and early, lacy white blossoms. And "Bayberry, 18-24 in., $1.00." So we look at the bayberry clumps on our land with new respect and a calculating eye. And the same with dogwoods, etc.

So it's good business to learn what's on your property before you start clearing it. Then, with your new knowledge, protect your plant assets. Don't cut them down, root them out, make a bonfire of themand then start from scratch by buying other things that may never do as well as the original inhabitants.

(Of course, if you have to start with bare land, you can enjoy another kind of fun-that of planting with a spade. -HORTICULTURAL EDITOR)

A Newly Planted Tree Needs a Good Guy

he objective is to hold it upright and steady while it develops a lot of new tiny feeding (and drinking) rootlets to replace those unavoidably damaged or destroyed when it was dug. If the tree sways, they may not survive to transfer essential moisture and food from soil to hungry tree. Here are pointers on how-and how not-to guy a good-sized tree.

Give support in three, not one or two, directions. Use stout, firmly set posts and strong wire. Lead wire through hose where it encircles trunk. Wrapping of burlap prevents winter sun scald

If possible, don't plant a tree with a crotch like this. If you must, guy the two branches so the fork will be pulled together so as to lessen the chance of its splitting and ruining the tree
