ON THE COVER: This issue is all about color, and this living room, in which almost everything is white, has the expectant feeling of a stage. Color is about to give a great performance. Working with the tools on the floor-pads of paper, pencils, ruler, address file, and House & Garden Color swatches, decorator Tom Britt will show you how you can vary the personality of a room by varying one color scheme. Turn to page 98 to see the room chart the changes. The sectional sofa and ottoman are slipcovered with fresh white cotton canvas. By Guild Furniture for Lord & Taylor. Folding canvas deck chairs are from Lord & Taylor, too. Robert Natkin's Faust Laughs, lent by The André Emmerich Gallery, hangs over the armless sofa. Single shots of brilliant color spark all that white-linen and cotton solid-colored pillow fabric by Brunschwig & Fils. Glass table on a movable acrylic base from Les Prismatiques. Gray lacquered cube lamp table from Karl Springer. To order your 1977 set of House & Garden color chips, see page 38.

The Farallones Institute, affiliated with Antioch College West in Berkeley, Cal., is teaching city people with backyards how to live economically. In a renovated Victorian villa, the public can see new systems for living—food and vegetable production, recycling of house waste materials, and solar heating—and students work towards a master's degree in Ecosystem Management. The Institute's house and garden is a study in economy of means. Not one inch is wasted in the small outdoor area. Animal pens hold enough rabbits and chickens to supply four resident college researchers with fresh meat and eggs. Beehives providing honey are set on platforms above a pond for raising fish. Waste water from the Japanese bathtub in the house flows into the pond "to supply a nutrient source for the growth of algae on which fish feed." Other household water irrigates the garden. Even the fencing around the yard is put to use—supporting vines and espaliered fruit trees. Compost bins, collecting organic wastes from house, garden, and animal pens, are everywhere. For more detailed information, write Integral Urban House, Farallones Institute, 1516 Fifth St., Berkeley, Cal. 94710.

Smoke gets in your eyes

In Regine's dramatically red, tiered discotheque (more about the club, page 118), every detail is thought out—down to the last cigarette. The aubergine-lacquered tables (designed by Regine in Paris) have built-in metal water containers. Cigarette butts and ashes are dropped straight into the water. There's less smoke in the air; waiters are saved the bother of emptying overflowing ashtrays.

Grove House is one of the largest and most successful artists' cooperatives in the country, headquartered in a spacious loft in Coconut Grove, Miami, Fla. Its fall season opens with Four in Color, September 7, showing weaving, pottery, and graphics. The coop, directed by lively former gallery owner Thyrza Jacocks, is a haven for craftspeople across Florida. Mrs. Jacocks keeps the coop afloat with an enterprising program of exhibitions, workshops, and crafts classes. "Today there's increasing interest in crafts and one-of-a-kind earthy objects," she says. Prices vary from a $3 mug to a $500 rug.

Porter Bibb (Doubleday, $4.95). Says Mr. Bibb: "It's easy to dismiss CB as a fad, but I think it's here to stay. It will be as important at home as it is now in cars. Women living alone, for example, are going to find it helpful for emergency assistance." CB started with longdistance truckdrivers striking up conversations between themselves over two-way radio sets, to beat loneliness on the road. Today CB sets-from $150 to $500-are available to all, allow you to speak over 23 channels. You can be heard over a 25-mile radius. All CB owners must have their own "handle" or name, otherwise no one will listen, says Bibb. "Barry Goldwater is The General, publisher Nelson Doubleday is Bookworm, Mohammed Ali is Big Bopper, Betty Ford is First Momma. All are big CB fans." And Bibb? An enterprising author, publisher, and film maker, his "handle" is Easy Money.

Good talk about architecture

When critic and art historian Brendan Gill and architect Philip Johnson come together, you can be sure of a lively conversation . . . exactly what happened recently when Peter Eisenman, director of New York's Institute for Architecture and Urban Studies, asked them to talk about public architectural education programs. Gill led off. "To make the city as good and strong as we all want it to be, it's going to take a lot more knowledge on the part of all of us," he said. "Amateurs like I, who belong to community boards, preservation societies, or the Landmarks Conservancy are going to have to learn more about planning and building; otherwise we are going to go on stumbling and fumbling and making mistakes." Replied Johnson: "I don't like the word education myself. I left school in order that I could be educated. I learned everything outside and afterward. But if we don't have public education, then architects simply can't build buildings-it's as simple as that." Such dialogues are not unusual at the Institute. Under the energetic leadership of Eisenman and Peter Wolf, it is expanding its public education program to include a master's degree course for nonprofessionals, starting in two years. Meanwhile, it is opening a fifth series of evening courses for students, professionals, and nonprofessionls this fall. Courses under the direction of Andrew McNair include Architecture of the Fifties, from Eisenhower to Kennedy; an introduction to design; and New Challenges for the Architectural Profession, given by Brendan Gill. Each course is $70 for 10 weeks. The Institute is at 8 West 40th St., New York, N.Y. 10018

Teamwork

GORDON MORIOKA

On camera, architectural design team on Dayton river project.

In Dayton, Ohio, the local TV station has launched a first in audiparticipation programs. ence Viewers phone in their ideas about local city design to a team of architects. Charles Moore and his associate Chadwick Floyd, head of Moore Grover Harper's Dayton office, are behind this idea. The project under the scrutiny of the TV camera, Riverdesign Dayton, involves a 31/2-mile development of the Great Miami River. Viewers are asked how best it can be designed for use and enjoyment by all. Mr. Floyd has also set up an open office for 2 hours a day, so people can drop by with additional thoughts. A resounding success. "So far, we've incorporated 110 workable ideas from local people into the scheme," he says.

In Canada, a plethora of pâtés

No cuisine minceur here

If ever there was a weekend wingding that resulted in overweight, it was the Salon-Dégustation, organized by the Association Touristique des Laurentides in April to show just how good French-Canadian cuisine in the Laurentians is. Chefs from leading hotels tried to outdo each other in culinary excellence. The tables at the Hotel Chantecler at Saint-Adèle groaned with delectable salmons, hams, turkeys, eels, pâtés, truffles galore. Next day gourmets continued to feast on quail's eggs, salmon, native cheese. Fortunately the Laurentians do offer activities to counteract the calorie overload, notably skiing, tennis, swimming.

Bonaire's briny deep

Windward ho!

Lying like stepping stones off the coast of Venezuela are three Windward Islands-Aruba, Bon-aire, and Curação. To appreciate Bonaire, you must be ready for quieter pleasures. Such as: a walk at sunset along the coral-banked shore to watch for flamingos rising from shallow salt ponds. They steer a course directly overhead, all neck, trailing legs, and shocking pink wings, and head out to sea, barely clearing the ocean swells. Many flamingos make this flight every night and no one is absolutely certain of their destination. Happily they return each dawn, to the sanctuary that protects their breeding grounds. Marine life is protected, too, in Bonaire. Spearfishing is prohibited—so snorkelers and scuba divers find an underwater paradise. Another example of Bonaire's enlightened ecological ways is a 5,000-acre national park named after Washington, D.C. It bristles with tall cactus and reminds visitors of Arizona, until they return to their beachside hotel to sit beneath a thatched roof shelter, with a cool drink and watch the sun's splashdown into the sea. Bonaire has one main street, in Kralendijk, the pastel-tinted, faintly Dutch capital. Best hotel choices are the Hotel Bonaire and the Flamingo Beach Hotel, both on the water. The Bonaire is headquarters for scuba-diving instruction, equipment, guided dive trips. It has the island's one casino. The best restaurant is the Beefeater in Kralendijk. Travel to Bonaire is by jet from Aruba or Curação. KLM "Free Spree in the Sun" tours from New York and Miami for 8 days and nights start at $77 (plus air fare) and include 13 free specials, such as sightseeing and one-day car rental.

Parisian chic and Parisian cuisine have combined happily in "Le Square du Printemps," the restaurant that adorns Printemps, the popular department store on Boulevard Haussmann. On the top floor, the restaurant is domed by a huge cupola of paneled stained glass windows. You find yourself looking up at an enormous, glorious Tiffany lampshade, rather than down at the menu prices, which are reasonable. Created in 1923 by the master of stained glass windows, Brière, the cupola was disassembled in 1940 and stored for years. Recently restored by Brière's grandson, the cupola, made of 3,185 glass panels of green and blue flowers, is a glass garden 23 feet high, 65 feet wide. Circling the tables are food boutiques designed by the 3-star restaurant, Maxim's. Cafeteria style, open 9:30-6:30, daily except Sunday.LOUISE HARDIE

We gardeners must be alive to hazards caused by unexpected weather -late or early frost, dry, wet, too slow or nonexistent springs, the tropics of summer (which frequently include hailstorms), and, worst of all, powerful winds. In some instances you must use your shears rigorously after such winds. When a young golden willow had its lowest lateral wrenched during a bitter August howler, I had the obvious choice of a clean lon. But where it had touched the ground, a swift and lovely curve had been made and so I pegged it there with earth and a few ample stones. Filler and tape repaired its fracture at the main trunk and the wounded tip rooted quickly. I thus had a very gracious bridge of living bark. You may use the same approach with toppled annuals, which keel over when past their prime. I let them root where they've tumbled and then sever them from the parent. When a March gale took the wisteria from the studio wall and hurled it to the ground, it looked fine, pruned back low and very short. It has become fatly gnarled and in its turnings reminds me of a perfect but crooked branch of plum blossoms flung across one of the more exotic Chinese screens.

Dennis Valinski's flying sculptures in Waterside plaza

Plaza sweet

To bring color to a city apartment complex, sculptor Dennis Valinski has suspended moving shapes of mod-acrylic gauze across the plaza at Waterside, three high-rise towers on New York's East River. Some are 17 feet high. Colors echo the surrounding green trees, sky, and water, terra-cotta brick building. These "living sculptures that perform," in Mr. Valinski's words, dance in the breeze and change their mood with the light. Two thousand people attended the opening, with music and dance. Waterside gets high marks—this is the second show organized by the Public Arts Council and the Waterside Tenants' Association. It's on view through mid-October.

Dr. Auld and Spoffords with Grumman intensive-care van

A breakthrough in medical care for premature babies has just been announced by Dr. Peter Auld, professor of pediatrics, obstetrics, and gynecology at Cornell University Medical College. He has set up a $2 million, privately funded intensive-care unit for high-risk infants at New York Hospital. Babies can be referred to this center from 19 hospitals. Mr. and Mrs. John Spotford, parents of two premature babies who "pulled through" under Dr. Auld's supervision, have helped with the project. "Our son, now 4, was born with a breathing and heart problem. We know how much this kind of intensive care is needed." The Spoffords, with a gift from Mr. Spofford's mother ("nine of her thirteen grandchildren were born in New York Hospital"), helped contribute the mobile intensive-care unit which collects premature babies from community hospitals in which they are born. This super mini-hospital on wheels is fitted out with incubator and lifesupport machinery so a baby receives treatment on the road before it reaches Dr. Auld and his team.

Medicine by computer

The use of computers in medicine is booming. Before too long, it is forecast, doctors will have them on their desk tops to analyze diagnoses, much as the airline or rentalcar clerks punch computers to speed their work. Ophthalmologists will probably be first to use them-already a central computer at Stanford University has been programmed to assist in the diagnosis and treatment of glaucoma. The computer "bank" was compiled by a team of eye doctors and computer scientists at Baltimore's Johns Hopkins University and New York's Mount Sinai Hospital. Financial aid for the project came from Artificial Intelligence in Medicine (AIM) a branch of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Tested recently in New York before an audience of attentive doctors, the computer program demonstrated reasonings and suggestions for therapy. "There's no doubt," says Dr. Aran Safir, director of the Institute of Computer Science at Mount Sinai, "the computer functions at an expert level." OLIE WESTHEIMER

Stencilers Fobel and Boleach

Stencils, stencils everywhere

Do you long to do something creative with your hands? Stenciling is probably the easiest of all the crafts, and once you start you'll never stop. Jim Fobel and Jim Boleach, who design stencil kits, have just written a book—unsurprisingly called The Stencil Book—that's full of ideas. It includes easy instructions for designs, shows you how to put them on graph paper and then translate into wax-paper stencils. Why not stencil cakes, breads, or cookies, they suggest? This makes parties, or presents, much more personal. Use food coloring mixed with a little egg yolk for "paint." Fobel and Bol-each also like to "dress" turkeys or chickens in stenciled pastry clothes; and match stenciled pie crusts with stenciled gift boxes to hold them. Flowerpots get butterfly or plant designs. Plain linen place mats are stenciled to match napkins. The Stencil Book by Jim Fobel and Jim Boleach (a Gladstone Book from Holt, Rinehart & Winston, $12.95) at bookstores or from Stencil Magic, 8 West 19th St., New York, N.Y. 10011 (add 75¢ for postage).

Thomasville Pine Manor. 1776 redesigned for 1976.

You'll love the warmth of early America combined with the boldness of the 70s. We've captured both in Pine Manor, our collection of 75 distinctive pieces for bedroom, family room, dining room, and living room.

It has a robust look you usually don't find in Early American . a look Thomasville craftsmen achieve with solid knotty pine and pine veneers finished in a rich, deep tone that highlights the native wood. Notice the thick tops, the shaped edges that seem worn by the years, the heavy wood spindles, and the authentic replicas of antique brass hardware.

Victorian hidden bed

Can you tell me how old this hidden bed is? Are multipurpose pieces of furniture like this unusual?

R.S.—Eupora, Miss.

Throughout the centuries countless ways have been devised to put beds out of sight. Victorian wardrobe beds and parlor beds frequently possessed the combined advantages of a secretary, chest of drawers, and cupboard space for toilet accommodations (washbowl, pitcher), such as your example, which was made around 1900.

1800s cane chair

Is this old chair rare? What can you tell me about it?

D.P.C.—Belfast, N.Y.

This type of cane-seat chair with turned legs and stretchers was made by chairmakers across the country during the 1880s and 1890s. The chairs were constructed of local woods and offered for sale in almost every city and town in America.

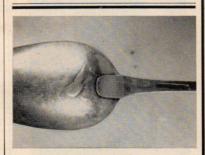

American silver tray

This mark appears on my silver tea set. When and by whom was the set made? F.L.—Brooksville, Fla.

Your plated silver tray was made by Mulholland Bros., Inc., of Aurora, Ill. This firm succeeded the Aurora Silver Plate Company between 1915 and 1922 and went out of business in 1934.

Delaware Blue Hen spoon

My tablespoon is marked "J: Warner" and has a bird on the back of the bowl, which looks something like this rough sketch. Can you identify the spoon for me?

J.C.-New York, N.Y.

The Delaware silversmith Joseph Warner (1742-1800) made your spoon. In Delaware, this kind of spoon with a bird and branch on the reverse of the bowl in the style of the 1790 period, when made by Delaware silversmiths, is often given the nickname "blue hen spoon." It was so called after the official state bird, although the decoration traditionally represents the dove of peace with olive branch.

George Washington andirons

Are you able to date these antique andirons for me?

H.J.W.—Bluff Point, N.Y.

Your General Washington andirons, cast with flat-backs in the early fashion, were probably made around 1815 to 1820.

Bohemian porcelain figure

Can you interpret the mark on my figurine so I will know about its origin?

A.B.S.—Paragould, Ark.

Your figure, dating about 1900, was made at the Alexandra Porcelain Works started by Ernst Wahliss at Turn, Bohemia, in 1880. The French word "deposé" means "patented" or "registered."

Staffordshire sugar bowl

We have tried without success to trace the origin of our old sugar bowl. From the mark, can you identify it? H.L.R.—Greenfield, Ind.

The mark on the bottom of your bowl bears the distinguishing initials of Staffordshire potter Charles Meigh, working at Hanley, 1835-1849. "Plover" is the pattern name.

Parlor clock

Can you tell me about my old clock from this photograph and the words "F. Kroeber, New York," which are on it? W.B.—Los Angeles, Cal.

Your "Occidental" model walnut parlor clock, made about 1885-1900, was shown in the 1888/89 catalogue of F. Kroeber. Florence Kroeber (a man) was born in Germany in 1840 and died in New York City in 1911.

Is Your Mirror Your Enemy?

It can happen so unexpectedly. You go along for years not being the least bit concerned about how old you look. You feel young and alive. Life is going well. And then one morning you confront a certain truth in your mirror. You've grown older-looking without realizing it. And you almost hate your mirror for being so honest.

If your mirror is reflecting the truth you don't want to recognize, then the time has come for you to discover the secret of knowledgeable, younger-looking women from many parts of the world who have seen the highly-visible benefits of an unusual beauty fluid that helps women look their youngest, no matter what their age. This fluid is known in the United States as Oil of Olay beauty lotion.

Oil of Olay disappears into your skin almost before your eyes, to work with nature to combat dryness ... the very dryness that accents little lines and wrinkles that make you look older than you should. Or could. Beauty connoisseurs discovered this skin-loving liquid and its remarkable ability to penetrate your skin's all-too-visible surface, deeply and astonishingly quickly. (You'll feel Oil of Olay soothing away dryness practically from the very moment you soothe it on.) A wealth of pure moisture, along with tropical oils and other emollients, soon brings to your skin a softness and suppleness that will be clearly noticeable when you look in the mirror.

Oil of Olay is a partner with nature in helping to maintain the oil-moisture balance of your skin...essential if you're to look your youngest. The beauty fluid is compatible with the skin itself and acts like natural moisture in alleviating dryness. And Oil of Olay helps keep your own natural moisture in the skin, a beauty bonus as the years slip by.

Soothe on Oil of Olay before going to bed. Let the beauty fluid do its good work through quiet hours of sleep. Then again faithfully every morning, as a quick-penetrating, non-greasy makeup base. Or, if you like to let your skin take a vacation from cosmetics, Oil of Olay gives your face a dewy, lustrous glow. Oil of Olay in the middle of the day, too, is a refreshing, soothing pleasure that again eases dryness as it importantly increases the moisture content of your skin.

You will discover Oil of Olay and its beautiful secret at drugstores everywhere. See for yourself how quickly your your mirror can again become your friend.

Beauty Secrets

Wearing glasses can draw attention to the skin around your eyes where little aging crow's-feet first appear. More frequent use of Oil of Olay on these special areas can be helpful.

Each time you apply Oil of Olay® to your face and throat, smooth the beauty fluid right up to your hairline. (Don't worry. It's so fast-penetrating and nongreasy, it won't "slip" into your clean hair.) It's a sad mistake to frame your younger-looking face with an area of dry older-looking skip.

GOOD LOOKS AND GOOD HEALTH

A new medical frontier: colored light

Doctors and scientists discuss a remarkable new treatment—healing with color

By Caroline Seebohm

Red is exciting. Green is soothing. Orange is sexy. This kind of color thinking is now an accepted part of interior design, in offices and hospitals as well as private houses (see House & Garden, March 1976). But there is a completely new awareness dawning about color that has nothing to do with your state of mind. It seems that the application of colored light to the human body can cure disease.

A new thought, to be sure. We regard color as something to look at through our eyes and appreciate visually. But color is actually a process of light radiating outward. Light stimulus produces the perception of color—the energy so propagated can be thought of as electromagnetic waves. In other words, colored light is the transfer of energy.

Visible light penetrates deep into the body, a fact that was not known until very recently," says Faber Birren, well-known color expert, author of several books on the subject, and color consultant to House & Garden. "It's been thought for years that the only therapeutic effects of color are by means of ultraviolet and infrared, both of which are, of course, invisible to the naked eye. But now we are beginning to realize the effects of visible light, by which I mean the color spectrum of red, orange, yellow, green, blue, and violet.'

The word used to describe therapy with light is called "phototherapy." Elwood D. Bickford, member of the U.S. National Committee on Photobiology of the National Research Council, and scientist with the Environmental Lighting Division of Duro-Test, explains what it means. "Photo refers to the photons that form the energy in light, energy that goes through space and penetrates the human skin." Mr. Bickford describes the process thus:

"The first law of photochemistry says that in order for light to be effective in a chemical way it has first to be absorbed. So the material you treat has to absorb light. Most biological materials (such as blood, tissue, skin) absorb over a large color wavelength region, but we know more than that now. Your body tissue transmits red and orange portions of the spectrum much more readily than the shorter wavelengths, the blue and violet ends of the spectrum. In other words, red or orange penetrates deeper into your body than blue or violet.

"The reason you get sunburn, for instance, is because the ultraviolet coming from the sun is absorbed only in the very top layers of the skin, without penetrating any deeper, so that it burns the surface. When you put a flashlight into your mouth or under the palm of your hand, all the veins and passages show up very clearly. That is because light from a flashlight is very rich in red, and therefore it penetrates very well."

One of the most convincing proofs of the efficacy of phototherapy is the treatment of newborn babies suffering from jaundice. According to Dr. Jerold F. Lucey, chief of pediatrics at the University of Vermont Medical School, a leading authority in the field, the application of blue light has been found effective in breaking down a material called bilirubin, which causes jaundice in infants. Not only is this treatment highly effective, but prior to this therapy, the most successful treatment was exchange transfusion, which can be very dangerous for babies.

Other innovative work with phototherapy, originating at Massachusetts General Hospital, has been done with psoriasis patients. The skin is exposed to a high intensity ultraviolet light, which in conjunction with a drug taken by the patient, has produced phenomenal results. Patients who have had psoriasis all their lives, covering over 90 percent of their bodies, have been freed of the symptoms if treatment is continued. About 26 institutions across the country are currently using this process. The laser beam, another therapeutic tool, has been found effective in treating detached or torn retinas. The laser emits a blue-green light that is absorbed through the eye.

Doctors are now treating stubborn infections of herpes virus (responsible for cold sores) by paint-

I don't like gray. Or peroxide. Somebody, please come up with another idea.

I've got a sinking feeling. It's just dawned on me that the grays are coming in faster than I can pluck them out.

Another day. Another gray.

The grays keep coming while I consider the alternatives. Becoming the first girl in my class to make it as a gray haired lady. Or using a haircolor and having people say, "What a pretty color your hair is now," as if it were a new dress or a new lipstick—instead of something that is part of me. The thing is, I like my natural color and don't want it changed.

Another day. Another gray.

I'd better do something. Quick. But I'm scared. I think all haircolors have peroxide.

Just in time, my friend, Samantha, tells me about Clairol's Loving Care® lotion. It has absolutely no peroxide. So it works differently from most other haircolors. It covers only the gray without changing your natural color. And Loving Care comes in 15 shades to make it easy to find yours.

I like the idea.

Better still, now that I use Loving Care, I like what I see. And feel. Crazy as it sounds, Loving Care is actually good for my hair. It makes it softer, yet gives it more body than it had before.

Now, let the grays come. I won't see them. Neither will anybody else.

Thank you.

It's good for your hair.

ing red dye on the diseased areas, then exposing them to ordinary light. Other skin disorders are being looked at for possible treatment by phototherapy. "You are going to hear about a lot of breakthroughs in this area," Mr. Bickford believes

Experiments with other living organisms are equally phenomenal. "Visible light has been found to penetrate into the skulls of ducks and sheep," says Faber Birren. "You implant electrodes in the sheep's skull when it is born; then when it grows up you can apply visible light to the electrode and see the results. In another example, rats exposed to red light from birth grow larger than those exposed to blue light. The violet and blue components of visible light are more deadly to rainbow trout than green, yellow, or orange.'

A lot of work has also been done with plants. Red and blue light are the colors that do most to activate plant growth. Green light is neutral—plants don't do anything under it. In France, the irradiation of potato plants with red light has stimulated germination. Warm white lamps encourage the growth of tomato seedlings, according to experimenter Stuart Dunn; blue and pink lamps are the next best.

The more we find out about the effect of colored light on other living things and on ourselves, the more intriguing the possibilities become. "The advent of phototherapy for the treatment of hyperbilirubinemia (jaundiced babies) has an exciting and more general implication," write Drs. Richard J. Wurtman and Robert M. Neer in the New England Journal of Medicine. "If light can be used to speed the destruction of one circulating compound-bilirubin-it seems not unlikely that light exposure will eventually be shown to influence plasma levels of other compounds. Light may be beneficial in many more ways than are now apparent.

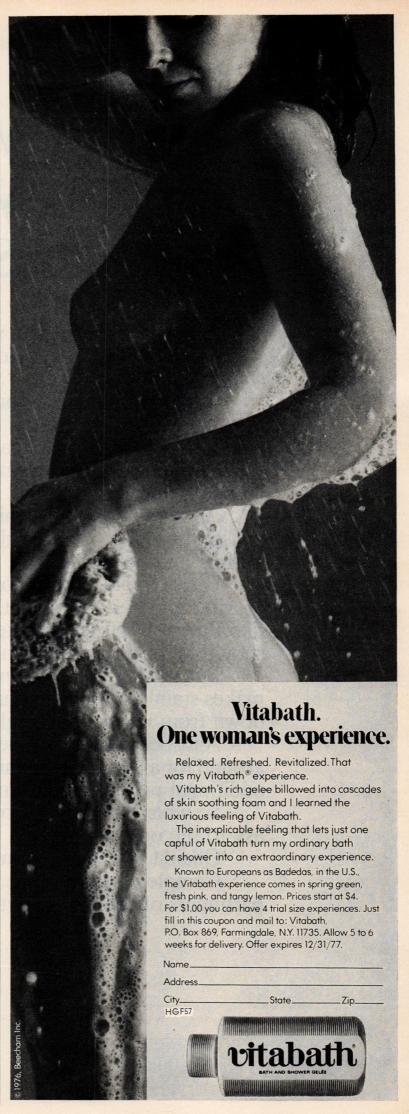

It is probably rather unlikely that your doctor will start prescribing colors instead of pills when you next get sick. Not yet, anyway. But there's evidently more to colored lights than simply looking pretty. Their power may help you get well some day.

PRODUCTS NEW THIS MONTH IN THE STORES

It's September and so many things are starting up again, as they always seem to every autumn, that many of us feel that this is the real new year. A major group of skin treatments and makeups from the classic House of Chanel should help you put your best face forward from here on. The beauty philosophy is as neat and as simple as a Chanel suit. For instance: no grouping of skin into "dry" and "oily" categories, but a choice of cleanser, toner, moisturizer, and mask—one designated for normal skin, the other the same basic product, but in a formula that's slightly milder for dryer, more sensitive skin. A specially trained analyste will help you select which to use when you visit the department store where the collection is sold. The makeups are stunninglip and cheek gloss, lipstick, rouge, eyeshadow, translucent powder in loose and pressed forms, creme blush, mascara, nail enamel, and a range of 6 liquid makeups to choose from. The works! One thing more—they're designed to be practically weightless in your makeup bag. Neat, beautiful, and weightless-isn't that what we all aspire to? They'll be at Saks Fifth Avenue, all stores, in mid-September. Treatments from $10 to $20; makeup from $4 to $15.

Here's a new one to help you wake up in the A.M.-Natural Spearmint Toothpaste is sugarless, contains no salts, and is flavored with natural spearmint oil. It uses coconut oil for cleansing, and the paste itself is made from seaweed and vegetable glycerines. Pretty healthy, that! It's made by Tom's Natural Soap Company and is available through health-food stores across the country. Or you can drop $1.25 in the mail and order it directly from Tom's Natural Soap, Railroad Ave., Kennebunk, Me. 04043. There's a fennelflavored toothpaste too.

Elizabeth Arden has a new formula for lip gloss that stays put, shines, and has a moist look that lasts very well. Great Color Lip Gloss comes in natty little tubes, smooths on with a fingertip. There are 6 raisin-colored shades of pink and red with a super-sheer Clear. They're $3.50 each.

How we put the beauty of silver into fine stainless.

It isn't easy.

But maybe the reason we do it so well is that we were silversmiths long before we started working in stainless.

In fact, every one of our Oneida Heirloom Stainless patterns is first crafted in pure silver before being duplicated in the harder stainless metal.

Maybe that's why so many people think our stainless looks like fine sterling.

Another reason for this look-alike is the quality of our "finishing"...especially the very expensive hand buffing and polishing.

For example, take a close look at the detail of the carving shown on the right. The flowers should look like flowers. The leaves like leaves. And the finishing should be clean and clear and crisp.

But that's just one example of how a silversmith makes stainless. Stainless that's worthy of being passed down from mother to daughter.

And because your Oneida service is going to be around for a long time, it's nice to know you can obtain additional pieces from open stock.

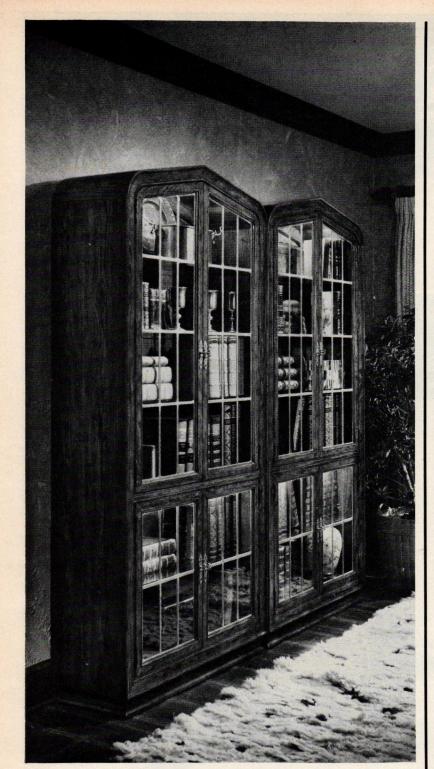

So when it's time for you to choose your stainless, ask to see our stainless.

GOING PLACES, FINDING THINGS

Seven days in Egypt

From the austere splendor of the Cairo Museum to the gaudy bazaars and the temples of the Nile

By Dee Hardie

You don't just say "I'm going to Egypt next week," and expect your magic carpet to unfold easily. It takes preparation, but it could be the trip of your century. And no matter how much advance reading you do, and most of the available books seem to be on the antiquities, nothing will prepare you for the vast splendor and beauty of ancient Egypt or the chaos of modern Cairo.

In 1975 the Arab Republic of Egypt actually turned tourists away because the country did not have enough hotel rooms. This is being remedied. Hotels are now going up in the tourist centers far faster than the myriad of temples and tombs in ancient times. But if you want to stay in one of the three, big, newer hotels in Cairo—the Nile Hilton, Sheraton, or Meridian (and everyone seems to want to do just that)—you should book at least three months in advance. And don't miss your hotel reservations by even one day, or they will be automatically canceled.

Egypt is currently a hot ticket on the tour circuit. If you are with a group, red tape is no problem. But as independent travelers, my husband and I chose to do it on our own. We had seven days in Egypt, sandwiched between business calls in Europe. We flew TWA from Rome to Cairo, but a day later than Monumental statues at Abu Simbe planned as our plane was overbooked and we were bumped. (TWA also flies every evening from New York to Cairo arriving late the next afternoon.) You can't tell whether it is day or night in the Cairo airport as it is always the samecrowded. The taxis are plentiful. Luggage is tied high on top of the roof as if on the back of a camel. You might find yourself compressed with four others as the drivers believe in togetherness, especially since the fares are cheap.

When we finally arrived there was no room in the inn, hardly a seat in the lobby. Saudi Arabian oil magnates were drifting around in flowing burnooses and tweed jackets fingering their prayer beads, a Spanish tour was noisily being evicted from its rooms, and it was Thursday to boot—the day Egyptians translates as "Sympathy." More colorful guides, the dragomen in costume, are cheaper (about $52 a day), but their stories are embroidered, their history shaky. Raouf recently finished four years at the High Institute of Tourism,

Enormous pillars of the temple of Philae shimmer in Nile waters

The manager of the Nile Hilton finally relocated us in a third-class hotel heavy with Russian tourists and faded grandeur. (We later discovered free room and board for Russians is one way the Egyptians are repaying the Soviet Union for the High Aswan Dam.) After a bottle of delicious Stella beer, twice the size of an American one, we felt grateful to have a bed. In fact we had three. And a dripping faucet.

With all its uncertainties, Egypt is an exceptional, emotional experience, a feast of art, and I would return immediately—if only to see again the golden treasures of Tutankhamen on the second floor of the musty Cairo Museum.

We planned seven days in Egypt. Too short a time, of course, and "no we didn't see Alexandria," we find ourselves telling friends. But we did see Egypt. Kaleidoscopic perhaps—three days in Cairo and four days and five nights on a splendid floating hotel sailing down the Nile from Aswan to Luxor. The cruise was the only tour we booked from the U.S.A.

Thomas Cook and Herr Baedeker were first to take sahibs and memsahibs around the pyramids in the late 1800s. Now there are many tours, and individual guides can be obtained through your hotel. Since our time was so short, we felt we should be guided full-time and we chose 24-year-old Raouf, whose name studying history, languages, everything from Tutankhamen's life to timetables to Abu Simbel.

He took us immediately to Gaz tours, his base, to double check our cruise tickets. Everything should be double checked in Egypt. When we entered the office we were greeted by "Howdy, partner!" It was a cultural shock, but comforting. "Moose" Niazi, the owner, had migrated to Canada, but returned to his native Egypt. He suggested our flying to Abu Simbel before boarding the cruise ship.

Abu Simbel is a must, and fortunately we knew it. It can only be reached by air because of the High Aswan Dam. When we were there last October there was only one plane, Egypt Air, leaving Cairo at 6:30 A.M. "Moose" somehow got us aboard. Air service is now more frequent.

With our Abu Simbel plans settled, we spent the next three days seeing Cairo. Mornings start early and evenings end late. The clatter of street con-

TO PRESENT OUR ARGUMENT FOR NOT BUYING A COMPROMISE CARPET, WE GIVE THE FLOOR TO PANDE CAMERON.

Genuine Khalabar® by Pande Cameron is one of the soundest, most sensible carpet investments you can possibly make.

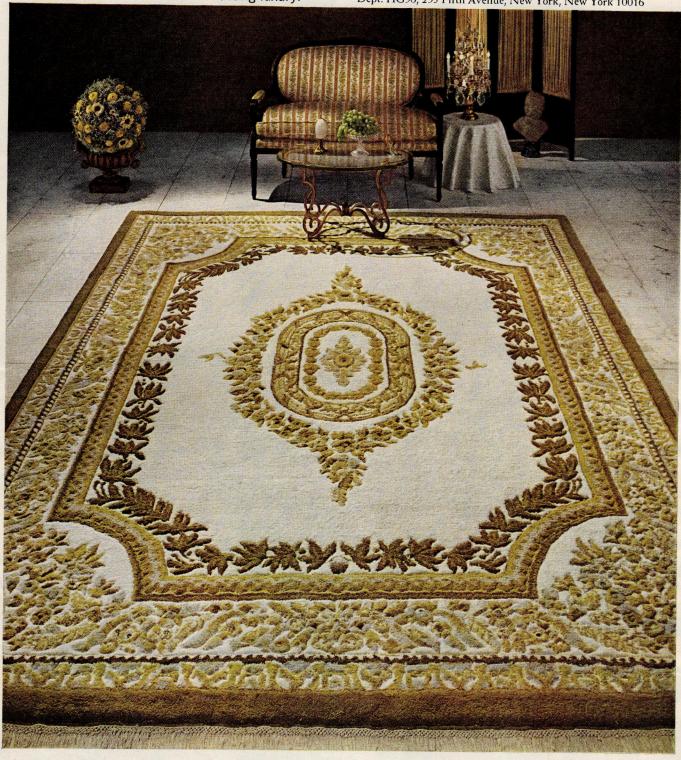

And yet, what Khalabar looks like is sinfully extravagant. That's getting the best of both worlds. It isn't slap-dashed together by machine. It's made by hand in India. Using only 4-ply woolen yarns (mothresistant, of course). And true-color dyes.

We put a lot into Khalabar. Which is why you get a lot out of it. It's an investment in lasting luxury.

See Khalabar at a fine store near you. You'll know it's genuine by the label and by the gold-and-black medallion it bears.

versations begins about 7 A.M. with peddlers using shop doorways as market stalls. A goat might be tethered nearby. At 8 A.M. a truck often fumigates the streets. Smoke clouds rise everywhere, wafting into our hotel room. At 9 A.M., peddlers with their portable wares disappear and the shops open for business.

All three of our days could have been spent in the Cairo Museum. It is cavernous, dusty, filled to the brim, incredibly cluttered, magnificent. The second floor is the realm of King Tutankhamen. Here are his jewels, his golden furniture, his spread of dazzling wealth, his superb decorative arts. Some of these treasures, only a sampling of what is in Cairo, are on a world tour helping to pay for the High Aswan Dam (which in turn supplies electricity for all of Egypt).

The Coptic Museum shows another side of Egyptian culture—Christian Egypt, in icons, frescoes, and fine old fabrics. Far livelier is the Khan El Khalili Bazaar, built in 1400. Go armed with a strong defense and a good guide. Narrow little streets curve provocatively, closing out the Cairo sun. Each street has its own personality, its own particular trade—a street for herb and spice sellers, another for copper, rugs, leather, and on and on. I found a hand woven rug, 3 by 5 feet, with a bright design of mosques and minarets, for $15. On the street of perfume, visit the tiny shop of Mohamed Abd El Sayed Khatteb, 83 Gohar El Kaied. Banquettes line the wall and while you sit there drinking thick coffee, Mohamed Abd will concoct a perfume just for you. I came away with something called "Secret of the Desert." The bazaar is open 10 to 10 daily except Sundays.

A morning or afternoon tour of the papyrus factory is a delicate change from the museum and bazaar life. At Zamalek, across the Nile from the Hilton, it is reached by felucca, the one-masted, wooden, native boat of Egypt. Wander around to see the papyrus woven, painted, and polished.

We saved the pyramids of Cheops, Khephren and Mykerninus of Giza, and the Sphinx, for our last day in Continued on page 37

Cairo. Only a half-hour's drive from the city, the approach to these man-made monuments lives up to all expectations. A dragoman was soon by our side. He could speak some English, French, German, and Italian, yet he couldn't write his name, which he said was Nasser in Arabic. We climbed inside the largest pyramid, Cheops, with Nasser pulling us up the steep, nar-row climb. If the Egyptians could haul over two million blocks of limestone, we could at least see the inner works. "We smile," directed Nasser as my husband took our photograph. And he kept smiling. Getting rid of Nasser was more of a chore. And if you manage to get away from Giza without a scarab bracelet, you are indeed clever. We avoided all by rising high on a camel named "Florida," riding around the pyramids. (Why we both rode on a single camel I'll never know, but I think it was because my husband wanted to prove his bargaining prowess. Take two camels. It's much more comfortable.) Later we had a delicious lamb kebab stew at the nearby hotel, the old-fashioned Mena House, with hanging beads and carved wooden room dividers. Here we watched a glorious sunset behind the pyramids and the Sphinx. (If we had had more time we certainly would have stayed the night here.) After dinner we went back to sit at the foot of the illuminated monuments for the "Son et Lumière" show. Check be-forehand, as the shows are given on alternate evenings in English and French.

While in Cairo we ate breakfast in our hotel, dinner at the Aladdin in the Sheraton, and the Pyramid Roof of the Nile Hilton. For seafood we tried the "Sea Horse," an outdoor restaurant beside the Nile. A perfect lunch—red fish, Stella beer, and feluccas sailing by. We also went to the spotlessly clean Groppi in Talaat Harb Square.

On our last morning in Cairo we were picked up by Wagy, Raouf's younger brother, at 5 a.m. to guarantee that we got on the 6:30 a.m. plane to Aswan. For about two hours we flew over Egypt, following the wide ribbon of the Nile. At Aswan, a bus took us to the two huge shrines Continued on page 39

hewn out of rock at Abu Simbel by Ramses II. The four gargantuan statues of Ramses smile wisely, as well they should. Block by block, they were moved to a higher site so they wouldn't be drowned by the High Dam at Aswan, a feat accomplished by an international corps of engineers, primarily Swedish, backed by UNESCO. No other shrine is quite as impressive as this one, a huge outdoor sculpture museum. We then returned to the waiting plane to fly to Aswan to board "Isis" in time for

In the next five days we saw more than 34 centuries of Ancient Egypt as we floated down the Nile, far more comfortably than Cleopatra. The Isis and Osiris, two luxury cruise ships, sail either from Luxor or Aswan, stopping each day at a different site. As there are 56 outside staterooms on each ship, everyone has a view. And what a view the Great Nile! These sister ships sail year-round; the longest cruise is eight days, the shortest, four days.

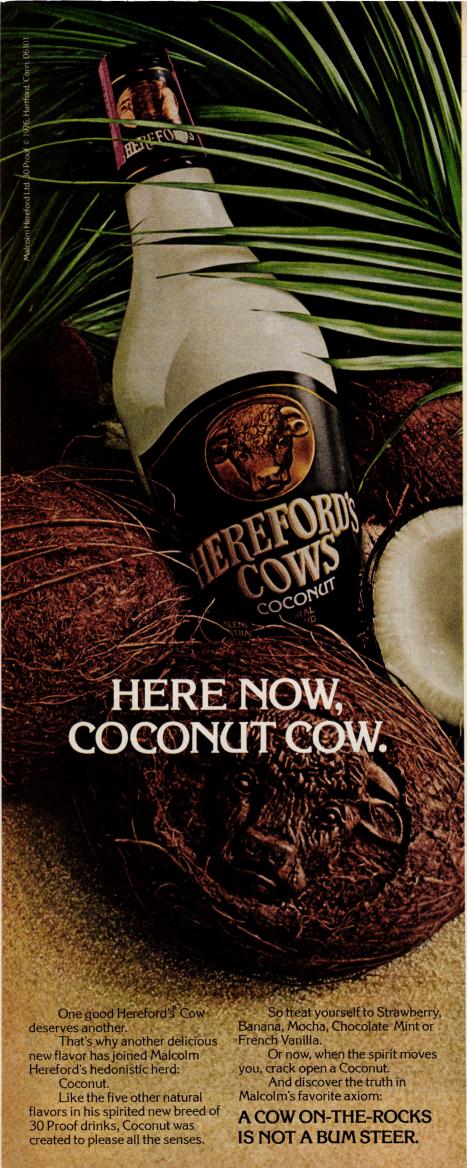

As the air-conditioned boat glides along, the contrast of the east and west banks is vivid—one side luxuriously green with wide borders of sugar cane, the other an endless stretch of beige desert-Beau Geste country. Men in flowing galabias of pink, blue, and white work with water buffalo or lope along on camels, trailed by burdened donkeys. The women and girls, usually in black, wash laundry and wave to us as we pass. Overhead, the cloudless, blue canopy of sky. It is startingly Biblical.

An Egyptian guide, speaking perfect English and French, took groups of about 20 to the sites of the day. We sailed in feluccas or were carried by open horse-drawn carriages, relics of the Victorian age.

In five days of cruising we saw Philae Temple, a world of columns half submerged in water, now being moved to another location, the High Aswan Dam, the Temple of Kom-Ombo, the Temple of Horus at Edfu where the god Horus ruled in barbaric splendor, the Temple of Esna, and finally the glories of Luxor.

Luxor, ancient Thebes, is vast. Karnak, 10 minutes from town, is a city of temples built Continued on the next page to the dimensions of gods, not men. We saw it by day and by night; the "Sound and Light" show at dusk is even more moving than that at the pyramids. On the western bank of the Nile, we visited the Valley of the Kings, including the temples of Tutankhamen and Queen Hatschepsut, the Valley of the Nobles, and the Valley of the Queens.

It is, quite honestly, exhausting at times. The tours start early and you return to your ship for lunch. Then there is often an afternoon tour. You might find yourself skipping a temple or two. On the ship, there is a lovely topside, canopied swimming pool, and the service is superb. Menus are varied and tasty. At the gala Oriental evening, in the middle of the trip, guests dress in costumes, and by this time if you haven't purchased at least one galabia, you have stronger will power than I did. Everyone receives a small gift. The buffet is a splendid feast with a centerpiece of whole roasted lamb.

At the end of this voyage through time one realizes that Egyptology is a science that requires years of scholarly study. But just being there counts too. Bring binoculars to use from the boat or on tours. A hat is a good idea too. One kindly traveler wished she had brought cheap felt pens to give to the children, who are incredibly beautiful and constantly begging.

Reservations for the Isis and Osiris can be made through your travel agent or the Hilton International Hotel Corp., 301 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022. In Cairo, Gaz Tours is located at 1090 Immobelia Bldg., 26, Cherif Street. Remember that you need a visa, that air-mail letters take three weeks to reach Cairo from the States, and that Sa'eeda means "Hello!"

Gourmet notes from Egypt

The chef on board our Nile

cruise ship, the Isis, which offered excellent cuisine, gave me two recipes that we particularly liked—an eggplant salad and stuffed zucchini with apricots.

Eggplant salad

Bake a large eggplant in a 400° oven until charred on the outside and soft on the inside. Cool, remove skin, and chop eggplant coarsely. Place in a colander to drain. Mash or purée in a blender. Stir in 1/4 cup mayonnaise; 2 hardboiled eggs, finely chopped; 1/4 cup each parsley and onion, finely chopped; 2 cloves garlic, finely minced; 3 tablespoons olive oil; 2 tablespoons lemon juice; and salt and pepper to taste. Place in an oiled mold and chill. Unmold on a platter and decorate with thin strips of green pepper, lemon wedges, sliced onion rings. Serve with pumpernickel or toast triangles. Serves 4 to 6.

Baked stuffed zucchini with apricots

Halve 2 large zucchini crosswise and then lengthwise. Scoop out pulp, leaving a shell approximately 3/4 inch thick. Chop pulp and save. Parboil shells 2 to 3 minutes in boiling, salted water. Drain, dry, sprinkle with salt and pepper and set aside. Sauté a large onion, minced, and half the chopped zucchini pulp (you can use the remaining pulp as you wish later), in 3 tablespoons butter. Add 1 cup long grain rice; 1 cup water; 1 large ripe tomato, peeled and chopped; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/4 teaspoon each sugar, cinnamon, and black pepper. Cook and stir 15 minutes to blend flavors and partially cook rice. Stuff zucchini and put aside.

Boil until soft 1 to 1½ cups diced dried apricots; 2 cups water, 2 tablespoons honey; ¼ teaspoon cinnamon. Layer half the apricots and juices in a baking pan. Place zucchini on top and spoon rest of mixture over. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Bake in 350° oven, basting often, for 30 minutes. Serve hot. Serves 4 to 6.

MONEY MATTERS

New Kitchen? New Carpet? New Lawn?

How you can use your home-improvement loan

By Paul Gross

If you're like the rest of us, you're probably much more confident about the outlook for the future now that your pocketbook is a little fatter and the economic news is so cheery. And chances are that that's all the inspiration you need to go out and make some major purchases that you've put off for so long. Fabulous! But just because times are better, don't relax your purse strings entirely. The better you handle your personal finances, the more money you'll have left to live the way you want to.

Homing in on improvements

A home-improvement loan has a weighty sound to most of ussomething to be reserved for a major reconstruction project such as turning the garage into an apart-ment, or giving a Victorian house a face-lift. In fact, you can get a home-improvement loan to install wall-to-wall carpeting in your living room. Or to put in new draperies, slipcovers, and bedspreads. Or even to install a new lawn (on property contiguous to your house). If you own your own home, apartment, condominium or cooperative apartment, you can get a home-improvement loan for anything from a room addition to appliances or furnishings. If it can be used around the house, chances are that you can get a home-improvement loan for it. If you rent an apartment or house, the list of things you get a home-improvement loan for is a little more limited-both by your own practical considerations and the bank's lending policy. Generally you'll be able to get a home-improvement loan for only those things that you can take with you if and when you move. A loan to make some structural changes, for example, probably wouldn't be approved.

The real question is whether you should take out a home-improvement loan at a bank. In some cases you may be much better off finding another source of funds. A home-improvement loan makes sense if you want to borrow a lot of money and will need a number of years in which to pay it off. Most banks will let you borrow up to $10,000 for as long as 10 years. However, the price you pay is a high interest charge—around 12 percent for banks in New York. And that can add up. For example, a $10,000 home-improvement loan at 12 percent interest over 10 years would cost you around $7,218 in interest.

If you don't need to borrow much money, or if you can pay off a loan fairly quickly, consider borrowing against your savings account. For example, a savings bank will let you borrow an amount equal to what you have in your account minus the interest they plan to charge you—and give you up to three years in which to pay it off. The net interest rate you pay comes to only 21/4 percent. The money in your savings account, frozen for the length of loan, will still earn 51/4 percent. Apply that toward the 7½ percent the bank charges, and the net interest rate is only 21/4 percent.

A savings and loan association will give you a similar deal-with some significant differences. The interest rates charged and paid are the same. Hence your net cost will be 21/4 percent. The difference is that you can choose to pay only the interest each quarter. At the end of the loan's term, which is one year at most, you'll have to pay the principal or extend the loan for another year. How long you'll be able to continue extending your loan depends entirely on your relationship with the savings and loan association.

Finally, if you have a whole-life insurance policy, you might consider borrowing against the policy's cash surrender value—which is the savings element of the policy. The interest rate you'll be charged ranges from 5 to 8 percent, depending on the state in which you bought the policy. There is one caveat to weigh carefully: The insurance company will deduct the amount of the loan outstanding from the policy's face value when it pays your beneficiaries. So, if you have a $50,000 policy and borrow $5,000 from it, your beneficiaries will get only $45,000.

A GREAT AMERICAN IDEA

CELEBRATING THE 1976 BICENTENNIAL

To save a house, move it

San Francisco, in a daring display of initiative in historic preservation, moved a dozen Victorian houses out of demolition's path

By Marilyn Schafer

Along with the bridges and cable cars, San Francisco is rows of sparkling Victorian houses with crisply painted gingerbread trim. Although these period houses are cherished by local people, many of them are threatened with demolition unless some minor miracles occur. One such miracle has just come full circle, and here is its blueprint. Bear in mind that it could never be pulled off in quite the same way again—but it is a monumental triumph and a lesson in historic preservation effort and faith.

In the raffish community behind the big dome of city hall and the San Francisco opera house, there stretched an area of architectural limbo to be known as the Western Addition, a large area slated for urban renewal. The wrecker's ball was due to fall, flattening everything. Popular second-hand shops quickly relocated. However, tucked between the boarded-up buildings were over a dozen

Before: One of the Victorians slated for demolition, bought for $500.

"down at the heel" but still lovely old houses that had weathered the earthquake, subsequent fire, and were all well over a hundred years old. More than that, they were examples of a special kind of Victorian style peculiar to San Francisco. Many of them were multiple dwellings, and it was their total façades that were of interest, not just those optional sections of an "over-porch" or bay window that could be salvaged separately.

Close to the last minute, champions rushed in from almost opposite directions, and when the dust settled, it was their combined forces that literally moved mountains to save houses.

The San Francisco Redevelopment Agency, slow-moving on this project because of the amount of bureaucratic red tape involved, and the Foundation for San Francisco's Architectural Heritage, a well-funded and responsive nonprofit group, dreamed up a bizarre plan—they would pick up the orphaned houses and move them to a community of their own at the far end of the Western Addition. Then, not only would that community be designated a historic area, but also each house would become a national registered landmark with a covenant of historical preservation easements, so that no one could change, deface, or destroy it ever again. To attract buyers, the houses would sell for a token fee of $500 each, with a stipulation that the owner would pay for the property (the place to put the house), and agree to restore it to standards set by the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency within a year. Not only were the houses moved-in the middle of the night—but financing was arranged with the Bank of America for qualified buyers. The project was complicated by the fact that not one house could be moved until there were buyers for all of them.

As of May, 1976, all the houses were sold and their new home, Beideman Place, had begun to shine—making its own history as an "overnight" historic place.

San Franciscan Marla Brenner finished her house first. She paid $500 for the house, $6,500 for the 30-by-75-foot property (the city gave buyers a special price), and spent a total of $67,575 on remodeling. With pride of ownership, she now smiles out over the freshly painted, cream-colored window ledge of her rust-colored "Eastlake" Victorian cottage.

kind of microwave cooking with the GE Automatic Chef Control.

The GE Jet 90 not only cooks up to 4 times faster than a conventional oven, it cooks by temperature, too.

The GE Automatic Chef temperature sensor works like a meat thermometer. But you use it for many different foods. Just insert it in casseroles, meat loaf, grilled sandwiches, etc.

Then set the controls and forget it. No guessing or checking.

When your food is cooked to the degree selected, the oven shuts itself off automatically. Unlike microwave ovens that have only timer controls, it can't overcook or undercook.

Complete self-cleaning with the P-7 Self-Cleaning Pyrolytic Oven.

GE invented the whole idea of Pyrolytic self-cleaning ovens. Just lock and set the controls to "Clean" and the oven cleans itself. Top,

Facts about flu: Should you have the shots?

Is sex therapy helpful—plus advice on how to handle a fight

By Drs. Robert and Mary Catherine Tyson

Q. What is the truth about prevention and treatment of colds and flu? A. There isn't just one sort of cold. There are many varieties, each caused by a microscopic virus. Treatment is symptomatic, since no cure for these infections is known. Rest is essential. Can you go out? Probably, if your temperature is under 100° and the weather is mild. But a person who has a severe cold and "keeps going in spite of it" is endangering his health. Antihistamines, sprays, and mild pain relieverssuch as aspirin and related medication—reduce discomfort and lower temperature. Menthol's aroma is impressive but useless, and so are gargles. A "cold" that responds miraculously to cold tablets, and what are sometimes called "summer colds," are usually allergies, simulating colds. Proper diet, obviously, helps prevention of colds. Get enough protein from usual portions of meat, fish, and eggs. A variety of fruits and vegetables assures you of sufficient vitamins. Massive doses of vitamin C may be preventive, but there's disagreement as to its value. In any event, 500 to 1000 milligrams can't do any harm, because overloads are excreted. Depression probably makes you more susceptible to viral infection. Attitudes can invite trouble. These include recklessness or bravado about health, clothing, and general hygiene, as well as "trusting to luck."

Every winter many people selfdiagnose influenza when they actually have a cold or bronchitis. Typical flu starts with shaking chills and high fever, up to 105° profound toxicity, headache, backache, bone pains, and possibly a severe cough. Antibiotics are important, not to cure the flu-a common misconception-but to prevent or treat secondary infections, such as pneumonia, occurring when bacteria enter the weakened body. The word "influenza," like "cold," covers a whole group of different viral infections. Each year the current troublemaker must be identified so the effective vaccine can be prepared and administered in time. These vaccines are highly effective, giving about 80 percent protection, and they may give some slight immunity to colds as well. In view of a possible epidemic this fall of a more virulent type of swine influenza, against which the population has no immunity, influenza vaccine is of much greater importance than it ordinarily is. (But remember that secondary infections, responsible for most of the fatalities in 1918, can now be treated with antibiotics.) It's vitally necessary for everyone 60 years of age, with a history of respiratory infections or problems such as asthma, emphysema, etc., to receive the new swine flu vaccine. It's also a must for people with heart conditions, diabetes, and other chronic illness that could lower their resistance. However, it's of extreme importance to pretest every allergic person before the injection to prevent severe and sometimes fatal allergic reactions. Q. What's sex therapy all about? A. Outstanding among today's sex therapy programs is the one conducted by W. H. Masters and V. E. Johnson at the Reproductive Biology Research Foundation in St. Louis. Attendance by both partners is required, because sex problems are regarded as based on their entire relationship and a need for better communication. To participate, the couple takes up temporary residence near the Foundation, while all sessions take place

Like most current sex therapy techniques, the Masters and Johnson approach avoids lengthy probing of the past, and stresses learning new attitudes and behavior. The first step is a relaxed fact-finding conference to go over problems and counteract misinformation. The atmosphere of confidentiality and calm acceptance is therapeutic in its own right and reduces guilt. Next comes the indispensible medical exam, to find out whether problems are caused by genuine physical ailments or are rooted in psychological hangups. A therapy team then holds consultations with each partner singly and later both together. These consultations aim at identifying sexual misconceptions that have to be corrected.

Cheerful willingness to listen usually takes the fight out of people

home type of program, sex therapy is practiced by individual consultants in their offices, and may involve one person, a couple, or each partner separately. Theories and techniques vary widely. At one extreme is lengthy, passive, orthodox psychoanalytic probing and interpretation of experience—this obviously with one person—aiming at eventual insight and freedom to change. At the other end is active counseling, offering direct advice and guidance. Often sex therapy is obtained in the setting of general psychotherapy, not necessarily aimed primarily or originally at sex problems apart from others. Your family doctor, if he or she is alert to emotional difficulties, may be a good guide to the best therapist and type of therapy. Remarkably, many ethical sex therapies meet with some success, probably be-cause they have much in common in spite of their differences. All regard sexual pleasure as legitimate, calmly and fully accept the person without blame, offer a confidential ear, believe there is an understandable explanation and treatment for sex problems and hope for improvement. The professional reliability of any individual or group offering any form of sex therapy should be checked carefully. Properly conducted, sex therapy can claim a relatively high degree of success.

Q. Is an argument therapeutic or should you always try to maintain peace?

A. No matter what you do, you can't have complete peace. You can't stay on good terms with everyone. Some conflict and hostility is inevitable. Sooner or later your integrity will be threatened and you'll have to take a stand that may involve an argument. This far and no further is a basic requirement for your self-esteem. However, holding your ground doesn't necessarily mean open warfare. You can defend yourself with determination or oppose someone effectively if you control your emotions. A skilled boxer defends himself and attacks, but he's at his best when he does it coolly. An argument doesn't necessarily mean belligerence. It also means reasoning to show the truth or inaccuracy of a proposition, to maintain a viewpoint you value, to oppose an impractical plan, or to gain some advantage.

You can disarm insistent troubleseekers with a cheerful smile instead of a counterattack, because it leaves them feeling at a loss. Try an inquiring, expectant look that says without words: "And what else?" You can also greet their opening thrust with "I see," saying, "You know, I really don't understand. Could you put that more clearly?" A person may be put off by the prospect of having to repeat aggressive remarks; the need to grope for other expressions can have a cooling effect. You might like the "Yes, but—" technique. You accept the challenge, letting it pass without direct rejoinder. Then you slip in your response. On the other hand, you may actually prefer a fight to a peaceful settlement. Fighting, verbal or otherwise, undoubtedly stimulates a lot of people and may do them some good. If it makes you feel better and stronger, the only question is whether you can afford it. You can safely go at some people, but what about a supervisor, a prospective customer, or someone you have to get along with and who resents argumentative attitudes? Remember, you can be wrong. Don't get into an awkward, futile contest defending yourself when the other person's right. Admit the error and notice that this adds to your strength. Welcome grievances with something like: "I'm glad you mentioned it." Cheerful willingness to listen usually takes the fight out of people. However, if you must be critical, criticize what the person had done, and not the person who did it.

A man and woman living together are the most likely of all to make each other bear the brunt of accumulated tensions, because he's always there and so is she. Subtly growing feelings of possessiveness and taking the other person for granted increase the danger of letting tempers fly. Have the courage to understand and really examine an opposing viewpoint. Focus on the facts. Keep your ego out of it. Usually there's an issue at stake, not you as a person. Recently relaxed sexual attitudes don't always affect a man and a woman at the same time or in the same way. And that's an interesting cause of edgy nerves.

Further tips for keeping the peace: Be careful not to let irrelevant tension put a chip on your shoulder. Keep your distance physically from a challenger. People feel endangered when you come too close in a threatening situation. Speak with calm assurance, since weakness invites aggression. Don't force the issue by shutting the door on discussion. Leave it open for further give and take.

Tough with a gentle touch.

Washing clothes today is an art. The fabrics vary so much. Knits. Double knits. Permanent press. Cottons. To wash everything and to do it right, you need a special kind of laundry system. And Whirlpool has it.

Our washers and dryers have been designed with special fabric settings. Their job is to take care of clothes as well as get them clean.

Many of our laundry pairs have a thorough cooldown care cycle for permanent press no-iron fabrics.

Other settings handle washable knits and double knits gently...yet clean them thoroughly.

And for instructions and product information, refer to the Bac-Pac Laundry Infor-

WHEN THE RAINS CAME: TAKING CARE OF GUTTERS

By Deanne Raffel

When it rains and water comes seeping into the basement, you have a problem. But if your house's foundation is in good condition why should a sudden downpour cause so much trouble? The answer is usually gutters. They overflow and water washes down the substructure rather than away from the house through the downspouts.

Your first job is to obtain a sturdy extension ladder, secure it on the ground, and rest it against the house. Climb up to the roof while using both hands to steady yourself and take a good look at the gutters. Are they sagging, as well as being filled with leaves and

With rubber gloves protecting your hands, scoop out the black murk-there will be quite a buildup sitting over the entrance to the downspout. Clean out the trough running around the entire house, as well as the top and bottom of the leader, as deeply as your hand can reach. Slip the nozzle of a hose up into the pipe and try to wash the remainder of the debris out of the pipe from the base upward. If the spout is still not clear, use a long wire or plumber's snake to loosen the clogged area. Now thoroughly wash the gutters; the water should flow freely out through the base.

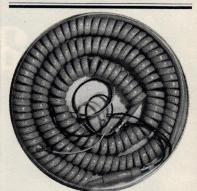

Also check for open seams and holes, and see the extent of the bowing. A sagging gutter, as well as a clogged one, dumps gallons of water where it is not supposed to settle. Straighten the bow manually, and attach new hangers to both the roof and gutter as a support for the weakened section.

Open seams must be closed. Purchase silicone adhesive (available in both caulking-gun tubes and squeeze tubes) to close the gaps in the span and plug up small holes.

Larger corroded sections require a patch. Cut a piece of asphalt roofing shingle larger than the opening, cover the area around the hole with roofing cement, and set the patch into the adhesive. Seal the edges and face of the strip with more cement. (A patch made from an aluminum-foil pan may be used on aluminum gutters but never on

To keep the gutter and leaders clean, install mesh (bought at a hardware store), made specifically for this purpose, across the top of the channel. Another helpful touch in keeping a dry basement-add a cement drain trough or a downspout extension pipe that will guide the rainfall further away from the foundation.

Untangling the telephone

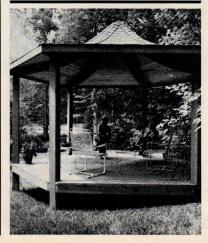

A long cord on your telephone lets you move freely while speaking, indoors or outdoors, and you can install this extension cord yourself. Coiled handset cords are 15 or 25 feet long, $5.95 and $7.45 respectively; straight line cords, 20 or 50 feet long, are $3.75 and $5.95. For wall, desk, or telephone jack outlets, the cords come in 12 colors to match color schemes or the phone itself. Do-it-yourself installation instructions claim to require only a screwdriver. Smith-Gates Corp., Farmington, Conn. 06032.

Air-conditioning costs cooled

A new automatic timer for room air conditioners claims to cut electrical power consumption 50 percent by reducing operating time. The timer can be set to turn off the conditioner in the cool of the day —perhaps early morning—and turn it on again before residents return home from work. No special wiring is needed; plug the timer into a wall outlet, the air-conditioner cord into the timer. 125- and 250-volt timers are available nationally for $14.95. Intermatic. Inc., Intermatic Plaza, Spring Grove, Ill. 60081.

Do-it yourself gazebo

A hexagonal garden shelter or house wing is available prefabricated and precut. 16 feet wide, it encloses about 360 square feet of space, approximately 7½ to 8 feet high at cornice or fascia. Dubbed the "Carolina Gazebo," the $2192 (excluding package freight charges) includes 6 columns, 6 laminated rafters, fascia boards, roof decking, roofing felt, asphalt shingles, and hardware for assembling. Flooring materials are an extra $369. Screens or lattice could be added also. The lumber is southern pine, with a sealer protecting the kiln-dried laminated timbers. Columns are pressure-treated with Koppers preservative. For details, write Koppers Co., Forest Products Div., 1900 Koppers Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa. 15219.

Small is beautiful

Children are miniaturists—they love to collect small things, the tinier the better. In New York City, Barbara Isenberg made this wooden type drawer into a display shelf for her 3-year-old son's collection of small animal figures and stuffed dolls. She stuck figures with double-sided carpet tape so that Christopher can take them out to play and put them back easily himself. The shelf hangs on the wall with picture hooks.

Compartments range in size from 3 to 8 inches, making nice visual variety in a box 16 by 30 inches overall. Type drawers (used to hold hand-set type in printing shops) can be found in junk stores and antique shops—unless you happen to know a printing firm going out of business. Ms. Isenberg paid $5 for hers.

MARY SMITH

Teen-age traumas

Give a teen-age girl 20 dollars, and she will probably spend it on lipstick, clothes, and a magazine that tells her how to put it all together. Give a girl Andrea Boroff Eagan's new book, Why Am I So Miserable If These Are The Best Years Of My Life? (Lippincott, $6.95), and her looks will improve from the inside out.

"No one is free from problems or pimples," the author begins, in an attempt to put the troubled adolescent on her feet. She then goes on to discuss girls and girls, girls and boys, sex, birth control, and general health. Two unprecedented chapters on handling parents and knowing one's legal rights ("getting busted," signing contracts, rape, juvenile law), knock down just about any advice-to-teen-agers competition.

If the tone of the book appears controversial, it is because the material is up-to-date. The author admits to a stormy adolescence, and her writing reflects a sympathy for teen-age girls. Ms. Eagan talks frankly and with responsibility about the sexual revolution, women's liberation, and the effect of advertising on women: "Advertising encourages us to be dissatisfied with the way we look and plays on our desire to be attractive." On parents: "There really isn't any point in making an issue of every little thing that comes up. If you keep a sense of proportion about what is important and what isn't, your parents just might respond in kind." The author offers several answers to many of the big choices a girl has to make for herself, never pushing for one "right" solution.

Ms. Eagan's main concern has been to keep up with the modern issues, showing the teen-ager how to handle them by dealing with herself first. That's why Why Am I So Miserable If These Are The Best Years Of My Life? makes sense for today's teen-ager.

Straight talk about teeth

A visit to the dentist can create more childhood horrors than the Big Bad Wolf. Yet one American child in five has severe malocclusion (teeth not meeting properly), and thus is doomed not only to be stuck in a dentist's chair, but also to wear for roughly two years a nasty contraption in the mouth that straightens teeth. Dr. Jay Weiss, an orthodontist, has given some thought to the problem of children's fears and resistance to braces-probably because he holds a master's degree in psychology as well as being a professor at the Psychiatric Institute Dental Service, Columbia University School of Dentistry. "Parents play a key role," he says, "in that they may have crooked teeth themselves and are saying in effect, 'I don't want my child to suffer what I've suffered.' Often a child is not old enough to understand that, and doesn't really care. It takes a certain amount of maturity to postpone gratification and wait for the future Dazzling Smile that is promised."

Dr. Weiss believes that orthodontists should be more psychologically attuned to young patients. "One of the most important things is to give them the feeling that they have some control over the situation, and some participation in it. For example, I ask them to help in simple ways like writing up name cards to identify x-rays, and even mixing impression material. This kind of approach should be taught in dental schools."

Dr. Weiss believes that cooperation is the key factor. "Young children go through a stage when they want to please adults. I believe that orthodontics, to take advantage of this stage, should be done early—before puberty, if possible. The results in such circumstances will be far more successful." Dr. Weiss has written a helpful and witty guide for orthodontic patients and their parents, Embraceable You, $8.95 from Health Sciences Publishing Corp., 451 Greenwich Street, New York, N.Y. 10013. CAROLINE SEEBOHM

Nature's child

When it comes to answering a curious child's questions about plant and animal life, almost every parent could use some help. And help is on its way, in the form of The Complete Family Nature Guide by Jean Reese Worthley (Doubleday, $7.95).

Notes on dead trees, earthworms, crickets, and spiders all help to raise the reader's Nature IQ. Not only does the book discuss the who, what, and where of nature's various inhabitants clearly enough to be understood even by those adults raised among the concrete fields of our cities, but also there are numerous suggestions for activities to share with children and keep them occupied. How about starting a spider web collection, or making spore prints, or nature note paper?

There could be more illustrations-a common cricket and praying mantis are illustrated, for instance; the ichneumon fly and flower fly are not. Yet the latter are exactly what the curious budding naturalist will be trying to identify. Still, on the whole, the book is a very handy reference for any older child or for a parent trying to lure the younger set away from the steady glow of television, even if it's only to the backyardwhich upon closer inspection may have more nature hidden in it than you thought.

TRIUMPHS OF THE AMERICAN TABLE

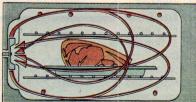

Only the Jenn-Air Grill-Range lets you enjoy them all.

The Jenn-Air Charflavored Beefsteak!

A triumph of the Jenn-Air Cooktop Grill, it comes sizzling to your table. Its crunchy brown crust has the taste of smoke. And it splits under the knife to reveal a lush pink meat running with juices that bathe your mouth with every bite.

And it's only one of a whole triumphant rangefull of foods Jenn-Air cooks in a stream of powerdriven air. Jenn-Air's five Cooktop Convertible units with surface ventilation let you grill, spit roast, griddle, shish-kebab and deep-fry. On the rangetop or in the oven, Jenn-Air's airstream cookery cooks cooler, cleaner, better ... whisks away smoke and odors ... exhausts directly to outdoors to keep vour kitchen cleaner, sweeter.

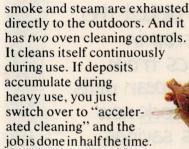

The Jenn-Air Power Oven. It's two ovens in one!

First, it's a conventional electric oven and broiler that lets you cook all your present recipes without change. But then, just by flicking a switch, it becomes an entirely new kind of oven that lets you cook foods in a stream of power-driven air.

As a result, the Jenn-Air Power Oven cooks cooler and faster (roasts, turkeys, hams cook at a 50° cooler temperature in up to one-third less time)! It cooks evenly, because the heat is spread evenly throughout the oven. It cooks cleaner, because there's less spattering, and smoke and steam are exhausted directly to the outdoors. And it has two oven cleaning controls. It cleans itself continuously during use. If deposits accumulate during heavy use, you just

Jenn-Air Open-Spit Roasted Chicken.

Open-spit roasting makes chicken taste chicken-ier. Clear, radiant heat strokes the chicken as it revolves, develops a fuller, richer flavor, probes deep into the meat to make it more richly gelatinous. Meanwhile, smoke, spatters, odors, and steam that could give meat a steamy taste are whisked away by Jenn-Air's rangetop surface ventilation. And there are no end of good things you can spit-roastpork, duck, even a bologna basted with cherry preserves. The Jenn-Air Grill-Range is available with ceramic smoothtop or conventional surface heating elements. Heating elements slip out in seconds, to be replaced by any of the 5 Cooktop Convertible units. "We're 2,000 miles apart now, but still just as close."

Before I could tell time, I knew when my dad would be home from work. I'd be waiting at the window, watching for him to turn the corner.

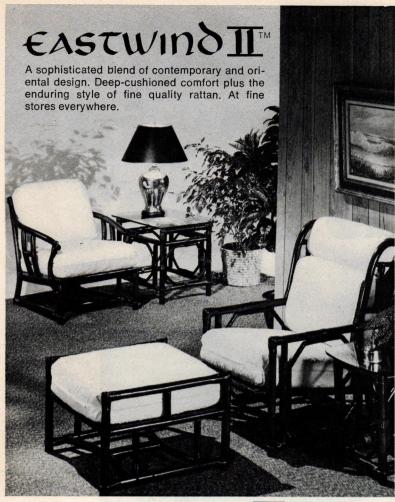

When I was old enough, I'd run to the bus stop to wait for him. And we'd race each other to the porch, then sit on the steps and talk about everything from football to cowboys.

That part of the day was ours. Now, we're 2,000 miles apart, but I still get a kick out of sharing my day with him.

Long Distance is the next best thing to being there.

Do patterned sheets soothe your psyche?

They do for their designers, as you will see on page 96. Sleep researchers, Sandra Oddo found, aren't so sure; but she did uncover some new dream facts.

Do stripes on your sheets give you angular dreams? Have printed flowers a subconscious scent? Does your choice of bedclothes affect the way you sleep—does it have significance?

"Hmm," says Dr. David Davis, who has a sleep clinic in New York City. "It's never been studied." Never? "No, never," affirms Dr. John Karaçen, secretary of the American Sleep Association. People have been taped to electrodes from their eyeballs to their toes to sleep for science. "Sometimes to make them comfortable we tell them to bring what they want from their own beds to the clinic," says Dr. Karaçen. "It's almost always their pillows."

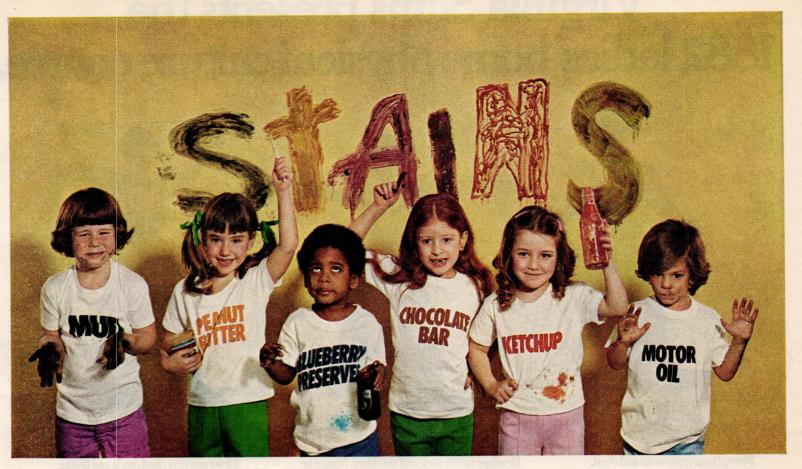

Dr. Allan Hobson, a neurophysiologist at the Meuss Mental Health Center at Harvard University is studying the rhythm of sleep. Every 15 minutes throughout the night his special time-lapse cameras click, freezing a second of sleep into part of a 36-picture series of a night's rest. The pictures were recently shown at the Sleep Association meeting in Cincinnati, and his group is planning an exhibition on the physiology of sleep to be at the Carpenter Center for Visual Arts in Cambridge, Mass., next spring. "We want to call attention to the esthetic aspect of our work." is beautiful-dynamic, rhythmic, lyrical. It is behavior that takes up a third of our day, and we're not even aware of what we look like while it's going on." The pictures show the development of sleep from the first flirtings with dozes to the intricate shared patterns of sleep that develop when two people share a bed.

And the bedclothes? He does his own sleeping under an antique crocheted coverlet made by his grandmother, through which he can see the red stripes of his very modern sheet. "It makes me feel rather swinging, I guess, under the more formal shape of the coverlet." Aha, then the sheets are significant.

"Habitat variables like sheets may very well be important," says Dr. Hobson, "but there is no evidence. What interests me is the inside of sleep—the brain mechanism." His photographic work shows the sleeping bodies moving to respond very closely to the cyclical rhythms of the biological clock that clicks over in the brain every night. The cycle is 90-100 minutes long in man (cats' cycles are 30 minutes, elephants' are 2 hours, probably indicating that the length of the cycle is related to the size of the brain) and includes marked stages of deep sleep, dreaming sleep, and several other regular changes in bodily rhythms. "We now know that dreams are a fixed pattern of action controlled only by internal rhythms," he says. "The content of the dream can be influenced from outside, but, contrary to Freud's psychoanalytic theories, there is no evidence that the action of dreaming comes from anything external to the brain's set cycle. The questions raised by the mechanism of dreaming itself are fascinating. For instance, how do we see things without light? How are the images generated? And where does the information for them come from?"

It appears, says Dr. Hobson, that the parts of the brain concered with eye movement may also switch on the brain's visual perception system-so that when Rapid Eye Movement sleep rolls the eye to the right, for example, the brain asks itself "what does this random movement remind me of?" And then, perhaps, it shunts the resulting image through memory and emotional channels until it is properly fleshed out to be presented in the context of a dream. "This evidence of the mechanical generation of dreams challenges the classic psychoanalytic view,' Dr. Hobson says. "Instead of a dream being a defense mechanism for the psyche in which information is presented through the id, which says 'No, you can't come out until you've got your clothes on,' dreams are very creative activity. The brain turns a minimum of information into an interesting picture."

Researchers like Dr. Rosalind Cartwright at the University of Illinois in Chicago, who is looking for evidence of extrasensory perception in dreams, are trying to find Continued on page 135

When the "stain squad" challenged Tru-Test E-Z Kare latex flat enamel... they got wiped out!

Most food stains wash clean from the enamel-hard E-Z Kare finish ...without "shining" or need for re-painting. It was hardly a contest for Tru-Test E-Z Kare latex flat enamel. Because stains, grease and grime can't readily penetrate the E-Z Kare surface, most soil washes away. Tough stains can usually be scrubbed off with no damage to the flat latex finish. The soft look and easy application of latex plus the rugged durability of enamel make Tru-Test E-Z Kare the one paint perfect for both walls and woodwork, one finish that can outlast ordinary latex paint in every room. White or custom colors, including House & Garden American Watercolors.

The Wash 'n Wear Paint...perfect for walls and woodwork in any room.

Three modern, efficient Tru-Test factories produce highest quality paints at factory-to-you savings.

Tru-Test Paints are sold exclusively by participating True Value Hardware Stores who own their own paint factories. Look under "Paint—Tru-Test" in the classified Yellow Pages.

> t's a special gift, the ability to see in color. Humans can do it, and so can a few other animals, like birds, some of the primates, a few lizards, and the honeybee (although the honeybees' visible spectrum is different from ours—they can't distinguish red from black, but they can see ultraviolet). The rest of the animals exist in a world of mystery, primal shadows, perpetual shades of night. But for us, there's color! Color is awake, here, now. And we seem to be evolving toward even greater capacity: Suddenly we are aware that our spectrum is deeper, broader, dazzling with colors that never existed before. Reality supersedes logic. We begin to see like children again, like dreamers, with kaleidoscope eyes, knowing that anything is possible now. Color won't be restrained, so don't even try. Let color become your way of life, your state of mind. See with fresh eyes, feel color, listen to color, smell it, taste it. Don't hold back—let go!

The excitement Shock of colors BY DOLICIAS DAVIS BY DOUGLAS DAVIS you've never

d Reinhardt said: "There is something wrong, irresponsible, and mindless about color, something impossible to control." Barnett Newman -a colleague of Reinhardt-welcomed color. In the late 60s he painted a series of huge, glowing, three-color canvases entitled Who's Afraid of Red, Yellow, and Blue? It is a debate as ancient as the caves and as fresh as now, because there are two eternal answers to the same eternal question, living side by side, like the male and female traits in every psyche: Yes, color is relative, impossible to control, and immoral; yes, color is absolute, it can be used to predictable effect, it is pure-as-light. Certain manufacturers and designers will hold for the second yes: They know blue sells, blue makes a room restful. But turn the "hue" and "chroma" controls on your TV set and something else happens: Color fragments into a thousand hues-without-name, depending on the channel, the subject, the hour, and the minute. Josef Albers claimed all his life that color is never seen by the eye As It Is. He would send 50 students into the same street to find examples of "Coca-Cola Red" and get 50 different answers. "If one says red," he wrote, "and there are people listening . . . it can be expected that there will be many reds in their minds . . . and one can be sure that all these reds will be different."

So who's afraid of color? Less and less of us, it appears. Goethe, who spent more time

Editor's note: Douglas Davis is an artist and critic whose videotapes, prints, drawings, and objects have been exhibited extensively. His most recent book, Fragments for a New Art of the Seventies, was published last year. Critic in the arts at Newsweek magazine, Mr. Davis is currently working on a book of essays to be published by Harper & Row later this year.

thinking about color theory than anyone this side of science, believed that nations and races afraid of color retreat into black and white. The British and the Germans (and other "people of refinement") preferred "absolute negation" of color, "owing partly to weakness of sight, partly to the uncertainty of taste." But the French, the Italians, the Spaniards loved "active" colors, red most of all. Anyone who steps off a flight from most of Europe (East and West) finds the American landscape in 1976 "active" with color. White tennis shirts are now scarlet; lips and nails form a spectrum of brash orange, shiny pink, or even azure; black suits are now yellow; dress shirts open and multicolored; cars striped down the middle; and public plazas aglow with sleek red Calders; museums adorned with all-red, allblue, all-white paintings; institutional buildings (even one hospital) dabbed with coats of bright primaries. If a monochrome landscape means uncertainty of taste, we are now certain, very certain.

Something is changing. We are on a different track now, leading to a different end -unless the decision made by an entire society to convert to color (the United States in the last century was conspicuously monochrome) is in fact superficial, unprompted by deeper, inchoate instincts. But think again. Of all the visual phenomena that assault our senses, color is the least susceptible to measurement and analysis. We can measure light, chart wavelengths, and scale sounds, but we cannot isolate color from its source of perception. Goethe said-againthat we perceived it with our souls. Countless others have insisted-many of them psychologists—that we associate every color with a memorable event, be it the wallpaper in the room where we spent our childhood or the flower that we picked for our first love. If this is so, then the new American indulgence in color is a delicious mystery that deserves our serious attention, if not investigation by a psychic detective.

Pause first to define the signs of this change, to ask what rather than why. In art -always the leader of fashion, design, architecture-the amazing and self-evident fact is this: Color has triumphed as form only in the 20th century.

Not until our lifetime did all-color paintings begin to be proud of themselves as allcolor. Not until now do we find-for the first time in the history of art-paintings calling themselves Red; White; Green Red Yellow Blue; Blue Lines 10; Umber; Magenta Double, with no pretense to being other than what they are.

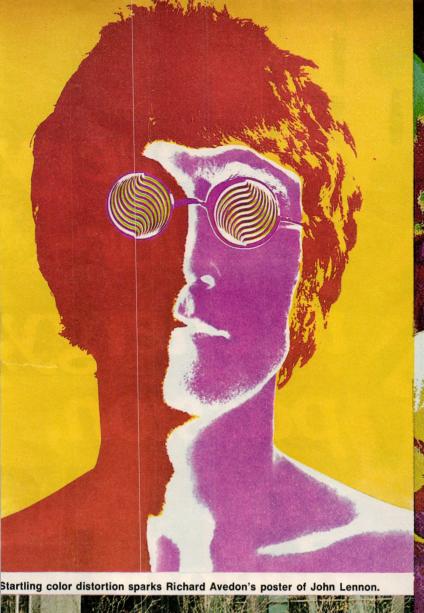

Nasty, sinful color. It has a life of its own now. We can't keep it out of our lives, even when we try (and increasingly we don't). Our tolerance for new, synthetic hues is boundless, opened up not only by theories about the mechanics of the human eye and mind (briefly: The eyebeam itself imposes itself on everything it sees. There is no absolute, objective world beyond us; there is only what we see/ construct), but in the experience of modern life. Primitive man saw only the colors granted by nature—the green of The the grass, the blue of the sky, the white of does not clouds, the black of night, the yellows, pinks, violets of flayers. These are suits. violets of flowers. LECTING COLUMN COLUM

Letting go with color

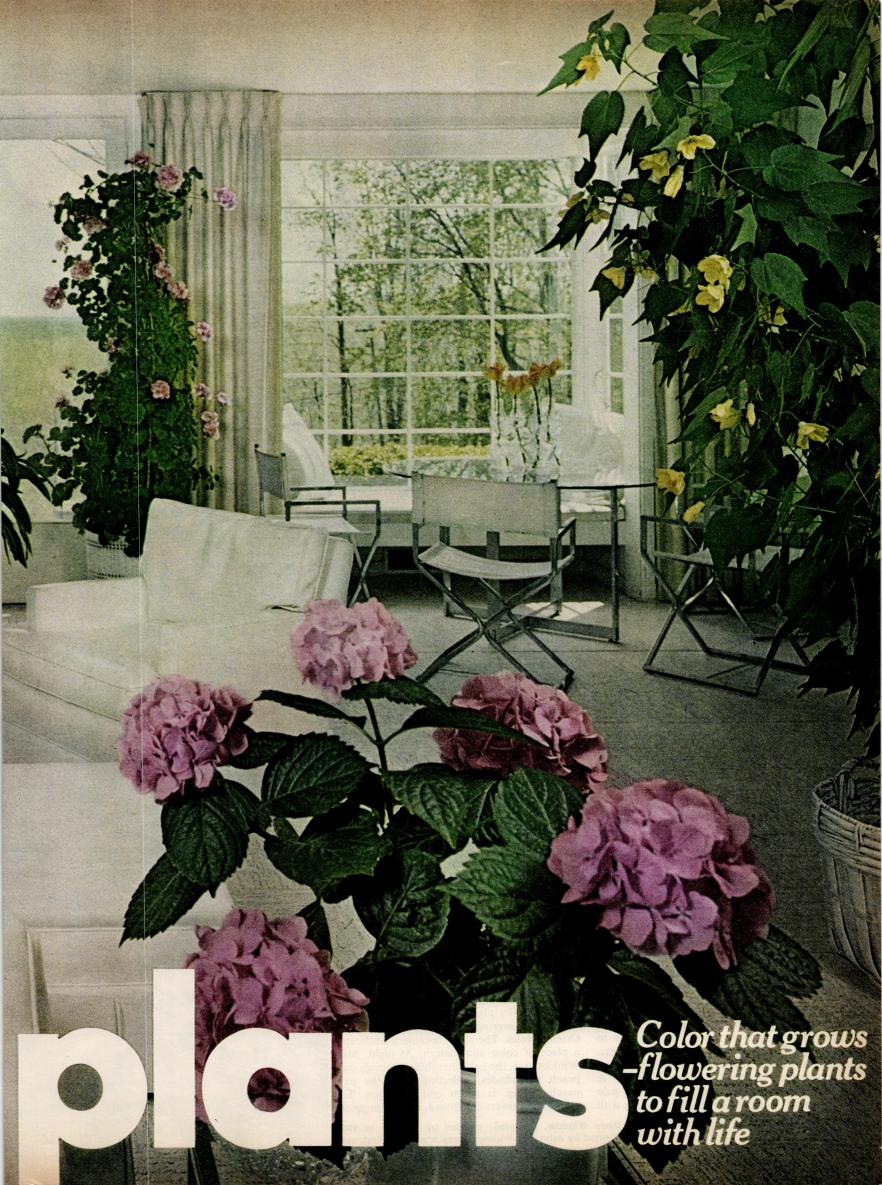

Flowers in paintings hold still. The seasons don't bother them and they don't need water. But there are other ways to have the year-round color of flowers in the house. Plant-growing, like art-collecting, is a full-time passion. You begin, perhaps, with three African violets-but before long, you're cultivating a small jungle.

Flowering plants are the reason for this room, as a painting was for the room on the preceding page. The house was remodeled for southern sun; the floor is spillproof, and everything is white, so that light ricochets onto the green leaves. When the plants moved in, most of them were small, gifts from friends and family, with no claims to botanic rarity. Geraniums, vulgar geraniums," the owner says fondly. But they do bloom! Yearround, the geraniums grow and flower. clivia holds forth in sunny hues. The hydrangeas-because they only flower once indoors, they're temporary guests waiting to be replanted outside-produce their big pink snowballs. All oranges, reds, pinks, whites (blue flowers are sad, the owner feels). They are all cared for in unusual ways-for the complete story, turn to page 108—and they thrive.

Matisse loved flowering plants. In Large Interior in Red (a detail is at left; the painting is owned by the Musée d'Art Moderne in Paris), he put them on the table and in The flowering maples open up. The the painting on the wall, surrounded with vibrant red.

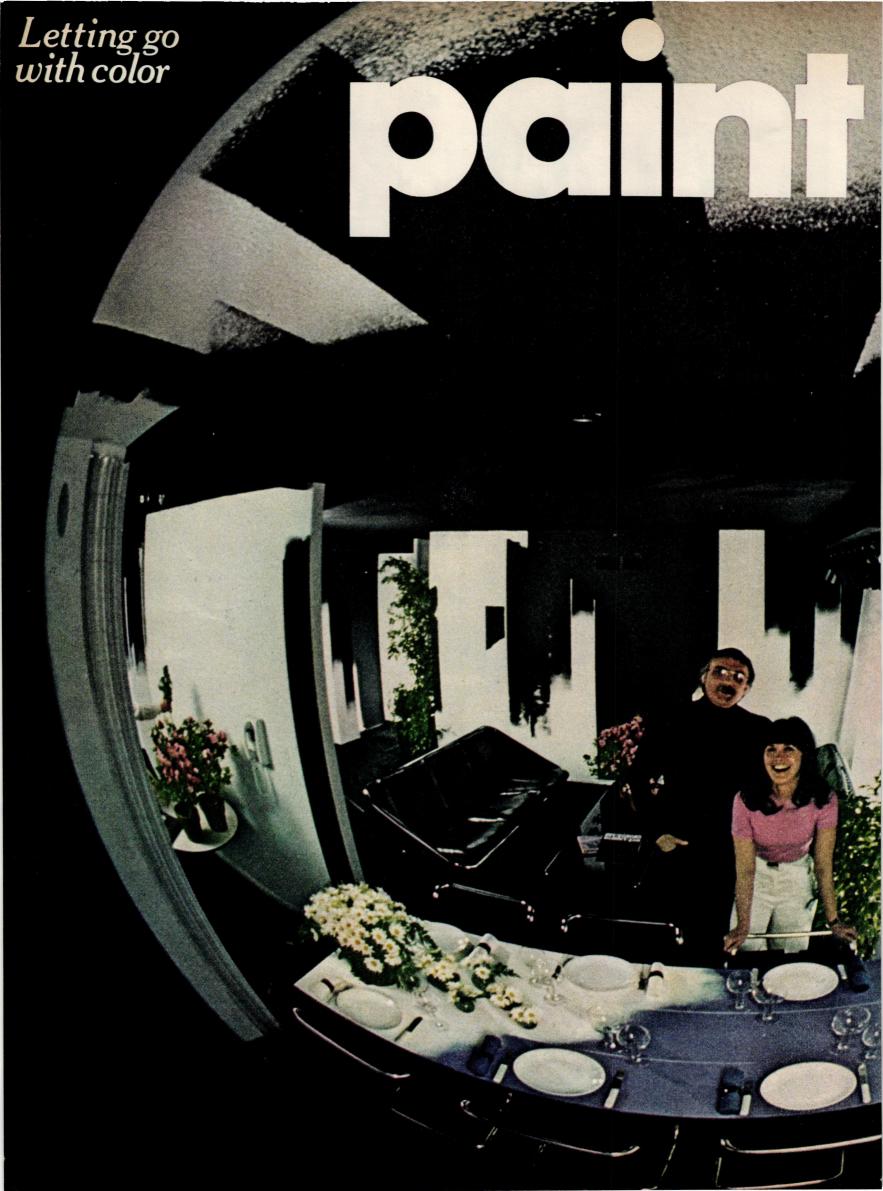

Imagine the freedom and joy you would feel if just by expressing your personal mood you could make an impact -visually-whenever wished. That's what architect and teacher Don Wall and his wife Mary Ann achieved in their very small, conventional apartment. They turned the space into a virtual walk-in painting, opening it into a place where people—their appearance, their movements, and their experience of each other-could be the most important consideration.

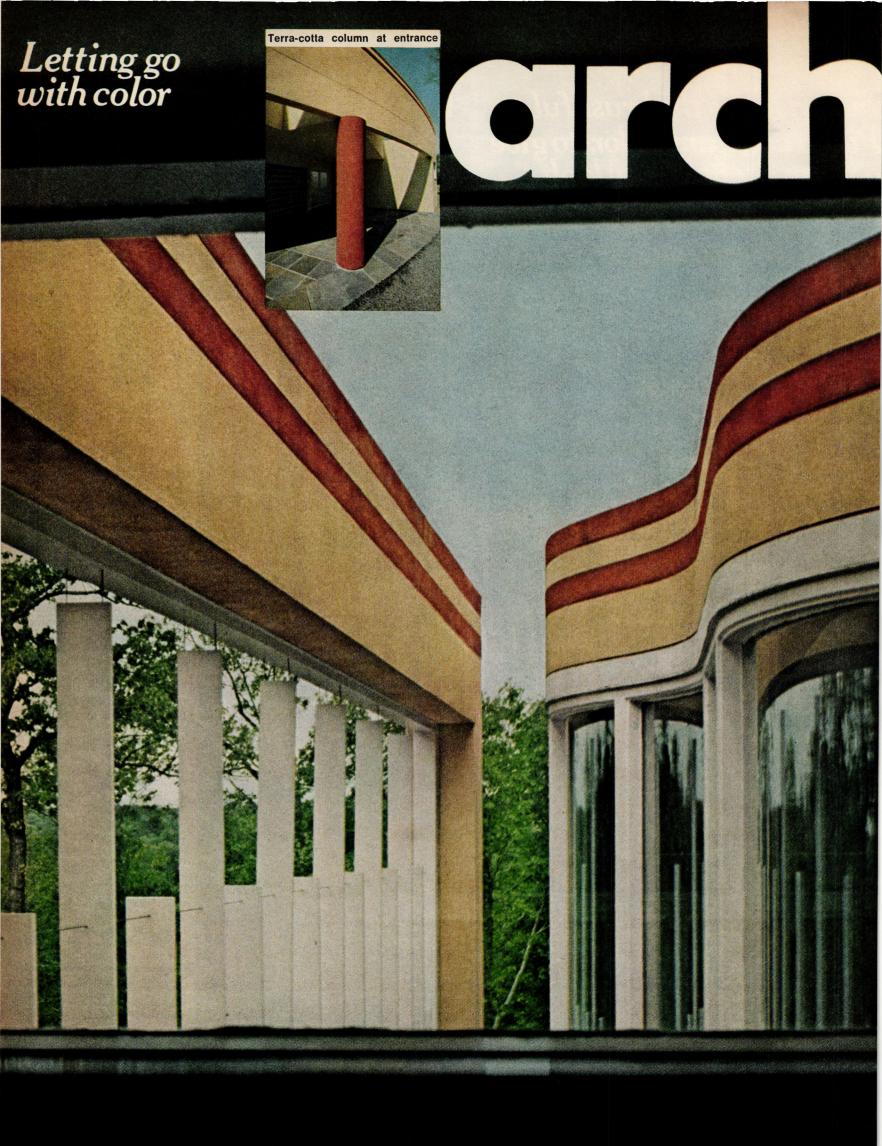

"We rescued this apartment from an oblivion that many people have to live with by following the belief that these rooms could be made 'objects enough'," says Mr. Wall. "We also simplified things further by eliminating the clutter that often substitutes for feelings and individuality. In these rooms, now, it's people who are the action, the interest, and the focus."

There is nothing random about those uninhibited sweeps of black and white: The whole area was carefully divided into 81/2-inch-wide strips, which is also, quite conveniently, the width of a standard painter's roller. Points of symmetry and asymmetry were selected so that the strokes make frames around active areas. The black frame around the living-room coffee table, for example, makes it a visual focus of the room. The black strokes also camouflage

Why black? "Black makes a wonderful backdrop for color. It's a foil for people and what they wear, and it's my symbol for order and simplicity," says Mr. Wall. "We change the dominant contrasting color often, according to the time of the year, the light, the flowers, the table settings, whatever we're aware of that we can add or subtract. About five times a year seems right. We painted the dining table mauve because for us it's a color of spring. You wouldn't believe how easy it is to pick up a paintbrush, dip it into some glorious color, and swoosh, swoosh, everything is different, new, and alive!"

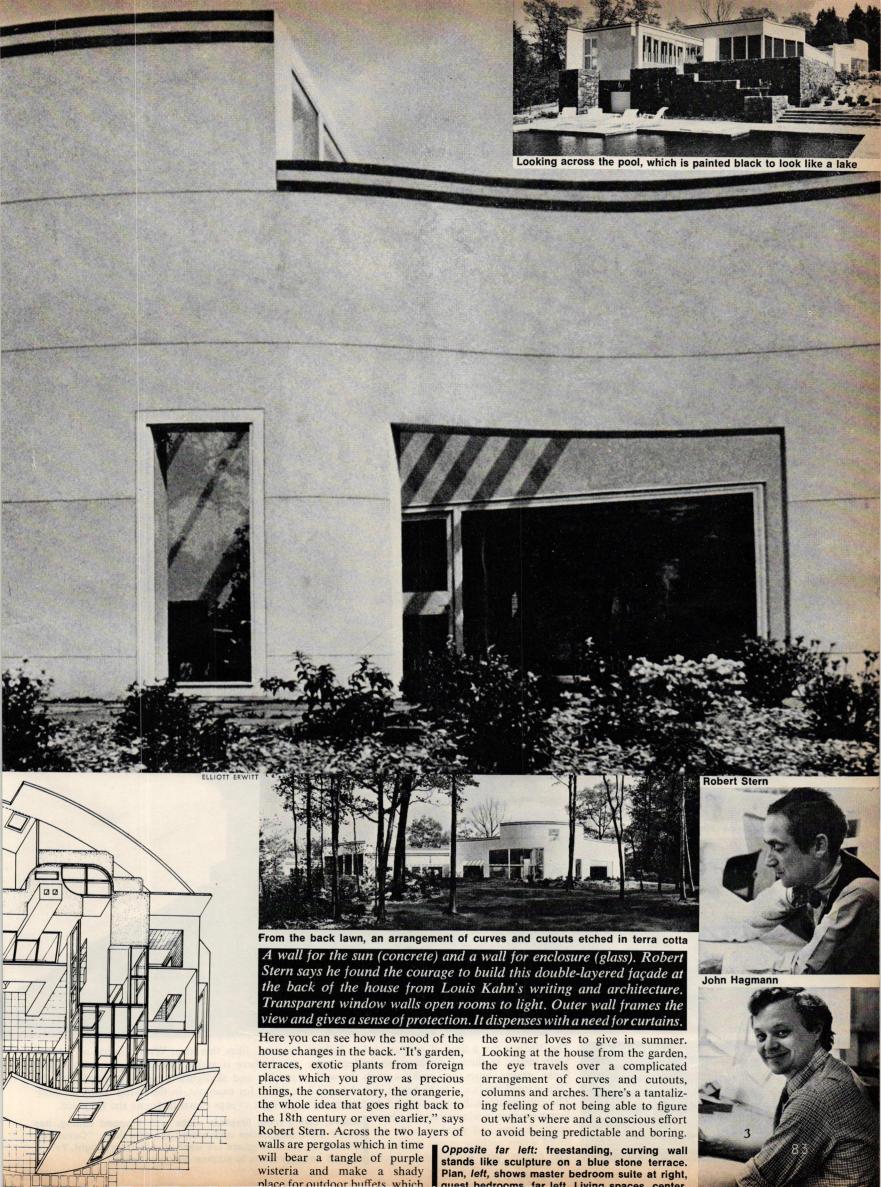

The pole that Mr. Wall is busy painting red, left, was added to the living room as a changeable color source. "We wanted to be able to control the direction the eye travels exactly the way an artist does. The matte textures of black help us, too. The thick black of the carpet and the velvet black bedspread both work to let the bright colors we choose carry their own weight." The red pole in the living room too—another sign of spring. complements the pink azaleas,

Colors indicate mood and feeling. In the bedrooms, they are delicate and soothing, Pink Pink, Blue Sky, and Pineapple. Greens and stronger pinks make the living room like a spring garden. In the kitchen, the heart of the house, intense Sun Yellow with a hot pink and Oyster White suggest energy and action.

The 30s was not a time of primary color, Robert Stern insists, so there is nothing too strident here. Pinks, greens, blues, and yellows wash the walls. "We wanted the house to be bright and cheerful." The conservatory, between master bedroom and

Artist Jennifer Bartlett and her Rhapsody

Mexican architect Luis Ba and painter Jennifer Bartlett use color in unique exciting way

The brilliance of Mexico

Who is Luis Barragán? Few people know much about this outstanding Mexican architect who works in brilliant colors, because he hasn't wanted his work to be published. And he has never accepted a commission outside his own country. Three years ago, Emilio Ambasz, Curator of Design at New York's Museum of Modern Art, went to Mexico City, where Barragán lives and works, with a missionto bring Barragán's treasure of architecture to light. The result: a dazzling slide show now running at the Museum of Modern Art through September 7, and the simultaneous publication of Ambasz's The Architecture of Luis Barragán (Museum of Modern Art, $27.50; $12.50 paperback). Barragán, now 74, began to build in 1927 in Guadalajara in Spanish colonial style, with lots of arches, tiled roofs, and pergolas. In 1936, he moved to Mexico City, where his buildings, with smooth, white surfaces and modern lines, were clearly influenced by the International Style. In 1945, at 43, "when he had worked through all styles," says Ambasz, "he found his." Buying 865 acres of extraordinary desert land with great volcanic rock formations, he started to build a residential development with parks and gardens. Lava rock walls were stained with paints—rust, pale green, blue, sometimes bright pink. Natural vegetation was preserved. Steps and pathways were carved into rocks; water pools created out of the sea lava.

At first, people were unimpressed and afraid of living side by side with cactus and snakes. But by 1960, over 900 houses had been built and Barragán was established as an architect of feeling, a visionary who understood the power of building with nature. Because he respects the simple, popular building in Mexico-the ranches, convents, villages-Barragán builds in brick covered with stucco and painted anything from hot pink or purple to vivid orange. This conscious choice of unsophisticated material allied to strong shapes seems to exaggerate the feeling of drama and grandeur. Sky is part of the composition—building and nature combine in one enormous canvas. "He knows how to control great architectural theatrical effects," says Am-

Imaginative multiples

Artist Jennifer Bartlett, left, also explores boundaries. Like Luis Barragán's buildings that begin with finely defined borders between the desert and sky, her impressive Rhapsody, a collection of 988 enameled steel plates in three sections (recently displayed at the Paula Cooper Gallery in New York, now on a tour that begins at Dartmouth College, August 15 to mid-September), also begins with physical limitations: the plates, each 1 foot square; the 25 colors of Tester's high-gloss enamel that she used; the gallery walls; and her perceptions of the essentials of art. A point, a line, three fundamental shapes, four images (tree, house, mountain, and sea)—and color. She investigates them, left to right along the gallery walls, peeling away nonessentials until only simple uncompromising meaning is left. "There are some people whose houses are monotone, so they wear lots of colors," says fashion designer Mary McFadden. "Other people's houses are tremendously colorful, so their clothes are often monotone." Mary McFadden herself, not surprisingly, falls into neither category. "I maintain that all my clothes, which have a lot of color in them, will work in my setting. In other words, anything will go with anything." This bold credo is evident in all the clothes she designs, which cover the color spectrum. "We divide the collection up between the colorful and the monotone, because some people like color and others don't. But again I maintain that when people say a certain color doesn't look well on them, they are mistaken -with a few exceptions, of course. But the fact is that most people can wear any color." Her collections demonstrate that clearly enough. Her showroom is a light and airy loft with batik-covered couches and-a typically original touch—cardboard tubes suspended from the ceiling wrapped in bright orange and fuchsia China silk, on which are tied an array of belts. The clothes on display range from multicolored pongee tunics to robes of damask, brocade, and chiffon. She believes that color is definitely coming back. "Look at it historically," she says. "From '65 to '70 women wore very bright colors. From '70 to '73 they wore safe browns, beiges, and khakis. Now we are moving back into very bright, imaginative, and creative clothes. We're very lucky," she smiles. Most women would agree.

Your color sense can develop with training, Mary McFadden believes. She works with over 500 color charts for her collections. "You get highly trained to the subtleties of color." She also travels about 100,000 air miles a year. "That's about 4 months traveling with the collection in America, then maybe 10 countries in the summer where I suck in the culture." One of her strategies (and hobbies) is to photograph almost every museum collection she sees, so that she has a huge number of slides of paintings that she may one day use in a fabric design. "I blow up a small area of the painting, and use ideas from the colors and designs that appear in the detail. For instance, one new fabric that we are working on now is inspired by part of a miniature from Isfahan." Her apartment, too, is inspired by her travels—Rhodesian art, Japanese lacquer, Persian pottery, Nigerian raffia, Chinese furniture, American Indian hangings, pre-Columbian sculpture, all live happily along-side modern sculpture and art. "In my apartment any color will fit, because the walls are white and there is no predominant color in any of the rooms."

When Mary McFadden entertains, she provides a feast for the eye as well as the palate. "It's all highly designed and planned, like a painting. Everything is systemetized, with about 15 or 20 variations." She mostly gives buffets, like the Japanese one, right, for 8 to 10 people, so that everyone circulates easily. (For recipes, see page 124.) In addition to Japanese food, she has other menus planned for their visual appeal: for instance, tomato soufflé with basil sauce, chicken loaf with Cumberland sauce, wild rice, turnips, and Key lime pie; or hot orange borscht with thinly sliced orange rind, quenelles au Porto, and blackberries encased in spun sugar with raspberry and kirsch sauce.

For a party, left, Mary McFadden wears her own hand-painted tunic and skirt with an Egyptian hand-forged cuff dipped in gold. Right, a bowl of sashimi, Japanese raw fish hors d'oeuvres decorated with rolled carrot, cucumber, white radish, and green mustard. Other hors d'oeuvres (called bento and zensai) include kelp, asparagus, quail eggs, bamboo shoots.

It's called Blair House or the President's Guest House, but it's really a trio of town houses—distinct outside, linked within. Blair House, built in 1824 and bought by the Blair family in 1836 and the Blair-Lee house pext door, built by publisher Francis Preston Blair for his daughter, have been the official guest house since 1942; the third house was added in the late 1960s. The Office of the Chief of Protocol in the State Department manages and maintains Blair House but, as the wife of one Chief of Protocol explains,

Since Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke first organized the Blair House Fine Arts Committee, a series of dedicated committees chaired by the wives of successive Chiefs of Protocol has done a remarkable job of expanding the original furniture collection and planning the house to offer privacy, comfort, and a place to relax to its distinguished guests. Recently, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Emil Mosbacher Jr., twenty-seven rooms were redecorated by Elisabeth Draper, among them all the rooms shown on these pages. A provocative discussion of Ivan Illich's controversial new book, Medical Nemesis

IS AMERICAN Medicine KILLING US? By John Wykert

Like a good many people nowadays, my great uncle turned his back on the conventional medicine of his time. It was an extraordinary act for a respected physician in the Vienna of 1907. But Dr. Moritz van Brée could not be deterred. The family, needless to say, was appalled by his decision to retire and to sell the profitable and rather fashionable sanatorium he owned at the outskirts of town, in order to devote himself, at age 50, to "activities more useful and enjoyable." To my mother, Uncle Moritz confided that he was through with medicine because he was disenchanted. "Don't trust doctors," he advised her. "We know nothing and can do little, precious little—for our patients. Take my advice, stay away from all doctors."

Essentially similar opinions, though put in far more seductive intellectual terms, come some 70 years later from that Pied Piper of the countertechnology culture, historian Ivan Illich, in his new, highly controversial, and thought-provoking book, Medical Nemesis. The Expropriation of Health (Pantheon, $8.95).

Much as Uncle Moritz did, Vienna-born Illich believes that the medical establishment constitutes a major threat to the maintenance of one's good health. The similarity of their conclusions makes one wonder about these many decades of medical progress. Mind you, their convictions are based on a completely different array of facts. Illich contemplates the present technological overabundance and its lacks; Dr. Brée mourned his deprivation, a medical repertoire that was unspeakably limited. Like generations before him, he had received a lengthy humanistic education and an extremely sketchy medical one. Things are reversed today. Uncle Moritz's armamentarium of medications was pathetic, his instruments few in number, and the less said of his medical texts, the better. Surgery, mostly done by barbers or bonesetters, was just becoming a medical specialty in the 1900s: for a thousand years the great European medical schools had taught medical students the humanities, to an extraordinary degree and at great length, and briefly, very briefly, three pathetic "medical" techniques-bleeding, purging, and the giving of enemas. Thus armed—it was all they had and all they did -the physicians of post-medieval days set out to do untold harm. Paradoxically, the physicians reaped rewards, untold riches, and reverence galore. Not surprisingly, Brée's retirement mourned in his day. He may have felt unable to do anything, yet what little he could do was held in disproportionate esteem. And he shared the confidence of his time that a better day was adawning. Modern medicine was being born; his native Vienna was a hotbed of medical giants and pioneering research, as were the nearby German states. To the boundless esteem for the physician was welded a boundless enthusiasm for the

to happen. From being a virtually helpless bystander at the sickbed, the physician was to become master of all he surveyed, in control of an amazing, far-ranging technology. From a concerned and cultivated amateur, he was to become a professional—the supercool, aloof scientist. Yes, the dream came true. So why are so many patients so very disenchanted with all the wonders of modern medicine? Why does malpractice, either as a legal maneuver or as a devastating experience, run like a leitmotiv through medical journals as well as cocktail parties?

As far as Illich is concerned, technology has not just taken over, it is hopelessly out of control. What the marvels of medicine have brought with them is a side effect he calls "iatrogenesis" (from the Greek iatros, doctor, and genesis, origin)—doctor-caused diseases. Illich refers to this as the "sickmaking powers of diagnosis and therapy.

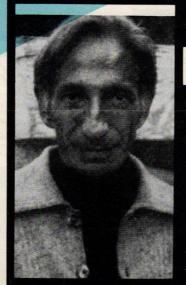

He believes this seamy side of medical progress is hidden from view, while the benefits of medical progress receive all the publicity. And he calls for the citizen to put a stop to the iatrogenesis epidemic. Do not panic, he urges his readers, but begin a thoughtful discussion that will lead to demystifying modern medicine. The only real danger we all face, he contends, is to be passive in the presence of the expert, and to allow organized medicine to do its own, sure-to-besuperficial housecleaning.

Medical Nemesis offers a dazzling treat, an academic polemic (footnotes stud Illich's pages to the point of distraction) that encourages us to reexamine our thinking and feelings about a subject we largely ignore-because of our passivity when it comes to matters medical, and also perhaps because of our fear that we are genuinely helpless to change the existing order. But perhaps not.

To paraphrase Toscanini on Marian Anderson, here is a voice that comes along only once in a lifetime. It is well-worth heeding. One need not believe every word, but just be turned on, if possible, to constructive action. In Illich, we have found a passionate mentor for our times.

HISTORIAN-PHILOSOPHER ILLICH ATTACKS THE MEDICAL ESTABLISHMENT

EDITOR'S NOTE: Historian and social philosopher Ivan Illich was born in Vienna in 1926. Enormously erudite, Illich speaks 11 languages and has degrees in philosophy, theology, and history: He became a Catholic priest in the early 50s and requested service in a predominantly Puerto Rican parish in New York City. He was vice-rector of the Catholic University of Puerto Rico, and a faculty member at Fordham University. Disputes with the church and his founding of the radical Center of Intercultural Documentation caused him to leave the priesthood. He lives in Cuernavaca, Mexico, and has expressed his iconoclastic social theories in his book De-Schooling Society and now in Medical Nemesis.

Doctors TALK BACK

Six prominent physicians give their views

H. Jack Geiger

Dr. Geiger is professor and chairman, Department of Community Medicine, School of Medicine, State University of New York, Stony Brook, N.Y.

On reflection, the questions that Illich raises are extraordinarily important, particularly the social and cultural points. Least interesting is his concept of medical iatrogenesis, while the meeting of unlimited medical demands is of real concern. What Illich does is to cop out politically. Many of the issues he raises are political and concern the control of technology by people. What he does is to urge people to drop out. Dropping out, however, will not affect the issue in one way or another. Because technology will not go away. The problem we face is knowing the limitations and applications of technology. Rejecting technology is absurd. Defining its limits makes sense. I disagree with his position that pain is good and ennobling, and that without pain people are deprived of their autonomy, that there is growth through suffering. This is an absurdity based on a hopelessly romantic view. Pain is humiliating, dehumanizing, and degrading. He refers to addicting the poor to medical care and thus taking away their autonomy. Yet the poor are entitled to that risk. I am always very suspicious of people who suggest such solutions for the poor.

Lewis Thomas

Dr. Thomas is president of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York and author of The Lives of a Cell (Viking), a 1975 National Book Award winner.

Illich is a friend and I am enjoying his book. I agree with him in part. In recent years, we've become obsessed with health to such an extent that we are almost a hypochondriacal society. We're now spending $120 billion a year on health compared to $10 billion in 1950. I am not clear where all this money is going, but I do agree there is a tendency these days to "medicalize" a great many social problems which are really beyond the scope of medicine. I also agree with Illich that the tendency of the human body is towards health and self-repair, and we could all do a lot as individuals to avoid ill health.

On the other hand, I do have to disagree with Illich on doctor-made diseasewhat he calls iatrogenesis. He suggests, as others have before him, that doctors create clinical conditions through medicine and drugs, which make patients sicker than they are, but he claims that iatrogenesis is so widespread as to menace the public health like an epidemic. I think this is an outrageous exaggeration. I don't think medicine should be criticized for the things it can do uniquely well-for example, curing pneumonia, tuberculosis, syphilis, and preventing a variety of viral diseases that were once lethal. At the same time, Illich fails to recognize that medicine is still a young science with much of its future ahead of it, and he criticizes the whole field for being unable to cure diseases which we do not yet understand. All in all, if, as Illich suggests, we were to close down medical science, I think we'd end up spending more money and being in more of a shambles than we are today. *

Michael Halberstam

Dr. Halberstam is a Washington D.C. cardiologist and internist, lecturer, and author. He is contributing editor to Medical Economics and coauthor of a new book, A Coronary Event (Lippincott).

The biggest thing that Ivan Illich has going for him is his name. If he were called Herbert Johnson, his books would be dismissed as nonsense, but his name sounds weighty. Illich is clearly guilty of everything he accuses everybody else of. He takes valuable insight and makes it a way of life. He does to social analysis what the blindly technological doctor whom he denounces does to medicine. He pursues a worthy goal, but in the way he goes after it, does more harm than good. I don't think that modern medicine in sum is counterproductive; and Illich's argument that it has become so is just foolish.

Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt

Commissioner of the Food & Drug Administration

I have become increasingly convinced that we need to spend a great deal more time considering the quality of our environment and of our lives. Ivan Illich tells us that we have become an over-medicated society, out of touch with the realities of our humanity. Much of what he says is quite true. It is apparent to even the most casual observer that our society is dedicated to the relief of suffering, after we begin to hurt, rather than the anticipation ofand removal of-the cause of our physical and social ills. But the way to remedy the situation is not to hunker down and endure the suffering as normal, as Illich seems to suggest, but rather increasingly to prevent the need to suffer by cleaning up our world, internal and external.

Harvey Bluestone

Dr. Bluestone is director of the Department of Psychiatry at the Bronx Lebanon Hospital Center and associate professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, New York.

First of all, it was a very lively book; I read it from cover to cover without putting it down. Secondly, Illich is obviously well-read—the range of his knowledge is superb. Thirdly, unfortunately, I think the book doesn't go anyplace. Some of his observations are valid, but the reforms he's talking about really mean a reordering of all society, not just medicine. Getting back to a simpler society, dying at home instead of in the hospital, maintaining cultural values—that's lovely, but it means moving back 200 or 500 years. It has nothing to do with medicine—it's a romantic notion of returning to life as it used to be lived, in traditional ways. It's a million miles away from a practical blueprint for medical reform.

Denton A. Cooley

Dr. Cooley is surgeonin-chief of the Texas Heart Institute, at St. Luke's and Texas Children's Hospital in Houston. He is coauthor of the recent Techniques in Cardiac Surgery (Texas Medical Press).

I was quite fascinated, albeit infuriated at times, by this book. The author is no doubt a brilliant thinker, and his comments on the whole are well documented. Nevertheless, I found myself wondering what firsthand contact Mr. Illich has had with the medical profession and the delivery of health care. I noted that he holds degrees in history, philosophy, and theology, but his book reveals him to be sadly lacking in insight or knowledge about the practice of medicine.

Illich contends that this generation has become too dependent upon "the doctor" and that medicine in general is depriving the individual of his "freedom." His assertion that periodic checkups and diagnostic tests have no effect upon morbidity and mortality is absurd and absolutely without basis

Colors that pull together, furniture that weathers the changes

Our decorating project went right to the point—purely and simply color, and how it affects everything. All the furniture, fabrics, and accessories had to be in keeping with this basic idea. Neutral colors—white and green—made the best backdrop for the play of paint. And we used natural fibers, bare floors, plenty of straw, simple window treatments that could easily change to complement each new color scheme.

"There isn't a formula that I know of that lets you walk into any room cold and say 'Put X color here and Y color there,' no matter how great you think it's going to look," says Mr. Britt. "It may sound miraculous, but you have to wait and let the process of which color goes where reveal itself to you."

Tom Britt has definite ideas about what different colors mean. Pink Pink and Lavender, above, make a room calm and sheltered.

"Part of my job as a decorator is to help my clients discover areas of themselves they're not always in touch with. Since I think that color is such an important reflection of a person's inner emotions, the colors he or she wants are always very revealing.

A client usually thinks he knows exart to uncover the color that is right for the time, place, and emotional tenor of that moment in the client's life. Color is intimately involved with people's fantasies and it is usually an important symbol. For instance, people who want everything white often wish for freedom to do or go or be something that's different from the reality of their lives. Yes, being a decorator is a bit like being a psychiatrist-more like being a magician, though, But when you've really hit it right, the response is fantastic!

I chose these six House & Garden colors for their sense of clarity and succession; the very light to the very dark. The truth is that this group just came to me. You can work out details on a conscious level, but I find that the colors come by a process all their own."

Rules of a green thumb indoors

"Everything is white so that light ricochets onto the green leaves." The same plant-loving people whose country house plants you saw on page 72 also share white rooms with plants in the city. The partnership is dazzling. "I have always loved plants, and talked to them, too," Mrs. Alexander Liberman says. "Twenty years ago people wondered, but now everyone knows plants are sensitive, like us. And I think maybe they don't mind the Russian accent?" Her success with house plants springs in part from sensitivity to their basic needs-ideal cept for orchids, which insist." One light, temperature, soil and waterand Mrs. Liberman also uses some gardening techniques that are highly original. "I try to give them the maximum sun, which flowers like. I turn all the plants every two weeks so they get south sun or different sun. Our rooms are never above 68 degrees. Flowers come first. I ask guests to bring sweaters; they may complain but they always come back."

"Pinch, pinch, pinch with no regret. The pinch is the secret of everything. Pinch to make new leaves. Pinch off the flower when it is tired. The more put on lights. you pinch, the better the plant."

"People say don't leave water in saucers. But you can put water in saucers as well as in pots. Next day the water is gone, and the humidity is good."

"Be generous with electricity. When the sun goes down, Up-lights, downlights, but not too hot. If you are stingy with light. you will have a double economyno lights but no plants either."

In country and city, bright windows, special floodlights, and cool temperatures encourage such flowering plants as begonias and azaleas, right, and, in the country, geraniums, flowering maples (abutilon), clivia, and others. But "our plants like country air better than city air." Whatever fits in the station wagon, even a 15year-old dracaena massangeana that began as a small pot plant, goes to the country in May. At summer's end, the soil in every pot is refurbished. Each plant gets a top dressing of rich, sterile packaged soil to help it through the fall and winter.

The only drawback to country life for plants, Mrs. Liberman finds, is that, "Our plants in the city get no insects, but sometimes they do in the country. We isolate any plant with troubles, wash it, and my husband sprays it if necessary." All year-round she waters more or less regularly every two days, or has someone else water if she is away. ("Plants suffer in my absence. I don't need to ask them if they miss me.") She does not mist her plants, however. "Too messy, exunusual thing she does is pour water into saucers as well as into the pots, but her plants have never had root rot. "The next day the water is gone, in the air, and the plants are ready for more in a day or two." She feeds her plants every four weeks and finds, between one good brand and another, "little difference in plant food." Because "leaves in the city tend to get dry, are not soft and shiny as in the country," she gives them a special city-slicking spray with Brown Gold Leaf Polish.

Another of her concerns is air space around each plant. "Plants need room. It's very necessary. Clay pots let plants breathe. Baskets let the pots breathe." She does not crowd plants or let them stay in cachepots very long. Her plants have space to grow, and grow they do. The geraniums in the country are 4 years old, thick with blossoms most of the year. So are the flowering maples. "The pinch is the secret of everything. The more you pinch, the better the plant. Pinch if you don't like the shape of a plant. Pinch off dead blooms and leaves quickly. Pinch the whole flower back to the stem. If you remove a faded flower quickly, the plant will not become tired. You must pinch, and you must be generous. This is my system, and it is the best for our plants.

City greenery in a Manhattan town house, right: Flowering plants for changeable color. In the dining room, top, pink semperflorens begonias join a tall dieffenbachia and split-leaf philodendron near a window looking out on a garden. The sculpture is by Alexander Liberman. The painting on the left wall is by Cleve Gray, as is the papiermaché sculpture near hydrangeas by the door. A space-enhancing strip of mirror separates window and door, and the right wall of the garden has a horizontal mirror topped by latticework, doubling the impact of plants and art. In the library, bottom, snowy azaleas keep company in season with tropical ficus benjamina, dracaena marginata, dracaena massangeana. Here, window light is supplemented by 100-watt floodlights attached to shelves and to a floor-to-ceiling pole painted white to blend with light-reflecting white walls. Much of the art is African. The painting and drawings are by Léger.

Monumental building will reflect the trend toward color. We will have polychrome skyscrapers, schools, and highways

In the preindustrial world, colored garments were a rarity, reserved for kings and nobles. Now man stains or paints almost everything, from underwear to wallpaper. The recent rise to grace of color photography is a consequence of this fact. Since the late 60s, when "serious" artists of the camera like Irving Penn and Marie Cosindas began to exhibit their color photographs as art, there has been a rush into the spectrum by young photographers. The older ones hold back, still convinced (with Steiglitz, Strand, Weston, Steichen) that color in photography is too erratic, too far removed from "real" color to be effective.

But younger practitioners like Stephen Shore, Joel Meyrowitz, William Christenberry, and William Eggleston (the latter's work unveiled this May at the Museum of Modern Art in New York) make no pretense of presenting "real" color. Like Cosindas' tiny Polaroid portraits, glowing with stage-managed hues (Kodachrome shirts. multicolored fabrics), they display a larger-than-life world, in which faded green turns emerald, brickmaroon houses become china red, and blue skies are electric violet. When Walker Evans experimented late in life with the new instantdeveloping SX-70, he left his black-and-white world for good. He clicked off hyper-color images one after the other, finding rainbows in old, rusting automobiles and peeling road signs.

The image granted us by the color camera—in brief—is what it is, no more, no less. There is no reason to complain because the camera does not approximate what the eye sees. The camera lens is tiny and selective, shutting off the distraction of ambient light. The human eye sees too much-or rather in a different way-and the color we see is no more "true" than the color seen and recorded by the SX-70. Such subjectivity summarizes the attitude of the new generation in photography. But it also relates to Who's Afraid of Red, Yellow, and Blue? It rejects slavish absolutism; it lays back and waits to look, to look and enjoy, enjoy what is there.

Beneath all this, going deeper even than the culminating effect of billions of color snapshots and slides, is color television. Here is the authentic snake in the garden, the force that Ad Reinhardt could hardly recognize or predict. The difference between growing up before televised images in black and white and the same images in color is the difference between growing up on a puritan and on a cavalier metaphysic. Bad weather, electronic interference, or a loose tube can disturb a black-white picture in unpredictable ways, but color has much greater possibilities for distortion. A strong wind can change Yankee Stadium's grass from green to purple, or Dinah Shore's face from flesh to fuchsia. Furthermore, we play with TV color, adjusting tints and harmonies now this way, now that. The impact of this on taste and mind-when you consider that TV is the dominant medium of our time, the basic window on our world—is incalculable.

Television color gleams. The light sweeps through the image from inside the set, not from behind, as in film, where color is strong and flat, not intense. Johnny Carson shines into our bedrooms, not unlike the moon itself, or the stars. Edwin Land, inventor of the Polaroid camera, suggests that the human eye and the TV set are actually quite similar: They reconstruct a whole universe of color from two discrete signals. If Land is right (he takes issue with classic color theory) the human eve/brain is marvelously subtle and creative in its reaction to color. And of course our capability to devise and read colors in complex blends is beyond measure.

Suddenly, then, our world turns polychrome, in the manner of ancient Greece, where buildings and sculpture long since faded were brilliant and various in hue. Park Avenue has not changed, nor have the orthodox heirs of the "International Style" in architecture, but everywhere else, even in steel mills. railroad repair shops, and iron foundries (where bold reds and blues now predominate), there is a new spectrum at work. I once saw a latex plant in Michigan that looked like a Donald Judd sculpture brought to life, with long green dump pipes, bright yellow walkways, and red-beamed girders. The giant telescopes on Kitt Peak Mountain are similarly aglow, for no functional reason beside the felt need to avoid black and white. There is a trend-setting medical center in Allentown, Pa. that is red and blue on the outside, blue and gold within. It declares itself a place of recovery and health, not of decay and death. There is no doubt in my mind, having spoken to younger architects across the

Blueberry summer

Blueberries are not only delicious in pies or in muffins, they make great ice cream, pickles, and even soup. Here are recipes for the buckets of blueberries you may have gathered this summer, and some blueberry lore: how to raise them, their botanical quirks

By Barbara Charton

Summer in the Catskills for a city child like me passed in a dream and a cloud of blueberries. There were blueberries everywhere, all summer. Blueberries were almost friendly and even we, sidewalk Girl Scouts, could feel knowledgeable, competent, and unthreatened when we went picking. Black-berries, on the other hand, which also fruited for most of our vacation, were downright unfriendly. The brambles scratched legs and tangled hair; the berries deposited stones under teeth braces. Nevertheless, we ate blackberries and complained. We also ate elderberries and complained—they are

The principal occupation of many mornings was a trip to some patch of sandy scrubland. We ducked under wire fences with 8-quart aluminum pots on our heads, looking like a helmeted troop from Mars or stragglers from a medieval tournament.

Though there were more than enough blueberries for us, for the always unseen owners of the bushes, and for the swarms of birds, we picked with the dedication of those who feel this is their only chance. There was also much competition for the honor of First Pot-Filler.

Our mothers were ever alert to the dangers of perishing in the wilderness of hunger and thirst, so we carried jars of water, sandwiches, and unbelievably, fruit, to sustain us while we labored. We picked and ate-a lot of berries, too, almost as much as went into the pots. Even my dog ate the berries on the ground and low branches. However, as pots became too heavy to wear-we slung them on belts around our neckswe would pick a handful, check it for stems, greenie loopers, and such, and throw it into the pot. The dog sat and guarded the pots. He felt that such watchdogging deserved a reward. There he sat, humming and grazing, right out of the pots. On the way home his teeth were as blue as ours.

Blueberries are native to both Europe and America, and have been used by people wherever they are found. The plants belong to the heath family, Ericaceae, and the genus Vaccinium. There are a number of varieties of blueberry, ranging in habit from upland and reasonably drought-resistant to bog-dwellers. The plants are quite adaptable and their only hard-andfast requirements seem to be an acid (pH 4-4.8), well-drained soil. For those who wish to cultivate blueberries, the bushes provide a double pleasure, since the display of pink and white flower clusters is beautiful in May and June.

The high-bush varieties have been developed as cultivated plants, and each bush will live decades and produce fruit from its third or fourth year. Pruning encourages larger berries than those normally found on wild plants. Mulching cuts down on watering chores. Since the plants do well even when untended, they are perfect choices for the lazy gardener who will appreciate the bountiful yield of fruit. Since birds also appreciate the berries, it is a good idea to cover the bushes with 1-inch netting as soon as the berries begin to color. Otherwise, not only will there be pickedover bushes, but also all neighbors whose houses are not painted purple will become less than friendly. Blueberries need cross-pollination for good yield. Therefore, at least two and ideally four varieties should be set near each other.

There was some good-natured argument back in my picking days concerning terminology. Is it blueberry or huckleberry? Thinking over our varied crop, some of what we gathered was huckleberry rather than blueberry. The two fruits—to a nonbotanist—do look alike. Blueberries are truly blue, they bloom earlier, they frequently have a whitish or cloudy "bloom" on the berries, and they have numerous, soft red-brown seeds. Huckleberries have ten or so hard, nutlike seeds, a dark blue to black shiny fruit which is really a drupe—like a cherry with many pits. The leaves and young stems of huckleberry bushes have brown resinous spots that look like blight, or varnish drops. Huckleberries are also heath plants, Ericaceae, but their genus is Gaylussacia, in honor of the French chemist. Unlike blueberries, huckleberries are not cultivated commercially.

My mother's blueberry staples were pie, jam, and blintzes. I just ate them out of hand. It was lovely to have a pot of berries in the icebox, just for reaching in and coming up with handfuls, one for me, one for the dog. However, one can quickly develop a large blueberry repertoire. Berries are good in muffins, pancakes, coffeecakes, cornbread, and such with no major recipe adjustments. Just add 1 cup blueberries to each 2 cups flour along with the rest of the dry ingredients. (If wild berries are used. an additional 1/4 cup sugar is also necessary.) Blueberries are fairly sweet by themselves and will enhance just about any dessert. I have found, however, one Eskimo recipe for them that does not promise to become a universal favorite in spite of its simplicity. Take equal parts of snow, blueberries, and seal fat, chopped. Mix well, serve immediately. It will never replace ice cream.

Mama's Blueberry Pie

Ingredients

3 cups flour, sifted ½ teaspoon salt 2 teaspoons baking powder grated zest of 1 orange and its juice (less than ½ cup) 2 eggs ½ cup vegetable oil

8 cups blueberries, washed 2 cups sugar, plus 2 tablespoons 11/4 teaspoons cinnamon 1/2 cup tapioca, granular

Method

Sift the flour, salt, and baking powder together into a bowl. Add the orange zest and eggs. Mix well. Add the oil and enough orange juice until the dough mixes smooth. Roll out crust to fit the bottom of a 9-inch springform pan, and roll remaining dough for a top crust.

Toss the blueberries with 2 cups of the sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, and the tapioca. Fill the pie shell and cover with the top crust. Oil the crust, cut vent holes, and sprinkle with the remaining sugar and cinnamon.

Bake in a preheated 350° oven for 11/4 hours or until well browned. Makes a 9-inch pie.

ith Michel Guérard's new cuisine, women can really eat at last," says Regine. "I no longer see women picking at their food because they're afraid of becoming fat; now they really eat, and it is very pleasant. Men don't like women who don't eat," she says, and maintains that Guérard's cuisine has changed her life. "I was very fat and paid a lot of attention to what I ate. Now I eat normally: Guérard's is not diet food, but it is not fattening; I can even eat sauces because they're so light." (Michel Guérard has dispensed with floury thickeners in favor of a reduction of cream and stock, or wine. He often gives body to his sauces with a spoonful of puréed vegetables. His asparagus feuilleté sauce, for instance, is thickened with puréed asparagus. The green sauce for his chicken with watercress is thickened with a spoonful of two different vegetable puréeswatercress and mushrooms.) "Before I started eating Michel's new food, I had lost 20 kilos [about 45 pounds] on a rigid diet. Now I can eat almost everything, even desserts that I love, and not gain weight."

Presentation of food at Regine's restaurant is pure theatre. Large, leafy geranium-patterned dinner plates from Germany's Villeroy & Boch are appetizing in themselves. Each hot dish, topped with a huge silverplated cloche, releases a burst of aroma as the lid is lifted—a delicious surprise for the eve and the nose. Everything is cooked in the kitchen, nothing by the waiter at tableside. Servings arranged on plates in the kitchen are presented to the diner as a completed still life-by handsome waiters in jazzy brocade jackets. "The food is fresher. and the service more sophisticated this way," says Regine. In the center of each pink table there's a low, flickering candle. Mirrored walls are designed to reflect the light, not the diners. Glasses are crystal; the petit pain is tucked into a pocket of the carefully folded napkin.

In the kitchen a bevy of chefs (including two Americans, one a woman graduate of The Culinary Institute), carry out Guérard's explicit directions down to the last detail. The menu is changed seasonally; eventually the recipes will be included in one of the two cookbooks Guérard is now working on. A few of the kitchen's triumphs: pour commencer: fresh foie gras with freshly ground pepper; La Salade Gourmande (a salad of green beans, fresh asparagus tips, slices of foie gras and truffles in a vinaigrette sauce-see March, 1976, House & Garden); escalope of salmon with sorrel sauce; Paul Bocuse's famous truffle soup en croûte. A delectable entrée: thin, thin slivers of fillet of duck

The complete dinner menu in both French and English

Each hot dish, topped with a silverplated cloche, releases a burst of aroma as the lid is lifted—a delicious surprise for the eye and nose

Michel Guérard's first cookbook, called—unsurprisingly— La Cuisine Minceur will be published in English this fall by William Morrow. He is also -culinary imagination never sleeping-working on a second cookbook. The stuffed chicken legs and the watercress and mushroom purées* below are from William Morrow's translation; the feuilleté and the crêpes will appear in the second book. Chefs at Regine's are still experimenting with American ingredients new to them. Recipes that "just went together in Paris" are not so simple here. The restaurant's gigot de poulette recipe, for example, calls for fromage blanc (a runny cream cheese) in its sauce. Reduced heavy cream has been used as a substitute here, and sometimes for the French crème fraîche too (though they do make their own crème fraîche); it results in a thinner sauce, but tastes just fine! Chefs are also working with different American flours for their puff pastry (you'd never know it!), mixing high-gluten and cake flours. In Paris, Michel Guérard makes his puff pastry in a restaurant version of the Cuisinart Food Processor.

Gigot de Poulette

Ingredients

4 chicken drumsticks

Ingredients for stuffing

- 3 ounces dried morels 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 small onion, minced
- 2 fresh mushrooms, stems trimmed, rinsed, and cut in half or 1-2 truffles
- 1/2 -pound piece veal sweetbread, raw, cleaned
- 1 small (11/2 -ounce) piece raw breast meat of chicken
- 1/2 teaspoon salt pinch pepper
- 2 tablespoons port
- 5 tablespoons veal stock (see recipe)

Ingredients for veal stock

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 large carrot, scraped and cut into 1/2-inch dice
- 1 large onion, peeled and cut into 1/2 -inch dice
- 1/4 pound fresh mushrooms,

stems trimmed, washed, and coarsely chopped

- 1 calf's foot, cut into 8 pieces. (If you cannot get a fresh calf's foot from your butcher, ask for a pig's foot, or a veal knuckle, and have it cut into several pieces). Blanch for 1 minute in boiling water before adding it to the vegetables in the soup kettle.
- 1 large tomato, halved, and seeded
- 1/2 ounce dried mushrooms: morels, cèpes, or Oriental mushrooms
- 1 teaspoon tomato paste
- 1 teaspoon arôme Patrelle (vegetable coloring) or 1/2 teaspoon good soy sauce Bouquet garni, including 1 clove
- 21/2 quarts chicken stock or cold water and bouillon cubes or canned broth
- 1 teaspoon potato flour or arrowroot

Ingredients for steaming chicken

3 cups veal stock

3 generous sprigs fresh marjoram, if available, or 1/4 teaspoon dried

Ingredients for vegetable

- 1 piece celery root, cut into thin sticks 2 inches longenough to make about 24
- 12-16 small, round spring or green onions, roots and tops trimmed off, and peeled if outer layers are tough
- 1 large or 2 small carrots, cut into thin sticks about 2 inches long—enough to make about 24 sticks
- Young green beans, cut in half or into 2-inch lengths unless they are very small-enough to make 24 pieces
- The reserved morels from the stuffing, cut crosswise into narrow strips
- 12 canned white asparagus stalks, cut to make tips 3 inches long
- 1 truffle, cut into fine julienne (optional)

Ingredients for sauce

- 4 tablespoons mushroom purée (see recipe)
- 4 teaspoons watercress purée (see recipe)
- 2 tablespoons heavy cream or homemade crème fraîche (to 1 cup heavy cream, add 1 tablespoon lemon juice or buttermilk; let stand in refrigerator 3 days before

11/4 cups hot veal stock over which chicken has steamed fresh herbs in season for garnish (marjoram, chervil, mint), blanched by just dipping in hot water, 'shocking" afterwards in cold

Method for boning drumsticks

To bone the drumsticks, first cut them off with a cleaver from the second joints; it will help later if you pull some of the secondjoint skin down over the drumstick before cutting, so there will be enough skin to skewer neatly over the stuffed cavity.

With a small pointed knife, cut the chicken meat away from the knuckle at the large end of the drumstick until you get downwithin about an inch-to the straight bone. Then stand the drumstick up and scrape downward all around the bone; the meat comes away very easily and turns inside out like a sweater sleeve. When you get to the bottom, scrape the skin away from the ankle knuckle from the inside, and pull the entire bone away. Turn the meat right-side out, and it is ready to be stuffed.

Method for stuffing

Rinse the morels under cold running water and soak them in lukewarm water in a small bowl until they have swelled and softened. Drain, cut each in half lengthwise, and set aside 1/3 for the vegetable garniture.

Heat the oil in a heavy-bottomed saucepan and add the morels, onion, and fresh mushrooms or truffles. Over low heat, cook the vegetables until they give off their liquid, about 1 minute.

Add the sweetbread, chicken, salt, and pepper. Simmer over low heat for 2 minutes, then add the port and continue simmering until the liquid has reduced by more than half. Add the veal stock and cook gently, covered, for 30 minutes. Cool.

Remove the morels, mushrooms or truffles, sweetbreads, and chicken from the saucepan, and cut them all up into even, small dice (smaller than 1/4 inch). Mix all together, adding 2 teaspoons of the braising liquid.

Lightly salt and pepper the cavities of the boned drumsticks. Spoon in the stuffing, pressing down on it in the cavity to pack it together. Close the drumsticks by pinning the skin with small sharp poultry lacers or tying with kitchen string.

Method for veal stock

Heat olive oil in a medium-size kettle, add the carrot, onion, and fresh mushrooms, and lightly brown them in the hot oil.

Add the calf's foot, tomato, dried mushrooms, tomato paste, arôme Patrelle, bouquet garni, and chicken broth. Simmer the stock, partially covered, over low heat for 21/2 hours. Periodically skim off the scum and fat that rise to the surface. Strain the stock-there should be close to a quart-through a finemesh strainer into a saucepan.

Bring the stock back to the boil. Dissolve the potato flour or arrowroot in a little cold water and, with a whisk, beat it briskly into the hot stock. It should be already close to a demi-glace. It is remarkably good; before using it, extend it with 1 cup of water if you wish.

Let the stock cool, then store, covered, in the refrigerator. The next day remove the last of the fat that has hardened on surface.

Method for steaming chicken

Bring the veal stock to a boil in a small saucepan that has a steaming rack to fit, and add the marjoram and let it steep in the stock to perfume it.

Prick the drumsticks skins well with a 2-pronged fork to keep them from bursting while they cook. Bring the marjoram-flavored stock to a simmer in its saucepan and put in the steaming rack; the bottom of the rack should be close to, but not below, the surface of the stock. Add the drumsticks and sprinkle a few fresh marjoram leaves on them. Steam, covered, over low heat for 30 minutes.

Method for vegetable garniture

While the chicken is steaming, cook the vegetables in a saucepan in lots of boiling salted water, adding them in the following sequence: celery root and onions, to cook 15 minutes; 5 minutes later, carrots, to cook 10 minutes; 5 minutes later, green beans, to cook 5 minutes; 3 minutes later, the morels and asparagus tips to heat through in 2 minutes—15 minutes cooking time in all. Drain the vegetables with care and keep warm.

To reheat vegetables just before serving, "sweat" them gently in a saucepan in a little butter and check seasoning. Gives an extra taste lift.

Given Mary McFadden's strong color sense and her interest in art, her fondness for Japanese food, which is "highly designed and planned," and that of other nationalities as well, is no surprise. She acts as art director and designer in the kitchen, choosing ingredients for freshness and color as well as texture and taste, carefully arranging each dish, then the whole buffet table into a pleasing pattern. Her guests' first pleasure is visual. The Japanese recipes here are from The Cooking of Japan by Rafael Steinberg and the Editors of Time-Life books, one of The World Series of cookbooks by Time, Inc.

Sashimi

(Sliced raw fish)

Many Westerners, who are disconcerted by the Japanese delight in eating raw fish, themselves think nothing of eating raw clams and oysters. Interestingly, sashimi neither tastes nor smells "fishy," and moreover, certain types of sashimi, notably tuna, have the texture and the flavor of tender, rare beef.

The most important factor in preparing sashimi is the absolute freshness of the fish. Frozen fish cannot be used. It is best to avoid fresh-water fish, since they can carry parasites. Keep the fish refrigerated, wrapped in cheesecloth until ready to use. Handle the fish as little as possible; the warmth of your hands can spoil its freshness.

Ingredients

1 pound fresh filleted porgy, sea bass, striped bass, red snapper, squid, abalone, or tuna, in one piece

1/2 cup dipping sauce: Japanese soy sauce, chirizu, or tosa joyu (see recipes)

- 1 tablespoon wasabi (green horseradish) powder, mixed with enough cold water to make a thick paste and set aside to rest for 15 minutes)
- 1 2-inch section daikon (Japanese white radish) or large icicle radish, or white turnip, peeled, shredded, and soaked in cold water until ready to use
- 1 carrot, peeled, shredded, and soaked in cold water until ready to use
- 1 stalk celery, cut in half lengthwise, shredded, and soaked in cold water until ready to use

Method

There are four basic fish-cut methods for sashimi and a v sharp, heavy knife is indispe able to them all.

Hira giri (flat cut): This is most popular shape, suitable any filleted fish. Holding the firmly, cut straight down slices about 1/4 - to 1/2 -inch th and 1 inch wide, depending the size of the fillet.

Kaku giri (cubic cut): This st of cutting is more often used tuna. Cut the tuna as in the cut, then cut the slices i 1/2-inch cubes.

Ito Zukuri (thread shape): though this technique may used with any small fish, it especially suitable for squ Cut the squid straight down i 1/4-inch slices, then cut leng wise into 1/4-inch-wide strips

Usu zukuri (paper-thin slice Place a fillet of bass or porgy a flat surface and, holding fish firmly with one hand, slic on an angle into almost tra parent sheets.

To serve sashimi as part o meal, arrange the fish attr tively on individual serv plates. Garnish each plate v about 1/2 teaspoon wasabi pa and decorate with strips of o kon, carrot, and celery. Co with plastic wrap and refriger for no more than 1 hour bef serving.

Pour the soy sauce, chirizu, tosa joyu into tiny individ dishes and accompany ea serving of sashimi with its o dipping sauce. The wasabi n also be mixed into the soy sai or tosa joyu to taste. Serves

To serve as an hors d'oeux arrange two or more varieties cuts of sashimi on a serv platter and accompany with c ping sauce. Serves 8-10.

Tosa joyu

PHILCO® COLD GUARD® REFRIGERATORS CAN SAVE YOU MORE MONEY ON ELECTRIC BILLS THAN ALL THESE COMPETITORS.

Admiral Frigidaire General Electric

Gibson Hotpoint Kelvinator

J.C.Penney Sears Coldspot Sears Kenmore Montgomery Ward Whirlpool White-Westinghouse

A bold claim. But true. And we'll send you the proof—free. Every Philco COLD GUARD Refrigerator uses less electricity than comparable models from every maker listed in the January 1976 AHAM Directory, including those with electric anticondensation heaters.

For example, the Philco COLD GUARD Model RD16G2 (15.8 cubic feet) uses up to 55% less electricity than comparable models.

That's because only Philco COLD GUARD Refrigerators were reengineered to give you three important energy savers: 1. Double cavity Uni-Wall Liner with no seams or joints (patented process). 2. Precision placement of insulation.

3. Completely non-electric anti-condensation system.

Another example of savings. Philco COLD GUARD Model RD19F8. the 18.9 cubic footer shown here, uses only 100 kilowatt hours a month versus an average of 145 KWH for comparable competitive models. That's

Model RD19F8

31% less. At $.04 a KWH. you'd save $21.60 a yearor $324 in an average refrigerator lifetime. Even more, if your KWH rate is higher.

So send for our free booklet that lets you figure how much money and electricity you can save compared to the brands listed here. Learn why it pays to own the refrigerator that helps pay for itself. Just write: Aeronutronic Ford Corporation, MS 84 Blue Bell, PA. 19422.

Actual savings may vary depending upon climatic conditions, individual usage, and electric rate changes. Savings represent maximum economies available on current performance of Philoo COLD GUARD Refrigerators compared with the energy consumption of comparable size and type models listed in the January 1976. Directory of Certified Refrigerators and Freezers published by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers (AHAM). Comparisons for brands and models with electric anti-condensation heaters are based on average maximum/minimum energy consumption. The average lifetime of a refrigerator is considered to be 15 years.

Those beaded bubbles in a wineglass add gaiety to parties and zest to meals. "A bit of the bubbly" does bring champagne to mind, but just as all that glitters is not gold, all that bubbles is not cham-

Sparkling wines, many of them made by the same painstaking method that champagne is, are produced in many parts of the world. Most are white wines, but there are some sparkling reds and rosés. Tastes range from quite dry to very sweet, just as they do in champagnes and still wines. And not the least of their attractions is price. Vintage French champagne ranges from $11 to $26 a bottle, or more. Sparkling wines retail for under $5 to $8, and so provide festive drinking at less than half the price of most imported champagnes. Some sparkling wines are available in magnums.

Sparkling wines make inviting apéritifs, and many can be poured throughout the meal. The sweeter versions combine well with rich desserts or are fine for sipping by themselves.

In France, the designation "champagne" may be used only for sparkling wines made from grapes grown in the Champagne district by the traditional méthode champenoise-fermented in the bottle. Sparkling wines made by this same method, but from grapes grown outside the Champagne district, are known as vins mousseux. These are charming, lighthearted wines made in the Loire Valley in south central France, in Seyssel in the Rhône Valley, and in Beaune on the renowned Burgundian Côte D'Or.

Italy produces luscious sparkling wines called spumante, or frothing -the most famous of which comes from the town of Asti-as well as some elegant dry white sparkling wines. Germany produces Schaumwein, mostly on the sweet side, as is Spain's espumoso. The best espumosos are from Catalonia, and are not too dry, not too sweet.

In the United States, sparkling wines are generally labeled champagne, but are required by law to be qualified by the name of the state where made-California Champagne or New York Champagne. A few U.S. sparkling wines

The Loire Valley's sparkling white wines have long been popular lower-priced bubblies for the French, and a good choice of these is available in the States. They're generally made by the classic méthode champenoise, grapes such as the Chénin Blanc, which produces light, elegantly dry wines, easy to drink and lovely to serve (they sustain the bubbles in the glass). Each town in the Loire Valley has its own distinctive Saumur, partly surrounded by chalky hills, produces sparkling whites that are dry, yet full-bodied and elegant. They hold up extremely well to more strongly seasoned dishes. A well-chilled Bouvet Brut from Saumur made an ideal companion to a cumin-spiked creamed turtle soup at a recent dinner, and the wine could have continued straight through the meal.

The sparkling whites of Savoie, from the village of Seyssel, are light as a summer zephyr, yet appetizingly grapy. A white sparkling blanc de blancs from Beaune in Burgundy is marvelously dry, with a delicate bouquet and subtle complexity that can match a fine champagne.

Sparkling red Burgundy can be a refreshing change from still red wine. Its rich, full-bodied fruitiness will stand up to game dishes, duckling, and hearty beef stews.

Sparkling rosé is pretty to look at and fun to drink. It's rarely dry, so chilling it well is important.

Putting in the sparkle

Sparkling wines are made effervescent by the carbon dioxide in the bottle, and the best of these are produced by the traditional méthode champenoise. In this method, it is secondary fermentation in the bottle that causes bubbles to form, in the same bottle the consumer eventually uncorks. However, some mass-produced sparkling wines use other bulk processes and ferment the wines in large tanks.

One such process is the French Charmat method, that uses extremely large tanks-up to 1,500 gallons-for the secondary fermentation. It's a much quicker method of producing sparkling wine, involving only a few weeks, compared with the méthode champenoise, which takes years.

Still another way of making sparkling wines is the transfer method, closer to the méthode champenoise. The difference is that in order to remove the sediment, bottles are emptied into a large vat kept under pressure to retain the bubbles. The wine is then filtered and rebottled.

If you want the best sparkling wine, look for the words Méthode Champenoise or "Fermented in this bottle" on the label. If these words are not on the label, it's likely that other processes have been used.

Tips on storing and serving

Treat sparkling wine as you would fine champagnes. Serve it well chilled: 35 minutes in a bucket filled with equal amounts of ice and water. Or place bottle in refrigerator—never the freezer—for 1 to 2 hours before uncorking.

Use tulip or flute glasses. The old-fashioned wide-mouth coupe or saucer shapes dissipate bubbles and bouquet.

Handle the bottles gently. Don't shake or move them quickly. The objective is to avoid a violent popping of the cork, which causes spills. Recommended technique: Cut the capsule at the top and unwind the wire muzzle. Hold the bottle at a 45-degree angle with a towel or napkin between the neck of the bottle and your hand. Grasp the cork in your other hand and twist the bottle-not the corkslowly, gradually pulling the bottle away from the cork. This will result in a pleasant pop and a pleasant bouquet as the cork rises from the bottle neck.

Fill glasses no more than half full. This allows the holder to sniff and savor the bouquet as it collects in the top half of the glass. Be certain glasses are totally detergentfree, or the bubbles will die along with your sparkling wine. Don't put ice in the glasses in order to chill them. A wet glass does nothing for the wine.

Ingredients for blueberry filling

4 cups blueberries 3/8 cup sugar grated zest and juice of 1/2 lemon 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Method for crust

Sift the flour, sugar, and salt into a bowl. Add the lemon zest, eggs, and butter or butter and vegetable shortening. Work together until smooth, form into a ball, wrap in wax paper and refrigerate until firm-about 1

Roll the dough between sheets of floured wax paper, and fit into a 9-inch flan ring or a 10inch pie plate. Line the plate with paper and fill with rice to weight down. Bake the crust in a preheated 350° oven for about 10 minutes, or until light brown. Remove the rice and paper and cool.

Method for custard

While the crust is cooling, prepare the custard. Combine the flour, salt, and sugar in a heavy saucepan. Gradually add 1/4 cup of the cream or milk and stir until smooth. Add remaining cream or milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring, until the mixture is the consistency of a medium-thick white sauce.

Beat the egg yolks in a bowl and add a little of the hot custard mixture, beating continuously. Add the egg-yolk mixture to the hot sauce. Return to the heat and cook over low heat, stirring briskly for a few minutes to thicken. Remove from heat, add the vanilla, and dot with butter. The butter will melt and prevent a skin from forming on the custard. Cool. Stir and spread in the pie shell.

Method for filling

Combine 11/2 cups blueberries, the sugar, zest and lemon juice, and cinnamon in a heavy saucepan. Cook over low heat until the sugar has dissolved. Raise the heat and boil rapidly for about 8-10 minutes or until the mixture acquires the consistency of jam. Cool. Combine the jam with the remaining blueberries and stir gently. Spoon the blueberry mixture carefully

In most recipes just add 1 cup berries to each 2 cups flour along with the rest of the dry ingredients onto the custard layer. Chill until serving. Serves 8.

Blueberry Soup

Serve as a first course for a summer meal or with sweetened, kirsch-flavored whipped cream as a dessert.

Ingredients

2 cups water
1 cup blueberries
1 slice lemon
1 cinnamon stick
2 tablespoons sugar, or more to taste
pinch salt
1 tablespoon cornstarch
sour cream
cinnamon
nutmeg

Method

In a heavy saucepan put the water, blueberries, lemon slice, and cinnamon stick. Bring to a boil and boil for 10 minutes. When ready, the berries should be very soft.

Add the sugar and salt. Make a smooth paste of the cornstarch with 1 tablespoon water. Add another tablespoon of water, stir, and stir into fruit mixture. Cook over low heat while stirring until the mixture is clear, remove the cinnamon stick and chill. Serve with a dollop of sour cream and a dusting of cinnamon and nutmeg. Serves 4.

Blueberry Ice Cream

Ingredients

2 cups blueberries, crushed
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons cassis
1/8 teaspoon salt
5 egg yolks
2 cups scalded milk
2 cups heavy cream or sour

Method

In a bowl mix together the blueberries, ½ cup sugar, and the cassis. Set aside.

In the top of a double boiler put the remaining sugar, salt, and egg yolks. Beat, and add the scalded milk slowly, mixing well. Cook until slightly thickened, 5-8 minutes. Cool. Add the heavy cream or sour cream, the reserved berry mixture, and freeze according to the manufacturer's instructions. Makes about 1-1½ quarts.

Blueberry Blintzes

Ingredients for batter

1 cup flour 1 teaspoon salt 2 eggs 1 cup water butter

Ingredients for filling

1½ pounds dry cottage cheese or pot cheese 3 eggs ¼ cup sugar, or more to taste 1 cup blueberries 1 teaspoon cinnamon ¼ teaspoon salt 2 tablespoons breadcrumbs (optional) butter sour cream sugar

Method for batter

Sift together the flour and salt into a bowl. Mix together the eggs and water in another bowl and add to flour gradually to form a smooth, thin batter. Let stand for at least ½ hour.

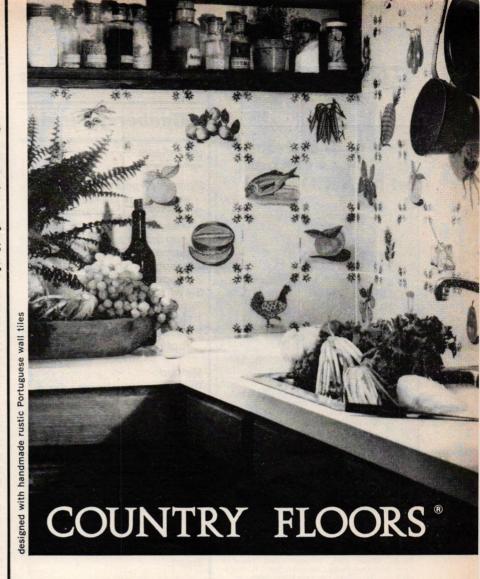

Heat butter in a small frying pan, wipe out excess with a paper towel and pour in enough batter to film the bottom of the pan. If too much batter, just pour it back into the bowl. Tilt the pan to spread the batter evenly. Cook over low heat until the top is dry and the bottom begins to brown. Turn out onto a clean towel, cooked side up. Wipe the pan with the paper towel again and repeat until all the batter is used.

Method for filling

In a bowl mix the cottage or pot cheese with the eggs, sugar, blueberries, cinnamon, and salt. The mixture should be dry, not runny. Add the breadcrumbs if necessary.

Place a spoonful of the filling in the center of each pancake and fold up, envelope-fashion. Fry in butter until golden brown and serve hot with sour cream and sprinkled with sugar. Makes about 10 blintzes.

Blueberry Pickle

Ingredients

3 pints or 3 pounds blueberries. washed and picked over 2 cups vinegar, preferably malt vinegar

1/2 cup brown sugar 2 teaspoons allspice

2 teaspoons ginger 2 teaspoons peppercorns

3-4 whole cloves 1/2 teaspoon mace

1-inch piece cinnamon stick 2 teaspoons horseradish, grated

(optional)

Method

Pack the blueberries into a large, sterilized canning jar. In an enameled or stainless steel saucepan combine the vinegar, sugar, spices and horseradish tied together in a spice bag. Bring the mixture to a boil and simmer for about 15 minutes. Remove the spice bag and pour the liquid over the berries.

Cover the jar and weight the lid to keep the berries under the liquid.

Strain off the liquid about 3 days later. Bring it to a boil, pour it over the berries hot and seal the

Blueberry Slump, or Grunt

If cooked covered, this dessert is a Slump; if it is uncovered, and baked in a 400° oven, it is a Grunt. Since the names are regional, a steamed berry pudding is also a Grunt in some places. Whatever the name, this pudding with biscuit topping is served warm, plain or with cream.

Ingredients

2 cups blueberries 1/2 cup sugar 1 cup water 1 cup flour 2 teaspoons baking powder 1/4 teaspoon salt 2 tablespoons butter 1/3 cup milk

Method

In a large heavy saucepan combine the blueberries, sugar, and water. Cook over low heat until sugar has dissolved, then raise the heat to medium.

Make the biscuit dough. In a bowl mix together the flour, baking powder, salt, butter, and milk. Drop the dough by spoonfuls onto the blueberry mixture.

Cover and cook for 20 minutes over low heat, or leave uncovered and bake 20 minutes in a 400° oven. Serves 4-6.

Method

Combine the soy sauce, sake, katsuobushi, and a sprinkle of MSG in a small saucepan and bring to a boil uncovered, stirring constantly. Strain through a fine sieve set over a small bowl and cool the mixture to room temperature.

Divide the dipping sauce among 6 tiny dishes, and serve it with sashimi of any kind.

Chirizu

(Spicy dipping sauce for sashimi)

Ingredients

2 tablespoons sake (rice wine) 11/4-pound section daikon. peeled, and finely grated (about 1/4 cup), or 1/4 cup finely grated icicle radish or white turnips

2 scallions, including the trimmed green stems, sliced thinly into rounds

1/4 cup Japanese all-purpose

soy sauce

1/4 cup fresh lemon juice

1/8 teaspoon hichimi togarashi (seven pepper spice)

Warm the sake in a small saucepan. Then, off the heat, ignite it with a match and shake the pan gently until the flame dies out. Pour the sake into a small dish and cool.

In a small mixing bowl, combine the sake with the grated daikon, sliced scallions, soy sauce, lemon juice, a sprinkle of MSG, and the seven pepper spice. Mix well.

Pour the dipping sauce into tiny individual dishes and serve with bass, striped bass, porgy, or fluke sashimi. Makes about 1/2 cup.

thick) sirloin steak 2 scallions, including 3 inches of the green stems, cut in half lengthwise, then cut into 4-inch pieces 1/4 cup terivaki sauce (see recipe)

Place steak between sheets of wax paper and, with a meat pounder or flat part of a cleaver, pound it to a 1/8-inch thickness. Cut steak in half crosswise.

Arrange a strip of scallion down the length of each piece of the meat, then, starting with the wide side of the meat, roll the pieces into tight cylinders. Secure the cylinder seams with toothpicks.

Preheat the broiler (or light a charcoal grill or hibachi). With chopsticks or tongs, dip the rolls into the teriyaki sauce. Broil 3 inches from the heat for about 3 minutes. Dip again in the sauce, and broil the other side for 1 minute. Remove the toothpicks, trim the ends of the rolls neatly with a sharp knife, and cut the rolls into 1-inch pieces.

Stand each piece on end to expose the scallions and serve at once. Makes 8 zensai (small portions).

Terivaki sauce

Ingredients

1/2 cup mirin or 1/2 cup less 1 tablespoon pale dry sherry

1/2 cup Japanese all-purpose sov sauce

1/2 cup chicken stock, fresh or canned.

Method

Warm the mirin or sherry in an enameled or stainless-steel saucepan over moderate heat. Off the heat, ignite the mirin with a long match, and shake the pan back and forth until the flame dies out.

Stir in the soy sauce and chicken stock, and bring to a boil. Pour the sauce into a bowl and cool to room temperature. Makes about 11/4 cups. Keeps, covered, up to a month in the refrigerator.

Blue cheese mousse

Ingredients

6 egg yolks 6 tablespoons cream 11/2 tablespoons gelatin 4 tablespoons cold water 3/4 pound blue cheese 11/2 cups heavy cream, whipped 3 egg whites, stiffly beaten

thinly sliced cucumber for garnish

Method

In a saucepan over low heat beat together the egg yolks and cream until thick.

Soften the gelatin in the water, then dissolve the gelatin over hot water. Add to egg mixture. Force the blue cheese through a sieve; add to the egg and gelatin mixture and cool.

Fold in the whipped cream and beaten egg whites. Pour into an oiled, 21/2-inch-high square mold and chill in the refrigerator for at least 2 hours.

Unmold the mousse onto a plate and decorate around the edges and on top with the cucumber slices. Serve with toasted pumpernickel as a cheese course. Serves 18 as part of a buffet.

Tabbooli

(cracked wheat salad with mint and parsley)

Ingredients

2 cups cracked wheat 11/2 cups green onions, finely chopped salt, pepper 2 cups parsley, finely chopped 3/4 cup tomato, peeled, seeded, and chopped 1 cup olive oil

1 cup lemon juice, more to taste fresh mint leaves for garnish

Method

Soak the wheat in water to cover in a bowl for 2 hours. Drain well and squeeze out excess moisture. Put it in a salad

Add the onions, salt and pepper to taste, parsley, tomato, olive oil, and lemon juice. Toss well with 2 forks to keep grains separate. Add more salt and lemon juice to taste. Serve the tabbooli with fresh mint leaves around the edges of the bowl. Serves about 18.

Squab stuffed with black grapes

Ingredients for each serving

3 slices dried bread, crumbled 1 onion, chopped 1 cup black seedless grapes, peeled 3 tablespoons butter, melted 1 teaspoon parsley 1/4 teaspoon thyme salt, pepper 1 squab, washed and dried butter paprika

Method

1/2 cup white wine

In a large bowl combine the crumbled bread, onions, grapes, melted butter, parsley, thyme, and salt and pepper to taste. Stuff loosely into bird and skewer the vent closed.

Truss the squab and rub the skin with butter, salt, pepper, and paprika. Roast in a moderate oven, 350°, basting occasionally with the wine until tender, about 1 hour.

Method for sauce and presentation

To preserve the fresh, green color, make the sauce at the last minute. Purée all the ingredients except the fresh herb garnish in the blender, pour the sauce into a small saucepan, simmer 5 minutes, and keep

With a small pointed knife, carefully slit the skin on the top side of each gigot de poulette. Spread the sauce, which will have a lovely pale green color, in the middle of a heated platter or 4 warm dinner plates. Place the chicken in the center, and spread the multicolored vegetable garniture, including the truffle julienne, all around it. Decorate each plate with fresh marjoram leaves or herbs in season. Serves 4.

Mushroom Purée

Ingredients

1 scant pound fresh mushrooms (3/4 pound after trimming) 1 tablespoon lemon juice 3 cups reconstituted non-fat dry milk 11/2 teaspoons salt pinch pepper touch freshly grated nutmeg

Method

Trim the gritty root ends of the mushroom stems. Do this on a slant the way you would sharp-en a pencil with a penknife. There should remain about 3/4 pound. Rinse the mushrooms in plenty of cold water, wiping them clean with your hands. Drain them in a colander and roll them quickly in the lemon juice in a bowl to keep them from darkening. Cut in half.

In a saucepan heat the milk and add the mushrooms, salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Cook over low heat, uncovered, for 15 minutes; be careful not to let the milk scorch.

Drain, reserving the cooking liquid. Purée the mushrooms very finely in a blender. Thin with 3/8-1/2 cup of the cooking liquid, and taste for seasoning. Keep warm over hot water. Makes about 12/3 cups.

Keep in a jar in the refrigerator to bind sauces, to give extra flavor to mixtures, or add some crème fraîche and serve as a puréed vegetable.

Watercress Purée

Ingredients

4 bunches watercress (spinach can be used too, for a different flavor 11/2 quarts water

1 tablespoon coarse salt

Cut off all the stems of the watercress. Remove any coarse stems left among the leaves, and pick over the stems to rescue any leaves that have been cut off with them. Rinse the leaves under cold running water. Bring the salted water to a boil in the saucepan, add the watercress, and boil for 9 min-

Who can reduce your gas heating fuel consumption by up to 19% with an Electric/Gas cooling-heating

If you want to save money on heating your home, look at the Amana Electric/Gas cooling-heating unit. The money savings comes from the unit's unique Heat Transfer Module, the first major breakthrough in heating technology in years. The HTM† is small enough to hold in your hands, yet powerful enough to heat an average size home. The HTM uses outdoor air for fuel combustion eliminating much up-the-chimney heat loss common to conventional gas furnaces. Amana uses electronic ignition to eliminate wasteful pilot lights and two-stage heating to keep the unit operating at maximum efficiency. In addition to saving money on heating, the same Electric/Gas unit gives you dependable central air conditioning, too, all from one compact comfort center.

Call your Amana home comfort dealer or write Dept. C-137, Amana, Iowa 52203 for more information on Amana Energy Savers. *Based on Institute of Gas Technology laboratory tests and projected performance for a northeastern Ohio city, compared to a conventional gas furnace. Savings will vary with climate and weather conditions.

developer) is San Cristobal, the stable, horse pool, swimming pool, and house for Mr. and Mrs. Folke Egerstrom, where pink and purple stucco meet blue sky and horses parade against the walls like a moving "frieze." The effort to make a theatrical background for the animals is entirely intentional and "acclaims the important feeling Barragán has for animals," says Ambasz, "particularly the horse, which has always remained superior in Mexico since the Spanish won over the Aztecs by appearing on horseback." In the collaboration with nature, water and shadow are always implicit in Barragán's design. In the picture, page 86, the giant stucco "beam" resting between two brilliant walls is actually a water trough from which water gushes into a cobbled drinking pool for horses. Functional on one level, esthetic on another, the pool reflects another "picture" on the ground. The Mexican climate has been crucial in making Barragán an architect of the outdoors. "He is," Ambasz sums up, "one of the very important architectural poets."

out what else we can do in our sleep. Others, like Dr. Stanley Krippner at the Humanistic Psychology Institute in San Francisco, are training people to influence the content of their dreams in order to read the meanings better. A lot is going on in sleep research—and if we don't really know yet whether or not the colors of our bedclothes can soothe our psyches, maybe very soon we will.

A woman's laxative should be as gentle as she is.

And that's why so many women use Correctol, the woman's gentle laxative. Correctol's special formula combines a mild laxative with a softening agent. Its gentle overnight action helps you feel like yourself again. Correctol is gentle enough for use even after childbirth and during menstruation.

Shaker Pantry Boxes

These beautifully crafted round or oval boxes are just like those produced in the 1700's by the legendary and industrious Shaker craftsmen. They are the work of a local mill which has been turning out products like these for almost a hundred years. Although you probably won't keep your sassafras, caraway and catnip in them, as did the colonists, there are unlimited uses for these boxes today. Paint or stain them, arrange them on tables and in hutches, use as sewing boxes, or as canisters for dried flower arrangements. However used, this touch of yesterday makes a thoughtful and treasured gift for today.

Plant Now...Step Back...and Watch Out!

And if you think that's startling — just wait 'til you see the spectacular show when it starts to flower — Actually smothers itself in such lavish masses of bouquets, its branches appear to bend from the sheer mass and weight of the magnificent blooms.

That's the kind of wondrous results reported by the U.S. Gov't. Plant Research Stations... Botanical Gardens... and University Plant Scientists on what is undoubtedly the most fantastic flowering shade tree ever introduced in America—the incredibly beautiful Paulownia... flowering shade tree in all of nature that can do all of this and more.

READ WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY ABOUT THE INCREDIBLE PAULOWNIA . . . THE FASTEST GROWING FLOWERING SHADE TREE EVER DISCOVERED!

HEIGHT: Gov't Plant Scientists and Botanical Experts report 18 to 22 feet of growth the very first year on specimen trees. That's more growth IN JUST ONE SINGLE SEASON than even a fully matured 15-year-old flowering dogwood, or prize star magnolia.

SPREAD: University Researchers report beautiful ornamental spread of nearly 40 feet at maturity . . . packed with thousands of magnificent flowers. Think of it. It not only surges skyward in the most spectacular burst of beauty you've ever seen . . . but, also arches out in a magazine-cover display of color-drenched branches.

ease: Leading editors report: . . grows in almost any soil . . and below-zero root-hardy, too. Yes, because nature has endowed this landscape-artist's "dreamtree" with super-growing strength . . because it is virtually resistant to most every common disease . . . requires practically no care at all. You simply plant it and forget it . . it's as simple as that.

A TOWER OF BEALITY IN INC.

A TOWER OF BEAUTY IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR!

Yes, who says you have to spend a small fortune for a flowering shade tree? — and then spend half a lifetime waiting for it to grow? It used to be that way — BUT NOT ANY LONGER. Not since we have finally tracked

How's this for a natural archway in front of your driveway — twin towers of flowering beauty in less time than you ever dreamed possible.

VITAL STATISTICS FROM LEADING EXPERTS

MATURE GROWTH SIZE - 45 to 60 feet MATURE GROWTH SPREAD - 35 to 50 feet

ZONE OF HARDINESS — completely root-hardy from deepest south to as far north as Montreal, Canada. Flowers beautifully even after 10 below zero winter

ONE YEAR GROWTH RATE - Experts report growth range of up to 22 feet the first year after planting specimen trees under optimum conditions, up to 15 18 feet under poorer conditions when pruned for foliage growth only.

FLOWERS — When tree is at blooming size, in just a few short years, you'll enjoy thick panicles of fragrant lavender blooms. Highly recommended by landscape artists as specimen planting for front lawn.

SOIL REQUIREMENTS - Natural strength and vigor it to soar full forth in even poor soil. You can plant it anywhere.

CARE — No special care whatsoever. No spraying. No dusting. No special feeding. Naturally resistant to most every disease, pest or insect.

TAKES BUT 10 MINUTES TO PLANT — REWARDS YOU WITH A LIFETIME OF BEAUTY STARTING THIS VERY YEAR!

down the one single tree in all of nature that hoists itself high, so fast you can literally measure the dif-ference in both height and spread from week to week . . . or take a yardstick and meas-ure the incredible difference in feet from month to month! GROWS IN ANY SOIL - RE-QUIRES NO SPECIAL CARE
— SOARS INTO A MASTER-

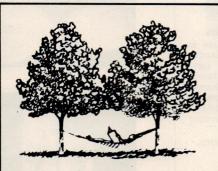

PIECE OF LUSH, GREEN BEAUTY IN JUST A MATTER OF MONTHS! Best of all, unlike most trees that demand constant pampering . . . the only thing you can do when you plant Paulownia is water it and enjoy it. That's why leading botanical gardens . . . landscape artists . . . garden editors . . . recommend it again and again for home-owners who want a stunning display of both beauty and shade . . . and with practically no more work than a couple of sprinkles a season.

Picture your patio bathed in the cool, fragrant beauty of this show-stopping miracle-tree from early spring to the first snows of winter.

ONLY A LIMITED SUPPLY YET AVAILABLE FOR RELEASE TO THE PUBLIC — FULL SUPPLY WON'T BE READY UNTIL 1977 . . . SO ACT NOW!

Now, the price of this super-growing shade tree is not $20 or $30 but a mere $3.95 yes, only $3.95 for this magnificent shade tree that rewards you with such a glorious display of growth IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR! However, supply is limited. All orders filled on a First-Come First-shipped basis. And since now is the time to plant, you must act now!

Here's a luxury sight you don't have to wait half a lifetime growing — a matched pair of flowering show-pleces, so strong and sturdy you can actually sling a hammock between them.

Never Has There Been A Faster-Growing, Flowering Shade Tree Introduced To America — Royal Paulownia

Yes, plant this season — see it soar forth in a tower of beauty in just one year! It's the most spectacular splurge of both growth and beauty of any shade tree ever brought to this country. And it's so easy to grow even a Health Watcher USA Announces Its Sensational Plan for...

WEIGHT LOSS BY THE HOUR

8 AM...126 POUNDS!

8 PM... YOU'VE ALREADY STARTED TO LOSE!

8 AM TOMORROW...122 POUNDS!

"There's no more healthful way to lose so much weight so fast!"

Dr. Louis F. Castaldo, M.D.

There's no easier way to lose — no calories to count, no carbohydrates to watch, no special recipes to prepare, no expensive special foods to buy!

Yet, incredibly, on this fantastic new Health Watcher Weight-Loss Plan your hunger — often the problem with those 500-1,000 calorie starvation diets — actually disappears in as little as 24 hours. You feel great — and in an incredibly few days — you start to look great!

Imagine losing your excess pounds minute-by-minute, hour-by-hour, up to 4½ pounds of fluid and fat in the first 24 hours! If that sounds unbelievable, get the entire program now and read what an eminent doctor says about it. Read what people who have tried it say happened to them! Read why it may very well be the fastest, most effective, safest way to lose weight that has ever been discovered.

What's the secret? It's as simple as 1-2-3! 1) You take a single high-powered nutrient tablet containing natural bran, for bulk, plus natural vitamins for health. 2) You take it with your choice of any of a number of healthful, nutritious natural fruit juices! 3) You don't tease your body with low-calorie starvation diets that only stimulate your appetite and leave you constantly hungry. Instead you shut down your food intake and slow down your whole digestive process for a brief period — the duration is up to you! Anytime you want to stop you can. The Complete Health Watcher Weight Loss Plan tells you exactly how — precisely when. When you follow it, the weight loss results are so fast, so fantastic you'll be amazed!

How much can I lose? The most amazing part is that you lose the most weight in the first few days — from 2 to 4½ pounds in the first 24 hours — up to 10 pounds in just one weekend. So if you're just 5 or 10 pounds heavier than your ideal, you can probably achieve in 100 hours or less what might take you 2 to 3 weeks or more on conventional "low calorie" or "low carbo-

Would you guess that Marie Glantz, President of Health Watcher USA and author of this plan, and a nationally known nutritionist and lecturer on health and weight loss, is a grandmother 4 times over? Or winner of numerous golf championships? And has more energy and pep than many people half her age? She follows her own advice—keeps her figure trim and slim, just as yours can be!

hydrate" diets that may leave you hungry, nervous and constantly famished! So on the Health Watcher Plan, you can lose as much as you need to — fast! It's up to you!

Suppose I want to lose a great deal, say 20 pounds? You could do it in as little as 7 days, depending on how overweight you are when you start. You could easily lose more . . . a 240 pounder might lose 10% to 15% of his body weight!

Will the Weight-Loss-By-The-Hour Plan interfere with my social life, or tennis, or golf? It needn't make the slightest difference. You could go on it for 5 week days, stop on the weekend, and resume the following week if you want — and keep the weight loss you've already achieved! The plan tells you exactly how. Or you can do it only on weekends if that suits you better. There's no need to give up any activity you enjoy — golf, tennis, swimming — whatever you normally like, you can do.

Will it affect my sex life? You bet it will — for the better! As you begin to shed all that extra weight, your energy level starts to increase. Not to mention the fact that you'll feel more desirable, and look it too!

Is the Weight-Loss-By-The-Hour Plan medically approved? Before beginning any weight loss program, says Dr. Louis F.
Castaldo, M.D., you should consult your physician. But he continues "I do not hesitate to recommend Health Watcher's WeightLoss-By-The-Hour Plan as the safest, healthiest way to lose pounds in the shortest period of time. Especially this is true for those frustrated people who have had little or no success with other methods of dieting. This amazing regimen, properly followed, may well be the beginning of a whole new life style!"

Send now for the plan, complete with everything you need on this no-risk guarantee. When you return the coupon, you've taken the first step toward being the trim, slim, attractive person you've always wanted to be! You will receive the complete plan, including precise instructions as to how to start, what you can expect to happen, how you'll feel, when to stop, and how to maintain the ideal weight you've achieved. You'll receive a 30-day supply of Health Watcher Nutrient Tablets containing healthful natural ingredients and no dangerous drugs — these provide vitamins and fiber while you're losing weight on the plan. And you receive instructions for a healthful exercise and weight maintenance program you can use to help maintain weight and feel great.

After you've received all this, you may follow and use this Plan for 14 days without obligation. If then you're not pleased, tickled, proud and delighted in every way, you may return just the unused Health Watcher tablets and get a full refund of the purchase price. You may keep all the rest of the material in any case, as a gift!

But don't delay — mail the coupon at once! The sooner you start to follow and benefit from this amazing program, the sooner you'll have the trimmer, slimmer figure you've always wanted. Mail your order today!

Dr. Castaldo has been a practicing physician for over 30 years. A graduate of the University of Maryland, he received his medical degree at Tufts University, then interned and was a resident at Stamford and Bridgeport Hospitals in Bridgeport Hospitals in Connecticut and Bellevue Hospital in New York.

The Hall Tree is back! An exact copy of one that our grandparents and great grandparents used years ago. Handcrafted, the quality is superb. This Hall Tree is not available from any other source because it is made by craftsmen in our own shop. Finished in a beautifully handrubbed dark oak. This 65 inch high Hall Tree is accented with brass hangers, hooks, and old time ladder chain that serves as an umbrella stand. The wood is solid oak and finished to perfection. A quality item that will be as useful and as attractive as any piece of furniture that you want in your home. Production is limited so each Hall Tree made will be dated and assigned a production number to insure that, in years to come, you will have a collectors item. a collectors item.

Wild Birds Need Your Care

Their survival isn't as "natural" as it once was. Pollution, pesticides, tree removal and many other man-made problems are threatening their very existence.

very existence.

Audubon Workshop is devoted to helping young and old alike discover the beauty and joy of birds, while showing what you can do to give birds in your area a helping hand.

In our new Bird Lovers' Catalog-Handbook, you will find hundreds of houses, feeders, food and seed, kits, books, records — plus a wealth of useful information on the care and feeding of our native birds.

Our wild birds need your help more than ever before. Won't you please show your concern in some small way? They'll repay you many times over. For your copy of Bird Lovers' Catalog-Handbook, send 25¢ today to Audubon Workshop, Dept. 8, Northbrook, Illinois 60062. Thank you very much.

OLD TIME APPLE PARER THAT CORES AND SLICES. TOO

Our authentic apple parer has proved its worth in American kitchens for over 100 years! Peels any size apple, cores or slices it with the turn of its handle. Moveable cutting head follows contour of the apple, making it quick and easy to use for pies, canning or eating. Made of cast iron just like its century-old original ones. Overall length, 91/8". Fascinating Living Curiosity! Amazing Bargain Offer!

Nature's Mysterious

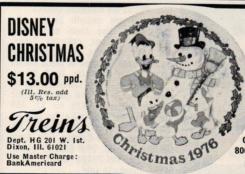

For its gorgeous variegated green foliage alone, you'd love this luxurious house plant (maranta bicolor) on sight. But what fascinates and amazes children and adults alike is the way it folds its leaves in prayer every evening. Each leaf folds like a pair of hands at worship — praying each night for the sun's return at dawn! And what a surprise when the leaves fold up at night . . . their undersides are deep red! A lovely day and night conversation piece for any room in your home, the Prayer Plant thrives almost anywhere. Wonderful gift for shut-ins or child's room. Each strong, well-rooted plant arrives already growing in its own 2½" pot — only $1 each — far less than the price some florists and nurseries ask! Mail coupon now!

How to get rich

START YOUR OWN BUSINESS RIGHT FROM YOUR HOME—AND MAKE A FORTUNE IN MAIL ORDER!

Mail Order Beginners Get Cash by Mail!

Have you ever thought of operating a little mail order business of your own? Something you could start on a shoestring right from home in your spare time. It's a fabulous business!

Bob Carter of Newark, N.J. ran his first small mail order ad in House Beautiful magazine—offering an auto clothes rack. Business Week reported that his ad brought in $5,000 in orders. By the end of his first year in Mail Order, he had grossed over $100,000!

Another beginner—a lawyer from the midwest, sold a mail order item to fishermen. Specialty Salesman magazine reveals, "he made $70,000 the first three months!"

There is no other business where you can make a fortune so fast. Come up with a "hot" new item...and WHAM!

It strikes like a bolt of lightning!

Millions of people read your ad and suddenly, you are swamped with cash orders from all over the country...MORE MONEY in 60 days than you could earn in a lifetime!

Like the Vermont dealer who ran one ad in Sports Afield magazine. His ad pulled 22,000 orders—over A HALF MILLION DOLLARS IN CASH!

Yes, Mail Order is the fastest-growing, most profitable business in America! And now with the population explosion...the huge teenage market...and more people moving to the suburbs—we are on the verge of the BIGGEST BOOM in Mail Order history!

Free

If you are sincerely interested in starting a lucrative business of your own ACT NOW! We can help you get rich in Mail Order just as we've helped others. Mail the coupon or send a postcard. We'll send you a free book, catalog, ads and complete facts about our offer. No salesman will call. No obligation. You don't need previous experience but you must be over 21. Write to:

NOW! PICK FRESH FLOWERS BY THE HUNDREDS
ALL WINTER LONG

Just picture this incredible scene a few short months from now: Outside it's a solid sheet of snow. Icicles hang from the trees. Every other garden is a ghostly white. Yet your garden — and only your garden — is bursting with color as dazzling masses of red, yellow, purple, orange, and gold flowers erupt in rainbow drifts. Yes, your beds, borders, shrubs, and the walk up to your home will all be lined with a riot of continuous bloom, so warm they seem to melt away the snow.

EACH SNOW-BLOOMING RAINBOW COLLECTION

INCLUDES:
GLORY OF THE SNOW — Looks like a magnificent display of orchids blooming in the snow.
ERANTHIS — Solid banks of golden blooms so dazzling bright they make the sun look pale.
SNOWDROPS — Frosty white bell-shaped blooms like a field of lillies framed in banks of snow.
SIBERIAN SCILLA — Velvety purple flowers erupt in blooms by the hundreds in the dead of winter.
MUSCARI — Clusters of showy blue florets even in sub-freezing weather. While neighbors shovel snow you'll pick masses of fresh-cut floral displays.

HAND ENGRAVED FAMILY CREST RINGS

14 K gold pendant $150 sterling silver $75.00

WE WORK IN THREE BASIC WAYS

1—If you do have a coat of arms you send us a photostat or picture of it and that is what we engrave.

2—If you do not have a coat of arms just send us your name and we shall look it up at no extra cost to see if there is a cost of arms for it.

3—If you wish you may design your own coat of arms.

SEND $1.00 FOR OUR COLOR CATALOGUE OF BEAUTIFUL HERALDIC JEWELRY (deductible from first order). You will also receive our booklet with instructions on "how to design your own coat of arms" and containing a list of over 20,000 names for which we have records of coats of arms and for which this jewelry can be made.

This is the most beautiful, and certainly the most personal jewelry there is. Hand engraved by master European craftsmen.

New books about houseplants, the charm of the neglected catalpa tree,
Bicentennial garden gift of bonsai from Japan

By James Fanning

A neglected Victorian

Appropriately enough. American trees are among those most admired at Thomas Jefferson's home, Monticello. Most conspicuous of these are catalpas, spreading broad branches above the lawns and scattering white blossoms on the paths in late spring. One is Catalpa speciosa, a native of the Mississippi Valley brought to eastern gardens by early plant explorers. The other—a slightly smaller tree—is Catalpa bignonioides, found growing wild in most of the southern states. Both are long-lived trees, with widely spaced, craggy branches, and big, heart-shaped leaves that cast a dappled shade during the hot months. Not particular about soil, the catalpas are quite drought-resistant, pest-free, and hardy into the northernmost states. The huge clusters of purple-throated white flowers—like tree-borne orchidsare followed by seed pods that resemble giant, but inedible, string beans. Immensely popular in Victorian times, catalpas are not often planted nowadays, probably because few of us can give them the room they need. The western catalpa, C. speciosa, is most often found in the North, and bignonioides, the southern catalpa, is more common in the South, although they are equally hardy and have very similar flowers. Most nurseries have a few trees on hand, or can get them if asked.

Bicentennial bonsai

The National Arboretum in Washington now includes a National Bonsai Collection. A Bicentennial gift from the people of Japan, the collection consists of 53 specimens donated by organizations and individuals, including the emperor himself. The plants cover a wide range of types, from evergreens to deciduous and flowering trees and shrubs. They range in age from 30 to 350 years, and each, of course, has its own carefully chosen container. The collection also includes six viewing stones—natural rocks selected for their artistic merit. To house the collection, a special pavilion has been built next to the Administration Building at the National Arboretum, 24th and R Sts., N.E., Washington, D.C. Open to the public since July 10, the National Bonsai Collection is now a permanent part of the National Arboretum, and may be visited any day of the year with the exception of Christmas.

A few of the 53 trees that are in the National Bonsai Collection. Top to bottom, they are Japanese maple, Japanese white pine, and Japanese black pine.

House plant encore

Additional information about the house plants listed on page 106 may be found in any of the several indoor plant books currently available. One of the newest-and among the best—is The World Book of House Plants, by Russell C. Mott (Funk & Wagnalls, $8.95). Arranged in sections according to plant type and common name, Mr. Mott's book is easy to use and gives full information about each of the plants listed. It is also handsomely illustrated with watercolors by Alan Singer.... From Germany comes The Treasury of House-plants, by Rob Herwig and Margot Schubert (Macmillan, $12.95). This is completely up-to-date in nomenclature-most of the popular books are behind the botanical times—and inevitably includes a few things not yet available in the United States. Arrangement is alphabetical, with every plant shown in a color photograph. One of the most informative parts of this "Treasury" is a section on the ideal versus reality, which warns against demanding the impossible or the unnatural and tells what kind of performance we should expect from our plants.

land, that monumental building will yet reflect this trend, as we move in our esthetic toward a southern sensibility, away from architect Mies van der Rohe and the northern latitudes. We will polychrome skyscrapers, schools, highways. Already in Chicago—the home of Mies—the stark, barren plazas are being flushed with color, in sculpture, tents, murals. Corbusier's cry, ignored 30 years ago, will be heard anew: "We'll get the painters in to blow up the walls that stand in our way. Architectural polychromy seizes the entire wall and qualifies it with the powerful throb of the blood, or the freshness of the prairie, or the glow of the sun ... This is dynamics, or I might as well say dynamite, having let my painter in the house."

I haven't spoken yet of polychrome bodies, rooms, and furniture, but they are already appearing in virtually every sector of society now except the most fixed, rigid, and staid. They reflect the same sense of style and value that began to come on in art and quickly passed beyord, implemented by photography and television. The style seems to be this: Give up black and white, as negations rather than colors, for brightness, in other hues. Mix anything (or almost anything). Try anything, at least once (let lips be purple today, has taken credit for wiping out the diseases that plagued our ancestors; but affluence and better living may have contributed more to the conquest of disease than the modern medical-technology complex. In fact, despite all that medicine knows now, it has failed to conquer what Nobel Prize winner J. S. Watson aptly called "a collection of well-dug-in diseases against which conventional approaches bounce off as if they were tabletennis balls thrown at walls.'

Before today's medical mysteries, the scientist physician stands confounded, but not as humbly as his ineffective predecessors did. Illich is talking about failures of the curing functions of medicine; he says nothing about the equally important caring function, once practiced with such signal success and so ignored today.

As for Illich's notion of doctorcaused diseases, there is nothing to take exception at. What he has to say has, in fact, been said far more ferociously by others.

There is no question that all aspects of our lives have been medicalized. As an extension of this, Illich feels modern medicine has caused a flight from reality, from pink tomorrow, like turning the TV dial). The value-system seems to be this: There are more than seven colors in the spectrum (Isaac Newton in 1616 defined the spectrum as having precisely seven colors), and more receptivity in the eye to recognize them. This does not imply that all the absolutes in color have crumbled. Green is still the earth and red is still the fire and blue the sky; these connections are too primal to be shaken, and are renewed on every flight from the city. But around this essential core, the circle of ambiguity is growing. Our senses are expanding in their capacity to ingest and indulge color far beyond the poverty of our language. Our vocabulary still cannot match the Eskimo, for example, who has 17 words for varying shades of white. We can only dimly feel this complexity and subtlety with our eyes, our hands, and our bodies. And of course we sense the excitement of the chase, at the end of which we may yet capture a color unseen before. Who is afraid of red, yellow, and blue, indeed, or of what lies beyond?

Once Barnett Newman told me, struggling to explain the lure of a particular canvas that had absorbed him for more than a year, "I was after, you might say, reditude." The mystery, then, is solved. Our indulgence in color has a cause, and an end. We are all searching, like Newman, for reditude, for ultimate color, for beatitude.

feeling the pain of life and of illness, from according the human being the dignity of his experiences being born at home and dying in one's own bed. Illich deplores the hospitalization of what once were home-centered life events.

The elderly in the United States. he says, have been taught to consider old age akin to a disease and as a consequence have "developed unlimited economic needs in order to pay for interminable therapies, which are usually ineffective, are frequently demeaning and painful, and call more often than not for reclusion in a special milieu.'

To counteract the medicalization of our lives, unlimited demands for medical care, manipulated addiction of people to drugs they don't need, increasing mystification of medical knowledge and know-how, dependence on therapists' and patients' roles, what does Illich suggest?

Surprisingly little that is of immediate or practical help. He argues for a return to an earlier day-virtually to the bad old days that so disenchanted my greatuncle. Illich urges radical changes in the present medical industry and a reappropriation by the individual of his own health care.

He urges us all to seek reform. Continued on page 193 served water to blend smoothly and give the purée a good consistency. The purée may be simmered to reduce it if it becomes too liquid.

Store in a jar in the refrigerator to use in small quantities in many sauces. Makes about 3/4 cup. To serve as a vegetable purée, add a touch of lemon juice and a splash of crème fraîche.

Asparagus Feuilleté

Ingredients

12 ounces puff pastry-homemade or store-bought (about 3 ounces per serving) 40 asparagus spears (you can use frozen asparagus) 1/2 cup sweet butter 1/2 cup heavy cream salt, pepper fresh Italian parsley, chopped, or tarragon, if available juice of 2 lemons

Method

Roll out the pastry and cut into 4 rectangles about 2 by 3 inches. Bake in a hot oven until puffed and lightly browned. Cut in half horizontally. Keep warm.

Cut the asparagus into 2-inch lengths. Discard the woody ends. Bring a large saucepan of salted water to a rolling boil and add the asparagus tips. Return to the boil over high heat and cook until just tender but still crisp, about 3-5 minutes. Immediately "shock" the tips by plunging into a bowl of ice wa-

Cook the remaining asparagus in more boiling salted water until very tender. Drain. Add to a blender and purée.

In a saucepan add 1 tablespoon asparagus purée-or to tasteto the butter and cream. Heat over low heat, and add salt, pepper, parsley or tarragon. In a separate pan, heat the lemon juice and whisk into sauce. Add the asparagus tips and reheat. Fill the pastry shells with 10 tips per person and pour in sauce; replace pastry lid. (If using frozen asparagus, just thaw and heat tips in the sauce-no preliminary cooking necessary.) Serve immediately. Serves 4.

Crêpes with Praline Filling

Ingredients for crêpes

1/2 pound all-purpose flour 1/4 pound confectioners sugar 1/2 teaspoon salt 3 eggs plus 1 yolk 1/3 cup sweet butter, melted 21/2 cups milk

Ingredients for filling

1/4 pound sweet butter, softened 1/4 pound praline paste (available in gourmet food shops) 1 cup water 1 cup sugar

1/4-1/3 cup almonds, blanched and sliced

Ingredients for glaze

1/2 cup apricot brandy

Method for crêpes

Sift together the flour, sugar, and salt into a large bowl. Make a well in the center and add the eggs, yolk, and butter. Work together into a thick paste. Add milk slowly, beating at low speed. Batter should be the consistency of heavy cream.

Cook the crêpes in a seasoned pan until light brown on both sides. Makes about 25 7-inch crêpes.

Method for filling

Mix together in a bowl the butter and praline paste. Set aside.

In a saucepan, bring the water and sugar to a boil; heat until sugar is dissolved. Put the almonds in a bowl and sprinkle, while tossing the nuts, with just enough of the sugar syrup to coat them lightly. Reserve rest of syrup for glaze. Place on a greased cookie sheet and toast in a hot oven until golden brown. Stir occasionally so the nuts will brown evenly.

Mix almonds and praline mixture together. Spread each crêpe thinly with the praline filling. Fold in half and spread the right half of the folded crêpe with more filling. Fold in half again. Arrange 4 quartered crêpes on each plate.

Method for glaze

Combine the brandy and 1/2 cup of the remaining sugar syrup in a bowl. Spoon about 2 tablespoons glaze over each serving. Put in a hot oven (400°) for 5 minutes. Serve immediately.

His suggestions include assuming consumer control of hospital boards and forcing doctors to improve their wares. Because health care delivery depends, Illich says, on "patients' money and rank, or on social and medical prejudices which favor, for example, attention to heart disease over attention to malnutrition, patients should press for the nationalization of health production to control the hidden biases of the clinic." The main thrust of present medicine is the individual, in sickness or in health, he points out. But the environment is being ignored as a health factor. It would do more for the health of a population to clean up city air pollution, for example, than to deal individually with each patient's lung problems.

The cure for our proliferating health care industry—and the damage to well-being and the pocketbook—is not to be found here, I fear. But that does not detract from the value of the book, so rich and powerful in its depiction of the problem that needs to be understood before it can be attacked. Will a return to a selfreliant individualism really affect health care? I doubt it. This is rather reminiscent of great-uncle Moritz's advice to my mother. Incidentally, that good lady followed his advice, and has stayed away from doctors—as much as she could-for almost 90 years. The results are a mixed bag—a truly re-markable constitution beset by a welter of infirmities. She definitely is not ennobled by her pains, as Illich suggests we all might be, were we not so insistent against feeling the inevitable onslaught of our failing bodies. In fact, if mother did not so vehemently resist all medications and therapies, she might be more comfortable, or at the least would make those around her more comfortable.

A world of optimal and widespread health is obviously a world of minimal and only occasional medical intervention, Illich concludes, echoing the sentiments I have heard since childhood. "Healthy people are those who live in healthy homes on a healthy diet in an environment equally fit for birth, growth, work, healing, and dying. Healthy people need minimal bureaucratic interference to mate, give birth, share the human condition, and die." Many thoughtful people in medicine today agree with the Illich position —that greater emphasis should be put on preventing illness rather than curing it.

In the final analysis, the Illich message is simple, though powerful. The current confrontation in American medicine, years in the making and reaching some sort of climax in twin crises, the fiscal crunch and the malpractice contretemps, will no doubt prompt reforms. It is no coincidence that, according to New York Post writer Robert Bazelle, the only book the very busy governor Jerry Brown of California has had time to read this year is Medical Nemesis. You might well do the same.

JOHN WYKERT is a syndicated newspaper columnist specializing in the fields of psychology and psychiatry. He is coauthor of the book The Truth About Arthritis Care (McKay, 1971).

as someone seriously concerned with the welfare of his patients, but as a "biological accountant engaged in input/output calculations," sounds like that of a man with a personal vendetta against the entire medical profession. Has Mr. Illich never known anyone who benefited from a doctor's care? I was interested that the author did not attack the field of heart surgery per se; but his statement that there is no evidence to show that differential diagnosis of heart disease by cardiac catheterization prolongs life is not only unfounded but ridiculous.

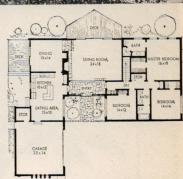

Without pain, people are deprived of their autonomy, Illich asserts. People should be in touch with their own pain, which cannot be understood or appreciated by anyone else, doctors included. He seems to think that most pain, particularly that associated with childbirth, sickness, and death, can best be treated at home. The "fear" engendered by hospitals only serves to intensify pain and, according to Mr. Illich, without fear there may be no pain. Few would disagree that it would be more pleasant to die peacefully at home than in the hospital, but why should a person with heart valve or coronary artery disease, for example, die at home at 40 years of age, when with corrective surgery or medical treatment he might live comfortably and normally for another 10, 20, or even 30 years?

Mr. Illich has presented some interesting facts in his book. But most of his ideas seem unreasonable, ill-defined, and even dangerous to me. I finished reading Medical Nemesis with the distinct impression that the author had done a tremendous amount of research and then twisted the facts to suit his own pre- and ill-conceived ideas. His destructive criticism is totally biased, and represents only one side of the story; it would not surprise me to hear that Mr. Illich had never been inside a hospital nor witnessed the saving of a life.

The result is a revolutionary new way to cook; a new taste experience.

THE LA COTTA COOKING REVOLUTION OBSOLETES THE METAL PAN

It doesn't build up the intense temperatures that toughen meat. - Porosity draws out fats, bitterness, acidity - Lets you taste natural food flavors. ■ Spreads and holds heat evenly, so there's less shrinkage. Self-basting, preserves natural juices. Makes meats tender, succulent without tenderizers or spices. ■ Easily cleaned in plain hot water — no soap necessary.
