The President's Message

By Curtis W. Fentress, AIA

The 1993 AIA Colorado Design Conference is right around the corner. Start off your holiday season with a relaxing weekend at The Broadmoor Hotel on December 3rd and 4th. By now, you have all received your brochures and invitations to exhibit at this year's Design Conference in Colorado Springs. There is a wealth of opportunity awaiting you December 3rd and 4th. We will hear George Hoover FAIA, William McDonough, AIA, Richard Townsend, Linda Jewell, ASLA, Fay Jones and Peter Calthorpe. We will see the unveiling of a new dance commissioned especially for the theme of "Awakening Responsibility." We will view a film on the work of Le Corbusier. We will experience in the Colorado Hall the design submissions from the Call for Creative and Visionary Projects competition and the product displays of our exhibitors. We will celebrate the winners of the 1993 Design Awards after dinner on Saturday night. Join us for the discussion on the redevelopment of Stapleton airport with Jennifer Moulton, AIA or the Fireside Chat with Fay Jones, FAIA or the analysis of the successful architect with Michael Pariseau. Enjoy the company of your peers and show your appreciation to the exhibitors in the Colorado Hall who help make this conference a reality. I thank our sponsors for their generous support: Richard L. Crowther, FAIA, Temple Hoyne Buell Foundation, Educational Fund - Colorado Society of Architects, AIA, Haselden Construction, the Colorado Chapter of Producer's Council, S.A. Miro, Inc., Andersen Windows, Dal-Tile Corporation, Eagle Window & Door Center, Pella Products of Colorado, Robinson Brick Company and Rocky Mountain Prestress.

Fill out your 1993 Design Conference registration form and send it back to AIA Colorado today. I look forward to seeing all of you at The Broadmoor.

AIA JOINT OFFICE RELOCATION TASK FORCE REVISES PLANS

The AIA Joint Office Relocation Task Force is re-issuing the RFP for design services previously issued September, 1993. As noted in the September Field Report, AIA is seeking letters of interest from qualified firms who wish to be considered. Selections will be undertaken through interviews with a short-listed number of firms.

The commission is 2,000 square feet. Services will include space planning, interior design, furniture selection, construction documents and construction administration.

Compensation guidelines include:

1. Test fit of program in alternative locations to be paid by landlord at a rate of 10 cents per square foot;
2. Compensation for design service shall include payment of one member's AIA state and local membership for two years;
3. Free attendance for two at AIA Denver annual meeting and AIA Colorado Design Conference to receive recognition for work provided; and
4. Reimbursables to be paid directly to architect for printing and other out-of-pocket expenses.

Compensation will be negotiated after selection of qualified firms. All Colorado AIA members are eligible. If member firms of the Relocation Task Force desire to submit, the member shall be asked to step down from the selection process.

Send letters of interest to AIA Colorado, Joint Office Relocation Task Force, 1459 Pennsylvania Street, Carriage House, Denver, Colorado, 80203. Deadlines for submittals shall be no later than November 22, 1993 at 5:00 p.m. AIA Colorado/Denver is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Responding firms must be members of AIA.

CHAPTER REPORTS

AIA Colorado West

We held our board meeting at the Lipkin-Warner office in Aspen. Chuck Brenner, AIA, our Awards Banquet Organizer, was present and brought us up to date on his program. The Awards Banquet will be held February 5, 1994 in Glenwood Springs at either Hotel Denver or Hotel Colorado. Don McLaughlin, AIA, from Montana has agreed to chair the jury and present this year's winners.

Glen Carlsrud, AIA, presented our revised and approved National Bylaws. The Board will review and will adopt these bylaws at our next meeting.

After our meeting, we joined the National Board at a reception at the Margaux Baum Gallery for refreshments and a look at the 1993 AIA Photo Contest Award winners.

Our next meeting will be held at the Hotel Denver, Glenwood Springs, on November 11, 1993 at 4:00 p.m.

AIA Denver

The November 8th General Membership meeting is at the Denver Athletic Club at 1325 Glenarm Place. Cocktails will be at 5:30 p.m. The 6:00 p.m. presentation will focus on the work of the late Bill Muchow, FAIA, and the architects who were influenced by his work. These architects include Jeff Sheppard, AIA, Karl Berg, FAIA, Michael Jacoby, AIA, and George Hoover, FAIA. The presentation is free and open to the public.

AIA Denver will present a Mock Building Design Exam on November 13 at UCD Dravo Building in downtown Denver from 8:00 a.m. - 8:00 p.m. Contact the AIA Denver office to register at 892-1188 by November 5, 1993.

AIA Denver's Interiors Committee is hosting GREENdesign '93 Lecture Series. The next lecture will be held November 17 from 5:30 p.m. - 7:00 p.m. at RNL Design, 1225 17th Street, Suite 1700 in downtown Denver. Admission is free! The speaker is Greg Franta, AIA from the Ensar Group and the subject is the environment. Please R.S.V.P. to the AIA Denver office at 892-1188 by November 17, 1993.

The December 13 Christmas Social will be held at the Denver Athletic Club at 1325 Glenarm Place in Denver. Admission is a new toy for a needy child. "Archiments," the annual joint effort between the Society of Architectural Administrators ("SAA") and AIA Denver, will be a part of the festivities.

MEMBER NEWS

Kurt D. Robertson, AIA (Denver) has joined Bramalea U.S. Properties as Senior Vice President of Design and Construction.

Lee S. Gagne, AIA (North), along with John Thomas Hurley and Julia L. Johnson, ASID Allied, announced the opening of their new firm. Hurley, Johnson, & Gagne, Inc. specializes in health care architecture, commercial architecture and interior design. Their offices are in the Wheeler Block Building, 2150 West 29th Avenue, Suite 410, Denver, CO, 80211, and the telephone number is 303/477-1995.

David Adamson, Prof. Affiliate (North) of Planetary Solutions is offering a new newsletter that brings you the very latest information and innovations in the areas of low-toxic and resource-efficient design and construction. Subscriptions are available. Call 303/442-6228 for a subscription.

A kitchen designed by Sven Eric Alstrom, AIA (West) was featured in the Sept/Oct 1993 issue of Colorado Homes and Lifestyles. According to the article, the country kitchen is successful because it combines one part function; one part modern efficiency, and two parts fine custom craftsmanship.

John Quest, AIA (South), is a Principal at Lescher and Mahoney/DLR Group. This Colorado Springs architectural and engineering firm and its affiliate, the DLR Group, have been recognized by Building Design & Construction Magazine as the tenth largest A/E firm in the United States based upon fees from the previous year.

The Wood Organization of Denver (W.O.O.D., Inc.) announced the winners of its 27th Annual "Architectural Awards for Excellence" competition on Friday, October 22, 1993. Congratulations to the following AIA Colorado architects who have been noted for their creative, aesthetic and functional use of wood:

Single-Family Residence (more than 5,000 square feet): Marc P. Hogan, AIA, Baker + Hogan + Houx Architecture & Planning/AIA/PC, Breckenridge for River Run Ranch Main House.

Single-Family Residence (2,500 to 5,000 square feet): Mark R. Hafen, AIA, Gates Hafen, PC, Boulder for a Boulder County residence.

Commercial: Robert L. Outland, AIA, Murata Outland Associates, Denver for Evergreen Lake House in Evergreen.

Interior Design - Residential: Michael R. Houx, AIA, Baker + Hogan + Houx Architecture and Planning/AIA/PC, Breckenridge for the Gould/Appel Pool addition in Breckenridge.

Interior Design - Commercial: David R. Argo, AIA, Zehren and Associates, Inc., Avon for The Lodge at Sunspot in Winter Park.

Remodeling/Restoration: Doug Walter, AIA, Doug Walter Architects, Denver for a Greenwood Village residence in Denver.

Multi-Family: Dean M. Koll, AIA, Zehren and Associates, Inc., Avon for Pinehurst at Beaver Creek in Beaver Creek.

NCARB'S BUILDING DESIGN FORMAT WILL CHANGE TO MULTIPLE VIGNETTES NEXT JUNE

The National Council of Architectural Registration Boards' (NCARB) single design problem, which has been part of the Building Design examination for more than 60 years, will change to multiple vignettes after the December 1993 administration of the Architect Registration Exam (A.R.E.). The new format will be a series of six vignettes designed to cover a broader range of subjects, reduce the amount of testing time and produce more reliable scores. From June 1994 through June 1996 these vignettes will be administered in the present paper-and-pencil format. Beginning in early 1997 these vignettes, along with all other divisions of the A.R.E., will be administered on computer.

"Changing the format of the building design examination to a multi-vignette format will allow NCARB to further its mission of protecting the public's health, safety and welfare by improving the reliability of the examination scores," says Jeffrey F. Kenney, Director of Examinations Development.

Exam candidates indirectly determine the level of difficulty of the problem based on their planning skills. "Candidates who have good planning skills will create an easier structural integration problem, because their building is simpler," says Kenney, "but if the candidates have poor planning skills, they will most likely create a more difficult structural integration problem for themselves."

Kenney says that registration boards need to be absolutely certain that candidates have entry-level architectural abilities, such as space planning or structural integration. The only way to be certain is to ensure that every candidate solves the same problem. This doesn't mean to suggest that the candidate who now shows poor planning skills—thereby creating a more difficult structural problem—will necessarily pass a vignette-based examination due to an easier structural vignette. "In fact," says Kenney, "what we now speculate—poor abilities in one area mean poor abilities in other areas—may prove to be true, but we won't be speculating; we'll know."

In 1994 Division C: Building Design will be administered on Thursday, June 16 and Tuesday, December 13. Candidates will be given 12 continuous hours to complete the six vignettes. Recommended times for each vignette will be provided, but it is up to each candidate to schedule his or her own time. The entire series of vignettes was designed to be completed in 10 hours, but candidates will continue to have 12 hours of testing time.

The six vignettes that will be administered in 1994 include the following: Block Diagram, Schematic Design (Floor Plans), Structural Plan, Mechanical and Electrical Plan, Building Section and Accessibility. Descriptions of each of these vignettes will be provided in the NCARB Circular of Information No. 2 (available from registration boards in January 1994) and the 1994 edition of NCARB's Architect Registration Exam Handbook (available from AIA Colorado in late 1993) will also include examples of the new vignettes.

The National Council of Architectural Registration Boards is the national organization of state registration boards regulating the practice of architecture and is dedicated to assisting these member state registration boards in carrying out their duties and to providing a certification program for individual architects.

GOVERNMENT AFFAIRS COMMITTEE UPDATE

by Chairman Thomas E. McKenzie, AIA

At this time, there will be no proposed legislation submitted from the Colorado Board of Examiners of Architects regarding Limited Liability Corporations or "LLCs." The GAC is continuing to gear up for outreach to our state legislators. Call us if you are interested in meeting with your state representative or senator. We need Colorado architects to participate in this endeavor. We also need your participation on the Government Affairs Committee. Corresponding members are O.K. for the GAC, particularly if you are in one of the outlying chapters. We will keep you up to date on the discussions held at meetings and will call you for input on issues of importance to the profession. Last, but not least, it is the season to once again start thinking about the Legislative Subcommittee. This group meets Friday mornings at 7:30 a.m. during the Colorado legislative session to keep an eye on and discuss proposed legislation. Call me at 303/388-4601 if you would like to be a part of AIA Colorado's GAC.

STAPLETON REDEVELOPMENT: CREATING A NEW SUSTAINABLE VISION Part of the 1993 AIA Colorado Design Conference

Stapleton International Airport was once only sand hills, high plains grasslands and small canals and creeks used by Native Americans and later by farmers and ranchers. In 1929, Stapleton was born as an airfield serving propeller-driven aircraft. By the 1960s, Stapleton had evolved into one of the world's largest and busiest aviation complexes. Now, this 7.5 square mile area will undergo another dramatic transformation.

In the mid-1980s, Denver voters approved a bond issue to build a new airport and replace Stapleton. In 1989, a group of Denver citizens formed the Stapleton Redevelopment Foundation as a civic vehicle to promote investment and participation in the redevelopment process. This group seeks to realize the highest economic and social benefits for the community.

In 1993, this Foundation and the City of Denver formed a partnership to plan, market and develop the Stapleton site. The partners are committed to the goals of involving the community in the redevelopment process, making sure that the activity on the site promotes the health and vitality of surrounding neighborhoods and using the principles of sustainable design. The partners hope to build a model environmental community on site and use the environment as an engine for economic development. The Foundation will oversee the master planning process over the next year and they have selected leading architecture, urban design and planning firms to help develop this plan.

At the 1993 Design Conference, Jennifer Moulton, AIA, Denver's Director of Planning and Community Development, will lead a panel discussion on the vision that is needed for the redevelopment of Stapleton on Saturday, December 4th at the Broadmoor. Each of the panelists will bring a different dimension to the discussion. Panelists will include members of the planning consultants team: Alex Cooper, principal of Cooper Robertson & Partners of New York City (the firm does large scale projects such as Disney Celebration in Osceola, Florida) and Carol Franklin of Andropogon Associates, Ltd. in Philadelphia (the firm does projects that require adaptive re-use and restoration of natural, historic and degraded landscapes). The panel will also include Stapleton Redevelopment Foundation CEO, Tom Gougeon, board member Sam Gary and Jonathan Rose, developer of the historic Denver Dry Building in downtown Denver.

NEW RESEARCH SUGGESTS CAUTIOUS OPTIMISM FOR FUTURE OF ARCHITECTS CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY From the AIA Public Affairs Office

A significant percentage of businesses and institutions are planning construction projects in the next 18 months or so, suggesting cautious optimism in the construction industry. In a recent study conducted by The Roper Organization for the American Institute of Architects, 53 percent of the business, health-care, educational, and nonprofit professionals surveyed said they are planning to undertake some sort of renovation work in the next year-and-a-half, and 36 percent indicated they plan new construction in the same time period.

"Historically the construction industry has been a good indicator for the direction of the economy as a whole," said James P. Cramer, Hon. AIA, CEO of the American Institute of Architects. "While many regions of the country are still facing hard times, we are encouraged by the results for the bigger picture."

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), is very much on the minds of business and institutional professionals. Many respondents have already made some modification to their facility: About a third have installed ramps, a quarter have made rest-room improvements, and nearly another quarter are currently remodeling. More than 20 percent are currently evaluating what changes, if any, are needed to their facility, suggesting that the ADA will continue to be an impetus for renovation.

Other key findings in the survey include:

- Architects are held in high esteem. More than 91 percent of the survey respondents said they have either a high or a fairly good opinion of architects. Among 14 professions respondents were asked about, architects were ranked in the top third.
- Institutional and business clients alike place a greater priority on building functions than on aesthetics. Of the 10 design/building items asked about, more than 90 percent of respondents rated fire- and life-safety systems, air quality in a facility, the efficiency of the facility, and lighting as major priorities.
- When selecting architects for projects, clients said they look first for professionals who listen and respond well to their needs and goals and are able to manage the complex maze of regulations, political approvals, and zoning requirements.

The study was based on 808 telephone interviews with the most senior executive responsible for construction decisions in medium-size businesses as well as health-care, educational, and nonprofit institutions. The survey was conducted between April 15 and May 17, 1993.

A complete report, entitled "What Clients Need" will be available in early November. The cost will be $35 for AIA members, $70 for nonmembers. Call 800/365-ARCH (2724). The complete report includes the findings of the Roper study as well as the results of focus groups conducted with business and institutional clients in three U.S. cities.

CALL FOR ENTRIES

The American Hardboard Association's "Home of the Year" competition is entering its fifth year. Gold, silver and bronze award-winning homes will be selected by a distinguished panel of judges. AHA established the awards to give public attention to the architect and builder who, in the opinion of the judges, have realized the full potential of hardboard siding's versatility in the design and construction of a single-family detached dwelling. For the first time, AHA will also recognize the best "Multi-Family" entry. Entries will be judged on the following criteria: Overall aesthetic appearance of the residence/project and the building site; choice of color, texture, and style of hardboard siding as it relates to architectural design; and craftsmanship of the installation, plus any special detailing, i.e., custom cuts, unusual finishing, or any outstanding example of caulking or nailing techniques. Call the AHA at 708/934-8800 for an entry form.
