Masonry Institute of Michigan, Inc.

Gordon Hall at Cranbrook Wins 1976
'M Award' for Tarapata MacMahon Paulsen

"An outstanding exemplar for modifications and additions to an existing, worthy building...the attitude is respectful, unassertive, understanding and sensitive to the modest scale, while being strongly creative and artistic...the brickwork and its details are skillfully simple and appropriate." Norman N. Rice, FAIA, Chairman, Awards Jury.

This science laboratory and classroom building, the first major addition to the boy's prep school campus designed by the late architect Eiel Saarinen in the 1930's, won for Tarapata MacMahon Paulsen Associates, Inc., of Bloomfield Hills, an "M Award" in the second annual masonry design program sponsored by the Masonry Institute of Michigan in cooperation with the Michigan Society of Architects. (Mason contractor on the project was Delta Masonry Co., of Fraser.)

In all, four architects and their projects were honored by a distinguished panel of Philadelphia area architects who judged the entries. The other three winners will be featured in succeeding issues of this newsletter.

"LITIGATION, ARBITRATION & OTHER ADVENTURES

This is the topic of the Detroit Chapter, AIA, program for Tuesday, March 22, 1977 by John K. Grylls, Esq., J.D., P.E., Hon. Detroit Chapter AIA.

The program will be held at the Engineering Society of Detroit, 100 Farnsworth, Detroit - Reception from 5:30 - 6:30 P.M., Meeting from 6:30 P.M. until 7:30 P.M. followed by discussion.

ADMISSION: Free
Cash Bar and free refreshments.

RESERVATIONS:
Call the Chapter Office at 965-4100 prior to Friday,
March 18.

John Grylls is a multi-hatted attorney in private practice as a member of the law firm of Federlein & Grylls, P.C., headquartered in Troy. He has developed a specialization in construction contract law and has represented owners, architects and contractors. He is also a registered professional engineer, an honorary member of the Detroit Chapter, AIA, and was previously a partner in the architectural firm of Swanson Associates. Additionally, Grylls is a Trustee of Wayne County Community College and is, therefore, able to bring to his practice the highly unique experiences and credentials of attorney, architect, engineer and owner.

RENAISSANCE CENTER
Convention Site

The Detroit Plaza Hotel will be the location of the 62nd MSA Convention, November 2, 3 & 4, 1977.

The Plaza, centerpiece for the glistening Renaissance Center on the Detroit River will be in full swing by then and ready to show off for the MSA.

The exhibit hall in the hotel will be the scene of the daily action and the Detroit committee under the direction of Jim Hackenberger are planning for super social events to punctuate the professional and educational meetings on the program.

Keep the dates clear, November 2, 3 & 4 (Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and we will see you in Detroit.

DESIGN MICHIGAN YEAR

Governor William G. Milliken has designated 1977 as Design Michigan Year.

Design Michigan will have several components including a program of information and assistance to State agencies in visual and written communications, a juried exhibition of excellence in architecture, landscape, interior, industrial and graphic design; a public assembly for members of government, business, labor and private life to study and discuss major issues in design; and several public information resource tools. Watch for more information in the NL.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE 1977
MICHIGAN SOCIETY OF ARCHITECTS

We think some unexpected fallout from our recent review of the registration list is worth mentioning for your amazement.

There are 2802 architects registered in the State of Michigan of this group 1530 are residents of Michigan, the remainder are residents of other states like Rex Allen of California and Gyo Obata of Missouri as well as one man in Norway, one in Sweden and one in France. The ladies we could identify numbered 20; however, it is sometimes difficult to determine by first names or initials, so we welcome corrections.

Our tabulations show we have 60% of the total possible membership now in the eight chapters in Michigan. However, of the remaining 40% our files show some registrants are retired from practice, some are not engaged in architecture as such but are in related fields and maintaining their registration for personal reasons, some have been members and have dropped out and are not good candidates for membership. Applications for re-admission take anywhere from 4 to 6 weeks to process and are costly in terms of staff time and board review by both National AIA and the local chapter.

Currently Michigan is serving as a pilot region for the National AIA Membership Drive under the direction of MSA Vice President Art Nelson of Saginaw.

Art has a chairman in each chapter area responsible for contacting all non-member registered residents architects in his area. They will have supplies of all membership information available from AIA including copies of the "Yellow Pages", and the AIA Journal, and "Why Belong to AIA".

We encourage all members to participate in this membership drive on "an each one reach one" basis. More members mean a stronger voice of the profession in Lansing and in Washington, D.C.; more members mean greater group benefits on insurance and better programming for all chapters. Reach out to that new young registrant near you. It is your society- make the most of it.

HISTORIC PRESERVATION/MICHIGAN '77

A Conference sponsored by the Michigan History Division of the Michigan Dept. of State in cooperation with the Kent County Council for Historic Preservation will be held May 6 and 7, 1977 at the Pantlind Hotel, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Michigan '77 will offer a wide variety of morning and afternoon sessions, many of which highlight programs and issues important to architects involved in preservation. The program is outlined as follows:

"Historic Resource Management - The Implementation of Plans for Historic Commercial and Residential Districts" With: Bonnie Deloof, Broker and Re-developer - Ann Arbor, Paul Bilgen, Architect, Marquette, and Barbara Roelofs, President, Heritage Hill Foundation - Grand Rapids.

"Preservation Technology" With: Richard Frank, FAIA - Ann Arbor, William Thrall, AIA - Grand Rapids and Norman Weiss, Consulting Chemist - Boston.

"Environmental Review" With: John Blosswick, Construction Div., Michigan Dept. of Management & Budget - Lansing, Robert Garvey, Director, Advisory Council on Historic Preservation - Wash., D. C.

"Grants & Other Funding Incentives" With: Steven Newman, Chief, Grants Adm., Office of Archaeology & Historic Preservation, National Park Service - Wash. D. C. and Priscilla Upjohn, President, Save the Water Tower Comm. - Kalamazoo and Linda DeJong, Exec.Dir., Heritage Hill Foundation Grand Rapids. Plus other speakers and topics.

For more information contact: The Michigan History Division, Michigan Dept. of State, Lansing, MI 48918 or call (517) 373-0510.

U OF D CO-OP

Stanley Fleischaker, is working as a volunteer for the U of D architectural school as coordinator for the architectural co-op program.

If you can be of assistance please call Stan at (313) 927-1532. This is a worthwhile program and is beneficial to the entire profession.

MSA/AIA Continuing Education March 15

The Michigan Society of Architects and the American Institute of Architects will present a continuing education program on Financial Analysis of Real Estate Projects on March 15 at the Metro. Hilton Airport Hotel.

The basic concept of the lab is to train architects to become competent in understanding and evaluating the economic performance of the private design commissions they undertake. At the conclusion of the lab, the attendees will be able to prepare basic real estate analysis and develop projects pro formas. In addition, much time will be spent on the marketing, costing and delivery of this expansion of professional services.

A textbook will be provided which is similar in format to Compensation Management Guidelines for Architectural Services.

The lab requires no previous extensive real estate knowledge, no substantial accounting foundation, no higher mathematics, and no legal background as prerequisites. Each attendee should bring a calculator (preferably with a memory), lined paper (punched for a three-ring binder), pencils and erasers.

The program will begin promptly at 8:30 A.M. and last until 4:00 P.M. The instructor is Thomas Selck, AIA, President of The Selck-Minnerly Group, Inc., Pittsburg.

Watch for your National Continuing Education mailer for details and reservation form. Including the fee for the one-day seminar.

BUILDING OWNERS SEMINAR PLANNED

The Michigan Chapter of Producers' Council will hold a seminar for building owners/managers on March 21, 1977, in the Michigan Inn, Southfield, Michigan.

In attendance will be building owners/developers/managers. School officials, architects, engineers, and others interested in greater efficiency and economy as they relate to better building operation.

The program will be directed towards the remodeling/renovation markets as well as the design and/or the construction of new buildings. The purpose of this seminar is to provide good practical information and new design ideas to the owner, particularly as applied to products and equipment...in energy conservation, life cycle consideration, and interior space planning.

Energy conservation methods will exploit better building design and products that endure greater efficiencies, economics... while complying with new laws, codes, and regulations.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Bob Denlinger, Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., at (313) 967-1300.

REPORT ON CONTINUING EDUCATION

Across the country there is a movement toward mandatory continuing education for the re-certification of professionals. Minnesota has permissive legislation now, Iowa has almost passed this into effect but it has failed by a slim margin and Wisconsin is in the process of implementation.

The AIA has a national continuing education committee and for the past several years mandatory continuing education has been a hot topic for the group. Carl Pirscher and Joe Fleshner of Detroit are on the committee and will report from time to time.

The MSA committee on continuing education under the chairmanship of Gene Terrill of Flint is researching the possibility of implementation of a CE program for the state through one of our State University facilities. The costs of development of this program would be considerable and the commitment must be made in cash as well as man hours. These continuing education programs would be open to anyone interested and would be run by the university and the credits recorded by the university. A transcript would be available upon request.

The theory of the CE unit is recording 1 CEU for each 10 contact hours. 18 CEU in a period of three years would be required for re-certification and these units would be from a range of subjects not just one area of the profession. Reciprocity for the CEU and re-certification is a yet unidentified area.

Michigan has not had any legislation proposed for mandatory continuing education for the re-certification of professionals but it may come. The MSA will be prepared with a plan to serve the members in the event it becomes law.

Your comments are invited, please call Ann Stacy (313) 965-4100.

SOLAR ENERGY CONFERENCE

The first International solar/energy conference and exhibit will be held in Palm Springs, California, April 30-May 4.

This five-day event, the Helioscience Institute, is expected to bring together nearly 1,000 prominent energy scientists, educators and technologists from throughout the world as well as government officials involved in the development of energy policy and the application of alternate energy sources.

The original concept of the Helioscience Institute (SEDI), a non-profit foundation established by the Palm Springs Chamber of Commerce was to promote the research, development and application of solar-related energy.

Jointly assisting SEDI with this project are: The Pollution Control Research Institute, the Southern California Solar Energy Association and Northrop Univ, which is serving as a coordinating sponsor.

The Helioscience Institute will include a three-day technical conference and a four-day public exhibit.

The conference will consist of a series of workshops, panel discussions and the presentation of significant technical papers, conducted by an international groups of energy experts.

The objective of the conference will be the production of a "White Paper" assessing the existing and near-term alternate energy technologies for use by federal, state and local governments in the formulation of a national energy policy.

A solar/energy exhibit will be held from April 30-May 2 and will feature special displays of products utilizing the latest solar, geothermal and wind energy technology.

Advance conference registration is $60 per person and will be held at the Palm Springs Riviera Hotel. Admission is free to the exhibits located in the desert city's Pavilion.

For more information, write Helioscience Institute, Northrop University, 1155 W. Arbor Vitae St., Inglewood, CA 90306, or call (213) 776-3410 or 641-3470.

1977 BUILDING CONSTRUCTION COST DATA

"Building Construction Cost Data" is the Building Construction Industry's primary reference manual for unit prices. The new 1977 edition has been enlarged, and now this extremely useful handbook has over 18,000 prices. Call MSA Headquarters for your copy (313) 965-4100 - the price is $24.95 plus tax and handling.

CAN WE OVERCOME PAYMENT PROBLEMS?

Ask anyone in construction to talk about his most pressing problems and he is sure to bring up delays in receiving payment for work performed by his company. He will likely go on to tell you that it has been a nagging problem over the years and, in fact, has been growing more serious.

The problem involves all concerned in the building process -- owner, architect/engineer, general contractor and subcontractor. Each party is affected and each has a point of view as to the causes and possible solutions.

The luncheon program on March 22 at the Engineering Society of Detroit will feature a panel discussion directed at taking this topic head-on. The panel will be composed of an owner, architect/engineer, general contractor and subcontractor. You will hear the problem defined and aired from each side along with positive thinking on solutions.

Panel members are: Eugene DiLaura, AIA (Past MSA President), Vice President, SH&G Associates, Keith Bennett, Resident Comptroller, General Motors Corp., E.

"Joe" Forte, President, G. Forte Co., and Robert Spiegel, President, Palmer-Smith, Inc. with Panel Moderator Charles Merwin, President, Darin & Armstrong, Inc.

This March 22nd program will be held at the ESD and will begin at 11:30 A.M. with cocktails. For tickets contact ESD: (313) 832-5400.

COURT LIMITS MINNESOTA STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

The Minnesota Supreme Court recently ruled that the state's statute of limitations does not cover the relationship between architects and owners, but only third party suits. In other words, owners may sue contractors and architects for an unlimited number of years as long as they initiate legal action six years from discovery of defect. The constitutionality of the statute was not addressed in the court's decision on the Caledonia Hospital case.

According to the Minnesota Society of Architects, most attorneys associated with the case have agreed that the decision of the Court has essentially negated one of the original purposes of the law. The possibility of a rehearing is being carefully re-studied by the legal counsel by those involved, but it is unlikely to take place. Other legal and legislative options will be carefully studied.

An amicus brief was filed in the Caledonia Hospital Case by fourteen construction industry organizations. The Minnesota Supreme Court based its decision on an earlier case rather than the issues presented in the amicus brief.

A copy of the Minnesota decision and additional background information on statutes of limitations for design professionals is available through Elizabeth Chalmers at the AIA Headquarters.

PROFESSIONAL LIABILITY INSURANCE

The AIA and the National Society of Professional Engineers jointly commend the national professional liability insurance program administered by the Victor O. Schinnerer Company of Washington, D. C., and insured by the Continental Casualty Company of Chicago.

As part of their ongoing concern for the education of the architectural and engineering profession on liability insurance matters and loss prevention, the administrators of the program have sponsored a series of seminars in strategic locations around the country since 1958.

Seminars in the coming six months will be held in Houston on March 17, St. Louis on March 18, and Boston on May 6.

For more information on the seminars, write Paul Genecki, Director of the Office for Professional Liability, V.O. Schinnerer & Co., Inc., 5028 Wisconsin Ave., N.W., Washington, D. C. 20016.
