MSA REPORT

By James Shane, AIA
President

Somewhere in the stack of papers on the corner of my desk was a flyer touting a seminar that promised to "... make meetings more productive." This may have been tossed out by now, but I held on to it for quite a while, assuming that I could use a bit of help in handling the increased slate of meetings I was anticipating as MSA president. The meetings have materialized, and some, perhaps, could be more fruitful, but in general, I am finding that our meetings produce significant results. The key is not in some "How To Do It Course," but is found in a group of interested, sincere individuals meeting and working towards a common goal.

Last week, I attended, on successive days, meetings of two of the most important committees we are dealing with this year. The JALC (Joint Architects & Engineers Legislative Committee) — four architects and four engineers, plus MSA's Rae Dumke and CEC's Steve Wagner, met Monday afternoon in Plymouth to begin the process of developing a lobbying presence and program in Lansing. The group is off to an impressive start, and I will discuss it more fully in a future Bulletin.

However, it was Tuesday's meeting of the Beaubien House Fund Raising Committee that provided the stimulus for this column. Needless to say, this committee, under Jay Pettitt's leadership, has responded to a major challenge, and I am grateful for the dedication and interest of this group. Much has been accomplished — and much remains, if we are to achieve our goals for the Beaubien House. The campaign does need your financial support, but this is not a plea for money. That task belongs to the committee. Rather, I want to talk about the Beaubien House as a symbol.

When completed, the Beaubien House will provide an efficient and comfortable space for staff and programs, and will demonstrate to Michigan residents and visitors the architectural profession's real commitment to the urban causes we espouse — restoration, reuse, preservation, renewal. But the Beaubien House symbolizes more than this. A living example of Historical Michigan Architecture, it is a product of the designer, builder, craftsmen and supplier of the middle 1800's. One hundred and thirty years later the new Beaubien House is not only the image of our architectural past and a "signature" of the architectural profession in this state but it is a continuing demonstration of the cooperation and interaction between architect, contractor, supplier and craftsman, and it will be tangible evidence of the commitment and interest of all members of the building team.

Earlier I mentioned committees and productivity. The Beaubien House Fund Raising Committee is an active, interested group, and I am pleased with their groundwork and proud of their achievements to date. Without slighting the MSA members who have provided yeoman service in the campaign, recognition should be given to the other construction professionals — the contractors, materials suppliers and other industry members — who are working on behalf of the Beaubien House.

I hope, that as we move toward the successful completion of the funding campaign and the completion of the restoration project, we recognize that together, we can craft a symbol that will truly be a tribute to the total building community in the state of Michigan.

DETROIT CHAPTER PRESIDENT'S REPORT

By Roger W. Boe, AIA

Third Thursdays will again be part of the Detroit Chapter's Program for 1986. Each month, except July and August, Third Thursdays will present guests and subjects of professional interest and provide an opportunity for interaction and exchange with other Chapter members.

The February 20th program will be a joint meeting with the Society for Marketing Professional Services (SMPS) at the Novi Hilton on the "Psychology of Selling." The program will run from 2-4:00 p.m. with hors d'oeuvres and cash bar immediately following the program. The fee is $45 for the first person from each firm and $35 for each additional person.

On March 20th, James Shane, AIA, president of the MSA will be our guest to discuss the concerns of the Detroit Chapter and the plans and directions for the MSA for 1986.

On April 17th, a joint program is being planned with LIT on the Statue of Liberty presented by Joe Neussendorfer. New Fellows will be honored on May 15th. Fall programs are being finalized. Watch the Monthly Bulletin or your mail for details.

Except for the joint SMPS program in February, Third Thursdays programs will be held at the Beaubien House from 5-7 p.m. Presentations by invited guests will generally be at 5:30.

Third Thursdays will be an important part of the Chapter's professional emphasis for 1986. Your attendance is invited and encouraged. With your support, we can have a successful and rewarding year.

LIABILITY PREVENTION & PROTECTION

One in three design professionals gets sued each year according to Burton W. Thomas, AIA. To counter this trend AIA National has developed a course tailored to help design professionals reduce liability claims and develop alternative means of liability prevention, and it is coming to Detroit on February 28th.

It is a day-long workshop featuring Charles R. Heuer, AIA. Heuer is a registered architect, an attorney and an arbitrator. Besides having his own practice, working for others as attorney and architect, he was also director of the documents/graphic standards division of the AIA.

Participants will be grouped according to the size of the firms they represent and the concerns they bring to the workshop.

A primary source of claims against architects is the contracts negotiated with clients. The workshop will show how to prevent claims growing out of such problem areas as cost estimates, promises of perfection, contract document ownership, payment clauses and certifications.

Surprisingly, another major cause of claims has to do with how and when a client is billed. Participants will learn to structure their billing to assure prompt payment.

The third source of claims comes from contractors who can begin their claims process at the time their contract is negotiated. Attendees will learn what to look for at the beginning of negotiations to prevent claims from arising later. The workshop will also present protection alternatives.

It is an 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. session and will be held at the Sheraton Airport Inn at Detroit Metro Airport. The cost will be $235 for members and $265 for non members. Contact the AIA Professional Development Program at 202-626-7357 to reserve a place.

HEALTH FACILITIES PLANNING SEMINAR COMING

The Nineteenth Annual Health Facilities Planning Seminar is set for March 6-7th in Grand Rapids. The Michigan Department of Public Health and the MSA have once again teamed up to provide architects, engineers and hospital administrators with the latest information to assist them in planning, designing and constructing health facilities.

Nine different speakers from all parts of the country who represent several points of view will be on hand. There are sessions on strategic planning for small hospitals, large hospitals and psychiatric units. Carleton Rider, administrator for the Mayo Clinic, will discuss health facilities on a national scale.

The Department of Public Health will present the current direction of the department including recent agency changes. Trends and changes in the Certificate of Need process will be reported. The Friday morning session will concentrate on energy and environmental quality.

Bill Graheek, AIA, Samuel Popkin, FAIA, And Robert Tower, AIA, have represented the MSA on the joint seminar committee and have been working with the Department of Public Health for almost a year pulling the seminar together.

The Grand Rapids Marriott Inn at 5700 28th Street, S.E. is the site. The registration fee is $115 for each person attending and this includes lunch for both days. Lodging arrangements should be made by the individuals attending. Make checks payable to the MSA and send them to the Beaubien House.

ASSOCIATE NEWS

By Chris Gribbs

DC Associate Director

Looking back at the quality of last year's associate activities, I want to be sure everyone has the opportunity to participate in 1986. The Steering Committee has conjured up another incredible list of educational, informative, adventurous and just plain fun events.

For our third year we are again offering the very popular NCARB Exam Seminars. The complete course by local professionals is designed to help you pass the registration exam with the greatest confidence (and it's cheap!)

Building tours, office tours, a city excursion, riverfront bike tour, picnics and other exciting events continued on a regular basis. If you have not received your calendar, drop me a line at 28425 W. 8 Mile Rd., Livonia 48152.

THE WRIGHT HAND

Ann Arbor will be a banquet for Wrightophiles from April 13-15th. The U of M College of Architecture and Urban Planning and Domino's Pizza are sponsoring a conference that will focus on the problem of integrating Frank Lloyd Wright's decorative work into contemporary public buildings and on the meaning of his work for the architecture profession today.

Presenters at the conference have world wide reputations as Wright scholars. Bruno Zevi from Rome will present the keynote address, "Frank Lloyd Wright and Contemporary Architecture." Others on the program include: David Hanks ("The Furniture of FLW"), Timothy Rub ("The Leaded Glass of FLW"), Wilbur Hasbrouck ("The Problem of the Dana House"), R. Craig Miller ("The Installation of a Complete FLW Interior"), and Edgar Tafel ("The Frank Lloyd Wright I Knew").

The conference also features a panel discussion and a bus tour of area Wright houses including "Snowflake" and the Affleck House. Sessions will be held at the new world headquarters of Domino's Pizza, Domino Farms, designed by Gunnar Birkerts Associates and at the central campus of the University of Michigan.

For further information and registration material, contact the Department of Conferences & Institutes, 200 Hill Street, Ann Arbor, 48104, phone 313-764-5304.

1986 FILING DEADLINES

The Department of Licensing and Regulation has announced the filing deadline for State Board Applications and tentative dates for State Board Examinations to be administered for architects. Original and supplemental applications are due March 1, 1986. The exam date has been tentatively set for June 16-19, 1986.

Architects and professional engineers examinations will be administered by a private contractor. In addition to filing an original application and fee or a supplemental application with the State Board, applicants will be required to file a request for examination administration and fee with the contractor. All requests and fees for re-examination must be filed with the contractor by writing to: Local Government Research Corporation, 1315 South Allen Street, State College, PA 16801 or call 1-800-847-7171.

All applicants are advised that application filing deadlines WILL NOT be extended. Applications MUST be received by the filing deadline to be considered for examination eligibility.

Applications may be obtained by contacting the office of the Boards, P.O. Box 30018, 611 West Ottawa, Lansing 48909. Phone 517-373-3880.

DAVID MACAULAY IN DETROIT

David Macaulay, whose books on architectural themes have been popular with both architects and the general public, will be coming to the Wayne State Campus and to the Detroit Institute of Arts for an afternoon and evening program on Sunday, April 6th.

The event will include the opening of an exhibition of the Macaulay drawings, a continuous showing of the film Castle, a reception for the artist, a sitdown dinner at the DIA and a public lecture. There is a $20 charge for the dinner but the other attractions are free. The Macaulay's appearance is cosponsored by the Detroit Chapter-AIA. For further information, contact Norma Goldman of the Department of Greek and Latin at Wayne State University, 313-577-3032. The event is being funded in part by the Michigan Council for the Humanities.

Macaulay was born in England. He came to the United States as a young boy and pursued his interest in drawing and art at the Rhode Island School of Design, where he received his degree in architecture.

After doing free-lance illustrations and graphic work, and traveling extensively in Europe, he wrote his first book, Cathedral which was published in 1973.

Superb design, magnificent illustration, and clearly presented information are what distinguish all of his books. Castle has already been made into a film and broadcast on public television. Pyramid is being filmed now in Egypt and Roman City will also be filmed. The Architects Bookstore in the Beaubien House has most of his books, including his latest, The Mill for under fifteen dollars.

CAPITAL OUTLAY BUDGET

A $323.5 million capital outlay budget was signed by the Governor without any line item vetoes of any projects. According to Gongwer News Service, he had been assured by all the university presidents that the projects were top priorities and that they would meet their needs for new buildings and that the state would not be asked for more funds for the structures.

The bill included about $40 million for projects at 14 colleges, including a science building at Central and $22 million for special maintenance projects, remodeling and additions. Community colleges are to receive $5.8 million.

The capital outlay budget is 54.2% larger than last year and includes $215.5 million in general funds.

Prison buildings ($154 million) represent the largest share of the budget.

PRISON PROJECT SURVEY

The AIA in Washington is calling on all architects who have designed correctional facilities built between 1978 and 1985 to complete an important survey so that they can be listed in the 1986 Directory of Corrections Construction.

The directory, designed to assist state and local officials planning new correctional facilities, will identify noteworthy justice projects and their architects and will exchange information on how to build new jails and prisons. It will be distributed next year to local government officials across the nation.

Architects who participate in the survey will be included in an online data base operated by the Justice Department and may be selected to contribute case studies on justice facilities to "Construction Bulletin," a new Justice publication series.

Project survey forms can be obtained from Timothy Mathews at the National Criminal Justice Reference Service, 800-851-3420.

CE EXPO 86

CE Expo 86 is the second annual conference and exposition put on by the American Consulting Engineers Council in Chicago for design professionals of all disciplines. It will be held on March 18-20th at the Hyatt Regency-Chicago.

They have a full program planned and most of the seminars are appropriate for architects as well as engineers. There is a session called "Managing A Project's Profitability" that will provide designers with the tools and techniques to control and monitor the budget of a project. Another, "The Critical Path to Corporate Continuity," promises to provide the skills necessary to keep a firm going on in to eternity. CADD systems, professional liability and marketing are also covered.

It is a great excuse to go to Chicago. For more information or to register by phone call 800-257-8290.

ALLIED ARTS — 1986

Planning will begin shortly for the Detroit Chapter Allied Arts Festival. If you attended the 1985 Festival, you toured the Stroh River Place complex, spoke with talented artists in their studios and visited Chene Park for music and dance, all on a gorgeous Saturday afternoon.

This year's Festival goal is similar — to bring design professionals, the arts community and the public together to celebrate the importance of art as an essential element of daily life. Committee members will visit potential locations, talk to interesting personalities and plan the most distinctive event the Detroit Chapter sponsors. YOU ARE INVITED TO PARTICIPATE!

Call Jerry Shea, FAIA, at 476-6620 if you have any ideas or for details if you would be interested in attending the next meeting of the committee.

If you can't make the committee meeting, then mark September 13 on your calendar as the date for the 1986 Allied Arts Festival.

THE AMERICAN ARCHITECT

"The American Architect" is the title of AIA's National Convention in San Antonio, Texas, June 8-11. The convention will take a hard look at tough problems and serious issues according to John Busby, FAIA, president of the AIA in 1986.

In the keynote theme program, "The American Architect: Setting New Priorities," Spiro Kostof, architectural history professor at the University of California, and Robert Stern, FAIA, award winning New York City architect, will discuss the opportunities that public TV offers the profession to attract the eyes and ears of the public. They both served as hosts of two national public television series on American Architecture.

San Antonio mayor Henry Cisneros will lead the second theme program, "The American Architecture: Taking Responsibility." San Antonio will provide the textbook example of how a community based coalition of architects, bankers, business, real estate interests, preservationists, citizens and public officials can create a market for sensitive and responsible development.

The third program, "The American Architect: Confronting Risk" will spotlight one of the most critical challenges facing architects, professional liability.

The American Architect" is the convention's fourth theme program and will feature William Hammond who has been associated with General Electric's applied creative thinking program for Fortune 500 corporate managers.

Summing things up will be Susan Stamberg, known to over nine million listeners as the voice of "All Things Considered". She will challenge architects to act forcefully and creatively to serve society and to improve the quality of life through design excellence.

The MSA is hoping for a large contingent of Michigan members at this convention. A Michigan sponsored resolution, that was narrowly defeated last year, to place an Associate Director at the national level will be presented again.

Further information can be obtained by contacting Rae Dumke at the Beaubien House, 313-965-4100.

CSI PRODUCT FAIR

The 10th Annual Construction Specification Institute — Metropolitan Detroit Chapter Products Fair will be held on Tuesday, March 18 at the Southfield Pavilion, Ten and a Half Mile Road and Evergreen, from noon to 8:00 p.m.

One hundred exhibitors will be on hand. Parking, admission and beverages are free, lunch is only a dollar. For more information call 313-567-1907.

WANT ADS

FERRIS STATE COLLEGE is seeking qualified applicants for a position of Project Architect. This position is responsible for planning and coordinating facilities expansion and remodeling projects through design development and construction.

Minimum qualifications are a bachelors degree in architecture or architectural engineering, and two years professional experience. Qualified applicants should send letter of application and resume to the Personnel Office, Ferris State College, Big Rapids, MI 49307. The deadline is February 28, 1986. An equal opportunity affirmative action employer.

VOLUNTEER ARCHITECT to do a feasibility study and some preliminary work that can be submitted to foundations for funding. Community Homes Inc., 18551 Riverside Drive, Birmingham, 48009 is a non-profit corporation that operates a foster care home for retarded adults. EDITOR'S NOTE

Due to budget constraints, the MSA "Monthly Bulletin" will only be published eight times in 1986. There will be no issues in March, May, July, and November.

We still want to receive all news — events, honors, changes in firms, promotions, publications and even good clean gossip. Information must be received prior to 10th of the preceding month.
