

MONTHLY BULLETIN

Official Publication of the MICHIGAN SOCIETY OF ARCHITECTS

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

By James Shane, AIA

This is the June issue of the MSA Bulletin and, June, for most of us, means school is out, kids are home, and vacation time is upon us. But it is not vacation time for all those young men and women who have recently graduated from our architectural schools. They generally have three rigorous years of on-the-job training ahead of them before they are even eligible to take the licensing exams, and ultimately, to call themselves ARCHITECT. Nor is school out for all of the licensed architects in practice for they too must continue to maintain and sharpen architectural skills if they are to compete in this increasingly sophisticated and technical environment. What is all of this to do with the June column of the MSA Bulletin? Well it's my way of easing you into today's lead topic!

Recently, the Michigan Registration Board for Architects took action in two areas that affect architectural training and licensing and could have significant impact upon the practicing architect. At the April 2nd meeting, the Board of Architects passed an amendment to board rules adopting the standards of the Intern Architect Development Program (IDP) of the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards (NCARB). To take effect January, 1990, this, essentially, will require all Michigan exam candidates to have completed an IDP Internship program, and submit a NCARB certificate of completion. This obviously impacts upon architectural firms as well as upon intern architects.

At the same meeting, the Registration Board established a committee of two Board members and two MSA representatives to study continuing education for licensed architects and to submit recommendations to the Board.

Let me talk about these individually. First, looking at the IDP internship standards—this will become a part of the rules of the Board subsequent to public hearings and joint legislative committee approval. There will be opportunity for Michigan architects and for other interested parties to offer comment on this proposal. The MSA membership (at last October's meeting in Flint) has supported the IDP requirement and it is important that we all, interns as well as architects, become informed on the standards, procedures and the effect that these will have on training and practice. MSA intends to foster discussion on this issue and to generate input into the rule making process. We have scheduled Rob Rosenfeld, director of internship programs at NCARB, to speak at the Mid-Summer Conference at Mackinac. We will also sponsor a workshop on the IDP at the MSA fall convention in Grand Rapids, October 29-31.

Turning to the second topic—Continuing education for architects is in the early discussion stage. The 1980 Registration Act for Architects, Engineers and Land Surveyors mandated proof of continuing competency as a requirement of licensure (P.A. 299). Recently, the Land Surveyors' Registration Board adopted a rule requiring 45 clock hours of continuing educational activity over the three year license period as a requirement for renewal of licensure as a land surveyor. The surveyor's rule, too, must go through the public hearing and legislative approval process. However, the ground work is laid and similar pressures are at work on the architectural and engineering professions. (Several licensed occupations in Michigan already have a continuing education requirement and the surveyors criteria is not unique).

For architects, the matter is now in committee. A group chaired by registration board member and past MSA president, Bob Greager, with Kay Planck, public Board member, Dick Slocum, past president and Western Michigan Chapter member, and Karl Greimel, Detroit Chapter member and Dean of LIT's School of Architecture, are to report findings and recommendations to the Registration Board for possible rule making action. MSA will maintain close contact and provide ample information to the membership to foster wide input into this process. Continuing education is an important topic and we need to keep informed.

Before I close, I would like to briefly mention one other educational issue, the current concern with the quality and relevancy of professional architectural education. The National AIA has targeted architectural education as a major issue for 1986, with a broad range of goals and activities. A strong objective will be "...to create stronger ties between architectural educator and practitioner." I cannot agree more with the importance of this. As one who has been involved in education for a number of years, I fully recognize that continuing dialogue and cooperation between the educator and the practitioner is essential. Professional education only begins in college, and unless faculty and practitioners recognize and agree on their respective roles in the education and training process, that process cannot be fully effective.

As AIA's programs become more clearly defined at the National level, I hope in the latter half of this year to implement a Michigan program to develop a greater level of practitioner and educator interaction in the total education and training process of the young architect.

But for now school is definitely out! Summer and vacation time are here and I hope most of us can relax a bit. With this in mind, don't forget to schedule Mackinac Island and August 7-8-9 for three days of interaction, education and relaxation at the 43rd Annual MSA Mid-Summer Conference. See you there!

MID-SUMMER SEMINARS OPEN TO ALL

By Carl Roehling
Mid-Summer Conference Chair

Stuart Rose, Ph.D., AIA, will lead two sessions for MSA members, engineers, suppliers and contractors at the 43rd Mid-Summer Conference.

On Friday, "Marketing Roundtable" will be held in a relaxed setting, where you'll be able to pose all of your marketing questions and concerns. Then, through a flowing dialogue, you'll hear answers -- to your questions and to those of your colleagues. And -- you may be drawn a step beyond, to concepts that will keep your marketing successful for the short and long haul.

The Saturday Breakfast will feature "Management Insights" which creates a concise workshop designed to give you new perceptions to increase:

- your personal effectiveness as a manager; and
- your firm's overall effectiveness.

You'll examine a variety of dimensions that impact on both you and your firm...

- developing a sense of 'belonging — commitment
- control — to produce quality decisions quickly
- harmony, to keep turnover down and have people go that "extra" step;
- creativity — to foster it where it's most needed;
- risk taking — to know when and how to take the best risks; and

- "system" — to give you a whole new perspective about your firm, and a guideline for helping you create the kind of firm you'd like to have.

For each dimension, you'll complete a brief, "style" test. Then you'll be introduced to a model that examines that aspect of organizational or managerial behavior. You'll see where you and your firm will fit. And you'll discover how to capitalize on your natural strength — and those of your firm.

DESIGN 86

Michigan architects have been staging conventions for over 70 years but the upcoming Grand Rapids gathering promises to be one of the best. Convention themes have progressed from technology through marketing and managing. This year the profession is coming home to its roots and will tackle the core issue—design.

"Design 86" will feature not one but two architectural superstars. Hugh Newell Jacobsen, FAIA has earned over 80 awards for design excellence, including 5 AIA National Honor Awards. Robert A.M. Stern, FAIA is now a television personality thanks to "Pride of Place," an 8 part series about American architecture that recently aired on PBS. Both are provocative and have challenged the profession to live up to the promise of the 80's.

Environmental design, inside and out, will be covered. William Callaway, ASLA, has some very strong opinions about the role of the landscape architect in the design team. Ken Walker, AIA, was selected for the Interior Design Hall of Fame in 1985. The two of them will reinforce the premise the design excellence requires consideration of the total environment.

Goody, Clancy, and Associates from Boston have proven that a small firm can produce award winning design. They have over 25 of them. Joan Goody, AIA, is a principal of the firm and she will lead one of the workshops.

Speakers, workshops, panels, a Host Chapter Party sponsored by Herman Miller and beautiful Grand Rapids. It is all adding up to be the place to be beginning October 29, 1986.

AUTOGRAPH PARTY

Our own Balthazar Korab has a new book out and he will be at the Beaubien House Book Store on June 4th from 5-7 p.m. for an autograph party. This book, Detroit: The Renaissance City, is a stunner. Korab, with an architect's eye, takes the reader through the city to places that many have visited but few have seen.

This is not just a picture book, although Korab's photos can stand alone, it is filled with lively prose by Elmore Leonard. Leonard is considered by many critics to be one of the best crime fiction authors in America today. Both Leonard and Korab have lived in the Detroit area for many years. Autographed copies of the book will be available at the reception for $32.95. Copies can be shipped UPS, please add $2.50 for shipping and handling.

Archabet, another Korab offering, is still available for $12.95. If you missed his last autograph session for that book we can ship it too.

I.D.P. IN MICHIGAN

By R. E. Fry, AIA
Chair, IDP/MSA Committee

What Is I.D.P.

IDP is a formalized internship training program for graduate architects whose purpose is TO DEVELOP COMPETENT ARCHITECTS. I.D.P. stands for Intern Development Program.

It has four objectives to accomplish its' purpose: (1) provide advice and guidance, (2) identify experience necessary for training,

(3) provide intern with resources to document work experience and (4) provide supplementary education.

Where Is It In Use?

IDP is now required for qualification to take the State Board Examination in the following states: Mississippi (1978), Florida (1982), Arkansas (1982), Louisiana (1983), Oregon (1984), Tennessee (1984), Texas (1984), Alabama (1985), Maine (1985), Vermont (1985), Georgia (1986), Nevada (1986), North Carolina (1987), Rhode Island (1987), Massachusetts (1987), Connecticut (1988), Pennsylvania (1990), and Maryland (1990).

The following states accept candidates who have completed the IDP requirements as being qualified for examination admission: Delaware, New Jersey, Kansas, North Dakota, California, Idaho, Utah, Michigan, West Virginia, Ohio, Montana, Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico, and Washington.

Status of IDP In Michigan Today

IDP as a requirement for examination admission in Michigan was endorsed by the State Licensing Board of Michigan in April, 1986. The MSA Board formally endorsed IDP at its 1985 Fall Convention in Flint. The process of public hearings (minimum of 2) reviews and approvals required before this endorsement becomes part of the registration procedure will take approximately 12 months. What remains is input from all architects (MSA and non-MSA) and architectural firms into the public hearing process to convince the Michigan Legislature that the IDP requirement should become a rule of the Department of Licensing & Regulations.

IDP Needs Your Support

I urge you to support IDP at the Michigan Legislature. The IDP program is the first formalized approach to providing interns with the proper balance of work experiences to develop competent architects.

IDP accomplishes the following: (1) provides a higher pass-rate for exam applicants, (2) provides loyalty from your employees and (3) enhances the appearance of our profession.

IDP information will be available at the MSA Fall Convention in Grand Rapids, October 29-30-31, 1986.

Please call Dick Fry at 313-761-4022 or Art Nelson, IDP State Chair, at 616-769-0461 ext. 5341.

ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR'S REPORT

By David C. Aten
Grand Valley Member

With the Summer rapidly approaching, I wanted to bring the Associate members up-to-date on what has been going on in the areas that affect them.

In the matter of the Associate's petition to place a director on the National Board, we sent in nearly 600 signatures to AIA and the issue will be on the agenda at the National Convention. The National Board has taken a position of "Non-support" on the issue, so a great deal of lobbying will be needed to get the resolution passed. A big vote of thanks goes to Chris Gribbs, Bob Tremonti and Roger Boe for their work on this issue.

The adoption of Mandatory IDP Standards as a requirement for admission to the Architectural Licensing Exam is moving closer to a reality. MSA has passed a resolution supporting the concept and it is now up to the Department of Licensing and Regulation to revise the current registration law. I think the concept will meet some resistance from the owners of large firms and others, but in a couple of years, mandatory IDP will be in place. It might be a good idea to sign up now and avoid the rush. The National IDP Coordinating Committee will be holding a seminar/question-answer session at the MSA Convention in October.

MSA AWARDS

Due to the usual snafu with printing schedules and publication dates, the MSA Honor Awards Committee has extended the registration deadline to June 13th.

The program is open to architectural projects of all classifications including but not limited to: new projects, additions, renovations, historic preservation, extended use, interiors, parks and plazas completed after May 1, 1982. Non-building and non-traditional projects are encouraged.

A registration fee of $75 for each project must be received by June 13th. Complete entry instructions will be sent to each entrant. Entry requirements have been streamlined to encourage a broad range of submissions. The entries are due July 1st.

BUILDING OFFICIALS GUIDE

It took over a year to compile, edit, and print but the "Building Officials' Guide" is a must for anyone who designs, inspects, or constructs buildings in Michigan. It is well worth $12.50. Spearheaded by Ed Vermurlen, the Grand Valley Chapter has prepared a loose leaf binder containing a list of architects by county, and the names and addresses of state and local building, health, plumbing, mechanical, electrical, and elevator inspectors as well as the fire marshal.

Another chapter contains the most recent copy of the registration rules and regulations. For the building inspector, there is a guide to use in the review of the completeness and accuracy of a project.

The Grand Valley Chapter hopes that a copy of the Guide will find its way into the offices of all building officials in the state. It could eliminate some of the frustration in the plan approval process if each jurisdiction adopted the same general requirements for drawings and specifications.

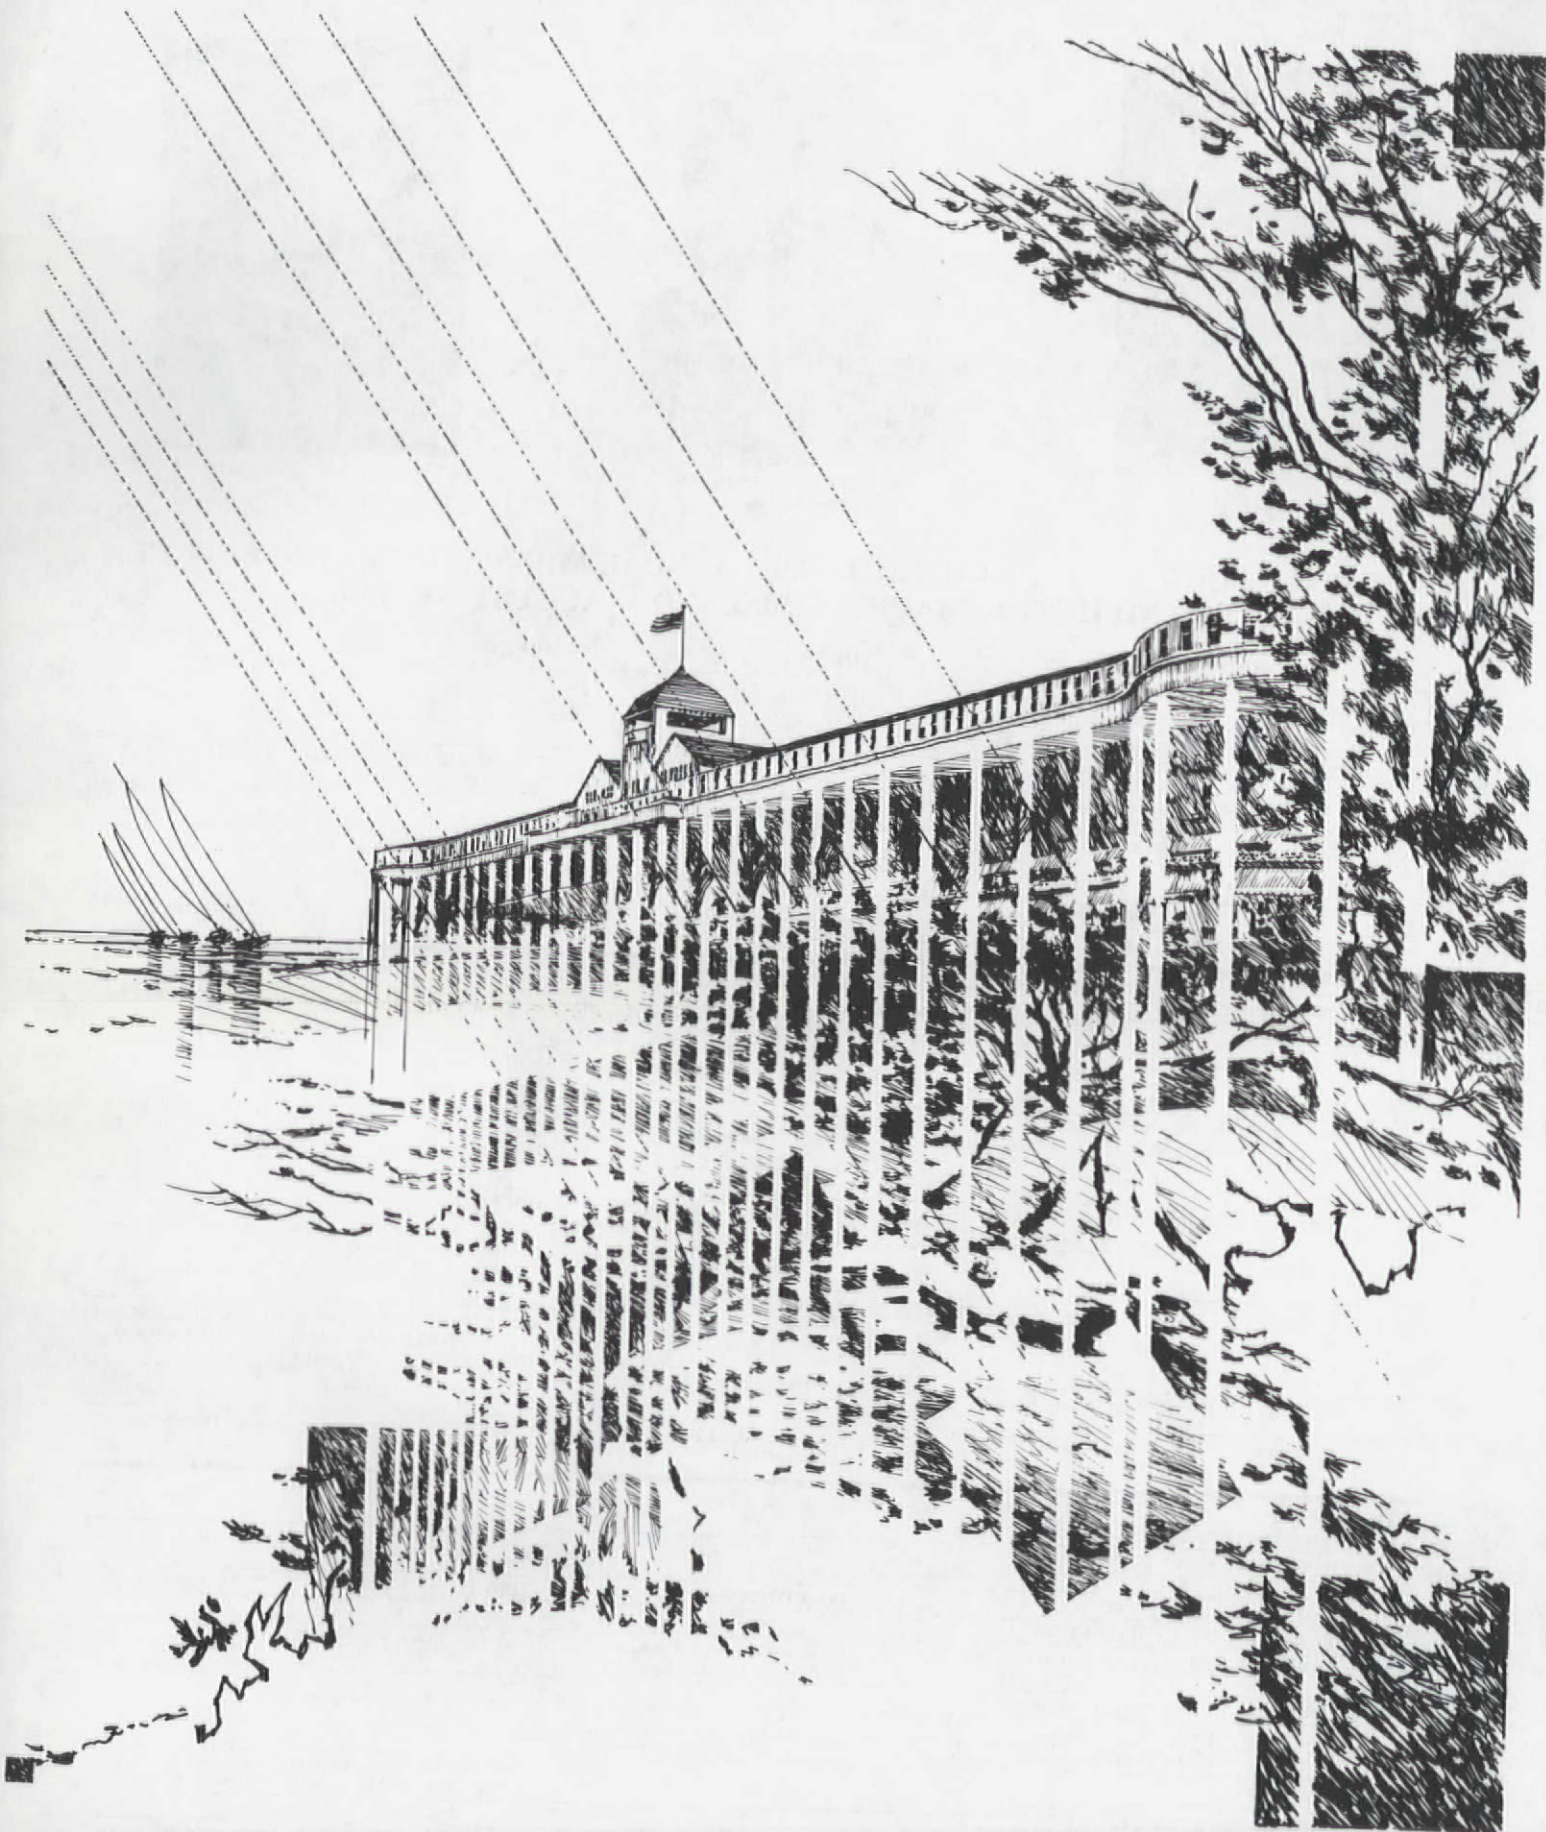

The "Building Officials' Guide" can be ordered from the Architects' Bookstore for $12.50 plus $2.50 for shipping and handling.

MSHDA PRIZE

The Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) launched a national competition for new ideas and products that will cut the cost of residential housing.

The 1986 Housing Cost Reduction Competition will offer up to $27,000 in prize money, including special awards for the best Michigan-based entry and for the best entry from a student enrolled in a Michigan college or technical school. MSHDA is seeking construction methods, design alternatives, and products that result in the greatest cost savings for production of single family or multi-family housing.

Entries will be accepted through September 2, 1986 and winners will be announced later this year. Competition rules and entry forms are available from J. R. Flanigan, Chief Architect, 401 South Washington Square, Lansing 48909. Only one entry will be accepted from each individual or firm.

MID-SUMMER CONFERENCE — MACKINAC ISLAND

Carl Roehling, AIA, Chairman

The Mid-Summer conference is for you. This year's programs will recreate, educate, and invigorate. You'll have the opportunity to enjoy a myriad of sports, partake of fine cuisine and consult with a nationally renowned expert. On behalf of the 1986 Mid-Summer Conference Committee, I invite you to be a featured participant in the 43rd Annual MSA Conference on Mackinac Island.

For the first time, the Conference will include two professional seminars. Stuart Rose, Ph.D., AIA, of Professional Development Resources, Inc. (and a former Michigander) will lead an interactive discussion entitled "Marketing Roundtable." You will have the opportunity to discuss your concerns and have your questions answered in an informal setting. On Saturday, "Management Insights" will introduce you to a behavioral model that can help you capitalize on your natural strengths. The opportunity to consult with Dr. Rose will be beneficial to architects, suppliers and contractors.

Following the MSA Board of Directors meeting, the Conference will officially open Thursday evening with a reception at the Grand Hotel sponsored by the TILE, TERRAZZO AND MARBLE Groups. The "Family Gamble" sponsored by Professional Underwriters will follow dinner.

We are fortunate once again to have Fred and Jamie McClone provide the programs for our younger participants.

Golf, Bocci, Tennis, Biking, Swimming, and FUDGE consumption will be interrupted by the MSA Business Meeting on Friday. At the Spouse Coffee Hour, Phil Porter will present "A View from the Veranda." This historical overview of Mackinac cottage architecture will be followed by a walking tour.

Friday evening will begin with the Annual Michigan Consolidated Gas/Detroit Edison reception during which the Bocci Finals are played. After dinner, the "Beach Blast" will get underway. This "sandals optional" event is sponsored by Beaver Distributors.

Saturday's breakfast will be available at "Management Insights" by Stuart Rose. The remainder of the day is free for shopping and relaxing.

The President's Reception, sponsored by SMACNA and the Mid-Summer Conference Committee, precedes the Grand Finale. You'll have to be at this year's Finale because "YOU ARE THE STAR." Door prizes, entertainment and awards will make this an evening you will never forget. (Black tie is provided.)

There will be an Afterglow in the Presidential Suite following the finale to conclude what we believe will be an unforgettable three days of education and fun. We look forward to seeing you at Mackinac.

1986 DISTINGUISHED BUILDING AWARDS

The Grand Valley Chapter-AIA presented six awards to five different architectural firms as part of its Distinguished Building Awards Program. DeWinter Associates, Inc. received two awards, one for the renovation of a dormant yet significant retail section of Downtown Grand Rapids and another in the "Interiors" category for the Mazda Corporate Headquarters.

In the commercial category, two projects were cited for excellence: The Crystal Flash Convenience Center by Design Plus, P.C. and the Campau Square Plaza Building by WBDC, Inc. While very different in scale, one a strip convenience center and the other a large urban commercial lease office building, the jury was impressed with the massing of both projects.

The Hager Park Reformed Church, winner for KSV/Progressive in the Institutional category, presented a real challenge for the architects. They had to provide diverse functional spaces for a newly organized congregation on an extremely limited budget. "Although essentially a gym with an altar, reverence is not lost," said the independent panel of leaders in the design community who judged this year's entries.

Architect Chas Posthumus converted three existing sixty year old warehouses into offices and manufacturing space for a surgical equipment company and took home an award in the "Interiors" category. The jury called it "an exceptional handling of an adaptive re-use project."

LIABILITY VIDEO

The Professional Engineers in Private Practice, a semi-autonomous division of the National Society of Professional Engineers, has produced a video seminar that is aimed at helping architects and engineers limit their liability exposure. They have sent a complimentary copy to the MSA and it is available on a first come basis to members.

The video is suitable for Chapter programs, firm training seminars or for individual use. It is in a VHS format, divided into three segments and runs for an hour.

The film uses case study analysis to point out liability pitfalls for the design profession.

RAOUL WALLENBERG

Bernard DeVries, FAIA, a classmate of Raoul Wallenberg, is spearheading a drive in Michigan to raise funds for the Raoul Wallenberg Center for the Arts in Florida. Wallenberg, a Swedish citizen, studied architecture at U of M before WWII. In 1944, he went to Budapest as a Swedish diplomat and with money supplied by Roosevelt's War Refugee Board, saved more than 100,000 Hungarian Jews. In 1981 he was declared an honorary U.S. citizen, an honor conferred on only one other individual, Winston Churchill.

DeVries, from the Grand Valley Chapter-AIA, was instrumental in arranging for the transfer of Raoul Wallenberg's honorary membership in AIA to his cousin, Peder Wallenberg. Peder Wallenberg is a European educated architect and a developer in Florida.

At its completion in Florida, the Raoul Wallenberg Center for the Arts will house a 700 seat theatre and an art gallery. The program includes master classes in all phases of the performing arts. Scholarships will be provided to assist gifted students.

DeVries is soliciting contributions from classmates of Raoul from the U of M and others who may be interested in preserving the memory of a humanitarian who also happened to be an architect.

Contact: Bernard J. DeVries, FAIA, at 692 Pineway Drive, Muskegon, Norton Shores, MI 49441 or the Raoul Wallenberg Center for the Arts, 11000 Placida Road, Placida FL 33946.

GRAPEVINE

Wedding bells have been ringing in the architectural community. EDWARD COLBERT, married the elegant Elizabeth in a Colbert designed space in Bloomfield Hills. Another wedding, this one merging architecture and asphalt, occurred when DALE GRAINGER, AIA married Donna Phipps who happens to be in the road building business. All the best to our happy couples . . . The DETROIT CHAPTER HONOR AWARDS were featured in the 'Inland Architect' in an extensive article by Robert Benson. See the March/April issue. . . . Another ALBERT KAHN building, an airport hanger in Lansing, Ill, made the National Register of Historic Places according to the 'Preservation News' . . . Speaking of preservation, EDWARD FRANCIS, FAIA says that the entry way to the Senate in the State Capitol has been restored. It was unveiled on May 20th at the annual meeting of the Friends of the Capitol chaired by Francis . . . GUNNAR BIRKERTS, FAIA was a guest speaker at the University of Texas, Ohio State University and the Columbus Chapter-AIA. He spoke at the Latvian Cultural Center in Kalamazoo and he went to London where he delivered a major paper at the International Conference, 'Glass in the Environment - Directions in Craftsmanship, Architecture and Design'. This one sponsored by the Royal Institute of British Architects. That's not all! A Birkerts designed building at the University of Iowa College of Law was chosen for inclusion in the exhibition 'Modern Redux: Critical Alternatives For Architecture in the Next Decade' at the Grey Art Gallery at New York University. . . . EVIE ASKEN, FAIA, the 1986 Kansas State University Alumni Fellow, was honored by the university with an 'Evening'. The title of her remarks, 'The Architect and the Community,' must have been great considering her experience in Kalamazoo . . . WILLIAM KESSLER, FAIA made the front page of 'Arts In Michigan'. His article describes how the work of several Michigan artists will be integrated into the new State Library, Museum, Archives building that is now under construction in Lansing . . . GINO ROSSETTI, FAIA, was interviewed for the Detroit Free Press Sunday supplement . . . As you can see from the above, Michigan members of the AIA COLLEGE OF FELLOWS are active. The two newest Fellows, ALGIMANTAS BUBLYS and JOSEPH LEINWEBER, were honored at a reception at the Beaubien House. Witnessing the reunion of Joe Leinweber and GUS LANGUIS was an architectural happening . . . JOE NEUSENDORFER is the new director of member services for the Associated General Contractors . . . LOUIS SULLIVAN will be the focus of a one year research effort at U of M thanks to the J. Paul Getty Trust . . . The DETROIT CHAPTER HONOR AWARDS are on exhibition at the Birmingham Public Library . . . The 'M' AWARDS, complete with photos and jury comments, were featured in 'The Story Pole,' a publication of the Masonry Institute . . . There have been some staff changes at the Beaubien House. RUTH MALCOLM, secretary and everything else, has moved on to a job closer to home. CELESTE VAN de VYVER will be taking her place. Don't be offended if your voice isn't immediately recognized when you call. It takes a little time . . . DAVID NOVICK, AIA/FRAIC has been awarded the Order of da Vinci by the Ontario Association of Architects. The Order was established in 1985 by Alfred Roberts of the Zeidler Roberts Partnership to honor those who have made a considerable contribution to architecture in Ontario. The medal was designed by Dora de Predery Hunt, a pre-eminent Canadian sculptor . . . THEODORE DZIURMAN, P.E., received the 1986 MSPE Engineer of the Year Award . . . The CHARNLEY HOUSE in Chicago was purchased by the Skidmore Owing & Merrill Foundation. Another Wright house will be restored. Mr. Wright would have been pleased by the turnout for the Wright Stuff, a major symposium sponsored by Domino's Pizza and U of M. He would have been less pleased by the lack of response to BRUNO ZEVI'S call for a resolution condemning the proposed addition to the Guggenheim Museum . . . LOUIS GOLDSTEIN, AIA, threw a retirement party for all his friends at the Scarab Club. Hundreds came! Lou will spend part time teaching historic preservation (what else) at Tulane but Detroit will still be home . . . MAURICE ALLEN, FAIA, is chair of the jury for the 1986 Architecture for Justice Exhibition sponsored by the AIA . . . WAL SCHOLARSHIPS for $450 will be awarded to Mark Van'tKerKhoff, U of M and Kevin Guenther, MSU School of Landscape Architecture. The scholarships will be given in memory of Margaret Scheffler and Adam Karibian . . .
