SENATOR A.L. MCCAWLEY

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

PAUL N. DOLL, P.E.

PRESIDENT'S LETTER An Open Letter to Registered Architects

All professional men must do what they can to strengthen their profession so that it can better serve the general public. This cannot be done by professional men who withdraw from their professional responsibilities - to each other, to their clients, and to the public. Do you agree?

A man who believes this will maintain his state license and professional association membership in the state where a major portion of his work is performed.

Furthermore, a professional man should report alleged unprofessional conduct to his professional peers. In Missouri this is done through Ethics Committees of the professions. In the case of the architectural profession, such complaints should be sent to our state office where each is recorded with legal counsel, before referral by presidential order to the MARA Ethics Committee.

A complainant must be certain that professional misconduct has been committed. Therefore, every complaint is not automatically referred by the President to the Ethics Committee. Trivial, baseless, and petty matters are ignored.

Members can rest assured that realistic complaints are handled expediently, fairly, and with legal counsel.

MARA is composed of almost 600 architects licensed by the State of Missouri who intend to uphold their profession for the reason stated in the first sentence of this letter.

If you believe we can be of further service to you, please write.

Very truly yours, David W. Pearce, President ABELLA, Narciso E., 207 West Armour, 3rd Floor, Kansas City 11, Mo. ABRAHAMS, Leonard, 8037 Teasdale Avenue, University City 24, Mo. Now Available— Lightweight HAYDITE Single T's

Longer Spans-Greater Loads-Less Weight

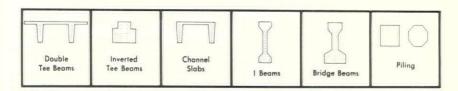

In gymnasiums, supermarkets, bowling alleys or wherever large unobstructed areas are required the new prestressed lightweight Haydite concrete single T unit offers a major advantage in its long span, load carrying characteristics.

The single T floor or roof system is particularly adaptable to providing openings and the installation of mechanical equipment.

Lightweight Haydite single T's are now available on the same basis as our other precast prestressed concrete structural members.

For more information about precast and prestressed concrete construction, call . . .

SANTA FE PATTERN SOCORRO PATTERN

Quarried in New Mexico from recently discovered deposits LAVA is estimated to be thousands of years newer than other deposits and therefor much cleaner and burdened with far less impurities.

Santa Fe pattern, portrayed strikingly above, is richly textured material selected to a generally flat plane moderately convex or concave. This texture came about as each molten layer slid forward over another already cooled. Color is a dark brown ranging to brown to black, thus giving an assortment of pleasant brownish blacks.

Santa Fe Pattern averages 2½" to 4" in wall thicknesses. Also available in the Socorro Pattern, the "chunky" or "lumpy" version which also features the rich brownish blacks.

As seen in the church chancel pictured above, Lava emulates a strong hand-carved effect, still maintaining nature's rugged simplicity. More information on Lava is available from:
