ON THE COVER

The AIA Las Vegas Chapter is fortunate to have a membership of talented architects, associates and allied members. These are members whose personal commitment to elevating the profession and to improving their communities make them fine examples of what architecture is all about. This year, we take the opportunity to recognize one exceptional member each month. In this way we hope to acknowledge the contributions they are making to Chapter and the profession and to inform and inspire others through their example.

IAMAIA LV SPOTLIGHT

BILL SNYDER, FAIA

I AM A MEMBER OF AIA BECAUSE..... George Tate took me to my very first meeting back in 1978 and I have been a member ever since. As a young person it offered professional development as well as camaraderie, as it still does.

Bill has been a member of AIA Las Vegas for thirty-three years and has taken a leadership role as President as well as chairing numerous committees and sponsoring and supporting countless opportunities for his fellow members. For 30 years Bill served as the Owner, CEO and Principal of Tate Snyder Kimsey. Under Bill's leadership and direction the firm grew to one of the leading firms in the Southwest, and their projects recognized with more than 70 design awards at the local, state, regional and national levels. In 2002, Bill was elevated to the American Institute of Architects' College of Fellows. In 2011 Bill retired and formed his new company, William E. Snyder FAIA, LLC, a Certified Service Disabled Veteran Owned Small Business.

Bill has dedicated his professional career to advancing the quality of all levels of educational systems. A struggling student whose own calling was sparked by an encouraging teacher, Bill awakens and nurtures potential. He empowers our nation's youth to have dreams and follow their visions as he himself has done. In 2001 the William E. Snyder Elementary School was named in his honor. Bill has led pro bono design teams and orchestrated fund-raising of educationally unique and inspiring environments such as the McCaw School of Mines, Vanderburg Biosphere Rainforest and the Estes McDoniel Marine Lab. After the 2010 earthquake in Haiti, Bill joined the Schools for the Children of the World in an effort to rebuild their demolished schools. Bill personally made 2 trips to Haiti, and the school that he designed finally broke ground in November 2013. The Cover Photo was taken while Bill was working on the School in Haiti.

In his spare time Bill enjoys various activities. An avid runner, Bill has run 37 marathons and spearheaded a running club at Snyder Elementary School. He also enjoys sketching, mentoring our youth, and spending time with his family.

- 1. What is the most important thing you've learned? How to work with people to inspire the best out of them. Always being nice.
- 2. What is your favorite piece of architecture? Why? The Louvre. Not only because of the great building and artwork in it, but the addition of I.M. Pei's glass pyramid.
- 3. Where will you be in 20 years? In 20 years I will be looking back and watching the success of some of the young people that I hopefully helped inspire.

4. What person, living or dead, would you most like to have dinner with? Mine would definitely have to be a banquet. There are so many, starting with the people that inspired me the most...my parents. Then Hugh Moore, Jr., an architect that hired me right after high school. Major Frederick Pernot would have to be at the table. He was my Army Major that helped me survive through Viet Nam. And definitely George Tate, who taught me the importance giving back to our community. Also, Windom Kimsey, who I have worked with for so many years, and who I will let buy. Now that I have the head table set...

2014 AIA Las Vegas Unbuilt Design Awards

Last Month, JVC Architects was awarded a Citation Award in the Unbuilt Category in our Unbuilt Design Awards for their entry, Prayer Mountain. They were accidentally left off the list of winners published in this newsletter. We apologize for this oversight and proudly acknowledge their achievement here.

Congratulations Jim, Roy and JVC Architects. Well Done!

AIA LAS VEGAS
PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE
MARK RYAN, AIA, ESQ.

June is an exciting month here at AIA Las Vegas! As you know from reading the rest of this outstanding newsletter (yes, I assume you all read every article and announcement in this newsletter), a lot is happening in the Valley.

We are very pleased to offer our June Membership Meeting at the High Roller and the LINQ, both projects many of our members have been involved in. Rides for all!

Also, our much anticipated annual Golf Tournament is on June 9th at a terrific new venue, The Red Rock Country Club Mountain Course (thank you Brett Ewing).

And besides those activities, we have the opportunity to recognize outstanding Architects with:

- Call for entries for the 2014 Excellence in Design Awards
- Call for nominations for the 2014 Distinguished Service Awards
- Nominations and upcoming voting for the 2015 Board of Directors

We may take a bit of a break after June each year for everyone to catch up with the summer season, but I encourage each of you to be involved with each of the activities we have in June. I promise you no long and rambling President's message this month, but instead ask for you to take the time to log into the AIALV website and RSVP for these exciting events.

The success of our chapter does indeed depend on the involvement and input of every one of you valued members.

Happy Summer!

CANDIDATES FOR SERVICE ON THE AIA LAS VEGAS BOARD OF DIRECTORS

It is an honor to be elected for service on the Chapter's Board of Directors. The success of our Chapter depends upon having strong leadership and a working Board that is composed of members who understand the value and strength of the organization and are willing to commit their time and resources to strengthening the Chapter and moving it forward into a successful future.

CANDIDATES FOR PRESIDENT-ELECT (President 2016 - Choole One of the Two)

Brett Ewing, AIA

Currently serving as a Director on the AIA Las Vegas Board, Brett Ewing has been a member of AIA for 31 years and has served in leadership roles on numerous committees. From 2003 – 2005 he served on the AIA Las Vegas Steering Committee for the 2005 National Convention and was directly responsible for generating sponsorships and fundraising to support the AIA's most successful convention to date. He brings a wealth of experience in architectural practice and design and is committed to advancing the practice of architecture in Nevada. He is a Senior Associate, and Director of Resort Development for the Cunningham Group in Las Vegas. The Focus of his Presidency would be to grow the membership and strengthen the presence of the Chapter in the community.

Glenn Nowak, AIA

While the task seems daunting right now, I trust that I could make a great chapter president in 2016. The couple years I have served on the board and the first year of licensure under my belt have provided some impactful insights, and I would welcome the challenge of leading the continued resurgence of AIA Las Vegas. Trusting the strength of the institute lies in the interconnections between associates, long time members, and allied disciplines, I can envision helping their coming together vis-a-vis more community involvement and opportunities for continued synergy. It has been a pleasure to lead efforts in recent years to launch the AIA and UNLV Design Day Camp for high school students and to kick-off the "I'm In LV" – mentoring program for architects and emerging professionals. When I hosted the November Membership Meeting with a panel of esteemed colleagues, my "53 Questions" (some responses still available via Twitter #53Questions) might have provided a glimpse of my perspective on things; if not a shared sense of togetherness across the discipline. If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to call or email... Thankyou for your time and consideration.

CANDIDATE FOR SECRETARY (Unopposed)

Pat Batte', AIA, LEED AP, NCARB, BA University of Florida School Of Architecture.

Patrick has been a member of the Las Vegas AIA Chapter since 2000 and is the incumbent AIA Las Vegas Chapter Secretary. He has over thirty four years of professional experience in both the private and public sectors of architecture. He is currently an Architectural Project Manger with The City of Las Vegas Department of Public Works. Patrick has overseen the design and construction over a wide range of corporate, institutional, industrial, educational, residential, and hospitality projects. Patrick has also championed the "City of Las Vegas Green Building Program", by developing sustainable architecture through the planning and construction of over two megawatts of City controlled photovoltaic electricity production plants. He has accomplished citywide building energy retrofits, LED parking garages and streetlight conversions, and a recent City of Las Vegas Water Resource Audit. Patrick is also an international keynote speaker and webinar panelist regarding LED Street Lighting technology. Patrick's work with local Las Vegas firms has earned numerous awards, among them the APWA (American Public Works Association) Project of the year award, and various publications. Philosophically, Patrick believes in the principle that architecture is responsible for providing creativity and value within its product.

CANDIDATE FOR ALLIED DIRECTOR (Unopposed)

Rich Gesteland

My name is Rich Gesteland. I'm honored to return as a member and to be nominated to the board of the AIA Las Vegas. In the ten years since I moved to Las Vegas, I have been very actively involved with our city's commercial and hospitality architectural and design community, both professionally and personally. I came to Vegas with Hufcorin 2005 and transitioned into my own business representing world class lines like Cambridge Architectural, Birdair, Arktura, Formica and others. I am currently Director, Western Region for Electric Mirror.

I have also been involved with NEWH, the hospitality networking organization that is host of the annual HOSPY Awards and whose mission is to provide scholarships to distinguished students of financial need in the hospitality industry, including students of architecture. As president of NEWH Las Vegas, my mission was to engage a community devastated by the recession and try to help bring us together. I also worked with David Baird to launch a hospitality graduate fellowship for outstanding students of architecture at UNLV. That is a program we are still working on and championing. As a member of the AIA board, I would hope to be able to continue engaging our local A&D community at all levels in ways that benefit both AIA and the community at large.

CANDIDATES FOR DIRECTOR (Choose 2 of the 3)

Brett Robillard, AIA

Brett Robillard, AIA is an associate with Gensler. He has lived and worked in various cities across the US and spent over 6 years working in Las Vegas. He has taught at Suffolk University, the Boston Architectural Center and most recently as an adjunct faculty member at UNLV. Brett has been a member of AIA Las Vegas since 2009 and has actively participated in numerous AIA programs and events. In the fall of 2013, he was awarded the AIA Nevada Young Architect award. He lives in Summerlin with his wife Gabrielle and daughter Vivienne.

I am interested in becoming an AIA board member because I believe in the value of our local collaboration. I feel that the AIA can be an important catalyst for raising awareness of critical issues in our city and region, as well as the profession at large. My goal would be to infuse the organization with fresh ideas for fundraising and increasing our presence in the community. I also believe that Las Vegas can have a stronger voice and presence as a leader in innovative design thinking, and that the AIA could help facilitate greater exposure for local firms.

Jerry Vargas, AIA

Thank you for the opportunity to serve on the AIA Las Vegas Board of Directors.

I have lived and worked here in the Valley and have been a member of the American Institute of Architects for over ten years and have been working in the profession for over twenty five years. Joining the AIA to me represented arriving to an organization where the craft of architecture was both respected and honored, but is sometimes not well appreciated by the general public. People have a vague understanding of what it is we do and going forward the AIA will need to do a continued outreach to educate our potential clients. To our fellow architects that are currently non-members, we will have to show that there is value to the American Institute of Architects, other than the permission to use three letters after their name. To our other stakeholders, the AIA will have to reinforce the idea that engaging with and hiring an architect is not and should not be a foreign concept, but a value added to any project. In short, architects have to demonstrate that what we do matters and is necessary for a healthy and functioning society; I wish to serve the AIA Las Vegas Chapter to help us further these goals. I look forward to assisting our local President and our chapter members in being an affective voice for their needs and concerns, especially during these challenging economic times. I therefore humbly ask for your support.

Gary Guy Wilson, AIA

Dr. Gary Guy Wilson, AIA has had the honor of serving on your Las Vegas Chapter Board of Directors for the 2013-2014 term. Architect Wilson has been a member of the chapter since 1970. He served as (then) Vice President followed by President of the Chapter in the early 70's. He was active and instrumental in working with the state legislature while statutes were revised to recognize and include Residential Designers and then Interior Designers into the state licensing process administered by the State Board of Architecture. And, he was instrumental in organizing the first LVAIA Golf Tournament. He has the privilege of been honored with the AIA Nevada Distinguished Service Award for 2013.

Architect Wilson brings wide experience to the Board. And, is proud of the accomplishments of his teams over the years, and, the hand they have had in the growth and development of Las Vegas, having provided Architectural Services on over 4500 projects from Residential to High Rise Hotels and Casinos and the various building types in between. Architect Wilson, is a proud member of the American Institute of Architects, and the Las Vegas Chapter. He works to keep it growing, relevant and evolving. And, he works to keep it moving forward as an important and distinctive contributor to the Art and Architecture of the built environment that is the framework for the Las Vegas community... He said, before being elected to his current term, he believes that he brings a useful "Seasoned Perspective to the Board."

CANDIDATES FOR EMERGING PROFESSIONALS DIRECTOR (Choose 1 of the 2)

Brandon McLaughlin, Assoc. AIA

We can only be as good as our neighbors is the main belief behind the theory of social capital. Our peers build us up, they enrich our work, and they make our professional lives fun and valuable. If we seek to energize the profession, we need to energize all segments. To do this we need to start with the largest cohort and put them on a trajectory to gather and maintain meaningful and powerful momentum to be professional designers for the next fifty-years. My name is Brandon McLaughlin, a candidate to be the Emerging Professionals voice on the AIA Las Vegas Board of Directors for the next two years. I recently received a Master of Architecture degree from Arizona State University in Phoenix, AZ and have relocated to Las Vegas, NV. However, my involvement cannot be snapshot in the local scene only. I have been member to and now lead several committees at the national level for the AIAs in areas of professional development, membership growth and fundraising. To close, I see the role of this position as someone who can connect. Oftentimes as Emerging Professionals, we may not know the answer to questions about IDP, CEU's and the hundred other acronyms just for getting or recently licensed. However, I can certainly connect you with the person that does know with certainty. I like to play the bridge in getting what you need done and what I and my network know: this all makes for a stronger and informed membership now and I can't wait to see what the same group can do in the many years to come!

Jeni Panars, Assoc. AIA

By the time this is printed I will be able to say I am a newly licensed architect, but for now I am counting down the days until the June 11th state board meeting. I have worked at Tate Snyder Kimsey Architects for over 6 years and have been a member of the AIA since 2011. I have become more involved with the AIA each year since I joined and I look forward to the opportunity to mentor and encourage the emerging professionals just as my mentors did for me. I am honored to be nominated and hope that I will be given the chance to encourage the 'almost architects' in our community's pursue licensure and become actively involved in the AIA.

What kind of car should an architect drive? Or again, does it matter? For the sake of discussion let's assume he drives some kind of car. As an important part of the image package one should consider the message sent to clients, colleagues and co-workers, the boss and, finally, himself. Here are some options to consider:

URBAN ASSAULT VEHICLE: Perhaps the best example is a Hummer which started as a civilian version of the military vehicle. Another more refined example is the British Land Rover. These are expensive and reflect an aggressive attitude of power, ready for anything, with a flavor of a sportsman. These impress moneyed clients and intimidate small clients. Contractors think you make too much money.

COOL SPORTS CAR: An Aston Martin Virage is best. Maybe a BMW 7 sedan is as good. They show a lot of flair and daring and, of course, success. Isn't a rich architect successful, capable and smart? Client reactions can vary and the suspicion can be that he is too expensive. Contractors are sure that he makes too much money.

ELEGANT PICKUP TRUCK: Modern pickups can be impressive – especially diesel powered and alternative fuel types. They show a practical attitude, save the earth, and a work ethic. Clients may think the architect is an office version of a Contractor. Contractors like and respect them and want to own one.

BUSINESS ECONOMY CAR: There are lots of versions to consider. But high style is not a part of this package. It shows a concern for the environment – especially the electric units – and a practical approach to transportation and life style. They generally do not evoke envy or distinction and sit un-noticed in the office parking lot. Contractors think the architect is a sissy.

A CLASSIC CAR: Driving a nicely restored classic favorably impresses everyone. A 1965 e-Type 4.2 Jaguar works as well as any. They are expensive to acquire and restore and can be a sometime thing. They show an appreciation for the past and that is also a sometime virtue. Maybe the architect is not modern enough for today's technological world. Contractors think they are rich man's toys.

A JUNKER: Usually not seen by clients and others as a good sign. Another variation is a failed Detroit product like the Plymouth Pacer (remember those?). It's a bad sign when people laugh and point.

THE FAMILY VAN: Shows the driver is fully domesticated. They carry lots of samples and drawings. It's not a style statement but there are lots of them. The child seat is good for holding buckets of submittals and vans carry the whole gang to lunch. Contractors own them but don't drive them to work.

It's hard to choose the best option. Expensive units show success but reflect elitist tendencies. Practical units show limited style sensitivity. Heavy duty units show aggression and power. None are universal winners with everyone. Maybe a bicycle or even a motorcycle is better. They could generate sympathy and are easy to park.
