When people contact AIA Wisconsin looking for an architect, they are given this annual "Handbook" issue of Wisconsin Architect magazine with its directories of AIA Wisconsin members and member-owned firms, information on selecting and working with an architect and a list of AIA contract documents.

Since 1986, AIA Wisconsin also has offered to assist public owners establish a Qualifications-Based Selection (QBS) process. The QBS Wisconsin program, co-sponsored by the American Council of Engineering Companies (ACEC) of Wisconsin, is a public service designed to help potential clients find the most qualified architect or engineer for their projects. QBS benefits facility owners by establishing an objective, fair and competitive selection process based on qualifications and competence.

AIA and ACEC representatives developed a user-friendly "Wisconsin QBS Manual" that provides a step-by-step guide for implementing a qualifications-based selection process. This manual is available online at the AIA Wisconsin (www.aiaaw.org) and QBS Wisconsin (www.qbswi.org) websites.

The innovative QBS Wisconsin program has been emulated by AIA Chapters across the country. Experience has demonstrated that QBS is an efficient and cost effective selection process that benefits both the public facility owner and the profession. Visit www.qbswi.org for additional information on this valuable program.

By Cherie K. Claussen, AIA

Thank you for the honor of serving as the 2005 President of AIA Wisconsin. As a dynamic organization, we're constantly changing to meet your needs. However, like so many other organizations, the perceived value of your membership is in direct proportion to your personal involvement. So, with my apologies to David Letterman, here is my take on the top ten reasons to get more involved in the AIA:

10 Interaction with your peers. Our membership continues to increase, with over two-thirds of the registered architects in Wisconsin members of the AIA, and our retention rate is one of the best in the country. Your local Chapter provides educational opportunities and CES learning unit hours. You never know when you will need to partner with another firm, move to a different city or get a new job. We're here to help each other.

9 Opportunity to attend the AIA Grassroots Legislative & Leadership Conference in Washington, DC, in warm, wonderful February. Leadership training, combined with experiencing the legislative process in action, is guaranteed to help you in your career.

8 Be part of the Wisconsin Architects Foundation. The need for tuition scholarships increases exponentially as the price of college tuition skyrockets. Many of you may have benefited from WAF scholarships and grants. The AIA and the WAF can give you the opportunity to give back to the next generation.

7 Participation in the annual Long-Range Planning Retreat in August. So many great ideas and programs have come from this meeting of the minds – the Emerging Professionals Task Force (EPTF), which has been incredibly effective in fostering mentorship, the Group of Allied Professionals (GAP), which expands our networking opportunities, and a host of others. We need your opinions and suggestions to keep us strong.

6 Check out the new and expanded Web site at www.aiaaw.org. It's user-friendly, with event registrations done on-line in a fraction of the time, listings of all CES programs and so much more. Place orders for paper AIA documents on-line and save 25% as a member. There's even the Wisconsin Architect magazine editorial calendar . . . remember, public awareness about your projects and firm never hurts!

5 Attend the AIA Wisconsin Fall Workshop on October 14. The topic – Designer-Led Design-Build – could prepare you for a whole new way of doing business. Learn how to take control of the design-build process and make it your own.

4 Become a Golden Award recipient or participate in the Architecture Firm Award program. Contrary to urban legend, you don't need to be ancient, have a large body of work or even be "connected" to the powers-that-be. Review the criteria – you may be qualified.

3 Win a Design Award. Be recognized for your exceptional building and excellence in architectural design. But, you need to be a member to enter your projects.

2 Utilize the best organized staff around. Bill, Mary, Brenda, Karen and Tracy are always available for assistance. Legislative issues, magazine production, help in appointments to the various state boards and general help with the business of architecture is their forte.

1 Be a Mentor. Architecture began with a mentor/apprentice tradition. That tradition is, for the most part, gone. Architects could very well be a dying breed. Volunteer in one of the Emerging Professionals programs and keep the "architect" in architecture.

I look forward to hearing from and working with you in the future.

Cherie K. Claussen, AIA
President
AIA Wisconsin

The AIA Wisconsin Board of Directors has established numerous committees of volunteer members to assist in the development of a broad range of programs and services for the benefit of the entire membership and profession. The wide array of AIA Wisconsin committees reflects the varied interests and concerns of the membership.

Your involvement and participation on AIA Wisconsin committees is strongly encouraged. You will benefit from the opportunity to network with other architects from across the state with similar interests. AIA Wisconsin and your fellow members will benefit from the knowledge, skills and expertise you can provide these committees as they shape AIA Wisconsin programs and services.

There also are ample opportunities to get involved with local Chapter committees, task forces and special events. Your participation at the Chapter level can make a big difference. For more information, please contact local Chapter officers in your area.

At the state level, each AIA Wisconsin committee is assigned to one of five commissions: Executive & Administrative, State Programs, Education & Practice, Government Affairs and Component Affairs. Each of these commissions has a "Director Advisor" who is a Director-At-Large on the AIA Wisconsin Board of Directors and who reports on committee activities at regularly scheduled AIA Wisconsin Board meetings.

The following is an outline of the five AIA Wisconsin commissions and their related committees. It contains the mission statement for each committee along with the name and phone number of the committee chairperson. If the work of a particular committee sounds interesting to you, please contact the chairperson for further details on how you can get involved. If you can't find the committee you are looking for, contact one of the director advisors about establishing a new AIA Wisconsin committee.

EXECUTIVE & ADMINISTRATIVE COMMISSION

Director Advisor: Louis Wasserman, AIA, (414) 271-6474

Executive Committee

To exercise general supervision over the affairs of AIA Wisconsin; to assure that all administrative, financial and other matters assigned to officers by the Bylaws and/or delegated to the Executive Committee by the Board of Directors are carried out in an efficient and effective manner; to safeguard and maintain office and other property; to regularly evaluate the job performance of the executive director and other staff; and to serve as the Board of Directors of Wisconsin Architect magazine.

Chairperson: Cherie Claussen, AIA, (414) 278-3301

Editorial Advisory Board

To provide regular advice and counsel to magazine staff and to develop recommendations for the Board of Directors to assist Wisconsin Architect magazine in achieving its established purposes of featuring the work of member architects in a creative format, providing practical informative articles of educational interest, keeping members informed of current activities and programs, and presenting a forum for material suppliers to advertise their products and services.

Chairperson: Michael Bahr, AIA, (414) 410-2975

Wisconsin Architects Foundation

To promote the science and art of planning by advancing the standards of architectural education, training and practice; to provide scholarships to Wisconsin students pursuing degrees in architecture; to provide program grants to student chapters at universities and technical colleges in Wisconsin; and to support programs and activities that increase the public's awareness and appreciation of architecture and architects.

Director Advisor: Kent Calloway, AIA, (608) 232-1277

Convention Committee

To work with Board of Directors, staff and other committees to plan, promote, coordinate and conduct an annual statewide conference on design, practice and technology issues that is attractive to members, allied professionals and material suppliers and that achieves or exceeds financial goals established by budget.

Chairperson: David Ewanowski, AIA, (608) 255-9202

Design Awards Committee

To convene an annual design awards jury for selection of the work of member architects that merits recognition for design excellence; to assist in disseminating the results of this selection to members and public through Wisconsin Architect magazine, the annual Convention and media thereby fostering public awareness of the work of member architects; and to encourage dialogue by the public and among members of the purpose and direction of architectural design in Wisconsin.

Chairpersons: Katherine Schnuck, AIA, (414) 290-3772; Mark Kruser, AIA, (608) 274-2741

Golden Award Committee

To coordinate annual Golden Award program and to screen and rank nominations for submission of recommendation to Board of Directors.

Chairperson: Frank Dropsho, AIA, (608) 238-3426

Firm Award Committee

To develop recommendations for the Architecture Firm Award program, coordinate the awards program and assist in the selection of the jury.

Chairperson: John Horky, AIA, (414) 290-3734

Fall Workshop Committee

To work with Board of Directors and staff to plan, promote and conduct an annual one-day workshop on practice issues of interest to members.

QBS Committee

To create, maintain and improve a resource readily available to public owners and members for the objective, informed, responsive and professionally responsible promotion of Qualifications-Based Selection (QBS) procedures; to monitor QBS program and advise the Board of Directors as to its operations; to establish objectives, recommend policies, approve presentation materials, promote owner and member participation, coordinate with related professional organizations and evaluate program performance.

Chairperson: Michael Gordon, AIA, (608) 274-2741

EDUCATION & PRACTICE COMMISSION

Director Advisor: Henry Kosarzycki, AIA, (262) 548-8615

Dean's Advisory Group

To establish a more formal link and format for increased dialogue between the UWM School of Architecture & Urban Planning and the profession by providing for discussion with the Dean on School-related issues and programs in conjunction with regularly scheduled meetings of the AIA Wisconsin Board of Directors.

Chairperson: Robert Greenstreet, In'l Assoc. AIA, (414) 229-4016

Associates Group

To increase communication and interaction among Associate AIA members, other interns, AIA architect members, architecture students and faculty and to encourage increased participation in AIA programs by Associate AIA members and interns.

Chairpersons: Daniel Sisel, Assoc. AIA, (262) 879-2500; Duane Stegall, Assoc. AIA, (608) 218-6485

ARE Preparatory Program

To develop and coordinate a structured educational program to assist interns in preparing for the Architect Registration Exam (ARE).

Program Director: Thomas Raley, AIA, (608) 232-4301

Historic Resources Committee

To encourage the preservation of Wisconsin historic resources; to promote within the architecture profession and the general public a greater awareness, appreciation and respect for those historic resources; to provide leadership, programs and technical support within the profession on preservation-related issues, serving as a source of information and education.

Chairperson: Ronald Siggelkow, AIA, (608) 229-4444

By Lisa L. Kennedy, AIA

I am deeply honored to receive the Golden Award, but perhaps even more honored by your nomination. The real award is your recognition of my contributions. Thank you so much.

As I was preparing my remarks for this afternoon, I thought a lot about the past Golden Award winners and became quite nervous about what I could possibly say today that would compare with their accomplishments. They have been great designers, award winners, strong business leaders and valuable mentors. Definitely tough acts to follow.

My path to "HERE" has been a little bit unique, but I consider myself fortunate to have experienced this profession from a number of vantage points. I've worked for traditional architectural firms, a civic development corporation, a design-build firm and a furniture dealership. I've owned my own firm and, finally, have ended up over on the owner's side. In addition, I've represented this profession from within the AIA, in the legislative process and through community involvement. All of this experience has made me an expert at nothing, but has definitely given me a well-rounded perspective on the profession.

So as much as I wished that I had a great design presentation to show you today, I don't. I use my creativity in new and unusual ways every day; and, unfortunately, none of it makes for a very interesting visual presentation.

I also wished that I had a list of great awards to talk about, but I don't have that either. I have rewards instead—creating the environments that allow my company to accomplish their goals and also, as an added bonus, some new adventures—including leading disaster recovery efforts following Hurricanes Charley and Jeanne, fire restoration at several properties and fixing holes in buildings courtesy of some people who took the "Drive Thru Window" sign literally.

And finally, I wished that I had great words of wisdom to inspire future generations of architects; but maybe I can just share some hopes that I have for our profession.

I'd like us to get better at looking at the benefits that an architect can bring to the table beyond design. Although that is our strength and the quality that separates us from other professions, I sometimes think that our power as creative thinkers is not maximized and definitely not fully appreciated.

We pride ourselves on our great ability to identify problems and solve them, which in itself is an admirable goal. But I think our reputation suffers as a result of our willingness to be tied so closely to "problems." This came to me when I heard of this comment from an owner—"I didn't know I had problems until I hired an architect." I think we need to better advertise our creative thinking skills, in addition to our design skills.

For example, what about our ability to order chaos? To take a "wish list" program and organize it into a functional, economical and beautiful physical embodiment is truly amazing. If we can organize our inherent leadership skills and communicate the necessity of these skills to our clients and communities, we will have the power to really make a difference.

I'd like us to get better at recognizing opportunities that will elevate our status within our communities. We need to look beyond the plum projects for ways that we can influence the rest of the environment. For every jewel that we create, there is not only a rough that needs attention, but a lot of mundane middle as well.

We've done a good job of showcasing our skills in high design and have also rallied to improve the low end, but have been a little reluctant to address the average everyday realities of the American landscape. If we can put as much effort into the ordinary, we will be able to exert a greater influence on the entire built environment. By demonstrating our design talents in context, we will increase our value to society and, as a result, become recognized leaders in our communities.

And finally, I think we have a duty to be better stewards of the future of the architectural profession. We sometimes forget that the future is with others, not ourselves and, to that end, we need to go the extra mile to support and nurture others to insure the health of the industry. We've come a long way with mentoring, but too often we only think of this as taking

have taught me so much

a student, intern, or young practitioner under our wing. Certainly, we need to continue to promote good practices in the early years, but I think that most of us could use advice at other points in our careers as well. The fellowship that the AIA provides is the perfect platform for opportunities to learn from our colleagues and their experiences. I'd like to encourage all of you to look for ways that you can share your own experiences through roundtables and other informal discussion groups. By developing a stronger network for sharing information, we'll become a stronger and healthier profession.

And since we're talking about the power of support, I am extremely proud to have almost my entire network here with me today. Please allow me a little bit of time to thank some people who are very special to me.

First of all, I'd like to thank the AIA for the opportunities that have been presented to me. And although Bill Babcock has repeatedly informed me that I have "Sucker" tattooed on my forehead, the experiences I've had, the people who have helped me and the friendships that I've sustained have contributed so much to my life. I wouldn't trade any of it.

Thank you to my many mentors who have taught me so much over the years, including the late Wallie Zoller, Noble Rose, AIA, Jim Miller, FAIA, and Bob Greenstreet, Int'l Assoc. AIA.

Thank you to Junior Bridgeman and Paul Thompson for employing me, but mostly for their trust and belief that my abilities can contribute to their business and for their friendship as well.

Thank you to my friends for your support and encouragement and for your comfort on the dark days, especially to my good friend Jeri McClenaghan-Ihde, AIA, who has seen me through so much.

I'd like to thank the late Mark Kimla for his encouragement in launching me on this journey.

Thank you to my entire family for your love, understanding, patience and belief in me. To my mom for allowing me to quit home economics in high school and take drafting instead. And, from my perspective now as a mom, I apologize for everything I said or did from ages 12-18.

To my brother for continually pushing me to see that "pretty good for a girl" wasn't the best I could do and for always believing the best in me.

To my husband first of all for his bravery in walking into this wacky world, but mostly for his love and his promise to me. I can't wait to see where the road leads us from here.

And finally to my girls, Erin and Stef, for sticking with me on this journey of life. Although it wasn't always apparent when I was roaming the country on some mission, I did a lot of this to widen the path for you. My advice to you: Believe in yourselves, believe in miracles, trust your hearts and your dreams will follow.

Thank you.

EDITOR: The 2005 AIA Wisconsin Golden Award was presented at a special Awards Luncheon on May 5 in Madison.

AIA Wisconsin is the statewide component of The American Institute of Architects. With over 1,400 members, AIA Wisconsin represents architects and allied professionals in private practice, business, industry, government and education.

The American Institute of Architects is the voice of the architecture profession dedicated to serving its members, advancing their value and improving the quality of the built environment. The AIA serves architects and their clients by promoting ethical, educational and practice standards for the profession and by advocating excellence in design.

AIA Wisconsin is composed of four local Chapters: Southeast, Southwest, Northeast and Northwest. Each AIA Wisconsin member also is a member of one of these local Chapters.

The accompanying 2005 AIA Wisconsin Membership Directory is divided into three sections corresponding to AIA Wisconsin membership categories as follows:

AIA Members: AIA Architect members and Associate AIA members.

AIA Architect Members: Registered architects who are Architect members of The American Institute of Architects (AIA). Within this membership category, Fellows of The American Institute of Architects are designated by FAIA. Firm principals as well as members who have emeritus status also are indicated in the listings. Firm principals are responsible for higher membership dues. Emeritus members are architects who have been a member of the AIA for 15 successive years and are either 70 years of age or are 60 years of age and fully retired.

Associate AIA Members: Associate AIA members include individuals without architectural registration from a U.S. licensing authority who either are eligible by education and experience and actively working towards licensure as an architect, employed under the supervision of an architect, have a professional degree in architecture, are university faculty involved in architectural research or teaching, or have an architectural license from outside the U.S.

Professional Affiliate Members: Individuals who are not architects, but who may be registered to practice their professions where such requirements exist. The category includes professional engineers, landscape architects, interior designers and other professionals whose work is related to architecture.

Student Affiliate Members: Undergraduate and graduate students attending architectural schools and technical colleges in Wisconsin.

The AIA Wisconsin Membership Directory includes the following information for each member: name, firm name, mailing address, daytime telephone number and local Chapter. The Directory is updated annually through a survey of all members.

If you have any questions, comments or suggestions regarding this Membership Directory, please contact: AIA Wisconsin, 321 S. Hamilton Street, Madison, Wisconsin 53703; (608) 257-8477/1-800-ARCHITECT; info@aiaaw.org.

AIA Wisconsin, the state society of The American Institute of Architects, has recognized ten building projects for excellence in architectural design as part of its 2005 Design Awards program.

The award-winning architecture accentuates artful and innovative design solutions for a diverse range of projects in Wisconsin and abroad. The common thread is that all of the projects are designed by architects who are members of AIA Wisconsin.

A jury of nationally distinguished architects from outside of Wisconsin selected the award-winning projects. Members of the 2005 Design Awards jury were: Anne Gatling Haynes, AIA, New Haven, Connecticut; Tom Kundig, FAIA, Seattle; and Mark Schendel, AIA, Chicago. The co-chairs of AIA Wisconsin's 51st annual Design Awards program are Katherine Schnuck, AIA, Whitefish Bay, and Mark Kruser, AIA, Middleton.

The annual Design Awards program represents the highest recognition given for excellence in architectural design by AIA Wisconsin. Honor Awards recognize overall design excellence. Merit Awards recognize excellence in particular aspects of architectural design. This year's jury also selected projects for Special Recognition.

Located in a dense residential neighborhood in a Swiss village, this project was designed to house the new studio for a sculptor. The atelier, connected to an existing studio, is a sculpture in itself with the architects' design realized through the fabrication of a geometric steel structural system. Its curved spatial form creates a ceiling height necessary to accommodate the sculptor's overhead crane. The atelier's east and west facades are composed of glass with an angel hair laminate that allows natural daylight and also maintains privacy. The interior use of douglas fir wood provides a warm feeling; but, more importantly, this design solution addresses an acoustical requirement for the actual art of sculpting. The exterior is sheathed with zinc titanium panels, creating a simple form that rests next to the existing home. This new atelier serves as the sculptor's studio and as an exhibition space.

Jury Comment

"The project is well considered, refined and elegant. It is one of those projects that we all agreed has a jewel-like quality where every move relies on another move and depends on some internal or external shaping. As a result, it becomes a beautiful, poetic shape."

The new state-of-the-art technical high school is the result of a unique public-private ownership. The facility is designed to be "schools within a school" through innovative subdivisions that create smaller, intimate educational settings for a student body of 1,440. Featuring three Academies – Construction, Manufacturing and Communications – the articulated building provides for direct links between the Academies and Lab-building via bridges through a skylight spine that admits daylight into the center of the deep plan structure. The north end of the spine connects to a two-story building, containing the library, administration and athletic facilities. The engineering and design of the facility make extensive use of green-building principles, including extensive daylighting, energy-efficient heating/cooling systems and recycled building materials.

Jury Comment

"We were impressed with the successful resolution of a large complex in its industrial context and in its internal cultural context of school and shop and a type of gathering space. These are not easy projects to resolve architecturally, and it seems to do that very well. It is a nice project. Bravo!"

This project transforms an ordinary corporate office space into an extraordinary, modern interpretation of a 19th century pub that is situated on the first floor of Miller Brewing Company's headquarters. The innovative interior design displays refined detailing and utilizes non-standard materials, such as mica panels and metal fabric that offer a tactile and memorable alternative to the typical finishes often associated with corporate office spaces. The architect custom-designed much of the furniture. A key element of the program was connecting the meeting space to an existing terrace, which now allows expansive views of the Miller campus of 90 plus buildings. The meeting center also provides an exhibition area for Miller's historical artifacts collections.

Jury Comment

"This is an honors interior. It is beautifully executed and elegantly finished, displaying restrained interiors that work on all levels. It is a very cozy and peaceful space."

Designed to serve as a central hub of social activity, this project includes a beautiful pool house, 5,000 square foot competition swimming pool and a wading pool while thoughtfully integrating the facility into a natural, wooded landscape. To take full advantage of the natural landscape on the 154 acre campus, the architect worked with the client to revise the original master plan to include site and solar orientation for the facility as well as its connection to other campus buildings. The new pool house displays a simple, straightforward design scheme. A wood frame structure and the playful use of colors with stained cedar siding add to the summer camp atmosphere. A distinct feature of the pool is the architect's "uncaged" design, which raised the entire pool onto a level plateau above the sight line for the security fence. This innovative, yet simple, idea creates a feeling of open space and connection to the larger environment.

Jury Comment

"There is a humanness in this project. It is design at its best when you can solve two or three problems and develop two or three poetic ideas while, for the most part, making it in one move. The design is terrific and truly what architecture is about. We applaud how respectful this design is of the environment and its setting."

Forest Hills Fine Arts Center

The design of this community theatre is broken into distinct areas, creating an intimate experience for 200 or a full house of over 1,200, with exceptional sight lines and direct access to the stage for each audience member. Balcony and box fronts are transparent to give a feeling of floating in space. Walls of curved wood panels allow the audience to imagine that they are inside a musical instrument. The Center provides a gathering place for the entire community. Stunning in the use of materials, light and building massing, the facility was completed on a modest construction budget and includes innovative sustainable design features.

Jury Comment

"The challenge of trying to create an intimate space for a large number of seats is very tricky without making it seem like an auditorium. It is still huge, but there are clearly some ideas that make it warm and inviting. The architect was able to create pleasant spaces with a fairly low budget, using modern and contemporary materials."

This project is an affordable housing prototype designed for narrow urban-infill sites. The first built prototype, configured as a duplex, sits on a 30-foot-wide lot in a neighborhood that has experienced three decades of urban decay. Working on a limited budget, the ingenious design consists of a simple bar building made up of three interlocking components: a cedar-clad box for the entry and vertical circulation; a stucco box that was assembled from standardized wall panels and allows for 1,900 square feet of living space; and a concrete veneer wall that peels away from the house and transforms into a free-standing, perforated garden wall. This innovative design demonstrates how a modest, low-budget project can become a confident, new urban constituent.

Jury Comment

"We like this project because of the program. The architect clearly embraced the effort of designing a contemporary building into an existing fabric in a sensitive way. It looks conceived, well-designed and deliberate. It has the future written all over it. This is a terrific little project."

Brady Street Bus Shelter

This project was commissioned by a neighborhood business group with the goal of transforming a series of neglected urban spaces. It is the first completed phase of a larger initiative, the Crossroads Project. The bus shelter serves as a haven for city bus passengers as well as a respite for bicyclists and pedestrians. Representing the gateway to the Crossroads Project, the architect's design reflects an intelligent use of structural elements and detailing that bring a quiet dignity to the moments spent waiting. The bus shelter incorporates unique features, including a concrete platform, stonewalls that are shaped to form benches, large steel sash glass panels to provide a wind block and a butterfly roof that drains rainwater into a concrete basin. As a thoughtful alternative to the typical aluminum variety, this bus shelter is refreshing.

Jury Comment

"This bus shelter is everyone's favorite little project. Clearly a labor of love, it's one of those powerhouse projects that has both macro urban effect and micro architectural detail finishing effects. The shelter is a good example that demonstrates a project does not have to be large to be strong in design and execution."

A former antiques warehouse, this formidable project involved the rehabilitation of a 48,000 square foot structure in Milwaukee's Historical Third Ward. On the surface, the basic program was simple: redevelop this historic structure into a multi-tenant mixed-use building, with retail on the first floor and offices on the upper three floors. The owners wanted the design solution to respect the building's historic character and express the creative bent of their enterprises. Each design decision built upon the strength and drama discovered within this long-neglected warehouse. As a result of the thoughtfully structured layering of interactive and supporting spaces, this building has become an enriching creative presence within the urban context. The jury recognized the project for successful rehabilitation and redevelopment.

Jury Comment

"This is a good example of a project in an existing urban fabric. The design was restrained, but aggressive. The project is very tastefully done. It appears that it can be continually rehabbed based on the infrastructure adaptations, which make it still possible for the building to find its uses. These are important projects for the future."

A tower and spire of Saint Raphael Cathedral has been a Madison landmark since 1885. In order to rehabilitate the steeple, the architects conducted extensive research and presented design solutions focused on the structure, masonry, ornamental metals, roofing, fenestration, clocks and bells, lighting and lightning protection. The owner elected to proceed with complete replacement of the spire structure, ornamental metals and roofing systems as portions of the original structure had failed. The remaining systems were rehabilitated. A design consistent with the original spire was selected for replication. The project was recognized for the detailed investigation involved in the steeple's restoration. Unfortunately, after the jury recognized the project, a fire in March laid waste to much of the historic church; but the restored steeple remains standing.

Jury Comment

"One of the interesting aspects in the documentation for this project is the level of investigation that the architect had to undertake in order to understand the different components and how they would have to be detailed. The steeple may have been one of those unsung heroes that no one really noticed. Now, people must notice it as a new steeple in town. It is an important element to be preserved and restored."

This project was recognized for its place in the landscape. Situated on 185 acres along the shores of Lake Michigan, the 39,000 square foot "green" facility is one of the most environmentally sensitive buildings in the nation. The building preserves the natural sanctuary of the site and educates the public about sustainability and the natural world. The building's energy-efficient design helps create an "energy flywheel" to stay cool in summer and warm in winter. A geothermal heat pump provides supplemental heating and cooling. The building, with its expansive outdoor porches, creates a welcoming place for visitors to gather and view the woods and the lake beyond.

Jury Comment

"The project shows some nice overall massing and references to rural structures, which was immediately attractive. We also felt that the goals of green building technologies were well documented. It was able to carry out these goals in a complete way, including solar, wind, heating, cooling and daylighting. The Nature Center will obviously become a well-loved and well-used building."

AIA Wisconsin congratulates this year's award winners for their significant contributions to the profession and our built environment. Advancing the profession of architecture requires an uncompromising commitment to excellence. The execution of a well-designed building requires the collaboration, inspiration and enthusiastic support of the architect, owner and contractor.

AIA Wisconsin is a 1,500-member professional society representing architects in private practice, business, industry, government and education. It is the voice of the architectural profession dedicated to serving its members, advancing their value and improving the quality of the built environment.

Good design makes a difference. For almost 150 years, members of The American Institute of Architects have worked with each other and their communities to create more valuable, healthy, secure and sustainable buildings and cityscapes. AIA members have access to the right people, knowledge and tools to create better design—and help clients and communities make their visions real.

Professional Affiliate membership is available to individuals not otherwise eligible for membership in The American Institute of Architects. It is a state membership similar to the national AIA individual Allied membership.

Professional Affiliate members receive Wisconsin Architect magazine and the Connection e-newsletter. Wisconsin Architect magazine features projects by AIA Wisconsin members as well as articles on topics of interest to the state's design and construction industry. The annual "Construction Industry Handbook" contains directories of members and member-owned architectural firms. It also is distributed to owners throughout the year. The Connection newsletter keeps members informed about fast-breaking legislative issues, upcoming committee activities and valuable state and local AIA programs.

As the state's only full-service distributor, AIA Wisconsin maintains a complete inventory of the latest AIA contract documents. Professional Affiliate members benefit from a substantial discount on paper documents.

AIA Wisconsin is committed to offering quality continuing education and professional development programs to help members achieve their career goals. The AIA Wisconsin Convention and Fall Workshop are two annual programs that address emerging design and practice issues. The local AIA Chapters also offer programs for members throughout the year. Members benefit from reduced registration fees for these programs.

If you are not already a member, please contact AIA Wisconsin to request a Professional Affiliate Membership Application so you can immediately begin to enjoy the benefits of membership.

SELECTING AN ARCHITECT

Whether you are building your own home or planning a commercial facility, selecting the right architect is important to a successful project. The architect is the one professional who has the education, training, experience and vision to guide you through the entire design and construction process, from helping you define what you want to build to helping you get the most for your construction dollar. Working with other design and construction professionals, an architect can help you achieve a well-designed project that meets your needs and works within your budget and time frame.

Architects analyze your functional needs, long-term goals and budget. Using this analysis, the architect can design a building that meets your current and future needs. When designing a building, an architect seeks to balance several often conflicting elements, including function, aesthetics, economics and technology. And the architect must balance these elements within the context of building codes and zoning regulations.

Wise Investment

Architects are trained to solve problems in creative ways, translating your needs into square feet and three dimensional space. With their broad knowledge of design and construction, architects can show you alternatives and options you might never think of on your own.

Working with an architect is a wise investment because:

- A well-designed project can be built more efficiently and economically. Architects plan your project with you. As your ideas evolve, changes can be made on paper much less expensively than later on when construction is underway. Thorough drawings also make it easier for the contractor to accurately price and build your project.
- The architect can help you select the appropriate materials and systems. An architect can help you choose materials and finishes that are durable as well as beautiful, saving on frequent maintenance and replacement costs. Architects develop the drawings and specifications to help you get bids for construction that are based on your requirements. An architect can design an energy-efficient building to maximize heating from the sun and let in natural light, thus reducing your heating, cooling and electric bills over time.
- The architect can make your life easier. Building is a long process that is often disruptive, particularly if you are living or working in the space under construction. The architect you hire looks out for your interests and tries to find ways to make that process go smoothly. If your project requires engineering or other design services, the architect can coordinate this team of experts so you don't have to. During construction, the architect visits the site to help verify that the project is being built according to approved plans and specifications.
- Good design sells. A well-designed house has a higher resale value. A well-designed store draws customers. A well-designed work environment attracts employees and increases productivity.
- Clarify and refine your building needs. Through a process called programming, the architect examines your requirements, budget and building site and then works with you to define what is to be built and to establish the project's scope.
- Look ahead. Architects are planners who look beyond your immediate requirements to design flexible buildings that will accommodate changing technology and adapt to your changing needs.
- Manage the building project. From conception to move-in, the architect is your project leader. As the central clearinghouse for ideas, schedules and every other facet of the project, the architect manages and coordinates the project elements.
- Maximize your construction dollar. A building designed for maximum energy efficiency can cut your heating and fuel bills. The architect's efficient use of space may reduce the square footage you require. A well designed building not only can reduce initial costs, but also can increase its value.
- Take a broad view. Architects look at the impact the building will have on the people who use it, the surrounding area and the natural environment. The result is the creation of office spaces that make interaction between departments move more smoothly, retail areas that display your products in their best light and prompt customers to buy, and factory and administrative environments that stimulate employee productivity and satisfaction.

Selection

Architecture firms come in a variety of sizes and types. Each firm brings a different combination of skills, expertise, interests and values to its projects. Some firms specialize in one or more project or facility types. Some firms include in-house engineering services or other design disciplines. Other architects introduce these disciplines through appropriate consultants. The right kind of firm for your project will depend on the specific demands of your project.

First-time clients, and even experienced clients facing new situations, often have many questions about architect selection. The following are some of the more common:

- When should I bring the architect into the picture? The best time is as early as possible. Long before plans and specifications are developed, there are many crucial decisions to be made. Architects can help you define the project in terms that provide meaningful guidance for design. Working with a preliminary evaluation of your needs, an architect can help you find a site that presents the best opportunity to construct the kind of building you envision. Other predesign services architects offer include economic feasibility studies, assistance in developing project budgets and schedules, and help in obtaining project financing.
- Should I look at more than one firm? Usually, yes. The exception, of course, arises when you already have a good relationship with an architect and it makes little sense to change.
- How do I find suitable firms to contact? Start building a list of potential architects. Contact other owners who have developed similar facilities that you've admired or that seem especially appropriate. Get recommendations from friends and relatives who have worked with architects. AIA Wisconsin publishes directories of AIA member architects and member-owned firms, and also assists public owners establish a complete qualifications-based selection (QBS) process.
- What information should I request? When contacting firms, describe your project and ask if they are available to take it on. If they are, request literature outlining the firm's qualifications. If the architect is unable to handle your project, ask if they can suggest another firm. The materials you receive from interested firms might include a letter of interest, brochures, fact sheets, photos of past work and biographical material about key personnel. Look beyond the style of the brochure to determine which firms have the right experience and capabilities for your project. At this point, you should be able to narrow your list to the architects you will interview.

- Why are interviews desirable? An interview addresses one issue that can't be covered in brochures and printed materials: the "chemistry" between you and the architect. It also allows you to investigate how each architect will approach the project. Remember, you will be working with the architect for a long time and will want someone with whom you feel comfortable.
- How many firms should I interview? It often is recommended that you interview between three and five firms, enough to see the range of possibilities, but not so many that an already tough decision will be further complicated. Treat each firm fairly, offering, for example, equal time and equal access to your site and existing facilities. Ask to meet the key people who will work on your project.
- What can I realistically expect to learn from an interview? During the interview, ask a lot of questions. You can learn how the team the architect has put together will approach your project. Ask how the architect will gather information, establish priorities and make decisions. Ask what the architect sees as the important issues for the project. Evaluate the firm's interest in your project and its style, personality and approach. If, during the interview, there is something you do not understand, ask the architect for clarification.
- How should I follow up? Tell each firm what you intend to do next and when you plan to make your decision. If you haven't talked with past clients, do so now. Assess both the performance of the firm and the performance of the resulting architecture. Notify the selected firm as soon as possible. Remember, conditions change; the firm may not be able to offer the same project team if you take several weeks or months to decide.
- On what should I base my decision? Personal confidence in the architect is paramount. Then seek an appropriate balance among these factors: technical competence, professional service, cost and design skills. Once you've selected the best firm for your project, you'll need to reach an agreement regarding scope.

Additional Guidance

However the architect selection process is approached, it is worth taking the time to do it well. Here's some additional guidance:

- You are engaging the services of a professional. You will work closely with the architect through the life of the project, and your relationship may extend to future projects. Invest at least the care it takes to select a financial or legal advisor.
- Yours will also be a business relationship. Find out how prospective architects do business, how they work with their clients, how responsive they are to your management and decision styles, and how well their work stacks up against their clients' expectations. The best way to find out is to talk with other owners for whom the firm has provided professional services.
- Ask questions. Tell the architect what you know and what you expect. Ask for an explanation of anything you don't understand. The more on the table at the beginning, the better the chances for a successful project.
- Get it in writing. Once you have selected the architect, you are ready to put in writing the terms of your agreement regarding the scope of work, services, schedule, construction budget and architect's compensation. This written agreement can take many forms. The American Institute of Architects has developed a variety of standard contract forms which are used industry-wide. The AIA Wisconsin office maintains a complete inventory of these AIA contract documents.

Successful Projects

The best building projects are created when the client and architect work together as a team. Both you and your architect can take specific steps to help meet your quality, time and budget goals.

Design and building are group activities. Many people and firms come together to do a project. They may not have worked together before; and they may not work together again. They collaborate to produce a unique building on a specific site. As the project unfolds, hundreds of individual design decisions and commitments are made. Needs and conditions change; and work is modified. A strong and healthy relationship between owner and architect is essential to keep the project on track.

Design and construction projects typically involve several steps or phases. These may include: programming, schematic design, construction documents, bidding or negotiation with contractors and construction. However, on some projects several of these steps may be combined; on others there may be additional phases involved.

The architect's involvement normally does not stop with the preparation of construction documents. Architects also provide construction administration services. These services may include assisting you in hiring the contractor, making site visits, reviewing and approving the contractor's applications for payment and keeping you informed of the project's progress.

Designing a building is exciting and creative. Both the architect and building owner bring something to the relationship that the other needs. As the owner, you have a building goal and the financial resources to realize that goal. The architect brings extensive professional training and experience, creativity and project management skills.

Be open to new ideas. Be candid about how you want the end result to feel and look. It is important that you or someone from your company be very involved with the project, asking questions and providing information to the architect.

Experience tells us that successful projects — those that respond to owner needs and aspirations, that are accomplished within schedule and budget and that contribute to the quality of our communities and our lives — result from clients and architects who form solid professional and business relationships. These relationships are formed early on and are nourished by clear expectations and a willingness of both you and your architect to accept your responsibilities for achieving a successful project. WA

When an architect gets to school early, the students learn more.

The best thing you can teach a student is an enthusiasm for learning. And the place to make that happen is in a well-designed, highly flexible learning environment. The kind you can create by calling an architect early. The right environment supports your mission. It helps you attract and retain great teachers and staff. And the earlier you involve an architect, the better the environment. To find an AIA member near you, visit www.aia.org. Building on your vision.

Design and building are inherently exciting; and there is nothing more satisfying than a successful project. The secret to success lies in the professional relationship between building owner and architect. Whether you are building or remodeling your home or planning a commercial, industrial or public facility, selecting the right architect is important to achieving a successful project.

Members of AIA Wisconsin have been selected for major projects across the country and have received many important awards. AIA Wisconsin member architects have assisted thousands of clients with creative solutions to their building needs.

Investing in the professional services of an architect is a wise use of often very limited building resources. A well-conceived project can be built more efficiently and economically. An architect can design a building to maximize natural light, thus reducing heating, cooling and electric costs. Your architect can help you select materials and finishes that are durable as well as beautiful, saving on maintenance and replacement costs. A well-designed store draws customers and a well-designed work environment attracts good employees and increases productivity.

If you need the professional services of a qualified architect, you will find a suitable firm in this 2005 AIA Wisconsin Firm Directory. The firms listed will welcome the opportunity to discuss your project with you.

The AIA Wisconsin Firm Directory includes the following information on each firm: firm name, address, county, telephone and fax numbers and e-mail and Web site addresses; names of the principals or partners of the firm; number of registered architects and total employees; and a description of the firm's practice.

The information contained in the Directory was provided by the firms as part of an annual survey of AIA Wisconsin members. It is a roster of firms owned by AIA Wisconsin member architects. To be listed, at least one of the firm's principals or partners must be a registered architect and an AIA Wisconsin member.

You are encouraged to keep the 2005 AIA Wisconsin Firm Directory handy for reference throughout the year. Contact the firms listed for further information about their practice and the professional services they can provide for your project. If you have any questions or suggestions regarding the Directory, please contact: AIA Wisconsin 321 S. From our start in 1977, we've provided our clients with personal attention, regardless of project size. We carefully inquire about and listen to our client's needs, desires and ideas. Better understanding yields better solutions. We also treat every project as an opportunity to view design solutions with a fresh eye, thereby avoiding "off the shelf" solutions and complacency. This interactive and progressive approach ensures consideration of different options, which adds value for our customers. Our experience base is diverse: municipal, commercial, financial, medical, health/fitness, adaptive reuse, restaurant/hospitality, light industrial, historic preservation and housing (single/multi-family and elderly.) As a liturgical design consultant and architect, church facilities are the only work of my firm. Ecclesiastic design requires architectural training, group facilitating skills and liturgical consultation credentials. After 25 years of commercial, industrial and institutional design and management experience, service to religious communities is my focus. In order to be of greater service to my clients, I collaborate with national experts in liturgy, acoustics and fine arts through my affiliation as a National board member with the Association of Consultants for Liturgical Space. Collaboration provides my clients with more effective and valuable information on which to base their decisions.

PTD's practice primarily focuses on public and institutional architecture including jails, prisons, schools, courthouses, municipal, mental health and related facilities. We have been responsible for several correctional prototypes at both a county and state level. We are highly regarded for difficult correctional remodeling and non-traditional approaches to solve jail overcrowding and enhance security. Additional renovation work includes conversion of use. We are also a firm that has done our fair share of good office design, including medical and dental facilities, industrial and manufacturing complexes, retail and bank operations, and more recently, church design. Our 34 year practice is statewide.

We select our projects not by size, type or revenue, but for the possibility of creating good architecture. Our main concern is to produce significant, properly constructed buildings at a cost appropriate to their use. Our practice is clearly modernist, contextual, without misplaced sentimentality or pastiches of past styles. We have an unwavering philosophy to design, refine and repeat in order to create buildings of grace and elegance for our clients. We search for solutions that embody both understandable and memorable experiences and images. Our practice is guided by passionate belief in the three central tenets of spirit, craft, place.

We specialize in religious and educational facilities, but work with many repeat clients for commercial, office and residential projects. Our motto, "building relationship through design," is carried out by responding to the needs of each client while building personal relationships. We design solutions based on functional, aesthetic and level of quality desired by each owner. Services include architectural planning, feasibility studies, interior design and site evaluations. We take pride in each project. Our goal is to deliver high quality, client responsive professional services that are on time and within budget.

By Martin Sell, AIA

You may have heard the story of how to boil a frog; it goes something like this.

If you throw a frog into a pot of boiling water, the frog will sense the heat and will immediately jump out. But, if you put a frog into a pot of warm water and then slowly heat the water, the frog will adapt to the change – and eventually the water will boil and the frog will die without ever knowing what happened.

Project delivery is changing in our profession. As architects in changing times, we are in a pot of water that's heating up . . . and we may not realize what's happening to us and the leadership position we've traditionally held in project delivery.

When I graduated from the UW-Milwaukee School of Architecture & Urban Planning in 1978, architects were unquestionably the leaders in project delivery. Almost always, we'd get the first call from an owner about a building project. After months of programming, design, construction document development – and relationship building – we'd bid the project out to a list of general contractors. Then, we'd help the owner decide which general contractor should do the work; and we'd lead the owner through the construction process.

That was standard project delivery. As architects, we led the project from start to finish. In 1978, nearly 90% of all projects followed this standard design-bid-build process.

Oh, how the times have changed! Design-bid-build is no longer standard project delivery and, as architects, we no longer lead the project delivery process.

Soon, the majority of building projects in our country will be constructed using a design-build process of project delivery. For a variety of reasons, single source design-build has become standard project delivery. Since the late 1970s, there has been a slow and steady change away from design-bid-build and to design-build. The change has been so gradual, however, that most architects may not have even realized how much the industry has changed around us.

Currently, less than 5% of the projects using design-build are led by the architect. Most design-build projects are led by contractors. As architects, our leadership role in project delivery has all but disappeared. We now often find ourselves as "subcontractors to the contractor" – not unlike the plumber or the electrician on a project. This is a disturbing trend for the architectural profession.

The 2005 AIA Wisconsin Fall Workshop on Friday, October 14, at the Stayer Center in Fond du Lac, will focus on "Designer-Led Design-Build." The full-day workshop will bring in expert architects from around the country who are experienced in leading design-build project delivery. This panel of architects will show us how we can adapt to our changing environment and take back the leadership role in project delivery. More information can be found at the Calendar of Events on the AIA Wisconsin Web site, www.aia.org.

The pot of water we live in as architects has been slowly heating up these past 30 years – but it's not quite boiling, yet! Please mark your calendar today for October 14 and make an effort to learn how we can adapt to the project delivery change – and take back our leadership role in the profession – before it is too late!

Cast a legacy in stone

For designers looking to add the rugged appearance of stone to a commercial or multi-family project, County Stone® concrete masonry units make this an easy and economical choice. Since their introduction, County Stone® Old World Tumbled units have afforded designers a highly durable concrete veneer with the aesthetics of hand-cut stone. The tumbling technique takes the edge off the units, "aging" the product for a natural, weathered appearance without sacrificing any of its durability. The Old World style creates a highly textured exterior and adds timeless beauty to traditional or contemporary designs.
