DOUBLE BOWKNOT • Original coverlet was made about 1867 in Jackson County, Ohio, and based on a popular geometric pattern of the time. Fieldcrest recreates this surprisingly contemporary-looking design in a bedspread and matching towels. Both in brown, navy, green; bedspread also in red.

HEMPFIELD RAILROAD • When the railroad hit town, it was an event to be celebrated. In 1851 a weaver in what is now Wheeling, W. Va., made a coverlet to commemorate the building of the "Hemfield" Railroad. Fieldcrest has copied his locomotive design—and misspelling—in towels (gold, blue, red) and a bedspread (blue only). Locomotive in picture is from the Smithsonian's collection of train models.

PRINTING BLOCK ROSE • A delicate pattern taken from a set of embroidery stamping blocks Widely used from the 1850's to 1870's, these blocks enabled individuals to stamp their own designs on their own cloth at home. Fieldcrest recaptures the resulting look in no iron—heets and a comforter.

OLD STURBRIDGE VILLAGE® Reproductions. Antiques of timeless charm have been carefully selected for exclusive reproduction from this extensive New England collection. This Wing Chair, circa 1780, the original of which is in the James Fenno House, is an illustration. Absolute authenticity maintains the traditions of good taste and craftsmanship cherished by our nation's early citizens.

THOMAS JEFFERSON Reproductions. Thomas Jefferson was unique in our country's history. Noble and dedicated, he also was intrigued with ingenuity. And many of the furniture replicas, including this file table with octagonal revolving top, reflect his individuality. The table's original now stands in the Monticello library. Replicas of his furniture are recreated under an exclusive commission from The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation.

Here's where a Kitchen Aic compactor stops looking like a luxury.

No matter how often you empty the wastebaskets, it never seems to be often enough.

Unless you've got a Kitchen Aid trash compactor. It's every bit as reliable as our dishwashers.

And it ll smash your trash to one quarter or less of its original volume. There's an easy-to-use Litter BinTM that lets you toss in the small stuff without opening the big drawer. Use that for wastebasket loads.)

There's also an activated charcoal air filter to eliminate odors. And you can use the KitchenAid compactor with or without trash bags.

I have julep cups signed T.K. Marsh, E.C. Garner E. & D. Kinsey, W. Hard man, Poindexter, and S. Simpson (which is engraved "Made by S. Simpson for Christian County 1 & W. Association, 1857"); sugar tongs marked Scoril & Kinsey, large butter knife, Garner & Winchester; one ladle marked 4. Blanchard; another, S. Sharrard; teaspoons marked, Blanchard, A.B., S. L., and T.C. Calvert. Can you tell me anything at all about these silversmiths? C.M. Memphis, Tenn.

Thomas King Marsh (b. 1804) worked at Paris, Ky. before 1831; William Hardman at Lexington, c. 1838-1840; S. Simpson at Hopkinsville, Ky., 1857. Your julep cup is especially interesting as it documents when Simpson was working. Asa Blanchard (d. 1838), working at ' Lexington, 1808-1838, was Kentucky's best known silversmith. One of his apprentices was Eli C. Garner (1817-1878), working at Lexington before 1838-c.1860, who was in partnership with Winchester under the firm name of Garner & Winchester, 1838-1861. The initials S.A. may be those of Samuel Ayres (1767-1824), working at Lexington and Danville, 1790-1824, and S. Sharrard may be James S. Sharrard, working at several Kentucky towns, 1841-1861. A.B. was Asa Blanchard. The surname Poindexter was used by father, William P. (1792-1869) and son William A. (1818-1884) of Lexington. Your cup probably dates c. mid-19th century. Edward and David Kinsey worked at Cincinnati, Ohio, 1836-1850 and Scovil & Kinsey, c. 1830 onward, T.C. Calvert worked at Lexington, c. 1815-1850.

Découpage bourl

We would like to know more about this recently inherited object. It dates from around 1875 and is a glass ball filled with plaster of Paris to hold the colored pictures in place. If as this possibly a piece of individual craft work, if so, what kind; or is it a manufactured piece?

Your bowl is an example of the decorative craft of déconpage, a French term meaning paper cutouts, which became a fashionable Victorian pastime. In your case, the cutouts were pushed through the hole and then, with a tool, seemed to the sides. Finally, the bowl was filled with (Continued on page 16) liquid plaster of Paris.

Glass Artisans of the 19th century were the first to craft and assemble these magnificent Jardins de Verre, and until recently, these Gardens of Glass could only be found in museums and private collections.

Now, Gorham and the talented American floral designer, Jane Hutcheson, have utilized this same 19th century technique to bring you your very own Jardins de Verre. Petal by petal, leaf by leaf, they are crafted and assembled by hand into floral displays that are the ultimate in beauty and distinction. Buy one for yourself or as a gift at fine gift stores and giftware departments.

SOME NOTES ON GOOD LOOKS AND GOOD HEALTH

Take a pair of Sparkling eyes

10 steps to eye care from prominent ophthalmologist Dr. A. Benedict Rizzuti

BY CAROLINE SEEBOHM

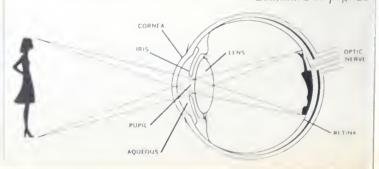

They say you can tell a person by his eyes. They say the eye is the window of the soul. They say your eyes are the only part of you that never grows old. Superstitions about eyes are commonplace—vet how much do we really know about them?

"The human eye is made up of a variety of tissues, some transparent, and some opaque," explains Dr. A. Benedict Rizzuti. Consultant Ophthalmologist, New York Eye and Ear Hospital and Methodist Hospital of Brooklyn, Clinical Professor of Ophthalmology at New York Medical College, and board member of the International Eye Foundation and the Better Vision Institute.

"Let us start with the outside of the eye," Dr. Rizzuti goes on, "the upper and lower lids, which protect the whole mechanism. Then we have the window of the eye, which is known as the cornea. Behind the cornea is an optically empty space, after which comes the iris, which constricts the light like the diaphragm of a camera, and which will dilate in the dark. In the center of the iris is an opening, called the pupil, which appears black. Behind the iris is the lens—which takes its name from the word "lentil," because that is what it looks like. The lens is transparent and allows light rays to pass through and converge on the back of the eye, known as the retina. The retina can be compared to the film of a camera, which takes the picture. Sensation is carried from the retina, follows along the path of the optic nerve, which is on the back part of the eye, and relayed to the brain.

"Many people ask, what is inside the eye? Two elements—one is a fluid, known as the aqueous, meaning that it is like water. This is located in the space between the cornea and the front surface of the iris and is the plumbing system of the eye. Behind the iris and lens we have the other element, that fills the globe. This is called the vitreous—a jelly-like mass, which has practically no function except to hold all tissues in their normal relationship, giving the globe the correct outline and tension."

The eye, evidently, is a complex mechanism. But there is one thing the human eye lacks that the lower animals possess—a neurillemma sheath, or protective covering of the optic nerve. "The reason why this is important," says Dr. Rizzuti, "is that in fish, for example, you can transplant a whole eye, and it will take. In humans, Continued on page 22 because there is no neurilemma sheath to heal or knit together the cut ends of the optic nerves, you cannot transplant the whole eye successfully. You can only transplant a part of the eye, like the cornea."

According to Dr. Rizzuti, most people are born slightly farsighted, and there are many more far-sighted people in the world than near-sighted. (Most animals, dogs for instance, are also farsighted.) But as we get older, that far sight gradually tends toward near sight. The cornea and the lens begin to get hazy, the jelly of the eye breaks down, and we get changes in the retina. The human eve. it seems, is not a perfect machine.

But there are ways to care for our eyes so that even this imperfect machine can last and look beautiful longer. Dr. Rizzuti suggests the following advice for people with normal, healthy eyes:

I Protect your eyes with glasses from nansual hazards ${
m suel}_{
m l}$ as work around machinery, dusty atmospheres, fumes, or chemicals. (In industry, protective goggles are mandatory in hazardous occupations.) A highly chlorinated pool, for instance, can irritate eyes. If you swim a lot, use goggles. Copious washing the eyes with water is the best emergency therapy for chemical burns of the eve.

2 Wear sunglasses in the sun and snow. Too bright light can burn the retina. Wearing sunglasses as a routine procedure, however, indoors all day and all night, is not so wisc. You become dependent—as soon as you take the glasses off, you may get a sensitivity of the eye known as photophobia. in which the eye will start to smart and water. So wear sunglasses when exposed to sun and snow-not all the time. Do not wear sunglasses for night driving. for they cut down on your vision considerably.

(If you wear glasses and are very aware of light refracting through the glass, you may be hypersensitive to light. In this situation you may require a pink or preferably green tint in your lenses but the fint should not be dark. Your doctor will advise you.)

Wash your eyes in moderation only. Nature gives us certain fluids to lubricate the eyes (tears, for instance, are a natural fluid and act as a lubricaut) producing a protective coating for the cornea. We should not disturb that fluid by excessive washing.

I Dry skin rouad the eyes or eyelids may be caused by an allergy. Allergic reactions are individual responses to a source of irritation, and your own doctor is the best detective in these cases.

• Take maseura or eyeliaer off as thoroughly as possible every aight. Too much mascara worn over a number of years can leave a deposit on the inner fining of the evelid and cause irritation. If your eyes continually itch or become red when wearing eye makeup, it could be an affergy, so see your doctor.

 $m{b}$ Cold compresses can be very soothing to inflamed eyes. If your eyes are exposed to too much sun or are otherwise inflamed. a solution of half witch hazel and half cold water, or cold water on its own, soothes and relieves the inflammation.

7 Read in a good light. Bad light can cause eye fatigue, eye strain, and headaches. The best light for reading is a combination of incandescent light (table or standard lamps) and fluorescent

Also at 40, Dr. Rizzuti urges that every individual have the pressure taken of his or her eyes, so that an underlying glaucoma condition, which tends to creep up on a person at that time, may be spotted and treated good and early.

At the Better Vision Institute Conference in Washington earlier this year, the question of check-ups was one of the most important subjects raised. The exciting new surgical techniques in eye care, which are providing successful treatment in restoring vision in many cases of cataract and glaucoma, can only be used when the diagnosis is made in time. Education about the eye, the doctors at the conference emphasized, could not begin early enough. It was pointed out, for instance, that it was routine for parents of preschool youngsters to have their general health and teeth cheeked before school commences—vet the majority do not have their children's vision cheeked at that time.

So keep an eye on your eyes—they are living, growing tissue and change as your body changes. Their beauty and health depend on your looking out for them—just as they look out for you.

Q. What's the difference between an ophthalmologist, an oculist, an optometrist, and an optician?

A. An ophthalmologist or oculist is a physician—an M.D.—who specializes in diagnosis and treatment of defects and diseases of the eve, performing surgery if necessary. An optometrist is a licensed, nonmedical practitioner who measures refractive errors—that is, irregularities in the size or shape of the eyeball or surface of the cornea—and eye muscle disturbances. In his treatment, the optometrist uses glasses, prisms, and exercises only. An optician grinds lenses, fits them into frames, and adjusts the frames to the wearer.

Bridges with barricades lead you are streams-and wolves hon in a cage remains a lion. There he is, hon in a cage remains a man-pacing, napping, eating, roaring when he can summon up the energy to prove that he still is the king of beasts. But he is a caged king, and to Jim Fowler, the "unarmed white hunter" of the tamous television series, "Wild Kingdom," pitiful. Mr. Fowler believes in zoos, but not in cages, and it is mainly through his efforts that the extraordinary Animal Forest at Charles Towne Landing in South Carolina has come into existence.

This natural-habitat wildlife display is a 20acre forest tract populated by animals that were indigenous to South Carolina in 1670, the founding date of the colony. There are no exotics—no tigers, no dik-diks, no secretary birds-simply because these creatures never knew this continent. This is an American habitat with no four-footed or winged member living in it that was not known to be a local denizen 300 years ago. It is an evclusive colony, and every one of its birds and beasts has a pedigree established by early recordings. Some of them are quite curious. The early explorers came upon wildlife they had never dreamed of. Something as familiar to us as a wild turkey was to them or oddity, so-with a great deal of poetic licensethey called it a peacock. The puma, too, was of spots or stripes. At the other end of the social ladder were wildcats, fox, and raccoons, who were hunped together, simply and ignominiously, as "vermin." It took an enormous amount of research to pin down exactly what the settlers were talking about, but eventually the roster was com-

s little as possible was done to alter the forest environment of the habitat Tit lies just outside Charleston), and as far as anyone knows, it looks more or less as it always did. Things have grown, naturally, but they have not been rearranged or relandscaped or tinkered with. This is a natural woodland, the kind that animals would choose to live in. (They can be very fussy about where they elect to take up residence.) But interwoven throughout the forest (like the almost invisible wire barriers that separate the predators from the nonpredators) are paths and roadways, bridges and aerial, windowed tunnels-vantageways to observe the forest population unobtrusively. Foliage and shrubs and vines act as a kind of green veil for these man-made viewing spots so that they fade, as much as possible, into the background. At all times, you are protected. In a sense, you are the caged one, not the animal. If you like, you can walk (it's a long like) or you can bicycle or ride in little motor-drawn caravans. Having parked your car for SI (there is no other charge), you travel as you will beginning with the baby animal's playground. This, quite literally, is a mursery, where the cubs and fawns and gentler voung romp about and allow themselves to be petted, which they love. This is your first chance (and with wisdom, your last) to tousle a bear. At the moment, he's a Teddy. In a few months, no one is going to tousle him except another bear.

he small animal habitat is a little farther along -red and gray foxes, raccoons and squirrels. Raccoons sleep most of the day, but descend from their oak tree homes at evening feeding time, taking their dinner to a stream where they appear to be washing it, which they are not. They like to drink and eat at the same time. Quite like bipeds.

NOTES ON NUTRITION FOR YOUR FAMILY'S HEALTH

How do you know that you're eating right?

BY ELOISE R. TRESCHER, R.D.

When the Pilgrims gave their first feast of Thanksgiving it was indeed a nutritious meal. Their table was laden with goose and venison, wild turkey, lobster, eel pie, corn bread, fresh "sallet herbes," wild plums, berries, and red and white wines. (The Indians enjoyed themselves so much that they stayed for three days.) Without any knowledge of nutrition, the Pilgrims provided well-balanced meals for themselves and their guests. We should do as well today. But with modern fads, fallacies, and theories we sometimes get confused. The following queries are some of the questions that are uppermost in our minds today concerning our diets, our interest in food for our health. The Indians' familiarity with what grew best on their native land guided the Pilgrims to survival. Today we are guided by the knowledge and help of the scientist and nutritionist.

Recently there seems to be a controversy about how many eggs one should eat a week. What is the latest recommendation and who has made it? Does the American Heart Association still suggest three eggs a week? Does this include eggs used in cakes, puddings, and soufflés?

Authorities vary in their thinking on the subject of eggs. The American Heart Association suggests limiting eggs (the yolks of which are rich in cholesterol) to three a week, which includes those used in food preparation. However, egg whites are cholesterol- and fat-free and they may be used in unlimited amounts.

Is whiskey really worse for a woman's skin than wine even if the drinker imbibes modestly?

A great deal is known about alcohol and its effects on humans, but I know of no study on its effects on skin.

What is a safe way to gain some weight and maintain it if I eat a well-balanced diet at present?

First have a thorough physical examination by a qualified internist to assure that your only problem is poor balance between energy intake and energy expenditure. If all is well, check your daily food intake against the basic four food groups to be sure that you are getting adequate amounts of protein, minerals, and vitamins. If you are, then the only things you need more of are calories and perhaps rest.

For adults, the daily intake of the four food groups should include at least two cups, preferably three, of milk and milk products; two or more servings of meat, fish, poultry, eggs, cheese; four or more servings of vegetables and fruits. In the vegetable and fruit group one serving should be citrus, cantaloupe, strawberries, or tomato; one serving should be deep green leafy or deep yellow colored vegetable, and two others, including potatoes. Whole grain or extiched bread and cereals complete the basic four food groups.

NO MATTER HOW YOU COOK NOW, WITH CORNING'S NEW 3+1 RANGE YOU'LL COOK BETTER AND WORK LESS. NO OTHER RANGE CAN MAKE THAT PROMISE.

Imagine melting butter or chocolate, or thickening a delicate sauce, without a double boiler, and without fear of it burning.

Or cooking up a pan of bacon until it's crisp, setting a dial to "lo," and knowing that your bacon will stay warm and crisp, without overcooking, until you're ready to serve it.

Or leaving dinner to simmer gently away in the kitchen, while you're in the living room with your guests, confident that the gentle simmer will remain a gentle simmer.

Imagine a cooking system with temperature controls that simply do not allow food to burn, scorch or curdle.

One that will eliminate most pot watching and a good deal of pot washing.

In short, a system that will help you cook better and work less.

You get all this with the CORNING® 3 + 1 Range.

The secret? The most precise temperature control ever built into a range.

To get it, we've equipped three of the cooking areas (this is the "3" in 3 + 1) with thermostats that actually read the temperature of the bottom of the pan.

The thermostats watch the cookware with each 3 + 1 Range or cooktop.

The thermostats watch the pots for you. Making sure a simmer stays a simmer.

What's more, to eliminate burning and scorching caused by hot spots in conventional burners, our engineers designed special elements which distribute heat evenly.

Let's settle the pots and pans question once and for all.

You can use your own pots and pans on the three thermostatically-controlled cooking areas. As long as they have flat bottoms.

And to make sure you have a good selection of flat bottom pots and pans, we include a set of permanently flat
Cookmates

This way, you're assured of the incredible cooking precision we've been talking about.

And one more thing about Cookmates cookware. They go from freezer to range to table. That means one pot to wash instead of three.

The more you use Cookmates cookware, the more you'll appreciate their versatility.

Now for the "1" in 3+1.

Some things don't require all that precision. Like boiling water for spaghetti.

Besides, not all your pots and pans have flat bottoms.

So we've given the 3 + 1 one "Multipan" unit. It works with any pot and pan in your kitchen. Flat bottom or not. Which means it's ideal for a canner, pressure cooker or soup pot.

Of course, a great cooking system wouldn't be complete without a great oven. And ours has two advantages.

First, it's big. Big enough to hold three 8" cake pans on one shelf.

Second, it's self-cleaning. In fact, it gets completely clean in about two hours.

What about those other smooth-top ranges?

Corning invented the smooth cooktop in 1966.

Suddenly, everybody's making them.

But when you buy anyone else's smooth-top, that's all you get: the smooth top.

You don't get the thermostats, the even heat, and the cookware. And you don't get Corning's exclusive 3-year warranty on the glass top.

Remember this when comparing prices.

You pay more for the Corning 3 + 1 Range.

But you'll cook better and work less.

No other range can make that promise.

For more information about the 3 + 1 Range, or our built-in unit, the 3 + 1 cooktop, see the yellow pages under "Ranges" for your nearest Corning dealer. Or write Corning Major Appliances, Corning, N.Y. 14830.

"The slide rule guys say we're crazy to keep on making these gathering shafts when we could save a dime by importing them. Over my dead body."

Dick Herschede has probably turned down more shortcuts and cost cutting ideas than any other man in clocks. He still plates faces in gold and silver, when brass and chrome would save money and look 'almost' as good.

Other makers of grandfather clocks import inexpensive movements for their cabinets. Dick makes, from scratch, every mechanical component in Herschede tubular bell movements. To him, being a clockmaker is more than building a cabinet.

His father and his grandfather felt the same when they were responsible for Herschede quality. And so, the plates (the flat brass pieces in the movement) are still machined from seven-gauge brass. While it costs more to make plates nearly twice the thickness of imported plates, it also results in clock movements which outlive three generations of owners.

Most of the pivots, including the gathering shaft above, must meet tolerances down to five tenthousands of an inch. And you don't entrust those kinds of ac-cookies. 100 calories, provides an appreciable addition. If you have not been a dessert eater, add an average serving at the end of both lunch and dinner. This could provide you with an extra 200 to 800 calories a day depending upon your choice. Dessert must not replace the foods in the basic diet but is an addition to it. Remember that it takes 3500 calories above your maintenance need to enable you to gain 1 pound of fat.

The result of Dick's fussiness is grandfather clocks crafted with honest pride.

Wouldn't you rather own a clock made by a clockmaker than a cabinetmaker?

What does irou do for you?

Iron is an essential nutrient. It helps make hemoglobin, which is the red part of the blood. Hemoglobin carries oxygen to body cells. An adequate intake of iron in a healthy individual can prevent anemia. The need for iron is greater in women than in men. This is because of menstrual losses and the increased demands during pregnancy and lactation.

The richest sources of iron are liver, clams, oysters, egg yolk, lean meats, fish, poultry, dried beans, and dried peas, lima beans, dark green leafy vegetables, dried apricots, raisins, and primes, whole grain and enriched bread and cereals, and blackstrap molasses. You will see that includes something from each of three of the important food groups.

Can we have a healthy, long-term diet excluding sugar?

Yes, if you are thinking of "sugar" as granulated, super-fine, confectioners, brown, etc. Such sugars are sources of calories only empty calories no protein, minerals, nor vitamins except in the brown ones, which contain such infinitesimal traces that they are of minor significance.

Ghicose is the sugar in blood that humans burn for energy. All foods provide some glucose. Approximately 100 percent of carbohydrates, 58 percent of protein, and 10 percent of fat are converted in the healthy body into glucose.

"Glucose is the sugar in blood that humans burn for energy. All foods provide some glucose" The rate of conversion varies among individuals, In general the glucose in fruit jnices is rapidly absorbed. This is the reason that, when possible, orange juice is given to a diabetic when he has an insulin reaction. Starches, proteins, and fats undergo a much longer process of conversion before their plucose enters the blood. It has been said that the 2lncose from finit jnices runs into the blood system, that starches walk, and that proteins crawl.

How would you advise undectaking a vegetarian regime? I malerstand it is quite difficult.

A strict vegetarian diet that is untritionally adequate is possible to plan if one knows the dietary properties of foodstuffs. In general, you should choose your diet from a wide variety of foods if your calcium, riboflavin, and protein needs are to be met. Minimal amounts of refined foods should be included. It is expedient to include fortified soy bean milk in a strict vegetarian diet. Read the label and be sure the soy milk is fortified. When no animal products of any kind are used it takes knowledgeable planning to meet the recommended allowances of B12. There is now no known source of vitamin B12 in the vegetable kingdom. Many vegetarians include both eggs and milk in their diets. In such cases all nutritional needs are easily met if you follow the basic four food groups, omitting meat, fish, and poultry and including additional milk, cheese, eggs, legumes, peas, and nuts.

Are there any foods in particular that would help to combat dry skin?

The skin is a complex covering of our bodies, which performs many basic and important functions. Your knowledgeable physician can tell much by simply looking at or touching your skin and observing its color, its texture (smoothness or ronghness), its temperature (coolness or warmth), its moisture or dryness. These are just a few of the skin's tell-tale characteristics, which help to reveal the state of your health.

A well-balanced dict is a basic to having healthy skin. Such a diet provides optimal amounts of high-quality protein, minerals, vitamins, and water, sufficient fat to act as a carrier for vitamins A, D, K, and E, and carbohydrates to meet the calorie needs of the individual. As always you should include the basic four food groups in your day's diet.

"A well-balanced diet is basic to healthy skin"

If there is any doubt as to the nutritional adequacy of your diet, ask your doctor to refer you to a qualified nutritionist who can evaluate your present diet and advise how it may be improved.

I have heard that many factors determine our energy needs. Can you tell me some of them and how one can know one's own energy needs?

Growth, age, height, body size, climate, the kind and degree of activity, pregnancy, lactation, and basal metabolism are some of the factors that influence our energy needs. Energy, which comes from food, is required to take care of vital body processes necessary to life. Some of these basic processes are: glandular functions, circulation, respiration, muscle tone, cellular metabolism, body temperature. In general, a healthy adult who is the proper weight can be assured that his energy needs are being met if he maintains his weight within a reasonable range. A good way to keep aware of undesirable loss or gain is to keep a weekly written record of one's weight. For energy allowances for persons from infancy through adult life write for The Recommended Dietary Allowances, revised 1973, of the Food and Nutrition Board of The National Academy of Sciences, National Research Council, Washington, D.C.

Should one have a certain degree of fat in his diet?

Yes, fats act as carriers and some help supply some of the fat soluble vitamins (A, D, K, and E) and certain unsaturated fatty acids (linoleic, linolenic, and arachidonic), which are essential for healthy skin in infants and for normal growth and nutrition. It should be remembered that there are a large number of calories in small amounts of fat.

Heaths and heathers

are back in fashion and you can find one to bloom every month of the year

BY WILLIAM B. HARRIS

Heatlis and heathers both have so many of the qualities sought by gardeners that it seems strange they ever went out of style, but this happened in the early part of the 19th century. It wasn't because the species didn't provide enough variation-by 1823 there were at least 400 varieties in cultivation. One five-volume as well as a four-volume work was published about them from 1802 to 1830, The more one reads about plants the more one is amazed about their fashions with gardeners tree peonies, for example, were in great demand before the turn of the century and are only now getting back into the good graces of gardeners here and in Europe. The Japanese, famous for tree peonies for years, still have little interest in them. What brought heaths and heathers back since World War H is undoubtedly the demand for low-growing, evergreen shrubs that are easy to use in the small gardens of today. Many heaths and heathers are creepers-few grow as tall as 3 feet. Tree types grow higher, but are not hardy in much of the country. Once established they require little or no weeding-just fine for those who do their own work (which is about all of us). Many varieties are drought resistant; many others withstand the salt in ocean spray, which naturally makes them a boon to the seaside gardener. They flower prolifically and keep in bloom outdoors for long periods, and indoors, flowers dry so well they are everlasting. Doubles, such as 'H. E. Beale.' are the best varieties to dry. More over, varieties can be found that allow a gardener to plan for bloom ing wintertime, if he lives in a climate that doesn't get colder than 15 degrees. Exen in cold climates. they will Idoom every month the grained Israt frazen.

When heaths and heathers started to regain their popularity, some gardeners found them troublesome to grow, largely because their soils were not right. Although some species will accept lime, most hate it so much that they lag and die. Soil pH must be decidedly on the acid side-between 5.5 and 6 pH. This is accomplished by loading the soil with peat that has been thoroughly soaked (it should be wringing wet) before being dug in. Unless gardeners will really study the various kinds—and few will want to go to this extentthey had best treat all the species the same: no lime, and all of their plants will prosper. Heaths and heathers should not be grown in very cold climates or where winds are searingly cold, particularly spring winds. We grow them in Litchfield under adverse conditions, but the plants are carefully protected in winter with pine boughs and snow fence. Weeding, it should be pointed out, must be done until the plants spread and grow together-afterward only an occasional weed will show. Some gardeners have complained that heaths and heathers get shaggy and rough-looking as they grow. This happens when the branches with flowers are not pruned. The English advise pruning right after bloom. It doesn't work well here. Specialists have found that priming heatlis or heathers only in the spring saves winter die-back, particularly on Callunas. But regular priming is necessary for each genus, for they basically flower on new wood.

Erica (heath is the common name) and Calluna (heather) have been used for several thousand years by the moorland and highland dwellers of the British Isles for building materials, beds, brooms, and even drinks. Because Calluna was considered the best for grazing sheep, deer and grouse it became known as He Heath, and the various Luicas stowing there, vastly inferior for terranear countries called bruyère in French. The Piets knew how to make a strong liquoi from heather; the method has long been lost but ale is still made from it and is said to be a satisfactory beverage.*

There are five plant genera that have heaths or heather-like characteristics call them plants with evergreen foliage with tinv leaves, which make like needles but which are not, a massive over-simplification that botanists and horticulturists will boggle at, but which is good enough for me and most other dirt gardeners. Calluna and Erica supply more varieties than any garden needs—Daboccia, Andromeda, and Bruckenthalia offer a few charming species, some hard to find commercially, but this dismays only the collectors.

Calluna is a genus of but one species, rulgaris, having an astonishing number of varieties— about 185 are named and described in just one book in my library. It has many common names. Heather is the principal one, but it is also known as Ling, Hadder. Grtg—fourteen all told, including He Heath, as noted. Varieties are from 2 inches to 3 feet tall and have many colors, including white, which is considered for no known reason to be lucky indeed. All Calhmas dislike lime and are very tolerant of salt spray. They should not be planted in rich soils, for they soon become leggy. Some do exceptionally well in heavy clay soils, particularly 'H. E. Beale'

The germs is extremely hardy even though it is found growing over much of Enrope. Its range in cludes Iceland, the north coast of western Africa, the tip of Libya Mediterranean and Black Sea Tim key, the Balkans, western Poland southern Sweden, and all of Nor. way—it naturalized in all those places from Great Britain, its home clime. Years ago it popped up it Nova Scotia, where it arrived a packing material, and recently i has spread along the New England coast, perhaps because of importation by Newport gardeners.

Generally all Callimas bloom during the months of July. August and September. A few will star in June; others will extend bloom well into November, but as they can't be depended upon to do this I hesitate to name them—position moisture, sunlight are determinants. There are many colors.

Following are a few varieties of Callima, some old, others new, bin excellent. Few nurseries carry as many as ten varieties, but those that specialize list twenty-five of thirty. A handful of hobbiests have big lists, but in most instances if takes a comple of years to get varieties from them because they have no production facilities.

Calluna vulgaris 'anrea' is called Golden Heather because in summer its foliage is golden; in wm ter fringes of red and green appear on the gold. Blossoms are lavende and it grows to 15 inches C. v 'County Wicklow' has been around for decades and long may its lovely double pink flowers wave on it compact 9- to 15-inch stems . . .

"Goldsworth Crimson' flowers late in the fall—from the end of Augusto early November. Foliage is dark green, the blooms deep red-crimson on 24-inch stems." H.E. Beale' is widely known. It has delicious long sprays covered with double pink flowers and is great for entting. But if it isn't fed regularly and pruned back hard every season, the flowers all but disappears. "J.H. Hamilton' is a bright double pink 6 to 9 inches high and deserves the many awards it han Continued on page 56.

All the great classics have one thing in common: Wool.

Whether they're Contemporary or Moroccan, Rya or Oriental, handmade or machine-made, the great classic rugs are wool. That's because so many of the world's best rugmakers find that they create their finest works of art in wool. Wool gives their designs the greatest possible richness, elegance and color clarity. And wool's resilience means that wool rugs are often handed down through generations; some are cherished for centuries. In short, wool is the one fiber worthy of such talent, inventiveness and imagination. Today as throughout history, wool is in a class by itself.

These rugs are available at fine stares everywhere. For further information on these and other wool rug classics, write: The Wool Bureau, Dept. JB-6. 360 Lexington Ave., New Yark, N.Y. 10017

As we have noted the Callunas can be depended upon to bloom only in July, August, and September, so we have to go to the Ericas, or Leaths, for varieties to make good the claim that heaths and heathers can be found that will bloom every month in the year. Unlike Callima with only one speeies. Erica has twelve grown in the northern hemisphere, but only carenea, ciliaris, cinerea, tetralix, and tazans can be found in most good nursery catalogues. The others don't appear because they are not at all suited to American climates. Varieties of carenea are most widely used because the species will stand minus 10 degree temperatures. 'Sherwoodii.' carmine-red. 6 inches high, blooms from December until early spring; 'Sherwood Early Red' starts blooming in late November and sends its bright red branches through the snow—it is 12 inches tall. 'Springwood Pink,' a strong 6- to 12-inch spreader, does the same winter act with pink flowers; for the same act with white flowers use 'Springwood White'; 'Vivelli' and 'Winter Beauty' are other winter and early spring flowering heaths of the species.

Ciliaris varieties are less hardy—to 5 degrees. Good enes I know are 'Wych,' an I8-inch creamy-white flushed pink, and 'Mrs. C.H. Gill.' cerise-red. 12 inches tall. is another. Both bloom from July to October. The hardiness of cinerca equals ciliaris, but I only know 'C.

D. Eason, a 12-inch erimson blooming in June and July, but the chances of finding others are good. Mediterranea varieties are mostly for southern climes, but they've been grown successfully in Litchfield when protected Iron wind. Tetralix varieties are very hardy-down to minus 35 degrees. This species has many varieties, but most are such look-alikes that you don't see many in the catalognes. A white, alba mollis, has dark gray foliage and grows to 15 inches; 'George Fraser' has rose pink blooms and is similar in Io liage and height to the white, Hookstone Pink' is a little shorter. Con Underwood' has large crimson flowers on a 9-inch stem. All bloom from June to October. Varietics of vagaus stand cold to minus 10 degrees, Mrs. D.F. Maxwell' is a clear cerise with the flowers arranged in whorls.

There are several excellent hybrid heaths, largely the result of chance seedlings between two of the species. For example, a cross between E. tetralix and E. vagans known as 'P.D. Williams,' is said to be the rarest native heath in England. It is now in the United States. It produces orchid-purple to rose-pink bell-shaped flowers on 10-inch stems from June to September. I suspect it dislikes less than zero temperatures, but it is grown here with lots of protection. Tips in spring are a yellowish-green, dark green in smimer, brownish tinges in winter.

If you need a considerable quantity of heaths and heathers and you are reasonably good at handling cuttings, a few plants over a couple of years will supply scores of new ones. The cuttings are simple to root even without a greenhouse. Take the cuttings in late July. They are best if only 2 inches long. Compost must be sharply drained and kept moist. Use a glass bell jar or make do with plastic. It is not a good idea to put cuttings from more than one variety in a pan or flat because few produce roots at exactly the same time. Who knows, once you get started on these fine shriibs you may get interested enough to become an expert. One of the best known collectors of heaths and heathers is Harold Copeland of Chatham, Mass, This accomplished amateur is a fine horticul turist. He has produced some outstanding new varieties of herbaceous pe mies and has a large colleetion of hollies. He is the gardener who just got interested and never got around to stopping. 🔳

General Electric Ranges with P-7° self-cleaning ovens are made for people who love to cook, but hate to clean.

If, at heart, you're a real cook, but a very impatient cleaning woman, feast your eyes on these GE Ranges. They make cooking a joy and cleaning a cineh.

Like GE's self-eleaning P-7 Ovens. Set the controls to "Clean" and the ovens automatically clean themselves completely. Top, bottom, sides, racks. Even nooks and crannies you couldn't get to if you had to do it yourself. All that's left is maybe a little ash.

Yet all that cleaning only costs about 10¢. A lot less than a can of oven cleaner.

Sparkling P-7 Ovens. You'll like the way they make your kitchen look—and feel. Because they're so well insulated, more heat stays in the oven when baking, helping the kitchen stay cooler.

Each of these ranges comes with a P-7 Oven. (There are lots more P-7 Oven Ranges in almost every size.) And each comes with Calrod® Surface Units, for even heat all over the bottom of your pans. Now all you do when you decide to replace your range is choose which of these other features you want, too.

The eye-level oven

Why bend over to see what's doing? Model J785 has an eye-level oven with a shiny picture window. When it's time to clean it, just put the removable panels in the P7 Oven down below.

The wall oven

If you're looking for a new oven only, how about GE Model JKI9R? To help you cook good things, it has a rotisserie and automatic meat thermometer, and, of course, the oven is self-eleaning.

The Microwave Cooking Center

It's a special range made only by the General Electric Company. A complete cooking center all in one range. The self-eleaning P-7 Oven does both microwave and conventional cooking. So you ean have your choice. Or even use both at once. You can cook foods up to 4 times faster using the microwave energy and brown with conventional heat at the same time.

Customer Care... Service Everywhere! This is our pledge that wherever you are, or go, in the continental U.S.A., you'll embroideries in color slides chosen from the Cooper Hewitt Museum. The slides show a variety of decorative ways in which stitches can cover the surface of a fabrie. Many are counted embroidery, others are free style embroideries, and all are identified by country of origin, date, materials used, and exact size. The slide kit is $30, plus $1 for handling, and $25 to members. Cooper-Hewitt Museum of Design.

There are some unusual heirloom designs in needlepoint kits this year. Four limited edition beauties from the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston: for the horse buff's den. "Coursing," a hunter in "pinks" and a beige horse, another horse half-caught in one corner. Tan and brown background. 14% by 15 inch design. $53; from a Hiroshige woodblock. "Grasshopper and Morning Glories" with subtle rich Japanese greens, reds, and blues on offwhite, 16-by-14-inch design, $58; a Japanese abstract, "Noh Costume Detail," an aquamarine, green, and white zigzag with a lotus medallion in one corner. 16inch square design. $58; from a Georges Braque, "Les Fruits" with leafy grapes in beautiful blues on white. 10½ by 12 inches. $43. All with handpainted canvas, English tapestry wools, and needle. Allow 4 weeks for delivery.

Creating your own design for needlework or patchwork is like a game with "The Patchwork Primer." a kit made up of hundreds of vinyl pieces in eleven shapes and four colors, with a fullsized templet of each shape. There is a vinyl design board scaled to the standard 4-inch patchwork square, as well as a fascinating manual with illustrations of geometric designs, instructions for making a quilt, as well as ideas for steneiling and needlework. To use the kit, you arrange the vinyl shapes on the design board in any combination-they stick where you put them and can easily be lifted up and moved around. After the design is set in miniature, use the full-sized templets as patterns. The Patchwork Primer Kit, $10, from Distlefink Designs.

For beginning quilters there is a complete kit in an early American design-the patches are all cut, and everything is inchided, as well as the backing and the batting. The design is "Diamond Star," cotton patches of pmk, white, and green, with cahco, or in yellow, white, and orange, with calico, By Bucilla, $45, donhle sized quilt, and $60, king, both plus postage. At Bloomingdale's.

Another design for beginners (but with appeal for experienced needleworkers too) is a creret pillow kit of a tawny hon. Everything is there for a 14 inch, kmle edged pillow, even a tote bag to carry work in. By Craft Master, $10, plus postage. Gnubels.

One of the most begniting dolls to sew is "Ida Anme." She stands about a foot tall in her oldfashioned romper and matching cap of muslin. When her china blue eyes, corn yellow eurls, and rosy checks are embroidered, she begins to look the most lovable doll ever. (Her romper embroidery is tiny pink flowers of French knots with yellow centers and green leaves.) In all, there are five embroidery stitches to use. Kit inchides the doll pattern (front and back), the needle, and floss for all embroidery; you only have to add stuffing. Ida Annie Dolls by Grandma's Treasures. $5.

Backgammon enthusiasts would love a bargello kit that's fun to make in creamy off-white, moss green, or bright navy background, with the triangle points of oranges, vellows, and blues. The design on canvas, with varns, needles, and instructions, comes with a handsome Lucite base that ean easily be put together with the accompanying screws. Everything is included, along with the dice, disks, and cups for playing. $85, Erica Wilson's Needleworks.

An heirloom gift, one to be treasured for a long, long time, a beautiful embroidery design in gold and silver threads. The background is soft gold suede eloth, and the embroidery, called "gold work," is entwined with simulated jewels. The whole work, when finished, will nicely cover an S-hy-11-ineh picture frame, $35 from Erica Wilson's Needleworks.

Erica Wilson also has tree decorations to make in needlepoint and bargellothere are two candy canes, a bargello Christmas tree, and three small gift boxes, all in red and green wools and gold cording. The complete kit, $7.50.

Faur enchanting animals to knit and to stuff for both little and big people, are an anteater, an elephant, a whale, and a skmik the patterns, instructions, color suggestions for all come in a plastie tote bag. You supply your own yarn and stuffing. $3, Such Outlandish Stitches. 🔳

We don't think a lovely lady should get lost in the mail.

It doesn't make sense to us for a woman to present herself beautifully in person, and then not pay attention to the "long distance" part of her image, as well.

The part her stationery reflects. Because just as what you write speaks for you, so does what you write on.

This is why we would like to introduce you to our stationery. Crane stationery.

It is considered the most beautiful stationery made.

The colors are very special. Delicate shadings that look like they were created from nature's own sensitive palette.

Our stationery is also considered to be the finest made. It's made of reclaimed cotton, the finest available fiber, never out of wood pulp as most stationery is.

The difference between the two is easy to see. And feel,

So next time you are about to choose a new lipstick, or perfume, or dress, don't forget to think about some new stationery, too.

This year, the best family holiday gift is a microwave oven.

And the best microwave oven is the

Model RR-4D

All microwave ovens are not alike. If you know what features and quality details to look for—you'll select an Amana Radarange.

Start with the cabinet. An Amana Radarange has a matte finish embossed steel cabinet that's a breeze to clean.

The door: Get the feel of it — and remember you're going to open and close it a lot. Amana has a die cast door, chrome plated for easy cleaning. The hinge is a continuous piano type—strong. It won't wear out. It's counter balanced—and when it closes—it locks automatically. No levers to push or twist.

Look inside: An Amana Radarange is stainless steel—won't lose its lustre. Won't scratch, tarnish or rust. The window is tempered glass—won't scratch. The broiler tray is special borosilicate tempered glass—designed to catch spills.

Timers: Amana's Radarange has two timers—one up to 5 minutes for precise time setting. The other timer is up to 30 minutes.

Saves Energy: The Amana Radarange oven cooks most food in about one fourth the time—and that saves energy. In fact, it uses 50% to 75% less electricity than a conventional electric range. You don't waste energy heating an oven. Only the food gets hot, the oven stays cool.

Buzzer: If you're going to be out of the kitchen, you can set the buzzer to sound off when the unit shuts off.

Instant On: No warm up time. An Amana Radarange starts cooking the instant you press the start button.

Defrost Cycle: Lets you take food from the freezer and thaw it in minutes—without cooking it around the edges. Most microwave ovens require constant resetting of the timers to do this.

Most important: Find out what kind of owner protection you get with a microwave oven. Every Amana Radarange Microwave Oven is protected for a full five years! If anything goes wrong with your Radarange oven in the first five years of normal household use all you have to do is take it to your Amana servicer—and he'll replace any part—free. Even light bulbs. No one but Amana gives you this kind of protection plan. Nobody!

It pays to compare microwave ovens carefully before you buy. See your Amana retailer, or write Ann McGregor, Dept. 363, Amana, Iowa 52203.

Now you can fry, grill, brown, sauté and sear with an Amana Radarange Microwave Oven Browning Skillet. It's made expressly for use in the Radarange oven by Corning®. As easy to use as a fry pan. Ideal for single meals and other specialized food preparation. Model MW-10—$14.95. Model MW-83—$9.95. Ask your Amana Retailer about a Radarange Browning Skillet.

If it doesn't say Amana—it's not a Radarange

Backed by a century-old tradition of fine craftsmanship.

CORDLESS TELEPHONE, left, can be used our doors on the terrace, by the pool; indoors in attic, base ment, separate garage, or studio—anywhere within 60 feet of your house. Fitted with batteries like a transistoradio, it works in conjunction with your existing telephone installation, like any extension phone, but need no cord. It rings, lets you receive calls, or dial out in this same way you use an ordinary telephone. "Portaphone is made in white, ivory, green, and yellow, $350 by Telephonics, Inc.

SOLAR WATER HEATER uses the sun to heat hot water for your house, saves energy and money. Two elements, right, the heat collector (two 6-by-3-foot flat panels) and the hot-water storage tank make up the system. The panel consists of a metal case and sealed glass top with a Selective Black absorber plate under it. The plate absorbs sun heat and warms cold water circulated through pipes bonded to it. The water comes from the storage tank, returns to it heated. On sunny days, particularly in sunny climates, the rooftop system would fill most hot water needs. For cloudy weather an auxiliary hot water heating system would be necessary. Sunsource, Daylin, Inc.

Your first microwave oven should be a Magic Chef.

Here's why: Every day, every meal, you'll save time with your Magic Chef microwave oven. With conveniences like the Magitrol Defroster that lets you dial the amount of microwave energy you need. So your frozen breakfast rolls taste the way the baker intended them to. So your hamburger isn't frozen in the center and burnt on the outside.

Colorful. Magic Chef has microwave ovens in popular kitchen appliance colors. So you can match your other appliances.

Clean. Cool microwave cooking means easier cleanups. And most of our ovens have stainless steel walls and a sealed-in ceramic shelf that wipes clean with just a sponge.

Budget-saving. Because you can reheat leftovers in minutes. Without drying them out. And because most families can do a full year's microwave cooking for less than $7.

A guide to Indian baskets

In southern Arizona, near Phoenix, willows grow along the dusty banks of the Gila and Salt Rivers. A spiky weed called Devil's Claw pokes up through saud and scrub here and there. In a landscape made spiny by vueca and saguaro caetus, under the spectacular sweep of a desert sky, a few Pinna women still gather the materials for baskets now recognized around the world as works of art.

> materials disappear, they just stop," says Sandra Corrie Newman, who spent six years among the Indians of Arizoua and California learning a primitive craft that is dving even as baskets become fashionable decorations in more urban America, and who has written a book, Indian Basket Weaving (Northland

"They really won't weave with anything else. When the Press, $4.95) to explain it. Baskets were possibly the world's first containers. As mats of leaves to hold food they probably predate hollowed-out stones, wooden bowls, or clay pots. But they have always been more than useful receptacles. Baskets also express the geography, history, technology, tradition, eating habits, sometimes even the religion of the people who make them. Above all, they express the human urge to turn something necessary into something beautiful. Among the world's basket makers. American Indians have long held-and still hold-a high place, both for skill and for design. And since 1971, when a basket by one of the best-known Washoe weavers was bought for $6,000 at a Parke-Bernet auction, fine Indian baskets have been more and more sought by collectors, both as antiques and as the work of living

Most highly prized are the baskets made by the Pomos, considered by experts to be the finest in the world. The tiny tribe of Pomo Indians lives in oak woods in Northern California, in a country full of lakes and streams. They weave with willow, sedge grass root-each weaver has her own special places to gather it, and trips there are scasonal pilgrimages-bullrush root, and twigs of redbud. The epitome of their work is the gift basket, small (fine small baskets are harder to make than big ones) and very elaborate, sometimes with clamshell or abalone beads woven in, sometimes completely covered with tiny jewel-toned feathers of blue jay, woodpecker, meadowlark, or mallard, one woven

"Each woman makes her own contribution to the traditional designs, so no two baskets are ever alike"

The skill and the work that go into baskets of this quality are incredible, thousands upon thousands of hours devoted to finding and preparing the materials and to the mimite, intricate, repetitive task of weaving. "People look at it and say 'it must take a fot of patience," says Mrs. Newman, "but 'patience' is actually the wrong word. It's a process that has its own time built into it. There's no idea that this is taking a long time, for an Indian woman." "Sit with your back to the fire," a Yurok woman told her. "Be cheerful. Do not think of it as hard work or the basket will not be good."

Indian baskets are either twined or coiled, and only one tribe, the Yurok, makes both. South of the Yurok, in Pima and Navalio country, all baskets are coiled, one round of willow twig or cattail bound to the next with fine, painstakingly prepared strands of willow and devil's claw (Pima), sourgrass, pinetree root, the brittle stems of giant ferns (Ynrok), or sumae (Navaho). North of the Yurok, weaving materials are laced in and out of willow twigs laid out in airy pinwheels.

North or south, fewer and fewer young Indian girls are learning basketry. Only three or four Pomb women—each of whom can command as much as $1,000 a basket—still weave. "I'd go up there," says Mrs. Newman, "and sit in the kitchen weaving my basket while my teacher, Mollie Jackson, would weave hers—and her daughter would be in the other room, playing the rock guitar. The cultural split was very integrating."

Like patchwork quilting, basket weaving is part of a handwork tradition from which the utility has gone. Pina women no longer need baskets to winnow the chaff from thrashed grain. Yuroks have other ways of carrying burdens, and Pomos do not subsist, as they once did, on a diet of acorns collected, ground, sieved, and cooked in baskets. Indians' baskets hang forgotten from the rafters on their back porches while more urban American women are finding more and more uses for baskets. Today, as the white man learns to appreciate baskets as art, most Indians weave them to sell. After the utility goes, the beauty of these baskets remains.

"I weave a basket," reported a Pima woman, "because we need the extra income in the family, because I want to keep the tribal tradition alive—and because I like to." The designs are traditional, particular to the area and the tribe. But, interestingly, the names for designs frequently came from whites. Indian weavers lelt little need to name something so obvious to them and so intrinsic to the work of weaving. Often the range of design is severely limited. "Yet the amazing thing is, each woman makes her own basket," says Mrs. Newman. "She makes her own contribution to the traditional designs so that no two baskets are ever alike. A Pima woman may put four or five turtlebacks in, she may fill in a whirlwind design with a lot of coyote tracks, so that she feels strongly that the basket's her own work—but her style is within the tradition of the tribe."

The design also echoes the country. "I can see the open desert in a Pima basket," she says, "where you can see your feet, you can walk around as in a maze, but you watch out for a rattlesnake or a eachis." The Yurok, of Northern California, have a different environment altogether. There the country is closed in by mountains and rivers, and the horizon is hidden in trees. "I can see in those baskets trees, lines of nivers, very complex ferns, roads that go over the mountain, hard win-

This is the packed in people, and a tightly packed in design. The covering shape, literally, is the Yurok hat, an intricately patterned loose place that only the finest basket weavers can attempt, custom and for each head. Hard to work fern stems provide the color for its or plex designs. Yuroks wear work hats everywhere, but you could only wear the dress hat says an Indian woman, "if you're rich enough to have it."

Most circumiscribed in design, most sacred, is the Navaho basket, $_{
m 100}$ de now only for ceremonials since plastic and galvanized metal have supplied alf the utilitarian purposes for which the basket was once needed-and made now by Painte women because the process is so encrusted with taboos that Navaho women find it impossibly difficult to follow them and still produce a basket. Navaho baskets are made from only one material, sumac, in only one design. A clear space in the center is surrounded by a row of mountains in which some variation is allowed. Beyond the mountains is a red rainbow, then another range of mountains pointing out. The clear outer border is called "the increase of the People," and there is always a spirit pathway from the center, or home, to the increase of the People. In ceremonies, the pathway must be kept pointed toward the East. The medicine man ean find the pathway in the firelit dark by the stitching on the rim, which ends directly above it. "The pathway absolutely must be there," says Mrs. Newman, "or the people say you get trapped inside. When you weave it, you really get the feeling that, yes, you're starting at the center, you're at the center of the earth, and you are weaving yourself into the world."

Three desert designs, spare, deceptively simple: Squashblossom, which up close looks like a geometric pattern, and Elder Brother's House, a maze he built to hide in, both Pima; a Navaho ts'aa, the word used both for the basket and for its design.

ne of the more reassuring aspects of human nature is that giving is an instinctive, not a learned response. The primitive peoples studied by anthropologist John E. Pfeiffer in his book The Emergence of Man (Harper & Row) all demonstrate the desire to give: "Goods are shared in continuous trading and the exchange of gifts," he writes. "Everything, pots and spoons and arrows and buttons, tends to circulate." We possess from earliest times, it seems, the instinct to be generous.

Mr. Pfeiffer points out that "all such responses and adjustments are part of the delicate business of being sociable." In today's overpopulated, industrialized world, we must remain in touch with our natural instincts and devote time to the "delicate business of being sociable," as Mr. Pfeiffer puts it. "People naturally want to give rather than to take away," he explains. "Notice how very young children—before they have become 'civilized'—love to share everything and give away things. It is natural to them."

This quality of enthusiasm plays a large part in our issue this month—in Lady Antonia Fraser's description of the fun of present-giving in a big family, page 98, in our own Christmas present gala, page 90, in the brightly colored fantasies of our needlepoint alphabet, page 88, and in the gaily painted baskets, page 100, you can create at home.

And giving is not just a matter of exchanging presents. When we collect beautiful things, discover old American treasures and cherish our heritage, as Mr. Crewe did in restoring his 18th-century American house, page 82, we are making a gift to family and friends and to future generations.

Parties, get-togethers, the art of entertaining—another aspect of our need to give—are also celebrated in these pages. A house with a gala feeling, on page 104, an apartment planned for parties, on page 118, and big parties with little price tags, on page 125.

As long as we are human, we shall instinctively respond in a positive way to others; and as long as we preserve our humanity there will always be Stripped of its grandeur, completely dismantled, a once-proud 18th-century Maryland house sat in a crowded garage for five years before Leonard C. Crewe. Jr., came to its rescue. The Dr. David Ross house, originally built in 1749 in Bladensburg, near Washington, was razed in 1957 to make way for highways of commercial conquests. After 225 years this historic house has regained its former glory and even more noble proportions. Mr. Crewe has accomplished what local historical societies had hoped to do for years—restore, rebuild, preserve this house. A collector of the 18th century, Mr. Crewe first wanted to build a house in the Colonial tradition. In 1962 architect Bryden B. Hyde proposed instead the idea of a ing an old house rather than designing a new one. Concerned and convinced. Mr. Crewe took a giant step, and the move was made. All 22,000 brick, door, undows, dormers, trim, flooring, paneling, and even the handmade nails were institutiously maneuvered to his hillside, north of Baltimore.

In the War of 1812, the house, although privately owned, served as a hospital for both British and American soldiers. As it looked. 1. before demolition. 2. The house now with a new wing. Restoration was authentically assured by drawings, measurements, and photographs taken years before by the architect, as well as from records found at the Historic American Building Survey at the Library of Congress. "Christmas comes but once a year"—thus my mother annually, in accents of the most fervent gratitude, at nightfall on Christmas Day. And even if she did not actually add the words "Thank goodness for it," the way she kicked off her shoes, sank back into a chair and finally put her feet up, was quite enough to make her feelings more than clear to us children. At which point all eight of us—Antonia. Thomas, Paddy, Judith, Rachel, Michael, Catherine, and Kevin—would burst into loud lamentations varying only in Brength according to our age and status. How cruel could fate be! Christmas over and over so quickly, Christmas the climax of our hopes and longings, Christmas the season of sleer pleasure, and all over, it seemed, in the twinkling of Father Christmas's joyial eye. Our grief was only made worse by our mother's inexplicable appearance of relief.

hoped that Thomas would respond in kind. And even if there were a few backslidings, the presents themselves could not help proliferating owing to our large numbers, rather on the principle of seven maids with seven mops—only in this case it was eight children each giving each other eight presents.

This was wartime Oxford, where my father, having been invalided out of the army, taught at the university. Nevertheless we always managed to have a really big Christmas tree. Indeed, although my mother was then many years off writing her celebrated life of Queen Victoria, I still think her attachment to the tree was rather similar to that of Victoria, whose German husband first introduced the concept of such trees to England. However in one respect my mother did not try to emulate the Queen: who, although she had nine children, actually gave each one an individual Christmas tree. In our case it was a traditional function of Christmas Eve to decorate our one tree; I fear it was always accompanied by much bickering and I dread to think how we would have fared trying to decorate eight. A new fairy doll was always placed at the top of the tree, and, also by tradition, presented to the youngest girl in the household. As the eldest, I was never by any chance the lucky recipient, so that although I have continued this routine with my own children, I rather sympathized with the comment of my 9-year-old son Damian: "Why can't it be a tractor or an engine at the tep of the tree for a change?". Thereafter we did try installing an Action Man on the tree for one Christmas, but somehow he did not have the same allure. So now the Jeminist lairy reigns again supreme.

On Christmas morning itself, first of all we opened our stockings, as early as we pleased—which was very early and in fact Itlink I was first aware of the onset of old age or at least adolescence when I took to opening my stocking as late as six or seven o'cleck. Sweets being severely rationed in England at the time, my mother regularly surrendered Ler own share to give us one checolate each to be found in the tile of the stocking. But I am sure we devented this single offering with far more passionate enjoyment than my children have ever felt for the in mid of sweets with which I am compolled to stuff their stockings. There was the same wartime difficulty in buying little bibelots for the medible portion of our stockings, my mather used to concentrate on the wares of a certain secondliand sliep in Oxlord run for the benefit of the Red Cross. It was incidentally the dep from shich the whole mighty charity organization of Oxfam subsequently developed, but I had such high regard for the curios it provided, that I have never been surprised that this aeorn should have grown into such a splendid oak.

Stockings lead me on to the subject of Father Christmas. The central point of our ehildhood Christmas was the personal visit of the benevolent old gentleman, white beard, red cheeks, scarlet suit, loaded saek and all. Having filled our stockings stealthily at night—the kindhearted amongst us left out eake and milk for him—he then returned after tea on Christmas Day when it was dark. At a given moment my mother would exclaim: "Hark, I hear the sound of bells. It must be Father Christmas's reindeer." A thunderous knock on the front door eame next. followed by the entry of my father, fitted out in scarlet, perspiring, his cheeks eoated in my mother's rouge and his white cottonwool beard generally somewhat askew. On his back, which was artistically bent, he carried an enormous sack out of which presents could be seen bulging.

It was an absolute article of faith with us all that Father Christmas existed, whatever our ages, although there were intermittent stages of disbelief, which went something like this: the ardent devotion of the little ones would be followed by an age of extreme scepticism (about four or five), accompanied by persistent questioning. Then came the inevitable revelation. But at this point my mother very cunningly put an end to public scepticism in the big children by saying firmly that if Father Christmas didn't exist, then he couldn't fill their stockings, could he? And so we were all out of (Continued on page 146)

THOUGHTS FOR

the lostess

BY MARY MOON HEMINGWAY

I'm looking forward to a hectic holiday season. It's normal. I love it. Just let me have my lists—my way of sorting out the confusion. Making them up and reading them helps me remember what I have to do. I post them strategically all over the house, carry them with me, adding and subtracting from them as I get things ready. My lists are mind prodders rather than organizational charts. They help me keep new ideas in orderly view. Herewith a mixed bag of tricks, a sort of surprise stocking of ideas, which might be of use for your Christmas lists.

If you're like me, you can't wait till the frost is on the pumpkin to begin making things for Christmas—I started with the potpourri in June, laving out rose petals in the attic to dry. A fond remembrance of fragrances past in December. There's something warm and wonderfully old-fashioned about the whole family making things together, the sound of scissors and "who's got the tape?" Find inspiration for your own projects in Think Christmas. 5 collection of ideas for decorations, gifts, and recipes collected by the Junior League of Washington, D.C. Lespecially like the ideas for centerpieces and tabletop decorations—a gingerbread house, a Mexican piñata, and fireplace pine cones that burn with blue and green flames. And there are lots of projects for tree ornaments and gifts that children can make from scraps around the house (so they can be Santa too). Plus little touches for every room you can adapt and use throughout the year. And there's a section of recipes that are especially festive to make or make and give at Christmas—hors d'oeuvres, meats, salads, breads, cookies, and desserts. Think Christmas—6 by 9 inches, spiral-bound and 180 pages—is $3.90 a copy postpaid from Think Christmas, P.O. Box 9626, Washington, D.C. 20016. Make checks payable to "Junior League Christmas Book." Copies will be sent as gifts—just enclose your name and address list and your gift cards.

Christmas implies sharing. Trim an extra tree (possibly a live one) and hang tiny toys, edibles, and trinkets on it for friends to take away with them after a visit. If it's a cut tree, give it back to the birds afterward, decorating it with suct balls and setting it outside in a tub of gravel. Sweeten the season with a candy tree to be sampled by all comers and have plenty of replacements on hand.

Give gifts of "consuming interest." A special basket filled with luscious vegetables plus seed packets and a catalogue . . . A painted bucket or a bundle of kindling (the local lumberyard is a help) . . . A pretty pillowcase filled with odds and ends of woolen remnants for a rug maker . . . A wastebasket of fabric scraps for a stitchery buff . . . A canister of coriander pinwheels (piecrust topped with seeds—rolled, sliced, and baked) . . . A decanter of lemon or orange vodka (steep crnshed peels in the liquor for two weeks) . . . A dried herb and flower swag stapled to a weathered board and tied with a velvet ribbon.

Rework and renew some of the time-honored symbols. Dress creche figures in modern clothes or make a creche with new figures. Give a carol-writing party, setting your own lyrics to the music of your choice. Bring a handsome tree ornament when you call on very special friends, start a tradition of marking the Christ

FROZEN LEMON SOUFFLÉ

Ingredients: 2 egg yolks; ¼ cup sugar; 3 tablespoons flour; 1 cup milk, scalded; ¼ teaspoon vanilla; 8 lemons; 12 egg whites (1½ cups), 14 cups sugar; 3 cups heavy cream, whipped. Method: In a small saucepan beat the yolks with 4 cup sugar until the mixture is thick and pale vellow. Beat in flour and then hot milk gradually. Heat over medium flame, beating continuously, until mixture is thick and smooth. Cook one minute. Stir in the vanilla, transfer to a bowl, cover, and chill. Grate the rind from the 8 lemons and squeeze the juice from 4 (about % cup). Mix the chilled cream with the rind and juice and divide into 2 large bowls. Warm 6 of the egg whites slightly in the bowl of an electric mixer. Beat until frothy and continue to beat while adding ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar slowly until the meringuc is stiff and glossy. Fold the egg white mixture into the lemon mixture in one of the bowls. Fold in half the whipped cream and turn into a 6cup soufflé dish fitted with a foil collar. Freeze several hours or overnight. Repeat with remaining 6 egg whites, remaining sugar, lemon mixture, and whipped cream, pour into a seeond soufflé dish. Remove collars, let stand 30 minutes at room temperature before serving.

Method. Pour the milk and water over the haddock in a heavy pan and add the salt. Bring to a boil and simmer very gently for 5 nanutes. Allow the haddock to cool in the cooking liquid, then lift it out, reserving the liquid, and remove all skin and bones. Flake the haddock, then mix it with the cooked rice and melted butter in a bowl. Shell the 2 6-minute eggs and chop them finely. Stir them into the rice mixture and season with 4-5 twists of the pepper mill and the curry powder. Moisten with a little of the cooking liquid; the finished dish should be moist, not dry and chewy-don't pour the cooking liquid out until vou're satisfied with the consistency of the rice and haddock. Taste for seasoning. If the kedgeree is to be served molded, pack it lightly into a buttered 2-quart mold, cover and keep it warm. Then turn it out to serve and garnish it with chopped parslev and the shelled and chopped 10-minute egg. Or it may be served simply sponied onto a platter.

It is important that the chicken pieces are santéed to a rich dark brown, as this determines the color of the finished dish. Transfer the chicken pieces to an oveuproof casserole with a close-fitting lid. Add the chicken stock and vermouth and bake in the oven for 30 minutes, Add mushrooms and continue cooking for 15 minutes. If sauce is too thin, cook for 7 to 8 minutes longer without the lid. If too thick add a little more stock. To serve, correct the seasoning and just before serving, sprinkle the surface with finely chopped parsley. Rice is the perfect accompaniment.

CASSEROLE OF SPINACH

Ingredients: 6 10-ounce packages frozen chopped spinach; 6 table-spoons butter: 1 cup onion, finely chopped; 2 cups sour cream; 1 cup cooked elbow macaroni; freshly grated nutmeg; salt and freshly ground black pepper; ½ cup bread crumbs; 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese.

Method: Heat the oven to 350°. Defrost the spinach and drain thoroughly. Welt 4 tablespoons of the butter in a skillet, add the chopped onion and sauté gently, being careful not to allow the onion to brown-it should be transparent. Purée the spinach with the assistance of a little of the sour cream in a blender if you have one, otherwise force it through a strainer or sieve. Add the onion and the butter in which it has been sauteed, using more of the som cream as it is needed. Then scrape the purced spinach into a bowl and stir in any remaining sour cream. Stir in the cooked elbow macaroni. Season with grated nutmeg, salt and pepper-go light on the salt but make the nutnieg pronounced. Melt the remaining 2 tablespoons butter in the skillet and stir in the bread crumbs, coating them thoroughly with the butter. Close your eyes and, if your taste has such a memory, think of the sweet, tender, butter-drenched meat of a king crab, yet only 35 years ago that taste was a secret, buried 600 feet deep in the cold waters off the Alaskan coast. Then one summer day in 1939, sailing off Kodiak Island, the tide was unusually low. And there they were. Mountains of them. Strange, thorny-legged monsters that stretched nearly four feet from but his hours are long, the risk – though diminished – is still there, and there is great demand on the spirit.

You've taken the king from his ocean. The problem now: how do you preserve and package the special, seafresh flavor of your great discovery?

The solution wasn't easy. But the break-through finally came. By cooking the crab immediately after the catch in a cauldron of boiling seawater, then flash-freezing, the boiling seawater, then flash-freezing the cooked crab meat, we were able to keep its luscious taste and texture intact. (Incidentally, to be sure you get every last bit of Wakefield King Crab taste coming to you, move the package from the freezer to the refrigera-claw to claw. As ugly to behold as they were good to eat. (It's amazing that anyone ever thought of eating one.) What a surprise to find the leg and claw meat so pleasingly sweet. The crew feasted well that afternoon. And as they ate, each thought to himself: that crab has a future.

The first crab fishermen Wakefield hired were salmon fishermen, moonlighting during the two month off-season of their year.

They were perfect. Already familiar with the deep, choppy waters and the blustery Alaska weather, they were right at home fighting 100 mile an hour winds to haul in the massive nets. (Trawl nets were the first method of catching king crab. Later, "pots" or wire-mesh traps were used and still are to this day. Even though the average pot may yield 30-40 crabs, all females and males averaging less than seven inches across their back are returned to the sea.) The life of a crab tisherman can be taxing and dangerous. In the early days three or four fishing boats were lost a year. The modern crab fisherman is handsomely paid for his 10 months work rench taste. French know-how and knowledge, and the unerring eve for what's of quality, be it everyday or extraordinary-in short, expert knowledge in the glorious sciences of cooking, eating, and entertaining—that's what people are buying at Fauchon whether they walk out with a special Armenian bread or a single wonderful mango. Fauchon's head since 1953, Edmond Jean-Marie Bory has pushed Fauchon out of the precise traditional world of French food into a newer stance, which includes what is unusual and very, very good from all over the world. Fauchon has also branched out from its headquarters on the Place de la Madeleine in Paris. In this country, for instance, Fauchon has thirty departments in different stores around America as well as other stores that earry Fanchon items. Here M. Bory, not a chef but an authority on food, talks to House & Garden's Nancy Richardson about food and entertaining now.

Color for a buffet. "On a buffet you must always be careful that the flowers go with the food and that the smells of the food don't clash. A nice buffet is a question of certain things matching and everything combining well to look pretty as well as taste good. 'The Fauchon Egg' [see recipe] is a good dish for a buffet and also colorful in the way it's arranged. I like it because the sauce is very simple and has a special taste. It is also an economical recipe and perfect for lunch. The trick is to use a circular mold, which makes a handsome crown when it's turned out and the space in the center of the mold is perfect for the color of portions of vegetables, such as carrots, peas and tomatoes.

"If you have an Italian for guest of honor, make pastas of three colors: white, green, tomato red, then put in sections in a casserole to make the colors of the Italian flag. (Continued on page 145)

Grapes, like people, need a time to rest.

This is the important time.
The quiet of the night in the valley of the Paicines mountain vineyards near San Juan Bautista.

All day long our grapes were hard at work, maturing and ripening under the warm California sun. Then, at day's end, the sun sets, and the important events of the night begin.

The Pacific Ocean breezes slowly roll over the mountains and down into the vineyards where they cool and rejuvenate our grapes. When morning comes, our grapes are rested and ready for the work of the new day's sun.

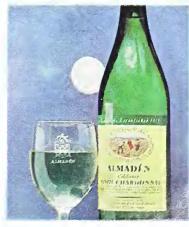

Here, in the valley of the Paicines mountain vineyards, nature has provided Almadén with an ideal weather balance for growing fine wine grapes.

Possibly no one else takes such loving care in raising grapes as we do. To us, they're our children.

When you try your first sip of Almadén Pinot Chardonnay, you'll understand why only a fine grape can produce a fine wine.

Eggs, rice, and other inspiration for great impromptu meals and the sound of the sounds on one of his pet theories —a geed meal is not only achieved through a lengthy so journ in the kitchen, but can also be a quick impromptu affair prepared from togredients right on the shelf and in the refrigerator.

THE ART OF IMPROVISING

Have you ever invited friends to stay for dinner on the spin of the moment and then realized there's practically nothing to eat in the house but eggs and a can of soup? Of course you have. We've all faced those emergencies when one has to do some quick improvisation or look like an utter dolt. I jenicuber reading in the paper about a woman who kept her wits about her during the last great New England snowstorm. Her family was yearning for, of all things, apple pie. Suddenly she remembered the mock apple pies our forefathers made with soda crackers, sugar, spices, and butter, and she produced one forthwith. It was a huge success, and before the storm was over she'd made it again and again. That's what I call intelligent thinking.

My own way of coping with unforeseen situations is to keep a special shelf stocked with things I can reach for when I have in a harry or feed imexpected guests. Lalways have cans of minced clams, salmon, tima fish, corned beef, and corned beef hash, sardines, pimientos, white truflles, evaporated milk, broths and soups, olives and a selection of pasta BEADLE from the tiny orzo to the big macaroni (I find I use thin spaghettini more than anything else). I usually keep frozen erabmeat in the freezer, also vegetables of various sorts and pieces of left-over ham and chicken.

Recently I picked up a new quickie from Philip Brown, an excellent cook who does demonstrations with me from time to time. Let's call it Philip's Sardine Special. Open and drain 2 cans of French or Portuguese sardinespreferably the boncless, skinless kind—and wash them very carefully with warm water, being sure not to break them up. Pour 4 cup olive oil into a small baking dish and top with I large onion, finely chopped. Arrange the sardines on the onions and mix in a 4-ounce can of pimientos, cut in thin strips. Season with % teaspoon salt and % teaspoon freshly ground black pepper and pour on another % cup oil. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve very hot, with toast. With a salad and some cheese you have a satisfying meal

Hash is one of my favorite spurof-the-moment supper dishes. To make Quick Corned Beef Hash. heat 3 tablespoons butter and 3 tablespoons oil in a heavy skillet, add 1 medium onion, finely chopped, and saute until translucent and lightly colored, about 4 minutes. Add I can corned beef, coarsely chopped, and I can corned beef hash. Blend well. Season with salt and pepper and turn the bash over several times. Add 5 cup boiling water or ½ cup heavy cream or evaporated milk, and cook it down quickly. Reduce beat, by James A. Beard and cover the pan for 3 or 4 min ntes to give it a chance to steam Remove the cover and loosen the hash from the pan with a spatula it should have formed a crisp bot tom crust. Turn it over, oncle lashion and turn out outo a hoplatter. Top with fried or poached eggs or roll scrambled eggs into a before you turn it out, Serve with heated chili sauce or homemadopickles and hot biscuits, if you have them. For dessert, have iccorresm.

Another swift dish that will also stretch to serve a lot of people i Spaghetti with Clam Sauce. Open and drain two 7 ounce cans mineed clams, saving the liquid. Heat 4 tablespoon olive oil in a small skillet, add 1 finely chopped garlie cloves, and eook for 4 minutes. Add the clair liquid, raise the heat, and eook down. Bring 2 quarts well-salted water to a boil, and cook an 8ounce package of spaghettini rapidly until just tender but still bitev Drain and place in a colander over boiling water. Heat the minced elams through in the garlic brotl and add some chopped parsley or chives. Dish the pasta into 4 plates and spoon the clam sauce over it. Sprinkle with more parslev-nc cheese on this, please; it's better as it is. With a glass of white wine. salad or sliced tomatoes, crisp bread, and fruit to follow you have a topnotch meal, as good as you'd get in an Italian restaurant.

Quickies like these should be part of everyone's repertoire. They go to show that you don't have to spend hours in the kitchen to turn out a meal you can serve you; friends with confidence.

PERFECT SCRAMBLED EGGS

When people invite you in for a quick meal, or if something goes wrong in the kitchen, they are apt to say. "Oh well, I'll just scramble, some eggs," as if "just scrambling some eggs," couldn't be simpler. As a matter of fact, scrambling eggs is one of the more complex kitchen processes, and there are various schools of egg scrambling. There are those who believe eggs should be scrambled in a double boiler over simmering water, those who elieve they should be scrambled uickly, and those who believe nat it takes slow and most accute timing to make the curds tener, delicious and of varied sizes. very person regards his particur fashion of scrambling an egg as mark of his culinary skill, and so is. My good friend Julia Child ace demonstrated her theory of rambling eggs on television. She ted the pan from the burner and en lowcred it, to adjust the heat nd the scrambling process, then the final moment arrived, she rcelerated her tempo to make the gs come to just the right point. ers is an extremely good method, ovided you have the patience d dexterity.

Scrambled eggs can be so delious, so creamy and rich and gy, if I may use the word, that it too bad we don't use them more, ney combine well with many ings—chopped santéed mushoms, finely chopped ham, crisp icon bits, little slices of sausage, shly grated Parmesan or Grure cheese, chopped herbs, finely opped peeled and seeded tomaes—as well as being perfectly lendid on their own.

Depending upon the number of gs to be scrambled, I like to use small or large Teflon-coated pan. have a cast-aluminum Tefloned 9-inch omelet pan with unded sides that I use for up to to 5 cggs and a 10-inch pan for ger quantities, which are harder make. I disagree completely th those who say you can scrame one egg well. It is an impossility.

For Scrambled Eggs 1 ink you should gauge at least 2 gs per person. Add salt, freshly ound black pepper, and 1 or 2 shes of Tabasco, and then beat htly with a fork. For lighter ambled eggs, I beat in 1 teason of water for every two eggs. lon't like cream or milk added to rambled eggs, but if I want them traordinarily rich, I mix in softed butter, as I will describe er on.

If I am adding ham or bacon, I ould use 2 slices of Canadian con about 3 inches in diameter d 2 pieces of ham of the same e and ½ inch thick; precook it htly, cut into thin shreds, and s into the pan with a tablespoon 2 of butter. Let this warm over v heat, then add for two servgs, 4 beaten eggs and, as you do, crease the heat to medium high. soon as the coagulation starts, ake pushing strokes with a rubr or wooden spatula so you get rled curds. I'm not quite as defite in my movements as Julia Child. I lift the pan off the burner from side to side with a sort of a circular motion, while pushing with the spatula. As the heat in the cooking eggs increases, the curds form much faster, and there you have to remove the pan from the heat and work faster with your pushing. That's the ticklish point. You have to know the exact moment to cease applying any heat and rush your eggs from pan to plate, or they will be overcooked, hard, coarse-textured and disagreeable.

Now if you want very rich eggs, as you push cards in the pan add little bits of softened butter, which will melt in and give you delicious, heavily buttered scrambled eggs such as you have seldom experienced. In some places they are called "buttered eggs," and that's a very good term.

If you are adding chopped herbs or mushrooms, lace them in as you scramble the eggs so they become part of the amalgamation of the creamy curds. Of course, there is nothing wrong with adding chopped parsley or chives or other bits and pieces after you have transferred the eggs from the pan to a plate or platter.

In case you have never tried the combination, try scrambled eggs with sliced smoked fish for your next Similary brunch or luncheon. A platter of smoked salmon, smoked eel, smoked sturgeon, or smoked whitefish, with lemon wedges, good rolls or bagels, and a luige pile of creamy eggs—that's good eating. If you like, you can scramble the eggs at the table in an electric skillet or chafing dish, guiding them to a perfect conclusion as you chat with your guests.

I have had, in my time, memorable meals of scrambled eggs with fresh truflles, scrambled eggs with eaviar and other glamorous things, but to me, there are few things as magnificent as scrambled eggs, pure and simple, perfectly cooked and perfectly seasoned.

RICE FOR A SALAD SWITCH

How often do you even encounter a rice salad? Even those who love rice with Chinese, Japanese, and Indian food, who serve it as a starch with poached fish, or broiled chicken, or beef Stroganoff, or as a dessert, never seem to think of it as salad material.

The success of a rice salad depends, of course, on the rice. You need fluffy well-drained rice with each kernel separate, rice that can be held over. I'm not going to give Continued on next page

The simplest of all rice salads is the one the Italians often serve with vitello tonnato, just plain flufly rice tossed well with oil, lemon juice or vinegar, salt, and freshly ground black pepper, garnished with a bit of chopped parsley. It's delicious with other cold meats, or with cold meat loaf, cooled herbed chicken, or turkey.

For the next kind of Rice Salad. you mix in crisp diced vegetables. Cook 1 cup raw rice by your favorite method, then toss gently with 2 or 3 tablespoons oil.

Add 1 cup finely chopped green onion or red Italian onion, 1 cup peeled, seeded, and finely diced cucumber, ½ cup seeded and finely diced green or red pepper, I cup peeled, seeded, and chopped tomato, and chopped fresh basil and parsley to taste. Toss well with a vinaigrette dressing made with 5 parts olive oil to 1 part lemon juice or wine vinegar, salt, and freshly ground black pepper. Keep well cooled (not chilled) until serving time. Arrange on a bed of greens and garnish with rings of pepper, strips of green onion, and thin slices of tomato. This is superb with foods from the outdoor grillsteaks, chops, chicken, or boned and butterflied leg of lamb.

Salade Orientale is not just a salad but an elaborate one-dish meal. To serve eight, cook 1½ to 2 cups rice until bitily tender (not mushy). Drain and season with salt and freshly ground black pepper. Toss gently with 2 or 3 tablespoons oil, using two forks. Leave to cool. Meanwhile, cut 1½ cups cooked shrimp into smallish pieces, leaving a few whole ones for garnish. Combine with 1 cup crabmeat and, if you like, ½ to 1 cup mussels, which have been steamed with white wine and water (or use the canned mussels from France or Scandinavia). For an alternate seafood mixture, you might have bite-size chunks of cooked lobster or lobster tails or raw bay scallops with either shrimp or mussels. To either seafood mixture, add ½ cup finely cut celery, 1/2 cup finely chopped green or red onion, and ½ cup peeled, seeded, and finely diced cucumber. Toss with the rice and vinaigrette sauce made with 4 parts olive oil to 1 part wine vinegar, 2 tablespoons chopped fresh or 1 teaspoon dried tarragon, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, and salt and pepper to taste. Garnish with the whole shrimp, and serve on greens. With this unusual salad have Melba toast made from rve bread, or hot French bread and sweet butter.

You can mix meat in your Rice Salad, too. To the same amount of oil-tossed rice, add 1½ cups finel diced cold boiled or roast beef, cup finely chopped red onion, cup dieed celery, I cup coarsel chopped hard-boiled egg, and cup pecled, seeded, and choppe tomato. Toss well and dress wit a vinaigrette sance to which yo have added 1 crushed or choppe garlic clove, blended well with th oil. Or use instead 1½ cups col roast pork with ½ cup finely dice celery and ½ cup finely diced cris green apple. Omit the other ingre dients, and don't put garlic in th dressing. Let either salad stand fe an hour or so in the refrigerato toss again, heap on a bed of water cress, and garnish with sliced to matoes or cherry tomatoe chopped parsley, and a little chopped thyme. For a heartic meal, arrange a ring of stuffed dev iled eggs around the edge of th salad bowl, and have crisp bread or toast, and perhaps a hot vegeta ble dish for balance, such as spir ach soufflé or green beans with a monds and bits of erisp bacon. The art of unwinding with an after-dinner drink

"Getting to know what you like for producing that after-dinner sigh of relief is part of the game of becoming a connoisseur"

by Henry McNulty

st. G. allanis was a marclous Churchillan Greek of the days before the Coluncls stirred up that beautiful country. He was bigger than life. linge, lumorous, human, and the epitome of the philosophy of "unlaxing" after dinner with a small libation. As soon as the sun set behind the Acropolis, or over the Aegean. Costa would order his bottle of Greek brandy at his favorite bar where he held court, and he would sit there sharing it and his opinions with friends who passed by until the bottle was

Depending on how many guests he collected, Costa's party might take from a couple of hours until well into the starry Greek night. Then, whatever the hour, he would fold up his unread newspaper and amble off to bed, relaxed to a degree and at peace with the world.

As British doctor, Charles Rob, professor of surgery at London University, told the British Medical Association not long ago, "The best drug for the relief of pain is alcohol... the best treatment is rest... the best rest is sleep... the best way to get to sleep is to relieve pain ... the best way to relieve pain is to give whiskey" (for which you may substitute an unlimited list of other alcoholic delights).

This list should begin with whiskey because that is one of the most ubiquitous of alcohols. There is a magic moment for whiskey, which happens about fifteen minutes after dinner, when whiskey—whether rye, bourbon, or seotch—has practically no peer as a tranquilizer. It is easy to administer, either straight, on the rocks, or in a highball. On the rocks, of course, means several ice cubes in a large old-fashioned glass, over which you pour the whiskey and stir until good and cold. A variation is a Mist with finely chopped ice, adding a twist of lemon if you like.

A highball needs a tull glass, 3 or more ice cubes, the whiskey, and fill with whatever mix you prefer.

In Scotland, Scots drink scotch this way with lemonade, but soda, ginger ale, or water comes as less of a shock to us ordinary mortals.

Getting to know what you like for producing that after-dinner sigh of relief is part of the game of becoming a connoisseur. No eonnoisseur could really be an aleoholic because for him aleohol is only one element in a composite work of art: The drink is only a part of his way of life. There is such a tremendous variety of afterdinner drinks to select from that this "art" is doubly therapeutic. It not only relaxes you, it allows you to exercise your own judgment and maintain your individuality in this day of mass-produced, supermarket conformity.

In addition to whiskey, for example, the after-dinner drinker can choose a brandy-preferably cognac-or a brandy-and-soda. You could sample one of the different fortified wines-port, madeira, marsala, or an old sherry. These, incidentally, keep a long time even if the bottle is opened. There are rum, beer, applejack, and dozens of types of liqueurs made variously with fruit or herb or flower flavors. In fact, there is a sort of Arabian Nights Entertainment of adventure and experiment available if you want to leave the beaten track and make your own discoveries.

Take port, "the Englishman's wine," so called because it was invented by the British in the 15th century to preserve wines shipped to England from Portugal It comes in many styles, from the young tawny to the old, rich, full bodied vintage in the red line, or delicious white ports that can be very dry. Port has its ritials, one a sort of throwback to Greek paganism. A proper Englishman will only pass it at table "with the sun" or clockwise, because "the wine will take offense at being passed the wrong way" and go sour on you!

After-dinner drinking is a worldknown relaxant. The Chinese after-meal beverage is rice wine, which also has its longstanding traditions. At a feast a guest used to be met by a sort of Master of Ceremonies who bowed to him and lead him to the host. After much mutual bowing, the host went to the empty chair where the guest was to sit, pretended to dust it, and raised the guest's eup of wine in a toast. The guest bowed; the host bowed and returned to his own seat. Both bowed and sat down. Nice and slow and relaxing. The Chinese, by the way, are thought to have produced a spirit ealled "alaki" from rice wine as far back as 800 B.C., so they have had time to develop the ceremonial approach to the after-dinner drink.

As after-dinner drinks, liqueurs 11 have been popular in the West for centuries. By "burning wine" in in stills, the medieval alchemist thought he could draw out the living soul and produce an elixir that would cure disease and lengthen life. So the monks got in (on the act and some of the best 1 liqueurs today have been made by monks. Benedictine is one whose dry version, B&B, mixed with brandy, slips easily down the throat. Chartreuse is another. Green chartreuse, at 96 proof, is one of the strongest liqueurs made. If you serve it, or other liqueurs, on the rocks, the sweetness is reduced and their flavors are en-

A novel, if messy, way to take liqueurs has been described as being practiced a hundred years or so ago at the Duke of Mecklenburg-Strehtz's court. The Earl of Effingham, a guest, would sit opposite Lady. Effingham at dinner and feed liqueur chocolates to her by throwing them across the table into her month to the vast amuse ment of the Duke's pals.

France has lundreds of types

I my it will receive.

SWING-A-WAY because people open cans

f liqueurs, including Izarra with a Armagnae base and Basque erbal flavor. But Italy manages o produce a few seore, too. Probbly the best known are Strega, with a taste like Chartreuse, made from a mixture of seventy or more erbs, and Galliano, which claims to be the top selling liqueur in merica. Galliano is alliteratively urified through "fossil flower filters," and converts an ordinary crewdriver (½ orange juice, ½ odka) into a Wallbanger if you blash a bit of it on top.

Among the best of distilled postrandial drinks are the fruit branies. Even the most stuffed-up hay ever sufferer can hardly fail to njoy the powerful aroma of a poire William, made from the rmented juice of William pears, and usually aged in wooden casks util both the fragrance and the rength are potent.

Another delicious fruit brandy is alvados, like an aged applejack, raight, or on the rocks, or in a ghball. You can enjoy an entirely alvados evening meal before vou eal away to bed by sautéeing icken chunks in butter, salt, id pepper, then baking them in medium oven for half an hour. ou enormously improve the hole by ponring a wineglassful ounces) of Calvados over it and ming the affair. After the flame es down, add another wineglassl of cream, stirring it into the ices, and serve. Then you finish with a "Normandy Omelette."

l Nacanandy Omelotte i teaspaaaful of Calcadas n a 3-egg aix, with a illing af lightly caaked yydes aad eceam.

ash down all with a sip or two old Calvados as a nighteap.

Liqueurs can be used to lift the te of fruit salad desserts to gher planes—apples in applek, cherries in kirseh, pears in ire William, raspberries in framise, plums in slivovitz, apricots brandy, prunes in Armagnae d peaches in almondy Amaretto Saronno-to name some combitions you can count on. You can o count on liqueurs to give a new ieh to ice creams and sherbetshlúa over chocolate, Vandernt or Cheri-Suisse over vanilla, va (the vodka liqueur) over tachio, erème de cassis over pberry sherbet or triple see over reapple. All these desserts can followed by more of the same its liquid form.

Quality after-dinner liqueurs are de with natural ingredients.

Some houses even blend them specially for VIP customers. One such was King Edward VII. King's Ginger Liqueur was made for him by Berry Bros. & Rudd, that "aneient and authoritative source of wine lore" in London, whose shop has hardly changed in 150 years. The King's doctor asked BB&R if it "eould produce something warming for His Majesty to take after his winter morning's drive in his new motor ear." BB&R did and the result successfully did the trick for the King. Its spicy ginger flavor is still an excellent stimulant on a cold night after a great dinner. A similar pepper-upper is Leroux's Ginger Flavored Brandy.

On a warm night, of course, nothing says your "pousse cafe" has to be a liqueur. A cooling after-dinner glass of chilled French champagne makes a lovely end to the day. Or a Black Velvet if you want something more substantial.

A Black Velvet—a tamblec last filled with stout, then filled with cald champagae, paared slawly so as not ta make the glass occoflore.

Beer itself is a congenial afterdinner beverage, and at a maximum of about 7 percent alcohol, it is conducive to longer summer evening chats, sometimes, than more alcoholic wines or spirits. For that matter, a simple glass of wine, either red or white, and either of those with or without a cube or two of ice, can be a friendly and relaxing nightcap.

However, rum and coffee have an affinity for each other that seems an almost perfect combination at the end of a meal or of the day. The French make a "cafe frappé au rhum" that fits this bill. For it, you must make a very strong coffee (the French make theirs with 6 tablespoons coffee to 5 demitasses water for 4 small coffees), 4 teaspoons powdered sugar, 4 tablespoons rum, ice.

Put the ice in a shaker, add the sugar, then the hot coffee, and rum. Shake fortissimo. Pour into small highball glasses—which should produce a beautiful frothy head. Serve immediately. The coffee must be super strong because ice, as usual, cuts down the strength of its aroma. The amount of sugar can be altered to suit your taste. White rum is best for this.

Whatever you finally decide is the thing to drink after dinner, don't forget that quantity is no substitute for quality. The best is none too good to sleep on.

The hand that rocks the cradle can lay the hardwood floor.

How California vintners serve their own wines

Terrific tips and inventive recipes

California's wine growers are, naturally, enthusiastic wine drinkers. by Jane Ellig They enjoy wine, invariably pick it for an apéritif, and make a point of tasting a wide variety of wines with lunch or dinner.

dent. William Dieppe, who sips his own Flor Timo, a drivible drivi Champagne is, of course, the favorite aperitif of Jamie and Jack Davies, who make California's great Schramsberg champagne. They find the best nibble to accompany champagne is nuts. "The Blane de Noir has the richness that makes it stand up as an aperitif and fresh, smoked or salted at-monds or walnuts are the only accompaniments needed." With the Chinese food that Jamie Davies likes to cook, they drink a Pinot Chardonnay, often from Stony Hill Vineyard. For dessert Mrs. Davies likes to serve fresh strawberries splashed with Crémant Demi See together with more of this new creamy champagne in a flute. "It has a slight sweetness that complements the fruit."

John Parducci pours Parducci Sylvaner Riesling over fresh aprieots or peaches for dessert; use about 2 ounces per serving.

For a before-lunch drink, Joseph Heitz of Heitz Cellars likes to serve half orange jnice and half champague mixed. For an afternoon party he serves a pitcher of cool dry sherry (a fifth) and stirs into it a small can of concentrated lemon juice.

Louis M. Martiai sips a dry sherry-likes it chilled and sometimes over ice.="Gewürztraminer makes a good apéritif, too. I often pour it over ice for a lighter drink," says Mr. Martini, who drinks wine with dinner and forgets about after-dinner drinks. His own favorites: Cabernet Sauvignon, Pinot Noir, Zinfandel, for reds; Riesling. Chardonnay, and Folle Blanche, for whites. "I don't try to match food and wine. Lehoose whatever I feel like that day." However, he pinpoints Folle Blanche and Chardomay as particularly good with fish; Riesling with chicken; Zinfandel with lamb, and Cabernet or Pinot Noir with steaks.

A Pinot Blane or Pinot Chardonnay is the apéritif choice of Carl Wente of Wente Bros. together with dry sherry or sometimes a vermonth on the rocks. In the summer, a wine cooler; in the winter mulled wine is made up when friends come by.

Mrs. Wente's Mulled Wine: Make a simple sgrup by boding to cup water and 1/1 cap sugar. Add 12 lemon, sliced: 2 cianamoa sticks: 3-1 cloves. Pour over 1 bottle of Weate's Petite Sirah or Zinfandel (or any red burguindy oc claret, but not a Pinot Noir-that's too good for malled wine). Heat. do aot boil. Straia, serve ia glass cups: to be faacy add ciaaaaaaa stick.

"If you're a musician, you don't want to listen to your own music all the time." says Mr. Wente, who tastes wine from other people's cellars. Almost half the wine they drink is from other wineries to keep abreast of what others are doing and simply to enjoy.

Alfred Fromm of Fromm and Sichel distributors of Claristian Brothers agrees. "It's a pleasure and important to compare and see what everyone else is producing." As an apéritif, his glass of wine might as easily be a Moselle as a

Napa Valley Johannisberg Rielling, or it might be a wine cocktallalf wine and half soda or sprinwater. "Red wine, claret, or burgundy diluted with a little sod water makes a pretty and refreshing aperitif," he says. For particle II make a champagne punel

Mr. Froma's Champague Paach: Shake 1½ omaces Christian Brothers Califocnia brandy with 1 onace lemon jaice and a tenspoon of sugar with ceached ice. Strain info a tall glass, add 2 large ice cubes, and fill up with champagne. Stir slightly.

Donn Chappellet, who make some fine wines in his spectacula Chappellet mountain vineyare "wouldn't dream of mixing them. Mollie and Donn Chappellet lik to drink a Riesling or Chenin Blan as an apéritif, earry it on with summer soup, a cold chicken folunch; then serve their own Cabernet Sauvignon at the end of the meal with a selection of wonderfulocal cheeses.

"Don't chill white wine mor than an hour," says Robert Traver of Mayneanus, who drink white wine or a wine cocktail. If likes an Ash Blond: 20 parts drivermouth to 1 part sweet vermouth, over ice with a twist clemon, or a Veronica: 1 part drivermouth and 4 parts tonic, over ice with a twist of lemon.

John Pedroncelli adds an iccube to a glass of Pedroncell Zinfandel Rosé. "The wine i young and fruity and will accept the chilling."

"The whole purpose of wine is to give pleasure," says Gerale Asher of Monterey Vheyard "Before dinner I always serve light wine and don't offer a choice Robert Monday! Funu Blanc Mirasson Monterey Riesling Bendleu Vlucyard Johannia berg Riesling are all good aperit wines; they're light, dry, and hav personality. I never drink the sam with all the California wine people, we're always tasting."

"The ham mousse recipe is another that looks pretty [see recipe]. It is easy to make even from canned ham. The mousse should be served with a green mayonnaise full of herbs. The ham seems very pink since the eream in the mousse makes the ham lighter than it would be anyway.

Buffets: Delicious dishes you make yourself. "We should all eat even better and good recipes are the key. The recipes I like the best are always the simplest and one can do them oneself.

"In choosing dishes for a buffet, try to find things that are not very expensive, have a good appearance, and can be eaten with one hand. That means salads, rice dishes both hot and cold, one hot dish. Wild rice is the one rice that I would recommend serving hot rather than eold. A wonderful rice salad topped with pistachios is made like this: Dice tomatoes, a few green peppers, some raisins, black olives, and tuna fish. Add to cold rice, toss with a simple French dressing. Any buffet can use several salads. A second salad is a vegetable salad served with vinaigrette sauce on several different cold vegetables of different colors-string beans, carrots, tomatoes, bean shoots, arranged in four sections in a salad bowl. And always have a plain green salad of different lettuces. One hot dish is always necessary, even in the summer. A soup will do or Italian pastas with meat inside. Our moussaka [see recipe] is a good recipe that can be made ahead and reheated.

"Then for dessert-cheese, fruit, and cake. One black cake and one white spliced together make a handsome arrangement [see recipe]. For an economical fruit dessert, here's what to do. Bny cans of mixed fruit, eans of mangoes or litchis for an exotic touch and a ready-made, store-bought white sugar symp, heavy, plain, and fattening but the perfect way to marinate afl the Irnit. Then buy fresh oranges, apples, and bananas so that the whole thing will seem fresh and mix everything together and chill. It's not necessary to add liquor. The cake is fautastic with this.

The other dish that is good for a buffet and that people will eat even for a main course or dessert is a cheese that's served in a salad bowl and easy to get at with one hand. There is one way to do it in winter, another in simmer. In the winter use portions of blue cheese, Gorgonzola, Roquefort, cream cheese, and butter and mash all together and add some Armagnac. After it's chilled in the refrigerator, put radisfies and celery around it for color and serve with crackers. In the summer substitute a water-based cheese such as cottage cheese for the cream cheese and leave out the butter, and when it's put in the freezer it gets a consistency almost like sherbet."

The buffet. "The buffet, in some form, is the dinner party of the future. A friend of mine, Lanfranco Rasponi, is quoted as saying in Alvin Toffler's book, Future Shock, that the formal seated dinner party is finished because everyone travels so much. How can you seat a dinner when the plane coming from London will be late? If one works from a precise seating arrangement, it's also hard to add people at the last minute who have just come to town, and it's also diffieult always to come out with an equal number of men and women. The buffet is a relatively new thing in France. It has existed for years but for the time being it's seen mostly in the houses of people who do a lot of traveling and entertain people from all over the place. But when most French families entertain, they do a marvelous meal with three or four courses as people in France expect to eat more, and as the women know how to cook very well, they also expect something unusual when they are asked somewhere for lunch or dinner. When I talk about buffet, however, I don't necessarily mean not sitting at a table. As it is less comfortable to eat if one is sitting on a couch and eating off a low table in front, the best thing is to set up lots of tables and let people sit where they will. It is perhaps a good idea to arrange the seating with cards at some of the little tables so that everyone gets to know someone new, because at dinners that are not seated most people tend to sit with people they know.

"What to serve on a buffet really brings up what I call the cuisine of the future—something Fauchon has been researching for four years with two chefs. Their only purpose is to devise recipes for dishes that can be made, let's say in the morning or the day before a party and that get better when rewarmed, or can be cooked mostly ahead and finished off at the last moment. The new kind of catering will be dishes in party quantities that are three-quarters or two-thirds cooked and then the hostess will be told how much more they must be cooked before they are served."

self interest sworn to keep up the illusion for the sake of our young er brothers and sisters. There was one year when the heat was really on, and my lather's black tronsers had been glimpsed once too often beneath his red robe. Doubting Kevin, then five, decided triumphantly that he would test the truth by watching whether my father was ever actually present in the drawing-room at the same time as Father Christmas. If he was once again invsteriously absent answering a convenient telephone call, conclusive proof would be had of the nonexistence of our necturnal visitor. Panic stations—followed by the masterly decision that being the eldest and already very tall, I should play the role for once. so, duly red-cheeked and whitebearded, with gumboots to complete my outfit, I outwitted the sharp-eved child, and my father survived another year without discovery.

That was one role that fell to me by virtue of my position as eldest of the family. But I must admit that in general my superior age caused me nothing but auguish at Christmastime. The trouble was that I had already reached the ageof fountain pens and checks, all lughly welcome but not particular ly bulky, when my younger broth ers and sisters were still being inundated with vast building bricks. mighty engines, and large dolls 1 learned to dread the arrival of Father Christmas's sack, until I grew up to have present-giving boy friends. I then used to instill into them the necessity of giving meenormous but not necessarily expensive-gifts; as my brothers were then passing in their turn into the check and penkinfe belt, honor was 1 restored. All the same, I have not invsell continued the tradition of the sack with my own children, We heap all our presents round the tree in the hall the night before Christmas, and a great deal of paper-prodding goes on thereafter. invsterious rustlings are heard, as of mice, as corners are surreptitiously torn open. Why Adjust-a-Drape cleaning costs less.

Your draperies represent a substantial investment. You'll want to keep them for as long as you can because you've taken great pains to select just the right size, eolor and fabric.

And you don't want to be forced into buying new ones when such things as shrinkage distortion . . . and drooping . . occur in cleaning

But with the exclusive Adjust-a-Drape process, exact length and even hemlines are assured because there's no shrinkage or distortion. Your draperies are returned the same length as when you brought them in

And just as important, Adjust-a-Drape is the highest quality process available today. It revives freshness and color brilliance for that like-new look you'll want to keep.

Sure, you II spend a little more for Adjust-a-Drape, but in the long run it costs you less because it's likely you ll keep your draperies longer. It makes good sense to protect your considerable investment in elegant draperies by having them cleaned only relations that such children do not share with the rest of their brothers and sisters. With eight of us, and four or five godparents apiece, there were some notable successes and some notable failures. The failures are best forgotten, as indeed their neglected godchildren learned to forget them, but oh how we envied those of us who had drawn lucky in the lottery of our parents' friends! How we longed, for example, to be the godehild of Evelyn Waugh: my sister Catherine was the fortunate one, and she never failed to receive some strange, unexpected but welcome gift, and one of his characteristic hand-written postcards, inscribed with an equally characteristic tart message. On one occasion Thomas had failed to turn up for a dinner engagement: came Christmas, and a charming antique brooch for Catherine, plus the message: "Stick the pin into your brother Thomas.

We certainly soon discovered that the wealthiest godparents did not always give the best presents -among the many lessons one learns early in a large family being the fact that the rich are not always generous. My own godmother, the famous and outspoken Lady Astor, had neglected me for years when she encountered me at a party. "Are you going to grow up to be as ugly as your father?" was her opening question, and one I found quite impossible to answer. But as I stood there in embarrassed silence, she spontaneously took the bracelet off her wrist and gave it to me as a Christmas present from which we learned that the rich are not predictable either

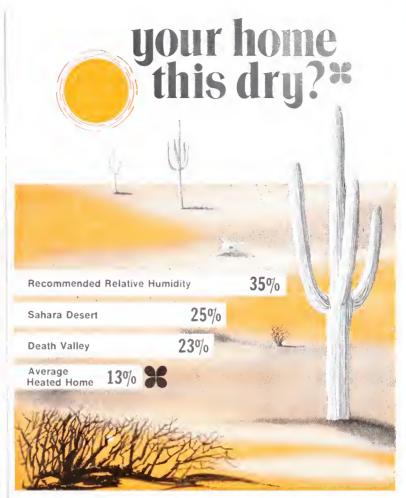

After the visit of Father Christmas would come the Nativity play, a great tradition in our family as hildren, and one which my own children have continued. We never had any problems with casting the Infant Jesus-for just as one child was outgrowing the role. along would come another baby, apparently expressly arrived to fill it. Special versions of the Christmas story would be written for the occasion, which may not have been theologically correct, but were certainly full of spirit and would do well, some of them, I feel, in the progressive theatre today. I recall in particular "Silent Night???" a masterpiece about all the angels quarreling, written by Judith at the age of twelve. And it was not only the angels who quarreled, the actors too were known to rebel against their parts, even on the stage itself. Of this the classic instance was the revolt of my voungest child Orlando, a couple of years back. Cast as the Infant Christ, he was intended as the centerpiece of the last scene, when all available members of the family, as shepherds, animals, kings, Herods (plenty of them, it seemed), and the like would erv out in unison: "Hail Jesus, King of the lews!" Unfortunately Orlando was going through a period of intense elephant-identification, and had, if any sense was to be got out of him at all, to be addressed as Babar, King Babar, or some other elephantine equivalent. pinch line of the play was duly reached. But at the words "Hail ." Orlando let out an in-Tesus dignant cry: "I'm not Jesus, I'm Babar," However his brothers and sisters, brought up in the tough school of family plays, were more than up to the emergency. Without a pause, they slid into a new routine: "Hail Babar, King of the Jews!" And the tiny tyrant was Increasingly I realize that large families will soon be a thing of the past. Therefore to have been the eldest of eight and then mother of six may well soon make me a type of historical curiosity. Already I am often asked by those who have not experienced it-what was it really like to be a member of a large family? It's exactly that sort of question that always sets me off thinking about the subject of Faniily Christmas. I suppose that is the moment at which large families are at their most rampant: in its way Christmas is the quintessence of the whole family business. No doubt the whole of Family Christmas, like the plays, is a pretty tough school to be trained in, but for those who have experienced it, certainly no other type of Christmas will ever measure up to it. At this moment, writing in advance, and feeling sentimental about it, I am inclined to quote some lines of Walter Scott from Marmion:

"Heap on more wood! The wind is chill

But let it whistle as it will We'll keep our Xmas merry still."

But come the night of December 25, it's more likely I will be back with my mother, muttering thankfully: "Christmas comes but once a year." Just so long as it does come.

mases of your friendship on their tree. Take a look at customs from other lands and borrow them to enhance your own traditions.

Eat and drink with friends! Bring verve to an otherwise conventional menu by trying surprise substitutions: Hot cranberry pie seasoned with brown sugar and spice... Pumpkin custard instead of a pie... Turnip and rutabaga soufflé in place of the mashed mix... Sage cheese with apple pie.

For an informal holiday supper serve corned beef basted with supple syrup and roasted . . . Or meatballs in a cranberry, tomato sauce. For a memorable brunch or lunch, peel baking potatoes, core and stuff with sausage or sausage meat, top with bacon, bake.

If you're having a glögg, save some of it to make a great salad to serve with cold meat. Mix the glögg with rum-soaked raisins, cooked cranberries, and enough gelatin to set.

Vary your wassail. If it's dry and light you want, combine 1 part dry vermouth with 2 parts white wine and the juice of 2 limes; if slightly headier, use sweet vermouth and red wine. If nostalgia is the key, try The Mulls (shades of our founding fathers)—three bottles of either claret, port, sherry, or madeira mixed with 6 teaspoons powdered mixed cloves, nutmeg, and mace, 6 cups water, sugar to taste. Bring to a boil and ladle it out hot. Have a frostily rimmed punch bowl by painting the edge with egg white and coating with coarse sugar—white or colored.

Have an unexpected party—a stopping-after-shopping open house with a flow of chowder, cheese, and bread. Or a drop-in shish kebab affair with all the makings ready to be skewered and broiled over a fireplace hibachi by each gnest—or on individual hibachis.

To raise money for a worthy cause you might even have a wrapping room where for a small fee paper and ribbons would be provided for the shopper to take home or use on the spot; foreign newspapers (handsome with red tape); wallpaper leftovers; crocheted varn "ribbon"; notary seal stickers; whatever is musual.

And for the happiest Christmas possible, share your ynletide festivities with someone who might otherwise be alone. It will double your pleasure.

COOK'S KNIFE

8" PARING KNIFE

BECAUSE WE PURCHASED THE ENTIRE FACTORY PRODUCTION ON FAMOUS MOLYBDENUM VANADIUM STEEL KNIVES WE HAVE REDUCED THE PRICE TO $9.98.

Simply here are the facts:

1. MOLYBDENUM VANADIUM STEEL (very expensive) makes our knives razor sharp. You will cut slices so thin you'll see through them. Carve a roast wafer thin. Cut a soft spongy tomato to perfection. Slice an onion so close that you'll read the small logo on the blade so close that you'll read the small logo on the blade while in the onion.

2. MOLYBDENUM VANADIUM STEEL makes our gourmet knives virtually indestructible. Please, please don't sharpen our knives... Experts say our edges will Never Ever have to be sharpened the old way. Simply rub them over any china plate and the razor honed blades will be restored. It is reported that no other knife in the world whose edge is so perfect can be restored so easily. Metallurgists say they won't bend, dull, rust or lose their hardness ever.

3. MOLYBDENUM VANADIUM STEEL makes these knives durable and tough. Cut through big bones easily and effortlessly. No job too tough. Glide through big turkeys, Tough but flexible cuts slices close to bone and then cuts bone in half cleanly.

and then cuts bone in half cleanly.

5. OUR GUARANTEE. We have a super fantastic product at a great price and we are willing to guarantee these gourmet knives unconditionally. If you don't agree that our knives are the best cutlery offer anywhere return them for full purchase price anytime. Not ten days, not thirty days, not even ten years. Return them anytime for full refund. Save our unconditional guarantee and maybe your great grandchildren can refund your sets. We're not worried because even three or four generations from now these knives will be razor sharp, free of rust and as beautiful and practical as they are free of rust and as beautiful and practical as they are

6. OUR PRICE. Simply our price is $9.98. Yes, you could pay up to forty dollars more to get gourmet knives of this quality.

SUPPLIES ARE LIMITED

We promise to rush your order if you order now. We must let you know that supplies are truly limited and at our truly remarkably low price these gourmet sets are sure to go fast.

Razor sharp and pricise, the Total Edge Knives cut meat, onions, luncheon meats, vegetables, cheese-anything-paper thin.

On ordinary knife, edge is just a fraction of total surface. On the Total Edge Knives, the entire blade is the cutting edge.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

OUR MOLYBDENUM VANADIUM KNIVES ARE unconditionally guaranteed to be your sharpest, toughest, longest, lasting knives. Designed to last FOR-EVER. Guaranteed against manufacturer's defect, rusting, pitting, bending, staining. This will be the finest set of knives you've ever owned or return them and we will promptly replace or refund your full purchase price, postage and handling excluded, no questions asked.

We guarantee your complete satisfaction in every respect ... or your money back!

Every year folks write to tell us how pleased their friends are with gifts from Harry and David. Our "secret"? It's the personal touch that's part of every gift we make Harry and I grow our own fruit, bake our own cakes, put up our own preserves - even make our own baskets. If you could see the care with which our gifts are put together, you'd know why the quality is guaranteed.

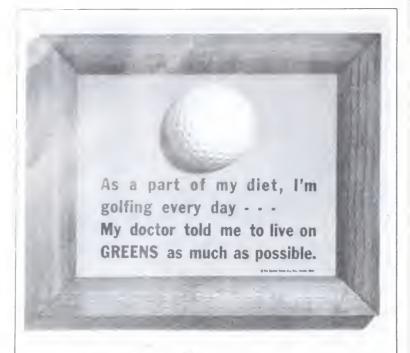

Every one of our gifts is custom-made and hand-packed right here at our Bear Creek Orchards. Folks who won't settle for less know they can rely on Harry and me for gifts that are in perfect taste - and delivered to the right place, at the right time, in perfect condition. We guarantee it: you, and those to whom you send Harry and David gifts, must be completely satisfied in every respect, or we will promptly send a replacement gift or refund your money, whichever you prefer.

We do all the wrapping, addressing, even ship with your personal greetings at no extra cost and get your gifts in the mail at the right time, whether it's one gift or 1,000. And vou'll enjoy a wonderful carefree Christmas - basking in showers of thanks for months

EASY TO ORDER Use the order blanks at right, or just send us your list. Enclose check or money order (no C.O.D.'s please). Tell us how to sign your greetings for each gift. All prices include delivery

Each month ... A look into the nostalgic past through authentic photos, drawings, cartoons, comics, memories, features, songs, poems, letters, ads, etc., from the turn of the century up to a decade or so ago.

You'll relive those days and events through the pages of this one and only magazine of its kind.

For about the cost of a good movie, you can receive this big entertainment value each month for the next 12 months! We guarantee . . . that you will be thrilled beyond words . . . or you can have your money back!

Like old time comics?

You'll find complete comic pages from the past featuring such characters as:
• Barney Google • Happy Holligan • Boob McNutt • Tillie the Toiler • Little Annie Rooney • Little Nemo — plus many, many others.

We're embarrassed by the kind words in letters such as these Frankly it's a good thing that "Good Old Days" is not harmful to our health because it certainly is habit-forming also hard lo find on news stands too. I'm breaking loose with the four dollars for a year's subscription. I believe anything as good as you've got deserves support. It's refreshing to see a magazine that can sell itself, without the use of sexy covers, lurid stories, and above all, a lack of violence.

Honestly, reading G O D gives a feeling of peace no drug can match!

COLDinthe BONES?

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE who ordinarily suffer from the "miseries" due to damp, cold changeable weather are wearing the remarkable new underwear knitted of THERMOLACTYL fiber by Damart". Here's the reason! THERMOLACTYL, an amazing new miracle-like fabric, not only brings extra warmth . . . more important, it soothes those aches and pains that are caused by dampness that "goes right through you", by sharp drops in temperature, by winds that knife into your marrow.

ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, underwear made of THERMO-LACTYL retains and reflects back your body warmth. What's more, it helps promote circulation in those tiny blood vessels just below the skin. Easy to wash. No perspiration problems either . . . since THERMOLACTYL underwear won't absorb moisture; instead, perspiration evaporates rapidly. You stay warm and dry.

Discover for yourself its wonderful softness—learn how snug and warm you feel even on coldest, B-r-r-r days!

INDEPENDENT TESTS prove that THERMOLACTYL gives much more warmth than bulky layers of so-called "protective" fabrics.

WHY WAIT ANOTHER DAY! Learn why thousands of people who used to have the "miseries" from severe weather praise THERMOLACTYL underwear. It is especially recommended for you folks who dread the aches and pains caused by cold and dampness.

MILLIONS OF DELIGHTED CUSTOMERS. THERMO-

LACTYL underwear is acclaimed throughout the European continent and the chilly damp climate of England. Last year more than a million customers placed repeat orders—the perfect testimonial to THERMOLACTYL underwear effectiveness.

Why do dull, boring, repetitive calisthenics for a slimmer, trimmer figure — when this "pedal while you relax" way will do the trick a lot more pleasurably . . and just as effectively! Our fun-slanted Cycle Exerciser lets you lie down, stretch out, and pedal away those inches in comfort!

Lie Down . . . And Shape Up!

Lie Down . . . And Shape Up!

Cycle Exerciser makes the job fun . . . because you don't even have to think about the work you're doing. Just stretch out on the comfortable full-length vinyl mat, and go through the motions—indoors or out—while you catch up on your reading, watch TV, sunbathe, or even keep time to music on stereo or radio. A few minutes of pedaling a day helps invigorate you, and tones your muscles as you slim down. Day by day, you can stretch out your cycling time so that lab melts away even faster. You'll feel healthier, peppier . . . and have more getup-and-go!

STOP A THIEF BEFORE HE STARTS

Brand your valuables. Post a warning on your door. Show any thief he'd be wasting his time.

Now, at very low cost, you can safeguard your valuables ... and possibly ave your family from physical harm with special family protection kit.

You get: (1) the famous Burgess electric-powered, carbide-tipped engraving tool. (2) Stop Thief stickers for valuables that you "brand;" (3) OPERATION IDENTIFICATION warning stickers for front door or window. Complete instruc-

In minutes, you can easily engrave your personal "brand" (special number) on any camera, sewelry, TV, bicycle, typewriter, hi-fi, etc. "Brand" can't be erased. Makes valuables almost impossible to "fence," and easy for police to get them back to you.

Cost is only $9.95 for full kit. Could save you thousands of dollars and a lifetime of precious peace of mind. Order now while price is still this low. Keep your home a safe haven in an unfriendly world.

How OPERATION IDENTIFICATION works:

- Engrave driver's license number on all valuables, portables, loanables.
- · Display window stickers, making your home "off-limits" to burglars
- If valuables are stolen, your personal "brand" makes them easily returnable.
- Program is fully police endorsed.

Gardener's Notes

by James Fanning

hrysanthemums can be trained to almost any desired shape. Entire tea houses with walls, chairs, table, vase, all of chrysanthemums grown on wires, show up in Japanese-inspired exhibits. For most of us, a sturdy tree with a sphere of bloom is enough-for a start. Mrs. Enid A. Haupt (see page 110) tries something different every year. Small trees and horizontal cascades can be done outdoors in a long summer. Those planned to be over 3 feet need an earlier start in a lighted basement, enclosed porch, cold frame, or greenhouse. Cultivars that combine quick growth, stem strength, and branching gusto are essential, ruling out most of the bedding varieties. The Magie Mum series, cascade, or bonsai cultivars are the ones to ask for. Your local nurseryman may order them from specialists like Bristol Nurseries, Bristol, Conn.; Thon's Garden Mums, Crystal Lake, Ill.; King's Chrysanthemums, Hayward, Cal.; Sunnyslope Gardens, 8636 Huntington Drive, San Gabriel, Cal. 91775. Mrs. Haupt orders many of her rooted cuttings from the Sunnyslope catalogue.

Rooted cuttings need full sun or good artificial light, regular feeding, a night temperature of at least 62 degrees. By May 1 you should have 10-to-12-inch plants staked in a 6-inch pot of half potting mix and half shredded sphagnum. To keep soil moist, pots need frequent watering. Stake should go right down near the bottom of the pot, with plant stem tied to it every 6 inches with Twist-Ems or the like. Prune side shoots, keeping a few leaves and the growing tip. When plant approaches the final height, pinch to encourage lateral branches. A 2-foot tree pinched at 16 inches will not need a wire ring to support the top. Taller forms must gro through a ring attached to the stake. To make a rm use 10, 12, or 14 gauge wire, overlapped and bour with florist's tape. Cover the ring with chicken wit cut to fit. Diameter can run from 6 inches for wee ing standards to 10 to 14 inches for bigger or mult headed trees. To encourage denseness and the d sired shape, keep pinching off the growing tips-tw leaves out of every four or five leaf joints-and type until ring is full. One last overall pinch should n move all flower buds S to 10 weeks before the c pected blooming date. Mrs. Haupt's grower, Te Bogart, offers these further guidelines: For a 20-inc sphere on a 48-inch standard, attach ring to stake, 36 inches and begin pinching at 28 inches. For 60-incher, put rings at 56 inches, pinch at 48. A plant multihead needs rings of different sizes as tilt, but keep in mind balance and where you war to place the plants. Mrs. Haupt fits hers to an 18-inc windowsill. Weeping forms also need room to grov and display. For a 4- to 5-foot form, three 4-for crisserossed wires going through the stake and rin to make a parasol of six 2-foot spokes. The growin tip is pinched to make six strong branches develop these are tied to the spokes, bent gently downwar as they come into flower. A tip on keeping tall stan dards from tipping: Put a strip of wood flat in the pot, a little above the drainage hole, nailed through the hole to the stake. City gardeners have a special set of problems because of their limited space. Views are blocked by brick walls, neighbors obtrude in odd places, and there is usually too little light for growing healthy plants. However, since cities are the natural home for people of high artistic bent, a great many topnotch designers have applied their talents to solving the problems of city gardens, often with spectacular results, Most of these artfully designed oases are hidden away where they are never seen by the general public, so we owe thanks to Madge Garland for putting together a fine collection in book form. The Small Garden in the City (Braziller, $12.50) has photographs and drawings of a superb double handful, with text to outline the ideas underlying each. Mrs. Garland also goes into the historical background of city gardening, with illustrations ranging from ancient Pompeii to a really far-out voof garden by Le Corbusier.

ow that the indoor gardening season is getting under way, most of us are wondering whether we might do something different this year, just for a change. A small paperback book, 128 Houseplants More You Can Grow (Macmillan, $1.75) has enough new ideas to send even the igided of indoor gardeners into the winter jumping with expectation. Bob Herwig, the author, gis with simple, easy-to-follow instructions for house plant care in general. He goes on to list 28 varieties, showing most of them in color photographs, with explicit directions for the care deeding of each, paying particular attention to individual requirements for light, temperature, adity, and soil. Mr. Herwig's "More" really means something, since he includes more plants almany of us have seen in a lifetime: orange berried nertera, for instance, and the yellow orchid, to the plus unusual varieties of common plants.

Fother paperback addresses itself to the new house plant grower. Greenworks, by Judith Hansan and Sarah Baewald (Collier, $1.95), begins at the beginning, describing exactly how to when your plants need water. The plant lists include such everyday things as prayer plant and idendron, and the instructions for looking after all of these should convert even the most curaged brown-thumber into a producer of greenery who can point with pride at his triumat handiwork.

nce a spa is a watering place, what better designation could there be for an automatic plant watering device? The Inplant Spa is a really clever arrangement, with a pointed ceramic cup sits in the soil and a plastic tube dipping into any nearby container of water. As plant roots or moisture from the soil, water level in the cup goes down, creating a vacuum that draws up to from the container. The length of time a plant will keep itself watered in this way is limited by the size container kept as a reserve. The Inplant Spa is available at garden shops and the ware stores everywhere.

Lilies rank high on the list of bulbs to be planted in fall. They're different from the usual spring-flowering bulbs, though, in that they never go dormant, and should be handled like perennials with as many intact roots as possible. Actually, most lilies have two sets of roots; one below the bulb and another above, growing out of the flower stalk. The stem roots wither and die when the stalk dies in late summer, so any time before the next year's spronts appear is all right for moving the bulbs. The important point is to keep as many of the basal roots as possible; make sure they -and the bulb-do not dry out before they are replanted. Lilies need a deep, humnsy, well-drained soil, and like plenty of light, although it does not have to be direct sunlight. When planting lily bulbs. handle the basal roots carefully as you would the roots of a choice house plant and fill above the bulb with good soil, too, for the stem roots when they appear as part of next season's growth. Ontstanding

You can make your face look as though time was running backwards!

Revealed by an eminent dermatologist (see his word-by-word statement below): How, with the proper scientific instruction, you can literally look ten to twenty years younger than your real age . . . erase wrinkles, blemishes and coarseness . . . and do it all using nothing more than such simple ingredients as water, soap, and (especially) salt!

This is, quite frankly, a vital message about what is perhaps the most revolutionary home-medical-guide ever published on facial care... Jacial beauty renewed facial vouth fis results are so spectacular, its documentation is so overwhelming, and its methods are so vital to vour future life that we must repeat, in full, two more quotes from its pages: "We have only recently acquired the ability to really do something about the more serious changes in appearance that accompany aging.... "In the past, the average person stood very little chance of being able to look younger. Without wealth or the right genes, there was very little hope. The advent of modern skin care has changed all this. Now it is no longer necessary to pamper yourself or be born with good skin. The idle rich no longer have any advantage.... the genes you inherit are no longer a limiting factor, because we can now compensate for even delicate, age-prone skin Thanks to modern research, we now know what causes many of the unattractive problems that appear with age. With this kind of knowledge, we have been able to develop methods that are effective in combatting or solving these problems.

"The practical application of these methods can produce spectacular results. A person can easily

The practical application of these methods can "The practical application of these methods can produce spectacular results. A person can easily look ten to twenty years younger than his or her actual age, and this can be achieved with a minimum of effort. My own interest in this subject was lirst stimulated by an eminent dermatologist who was one of my first teachers. He was not only an early advocate of these new methods, but he practiced them himself. The results were truly impressive. At almost eighty years of age, he appeared to be in his early litties."

Invisible sources of skin inflammations and allergies, that may be running your complexion right now. In other words, how to practice modern acne therapy, right in your own home.

Why you may never have to spend a cent on commercial face-care products again. For two reasons: Because most of them are actually harmful to your skin (see list on page 67). And because none of them could ever do as much for that skin as the almost-costless preparations given to you on page 71.

For example, the best daytime base in the world.

For example, the best daytime base in the world (and you should wear it every minute of every day, to keep the youth-force scaled in your skin) costs only 84g for a six-month supply. And the best night cream you can buy costs slightly moreabout 91g for a six-month supply.

And the best face mask in the world costs 9g a treatment. And the best skin freshener probably costs a penny a day.

costs a penny a day.

And not one of them contains a single ingredient that will unknowingly age your face, or dry out your face, or irritate your face. All they do is pull filth out of that face, at the same time they seal in youth.
