New from Sweden and available by mail-order in America now-a kitchen cabinet system so compact you can literally pack an 8-by-12foot kitchen's worth into the back seat of your car. The "Swedish Star" cabinets have fronts of laminated birch, shown, dark oak, pine, or colors. Choose cabinets, drawers, doors, wall and floor cabinets. Make a kitchen layout and order. Sawhill Furniture, 89 S. 10 St., Minneapolis, Minn. 55403.

How do you cook without intense heat? Microwaves are one way and now there's another-magnetic induction. The new "Fasar" range magnetically transfers energy from below the surface of the range directly into the cooking utensil. The range, which looks a bit like a glass ceramic cooktop, has "tiles" which hold the mechanisms. The surface is heat-free. There is virtually no waste because energy surrounds the pot's shape. Stainlesssteel and cast-iron cookware work-aluminum, copper, and glass won't because they don't conduct a magnetic field. Write Fasar, 2801 Burton Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91504.

IT'S ANYONE'S BAG

All of us know that there's a real knack to the art of shop-pingand here's an exhibition that every shopper will love. The CooperHewitt Museum's new exhibit, "The Shopping Bag: Portable Graphic Art," is a traveling show which opens in New York in December. It will include over 100 colorful and witty shopping bags from all over the world, band-boxes ( precursors of shopping bags), a demonstration of how paper bags are made Funded by the N.Y. State Council on the Arts, Interstate Bag/ Champion International, the show runs Dec. 9-Jan. 27.

GARDEN ART

FRAGRANT GREENERY

Although it is not seen indoors very often, the camphor tree is in the same family as the avocado, that allAmerican favorite house tree. For that matter, so is the cinnamon tree, camphor's kissing cousin. All are southern relatives of the laurel and will do fine on your windowsill given a minimum temperature of 60 degrees.

The cinnamon family, as a whole, likes sandy soil, a rainy season, and warmth To keep plants happy, use a potting mixture of one-third regular rich house plant soil. Warmth they'll have in a sunny spot. As to the rainy season, just water them more frequently and heavily during the spring and summer months, and you'll have strikingly handsome specimens of this unusual and fragrant broad-leafed evergreen.

As to harvesting cinnamon sticks-water the plant heavily for two months or more without allowing the soil to become soggy. Cut off an elder branch, slit it longitudinally, and loosen the bark until it can be gently slipped off. Dry it in the sun for the fragrant and flavorful quills.

WE'VE GOT LIBERTY!

You no longer need the "London connection" to indulge in those wonderful English fabrics. Liberty of London opened its first shop November 21 at 229 E. 60th Street in New York. You'll be able to get cotton and linen upholstery fabrics, drapery fabrics, and a lovely new group of real, old-fashioned glazed chintzes. The American shop has the feeling of small, traditional English drapers and resembles Liberty's smaller shops "Chez Peinture" in Paris and "Liberty Prints" in London.

Liberty's new chintz

What's happening to America's "Main Streets"? In the way of deterioration, a great deal. In the way of preservation, a New Deal. The National Trust for Historic Preservation, a private nonprofit organization that encourages preservation at the grassroots level, is sponsoring the "Main Street Project," a three-year program

This is the time of year when the wild birds in your garden need a handout, so put some food out for them daily. What do they eat? According to the National Audubon Society, just about everything you do! Bread, nuts, meat-tablescraps are fine. But remember to keep feeding them once you've started. To identify your garden guests, there's a new Audubon Society Field Guide to North American Birds. $$ 8.95$, at bookstores.

PLAYING TO THE GALLERIA
When Ruth Kurle decided to expand her professional interest in art to include the inside of her house in Madison, Conn., she turned to friend and neighbor, Kent Bloomer. Professor of Architectural Design at Yale. Bloomer added a handsome, modern porch/galleria onto the front of the house with a shingle façade that blends with the country location and the original building, built in the 20 s by her father. A grent arch of plexiglass overhead concentrates a shadowless, natural luminosity in the two-story, 24-by-30-foot space which is well suited to the display of art. And it converts easily to a family room. Professor Bloomer, also a sculptor, will show some of his work at the gallery beginning Janwary 6. Ruth Kurle Gallery, 244 Boston Post Rd., Madison, Conn. 06443.

THE U.U. Crildren

An engaging little troupe of youngsters from around the worldin a delightful new series of hand-painted porcelain figurines you'll love collecting.

The first si U.N. Children are making their bow in 1979- the International Year of the Child.
Orders will be acce tod only until the end of this year. Collect them all-or jus: choose your favorites.

It takers a chald is mube the stmene orld smile. And who knows more about children, and what makes them tick, than the world's biggest family--the United Nations?

So, when we set out to mark the International Year of the Child-1954-in a precalwd. We were elb.mined by the idea of issuing our own series of porcelai figurines showing children from all over the world.

And here they are-The U.N. Children. The first s in the series, each representing a different countr Each in a situation likely to get a grin from even th sternest of diplomats. Each one individually hani painted. And each bearing our family initials-U.N.tucked away somewhere . . . where you may eve have to hunt for them.

Children like these have always been a favorite sul ject for artists, especially when a touch of humor $i$ called for. And-especially in the form of porcelai figures-they're favorites with collectors, too.

jo the time to start collecting The U.N. Children is w. At just $$ 35$ each, and hand-painted in charming ors, you'll find them hard to resist. And you need ly pay for the first figure now. The others will be ed to you, when they are ready to be sent to you, at : rate of one a month.
ust fill out and return the order form at right by luary 31, 1979. Distribution of the figures will be ndled by Franklin Porcelain, who are supervising ereation of all the figures, which are being made recially for us in Japan.
3ut remember-the first six U.N. Children are issued mark the International Year of the Child. (In tesrony of this fact, you will receive with your figures a ecial Certificate of Authenticity.) After the end of '9 no further orders will be accepted.
in years to come; the 1979 U.N. Children will be ned by other little brothers and sisters. It could well come a whole new collecting tradition. But orders the first six - certain to be most sought after by coltors in the future-will be accepted only during the ning year.
So don't wait any longer. Invite them into your me right now. You'll find they're among the nicest ests you've ever had!

四 EASTLAKE－STYLE  HEADBOARD

We have a very old bedroom set and the bed has an elaborately carved head－ board．Can you furnish us with informa－ tion about its style and where it comes from？

O．B．S．－Tulsa，Okla． Your Eastlake－style bedroom furniture was made in America about the 1880s． The＂sunflower＂panel in the tall head－ board reflects the great popularity of the Aesthetic Movement，as the sunflower （constancy）is one of its three symbols； the lily（purity）and peacock（beauty） are the others．

⿴囗十 FLOW BLUE

For years I have been collecting 19th－ century Staffordshire flow blue，but am rather hazy about the technique used to create this effect．L．K．－Radnor，Pa． Flow blue，associated with underglaze transfer painting，is a technical limita－ tion，as it was difficult to avoid some slight blurring of the lines in a pattern when the glaze was fused over it．To col－ lectors，the blurring seems to add charm and character to the traditional＂blue and white．＂Blue was the color originally used for the ware，because，in the early stages，blue derived from cobalt was the only color which would with certainty survive the high temperature required to frace the execolvas glass

－LAMP OF THE  TWENTIES

I would appreciate it if you would tell me something about this lamp，which we have had for some time．

M．P．－Owensboro，Ky． Your lamp，dating about the 1920 s，be－ longs to a popular class of American table lamps with shades made of what were then called＂Cathedral glass＂panels held in place by strips of lead．The less expensive examples had white－metal bases painted a Roman gold to simulate bronze．Some of these lamps，such as yours，had hand－painted glass shades， often featuring outdoor scenery，and when lighted were very effective．

－JAPANESE

SEA CHEST
This chest was gotten in Japan more than 50 years ago．Can you tell me what it was used for and where it was made？

K．H．－Monterey，Calif． Your sea chest was probably made about the late 18 th or early 19th century on Sado Island，which specialized in sea chests（funa－dansu）．Used by sailors， especially captains，the chests are solidly constructed to withstand rough treatment in a rolling ship on an open sea．The handwrought iron mounts are especially fine and are a vigorous folk－art tradition．

How we topped a great rainge.

We've always been proud of our ranges. But at Whirlpool, we're always looking for ways to make our products even better.

Hence this convenient Whirlpool Cook'N Counter ${ }^{\text {TM }}$ range. We've covered the burners with a counter top made of tempered black glass that resists heat, scratches and breaks. It not only gives you extra counter space, but it gives your kitchen a beautiful clean look. When you're cooking, it folds up conveniently out of your way.

We've also designed this range with a self-cleaning oven. Just set the controls. A special highheat oven cycle reduces most stubborn splatters to a light ash which is easily removed.

We've also improved the oven door heat seal design. We added a custom control panel with easy-to-clean recessed dials. And a Mealtimer ${ }^{\text {TM }}$ clock.

Then of course, we back every Whirlpool range with customer services that are designed to keep you satisfied for years to come.

We do all of this because we think you deserve the best from Wiiirlpool.

Quality. Our way of life.

2001 by Hamilton Beach. The world's first computerized blender:

People make mistakes. Computers don't. So if you've ever had a blending blunder (and who hasn't?), your troubles are over.

Because now Hamilton Beach offers you a revolutionary new blender with a computer built right into it.

No timing blunders. Ever turn a mousse into a mess because you over-blended? It can't happen with 2001. Timing is electronically controlled and computer-accurate.

No speed blunders. A Blending Speed Guide right on the control panel tells you which of 2001's sixteen speeds is right for your recipe.

No programming blunders. 2001 is amazingly simple to operate. But if, by chance, you slip up in your instructions, the computer will catch it. And warn you by blinking the Digital Display

No recipe blunders. Recipes are going metric these days. 2001 is already there. A touch of a finger converts metric recipes into English and vice versa.
No clean-up blunders. All of 2001's controls are on a smooth, buttonless control panel that wipes clean instantly.
2001. So advanced, so versatile, so easy to use, the only blunder you could possibly make is not getting one soon.

DECORATING

 First in a series of tips and tactics to save time, energy - and sometimes noney. This month, ways with paper, paint, fabric, lighting, and more
No-hassle plants

Set a tree-size branch on an X-base of lumber in a basket filled with gravel and topped with sheet moss. Wire preserved leaves to the branches: paint leaves on the floor. Uplight for drama.
-Interior designers Lucretia Robertson and Donna Lang

Quick centerpiece: Three or four favorite potted plants in a big ter-ra-cotta dish, covered with sheet moss. (They look as if they grew there.)

Avoid watering problems by growing all your plants in water. Just start cuttings in a nice vase-a carafe with seashells in the bottom is pretty -and let them take off. Philodendron does well this way. Cinders keep water fresh; fertilize with liquid plant food.

No-sew pillowcovers

Wrap pillows in huge squares of linen, overlapping two opposite corners, tying the two remaining corners at the top, Japanese furoshiki-style. Make a muslin pattern first, in order to be sure that it covers completely. -Designer
Claude Lanswith

Fool the eye

Uneven walls and windows can be disguised without major changes behind Oriental shojï screens. -Interior designer Charles Mount Slipcover walls in a dark paneled room with muslin shirred on thin curtain rods.

-Designer Peter Stambers

Light tricks

Cover an unattractive light fixture with an upside-down umbrella. Have one made to match the tablecloth beneath at Uncle Sam Umbrella Shop in New York City.

Wash a wall with light, using different colored filters on track fixtures. It's an easy way to create a marvelous environment fairly inexpensively.

-Designer Jay Spectre

On the border

Instead of papering a complete room, add interest with wallpaper borders around window and door frames, and at ceiling and floor lines. The "April in Paris" collection by Inaltera from France has pretty old-fashioned wallpaper borders that also look nice around the edge of a painted floor, protected with polyurethane. Fool-the-eye architectural borders are fun, too. Most are available through decorators from Brunschwig. Louis Bowen, or Scancelli.

Easy art

Have posters mounted on cardboard, sealed in plastic. They're light, shiny, and easy to hang.
Decorate glass, metal, fabric, wood, leather, pottery, or china with Vogart Ball Point Paint Tubes. It's as easy as writing with a pen, and once applied, your design is permanent and withstands machine washing or dry cleaning. Paint tubes come in 35 colors. A 1 ounce pen is $$ 1.25$ at craft and variety stores.

String a clothesline wall to wall, hang posters and children's art with clothespins.

Marvelous moldings

"Brighton" up moldings around doors, floors, and ceilings with half-round strips of natural bamboo edged with stripes of Persian Turquoise and Geranium. Substitute other colors to contrast with your room decor. Bamboo is easy to split. Fasten to the walls with brass screws.

Pole-ing place

Organize your bathroom with two long wooden poles. One hangs high as a shower rod, one hangs low the full width of a wall as an all-inone towel bar, paper holder, drip dry rod. Shower curtain is a simple length of canvas tied to the high pole with sewn-on self strips, with a natural fringe at the bottom. Spray with Scotchgard to repel watery stains.

Bamboo poles held up by brass hooks are easy curtain rods. Curtains are sheets hung from clip-on rings.

Mirror, mirror

A lightweight alternative to mirror is aluminized polyester film mounted on rigid foam panels-and you can take your mirrored ceiling or wall with you when you move. Look for Mirrex mirror or Mirrorlite.
For a greenhouse effect, borrow a trick from New York restaurant La Mangeoire, where the ceiling is mirrored to reflect and double the effect of hanging plants.

Rotate your stock

Apply a merchandising theory to your home decorating: When objects and artwork remain in the same position for a long time, you don't notice them anymore. So rotate the things you care about, be it artwork, furniture, a tabletop arrangement. -Interior designer Robert K. Lewis

With a little brown paper and glue...

You can make easy pleated lampshades for rentals and summer houses. Here's how:
Pleat brown wrapping paper, wallpaper, or white shelf paper cut to the height and twice the circumference of your present lamp shade. Punch holes an inch below the top edge and thread sturdy brown cord or cotton cording. Slip over the. old shade, tie cord to and knot ends to finish. or glue open side together This is an effective disguise for the metal shade on pull-down lamps in apartment dining rooms.

Less is best

Four important pieces of furniture can fill almost any room in the house. Minimize to economize, cutting quantity, not quality. For instance, all you need in a living room may be 2 large lounge chairs, a coffee table big enough to be used for serving or as a work area, and a large square ottoman that seats 4 or 6 people. In a bedroom, a bed, and 2 tables for a lamp, TV, and books. Make each piece count.
-Designer Jay Spectre
In decorating, what you subtract is as important as what you add. Take everything out of a room, look at the space, and only put back what you need. If you can live without it for 3 days, you can live without it. -Interior designer Robert K. Lewis

Floor it

Paint a flame-stitch graphic on any wood floor to add surprise and interest. Especially fun in a closet or hallway, or for a bedroom floor.
-Interior designer Beverly Ellsley
Spatter-paint a floor that gets a lot of traffic, coat with polyurethane. Dirt and footprints hardly show.

Paint a tired sisal rug in waves of color using latex acrylics diluted with water. Think of a lavender, mauve. turquoise, gray, pale green painted rug in a deep rustcolored room. Seal lightly with polyurcthane. -Artist

Serapes make colorful stair runners-they're just the right width. Sew several together to the length you need. Tack to the stairs and risers.
-Designer Angelo Donghia
Your room looks custom designed when you carpet the center of your floor in one color, add a border in a contrasting tone.

For good measure

If you find a piece of furniture you like, but you're not sure the size is right, measure its length and width, then block out the area on your floor at home with newspaper. This will give you a better sense of how the piece will fit, rather than simply measuring the space. You might even tape together a 3-D template of the piece, and get a friend to help you carry it through a stairwell, elevator, or doorway to be sure it fits.

Fresh new ways with sheets

Slipcover a dark headboard and footboard with summery tie-on's made of sheets. Stuff with fiberfill for added dimension.
Cupboards and hutches look pretty lined with sheets.

Furniture finds

Update tired furniture in three easy ways: Bleach natural wood even lighter than it is, rubbing in white pigment if necessary. Cut a seat cover from a raw hide of natural leather, and lace together underneath with thongs. or stain the wood a darker brown, tie on white Ultrasuede cushions. or paint chests, cupboards, buffets a bright color-think of a bright blue chest against crisp white wood walls.
Simple case goods are the best buys at auction. Liven up a chest of drawers with deep Raisin paint; add brass pulls for sparkle. -Joseph Braswell, Braswell-Willoughby
Bring outdoor furniture indoors. Add plump patterned seat cushions to white canvas director's chairs to bring them up to dining height. Change the cushions with the seasons. Or make slipcovers out of bright cottons or sheets for chaise longues, chairs, outdoor ottomans.
Beautify an old desk, table, or any flat-surfaced piece of furniture by covering it with wallpaper or Chinese tea paper. Protect with shellac.

developer for stamina and strength through the use of isometrics.

The isometric approach to exercise immediately affects the way you look and feel. Basically, the technique pits the body against itself, that is, muscle against muscle, instead of muscle against an object like a tennis ball or golf club. Ms. Pudaloff modified the technique for home use for House & Garden by adding a child's flexible plastic playing ball about 8 inches across as a workout device. Dr. Laurence Morehouse, in his book, Maximum Performance (Simon and Schuster) says, "to improve your balance you need to focus, to touch something. Touching an object gives you a reference point which thereby stills the body. Even a thread, which gives no support, would help your balance, if you could touch it:" That's just what the ball does. It appeals to the mind as a centering point, which lets you focus your attention in a more concentrated, direct way on what the rest of your body is doing.

Another effect of active/passive exercising has to do with building endurance and strength. They are both achieved by pushing the body just a bit beyond what you think it can do. "At their longest," Ms. Pudaloff says, "the stretching and contract-

4 inches. Great, wide. sweeping motions in calisthenics just aren't necessary. We measure gains in our classes in terms of quarter-inches. If we can increase a stretch of the diagonal rib-cage muscles or the length of an ankle flexion by a hair's breadth, we re genuinely delighted. Believe it. The gains may sound small. They act big. Another way we achieve gains is to begin each pair of movements (left side, then right side) by working the weaker side first. This achieves two things: Your first, best effort will be directed toward the side that needs the building, and your spirits revive when you work the strong side more easily. It's like doing the 'hard' homework first. A third way to make gains is to remember the simple fact that some days you just feel stronger. Other days you just don't. So instead of trying like mad to make each day a matter of equal performance, use the strong days to intensify effort and use the not-so-strong days to concentrate on grace, control, calm, and fluidity.

Your ability to breathe comfortably is also an important aspect of making these exercises work for you. "When you've reached the maximum stretch or contraction in a movement, tell yourself to breathe. Because of the effort. most people have forgotten to breathe at all. Then try to hold your breath for two or three counts with an ultimate goal of five counts. The intake of oxygen helps alleviate body tatigue and at the same time relaxes the body when the movement is completed. One of the wonderful effects my clients tell me is the impact the breathing exercises have had on their sleep. It seems much deeper to them, their rest more profound:

Dr. R. Phillip Smith. Medical Director of La Costa Health and Beauty Spa in southern California says, "the trouble with many exercise programs is that they seem to be too difficult for the average person $t 0$ accomplish. Fitness programs are usually created by athletes, and the books on the subject of fitness and exercise are very often written by people who are themselves superb athletes. Since the average person usually has no intention of competing with a physical education specialist, the goal of fitness should be the maintenance of his or her best level of alertness, speed, and mobility. Each individual must decide what he or she wants from the effort:"

Ms. Pudaloff thinks that most people don't know what they want from a program until they ve been on one long enough to see some changes. To evaluate your own fitness regime, whether you work out at home by yourself, or whether you take classes, she suggests you think about these five things: (1) articulation-what your muscles look like now compared with how they looked when you started, their tone, their proportion: (2) limitation-your capacity for endurance, stamina, and relaxation, and "stick-to-it-iveness": (3) flexibility - the ease or unease with which your muscles and joints cooperate, before and after: (4) your age - the demands on your time, the regularity with which you exercise, your energy levels: (5) relaxationhow quickly you tire and recover, the degree to which you can unwind.
-People are delighted to discover that there really are some things about themselves that can be changed," she says. "In classes the 'group spirit' is very encouraging and I'm constantly raising the ante as my clients get stronger. And for them, there is the feeling of accomplishment that the quarter-inch stretch has been earned and the effortless breathing mastered. The rewards provide a wonderful motivation for continuing this special approach to fitness." Kinetics. 29 E. 6lst St.. New York. N.Y. 10021: by appointment only: Telephone (212) .355-374()

Consumer Reports thinks you should know:

How good is the bologna in that sandwich?

Of the 35 brands and varieties of bologna tested by Consumer Reports for quality, nine were rated Poor or Very Poor for taste. The samples, bought in food stores, were either rancid or showed beginning signs of rancidity.

The start of rancidity can of ten be detected by a perfume-like scent. So the sweet smell of your bologna may be trying to tell you something.

How does the bologna sandwich compare with the others?

The bologna sandwich earned our lowest vote of confidence.

Consumer Reports explored this in detail in its article "How Good is the Bologna in that Sandwich?"
Here's how bologna stacked up against the other three sandwich foods... (1) High est in cost-per-ounce of protein (2) Highest in fats and calories. The bologna sandwich, in fact, was over four times as expensive as the cheapest sandwich-peanut butter-at the prices prevailing when we made our test. What's more, bologna contains a potentially harmful additive called sodium nitrite.

Consumer Reports gives you the facts behind the "baloney".

Today's supermarket is no place to be on your own.

Without help, it's hard to know about subtle product differences that can cheat your family of nutrients and maybe even cost you more in the bargain.

That's why Consumer Reports rates food and household products by testing standards just as rigorous as those we use for automobiles and expensive appliances. We are equally rigorous with our research into services, such as banking, insurance and much more.

Consumer Reports is the nonprofit, reader-supported magazine of Consumers Union-the nation's leading independent organization for testing and rating consumer products and services.

We don't accept advertising from anyone.

We buy what we test at retail stores just as you do. And we never accept "free samples" from manufacturers.

Five facts our readers learned that you could have used:

1. Shake 'n Bake Barbecue Chicken Coating is $50.9 \%$ sugar-more than five times the percentage of sugar found in Coca-Cola.
2. Hitachi, MGA and Sony proved the most reliable $19{ }^{\prime \prime}$ color TV sets in a survey of our readers. The least reliable? Magnavox.
3. A Dodge Aspen or a Plymouth Volare is not a good candidate in the used-car market. The ' 76 and ' 77 models had much worse than average Frequency-of-Repair records.
4. Two banks can advertise the same interest rate for your savings account. But one pays only $$ 44.93$ for the same period for which the other pays $$ 75.30$. It's how they calculate your interest that counts.
5. Yogurt costs $26 \notin$ to $42 \xi$ for an eightounce container, but for the nutritional benefits it provides, yogurt is a very expensive glass of milk.

A lot of companies may not like what we have to say.

But remember, those same companies spend millions of dollars a year on ads and TV commercials for their products and services...so they can give you the facts that serve their interests.

Shouldn't you spend just $11 a year on Consumer Reports-so you can get the facts that serve your interests?

the airflow nozzle of the drier, which lets you use a lower heat setting, and the core absorbs just enough heat itself, so that your brush becomes something of a curling iron. The second is a round, somewhat flat, hand-held drier for curly hair, permed or natural. Supermax Curlytop has no airflow nozzle, but rather diffuses 1200 watts of heat over a wider, broader area. It dries hair quickly but doesn't straighten or stretch the hair with concentrated heat. It's lightweight at 14 ounces and has a single on-off switch. About $$ 30$ by The Gillette Company at drugstores and department stores everywhere; brush about $$ 3$.

Here's a 4-step skin-care strategy for men that's been put together by Aramis. It's a simple, practical system based on specific skin types, and it's comprised of four products: Double-Action Face Soaps both cleanse and moisturize a man's face and they come in dry-tonormal and normal-to-oily formulas. The Shave Alternatives are three shaving creams adapted to meet the razor-reactions so many men experience every day -one is "Super Rich Shave Foam Concentrate," which contains soothing aloe and restorative vitamin E for skin that has occasional mild irritation; "Super Gentle Shave" for sensitive, drier skin with both humectants and silicons added for their smoothing properties; "Maximum Shave Gelfoam," right for heavier beards, as it provides a dense lather, which protects skin from the heavier pressure put on the blade. Double-Action Astringent is mild, antiseptic lotion, which also contains aloe for its soothing effect on skin, often necessary after the tough exfoliating process called shaving. The last step is Moisture Care/Moisture Color and it is two products which help retain the skin's water and add a slight suggestion of bronzing color to a man's face. Instead of the staining gel typical of "bronzing" products, here are two light and effective creams-one an aftershave, the other a concentrate. All these skin treatments cost from $$ 5$ to $$ 8$ each and are found at fine department stores everywhere.

Now's the moment to give him a new surprise, a fragrance from a long-established tradition of craftsmanship-V an Cleef & Arpels Pour Homme. This formula is different. It is perfumed cologne called "Concentrated Cologne." And, of course, it's made to last. The scent is slightly smoky, very individual, and he can try it in a natural 3-ounce spray for $$ 18.50 ; 4$ ounces, $$ 20$; or 8 ounces $$ 32.50$. At Bergdorf Goodman, Nel York and White Plains.

For those who like to keep skin car routines simple, here's a new cream tha fits right in-Night of Olay by The Ola Company. The first difference is the fan tastic lightness of the cream and th barely noticeable scent. It's full 8 -hou night protection, and, after your morn ing freshening, follow through with thi light, pink, Oil of Olay lotion. A 2-ounct jar costs $$ 6$ and you'll find it at de partment stores and drugstores every where.

If you're looking for something tc give your looks a light lift, you're prob ably thinking of lipstick, so here's on that does your lips good while your spiri gets a treat-Orlane's new, super-rick B. 21 Lipstick. It comes in 14 shades has an effective sunscreen, a soft, gloss texture, and contains two ingredients to combat dryness from air by chapping wheat germ oil and Allantoin, an extrac from comfrey root. It feels luscious and stays beautifully fresh. $$ 8.50$ per shad at fine department stores and drug stores everywhere.

Crease and fade-resistant-that's what an eye makeup should ideally be. And Chanel has perfected one that's new now in six dusky shades. Ombre Creme Chanel is a light, sheer, emollient powder that comes in a black, cigarette-thin case, and it goes on with a sponge-tip, which you can use just like a makeup pencil. They're waterproof colors, too. In deep shades of lavender, pewter, taupe, green, blue at $$ 8$ each. Also, for Chanel No. 5 lovers, a gorgeous new body cream in the famed scent is now being made. It comes in a very generous 8 -ounce, white porcelain jar that's flat, so you can get every last smidgen. $$ 12.50$ at fine department stores across the country.

"OPENITUP ANDITTURNSINTO ASEWING ROOM"  -POLLY BERGEN

Only Singer makes a cabinet that takes up so little floor space when it's closed - yet gives you so much sewing space when it's open.

Closed, the Space Saver cabinet is a beautiful piece of furniture.

It's faced in rich pecan veneers and accented with antiqued brass hardware. (Singer feels a sewing cabinet should be as easy to look at as it is to use.)

Open, it's a whole SINGER INTRODUCES THE sewing room. SPACE SAVER*CABINET.
It accommodates any free arm or Flip & Sew* machine that Singer makes. And it stores fabrics, patterns, notions, thread (up to 48 spools), sewing books - even your iron-within arm's reach.
So you can sew to your heart's ontent. Without ever having to stop and ook for equipment.

One other nice feature: when you're hrough sewing for the day, all you do is lose up your Space Saver cabinet. And our sewing room turns back into a living oom.

Materials

Six 8-foot lengths of 1-by-2 inch #2 pine..........approx. $$ 6.00$
Four $1 / 4$-inch wing nuts;
Four $1 / 4$-by-2-inch carriage bolts;
Eight $1 / 4$-inch washers.
Two oz. $11 / 4$-inch 16 -gauge wire brads
Wood glue (approx. $1 / 8$ of bottle).... 15
Sandpaper ( 3 sheets at $15 \phi$ each) ...
$$ 7.80$

Equipment / tools

Hand saw Sanding block Pencil
Hand drill Tapemeasure Hammer
Step Cut wood to size as follows
-2 pieces $35^{1 / 2}$ inches long for diagonals

- 2 pieces 30 inches long for verticals
- 2 pieces $201 / 2$ inches long for seat side supports
- 4 pieces 20 inches long for diagonal cross braces
- 5 pieces $18 \% / 16$ inches long for vertical braces
- 10 pieces $16^{11} 16$ inches long for nine seat slats and one underseat brace (One more $16^{11 / 16}$-inch seat brace is optional)

Step 2 Sand wood

Sanding can be done by wrapping paper around a short block of wood or with power sander. First use medium grain sandpaper to remove splinters, ridges, ind bumps. Next use fine grain paper until wood is smooth. (If you plan to paint, this will be sufficient. If you plan to apply a clear finish, sand with finishing paper before applying first coat and also between coats.) To smooth wood edges, sand three or four times.
Step Assembly of diagonal unit - Place two $351 / 2$-inch-long diagonals together resting on 1 -inch edges. Pencil -Take the four 20 -inch-long pieces. At each end partially hammer or "start" 2 nails $1 / 2$ inch in from end and $3 / 8$ inch from side.

- Place the two $35^{1 ⁄ 2}$-inch-long diagonals parallel on 1 -inch edges.
- Spread glue on pencil-marked sections for one cross bar at a time. Position first

- Drive in the four nails. Wipe away excess glue immediately.
- Repeat for remaining cross pieces.

Step Assembly of vertical unit

- Place two 30 -inch-long verticals together resting on 1 -inch edges. Pencil mark wood as shown below.

-"Start" 20 nails, two on each end, of the five $181 / 8$-inch-long vertical braces.
- Place the two 30 -inch-long verticals parallel to each other $185 / 16$ inches apart on the work surface.
- Glue and nail the pieces in the vertical unit as in Step 2 for diagonal unit.

Step $\int$ Assembly of seat unit

- Place two $201 / 2$-inch-long seat side supports together resting on 1 -inch edges. With pencil, mark a point $15 / 8$ inches in for the first seat slat, allow $3 / 8$ inch space, and continue marking off the other eight seat slats.
- Position the two $201 / 2$-inch-long seat side supports parallel to each other on the work surface, $16^{11 / 16}$ inches apart.
Start 2 nails in each end of the nine seat slats as before.
- Glue and nail the seat slats.
- Turn over seat unit when glued to attach underseat braces. With pencil, mark four lines for two seat braces (the second one is optional) shown below.

Step $e$ Drilling

-Take the 30 -inch-long vertical unit. Mark two drilling points on each side, one $5 / 8$ inch from top, and one $131 / 8$ inches down from that.

-Take the $3 \stackrel{4}{1} 1 / 2$-inch diagonal unit. Mark one drilling point on each side, $5 / 8$ inch from top, $1 / 2$ inch from edge.

-Take the $201 / 2$-inch-long seat unit. Mark one drilling point on each side, $5 / 8$ inch from back and ${ }^{13} 16$ inch from edge.

- Drill holes.

Step 7Final assembly with hardware - Thread carriage bolts through holes. Start on the diagonal unit. Add a washer. Thread through vertical unit. Add second washer and screw wing nut loosely.

- Repeat for vertical unit, attaching to chair seat.
- Tighten all four wing nuts.
- Chair is finished, but should not be used for 24 hours until glue is dried.

ENERGY UPDATE

Window wall that saves energy

How to have glass to let in sun and views without losing heat

By Bruce Polak

There are two sides to a pane of glass in terms of energy efficiency. On one hand. glass lets in the natural heat of the sun, which will warm a room beautifully. On the other, since glass is a material low in resistance ( R value) to heat loss, when the sun is not shining, or when the temperature drops down at night, your window is the greatest conductor of heat in your house. Unprotected glass will transmit 30 times the heat loss of a well-insulated wall. A good deal of your furnace's power, therefore, is going right out of the window and costing you a good deal of money in fuel, that you might otherwise save.

Because of this dramatic waste, in many states now, new laws are being passed to prohibit the use of large expanses of glass in newly built houses. To architects and engineers this represents a challenge. How can we make windows more energy efficient and still enjoy the sun and open views we're accustomed to in a modern, light-filled house? One solution for insulating glass is Beadwall, shown on page 108 in the Super Kitchen. It was invented by Dave Harrison and developed by Steve Baer of Zomeworks in Albuquerque, N.Mex.

Beadwall is a double-glazed window with an air space between the two sheets of glass. The space may vary between $21 / 2$ inches to 4 inches according to installation. The wider the space, though, the better the R value or resistance factor to heat loss will be. ( R value is meas-red in numbers, the higher the number, the better the insulation power. Doublealed windows ordinarily have an $R$ Beadwall insulated windows have R values of 8 for $21 / 2$ inches, 10 tor 3 inches and 12 for 4 inches air space. ) When the temperature outside is Warmer than inside, your double-glazed Beadwall window acts as normal glass. Bull when hout luas is ping to acell the is automatically filled with beads of polystyrene.
flame-retardant and coated statu atert i.. privent tho
ing to the glass. When filled, the Beadwall looks like a white styrofoam wall. During an overcast day, you might have the wall partially filled with beads. The filled part will be opaque, letting in a pleasing, diffuse light. At night, Beadwall covers the entire window to retain maximum interior heat.

To operate the Beadwall, a thermometer or light-sensing device triggers a suction motor which activates the beads. The beads are housed in a storage unit which can be placed up to 40 feet from the window and easily concealed outside or on a terrace, as in the Super Kitchen. The storage unit contains a two-part motor that works as a blower and a vacuum. When the temperature falls, the blower is automatically set in motion and the beads blown through a narrow pipe leading from the unit to the casement on the top of the window. From there, they cascade down between the panes of glass to fill the window. To empty the wall of beads, a vacuum motor sucks beads out through the bottom end of the Beadwall, draws them through a connecting pipe, and back to storage unit. A valve automatically closes off the top pipe so beads are channeled directly to storage unit.

Beadwalls are a custom installation. So obviously the cost of installation yaries according to the window size. The motor used to operate the system consumes very little pewer, about one kilowatt hour of electricity per week for 100 square feet of wall, so running costs are reasonable. An additional plus is a manual over-ride on the mechanical controls. For more information on Beadwalls write: Steve Baer, Zomeworks, P.O. You may have noticed some new, perhaps unfamiliar, symbols on boxes and cans in the supermarket recently. They're simply the beginning of our gradual conversion to the metric system of weights and measures, now used by 95 percent of the world Once you learn to "think metric", those symbols will make life easier, and to help you get acquainted with them, we've prepared this page for you to post in your kitchen as a ready reference

VOLUME

Cooking at home, you will still use convenient cup and spoon measures. which have nearly equal metric equivalents but with new names: liter ( L ). deciliter ( $\mathrm{dL}-1 / 10 \mathrm{~L}$ ), and milliliter 1 mL I $10(0)(0 \mathrm{~L}$. For example. 1 cup 250 mL $2^{\prime}{ }_{2} \mathrm{dL}={ }^{1}+\mathrm{L}$. To convert: ounces to mL . multiply ounces by $30: \mathrm{mL}$ to ounces, multiply mL by 0.034 : quarts to L . multiply quarts by 0.95 : L to quarts. multiply L by 1.06 .

TEMPERATURE

We all hear the outdoor temperature given in degrees Celsius $\left({ }^{\circ} \mathrm{C}\right)$ and Fahrenheit on weather reports - now is the time to start thinking of cooking in ${ }^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$ (formerly Centigrade) as well. Units of 10 make it easy to remember that water freezes at ()$^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. boils at $100^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$, and roast beef is rare at $60^{\circ} \mathrm{C}$. To convert Fahrenheit to Celsius, subtract 32 , multiply by 5 . divide by 9 . For C to F, multiply by 9 , divide by 5 . add 32 .

WEIGHT

Metric measures of grams (g) and kilograms( kg ) replacing ounces and pounds do not mean you will need a kitchen scale for everyday cooking. but learning that $50(0) g$ is just over I pound will help when you shop. To convert ounces to g , multiply ounces by 28 : for $g$ to ounces, multiply $g$ by 0.035 . For more information, write the American National Metric Council, 1625 Massachusetts Ave., Washington. a thin ribbon of turnip 3 inches wide and as long as possible. If the band breaks, continue, as you should be able to use it all the same.

After peeling the carrots, blanch them whole for 5 minutes to make them more flexible, then cut them into 3 -inch lengths, and pare them into long bands the same way as the turnips.
$\square$ Peel and cut the cucumbers the same way as the other vegetables, but stop at the first sign of seeds.
$\square$ Plunge all these coils into boiling water for 1 minute, remove with a skimmer, and chill them briefly in ice water.
$\square$ Make 4 rolls: Layer the turnips, carrots, and cucumbers one upon another (in that order) to obtain tricolored bands 8-10 inches long. Roll them up into tight coils and tie them, like packages, with two strings.
$\square$ Drop the rolls into a saucepan of boiling salted water for 4-5 minutes. If serving serpentines with the ham, stop here. If serving as a separate vegetable course, continue with the recipe.

Bring 3 tablespoons of water to a boil in a small saucepan and stir in the butter, cut into tiny pieces, a little at a time. Beat with a wire whisk until a liaison is formed. Season the beurre fondu with salt and pepper.
$\square$ Carefully lift the vegetables from the boiling water, remove the strings, and slice each roll crosswise into 3 equal pieces. Place around the edges of 4 hot plates and uncoil about a third of each piece to give the vegetables the appearance of streamers flying in the wind. Dress the serpentins with beurre fond $u$ and serve as quickly as possible. Serves 4.

Poached and fresh fruits with ices and raspberry sauce

INGREDIENIS
2 cups sugar
An assortment of fruits, according to the season: peaches, pears, cherries, apricots, plums, prunes, figs, melon, pineapple, oranges and grapefruit, strawberries, raspberries, blackberries
1 lemon
1 stick cinnamon
Red wine
2 bay leaves
Fresh almonds
Grapes
Orange liqueur
8 ounces fresh raspberries or 2 10-ounce packages frozen, drained of syrup Assorted sherbets
Walnut ice cream (recipe below), or use vanilla or honey-flavored ice cream Crème fraîche (optional). Recipe, page 185

METHOD

$\square$ Combine $11 / 2$ cups sugar and 1 quart water (or a larger amount, in the same proportions, if needed, to cover fruits entirely) in a saucepan. Simmer until the sugar is dissolved.
$\square$ Peel the peaches; if necessary, blanch for 10 seconds in boiling water to facilitate the removal of their skin. Poach the peaches whole in the syrup, then cut them in half and remove the pit.
$\square$ Peel the pears and wipe the flesh with a cut lemon to prevent darkening. Halve them, and remove the stems, cores, and seeds. Poach the pears in syrup, then cut the pieces in half again.
$\square$ Pit the cherries and tie them together in a sack of cheesecloth. Cook them briefly in rapidly boiling syrup.
$\square$ Cut the apricots in half and remove the pit. Poach the apricots with a stick of cinnamon added to the syrup.
$\square$ Cook the plums whole in syrup.
$\square$ Soak the prunes in water overnight, then place them in a pan of cold water and bring to a boil. At the first sign of a simmer, remove the prunes and drain them in a sieve. Then cut them in half and extract the pit.
$\square$ Poach the figs in red wine with a little sugar and 2 bay leaves.
$\square$ Shell the almonds and split them in half. Remove seeds from grapes.
$\square$ Cut the melon in half and remove the seeds. Then carve the melon into small balls, using either a spoon or a melon-ball cutter. Take care not to get too close to the rind. Marinate the balls in a little sugar (optional) and orange liqueur.
$\square$ Peel the pineapple, cut it into thick slices, then cut the slices into small wedges. Marinate the pineapple in cold sugar syrup.
$\square$ Peel oranges and grapefruit close to the flesh, removing all the white pith. Using a small sharp knife, cut between the pulp and membranes to separate each segment. Do this over a bowl to catch juice. Marinate segments in their own juice for 24 hours. If you wish, add a little sugar.
$\square$ Remove stems from strawberries, wash them if necessary, then sprinkle with a little sugar and lemon juice. If they are large, cut them in half.
$\square$ Do not damage wild strawberries, raspberries, blackberries by washing unless absolutely necessary.
$\square$ To make the raspberry sauce, pass the fresh or frozen raspberries through a food mill into a glass bowl. Sprinkle the fresh belery purée with $1 / 2$ cup sugar, or to taste, then chill it in the refrigerator. Stir the sauce occasionally with a wooden spoon to dissolve the sugar. If using frozen raspberries, do not add sugar.
$\square$ To assemble the dessert, have a large, well-chilled serving platter or large plates ready. Place a heaping spoonful of sherbet in the center of the platter, then place another spoonful of ice cream next to it. $\square$ Surround the ices with the fresh and poached fruits of the season, arranged harmoniously by color and brushed lightly with raspberry sauce or with small dollops of crème fraiche (use very little cream or none at all).

Walnut ice cream

INGREDIENTS

1/2 cup freshly shelled walnut meats 5 egg yolks
3/4 cup black-locust honey
(miel d'acacia)
2 cups heavy cream
Salt
1 vanilla bean or 1 tablespoon vanilla extract

METHOD

Choose fresh healthy walnuts. Shell them at the last moment, remove the nut meats, and peel off all the paperlike skins with a small sharp knife. Then chop the meats coarsely.

Mix the yolks in a bowl with the honey, then beat them for at least 5 minutes with a wire whisk (or use an electric mixer), or until they are thick enough to form a ribbon.

Bring the cream to a simmer in a heavy saucepan. Add the chopped walnuts with a dash of salt and vanilla bean if you are using one, and reduce the heat to as low as possible. Let the walnuts steep in the cream for 10 minutes to produce an infusion.
$\square$ Beating constantly, pour the hot cream over the yolk mixture, and continue to beat until the custard is thick enough to coat a spoon. If necessary, beat the eggs and cream over hot water held below a simmer. Then pour the mixture into a cold mixing bowl and continue beating until it is cool. Add vanilla extract if you did not use a vanilla bean. Chill well in the refrigerator.
$\square$ No more than 30 minutes before you plan to serve the ice cream, crank it in an ice-cream freezer according to the manufacturer's directions. Serves 4 .

Cucumbers with  fish mousse

INGREDIENTS

7-8 ounces whiting, salmon, or John Dory, filleted
2 eggs
3 tablespoons crème fraîche (page 185)
Salt, pepper
2 fat cucumbers, peeled and cut into 4 sections each
Court bouillon or fish fumet, or use bottled clam juice
5 tomatoes, peeled and seeded
1 tablespoon olive oil
7-8 ounces green beans, trimmed
2 carrots, peeled and trimmed
4 turnips, peeled and trimmed
1 leek, well washed and trimmed
Chervil for garnish

METHOD

Place the fish in a blender or food processor fitted with the steel blade and process briefly. Add the eggs and crème and process until smooth. Add salt and pepper to taste and process a few seconds longer. Let the mousse rest in the refrigerator 30 minutes or until it has a firm consistency.
$\square$ Use a melon baller or the handle of a spoon to scrape the seeds from the cucumber sections, then fill with the chilled mousse. Roll in individual pieces of cheesecloth and tie at each end.
$\square$ Heat $4-6$ cups court bouillon in a large pan, add the stuffed cucumber sections, and cook in simmering liquid $10-15 \mathrm{~min}$ -utes-do not let the liquid boil! Remove the cucumbers from the court bouillon, drain, reserve, and refr'gerate. When ready to use, remove cheesecloth.
$\square$ Place the tomatoes in a blender or food processor with olive oil and a dash of salt and pepper. Process about $30 \mathrm{sec}-$ onds until you have a smooth purée. Pour the puree into a saucepan and cook over low heat 2 minutes to evaporaie any excess iquid (ool .o room lempera ure.
$\square$ Blancht the b.ans, carrois, turnips, and

Spoon some tomato sauce onto 4 plates. Slice each cucumber section into 3 rounds and place 6 on each plate on the tomato sauce. Arrange small groups of the batonnets between the cucumber slices and sprinkle a bit of chervil on top. Serves 4.

Fish terrine with caviar

INGREDIENTS

2/3 pound smoked salmon
2/3 pound smoked sturgeon
1 cup crème fraîche
Butter
2 ounces caviar
2 limes for garnish
$411 / 2$-inch pieces chives (optional)

METHOD

Place the salmon in a blender or food processor fitted with the steel blade. Process 1 minute, or until you have a smooth paste. Scrape into a bowl and reserve. Repeat with the sturgeon.

Whip the crème in a bowl until it is thick but not stiff. Remove half of the whipped crème to another bowl.

Mix the salmon with half the crèmeblend well. Stir the sturgeon into the rest of the crème.

Fill a buttered 3 -cup terrine with the salmon mixture-it should fill the mold halfway. Use a spatula to smooth the layer of salmon. Spread a wide stripe of caviar down the length of the terrine. Try to keep the edges as straight as possible. Cover the salmon and caviar layers with the sturgeon mixture, and smooth the top with a spatula. Place the terrine, covered, in the refrigerator for at least 6 hours.

To unmold the terrine, dip into warm water for a few seconds, cover with a plate, and invert the plate and mold together in one motion. If the mold sticks, rap sharply with a knife to loosen it. Slice the terrine and arrange on individual plates. Slice the limes thinly and cut each slice in half. Arrange 2 slices ( 4 halves) beside the fish, along with chives, if desired. Serves 8 .

METHOD FOR BEETCAULIFLOWER MOLDS (Subriques)

Place the beets in a large pot of boiling salted water. Return to a boil and simmer the beets until tender. Follow the same procedure for the cauliflower.
$\square$ When the vegetables are cooked, drain them well and slip the skins off the beets. Reserve 1 beet; place the other 2 , cut into chunks, in a blender or food processor fitted with the steel blade. Process until smooth, then add 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons crème, 1 teaspoon salt, and a dash pepper. Process again until the eggs and crème are incorporated. Remove the beet purée to a bowl. $\square$ Place the drained cauliflower in the blender or processor; process until smooth. Add the remaining 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons crème, 1 teaspoon salt, a dash pepper, and process until incorporated.
$\square$ Fill each of 4 well-buttered $1 / 2$-cup ovenproof ramekins halfway with the beet mixture. Smooth the layer with a spoon. Spoon a layer of cauliflower mixture on top of the beet layer in each mold and smooth the top. Place the molds in a shallow baking pan, then carefully fill the pan with boiling water to come $2 / 3$ of the way up the sides of the ramekins. Bake in a preheated $425^{\circ}$ oven 20 min utes. Let the subriques rest out of the water bath 5 minutes or more.

METHOD FOR FISH AND ASSEMBLY

$\square$ Fill a fish poacher or other suitable vessel with fish fumet to a depth of about 2 inches. Cover and bring to a boil. Place custard cups or small ramekins upside down in the pan. Cover the bottom of the steamer rack with watercress and a layer of sliced beets (use $1 / 2$ of the reserved beet). Place the fillets on top and put the rack on the upside-down cups so that the fish will not be in the cooking liquid. Cover the pan and steam the fillets about 5 minutes-the fish should remain firm and opaque.
$\square$ While the fish steams, slice the rest of the beet thinly, then cut each slice into batonnetssticks about $1 / 8$-inch wide and 1-3 inches long.
$\square$ Invert the molded subriques onto a plate and rap sharply with a knife to loosen. Blot plate with paper towel if there is excess moisture. Slice the subriques into 4 slices each. $\square$ Place 2 tablespoons crème and 2 ladles fish fumet in a skillet with the juice of $1 / 2$ lemon. Cook, stirring, over moderate heat until sauce is reduced by $1 / 3-$ do not let it boil. Salt and pepper to taste, stir in a bit of chopped watercress.
$\square$ Place a fillet on each plate, spoon sauce over. Arrange 4 slices of beet-cauliflower subrique around fillet, with 1 batonnet of beet between each slice. Serves 4.

Citrus sections with crystallized ginger

INGREDIENTS

4 large oranges
2 large grapefruit
3 tablespoons crystallized ginger, diced very fine
2-3 tablespoons cognac or ginger brandy

METHOD

$\square$ Remove the skins and pith from the fruit with a serrated knife. Hold fruit over a bowl and cut between membranes to remove sections and save juice. Squeeze remains of fruit into bowl. ## RIESLINGS FROM THREE COUNTRIES

Riesling wines have a fruity bouquet, but may be vinified either sweet or dry depending on the traditions of the wine region and the taste of the winemaker. Tasting among the choices below will give an indication of the variety possible.

Prices range from $$ 1.99$ to $$ 5$ for table and everyday wines with screwcaps in fifths and economy-size bottles-the jugs and magnums. Table and everyday wines with corks run between $$ 2.99$ and $$ 3.99$ per fifth. It is difficult to make quality wines with corks for less. As the price rises over $4, so usually does the quality. Over $10 per bottle, buy carefully. Taste a bottle first. As you taste more and more wines, gain confidence in your own taste.

THINGS TO KEEP IN MIND  WHEN BUYING

If you are seriously buying wines in quantity and looking for quality, the store owner, or sometimes his manager, who does the buying, has usually tasted the wines and will be able to make recommendations. Bring your own checklist to show him what you are interested in . Make sure your name is on the store's mailing list for announcements of sales and tastings.

A little matter of interest for your pocketbook and your guests' pleasure: It is not necessary to serve a Big Wine throughout the meal. In fact, one bottle can be plenty for 5 to 6 persons, $1 / 3$ or $1 / 2$ glass per person. And a half-bottle is ideal for 2 people. Before we reach the really fine wine, this Big Wine of the meal, most of us have a natural thirst to quench. The lighter, easy-to-drink wines are better thirst quenchers than these bigger, heavier, 12 percent of alcohol wines, which may cost double or more.

Secondly, on arriving at the table, sometimes straight from apéritifs of hard liquor, our mouths may not be ready to appreciate the Big Wine. A glass or two first of the lighter wine and our mouths are then conditioned, prepared - as they say in French, literally, vinifie, meaning wined.

There are often half-bottles of wines available, if not in the store, then in the wholesalers' warehouses. Ask for them. A half-bottle of a dessert wine may be all you need for $4-5$ people and the cost is about half. Magnums of fine wines are rarer, but ask abrout them as well. Screwcap wines come in fifths, jugs, or magnums, half- or full-gallon sizes.
a bit cooler, $45^{\circ}$ including champagnes and sparkling wines. Twenty or thirty minutes in ice water will do it for whites. The Wine Brique, a clay cylinder to wet with water, will keep the bottle cool once opened and on the table.

BOOKS ON WINE

Tasting wines is more important than reading about them. This article is to encourage you to go out and bring home some wines to discover for yourself. However, of the evergrowing number of wine books, there are a few excellent, basic introductions to wine. Buy one or all three:
The Signet Book of Wines, Alexis Bespaloff (New American Library, $1.75)
Which Wine?, Peter M. F. Sichel and Judy Ley (A & W Library, $5.75)
Wine Talk, Frank Prial (New York Times Books, $12.50)

Or for going deeper into cellars (for lay-down-and-drink-later wines), invest in at least one of the following:
New Encyclopedia of Wines & Spirits. Alexis Lichine (Knopf, $20)
Encyclopedia of Wines, Frank Schoonmaker (Hastings House, $7.95)
World Atlas of Wines. Hugh Johnson (Simon and Schuster, $7.95)

Fish mousse

INGREDIENTS

1 cup milk

1 slice onion
$1 / 2$ bay leaf
6 peppercorns
1 tablespoon sweet butter
1 tablespoon flour
Salt
$3 / 4$ pound smoked salmon
Juice of 1 lemon
1 cup mayonnaise, preferably homemade
$1 / 2$ tablespoon gelatin
1 cup chicken or fish stock
1 cup heavy cream

METHOD

$\square$ Combine the milk, onion slice, $1 / 2$ bay leaf, and peppercorns in a heavy saucepan and simmer, covered, 5-6 minutes. Strain the mixture and reserve the milk. Melt the butter in another saucepan, stir in the flour, and cook, stirring, 5 minutes. Do not let the mixture take on any color. Add $1 / 2$ the reserved milk and blend well. Whisk in the remaining milk and cook over moderate heat until thick, about 2 minutes. Stir in salt to taste.

Place this sauce with the salmon, lemon juice, and mayonnaise in a blender or a food processor fitted with the steel blade and process until the mixture is very smooth.
$\square$ Sprinkle the gelatin on $1 / 4$ cup cold stock, let soften a few minutes, then blend into the rest of the stock in a saucepan.

$\square$ Whip the cream in a bowl and mix together with $1 / 2$ the gelatin mixture (aspic). Blend into the salmon mixture and spoon the mousse into a serving bowl or mold. While the remaining half of the aspic is still syrupy, brush or spoon it on top of the mousse. You may place decoratively sliced vegetables n the aspic if you wish. Chill several hours in the refrigerator. Serves 6-8.

Ratatouille in aspic

NGREDIENTS

I small eggolant, cubed
I zucchini, sliced
l-2 tomatoes, peeled and sliced
$1-2$ red or green peppers, cut into rings or small pieces l-2 small onions, peeled and sliced jeveral green or ripe olives, sliced jalt
l1/2 tablespoons gelatin

3-cups chicken or veal stock, clarified
3 tablespoons red wine (optional)
1 lemon, sliced, for garnish
Cucumber slices for garnish

METHOD

$\square$ Drop the vegetables into a large pot of boiling salted water and lightly poach them for just a few minutes, or until tender. Remove with a slotted spoon, place on absorbent toweling, and, when they are drained, put them in the refrig. erator to chill.
$\square$ Sprinkle the gelatin on $1 / 2$ cup cold stock, let soften 3-4 minutes, then blend the gelatin into the rest of the stock in a saucepan. If you wish to add a few tablespoons of wine for flavor, decrease the stock by the same amount. Stir the gelatin-stock mixture over moderate heat until completely dissolved.
$\square$ Fill a large mold with cold water, then pour the water out but do not dry the mold. Remove a bit of the aspic mixture to a bowl and stir over cracked ice until it becomes syrupy. Then spoon it into the bottom of the wet mold and tilt the mold so that the aspic covers the bottom and corners well. Place the mold in the refrigerator for about 10 minutes, until the layer of aspic is slightly set.
$\square$ Remove a bit more of the warm aspic to the bowl and stir over cracked ice as before until syrupy. Dip some of the chilled vegetables in it, then arrange them in a decorative layer on top of the chilled aspic. Spoon more of the syrupy aspic over the vegetables and set the mold in the refrigerator to chill. Repeat this procedure until the mold is filled. Refrigerate the mold at least 6 hours, preferably longer, to make sure it is completely set. To unmold the ratatouille, have a chilled platter, sprinkled with a little cold water, ready. Slip a thin knife around the edges of the mold to loosen it slightly, then place the plate over the mold and invert them together in one motion. If the ratatouille sticks, shake the mold lightly. Garnish with lemon and cucumber slices and strips of red pepper. Serves 8-10.

Meringue with chestnut purée

INGREDIENTS

5 egg whites
Pinch cream of tartar
Pinch salt
11/2 cups sugar
Vegetable oil
2 cans chestnut purée
1 cup brandy
1 teaspoon vanilla
$11 / 2$ cups heavy cream, whipped
Unhulled strawberries for garnish

METHOD

$\square$ Beat the egg whites in a large bowl until they are frothy. Add the cream of tartar and continue beating. Add the salt and beat at medium-high speed, adding $11 / 4$ cups sugar very gradually. Beat the egg whites until you have used all the sugar, and the whites are glossy and firm. Mound the meringue in a well-oiled 12 -inch glass pie plate and use a spatula to smooth the bottom and form edges like a pie shell. Or, if you prefer, spoon the meringue onto a baking sheet lined with parchment paper to create a free-form pie shell. Bake the meringue on the middle shelf of a preheated $200^{\circ}$ oven at least 2 hours, or until it is firm and dry. Cool on a rack.
$\square$ While the meringue cools, mix the chestnut purée, brandy, $1 / 4$ cup sugar, and the vanilla together in a bowl. Blend well. Fill the center of the cooled meringue with the mixture. Spoon or pipe whipped cream around the edges and on top, and deco rate the dish with unhulled strawberries if you wish. Serves 6-8.

Chocolate heart mousse

INGREDIENTS

1/2 pound sweet butter
6 ounces sugar
2. cups brandy
$1 / 2$ pound semisweet chocolate, melted

2 cans chestnut purée
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Candied violets for garnish (optional)

METHOD

$\square$ Cream the butter and sugar together in a large bowl until light and fluffy. Stir the brandy and melted chocolate together in another bowl until well blended, then stir in the chestnut purée. Gradually beat the chocolate-chestnut mixture into the creamed butter and sugar. Turn into a heart-shaped mold and chill several hours in the refrigerator. To unmold, dip the mold briefly in lukewarm water and invert onto a chilled platter. Pipe a border of whipped cream around the mousse and decorate the top with candied violets if desired. Serves 6-8.

each group. I like to assign colors based on personal association. For example, when I think of blue, I think 'blue chip. finances'-so all my financial matters are kept in a blue file. Or red, which to me signals something urgent, is the color I use for monthly bills, immediate matters. Yellow, a warm color, is saved for personal files. But color means different things to different people and for someone else these colors may have entirely different associations."

HOW TO ORGANIZE $\mathbf{3 0 0}, \mathbf{0 0 0}$ BOOKS

"Color. It's the most effective way to organize so that people can easily find what they're looking for," says architect Ken White. He used a color-coding system recently in designing a new branch of the B . Dalton Booksellers in New York. Below, he describes the basic steps in establishing a successful color coding system:

1. Group materials into a workable number of categories. At Dalton, we narrowed the number down to ten by grouping related subjects together. For example, fiction and literature, science fiction, and mysteries are all one category.
2. Assign a color to each group. We considered the significance of color in relation to each subject being classified, as well as the overall design-how the colors work together.
3. Determine a way to manage the system. This is usually in the form of a color key. In the bookstore we've placed the key on the wall in the main entrances and we also pass out a small printed key, so customers will see the color relationships immediately."
4. Apply the colors. This can be done in several ways-in the carpeting, by painting bookshelves, hanging colored signs, using colored labels

IELLOW AND BLACK CHECKER3OARD: to mark eye hazards and areas where flying particles may occur due to velding, grinding, handling of acids.
BLUE: to indicate equipment that should ot be operated without permission, such as oiler, elevators, kilns; also as a marker for lectrical boxes, generators, and equipment inder repair.
EREEN: as an indicator of "safety" and he color for medicine, to mark first-aid staions, escape routes; also used for highway estination signs in most states; as an inlicator for "go."
NHITE: for emergency vehicles, such as mbulances or police cars; with black, used or informational signs.
UURPLE AND YELLOW IN PRO'ELLER SHAPE: to mark hazardous laterial related to nuclear radiation.

nhance the design of a room, according to rchitect Stanley Tigerman. "I once painted conduit black in a room with a natural ood background. Black became the color or the conduit and everything related to it. he point was to communicate with color nd at the same time add to the feeling of the rom. It's a lot of fun.
'I've done the same kind of thing with sposed pipes in houses. They can be coded ith all sorts of colors-blue for cold, red or hot, one for upstairs, another for ownstairs. You identify the pipes and at ie same time add some color to the room."
uses color to define a given area and its particular function in a room. For example, he uses blues to turn the bay window area of a large living room into a separate dining area. (See page 139.) By assigning one color, blue, to that part of the room he has started a code in which blue means dining room.

Mario Buatta suggests using color accessories to identify the season of the year. Bring out yellow and browns for fall, greens for spring, reds for summer, and blues for winter.

crystal. The first sign of hazing is iridescence. Unless conditions are corrected the glass will turn translucent, then opaque, and finally disintegrate. Hazing can be safely removed only by professionals.

Special problems

Stubborn stains? Try rubbing the glass with half a lemon or washing it with vinegar. Never use scouring pads, cleansers, metal polishes, or other abrasives.
Stained vase or decanter? Try this: Fill it halfway up with vinegar and uncooked rice and shake. (Do wash vases, decanters, and bowls frequently, lest they develop a permanent ring or cloudy stain.) Stuck ground-glass stopper? Apply warm (not hot) water and soft soap around the opening and gently try to twist out stopper. (Moral: Wipe ground-glass area and the neck of the vessel after each use.)
Small chips. See if a lapidary can grind the edge down.
Broken glassware. Glue is rarely as brilliant as good glass or crystal, and even when a nonyellowing glassware glue is used, the break will probably still be apparent. Never serve food or beverages on a glued surface-nearly all glues are toxic. Washing and heating ultimately

tub with tepid water until the dish drainers are submerged. Put the pots on the drainers. The bottom half inch of the pots should just touch the water.

The pots will wick or blot up water for the first week or so. After that, the water level will have dropped to where it is no longer touching the pots. However, the humidity will be so high, the plants will still do fine for a couple of weeks more. Don't, in the hope of keeping things moist longer, submerge the pots deeper than the level of the gravel lining their bottoms. If the soil is in water, it will draw enough moisture to give your plants a mud bath and probably drown them at the same time.

Clear plastic secured across the bathtub will help plants survive even better, maintaining the humidity at a pleasant, greenhouse level. If your tub happens to be one of those unusual ones that gets a number of hours of direct sunlight daily, however, be sure to leave some corners of the plastic unsealed for a bit of cooling air circulation; otherwise you're liable to end up with a collection of cooked greenery when you return. If you have no light in your bathroom, you will need to leave the artificial light on during your vacation!

wick, like that of a kerosene lamp, will constantly bring water up from the reservoir to the soil.

Wicking is ideal for plants in an office environment, where care is often limited to a good dousing Fridays on the way out the door. It's also fine for guest rooms and other little used rooms in the house.

Plants with wicks need fertilizing from the top as usual, not from the reservoir. Pouring fertilizer into the reservoir will lead to all sorts of crusty deposits. In the long run it can also reduce the liquidcarrying capacity of the wick.

ROOT WRAPPINGS

With spring planting just around the corner, it's a good idea to remembe that, like so many other things, the plant ing process itself has changed with the times. This is particularly importan! when it comes to the planting of balled and-burlapped trees and shrubs. Burlap made from hemp or other natural fiber is hardly ever used for wrapping plant roots nowadays. Plastic has the great ad vantage of being impervious to moisture so that roots do not dry out as quickly a: they would if wrapped in burlap. This is an advantage to the nurseryman. who saves water and watering time and car hold plants in good condition for a long. er time than with the older material However. a material that holds water ir will also hold water out and. since i does not decay, the effect can last for years. So, when you're planting trees ol shrubs with plastic-wrapped root balls make sure to remove the wrapping be fore filling the planting hole with soil.

- STOPPING MOLES

Edwin Eberman (page 160) uses mol plant to keep burrowing moles awa from his garden. Botanists know th plant as Euphorbia lathyris. It is alsknown as caper spurge, because the seed pods are the same size and shape as ca pers and the mole-repellant qualities o the plant have been known for centuries pending on climate. Like many other euphorbias, the leaves, stems, and roots have an acrid milky sap that most animals find objectionable. This is particularly true for moles, since the sap penetrates their fine-textured fur and blisters the tender skin beneath. One plant every 10 feet is enough to do the job. Since many gardeners think of mole plant as a weed, it is seldom available from seedsmen. One who does list it though is J.L. Hudson, P.O. Box 1058, Redwood City, Calif. 94064; and plants are available from Taylor's Herb Gardens, 1535 Lone Oak Road, Vista, Calif. 92083. Both catalogues cost $50 \phi$.

- THIN EDGE

Sand, to the gardener, is an essential part of soil, acting as a loosener and aerator, helping roots to penetrate and water to percolate. To the ecologist it is important in a different way, being a basic material of the earth-and-water combination upon which all life depends. This basic interdependence is nowhere more evident than at the edge where sea meets land, where these minute particles of rock act as buffers between gnawing waves and firm, dry land. This edge of sand is indeed a thin one-measured in miles it is no more than an infinitesimal part of the land mass of a continent. Yet the effects of whatever happens to this edge are felt all the way back to the continent's center, and we tamper with it at our peril. Among ecologists, no one is more keenly aware of the far-reaching effects of tampering with the continental edge than Anne W. Simon. In her slim but information-packed book, The Thin Edge (Harper & Row, $10; Avon paperback, $2.50), Mrs. Simon clearly explains the interactions and interdependencies of this fragile strip of shoreline. Her telling-it-the-way-it-is approach is fascinating in itself, as well as providing food for mature thought by all of us.

GIVING PLANTS

House plants are gifts much appreciated by giver and receiver alike. Most of us tend to think of them for invalids and shut-ins, but actually, plants are appropriate for almost anyone, on almost any occasion. Virginie and George Elbert, drawing on their own wide experience of growing and giving plants, have assembled a book to explain what to give to whom, and when. Titled House Plants for Gift Giving (Farm Journal, Inc., Doubleday & Co., distributor, $8.95), the Elberts' book recognizes 3 types of recipients for gift plants-beginners, intermediates, and experts. Each of the plants listed is rated for its suitability for one category or another, also as to its appropriateness for weddings, birthdays, or holiday giving. Cultural instructions are given in simple terms, and are complete enough to be used as a day-to-day growing guide.

lege costs. Here are just some of the many possibilities:

Advanced placement: If your child is very bright and has taken some ad-vanced-level courses in high school, he or she may be able to get college credits for those courses. In some cases, that could shave as much as one year off his or her college education. That would save 25 percent of the cost of tuition, room and board, travel, and books by letting him or her whiz through college in 3 years instead of 4 .

Merit scholarships: Some 400 colleges now offer scholarships that are based on academic achievement, rather than on need. In addition, almost half the states have scholarship money for students who meet their academic qualifications. The scholarships, which range between $$ 250$ and $$ 1,000$, are awarded to residents of the state who attend state college in that state. Your child's guidance counselor can give you more information on this subject. National Merit Scholarships are awarded to those students who do well on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Tests (PSAT), which also serve as National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Tests (NMSQT) and are generally given in the beginning of the junior year of high school. While your income and financial need is taken into account, it is not the sole criterion. The amount awarded over 4 years can range between $$ 1,000$ and $$ 6,000$. Finally, your child may be able to win a scholarship that is designed to encourage students from particular religious or ethnic background or those who are entering specialized fields of study such as marketing. Again, ask your child's high school guidance counselor. Also ask the college to which your child applies for scholarship information.

Arms and the scholar: Whatever you do, don't overlook the possibility of a Reserve Officers Training Corps schol-arship-one of the handsomest around. ROTC scholarships pay all tuition costs and also give the student an allowance of $$ 100$ a month. Your child has to apply for the scholarship in his or her junior year of high school. Chances of winning the scholarship are good if he or she scores well on the Scholastic Aptitude Test and shows a good history of being involved in school activities. While this program will save you the cost of sending your child to college, it will cost your child four years in the military after graduation. A military recruiter is the person to see for information.

Work programs: If your child has worked summers or weekends and developed some usable skills, he can help defray some of the costs of college by working part-time. Alternatively, your child might be able to enter a cooperative education program. These workstudy programs, which are being offered by a growing number of schools, alternate a period of work with a period of study. In addition to helping defray some of the cost of college, a cooperative education program also helps your child get an advantage over the competition by giving him some experience. The majority of students in these programs are offered jobs in the fields they have been working in, thanks to the experience they have developed. The Na tional Commission for Cooperative Education in Boston, Mass. can give you more information.

plastic into the sash and frame so that no part of the metal tube goes directly from inside to outside. But do not assume that the aluminum sash in the new house or condominium that you may be looking at has these thermal breaks. It is still an extra expense and anyone offering you such windows will make sure you know it!

Wood sashes, on the other hand, are not only solid but of a material with integral insulating properties. Thus the sash is always much warmer than the glass. Still, the argument over wood versus metal is a bit misleading, because even in a small window, the sash represents only 15 percent of the area through which heat passes. The glass is obviously the predominant element to consider from the energy-conservation point of view.

Infiltration, the third way that windows contribute to heat loss, needs careful attention. On a windy day, leaky windows and doors will allow in so much cold air that it fills the whole house every half hour! No wonder the furnace never stops running. That is why weatherstripping and caulking of windows are so important. If you are buying new windows, be certain that you get units that have effective weatherstripping on every inch of the joint between frame and sash. From the infiltration point of view, hinge-and-lock-type windows are tighter, in general, than slidingtype units. Sliding window sashes cannot touch each other or they won't move freely. Double-hung and sliders must rely on the weatherstripping alone to seal the openings against cold-air leakage. A second disadvantage is that all sliding types have an additional joint in the middle. Weatherstripping takes many forms on wood windows. Sheet metal and extruded P1VC plastic are both used, sometimes on the same windows.

There is a U.S. Government commercial standard which sets the acceptable minimum infiltration at $1 / 2$ cubic foot of air passing through each lineal foot of crack per minute when the wind outside is blowing at 25 mph . In today's energyconscious world, even that amount is excessive! Almost every window manufacturer claims its product is at least twice as tight as the Federal standard. One supplier of custom-built aluminum replacement windows (Larson Manufacturing Company) claims its double-hung unit is almost three times better than required. A nationally known producer of premium wood windows (Pella) says its casement units are more than 16 times as tight as the standard. So you shouldn't be impressed if a manufacturer simply says its products meet the industry standard.

There are three distinct types of double glazing on the market allowing energy savings that are well-worth considering. First, there is insulating glass. That is, two panes forming a sealed unit with an airspace of $1 / 2$ inch or less in between. Some manufacturers (Andersen for example) sell only welded insulating glass-the seal between the panes is the glass itself melted together. The second type of double glazing consists of an extra storm panel which is fastened on the outside of the sash. The third type is known as a double glazing panel and is installed on the interior of the window. One manufacturer (Andersen) is quite unique in offering all three types. Thus it is possible to have quadruple glazing which in extreme climates could be costeffective.

THE COLORS OF IRELAND

Irish Poppy, Wild Oats, Lyric Red, Frosted Barley, Soft Rain, Irish Sunset, Gilded Wheat. Even a real Irish Blush.

They are bright, warm colorsthe colors of Ireland's glad side.
And they'll glorify your eyes, your lips, your cheeks, your nails. And the lrish stirring in you. Ah, won't they now?

Only one disposer gives you a Wham Jam button.

The KitchenAid stainless steel disposer is the only disposer that unjams itself at the touch of a button And that sure beats calling a plumber to get the thing unclogged The KitchenAid disposer has extra power to grind up the toughest stuff, even bones.

The fact is, if you compare a KitchenAid disposer with other makes, you'll find that the KitchenAid comes out ahead.

To help convince you, we $l l$ send you a chart so you can make your own point-by-point comparison.

And at the same time, we ll tell you about another great kitchen

MY LADY'S-MANTLE
The leaves of lady's-mantle Alchemilla vulgaris) remind me rather more of the eleare fragrant, though relatively hard to come by when the plant is pot-grown.

Originally the plant's juices were extracted and used as an astringent路號 and styptic. In (ays, wound will help stem the flow of blood. The native habitat of the plant being moist woodland, lady's-mantle has a strong preference for cool growing conditions, plenty of moisture, and an acid soil. Fertilize it regularly throughout the year except in winter when the soil should be kept on the dry side. Resume the first of spring. -

VOLUNTARISM MEANS YOU
"There is scarcely an organization in America which has enough volunteers to meet the demands made upon it," says Jane Pickens Hoving, founder and director of the new volunteer group called Tune in America. "On the other hand, there are countless numbers of people who would like to help-and who would themselves be greatly benefited by helping -if they only knew who needs them and how to get into contact with each other." Tune in America can be the catalyst to bring these groups together by acting somewhat in the role of a management agency to get the right volunteers with the right organization. New York is the first chapter to be organized, and once it's working efficiently other chapters will be established in major American cities. Mrs. Hoving says that anything a person does can indeed make a significant impact on a community and that the volunteer profits from voluntarism as much as the people helped. The public will have one central telephone number to call if they wish to volunteer their abilities to any of the affiliate volunteer organizations. The caller will have a chance to have an interview and then Tune In goes to work to find the volunteer-needing agency for that person. For more information write Tune in America, 2 East 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10022.

"The Healthy Approach to Slimming" is the name of the American Medical Association's brand new dieting pamphlet released this spring. It includes sample diets to try with caloric readings of 1,200 and 1,600 . The AMA stresses the importance of exercise and nutritional education.

It briefly discusses protein supplements, drugs, diet clubs, reducing spas, and behavior modification techniques. It's a handy little guide prepared by The American Medical Association's Dept. of Foods and Nutrition. $1. Write Order Dept., AMA, Box 821, Monroe, Wisc. 53566.

CARPET TREASURY

Learning about the traditional patterns of an Oriental rug is about as complex and fascinating as learning the history of famous wine châteaux. The more you know, the more pleasure the treasure yields. Writers Luciano Coen and Louise Duncan have written what many experts consider to be an invaluable guide to selecting and discerning the origin and manufacture of these handwoven works of art. Knotting techniques, methods of dyeing, identifying classic symbols, as well as care and maintenance are all covered. Needlecraftsmen will also appreciate the color blow-ups of stitches and the enlargement of patterns. The Oriental Rug ($35, Harper & Row) at bookstores everywhere. -

It's the Power Plus Mixmaster Mixer.

aking my own made-from-scratch breads and cakes really is satisfying. But who's got the time-or the energyfor all that work?

That's where the Power Plus Mixmaster Mixer really helps out. It's the fastest, most powerful mixer Sunbeam's ever made. And it does what only a mixer does best: mixing, whipping, beating. The secret's in the heavy duty 16 -speed, 335 watt motor and Great optional attachments: a citrus juicer, a food grinder, even a slicer/ shredder!

There are nifty optional attachments, like a citrus juicer, a food grinder and a slicer/shredder. So 1 can do anything from angel food cakes to homemade breakfast sausage. Delicious!

Even the dough hooks and beaters are larger and heavier than ever. So the Power Plus can knead enough dough for three one-pound loaves of my favorite whole wheat bread in minutes. Impressive? You bet!
Trust the people who designed the original Mixmaster Mixer to come up with the extra help in the Power Plus Mixer. Now there's a Mixmaster Mixer in every price range, with styles and colors for everyone. That's Sunbeam for you.

When I was putting this room together, I kept the Ethan Allen Treasury handy. What a great source of information! You don't have to buy anything to get it. I just picked it up free at my Gallery!

WITH A CHILD IN MIND

These words are part of the foreword to an excellent book about creating rooms for children called "Children's Spaces," written and photographed by Molly and Norman McGrath. Some 50 architects have lent their finished projects of tree houses, rooms for teen-agers, adding a room, and finding out how the children themselves want to live. Styles and approaches vary widely and there's a wealth of useful detail. ($30, Morrow) at bookstores.

TAX CREDITS

The Energy Bill finally passed by Congress in late 1978 is good news for home owners. Home improvement tax credits may be taken on Federal Income Tax returns for energy-saving measures installed between April 20, 1977 and December 30, 1985. A home insulation credit equal to 15 percent of the first $$ 2,000$ spent on insulation; storm windows and doors; weather stripping; caulking; insulation of water heaters, hot-water pipes, and air ducts; and other measures is allowable up to $$ 300$. A solar credit for costs and installation of solar heating equipment, and other heating and cooling that uses a"renewable energy source," is 30 percent of the first $$ 2,000$ and 20 percent of the next $$ 8,000$, for a maximum credit of $$ 2,200$. Compute your credits on IRS Form 5695 and claim credits on line 45 of IRS form 1040. Expenditures made in ' 77 must be claimed on ' 78 tax returns, not on amended ' 77 returns.

Mirror magic

To give a small room more distance, replace the glass in a viewless window with a panel of mirror.

To bring the view where you want it, mirror the wall opposite a scenic window: above the tub, above the bed, or above the kitchen sink.

Cover the window in a small shower with a mirrored door, as designer Valerian Rybar does, to make the space seem larger.

In the kitchen, add sparkle by mirroring the backsplash, or mirror-panel the space above kitchen cabinets.

Undiscovered spaces

Under the stairs: Build in a bed, or bookshelves, or a desk topped with a cluster of pigeonholes.

Under a window: Line up a row of file cabinets topped with a quilted cushion, rolled at one end for an armrest/ pillow. Or make a windowseat/shelf, with book and record storage below.

On an open porch: Enclose it as an extra room with waterrepellent cotton duck curtains hung from simple poles.

Fancy footwor:

To give a wood floor intens high-gloss color, brush on a least five coats of Flecto Varathane (it comes in several bril: liant colors), says Pameli Scurry of The Wicker Garden Wait 24 hours between coats.

Pet buffet

To make your pet's eating area neater, suspend bowls in brass rings hinged to the wall, about 2 inches from the floor, as designer John Dickinson does. The rings are really nautical fold-up footholds. (You can find them at marine suppliers.) After feeding time, remove the bowls, and then fold rings flat against the wall.

Give a tree a leg up

For instant height, set a small potted tree on bricks inside a big basket, surround with crumpled newspapers to steady, cover with sheet moss.

The wizard of walls

A border of tile-patterned wallpaper or shelf paper around window frames, doors, baseboard, and ceiling gives a French country look to any room. Or stencil a decorative frieze and make matching stenciled window shades. Adele Bishop's Early American stencil kit includes geometric borders, a flower-filled urn, and a willow tree design. Her Japanese stencil kit includes willow tree, chrysanthemum, butterfly, fan, bonsai tree, and cloud designs. Both come with paint, brush, and complete instructions. Brochure, $$ 1$ from Box 117 HG, Dorset, Vt. 05251.

Fool the eyes of those who enter your dining room by painting your own trellis-work in House & Garden Green Mint on all the walls. Hang real plants in baskets to complete the deceit.

Extension please

Get the most from a sunny window by building a plant shelf on top of the sill. Cut plywood the inside length of the window, and the width you want the shelf to extend. Paint, coat with polyurethane for a waterproof finish, and screw shelf to the top of the windowsill.

Quick takes/ Easy effects

Imagine:

A table made of a round of glass on a sturdy basket. $\square$ A smooth lampshade wallpapered in a tiny English print of country blossoms.
$\square$ A Japanese paper parasol laid on its side with a light behind it.

Glazed apricot cotton cushions for seats and backs on natural rattan chairs. Galvanized buckets brimming with white geraniums. $\square$ A school of Japanese fish kites on the wall.

5 easy windows

For daytime privacy, nighttime shimmer, try Mylar shades at the window instead of sheer curtains, suggests designer Harrison Cultra. Daytime you can see outside. At night, they reflect like mirrors.

For the latest in curtain rods, see your plumber-fat round contemporary poles can be made from lengths of lightweight $1 \frac{1}{2}$-inch plastic PVC pipe, slightly fatter than normal wood rods, and much less expensive (about $50 \phi$ a foot). PVC pipe can be spraypainted (sand lightly first) or slipcovered with a tube of fabric, suggests Jan Jessup, author of Calico Corners Guide to Do-It-Yourself Decorating. Rod is supported by PVC plumbing elbows. You drill a hole through the top of each elbow and drop them onto 3-inch-square-bend screw hooks at the top corners of the window. PVC pipe in a slightly smaller diameter would make fine towel bars in a bath.

of fabric, and strung on a rod. For a festive topping: a woolen pompon tied to each ring, or a cluster of narrow ribbons tied and trailing.

Quick curtains for summer cabins, beach houses, first-orlast minute when you're moving: Push a curtain rod through the top hem of a sheet, let the bottom break gracefully on the floor.

For pretty window trimming in a room without moldings, surround windows with wood frames padded with stapledon fiberfill, and fabric-covered. In a bath, match the shower curtain; in a bedroom, the comforter.

Color tips

Have lots of space and not much furniture? Dark walls tend to hide empty corners.

Large pieces of furnituregrandfather clocks, armoires, secretaries-that seem overwhelming will assume more comfortable proportions when set against dark walls.

A light whitewash brushed over sanded pine furniture gives an antique look.

To tie a roomful of odd pieces together, slipcover everything in the same solid color, says designer Staniford Squire. Or, for a jeweled effect in an allwhite room, slipcover each piece of furniture in a different Matisse-like color.

When a large fireplace dominates one wall, paint or cover the walls to match the fireplace (or vice versa). For example, a gray marble fireplace will blend into gray suedecloth walls. A brick fireplace disappears, surrounded by House & Garden Sienna wails.

Private screening

Stand a low folding screen beneath the window to hide a radiator, says King-Alexander Interiors. When you need privacy, stand it on the sill.

Take one of those lacy carved wooden screens from India, paint it white, and make a fresh pretty headboard.

The ceiling works

Give a room a golden glow by uplighting a ceiling covered with 12 -inch squares of matte-finish gilt tea paper (by the roll, from Gracie, 979 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022), as designer Noel Jeffrey did in his vermilion living room.

Hide an unattractive ceiling with miniature "beams." Mount polyurethaned pine 1-by- 4 s sideways, a foot apart, by bracketing them to a pine strip fastened 4 inches below the ceiling around the perimeter of the room. Hang baskets or herbs from the beams in a kitchen. In a living room, mount a few track lights in the ceiling above.

Scentimental decorating

Think of fragrance as easy decorating: eucalyptus in a basket, hyacinths flowering, herb bouquets or wreaths hanging from wall or beam. scented paper lining coffeetable drawers or laid on chinacupboard shelves. And you can make easy no-sew sachet sacks to toss into linen drawers and among the books: Snip pretty patterned dishtowels into 6 -inch squares, fill with homemade potpourri, tie into bundles with narrow ribbons.

Joe's Potpourri: Mix 4 oz. chopped orris root, 2 oz whole cloves, 3 oz . broken cinnamon sticks, 2 oz . star anise, 2 oz . broken sassafras root, 6 drops oil of allspice

Pillow talk

An internationally renowned artist meets a lifetime challenge, and a world of wonder and magic is revealed . . .

Fifty magical works of art adorning fifty exquisite bone china plates.
Astonishingly detailed collector's miniatures, hand-decorated in 24 karat gold. Created expressly for this collection by one of the most gifted young artists of our time Issued in a strictly limited edition by Franklin Porcelain.
Advance subscriptions must be entered by April 30, 1979.
 NCE UPON A TIME there lived a little girl whose greatest pleasure was to lose herself in a world far removed from the world of everyday. A world of tall glass mountains and gingerbread cottages; of frog princes and pumpkin coaches. A world of heart-stopping fears that made her shudder . . . deliciously . . . and the happiest of happy endings that made her very toes tingle! The World of Fairy Tales.

When the little girl grew up and became an artist of renown, she never forgot that alluring world of magic. and some of her finest work was interpreting in art full of captivating. curious detail those wonderful childhood dreams.

And now artistic success has brought Carol Lawson (that was the little girl's name) the opportunity to accomplish a remarkable work she has long contemplated: the creation of an intensely personal series of fairy tale works in fine porcelain. Grand in concept . . . yet exquisitely miniature in size.

The Best-Loved Fairy Tales collection will include fifty enchanting miniature plates, beautifully crafted in fine bone china. Each one will portray a favorite scene from one of the world's best-loved fairy tales. And each plate will be accompanied by the artist's comments on why she chose the tale, and her own highly individual approach to its portrayal.

The fascination of the miniature Carol Lawson has chosen to create her art for miniature plates because she felt that their daintiness would be quite perfect. Indeed, fairy tales themselves are crammed with evidence of our fascination with all things miniature-and there's a recognized tradition of creating miniature porcelain plates which over the years have attracted the attention of collectors. As the artist herself says: "What a challenge-to recreate all the jumbling, tumbling events, the colors and treasures, the heroes and villains of the fairy tales, in precise dit but to this tiny scale!"

Capturing the spirit of our favorite fairy tales
One of the most appealing things al the plates is the flourishing energy sheer virtuosity which the artist brought to the portrayal of each fairy For she has captured the very spirit essence of our favorite stories, in sct rich in fascinating detail.

From the engaging, rounded forms of three bears, and their open-eyed an ment at finding little Goldilocks snugi under Baby Bear's patchwork cou pane . . . to the myriad green and twil tendrils of the magic beanstalk wil young Jack climbs so boldly . . . C Lawson has illuminated every scene an intensity of colorful detail, embro ing each with the kaleidoscope pattil of her imagination.

Step Cut wood to size as follows:

- 42 pieces $471 / 2$ inches long for horizontal shelf pieces
-9 pieces $351 / 2$ inches long for long vertical supports
- 30 pieces $321 / 2$ inches long for short vertical supports

Step

 Sand woodSanding can be done by wrapping paper around a short block of wood or with a power sander. First use medium grain sandpaper to remove splinters, ridges, and bumps. Next use fine grain paper until wood is smooth. (If you plan to paint, this will be sufficient. If you plan to apply a clear finish, sand with finishing paper before applying first coat and also between coats.) To smooth wood edges, run sanding block over them three or four times.

Step

Building the first layer

- Mark one line in the center of each of the $42471 / 2$-inch-long horizontal shelf pieces, $233 / 4$ inches from one end, as shown
- Mark three lines across 3 of the $9351 / 2$-inchlong vertical supports as shown. (The rest of the long verticals and all short verticals can be lined up by squaring them with the first layer.)
- To line up the 3 horizontal shelf pieces for the first layer of the storage unit, use 2 marked long vertical pieces to position them on the work surface. Place the 2 $351 / 2$-inch-long vertical pieces $471 / 2$ inches apart, lines facing up. Align the 3 horizontals between these 2 long verticals so the top edge of each is even with the matching line on long vertical support. -Then take these 2 long verticals, plus 1 more, and start $61 \frac{1}{4}$-inch nails into each, 2 below each line marked on the wood as shown.

- Place the 3 long vertical supports on top of the 3 horizontal shelf pieces as shown above, lining up the left edge of the center vertical with the center mark on the horizontals.
- Spread glue on the horizontal shelf pieces under the long vertical supports.
- Constantly checking to make sure the unit is square and in alignment, nail the long vertical supports into place.

Step
 Layering up

- To build the next layer, take 3 more horizontal shelf pieces. Start $611 / 2$-inch nails into each, 2 nails at each end and 2 to the right of the center mark.
- Spread glue on first layer of long verticals above first layer of horizontals.
- Position the next 3 horizontal shelf pieces across the long vertical pieces, directly over the first set of horizontals. Use a carpenter's square for alignment. - Nail into place, constantly checking to be sure the unit is square.
-Take 3 32 $1 / 2$-inch short vertical supports and start $611 / 2$-inch-long nails into each, 2 at each of the 3 spots where the horizontals cross the verticals.
- Glue and nail the short verticals into place, making sure the corners meet as shown.

- Continue layering using the inch-long horizontal shelf pieces at $321 / 2$-inch short vertical supports there are 7 layers of horizontal $p$ as shown below.

-For the seventh vertical layer, of the $351 / 2$-inch long vertical sup With a carpenter's square, make sur the bottoms of the first and seventh of long verticals are even.
- Continue layering until you have and nailed the last set of $321 / 2$ short vertical supports into pos There are just two more layers of zontals and one of long verticals attached.
- Glue and nail 3 of the 6 rema horizontal pieces into position. glue and nail the final layer of ver using three $351 / 2$-inch-long vertical ports. With a carpenter's square, the bottoms of these verticals wit\} other two layers of long vertical ports.
- Glue and nail the final 3 horiz pieces into place.
-Gently stand the "Hold-everyt Shelf" up. If it is a bit wobbly, the may be uneven. Locate the longe causing the imbalance and sand it c until the unit sits flat.
- Do not move the unit around unti glue has set overnight.

Step Stacking the units

Olf you wish to stack 2 units, one another, drill one $3 / 8$-inch hole 1 deep in the center of the top of corner post of one unit and the bo of each corner post of the other. P a $3 / 8$-inch wood dowel, 2 inches lons each of the holes to keep the stac units steady.

STAFFORDSHIRE PLATE
From my photograph and drawing of the marks, what information can you give me about my plate and the picture on it?
F.J.G.-Newfield, N.J.

The printed scene, "Rustic," decorating your plate was registered by the Statfordshire potter Joseph Clementson at the English Patent Office, Dec. 2, 1842. Scenes of rural England, with its cottages and rustic figures have never been common for transfer-printed plates or dishes, but they became more frequent in the 1840 s and 50 s . Granite opaque pearl is one of a number of trade names for the hard earthenware body which was usually used for transfer printing.

- I9TH-CENTURY EWER

I have this old ewer, but know nothing about it other than the words "Tiffany & Co." are on it. How old is it and what was it used for? N.A.
-Andover, N.J. Before the fork came into use in England in the early 17 th cenfury, the basin and ewer (a particular form of a pitcher with a wide spout) were indispensable adjuncts to every well-appointed dining table. The attendants took them around the table, beginning with the host, over whose hands rose water was poured from the ewer, while the basin was held beneath; the hands were afterwards wiped with a towel. Your elaborately wrought bronze ewer is of European manufacture, probably dating about the closing decade of the 19 th century. Tiffany & Company is the retailer. Your ewer has been copied from an example of the early Stuart period (1603-1649), when the surface is frequently found almost completely covered with repousse and chased ornamentation, such as dolphins a waves, fruit, flowers and fo cherubs, and scallop shells. The i edly elongated wide spout and the ing handle arched well above the are characteristic features of this $v$ of ewer, which has remained a fa through the years.

目 BYZANTINE ADAPTATION

What is the style of my chair? Is it very old? J.W.-S. Dartmouth, Mass. Your chair has been freely adapted from a distinctive three-legged turned chair with a triangular seat of great antiquity, perhaps of Byzantine origin, made in England since medieval times. The bestknown chair of this type in our country has been used, for perhaps 2 centuries, at Harvard commencements, and is called the President's Chair. Your chair is an adaptation and it is of recent manufacture.

My parents bought this clock in France. On its face is the name "Jullien Jean Pierre" and also "Varennes." On the pendulum are the words "La Chasse." What can you tell me about the clock's background?
V.B.-Arden, Del. The "violin" form and brass repoussé pendulum are typical features of French tall case clocks that are found in the region of Franche Comté and Jura. The movements were manufactured in the region of Foncine and assembled at Morez and Morbier in French Jura. The name on the dial, Jullien Jean Pierre, is that of the seller and not the maker. Lists pertaining to French clock merchants include many Jullien, of which one resided in Paris, therefore near Varennes, from 1860 1870. Your clock is of that period. The inscription "La Chasse" refers to the trophies of the chase or hunt worked in repousse on the upper part of the pendulum.

I would like to know the date and origin of my cake basket, and what is meant by "hard white metal."
T.H.-Greeleyville, S.C

The Middletown Plate Co., which made your basket, was organized in 1864 at Middletown, Conn., as manufacturers of plated silver holloware. It was among the original companies which formed the International Silver Co. in 1898. Your cake basket probably dates before 1890 . White metal is an alloy commonly containing two or more parts of tin, copper, lead, antimony, and bismuth. The color depends on the proportion of lead or tin; the more tin in the composition, the whiter the color. It is one of the base metals used in the electroplating process. Quadruple plate is an excellent quality of plated silver.

The 18th Annual University Hospital Antiques Show, April 24 through 28, in Philadelphia, will feature a loan exhibit of samplers entitled "Samplers, Skills and Sentiments," among which will be this one by Mehitable Griswold, done in 1812 and loaned by The Philadelphia Museum of Art, Whitman Sampler Collection. The show will be held at the 103rd Engineers Armory, Lancaster Avenue at 33rd Street.

PLANTS AROUND THE HOUSE

A snip in time for healthy plants

How to prune leaves and roots for lush spring foliage

By Richard Langer

Pruning is something we tend to think of in terms of apple trees or hedges that are beginning to block out too much light from the living-room window. It's often overlooked when it comes to house plants. Yet the difference between lonely leaves on dismal stalks and cheery lush foliage can often be summed up by that same word-pruning. Now is the time to shape up your indoor garden with some judicious snipping, if you haven't already done so.

Everyone does a bit of pruning automatically. After all, leaves don't last forever. When they begin to shrivel or dry up, we take them off. The same holds true for flowers. Esthetically, a wilted flower is troublesome. We snip it off in passing without thinking. This is good for the plant itself. Some plants, in fact, even tend to stop flawering unless the old blossoms are removed.

Leaves past their prime also do a plant no good. Dying leaves encourage rot, mildew, and fungus disease. Also a dying leaf, no longer being a food factory, tends to be a food drain, inhibiting new growth. When you remove a dead or $d y$ ing leaf, do so by cutting, not pulling, it off. Even though in many cases it will snap off, in many more cases limpness will have already set in by the time you notice the offending leaf, in which case trying to break it off by hand can injure the main stem of the plant itself. This is particularly true of specimens such as dracaenas and spider plants. A good clean cut with a sharp knife or snippers does the best job. On soft stems, the sharp knife will do a cleaner job than the snippers, not pinching the way cutters sometimes do. On woodier stems, such as those of citrus and dieffenbachia, pruning shears become a necessity.

A typical example of a plant in need of hard pruning was an iresine or bloodleaf that had sat for some time behind other plants, right up against the window in our living room. Being in a rather difficult-to-reach spot for all but the long snout of the watering can, this particular plant tended to be neglected. Hence its sorry state. Really hard pruning should sometimes be done in stages, to minimize shock to the plant. But at this time of the year, in the case of a rampant grower like the iresine, it's possible t remove as much as half the plant's to growth without injuring it.

The first thing I did to rescue $m$. iresine was to remove a few of the cente stalks entirely. This was not so mucht produce a bushier plant as to permi good air circulation, so I cut the stem right down to the soil level. They wil not come up again, although new shoot may form at the base. For bushiness, trimmed the remaining stems to ap proximately the height I wished the new plant to be. The trim cut is always mad just above the leaf node, that is, whert a leaf stem joins the main stem. This also where the dormant leaf buds are By cutting next to them, you'll encour age new growth to cover the tip of the truncated stem-new growth of usuall two new leaves where before there wa only one, hence a bushier plant. Lool closely and you can probably even se the small, barely visible dormant bud before you cut.

Besides these axial leaf buds, you plant also has some growing reserve it stem buds. (Leaf buds will sometime: also eventually turn into stems.) Thes stem buds lie dormant and hidden be neath the bark or outer skin of you plant. If you prune it back severely enough so that few or no leaves re main on the stem-if, for instance you take a 4 -foot angelwing begonia a citrus, or other hard-stemmed plant and cut the whole thing down to within 6 inches of the soil-the stem buds will be activated, adding branches to your specimen. This is the second step in developing bushier plants. The first gives you shorter trunks tipped by extra leaves. The heavier pruning produces more branches or trunks.

that truncate the plant. In the house, it's you. The point is, it's part of the growing cycle of nature, so don't be afraid to prune. But before you begin to snip away at all your plants, consider their individual nature. All dying leaves should, of course, be removed, but pruning for shape and bushiness by definition requires a plant with the proper growing pattern. Since the main purpose of pruning is to force plants to branch, nonbranching plants such as bromeliads, spider plants, orchids, palms, and others with a single growing point can't really be pruned except to remove damaged leaves. Removing the single growing point is equivalent to beheading them. End of plant.

Where the technique is at its best is with vining plants such as hoyas, ivies, and gynuras and erstwhile bushy ones such as begonias and geraniums. Plants with multiple stems will reward your pruning well by growing thicker and fuller than ever. And they will give you some cuttings to root for new plants in the bargain.

- ROOT PRUNING

In the garden, roots are rarely pruned except in transplanting. For pot plants, however, a good root pruning can mean the difference between an average specimen and a real show plant. It also keeps a plant compact.

The first time you try it, root pruning may require a little preliminary nerve building. Cutting off roots isn't like pinching off a few leaves and stems. It seems unnatural. But take heart, it really is in your plants' best interests. Root pruning helps your plant in three ways: First, it eliminates any dead roots around the outside of the root ball. Secondly, by distributing the roots, you will keep them from growing round and round in their previous pot-bound pattern. And finally, by cutting off lots of root tips, you alter the hormonal balance, stimulating lots of new root growth, which encourages the plant itself to grow better.

To start the project, spread out some newspaper and get a sharp knife. I've found a serrated thin-bladed bread knife to be really excellent. Knock a plant out of its pot and look over the resulting clump of roots and soil. If the exterior of the root ball is a tight web of tangled roots, pruning is definitely in order. If hardly any roots are visible, the plant's nether region is fine. Slip it back into i pot and knock out the next one.

For a neat pruning job, set the roc ball flat on the paper and shave shingle off the sides, turning the ball slowly unt it has been cut all around. (It is possibl to use pruning shears to cut the root but it will take much longer, and som shears will mash rather than cut cleanly causing the cuts to take much longer ti heal over.) When you're done, a larg. plant should have an extra inch of spaci between the roots and the pot it's going back into; a small plant should have hall an inch or so.

Before repotting the plant, be sure th old shards have been removed from th bottom of the root ball. You may actu ally have to cut the shards out from be tween the clinging roots. Now replac the shards in the pot and slip the trimmee plant back into its quarters, filling the surrounding space with fresh soil. Prune out some extra top growth, where possible, to balance the plant's root loss, and water it well.

The biggest danger with root pruning is desiccation. The plant has fewer roots remaining to absorb soil moisture and thus tends to dry out more quickly. By placing your pedicured plant and pot in a clean plastic bag for a week or so after root pruning and growing it in a bright, not sunny, location, you will keep the humidity high enough for the plant to pull itself together. And a month or two ter, you should have a healthier, lusher rowing plant-one that looks picture erfect enough to have just come out of commercial greenhouse.

WHY PRUNING WORKS he results of pruning are easily seen. he how of pruning is easily explained. ut why it works is something else again. ctually, we know a lot less about plant rowth than we should, considering that otany is one of our oldest sciences. And ven though the last decade has exanded our knowledge of the inner beavior of plants immensely, the exact eason why a plant develops the way it oes when it's pruned is still not altoether agreed upon.
Most botanists currently believe that he plant-growth hormone auxin is reponsible for how the plant reacts, and hat it does so through something called pical dominance. Exactly how the aux$n$ is distributed throughout the plant is till open to debate. But you can follow he gist of the theory of apical domirance without being a botanist, and it rovides a logical framework to help ou understand how and why to prune.
Just the right amount of auxin, no nore, no less, is needed for a plant to brow. Either more or less auxin inhibits growth. There is a minimum/maximum oncentration of auxin possible in every bart of the plant. In other words, either here is just enough auxin in the right slace for proper growth, or there is too ittle (the minimum) or too much (the naximum). The apical bud, the bud righest up on the apex of a plant, nornally contains the most auxin. This bud, iccording to the current theory, controls he growth of the whole plant, hence the erm apical dominance. The lateral buds, ooking out sideways along the main stem or trunk of the plant, are more sensitive to auxin than the rest of the plant. A concentration of auxin just right for the main plant is too strong for the lateral buds and keeps them from growing. The plant grows taller and the buds remain dormant.

The plant keeps growing as long as the apical bud, by whichever of the means under such hot debate, keeps sending auxin down the length of the plant from its abundant supply. If the apical bud is cut off, taking with it the major hoard of auxin, the main stem is left with a minimum supply, and stops growing. But the lower concentration of auxin makes dormant lateral buds erupt and grow. Liberated branches sprout enthusiastically along the sides of the plant.

In time, however, the plant will return to a state of apical dominance. Soon the lateral bud closest to the top will straighten up and become a new apex. In a short while, it will take over apical dominance, and again any lateral growth will be inhibited.

Cut off the new apical bud, and the cycle starts all over again.

Your best face forward

Dr. Barbara A. Gilchrest, dermatologist and assistant professor at Harvard Medical School, talks about the simple steps of caring for your skin for lifelong health and beauty

By Paula Rice Jackson

There's something of a paradox about skin. It does such an important job of keeping you healthy and it requires so little effort from you to keep it functioning at its best. It's easy to see why so many of us take it for granted. Until it starts to change.

Dr. Barbara A. Gilchrest of Harvard Medical School in Boston, Mass., and of the department of dermatology at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston is one of a three-doctor team who has just published a new book, "Between You and Me: A Sensible and Authoritative Guide to the Care and Treatment of Your Skin" (Little, Brown). Her co-writers are Dr. Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, M.D., Ph.D., head of the department of dermatology at Harvard Medical School and Chief of Service of the Dermatology Service at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. He is famous for his work on pigmentation in the skin and its relation to the sun. Dr. John A. Parrish is an assistant dermatologist at Massachusetts General Hospital and associate professor of dermatology at Harvard Medical School. Dr. Gilchrest is currently funded by the National Institute on Aging for her research on the effects of chronic sun exposure on the aging process of skin. We asked Dr. Gilchrest about the basics of lifelong good skin care.

Perhaps an understanding of just how skin does its miraculous job will help explain what its needs are," she begins. "The skin is the largest of the body's organs, and the skin is an organ. Its primary function is that of a barrier -a barrier to toxic chemicals and germs and it screens the body from excessive ultraviolet light. It protects the body from overheating and overcooling and from an excessive loss of fluids. It also keeps our insides in. The cells of your skin metabolize just like every other cell of your body; they take in oxygen from the bloodstream and expel carbon diox-

ABOUT SKIN CARE
"There are only two things every person needs to know in order to have a healthy skin. The first is to know your skin type and the second is to know your diet. These two concerns will determine how you should care for it. Knowing your skin type-whether it's sensitive, normal, oily from time to time, and whether you sunburn easily or not-will determine your cleansing and the way you take the sun. Your food provides the nourishment which feeds the bloodstream which feeds the cells. Vitamin C, for example, is basic to normal collagen synthesis, and deficiencies of fatty acids may cause dry skin, lusterless hair, and brittle nails. Zinc is also vital to healthy skin and its absence leads to raw areas especially on the face, hands, and feet. On the other hand, too much iodine (found in salt-water fish and iodinized salt) or bromide (found in some nonprescription antacids) can aggravate acne or cause large boils on the skin. Too much vitamin A leads to dry, rough skin and hair loss, while too much carotene (found in carrots and other yellow vegetables) turns the skin yellow, especially on the palms and soles. A balanced diet, foods from all the food groups and none in excess, is necessary.

CLEANSING

"Soap and water cleansing is the simplest and most effective method for eliminating what dirt, oil, or leftover makeup may still be clinging to the skin. The vast majority of people encounter no difficulty with soap. I recommend thorough rinsing, however, and I and my colleagues suggest to those who use soap that they use soap sparingly. People with sensitive or what they think is dry skin may prefer the clear glycerine soaps."

MOISTURIZING
"Make your skin comfortable to live in. If that means a light film of something gently smoothed over your face, fine, but, as yet, there is nothing that "moisturizes" the skin, except, perhaps, fog. At present, the most anvone can do is to retard moisture loss, which is a perfectly natural part of the skin's respiration process, by setting up a thin barrier between the skin and the surrounding air. The relative thickness of the product means little for people with normal skin, though some moisturizers, if they're very rich, can cause acne for some people. Choosing a moisturizer is much more a matter of personal esthetics. If you like something heavy like petrolatum, use it.

LOOKING GOOD  FEEING FIT

Others may prefer a cream or lotion that has been refined so that it "disappears" into the skin. Still others may use nothing. Oil in the bathtub works almost as well. If you'll wet your skin before applying a moisturizer, you'll trap water in the upper layers. It's those top layers that are changed by the presence of water and not the living layers further down. The point is to retard evaporation."

ABOUT THE SUN
"The most important introduction in recent years for the care of the skin is the sunscreen. If ever there was a youth potion it's to be found in the preventive blocking-out of certain lengths of ultraviolet waves. Dermatologists worked hand-in-hand with most of the country's major cosmetics and pharmaceutical companies as well as with the government to determine the new SPF (sun protection factor) numbers that must now appear on all the packages of tanning products. The numbers run from 2 to 15 , and they mean that if you buy a product, say, with a number 2 on it, you'll be able to stay in the sun twice as long as you'd normally be able to before your skin would begin to barely redden, 40 minutes instead of 20 minutes, for example. The number 2 indicates a product that is least effective at controlling the sun's harmful lengths of ultraviolet waves. Ultraviolet waves are constantly acting on the skin, regardless of whether you obtain a sunburn or not. The most effective number for "SPF" is 15 . As dermatologists, we are glad to see sunscreens being introduced into foundations, lipsticks, and all-day moisturizers. We think that the best way for fairskinned people to take the sun, if they must, is to use a product with a high "SPF" and a second product effective against long-wave ultraviolet light, which doesn't cause sunburn, but still may contribute to aging. Tanning will occur, but it will happen very slowly. We recommend this, really, for everyone, but it's most important for lighthaired, blue-eyed, fair-skinned people. One thing more-fair-skinned people, especially if they've had a great deal of sun exposure throughout their lives, should see a dermatologist once a year if they're over forty. Early signs of skin cancer can be most effectively treated at this stage."

WATER

"It's good to be well-hydrated," says Dr. Gilchrest. "It isn't necessary to deliberately drink 6-7 glasses of water every day. We all get plenty of water, either in coffee, tea, or elsewhere in our diets However, if you drink cocktails, or wine with your meals, I think it's a good idea to drink a glass of water for every glass of wine or cocktail that you have. The fresh water will help compensate for the dehydrating effects of the alcohol in your blood."

- WHAT'S NEW IN DERMATOLOGICAL RESEARCH?

Since the refinement of para-amino benzoic acids (PABA) to "paba esters," which no longer stain or require alcohol to support them, there seem to be now both medically and cosmetically accept able sunscreens. Now some researchers are looking into the properties of the urea molecule in hopes of finding better moisturizers, according to Dr. Gilchrest. The urea molecule has both the ability to draw and hold water to it. If there is a way to transfer water from the molecule to human skin, we may have a real, external moisturizer at last.

BEAUTY AND HEALTH PRODUCTS NEW THIS MONTH IN THE STORES

Calvin Klein has something light and delicate for you to dress your hands with this spring-it's a "layered" look for nails and it works like this: He's created a "gloss" for nails to be worn over an opaque shade of enamel, the way we've worn gloss over lipstick. And, of course, since everyone now and then likes a bare, clean look, the gloss looks just great by itself on immaculately groomed and shaped fingertips. The gloss comes in four colors that have the same names as the opaque colors-so be sure you pick the right one. They're called India Rose, Parma Rose, Rose Plum, and dramatic Black Plum. The one goes atop the other and if you switch around pairs, you'll come up with some very original looks. $$ 5$ each at Saks Fifth Avenue stores across the country.

Sport Day Crème is a new, sheer-color makeup that you can wear with the same ease and informality as you wear the new "sports" fragrances. It comes in three colors-a Fair, Light Tan, and Bronze-and its formula is a hard-working one, one that protects with sunscreens and soothes with moisturizers. Its gel is derived from seaweed, which also makes it very smooth to apply. If your skin is dry or sensitive, you may also want to put just a slip of something underneath the crème to maximize moisture. $$ 10$ by Christian Dior, at fine department stores and drugstores.

How to pick the stereo system that's right for you

A major factor in your choice of equipment is the room in which you will be listening to it

The principal components of a good high-fidelity stereo system are well known-an amplifier, pre-amplifier, and tuner (or a receiver which combines the three), plus loudspeakers, a turntable, tape deck, and so on. There's another component which should be a major factor in your choice of hi-fi-since it can significantly influence the sound of the music reproduced by your audio system -and that's the room in which you'll be listening. The size, shape, and furnishings of your living room, family room, music room-wherever you plan to install your audio system-can have a bearing on the type of components you buy and how they sound when you get them home.

If you're going to buy a complete new stereo system (rather than replace one existing component), experts almost unanimously agree that the loudspeakers should be the components you select first. There are several reasons for this. First, the speakers are the only components you'll actually hear working. They translate electronic impulses into sound, and hearing is a subjective experience. Different people have completely different preferences in the sound qualities they expect from loudspeakers. Second, the characteristics of the speakers should determine to a large extent the selection of other componentsprincipally the amplifier or receiver. Since loudspeakers are considered the least "perfect" components, the most variable, and the most personal elements of your stereo system, the greatest care should be exercised in choosing them. And here's where your listening room comes in: They must sound good in the personal environment of your home. It's as simple as that.

Selection of quality loudspeakers should begin with a careful listening test in the well-equipped sound room of an audio dealer. But even after you've selected the pair of stereo speakers which sound best to you in the sound room, you may find they sound completely different at home because of differences in acoustics. For this reason, it's advisable to arrange return privileges with the dealer, if possible.

The next step is selecting an amplifier or receiver which is properly mated both to your speakers and the acoustics of your listening room. To many people, this is more confusing than picking the right speaker, because of the technical claims made by the manufacturers. Amplifier and receiver makers are embroiled in a competition reminiscent of the automobile industry's fondly remembered horsepower race, as claims for the power of these audio components go up, up, up to as much as 150 or 200 watts per channel or more-and the cost of the unit escalates along with the power. So it's a waste of money, even though the energy required is minimal, to buy more power than you actually need. On the other hand, inadequate power can completely spoil your music listening.

HOW MUCH POWER?

How do you determine how much amplifier power you need? First, it's important not to make the mistake of equating power with loudness. Actually, most musical passages at moderate volume might not require more than a couple o watts output from an amplifier. But crescendo occurring only momentarily in the music might require a power in crease of 20 to 30 times or more, ever though it certainly doesn't sound 20 to 30 times as loud. When amplifier manu facturers talk about their power output they're referring to the output leve reached without significant distortionthese claims (and the actual amount o distortion) are spelled out in amplifie advertising and policed by the Federa Trade Commission. If the amplifie didn't have sufficient power reserve, th: music would distort during the crescen do, breaking up or changing the charac ter of its sound-an extremely unpleas ant listening experience. If you think o power output ratings as describing thy reserve available in the amplifier fo loudness peaks, you're on the right track

Some of today's super-power ampli fiers probably would be adequate to fill medium-sized auditorium with music. I you don't have an auditorium-sized lis tening room, you simply don't need thy highest-power amplifiers made. The might even blow out your loudspeakers necessarily worse than an "efficient" one -it simply needs more amplifier power to drive it. Manufacturers of good hi-fi loudspeaker systems provide figures for the minimum power required to operate the speaker adequately and the maximum power it can handle before it's damaged. (The damage caṇ be prevented by installing a special speaker fuse.) A speaker may be advertised, for example, at 20 watts per channel "minimum recommended amplifier power rating" and 100 watts "maximum recommended amplifier power rating." These numbers can serve as a guide to the range of amplifier or receiver power you'll need.

The advertised "minimum" requirement is generally based on use of the speaker at normal listening volume in a room of about 3,000 cubic feet (for example, 15 by 20 feet with a 10 -foot ceiling). For a 4,000-cubic-foot room, the power should be about 50 percent higher, or about 30 watts per channel. For every additional 1,000 cubic feet, you should go up another 50 percent more than the power needed for the 3,000 -cubic-foot room.

These figures are for a room with "average" acoustic properties. A room's furnishings have an important bearing on its acoustics. An acoustically "live" room is one in which there are many surfaces to reflect sound-painted or papered walls, hard floors, little drapery, unupholstered furniture. A "dead" room is one in which sound is absorbed-this might have wall-to-wall carpeting, upholstered furniture, heavy draperies, open doorways. Most rooms fall into the middle area. A "live" room requires about a third less power than an average one, and a "dead" room a third more.

Individual preferences in music also enter into amplifier power requirements. The figures given here so far are for average tastes and cover most types of music and recordings. However, those who listen to extremely loud organ music or rock-and-roll or have collections of new ultra-high-fidelity recordings with wide dynamic ranges and very high peaks in volume probably should buy an extra 30 to 50 percent more power reserve in their amplifiers. Even in this case, for an average 3,000-cubic-foot room, we're talking about the neighborhood of 30 watts per channel-which, as hi-fi goes, is a pretty good neighborhood for most people.

I hese rule provide only a very general guide. It you err a bit on ether the high or low side, you're still quite safe.

[^5]"fine-tune" the loudspeakers by expe menting with their placement in t room. Their location can affect both t amount and the distribution of the $b_{i}$ tones. In general, the closer the speak are to the floor, wall, or ceiling, t stronger the bass. They ll deliver most bass if placed on the floor mounted touching the ceiling) at corners of the room-but this may too much "boom" for you. You gent ally can find the proper location only trial-and-error, playing a record wi plenty of bass and moving the speake slightly in from the walls and up fro the floor (putting them temporarily chairs or books - stands are available f a permanent arrangement) until you a termine where they sound best. Be su to listen experimentally in different par of the room to make certain the lc tones are distributed evenly.

The placement of speakers with spect to the listening area to achiel proper "stereo separation" was a mat of serious protocol in the early days stereo-until it was discovered that se aration wasn't all that critical (improvi equipment helped, too). In any livin room or family room, the furnishing usually are arranged so there's a col centration of seating facilities in of general area. Some experts recommen that the speakers be put as far as possib, from this area, but equidistant from and at least 6 feet apart.

The beauty of quality hi-fi com ponents is that every setup is actually custom installation. The type of con ponents you choose and how they wi sound depends on the environment $i$ which you're going to use them. If the are chosen with care, your listenin room can be the ultimate component.

国 CHECKLIST FOR SOUNDING OUT SPEAKER

- You'll be able to judge sound best i you're familiar with the record, so brin one with you to the store. It should be good quality record of the type of musi you like to listen to, with a wide range $\delta$ dynamics (loud and soft passages) and variety of instruments.
- Listen to the sound of the music as whole, not just the "highs" and "lows The music should sound lifelike, shar and clear without fuzziness. You shouli be able to pick out individual instru ments in an orchestra.
- Compare only two speakers systems a a time. Select the one which sounds bet ter to you, then compare it with anothe system. Continue this process until yor have eliminated all but one.
- Remember that sound is the most im portant thing about speakers-how sounds to forl, and not how somebods tells you it sounds or how the "specifica tions" indicate it should sound.
- If possible, arrange for exchange priv ileges to test components at homewhere they may sound different.

"THIS 1937 GE REFRIGERATOR'S THE ONLY ONE MOM'S EVER OWNED. TO ME,THAT'S MONEY WELL SPENT:"

Jane Prater, Tyler, Texas
This General Electric 'Monitor Top' looks kind of funny today. But back when I bought it in 1937, it was real elegant.

And you know, it was one of the best buys anyone could make.

It's the only electric refrigerator I've ever owned, and it's sitting in my kitchen this very day, working away like it's always done. Still keeps the milk nice and cold, and the lettuce crisp.

It never needed any service, either, aside from replacing the gasket on the door.

My family teases me about it, but I simply can't replace this faithful friend.

The salesman who sold it to me still lives here in Tyler. I saw him the other day and I shook his hand. "Mr. Atwood," I said, "it's still working."

Elouise Prater, Temple, Texas
My mother-in-law's old 'Monitor' really influenced our choice. And $I$ grew up with my own mother's GE refrigerator. She had it 30 years.

We've had so many GE appliances that have lasted and given great service, well, to me, the name General Electric means dependability.

So even though I looked at some others, I knew this beautiful GE side-by-side was the only refrigerator I wanted. I like getting ice cubes and crushed ice and chilled water without opening the door.

Inside, there's lots of room. And adjustable glass shelves that are easy to clean. Automatic defrosting, of course. Even a separate temperature control for my meat bin.

I expect it will last and last, like that 'Monitor' of Jane's. I can't imagine a better value.

IT ALL ADDS UP TO A GOOD INVESTMENT

Probably not. No famous person was born in this house. No treaties were signed here. This house is simply a charming example of period architecture that is perfectly suited to today.
It doesn't take a mansion to be a landmark. There are thousands of fine buildings like this one all across the country. They're part of our heritage too, just like Monticello and Mount Vernon.

These buildings can be revitalized by adapting them to modern uses.
Let's hold on to these pieces of our history while we still can. Support historic preservation in your community.

How to heat your swimming pool with solar power

With rising utility costs, natural energy is a costeffective alternate means of keeping your pool warm

By Jane Wholey

Editor's note: Jane Wholey is a widely published writer in the area of energy. She also acts as a consultant for the Energy Task Force, New York City, a group of energy concerned architects, engineers, and educators.

At current utility rates, a swimming pool with gas heating system can cost up to $$ 150$ a month to operate. Some experts estimate that by 1985 the figure will increase 300 percent. Others speculate that by that time, natural gas for swim-ming-pool use may be prohibited because of a national shortage.

For pool owners, obviousl $\%$ installing a solar pool heater, as over 30,000 other Americans have already done, makes economical and environmental sense. Solar pool heaters represent one of the most cost-effective methods of harnessing sun energy. (Note they operate best in tandem with a pool cover that keeps heat from escaping at night and on windy days.) Solar pool heaters are economical, because they only have to boost water temperatures a few degrees-to 80 degrees Fahrenheit-and they also make use of machinery already in place at the pool. Most swimming pools have pumps to push water through the filter, and the same pump can usually power a solar system at the same time.

The most popular system for solar pool heaters is called the "open loop," and here's how it works: A series of collector panels with pipes running across them are placed on a rooftop or on the ground near your pool. Wherever they are installed, the collectors will cover a space about 75 percent of the surface area of your pool, and are connected to the pipe that circulates water from the pool to the filter (see "open loop" diagram). Water is pumped out of the pool and through the filter as always, but instead of returning directly to the poo is diverted into the collector pipes wh the sun heats it. The hot water retu to the main line, and then flows back the pool.

One additional piece of machin that will be installed with the systen an automatic or manual valve-pla at the point where water enters the c lectors. (Knowledgeable experts pre the manual type as there is less mach ery to go wrong.) Its purpose is to you shut off the collectors at night a on sunless days. Some nights, howev you may want to keep the collectors After a blistering hot day when the pi water has overheated, you can keep ter circulating through the collec pipes to cool your pool for the ne morning's swim.

THREE MATERIALS: PLASTIC, COPPER, AND STEEL

There are three generally accepted m terials to consider for the collectors your "open loop" system: plastic, cc per, and stainless steel. Plastic is t cheapest and most commonly used. T two largest manufacturers are Solar I dustries of Farmingdale, N. J., ai FAFCO, of Menlo Park, Calif. Lil many of the solar pool heater manufa turers, they sell their products throu nationwide distributors, and both use type of plastic called polypropyler Together, Solar Industries and FAFC have sold over 75 percent of the existir solar pool heaters in the country.

According to the manufacturers, pla tic is impervious to pool chemicals th might affect other materials like coppe Plastic's major disadvantage, howeve is that the material is less durable the copper and stainless steel. In additio plastic is lightweight, and the collecto can rattle in windy locations. But pla tic's weight can be an advantage, toomakes the collectors easy to lift and it stall.

Unfortunately, there is no such thin as a standard cost for a plastic por heater, or for that matter, solar heatel made of copper or stainless steel. Var ables like the size of your pool (the bi! ger the pool, the more collector panels and the amount of shade and wind $i$ the yard (a lot of either means more co lector panels) will change the pric There is, however, a rule of thumb cal culation that many solar pool heate manufacturers agree will give you som idea of expenses. The calculation is based on the price per square foot of the collector material. Take, for instance, the plastic collectors from Solar Industries and FAFCO. They sell for about $$ 4$ a square foot, and additional hardware and installation costs hike expenses to about $$ 7$ per square foot. To figure an approximate price for a plastic pool heater, multiply $$ 7$ by 75 percent of your pool's square foot surface area. (For a pool that measures 15 by 30 , the total square foot surface area is 450.75 percent of that is $338 . $ 7 \times 338=$ $$ 2,366$, total cost. This is about the lowest possible price for an average-sized pool. Prices can go as high as $$ 3,700$.) This may sound like a heavy investment, but compare the price with that of a natural gas heating system. In sunny climates like southern California, where the swimming season could be stretched an additional five months each year with supplementary heating, gas bills would run about $$ 750$ annually. After three years, counting gas costs and the price of the heater itself, the California pool owner will have spent at least $$ 2,850$. By that time, a plastic solar heater would almost have paid for itself.

As a rule, copper collectors are more expensive than plastic-at least $$ 7 \mathrm{a}$ square foot-but one major manufacturer, Terra-Light of Billerica, Mass., and Visalia, Calif., sells a system that costs the same as plastic. Another large company, Revere of Rome, N.Y. is hoping to develop a package in the same price range soon. For the other sixty or so copper manufacturers, pool heating systems will probably run at least $$ 4,000$ installed, with a starting payback period of five years for the pool owner in climates like southern California, and eleven for those in the Northeast.

The "open loop" system: Collector panels with

You should know one reassuring about copper. Collectors made from material have been gathering sunligh the United States since the turn of century, and, according to one study, earliest ones are still going strong. A advantage is that copper may turn $p$ water blue if the pH isn't properly anced. Before investing in a copper tem, it would be wise to discuss the problem with a home owner who has collectors.

For the most part, you can expec pay the highest prices for stainless si collectors, and they are the hardest find. One manufacturer, Ener-Tech Las Vegas, Nev., sells them for about a square foot wholesale, and expe they go for $$ 7$ and up retail. The prodi is as durable as copper, and has anotl similar advantage: It won't rattle in wind. Manufacturers of stainless sti say that it is also unaffected by po chemicals-which eliminates the problem.

- CONCRETE-THE RADICAL COLLECTOR

This spring, a fourth type of material w be available for solar pool collecto and a surprising one at that: concre The collector looks radically differe from others used for "open loops," cause it isn't a series of panels-it's o large floor of dark concrete poured

An English company, Solar P expects to sell this product thro Ecosol Materials of New York. Ec vice-president Bruce Roden says it be slightly cheaper than the plastic p heaters.

- BUYING A POOL COLLECTOR

When you get ready to shop for a s pool heater, keep three criteria in mif esthetics, economics, and technol Before approaching the manufactur contact home owners in your commut who have solar pool heaters, and them. Take a look at the collectors. they improve or detract from the pearance of the property? Are the p hidden, or are they too distracting ually? Ask the owners about the pric their systems, and if there are any den costs. Perhaps more important, hard questions about the system's formance. Does it heat the pool th comfortable temperature? How long it extended the swimming season? H there been maintenance problems?

Next, try to do as much research possible about available systems. National Solar Heating and Cooling formation Center and the June, 11 issue of Solar Heating and Cooling $m$ azine will supply you with manufac ers' names and addresses (see refere list). When contacting the compan ask them about their track records how many systems they have install Inquire about the warranties. Ten ye is best, but some reliable manufactur only offer five. Make sure the warra isn't conditional, and that the comp behind the statement can produce sults.

Remember when comparing the $v$ ous systems that buying a solar $p$ heater isn't like buying a vacuum cle er. Solar is a fledgling industry, and far, it has no commonly accepted st dards that serve to isolate inferior pr ucts. Also, it's difficult for a consur to understand the technical aspects solar energy systems. One way to so this problem is to discuss the prodt that appeal to you with a knowledgea independent source.

Robert Bedell, an engineer at New York City's Energy Task Force, recommends retaining a person with solar experience to look at pool heaters with you, and to oversee the installation of the system you choose. The Copper Development Association's W. Stuart Lyman advises that you consult a trusted plumber, contractor, or heating and cooling expert. One note of warning: Some professionals you may call in may know as little about solar as you do. If, however, you are satisfied with your consultant's grasp of solar technology, you might ask them to install the system. At least discuss installation prices and compare them to those of the manufacturers.

YOURSELF

If you are a home owner who enjoys do-it-yourself projects, you may consider installing the system on your own. This can cut costs significantly. Walter Cosel, Solar Consultant to the Sheet Metal Workers' International Association, believes a person can hook up an "open loop," it he or she is capable of installing an underground sprinkler system. W. Stuart Lyman says only a highschool science background is necessary, along with the Copper Development Association's free 47-page booklet, "How to Design and Build a Solar Swimming Pool Heater." (One man, Paul Nankivell of Hollywood, Calif., used the booklet in 1976 to build a system that heats his 700 -square-foot pool. Nankivell reports that he had some previous plumbing skills, and built his copper "open loop" with $$ 1,000$ worth of materials in a week's time. According to his calculations, the system will have a five-year payback period.)

Some home owners have been known to make and install their own solar pool heaters for as little as $$ 60$. One method, while not as efficient as traditional collectors, employs several hundred feet of black plastic tubing. The material is wound in a tight coil, set on the ground near the pool, and attached to the filter pipe. When pool water is pumped through the coil, it acts as a collector, and delivers water back to the pool heated by a few degrees. There are other halfway approaches possible, too, like

COVER-UP
Experts from the National Swimmin Pool Institute say that whatever sola heater you install, "don't forget a po cover." There are two types to choos from, opaque and transparent. They usu ally sell for between $$ 100$ and $$ 250$ fot an average 450 -square-foot pool, an come in numerous varieties. The opaqu cover tends to be less expensive than th transparent, and its most important feri ture is that it reduces evaporation lo from the pool's surface. The Institur estimates that 70 percent of a pool's hea loss comes from evaporation, and that every gallon of water lost remove 6,000 BTU's of heat stored in the poo About 60 percent of that loss will $b$ prevented by using an opaque cover a night and on windy days. A transparen cover offers an additional advantage. acts as a collector, letting sunlight pas through to the water beneath. If you bu a pool cover, check the warranty (thre years is probably sufficient), and con sider a lightweight one that is easy to in stall and remove; one that doesn't tak up much space when folded. If the cove is a nuisance to use and store, it may eni up in the tool shed for the swimmin season.

- A TOTAL  SYSTEM

If you're very ambitious, you may wan to hook your pool heater into your in door heating and cooling system. Ii Walter Cosel's system, solar collector heat his pool, then heat-energy stored there aids an electrically powered hea pump to warm water in the house. The solar assisted heat pump also warms ai indoors during winter, and air condition it for summer. Heat removed from thi house in hot weather is deposited in thi pool.

Systems similar to Cosel's are now available from Vanguard Energy Sys tems of San Diego, Calif., and Advanced Design Associates of Orlando, Fla. Vani guard's total setup costs about $$ 15,000$ installed (for a three-bedroom house), and it will heat your pool, supply space heating and air conditioning, as well as 75 percent of your domestic hot water needs. Combining all the savings, payback period is a surprisingly low four to six years-depending upon the part of the country where you live.

To sum up, you can look on solar heating for swimming pools as a beginning. It's one step toward energy independence from fossil fuels for the entire house.

How to straighten a warped door

Plus how to make a heat deflector to protect a window sill garden, tuning up a shower head, and restoring a scratched wood floor

By Deanne Raffel

Q My bathroom door is warped and no longer closes easily. Is there an easy way to correct this problem?

A Although it may be possible to straighten the door, it is better to forget trying to align it. Doors nowadays are mostly hollow-core and, with all the humidity on one side of it, the door will probably return to its warp. Instead, work on the door stops which are the narrow moldings on the door frame or jamb. When the door deforms, it consequently rubs against the stops or does not meet them properly when closed. The stops are strips of wood, thin and flexible to a point, and can be removed from the jamb and reset so they conform to the warp of the door. Start by prying the stop from the jamb adjacent to the warped section of the door with a wide blade putty knife and the added help of a hammer. Ease the stop off the jamb while working the entire length of the strip. Once the strip is off the jamb, pull out the nails and secure the stop back on to the jamb in line with the door (warp and all). It is possible only this stop may need realigning, but if the door still sticks, work on the other side stop and top strip as necessary. Do not use the original nail holes when attaching new fasteners. Move a few inches in either direction. With a nailset. countersink nails $1 / 8$ inch and fill holes with wood filler or prepared spackle. If there is tension on the door lock strike plate, it may require slight repositioning on the jamb. Remove the plate, fill screw holes with plastic wood filler, let filler dry, then reattach the plate.

Q The radiator in my living room is also the window sill. Is there any way to deflect heat away from the sill so that I can use the radiator to display plants?

A An effective-and attractive-heat deflector can be made from a narrow panel of $1 / 4$-inch acrylic attached to 3 triangular supports. The result is an "invisible" vent to protect your plants.

You can have the acrylic cut at your lumberyard or at a plasti ply house. To figure the dimension sure the depth of the radiator heat ing and add 2 inches. This is hov the triangle support should be, a height should be half of this dime Use these measurements to make a diagram of the triangle; comput length of the third and longest side is the depth needed for the def panel to fit snugly on the supports panel width should be 4 inches 1 than the total radiator opening.

Armed with the necessary mea ments, you can order the acrylic also purchase the other materials need: six grades of sandpaper fro to 600 (the finest grade) and a cement (solvent) with a hypoapplicator.

To finish the cut acrylic, wra roughest grade sandpaper around a of wood and sand raw edges. Work to the finest grade for a smooth su Keep sanding block square for a edge. (Acrylic comes with maskin per on both sides. You can leave while sanding the edges of the tria and the deflector.)

To assemble, peel off masking on the triangles and one side of the el. Mark two lines on the panel, an in from each end, by making a scratch on the uncovered side. N the longest side of the triangle to thi and run a fine bead of solvent alon joint between the support and the on both sides. Hold support fast seconds, making sure support is pe dicular to the panel, until the bond is transparent. Repeat for other triangles. When hard, peel off rema paper on panel and place over vent

Up to now, food processors let you do everything except control them.

With the new Farberware Food Processor, you select the right speed for every kind of job. So you always get the right results.

ecause most food processors ork at only one speed, they eat all food like it's all the same od. which can cause roblems. Especially Lir someone just benning to use a food rocessor.

For instance, a mato's not as firm as mpotato. There should «a a simple way to slice ach one perfectly. And "Jw Farberware's pro"Ssor gives you that simple way.

More speeds for more jobs.

y letting you dial just the right icing, chopping, grating, blendalg, mixing, pureeing, kneading, eating or shredding speed, you et just the results you want.

Plus the versatility you never Hought a food processor ould possess.

Say you're preparing a vegeible salad. For the firmer foods, ke carrots, dial a medium speed or medium slices, a faster weed for thinner slices. And fial a slow speed to gently slice he tomatoes, without making hashed tomatoes.

Try making blueberry mufis with most other processors Ind you could end up with a owl of purple batter. With ours, ist dial a slow speed to delicately lend in the blueberries.

The same holds true for ishes like tuna, egg or ham alads that require thorough hincing and chopping for part of the job, then gentle mixing for the rest. What's more, you won't over-mix a delicate cake mix.

More power to you.

Even the heaviest doughs can't bog our processor down, because the motor actually delivers more power to the blade than direct drive processors. It's a reliable motor, too, thanks to solid state circuitry. And it not only works harder, it also stops faster. In under 3 seconds Important as this safety feature is, it's not our only one. There's a "power-on" light, a double-safety interlock, anon-off pulse switch, a longer feed tube. Plus extra strong suction feet.

The best blades. Top to bottom.

Our processor comes with 4 blades that do all the tough jobs you want from a processor.

Because they're Farberware, you know they're the finest. And because they're braced from underneath, they never bend or warp.

And always cut precisely.

They clean more easily, too. We took out every hard-to-clean nook and cranny and put a flush-through hole down the center core.

We arranged the shredding blade's edges to give you consistently even shredding.

Our new, stubby kneading blade works with a true handkneading action. In one-twentieth the time it takes you by hand.

Another Farberware exclusive. The Farberware name.

If you have a Farberware product, you have first-hand knowledge why Farberware's name is as good as it is. So you can be sure our new food processor will live up to all we say it can help youdo. Because it must live up to its name.

QWater from my shower head dribbles rather than sprays-the hot and cold water have no force. Is there a remedy?

A Since the dribble is the same for both

 hot and cold water, the faucet washers should not be blamed for the water inefficiency. First check to see that the shut-off valves (if there are any) are completely opened. They may be located in the wall or closet on the other side of the shower wall, or in the basement or utility room. The water pressure may not have been sufficient to insure a vigorous shower spray. If the valves are not the problem, then the shower head itself probably is clogged with various kinds of residue that sometimes collect in the mesh of spout aerators. The openings that the water sprays from also can be a problem area because lime does build up around these tiny holes. The spray head needs to be taken off the water pipe and cleaned out. Use two wrenches-one to hold the pipe and the other to loosen the nut that attaches the shower head to the pipe. To protect the chrome plating on the pipe and nut, wrap masking tape, adhesive tape, or a strip of leather around the areas where the wrenches will grab. A pipe wrench will be necessary to hold the pipe; thenut may require a second pipe wrench or a monkey wrench or an adjustable wrench instead. Loosen the nut-a little tapping with the wrench might be needed to help unfreeze the joint. Next unscrew the nut and remove the head. Turn the shower head so that the nut end is facing down; shake it-sand, rust particles, etc. should come tumbling out. Place the head in a saucepan, cover with white vinegar, and boil for at least 5 min utes. This should dislodge the accumulated residue inside the unit. Slip a bottle brush into the nut opening and work it around. Rinse with warm water and dry. To reseal the head onto the pipe, wrap the pipe threads with a layer of Teflon threading tape. Replace the head and tighten-again using the two wrenches.

I've had my wood floor professionally sanded since it was badly scratched. How should I finish it? Should I stain it?

A Staining a wood floor is not necessary unless you want to accentuate the grain or change the color. If you like the look of a stained floor, it is an easy job. Use a cloth or brush to apply, and see can directions for drying time before adding additional coats. Even if you stain a floor, however, it must be sealed after sanding. (Sanding is always a job for a professional.) Shellac dries quickly, but has poor resistance to heat, alcohol, and water spots. Varnish dries slowly, but does give better resistance to heat, alco hol, and mild acids. Penetrating wood sealers sink into wood and form a wear resistant surface and can be easily touched up, whereas shellac and varnish do not repair well. A polyurethane finish will give a hard, abrasive-resistant sur face to a heavily traveled area. Like varnishes, polyurethanes are produced to give a high-, medium-, or low-gloss luster. You must make the choice of a finish to suit your individual requirements. However, the penetrating wood sealer, coated with wax and buffed will give a visually satisfying and rich coating as long as it is properly maintained.

Brand-new imports for '79

European cars that are gas conscious with comfort and luxury, too

1979 is a vintage year for imported cars.

 Almost every manufacturer has some new model to offer, and there are sports cars, luxury sedans, econocars, and even a new pickup truck to choose from. In almost every case, the new models are larger and more powerful than the cars they replace, and also fitted out with more luxurious options as standard equipment. If this seems contrary to today's demands for economical transportation, you have to understand the problem imported-car manufacturers face in 1979. Because of our declining dollar, the same Japanese econocar that cost $$ 4,000$ a year ago now sells for $$ 5,000$, and a German luxury car thatsold for $$ 20,000$ last January is now $$ 23,000$. To counteract this economic situation, foreign-car makers have chosen to make their cars more elaborate and better equipped to compete in the higher price ranges in which they unavoidably find themselves. Most foreign manufacturers have decided to "Americanize" their cars with air conditioning, automatic transmissions, and power steering, making these options standard equipment. And while American car companies are building smaller, more economical cars, foreign manufacturers can make their small cars larger and a little more luxurious and still meet U.S. government fuel economy requirements. It seems that manufacturers in every country will soon be building cars that are roughly the same in size, price, and styling. No longer will Americans drive gas-guzzlers and Europeans tiny econocars; both will drive cars that weigh around 3,000 pounds, are 15 feet long, have 3 -liter engines, and return 30 miles per gallon. Here are the models which are brand-new for 1979.

Children have always dreamed of running away to join the circus. And so it is with FunnyFace, captured in ruffles and greasepaint by the artists of Cybis. FunnyFace dreams in porcelain. And he's just one of the inhabitants of the enchanted world of Cybis.
A world where carousel horses prance, baby owls practice wisdom. turtles live in jewelled houses, and flowers and children bloom forever. Enter our world. Your dream is waiting.

SPORTS CARS  \section*{DATSUN 280-2X}

Since 1970, the best-selling sports car in the world has been Datsun's 240/260/ $280-\mathrm{Z}$, which for 1979 is replaced with an all-new coupe called the $280-\mathrm{ZX}$. The $280-\mathrm{ZX}$ is a perfect example of the "Americanization" of imported cars. It's significantly longer, lower and wider than the car it replaces, comes with power steering and an optional automatic transmission to replace the standard 5 -speed. The original $240-\mathrm{Z}$ was uncompromisingly Spartan. Today the $280-\mathrm{ZX}$ comes with a Grand Luxury package that includes comfortable interior, rearwindow washer and wiper, power windows, cruise control, electrically adjusted rear-view mirrors, and a unique dual fuel gauge that measures the last quartertank with unsurpassed accuracy. There is also a $2+2$ version that's even larger and more opulent.

Base price: $$ 9,899$. Length: 14.5 feet. Seats: 2. Base engine: Inline-6, 135 hp , 15 mpg . Warranty: 12 months/ 12,000 miles. Dealers: 1,061 .

LANCIA ZAGATO

The other new 1979 sports car is the Italian Lancia Zagato, an unusual convertible that's built in very small num-bers-only 1,500 in 1979. The Zagato costs $$ 10,700$-reasonable for a handbuilt car of this type. This partly reflects the fact that Italy's lira has declined in value like the dollar, making Italian products comparative bargains in the U.S. The Lancia Zagato comes with a full load of luxury and convenience features, including power disc brakes, air conditioning, 5 -speed or automatic transmission, and leather interior. It uses superior front-wheel drive. The Zagato also has a unique four-position convertible top with built-in rollbar. For collectors, Lancia offers the Special Edition, a black-and-gold version of the Zagato. Only 250 will be built.

Base price: $$ 10,700$. Length: 13.66 feet. Seats: 2. Base engine Inline-4, 87 hp, 21 mpg . Warranty: 12 months/ 12,000 miles. Dealers: 197.

ECONOMY CARS

DATSUN 210
The new 210 is a bigger and more elaborate version of its popular predecessor, the B-210 introduced to this country in 1973. The new 210 uses a similar chas-sis-perfectly conventional with front engine and rear-wheel drive-under a very pretty new body. The 210 comes as a two-door or four-door sedan, a fivedoor station wagon, or a three-door hatchback. There is a choice of 4 -speed or automatic transmission, plus a 5speed on the hatchback. The ride is now softer, and the color-keyed interior has been deliberately "Americanized" with comfortable bucket seats, padded steering wheel, and fancy dashboard.

Base price: $\$ 3,899$. Length: 13.75 feet. Seats: 4. Base engine: Inline-4, 65 $\mathrm{hp}, 35 \mathrm{mpg}$. Warranty: 12 months/ 12,000 miles. Dealers: 1,061.
Datsun has another new economy car for 1979, the front-wheel-drive 310. The 310 replaces the $\mathrm{F}-10$, but is completely different. It comes as a 3-door hatchback or as a sporty coupe called the GX, and features all-independent suspension, power-assisted disc brakes, optional air conditioning, 4 -speed or 5 -speed transmission, split fold-down rear seat backs and unique levers which open the rear hatchback, the locked fuel-filler lid, and the rear side windows from the driver's seat. The interior is similar to that in the 210 , with plush upholstery and complete color coordination.

Base price: $$ 4,829$. Length: 13.5 feet. Seats: 4. Base engine: Inline-4, 65 hp , 28 mpg . Warranty: 12 months $/ 12,000$ miles. Dealers: 1,061.

FIAT STRADA

Just introduced, the all-new Fiat Strada is a second-generation front-wheel-drive sedan. The Strada came very close to being named "European Car of the Year" for its combination of aerodynamic styling, superior handling, and luxurious interior. Standard equipment on the Strada includes power disc brakes, all-independent suspension, 5-speed transmission, color-coordinated velour interior, reclining bucket seats, and split fold-down rear seats. It comes as a threedoor or five-door hatchback and shares its engine with the clever X1/9 sports car. The Strada comes in a variety of bright new colors. There is also an economy model called the Strada Standard, available only as a three-door hatchback painted in blue or white.

Base price: $$ 4,296$. Length: 13.4 feet. Seats: 4. Base engine: Inline-4, 67 hp , 32 mpg . Warranty: 24 months $/ 24,000$ miles. Dealers: 665

MAZDA GLC

Mazda's "Great Little Car" has been in production less than two years, but it's become one of the best-selling economy cars through a combination of low price, clean styling, and excellent reliability. For 1979, Mazda has added a five-door station wagon to the three-door and fivedoor hatchback sedans it's been selling. The GLC wagon is longer, heavier, and fancier than previous GLCs, with a larger, more powerful engine and a choice of 4 -speed, 5 -speed or automatic transmission. Like the sedans, the GLC wagon uses a split folding rear seat. It has a front-engine, rear-wheel-drive chassis, front disc brakes, color-coordinated interior with reclining bucket seats, rearwindow washer-wiper, tinted glass.

Base price: $$ 4,295$. Length: 13.6 feet. Seats: 4. Base engine: Inline-4, 65 hp , 29 mpg. Warranty: 12 months $/ 12,000$ miles. Dealers: 650.

- COMPACT CARS  HONDA ACCORD, FOUR-DOOR

Honda has been selling cars in the United States for only a few years. It offers only two models and, while they are not cheap, Honda is now the third largest imported car company, right behind Toyota and Datsun. The cars are fun to drive, economical-the advanced Honda CVCC engine uses leaded gas-and attractive. Hondas come with every conceivable option as standard. For 1979, the best-selling Accord-previously available only as a racy hatchback -has been lengthened into a four-door sedan that looks and acts like a European sports sedan. In typical Honda fashion, the front-wheel-drive Accord four-door comes standard with AM/FM radio, tinted glass, clock, tachometer, a unique electronic warning and maintenance reminder, and a variety of convenience features from reclining bucket seats to trip odometer. Standard transmission is a 5 -speed, with automatic optional, and variable-ratio power steering and power disc brakes are standard. Honda tries to keep its price low by offering only a few color choices-silver or red on the new sedan-along with a special wine red velour LX fabric interior. The new Accord has a larger engine and electronic ignition system. To sum up, it's an "Americanized" sedan with all the options, longer, lower, wider, and more powerful than before.

How to make the growing value of your home grow even faster.  now-and eliminates the need for

If you own a home or property in California these days, you know how good an investment real estate can be.

Your home is probably rereturning a handsome dividend in growing equity as California property values continue to soar.

But there's a way to make that investment produce an even better return.

2 ways your house can increase in value.

You see, the rate at which a house continues to grow in value is the same whether the equity remains in the house or not. So if you were to take that unused equity and put it to work in something outside of the house itself, your money could be growing even faster.

The only problem simply, is that it has been too expensive to take the money out.

With current interest rates at
$10 \%$, you would have to go through the trouble and expense of refinancing your home or property and then have to net after taxes, a return higher than $10 \%$ in order to make the whole thing worthwhile in the first place.

That has been difficult, if not impossible for most homeowners-until now.

A program

 that really works.At CDS Financial, we've developed a program that makes it not only possible, but practical to refinance your home and have the refinanced capital generating growth income outside your home, while your home itself, continues to grow in value.

Keep your house

payments the same.
Best of all, our program in most cases, keeps your house payments the same as they are right any additional cash outlay! We help you get the money and the best return from it.

In addition, we not only work with you to obtain the best possible refinancing of your home, we also recommend the best potential application of the refinanced capital.

Although no one can guarantee the future, one of our current recommendations has been averaging a return of $30 \%$ a year for the past ten years.

Think of the possibilities.

Just think what a program like this can mean if you're building a retirement income you can live with, or looking for a way to supplement the one you're trying to live with right now.

It's a whole new approach.

We haven't discovered some magical way to "beat the market", nor have we evolved a method to make bank savings beat inflation. At CDS Financial, we're financial planners who have developed bold new approaches to dealing with today's financial conditions.

Call us for more information, or mail the coupon today to learn how this program can work for you. You're under no obligation of course-except the one you owe yourself to see how the growing value of your home could be growing even faster.

NATURES GATE CARES FOR YOUIN MANYWAYS.

This one'sfor you.

At Whirlpool we believe any new product should be more than just new and different. We believe it should be better than it was before.

So how do you go about making a refrigerator better than before?

We knew conventional refrigerators had a weakness: much of the time their use was restricted to certain items. Items like milk and pop and snacks.

This meant that the whole family was constantly opening and closing the refrigerator door just to get at a few things.
We decided it would be nice if there were two doors. Actually a door within a door. One in front, for those items the family uses most. And one behind for everything else.

Finally the Serva-Door ${ }^{\text {TMK. }}$ refrigerator. It puts things right where they should be.

It helps save on spills. Helps keep cold air in. And maybe best of all, its textured steel doors help hide fingerprints.

In .other words, Mom; this one's for you.

TRAVEING TO CHINA: HOW TO DOIT

Many flights from the U.S. to China connect through Tokyo. Try the first-class sleeper service on Japan Air Lines, where you can overnight in a real bed
There are no direct flights to China from the United States, as we go to press. But one of the easiest, most serene ways to make the journey is to fly Japan Air Lines to Tokyo, change planes, and continue on to the China mainland-either to Peking (Monday, Wednesday, Friday) or Shanghai (Sunday and Monday). Or fly Tok yo-Hong Kong and enter China from there.
On flights from San Francisco, Los Angeles, Honolulu, and Vancouver, you can lake advantage of JAL's new Sky Sleeper service. Sleepers are available to first-class passengers for a surcharge. (For instance, from San Francisco to Tokyo, it's $120.) There are only five beds, so request early. What is normally a 747 's first class upstairs lounge has recently been redesigned to accommodate five comfortable beds. Flights from the West Coast to Tokyo are about 11 hours and from Honolulu about 7 . From New York, the daily flight to Tokyo leaves at noon and arrives 14 hours later. Add on a 14 -hour time change and a journey that starts at noon in New York,

The cut glass vinegar cruet sat in the middle of great-grandma's dinner table like the compass rose of an old map; its contents were sprinkled on everything from breakfast kippers and home fries to supper vegetables and fruit. With your own brew, you'll find you can do without oil in your salad dressing, hollandaise on your broccoli and-wonder of won-ders-pecans in your pecan pie!

Homemade light vinegar is different from commercial vinegar in several important ways. Like the wine that goes into it, its flavors are complex and varied. It has the essential acetic acid, of course, but not necessarily as much. The Pure Food and Drug Law requires that store vinegar be at least 5 percent acid by volume-a safe strength for picklingbut for table and cooking use something less sour is often desirable.

Homemade vinegar can be cloned; it is alive with the bacteria that make acetic acid. The bacteria in commercial vinegar are dead; it has been stabilized by pasteurizing. Once you get a successful vinegar batch going, you can maintain a steady supply by regular additions of wine and other ferments. As long as the vinegar bacteria have alcohol and air, they will produce acetic acid without destroying the flavors of the stock.

For a versatile light vinegar start with apple cider. You can use raw (unpasteurized) sweet cider and let it go "hard," or ferment, in about three weeks. Or you can save time and buy it already fermented at the liquor store. Imports like the French "Purpom" work best; American apple wines are a bit too sweet (both are 7 percent alcohol).

Next you need a barrel that gives its contents broad exposure to the air and has a top opening for receiving liquids and a lower opening for decanting them. In time you may graduate to a real wooden barrel (Franjoh Cellars, P.O. Box 7462 , Stockton, Calif. 95207 sells them), but for starters a plastic gallon milk jug will do. Wash it well; scald it;
lay it on its side, handle up. Fasten ca securely on the neck, hereafter called th bung. On the now-top surface cut a opening the size of a lemon. Pour in th fermented cider (1-2 bottles), tastin and sniffing as you do. From here o your palate and nose will be your guides

For an open-air, bug-tight closing, sli over the opening and barrel a tube o nylon stocking. Place the barrel on tray on a shelf open to air, away fror direct heat and light. Next to it put som straws for tasting. Now forget it for tw weeks (all time allowances here ar minimums; in general, home vinegar in proves with age).

A taste in two weeks should reve: considerable souring; another week an the vinegar is probably ready to use Judge by the flavor, which should b sour but, like the bandage, "ouch-less. Comparing with a taste of commercia vinegar may help.

To remove the vinegar, pour from th bung without disturbing bottom sedi ment. Take out a week's supply at time, always leaving the barrel at leas a third full. After your weekly decanting Continued on page 100 add an equal amount of liquid to barrel.

What liquid? You can stick with ha cider, of course, but it's easier, chear and far more fun to vary the flavor w leftovers of white wine (sweet and dry country fruit wines (excepting the da ones), brandy, and liqueurs. You m use leftover canned fruit, fruit syru jellies, and marmalade if you are care to make it a two-step operation. Befo acetic acid bacteria can go to work these sweets, their sugar must first fermented into alcohol by the action yeast.

Fermenting sweets is best done in separate quart or half-gallon glass j A good starter is the syrup from a lar can of peaches, mixed with equal v umes of honey and water (about a qu in all). Sprinkle $1 / 2$ teaspoon of dry ye granules on the surface, cover, a watch the action. As fermentation p gresses, a great head of foam will velop and then subside. In about a we when bubbling has stopped and the liqu has a liquor-like taste, half can be pour into the vinegar barrel and more syr can be added to the jar.

You can also use fresh fruit ferment by wild yeasts, pears being a notable ample. The formula is: 1 pound fre fruit to 1 cup honey to 1 quart scald water. Use fruit shipped directly fro the orchard and not from cold stora Make a pulp of it in your blender processor after removing only sten seeds, and pods; leave skin on. Set t mixture aside in a clean barrel to $f$ ment. At temperatures in the mid-eight this will take about a month, but st: checking sooner. At cooler temperatur it will take longer. As soon as the fla is "hard" and bubbling stops, strain the pulp. Clean the barrel and return 1 liquid to sour naturally (the best wa or add some bland light vinegar to ho it along. Pear vinegar begun during t September harvest should be just ris for Christmas giving.

There are a few hazards to look for. One is cider or wine that does sour gracefully. The wrong microt take over and make it go stale a "mousey." If your starter cider tastes in plain bad after three weeks, pitch scald the barrel and start over.
Another is the mother, the poetic tet for a film formed by acetic acid bacter It's thrilling to see it appear on the liqu surface and know you've got real n crobes at work, but watch out. TI mother can be very possessive and do stroy your vinegar if it grows too thic Best to remove it.
Mold and fruit flies (alias vineg flies) are occasional nuisances. Mold c be skimmed off the liquid; drainin washing, and scalding the barrel w deter mold and flies.

As you continue to feed your barrel assorted ferments, the vinegar will change in flavor. In time you can specialize. A particularly fruity batch is nice to set aside for pies and desserts. A less florid but full-bodied vinegar can be bottled and tagged for meat dishes or general table use. A clear, clean sour from mostly dry white wine can be bottled with fresh herbs for herb vinegar.

When you bottle vinegar to store, it's a good idea to stop bacterial action. The simplest way is to fill narrow-necked bottles right up to stopper level, cutting off the air supply. Or you can heat the vinegar to just below boiling for 10 minutes (dried herbs can be added to hot vinegar).

Meanwhile, use your vinegar often and well. Keep a cruet on the table for calorie counters to sprinkle on green salad and cooked vegetables and for salt-watchers to add to hamburgers, fried potatoes, and fish. In the kitchen use a little to keep cut-up fruit from browning, to marinate chicken pieces, to moisten stuffing, to mix with water in a piecrust for quiche.

There isn't a course in the most elaborate menu that doesn't have a place for good vinegar. To prove it we offer a sampler. It's not a menu; one vinegar dish to a meal is plenty. As with perfume, subtlety is all.

Slow flying in the great Southwest

You travel by light plane, raft, jeep, and hiking boots on a six-day discovery of some of the most astonishing country in America

By Coralee Leon

The land falls away sharply, and we're flying over the canyon. Low. So low we can scan the tops of the surrounding plateau, nearly at eye level. Our pilot guides the rugged little Helio Courier expertly from canyon wall to canyon wall, checking air currents before descending.

He points out a strange formation to the left, at the bottom of the canyon. We can see it as we bank: the upturned roots of an ancient mountain range whose peaks once towered nearly 5 miles. Beside me, Darryl, my 12-year-old son, asks in his rear-seat mike what happened to the huge mountains. They were toppled by a cataclysmic upheaval millions of years ago. Now the giants lie on their sides, foundations for other ranges built by the seas and the fiery pressures of earth, and leveled again into the vast plateaus and canyons we have been exploring.

The Helio Courier is indeed a flying classroom, and Darryl as much as the two adults along (a Texas magazine editor and I) is learning that beauty can be enhanced by knowledge. Perhaps that was one of the reasons Bruce Adams, our pilot and guide, founded this oneman, one-plane company 8 years ago. A like the eagles that make their nests in these crags and spires, we swoop down

personable young natural historian with degrees in English and philosophy, a passion for geology and conservation, and several thousand hours' flying time, Bruce has grown into an intimate understanding of the Southwest. And his Southwest Safaris is the best way he knows to share it.

You could probably explore the Four Corners region (an area formed by the joining of New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, and Arizona-and Southwest Safaris's prime territory) on your own, in a rented car. But you'd never find the wonderful hidden caves and valleys, the amazing formations, the old Indian trails to the tops of seemingly inaccessible bluffs, that Bruce Adams spots from his plane and explores between safaris. You'd never have the perspective on the Painted Desert that only a thousand-foot altitude can give you, nor penetrate the forbidding and achingly beautiful Badlands that we drift above, so low and slow we can imagine we're approaching for a landing on the moon. You'd never see the uprooted Grand-Canyon mountain range, for it is hidden from all but tho who look from above. And you woul never have the personal and expert guic ance of a man who knows the territor and how to show it off.

From the first morning, when we gath er in the lobby of the Santa Fe Hilto with a duffle apiece (the clothing limit) a sun hat (a must-the sun is relentless and a sack of camera gear, we kno we're on an adventure. An assista drives us to the airport, where Bruc Adams, dressed in safari gear and pit helmet, meets us in the flight room aft, his preflight check and loading, an briefs us before a huge worn map Four Corners. And then to the plane, sturdy red and white STOL (short taki off and landing) 6-placer tugging eage ly at its mooring lines. "The Heli Continued on page 10

Courier was built to fly," Bruce say: giving it an affectionate pat. "And that all it wants to do."

It is quite a remarkable airplane, notice, when we taxi into takeoff posi tion about two-thirds down the runway Its huge wings and powerful engine lif it off after a mere 300 feet ( 150 at se level in a light breeze-a third of a foot ball field.) It cruises at 160 mph , bu handles with perfect stability at a re markable 28 ; in a breeze, you can hove over an interesting formation and lool to your heart's content. And the wing are strutless, so visibility is excellent. Thi Helio Courier could land safely across : runway if necessary (as Bruce has dem monstrated many times), which make it a perfect airplane for bush-flying is and out of tight canyons and mountain ous terrain. Best of all, its pilot has faultless record and high standards o safety. We know from the start that wi are in good hands.

But the Helio Courier is not our only means of transport. Once we land, we ex plore by station wagon the ancient ruins of towns built between A.D. 1 and A.D 1000 by a vañished civilization called the Anazasi-"The Ancient Ones." Fore runners of the present Pueblo and Hop tribes of the area, the Anazasi lived simply, worshipped their gods in great round rooms called kivas, developed highly sophisticated mortarless building techniques, created lovely black-and-white patterned pottery (you can still find shards on the sites), and baked simple corn bread, grinding grain on the same stone metates used by the Indians today

Recipe for chewed bread, circa A.D 500: Parch corn, and grind very fine Chew until starch is converted to sugar Mix chewed meal with more meal until a stiff batter results. Dig hole 4 feet wide, 1 foot deep. Line with corn husks. Pour batter 3 inches deep. Cover with husks and damp earth. Set afire, and keep fire burning all night. In the morning, open the hole. A heavy, sweet bread results (From the museum at Mesa Verde.)

Some of Anazasi chose to build their stone villages on the lower lips of caves -we can see them from the plane on our early-morning flight over the cliffs of Mesa Verde, a beautiful series of giant green fingers that put one in mind of the Norwegian fjords, but which point not to the sea, but into the face of a wearing wind. Once on the ground, we poke around the cliff dwellings, for closeup looks at what we saw from the air.

Such dramatic contrasts weave the texture of the entire trip. After a flight over Canyonlands National Park, a region of canyons that look like a storybook land of ice-cream castles and cakes heaped with pastel frosting, we board a jeep for a ride among the castles themselves, on trails that are dry sandy river beds that turn during sudden rains into rushing streams and quicksand. From the jeep, we explore on foot. First the desert hideouts of real cowboys, who left their rough tables and benches for our inspection. Nearby, we are introduced to our first ant lion-"Every safari needs a lion," Bruce says. Ours is a creature about a quarter of an inch long, who hides in the sand beneath a diabolically clever conical trap no wider than half an inch. When a hapless ant slips in, the ant lion (the larva of the lace-winged fly) seizes it from below, shakes it senseless with enormous ferocity, and retreats into the sand for a quiet lunch. Darryl, spellbound, serves free meals to several.

Next, on to the best of Canyonlandsrock climbing. Like flies in hiking boots (or, in my case, running shoes), we scale the pink and yellow rocks that once formed layers of sand at the bottom of the Permian oceans $240,000,000$ years ago, and are now hardened in the same soft curves left by the receding water. We get explorme I ets see If we cill get to the top of that butte." And near sunset, we hire horses and (once the author gets hers under conmor - (ame om.
mom!"') ride across the plain to the horizon and back in time for steaks on the ledge of a mesa with the entire Canyonlands as its front yard.

Next day, we fly over the gooseneck turns of the San Juan la Batista River, land, and climb into an Avon inflatable boat for a rafting trip from Bluff, Utah. to Mexican Hat, so named for a peculiar formation of delicately balanced rocks that might topple in a million years-or tomorrow. This is the only part of the trip on which Bruce does not accompany us. In his place is an experienced river pilot, Ken Ross, former chief archaeologist at Mesa Verde, former student of Loren Eiseley at the University of Ne braska, and part of the scientific team that briefed the astronauts before their trip to the moon (the same team that, musing during lunch one day about the moon's general molecular makeup, produced a formula that turned out to match almost perfecily with the chemical composition of a certain French cheese). Partly smooth water, partly white, the trip is a tour through time and through the immense forces that can heave rock from 12.000 feet below the surface of earth into 3,0\%0-foot cliffs, leaving canyons, mountains, and anticlines-great idege 1: 1 by mammot: upold nge of rock-that look like fabulous Indian desens in llaste buch. On ote of several Gastropods perfectly fossilized cor easily into our hands from bits of cru bling sandstone. And ancient sea-wor more than 20 feet long lie preserved rock faces once on the bottom of $p$ historic oceans, now exposed for Saf explorers to see.

Active as the trip is, we never get tire Bruce plans it that way. Half the tir we're looking, marveling, pondering t imponderable natural forces that creat this gigantic landscape. But the oth half, we're engaged in more immedia activity: hauling supplies up the rocl hill to our campsite in the lap of a pet fied sand dune, building a campfire the San Juan riverbañk (Bruce teach Darryl some sure-fire techniques: h. the resident expert at home now), or jt paying strict attention to where our ne step will be as we negotiate the 45 -degr angle of a rocky wall.

Bruce Adams's Safaris, never larg than 5 people per trip, take place at a time of year. Six-day spring, summe and fall safaris are strictly campout (1 never camped before, and I loved 1 simplicity of the open-air meals, a waking in sweet-smelling air after a go night's sleep under the starry Southwes ern sky). On shorter (3-, 4-, or 5-day safaris, some in winter, you eat and sle in inns and hotels. Or you can whet you appetite with a 1-or 2-day air adventur Prices run from $$ 199$ for a single day $$ 799$ for the full 6 , plus $$ 15$ sleepin bag rental if you don't bring your ow Everything else is provided by Southwe Safaris except hotels and meals in San Fe .

The rituals of daily survival-meal showers, transportation-are seen swiftly and efficiently by our guide. B everyone helps-because it's part of tt fun. Darryl hustles along with Bruc lugging fresh water for today's lemonar or tea, as I help load the color-cede packs of utensils, food, and sleeping gea And we all pitch in with meals and was ing up. Evenings together chatting by comforting little campfire in the vast stil ness all around can bring a small grot very close together. And in the case of 12 -year-old, suddenly finding himse not a child but a fully participating men ber of the group can be an enrichin growing experience.

On our last leg, Santa Fe-bound fro the south rim of the Grand Canyon, it my turn to sit in the front seat. Since too am a licensed pilot, Bruce lets $n$ take the controls over the Painted Deser a huge impressionist's canvas in paste and grays, and shows me some of th tricks of mountain flying when we cro the Jemez Mountains and the beautift green volcano with a garden in its crate The vastness and the beauty of what w are seeing-of all we have seen-ar strangely reassuring, exhilarating. Fc moihers, too, a Southwest Safari can b an enriching, growing experience.

astles in Bohemia

house-collector's tour  f Czechoslovakia's  'ost romantic province

Dona Guimaraes

Im fascinated by domestic architecture ruined or ravishing. Bohemia is studd with an incomparable set of castles d châteaux that once belonged to the erman and Austro-Hungarian nobility -all the reason needed for a two-week p to Czechoslovakia.
Bohemia, bounded by Austria, East Id West Germany, is the westernmost ovince-the other two are Slovakia id Moldavia-and the industrial center the country. Skoda cars and Pilsener er are Bohemian, as is Prague, where y trip-after an 8-hour flight from ew York-began.
Prague has the hilly site and historic yering of Rome. You can, in one city ock, find a medieval castle, a 14thentury cathedral, an Art Deco office tilding, and an absolutely intact 1907 remist's shop. But if Rome is feverishly owded, Prague is pleasantly empty. here are tour groups around major onuments-the statued Charles bridge, e courtyard of Hradcany Castle, waitg for the mechanical clock at City Hall -but one can walk alone down a narow medieval street, go through the irelsky Library with only a guide, sit in e gardens of the Renaissance Pavilion eacefully surrounded by pigeons. This mptiness makes sightseeing very pleasnt, but is probably why the tour groups round Prague tend to stick together. lost are from Iron Curtain countries. mericans only accounted for 40,000 of the $17,000,000$ visitors last year. And while heads don't turn at the sound of American, you have a certain sense of exploration. There is a definable triumph in being the thirtieth English-speaking visitor to a remote country castle.

The newest hotel in Prague, the InterContinental, is frankly set up to be the Best-of-the-West. Every possible convenience . . . and some very charming Czech extras. Like flowers in the rooms, clusters of Biedermeier furniture in the lobby and halls, unreadable vials in the bathrooms that turn out to be Russian pine-scented bubble bath (I thought it was mouthwash!), huge feather pillows, linen sheets. Also chambermaids who cheerfully lend you hair driers (your USA one is useless, even with adapters), and a seven-language convenience desk that seems to be able to cope with anything.

Prague is a town that can be managed without knowing Czechoslovakian. Menus are in three languages; day tours are done in cheerful Basic English. And it's amazing, after a few days, how cognates pop up. Benzine, autoservus, and parkeviste are obvious; dezert is easy, okourku is cucumbers if you think about it, rostu is roasted, vporova-steamed, and you'll never forget brambor-potato.

Farther away from Prague, there is less English. Menus are not translated, castle tours are done in Czech, German, or Russian, with a typed English translation handed you to carry and read. The real way to explore Bohemia is by car and with an English-speaking guide. Compared to the same service in other European countries, it's amazingly cheap. A five-person car with driver and guide costs $\$ 31$ a day (plus $20 \phi$ per kilometer). Drive-yourself cars can be rented for about $\$ 75$ a week (plus $11 \phi$ per kilometer) and the roads, if narrow, are well-marked and lightly trafficked.

Within 30 miles of Prague, are two stunning Gothic castles: Karlstejn and Konopiste. Karlstejn is real Gothic, finished in 1367, and so well-designed that no army ever took it by force. On the other hand, Konopiste is fake Gothic, finished in 1896, and could be taken by six healthy Munchkins. Karlstejn, on top of a pine-forested mountain, is full of echoing rooms and corkscrew stone staircases, one of which winds up a $10-$ story tower. You have to climb these (Karlstejn is no castle for the faint-footed). There is a medieval treasury-the walls, ceiling, and the altar are inlaid with precious and semiprecious stones. It's well worth the climb, you find, to look out over the pine forest through an amethyst-studded window.

Konopiste, extravagantly rebuilt by Archduke Ferdinand (he of Sarajevo) on an already much rebuilt 14th-century site, is, for all its 19th-century fakery, a splendid hunting museum. Ferdinand was an enthusiast. It is also probably as untouched an Edwardian interior as you'll find anywhere.

Veltrusy, only 20 miles outside of Prague, is a romantic summer château, built by one of Bohemia's 18th-century specialties, the enlightened aristocrat. These worldly gentlemen welcomed Mozart and Canaletto, gave refuge to Casanova. At Veltrusy, Count Jan Rudolf Chotek built the first English landscape garden in Central Europe. The gardens are a ruin now, but there are still crumbling temples and obelisks amid dense foliage, creating an even more romantic landscape than Count Chotek intended. The interiors, however, are in an exquisite state. The dome room is frescoed with bright garden flowers, the stucco cartouches are crisply restored, and the furniture and porcelains gleam. Under the central part of the house is the Czech version of a grotto: an open air room, the Salla Terrena, with pebble mosaic floors and vaults, the walls and ceilings painted with exotic birds. The summer of 1742 would have been very pleasant at Veltrusy.

Southern Bohemia, close to the Austrian border, has a triangle of three castles that are spectacular: Jindrichuv Hradec, Cesky Krumlov Zamek, and Cervena Lhota. (Give up on pronouncing Czech castle names!)

Jindrichuv Hradec is a high castle on a slope with a clearly visible architectural history. Like Topsy, it just grew-from courtyard to courtyard, the last one a giant trapezoid completely enclosed by medieval crenelations, a Renaissance tower, and a towering wall of tiered Italianate arcades.

Cesky Krumlov Zamek has a soaring 13th-century tower by a medieval wooden bridge, but the rest of the fortress was renovated in the 16 th century. In the 18 th century, a water garden was laid out in the handy western keep and a ballroom built into the medieval walls. Every generation that changed it hired painters. This castle celebrates fresco and trompe l'oeil painting. The Salle des Armes has huge Gothic family blazons painted in the arches. Sixteenth-century rooms are elaborately covered with faux boix, faux marble, faux stucco, and faux curtains. The ballroom has the gaiety of an 18 th-century masked ball, because one is in progress all around, complete with painted musicians in a painted gallery.

Cesky Krumlov Zamek is enormous
300 rooms, not counting the towers. Yet every room is fascinating. The salon with portraits of all 79 Schwartzenberg estates, the hall with the carved golden coach that carried presents over the Alps for the coronation of Urban VIII (a later owner used it for a bed), and the oldest Renaissance theatre in Europe, comple with costumes and sets.

Cervena Lhota is a pink stone châtea tiny and elegant, more Loire Valley tha Czech stronghold. Set in the center of lake, connected to the mainland only $t$ a narrow Gothic bridge, it has to $t$ southern Bohemia's most charming w: ter castle. Recently restored, it is also showcase for the energy and style wit which the Czech government cares fc its state-owned castles. Everything spa kles-not only from the reflected wate which dapples every room-but th floors are waxed, the furniture highl polished, the pewter and silver glistening I'd like to move in tomorrow.

Southern Bohemia is Czechoslovakia lake district. In a landlocked countr lakes are next, best and appropriatel cherished. So is one of the best lake proc ucts-fresh carp. My recommendatio for this is the Parkhotel in Hlubok: which is worth visiting in spite of i fluorescent-lit dining room, because has a genial proprietress. The carp ar crisply fried, with caraway seed-sprir kled boiled potatoes and a white Mori vian Tramin wine. Delicious.

Bohemia is very proud of Pilsen. Th pride is valid for the Pilesner beer (an the 1900 pub next to the brewery wher you'll never get better). But the tow itself is more factory than fantasy. How ever, just outside Pilsen is Kozel, on château that should not be missed. It i a creamy Baroque house of sunny room and terraced gardens. All in mint condi tion. Kozel is famous for its painter rooms. (One has the feeling throughou Bohemia that it was cheaper to get in a local artist than to import wallpa per.) The salon is a grisaille forest witl bright-painted birds and beasts peepint through. The bedrooms are festooned with roses, daisies, morning-glories. Anc the furniture is flowered to match. Koze feels very lived-in. The beds are hun with starched embroidered curtains; pot ted plants line the window sills, fa Dutch marquetry desks, spindly Victo rian chairs, Louis XVI cabinets shar the same rooms. Kozel was once a hunt ing lodge, and in spite of the large sta bles and riding hall on the estate, one o the 18 th-century owners kept his favor ite horse in a Kozel bedroom. A hundres years later, one of the owners turned tr amateur theatricals, and his tiny theatre is still there, in the horse room, complete with kerosene-lit stage and painted back drop.

The best base for exploring Westerr Bohemia is its great spa, Carlovy Vary (formerly Carlsbad), The high Ed wardian architecture-Edward VII was a frequent visitor-alone is worth the visit, not to mention 12 drinkable springs if you're in the mood for "taking the waters." You have a choice (both firsi class) of the new Hotel Therma, which is blindingly modern but has a naturally warmed swimming pool or the decayed grandeur of the Grand Hotel Moskova (formerly Grand Hotel Pupp). In Carlsbad, the days are full of pre-WWI leisure: strolls along the promenade, listening to noontime bands, teatime violins, free sips at thermal fountains, then lunch at a pastry shop, a nap and dinner at the Charles IV restaurant on a tower terrace, delicious grilled steak with a sauce of homemade mayonnaise and rowan berries.

Carlovy Vary and its companion spas, Marianske Lazne (Marienbad), and Frantiskovy Lazne (Franzenbad) are in the Ore mountains; beyond to the west stretches the great Bohemian forest and two interesting castles to see.

Horoskovy Tyn, close to Domalice, is visible evidence that on a trade route to the Danube a substantial fortress is a Good Thing.

Kynzvart, close to Marienbad is an Empire château and the summer home of Prince Metternich, who not only entertained the great (Beethoven and Goethe were visitors) but managed to bring back from his triumphant Congress of Vienna a good many Napoleonic relics and the gigantic inlaid conference table on which the foundations of modern Europe were decided.

EATING
Czechoslovakian food is not cuisine minceur. It is solid and rib-sticking and portions are enormous. However, most menus have the size of the portion indicated by weight-so order the smallest. Soups are rich, peasanty, make a good lunch. Or try the Hungarian salami, fragrant and peppery. Street eating is a Czech specialty. Horky Parky, which sounds like a cartoon pig, really is a delicious sausage, which street vendors sell, bunless with hot mustard; messy but worth it. Zmerzlina, soft ice cream, is spewed out of portable machines into biscuit saucers-the best street dessert.

Short of in the expensive Prague hotels and restaurants, you will seldom be served fresh vegetables or salads even in season. But crisp dill-flavored cucumber salads are served everywhere. as are potatoes, which are boiled and sprinkled with caraway seeds or chopped fennel or made into light liver-stuffed dumplings. Fresh fruits are also a rarity; but the chocolate-slathered, ice creamfilled palacinky pancakes are fantastic. And the whipped cream is real!

E GETTING THERE

You must have a visa and a valid U.S. passport. Your Czechoslovakian travel arrangements can be made via Cedok, the Czechoslovakian National Tourist Board, which has offices in most major U.S.A. cities, or your travel agent can arrange them. For the visas, you mus get the forms from Cedok, or your trave agent, mail them, your travel date and your passport to the Czechoslova kian Embassy in Washington. They ar stamped and dated for your arrival an departure and mailed back to you. It better to stick to your prearranged trave dates, and to plan everything ahead room reservations, cars, guides, tours Cedok has excellent tourist literatur and maps. Take every one it offers you because they are not always available it Czechoslovakia. Fodor's guide is thi best, but you cannot count on castle and châteaux being open all the time Check with Cedok in Prague before you set out. CSA (Czechoslovakia Airlines flies directly New York-Prague; Pan An also flies it, with a change in Frankfurt

SHOPPING

Czech folk crafts, carved wooden ware toys, embroidered table linens, paintec peasant pottery can be bought at specia shops: Ceska Jizba, Karlova 12, Sloven ska Jizba, Vaclavske Nam 44, and Kras va Jiba, Marodni 23 in Prague. The twe nicest crafty things to buy are the hand woven peasant cottons, which are abou $$ 4$ per meter and of beautiful quality but heavy to carry back, and the huge decorated goose eggs-much lighter, but fragile-for $2, which are indigo and white and are, egg-wise, spectacular.

jinger's consumer check list for air conditioning and heat pump buyers...

High Efficiency. Years of Experience. Manufacturing Quality. Affordable Cost.

Everyone's cooling needs are a little different, but you can't go wrong with a unit that covers these four check points.

Singer represents 78 years experience in the climate control industry, and will stand up to any competitor when it comes to giving you more for your energy dollar. Over 17 years have been devoted to the production of quality heat pumps and central air conditioning alone. And Singer offers high operating efficiencies at a reasonable first cost.

Whether your concern is high efficiency, low cost, built-in quality, or all of these things, Singer is the name to look for. (Speaking of built-in quality, to the best of our knowledge, Singer is the only manufacturer that run-tests each and every air conditioner and heat pump unit before it leaves the factory.)

So if you're in the market for an outstanding air conditioning system or heat pump, contact your local Singer dealer for a free estimate. Youll find him in the Yellow Pages.

SWEDISH PRODUCTS ARE BUIL TO LAST FOREVER. THIS ONE WONTT LAST A MINUTE.

Those crafty Swedes have created a product that turns the simplest snack into a special occasion. Wasa Crisp Bread-a thin, delicious, crispy, textured bread is the Swedish staff of life; the national bread of Sweden. You simply garnish a Wasa Crisp Bread with just about anything that tastes goodmeat, cheese, salad - even a little jam.

The result is a concoction that isn't just everyday good-it's Yumpin' Yimminy good.

And Wasa Crisp Bread is one of the few scrumptious things that's good for you. What's more, our Crisp Bread is 100\% natural-there's nothing artificial. For instance, our rye varieties are made from whole grain rye. And Wasa Crisp Bread is probably higher in natural bran fiber and lower in calories than the bread you're eating now. Wasa Crisp Bread: the Swedish product that's made not to last.

IT'S ONIY NATURAL.

My husband said he'd be bored silly on a Caribbean cruise. That's him singing with our waiters.

As you can see, he's enjoying his boredom enormously. Today for example, we're on our way to Caracas. So I thought we'd just relax, and rest up for South America, right? Wrong.

My husband-who loves to sleep late-was so full of vim that he got us up at the crack of dawn. Why? So we could get off to our morning exercise class.

After exercise class? An early breakfast at the outdoor verandah cafe. He wanted to eat hearty to be ship-shape for the basketball tournament.

The next thing I know, he hustles us off to dancing class. And this afternoon, over at the pool, who won first place in the inner-tube race? You guessed it.
We've been going on like this for days. Thank goodness we're on a 14-day cruise.We still have plenty of time.To relax.To bask in the sun. To be pampered. To feel better than we've ever felt in our lives.

See a travel agent about a Royal Caribbean cruise. You'll find one leaving Miami every week and it's one of the nicest vacations you'll ever have. If there's any doubt, ask my husband. He's been singing its praises since we've come aboard.

Each neighboring island is connected to Oahu by frequent flights of Hawaiian Air and Aloha Airlines.

Maui has become the most popular of the group, with the little-visited twin towns of Kahului and Wailuku; a muchvisited third town-the old whaling port of Lahaina. Kaanapali Beach has lots of beachfront hotels-Island Holidays' Royal Lahaina and the Sheraton Maui are my favorites. There's a Robert Trent Jones golf course, and Lahaina just down the road. Also not far away: Rockresorts' spanking new Kapalua Bay Hotel. Try the Hana Maui Hotel in Hana, a small town on the tropical east coast. In Wailea, the low-slung Inter-Continental Maui. Instructions and tips to help you recreate or adapt the inventive fix-it-up ideas that you will find in this issue

How to paint patterns on fabric

Materials: Fabric; paint-dyes such as Rit dye, available in dime or hardware stores-or pigment paints, available at art-supply stores; glass jars for mixing paint; brushes; tailor's chalk (if you're going to paint a freehand design); 2- or 3-ply plate finish Bristol board and a #11 X-Acto knife, both available in artsupply stores (if you're going to make a stencil); artist's tracing paper (if you're going to trace a design).

Method: Choose a flat work surface-a large piece of plywood or Beaverboard is good-and tack the fabric in place. Mix paint in glass jars. (Mr. Montgomery usually uses dyes, following the basic package instructions, but experimenting to achieve the color concentrations he wants. He labels each jar with strips of dyed fabric.)
If you're painting freehand: Draw the design right on the fabric with tailor's chalk (on white fabric, you may use a pale blue chalk; on deep colored fabric, white chalk). Paint. Let dry.
If you're using a stencil (which is a good idea if your design has a repeat or is complicated) : Draw design with a pencil on Bristol board and cut out areas to be painted with X-Acto knife. Tack stencil to fabric and apply colors within stencil. Let dry.
If you're tracing a design: Paint the design on tracing paper. Tack lightweight transparent fabric over the design and trace with paint. Let dry.
What to do with painted fabrics: Besides painted rugs, slipcovers, pillows, and tablecloths, you could paint panels of natural silk or tulle with metallic gold for curtains; paint a muslin bedspread, line and quilt it; or, if you're less confident of your design talent, paint in the flowers of a damask tablecloth. No matter what your project, Mr. Montgomery suggests having the fabric dry-cleaned after it's thoroughly dry, to remove excess dye. Thereafter, continue to dryclean. Fabric may be ironed.

How to arrange an efficient sewing room

FABRIC STORAGE

It makes sense to store fabrics accordil to color and category-all the silks gether, all the wools, all the lining fa rics, and interfacings. In Mrs. Mesh koff's sewing room, fabrics are kept drawers and cupboards on the laund wall beside the washer and dryer, ar extra bolts of it stay handy in a bask beside the steps (the basket also hol rolls of wrapping paper for pressing ope seams and around buttons). Fabrics yc love to look at but aren't likely to ma] into anything for a while can be ke nearby but out of the way-like the 2 year-old Thai silks stored in the clos behind the tailoring form.

PATTERNS

Patterns seem to multiply daily, and yc need to plan well in advance to accon modate the population. Most of $\mathrm{Mr}_{\mathrm{r}}$ Meshekoff's are kept in a specially d signed drawer in her cutting table. $\mathrm{F}_{1}$ those currently in use, a wall rack is good idea (see page 184). And for th inevitable overflow, you can add preti fabric or paper-covered boxes like th flower-patterned ones on Mrs. Meshi koff's window sill. On an overhead ba on the laundry wall hang plastic-protec ed carboard patterns she made herself ; sewing class.

MAKING A OOL BOX

. Michael Meshekoff is an accomplished 1 experienced craftsman and his design, jwn on page 130 , requires some tools i may be unfamiliar if you haven't done seat deal of carpentry. However, with h step, we will suggest ways in which the astruction might be simplified. Essenly, the design is two boxes hinged toher. Each one is made a little bit differ-ently, because a decorative face is needed at the back of the box, which shows when the box is closed.

Box A-Step 1

Start by making a frame with the two pieces of $3 / 4$-inch pine, measuring 36 by 2 inchesthe stiles - and the two measuring $51 / 2$ by 2 inches-the rails. Using bench saw, cut stiles at a $45^{\circ}$ angle at the outside edge.* With a $1 / 8$-inch bit drill holes $1 / 4$-inch deep, $1 / 2$-inch from the top and bottom of each rail and corresponding inner side of the stiles (see drawing). Cut four $1 / 2$-inch lengths of $1 / 8$-inch dowel. Drop glue in the holes, put in the dowels, join stiles and rails.

Step 2

To form the box, which will be attached to the frame, take 2 pieces of pine measuring 36 by $2^{3 / 4}$ inches and 2 pieces measuring $81 / 2$ by $23 / 4$ inches. Again, using the bench saw, miter the outside edge at $45^{\circ}$ angle.* (When assembled, the edges will fit snugly to the frame, forming a clean outside line.) "Note: If you are gomg to paimt your box, the jomms can be butted, not mulered, and you do not have 10 make the $45^{\circ}$ angle cuts. Simply sand carefully before painiing.

Step 3

Before assembling, dado or make gror on the inside of the verticals using router. The shelves will slide through $t \mid$ grooves.
Note: If you don't want removable shel simply measure and draw pencil line guide in gluing and nailing shelves in pla

Step 4

Glue and nail box together. Glue and frame to the box.

Step 5

Next, take the clear pine panel measu 35 by $8 \frac{1}{2}$ inches, and glue to the insid the frame. To make more secure, you nail in place, using 1 -inch brads.

Step 6

Next, take two pieces of quarter ro molding, $3 / 4$ by $3 / 4$ inches, measuring inches in length, and two pieces qua round molding $3 / 4$ by $3 / 4$ inches, measu $51 / 2$ inches in length. Using bench saw, ends to a $45^{\circ}$ angle. Now glue and nail molding, so that it fits flush to the in rim of the panel. This hides the raw er and dresses up the inner frame. The fi part of the cabinet is now completed.

Box B-Step 1

For the back of the cabinet, you neer build another box. This time, however, make the grooves on the inside of verticals. Do not miter the outside ec Then glue and nail the pieces together.

Step 2

So that you can change the toile lining, back panel has to be able to slide in and c This means that all 4 sides at the back of box must be rabbeted, before all 4 pie are glued and nailed to form a box. T means cutting a $1 / 4$-inch-deep step with router, so that the 9 -by- $351 / 2$-inch plyw panel, which will form the back panel, flush to the box.
Note: If you decide to simply stain interior or to have a permanent lining, $t$ you just glue and nail a 36 -by- $91 / 2$-ir plywood panel flush to the frame.

Step 3

Check shelf measurements and cuts for inch pine. Drill $1 / 8$-inch holes $1 / 2$-inch di for the $1 / 8$-inch dowel spindles. Cut dow lengths to accommodate one-size or $v$ ous size spools-and insert in holes - 8 ing or not as you wish.

Step 4

In finishing, sand carefully if you're go to stain, making sure a good wood seale used before staining. Two or 3 coats lacquer varnish or polyurethane should sufficient to finish.

Step 5

Now you have two boxes, front and ba Hinge them together, spacing hinges eve ly, 3 inches from top, 3 inches from 1 bottom. Center the middle hinge.

Step 6

Attach porcelain pull to decorative panel Box A

The closet wi Four shelves, ' kept at the pri moisture level $b$ humidifier and and-vent syst Ballasts and wi for fluorescents in cabinet next $d$

EDITOR'S NOTE: A young horticultural designer still in his twenties, David Madison specializes in planning and planting terraces and roof gardens, works at the experimental greenhouse at Hunter College in Manhattan, and photographs and lectures on his favorite subject, orchids.

The first step in building a plant closet is to consider the heights of the plants you want to grow. Varying the distance between shelves accommodates a great diversity of plants. Weight is also a factor -stationary shelves support more weight than bracketed ones. And with graduated shelves, small to tall, top to bottom, the larger, heavier plants can rest at ground level.

In my closet, 6 feet high and 7 feet wide, there are four shelves, $14,15,20$, and 35 inches apart. Each has a depth of 18 inches. With these measurements in mind, I ordered from a sheet-metal worker eight trays- 3 feet by 18 inches (two trays per shelf make it easier if one needs to be removed). To accommodate water run-off, trays shou 1 or 2 inches deep.

To light the closet, I c 4 -foot (40-watt) length fluorescent tubing becaus a standard size, they are 1 ily availabble, even in stores. (Six-foot lengths w have fit the 6 -foot closet they are more expensive less commonly available used four 4 -foot tubes shelf and let them doub for 2 feet over the midd each shelf. Plants requ strongest light are pl there, and those requiring light are set at the ends o shelves.

Because the closet closed system, excess from the tubes can burn cate plants. There is much discus about what kind of artif light grows plants best. G lights, especially designec plants, can be expen Plants require light in the spectrum and blue spect, and grow-lights contain in one tube. However, an er and less expensive mel is recommended by many door light growers: alteı ing warm white (red s trum) and cool white ( spectrum) standard tube:

he same shelf. The effect is about the ame at a fraction of the cost. I built a rood fascia on the front edge of each helf to conceal the tubing and miniiize glare.
Each shelf contains a separate turnn switch for independent operation, but 0 provide an automatic 14 -hour day, I enerally use a timer connected to the witch box. To provide air circulation, which discourages insects and helps to revent fungus, the electrical cupboard Iso contains a small fan for each shelf. Fans blow through holes in the wall beween the electrical cupboard and the lant closet. The fans also help to circuate the humidity from the 4 -gallon ca,acity Hankscraft humidifier that is in he bottom of the closet.
As it happens, my plant closet was ined with white vinyl when it housed a Aurphy bed, and this has proved ideal or plants because it is reflective, easy to lean, and doesn't absorb any of the Iumidity.

HOW TO  POT ORCHIDS  STEP BY STEP

f you choose to grow orchids as I do, ne of the secrets of successful growing ies in the method of repotting and hoice of potting materials. This applies vhether you are growing orchids under ights, on a window sill, or in a greenrouse.
A mix must be porous enough to dry out thoroughly between waterings. A orous mix allows for an even exchange etween water and oxygen at the level ff the roots, where the plant needs it the nost.

There must always be a rich supply of qutrients for the proper health and coninued growth of the plant, although nost orchids produce new growth only once a year. Inspect the medium at the irst signs of growth to determine whether new mix is required.

The mix should also be easy to renove from around the roots. Material hat is difficult to remove damages the oots, shocks the plant, and is frustrating o work with.

A good mix should remain firm one o three years. That's important bezause rotted medium destroys orchid oots, and too frequent repotting weakans the plant and lowers its resistance to jests and disease.

Step 1

The mix I use is a combination of two parts medium grade white fir bark with one part each coarse grade perlite and German peat. (I find that Michigan peat decomposes too quickly and has an acid pH factor orchids don't tolerate.) This basic mix can be varied. When I'm potting paphiopedilums, I add oyster shells (obtainable at bird-supply stores) and dolomite lime because paphiopedilums are great alkaline lovers. Coarse grade fir bark can be added for larger specimen plants and for orchids that like to be drier-certain oncidiums, brassavolas, and members of the vanda tribe. Some growers like to use tree fern, Hapuu-a Hawaiian fibrous plant derivative, or osmunda fiber.

Because most orchids are epiphytic, getting nutrients and moisture from the air, not the ground, it's natural for roots to creep out of the pot. But when there's no more room for the rhizomes to grow, or when the medium has become soft to the touch, it is time to repot.

Step 2

The best time to do this is when the plant shows new growth and roots; then it is most active and least disturbed by change. (Never, however, repot a plant that is in flower or bud.)
Select a pot just barely larger than the present one. Make sure it is clean and free of salts and algae. Clay orchid pots with vertical slits in the sides are best, but a standard clay pot with the drainage hole enlarged will do.

Step 3

Fill one third of the pot with clean broken crock, with the sharp sides down. Knock the orchid out of its present pot by inverting it, holding it around the base, and rapping the rim of the pot briskly on the edge of a table. Orchid roots are tenacious and it may take some doing to dislodge them.

Step 4

Gently peel off roots that stick to the pot. Remove all old mix from the roots, working carefully with your fingers. All the mix must be removed and the roots rinsed well with tepid water.
Next, inspect the roots. Any soft brown roots must be pulled away and discarded. Healthy orchid roots are firm to the touch and white. Care should be taken not to break off the fresh green tips of the new roots, which manufacture food for the plant and cannot regenerate. It is a good idea to dip the whole plant in fungicide solution-2 teaspoons of Benlate to 1 gallon of water will do.

Step 5

When the plant is dry, place it in the pot. Don't center it-give the most amount of room to the new foliage growth. Spread the roots evenly in the pot. Using moistened mix, fill in around the roots just to the level of the rhizome (the horizontal stem that supports the pseudobulbs), while holding the plant level. The rhizome should never be covered or the growing buds will rot. Press down around the edge of the pot with your thumbs or potting hammer, making sure the plant is securely anchored. If the plant moves around in the pot too freely, place a stake near the tallest growth and tie it with Twist-ems or plastic cord.

Step 6

Run a stream of water over your newly potted plant. Water should flow freely from all holes. If any holes are blocked, remove the plant and start again. If all is well, place the plant in a less sunny spot until the roots appear settled in the new mix.

Anyone growing orchids will find The American Orchid Society helpful. Membership ($15) includes a free booklet and a monthly bulletin. Write AOS, Botanical Museum of Harvard Univ., Cambridge, Mass. 02138.

At times like this you need a paint expert. Not a part time clerk.

You're in the paint department of a bargain store.

And the only thing you're sure of is that you need some help.

Which, of course, is next to impossible to find. And if it is found, you find that it's really no help at all.

Because it's part-time help. With part-time knowledge.

And that kind of help you really don't need. Because the wrong advice or the incorrect answer can turn your can of paint into a can of worms.

You need to talk to someone who knows his stuff.

A Pittsburgh ${ }^{\text {P }}$ Paints dealer. To him paint isn't a part-time job. It's a full-time profession.

He'll suggest what paint to use where. And when.

Héll answer questions. And give you advice about things like surface preparation, painting tools and accessories.

In short, he'll give you tips that can save you time, trouble, and in the long run, money.

So next time you're looking for a paint bargain, look for the store that sells Pittsburgh Paints.

Because every can comes with something bargain stores just don't have. An expert. Free with every can. That is a bargain.

HOUSE & GARDEN, APRIL, 1979 Bringing

e & Garden's China gation at The Great Wall, left:
ographer Elliott Erwitt; or-in-chief Mary Jane Pool; il consultant Ferris Megarity, ctor of Import Merchandising Altman & Co.;
or Writer Caroline Seebohm.

When you think of it, China has never been a total stranger to Americans: Since the days of the famous China Trade, before the birth of the United States, Chinese porcelains, rugs, lacquer, silks, baskets, and jade have been inspiring our decorating, adding undeniably to the beauty of our rooms and the fullness of our lives. Her people, of course-the craftsmen and artisans who make the things we prize, the workers, the farmers, the childrenthey have been strangers. Until now. Suddenly, in a sweeping change of policy, China has flung open her doors, stepped out to shake our hands, and invited us inside for a friendly look. Last year, before official normalization and the communication it has encouraged, the Chinese government extended a special invitation to House & Garden to exchange ideas and see for ourselves the arts and crafts of today's China We visited Canton, Shanghai, Soochow, and Peking-and found much more than we expected. On the pages that follow, you'll see the fabulous Temple of Heaven, marvel at throngs doing T'ai Ch'i on a riverbank at dawn. You'll discover a taste for onion cakes or spun-sugar apples, wonder at scaffolding made of bamboo, and perhaps pick up a few new ideas about exercise and nutrition. You'll step into a history that reaches back thousands of years, through a tradition of creativity that has produced inventions we Americans take for granted (like spaghetti, gunpowder, and even, some experts say, human flight). You'll catch glimpses of China life as the Chinese live it, and see the wonderful lacquer and rugs and porcelains and embroideries and museum reproductions they make-all for you to buy in China and at stores across America. So come to China with us-and see what we brought home

T'an Yu -"to seek the mysterious"-is written over a garden doorway in Shanghai. The world of China is full of signs, colors, and symbols, communicating centuries of tradition and folklore. In the Forbidden City in Peking, for instance, (the imperial city where all were forbidden entry except those attached to the court), the palace roofs are made of yellow tiles, a color used only by the emperors. Here on the roof of the Hall of Supreme Harmony, right, where the most important ceremonies were held, a file of figures represent the ancient tyrant Prince Min, riding a hen (at the far right), guarded by phoenixes, lions, unicorns, celestial horses, and a horned dragon.
Yellow symbolizes not only the emperor, but also the moon and the hare. Red is for the sun and for the phoenix, symbolizing the empress. Birds, animals, flowers, and fruits all symbolize the great themes of Chinese life-the crane for longevity; lotus, emblem of purity; the pomegranate, denoting a family's hope for offspring. This wordless language is perfected in Chinese calligraphy, pictures of whole thoughts put on paper. These silent messages, expressing the eternal balance of man and nature, make China come to life and turn an exploration of the country into a visual adventure.

A China Journa

Notes and impressions of what we saw, heard, and felt during our two-week visit to one of the most talked-about countries on earth - a special House E Garden report

The image of China that lingers most in our minds is of the peoplein the streets, on bicycles, in the shops, in the museums, in the gardens. Their faces are like calligraphy-particularly the very young and the very old-full of stories and history.
 clothes. give enjoyment to everyone.

Four of us went to China-Mary Jane Pool, editor-in-chief, Caroline Seebohm, senior writer, Elliott Erwitt, photographer, and our retail consultant, Ferris Megarity, director of import merchandising for B. Altman & Co. We were invited by the China National Arts and Corporation to visit Canton, Shanghai, and Peking, to see and photograph the things the Chinese are making for the house, that we can enjoy here in America.

ON THE CANTON TRAIN

We started our journey by train from Hong Kong to Canton, through the beautiful landscape of south China-misty gray mountains, rice fields, farmers in straw hats, water buffaloes, just like all the Chinese scroll paintings we had ever seen. Eighty percent of the Chinese live in the countryside, but Canton and the other cities we visited seemed jammed to overflowing-streets crowded, buses packed -giving us some idea of the vastness of the population (reportedly 900 million). The Chinese birth rate, finally, is declining. Most young people in China do not think of getting married until about 28 , and plan on one or two children.

THE EMERGENCE OF FASHION

The children they have, they adore. One of the things we most loved in China was the sight of Chinese families on their day off, the children dressed in richly colored, fur-lined brocade cloaks and bonnets, the parents more soberly attired in the gray or blue suits urged on them as an egalitarian measure after Liberation. During our visit, however, we saw young women wearing brightly colored scarves, and jackets patterned in tiny prints-a mini-fashionand we saw colorful pleated skirts and red shoes on display in Peking stores. But when we asked one of our female interpreters about these new fashions, she said, "Taking an interest in clothes distracts us from our work. As long as my clothes are clean and comfortable, that's good enough for me."

THE CRAFTS FAIR

In Canton, we joined Judith Lubman, of Lubman & Company, San Francisco, a specialist in China trade who for the last 6 years has been representing American homefurnishings buyers in China, and who arranged for our invitation. We stayed at the Tung Fang Hotel in Canton, visiting the Export Commodities Fa a twice-yearly event the attracts thousands of foreign buyers. There we saw examples of many of the arts and crafts we were to photograph later in our journey.

SHANGHAI ANTIQUE

From the warm climate of Canton, we flew north to the more temperate climate of Shanghai, where our hosts were Mr. Chang Kun-hua, Mr. Li Chun yuan, and Mrs. Chang Pao-chin, of the Shanghai branch of the China National Arts anc Crafts Import & Export Corporation. We stayec at the Peace Hotel (formerly the Cathay), splendid Art Deco palace almost unchanged since the 30s, with large suites overlooking the Whangpoo River, and an excellent dining room. For five days, Mr Chang, Mr. Li, and Mrs. Chang gave us generously of their time showing us workshops and craft schools, and perhaps most exciting $c$ all, the Shanghai antiques warehouse (normally accessible onl to major foreign companies), full to over flowing with porcelain, jade, and other treasures dating from the early 19 th century. (Nothing over 150 years old may be exported from China.) Every morning we went off on a new exploration, and during this time we began to learn something of the people's lives.

IOW WORKING 1OTHERS COPE he Chinese work-week ; six days, with ew vacations except for ational holidays. As an xample of the average rage, we learned that a arpet weaver in 'hanghai earns $40 a nonth plus a $$ 9$ bonus. Housing for typical facory workers is $$ 2$ to $$ 3$ month.) Women make p a large percentage if the work force, and hey handle child care vith a common-sense ipproach. Many families hare their homes with jrandparents, who look ifter the children while he parents are at work. f mothers are nursing heir babies, or have no ne at home, most facories provide nurseries n the building where sabies may be left and ed during the day. At 2 hildren often go to :indergarten as weekly joarders, coming home it weekends, leaving parents free to work.

־'AI CH'I BY THE NHANGPOO

n Shanghai, we got our irst real feeling for Shinese daily life. Early in the morning we watched hundreds of people doing T'ai Ch'i by the Whangpoo River as the sun came up. We visited a vegetable market and saw streetstall bakers making delicious fried onion cakes (a Shanghai specialty) and fried crullers, a hot breakfast for the Chinese vegetable-sellers and shoppers. Later, we walked through the shopping streets trying not to get run over by the endless groups of bicyclists, calling out to each other and ringing their bells, while the few buses, trucks, and taxis hooted determinedly in an attempt to make a path through the crowds.

SOOCHOW:

 CHINA'S VENICEOne morning we took an early train to Soochow, city of gardens. The train was decorated with velvet curtains, white slipcovers and tablecloths, with a potted plant on each table, and an attendant to bring tea. We loved Soochow for its long, narrow streets lined with plane trees and small, whitewashed houses. Called the Venice of China, the whole city is on a human scale. It is a place loved by poets and scholars through the centuries. Some Soochow gardens are still in private hands. For more on Soochow gardens, see page 156.

MING TOMBS, MANDARIN ORANGES

Sad to leave Shanghai, a bustling city that is recognized as the cultural and intellectual center of China, we flew on to Peking, our final destination. Our hotel was the Chien Men, in the throes of modernization. Our host for the Arts and Crafts Corporation in the capital was Mr. Yu En-ho. We were also received by Mr. Kao Feng, of the China National Light Industrial Products Corporation (building materials, glassware, manufactured products), and Mr. Chia Kun-yen, of the China National Native Produce & Animal By-Products Corporation (carpets and rugs). Our guide for the week was Mr . Wang Ching-chih, a tall young man who dealt with our requests with patience. Not many of his previous guests had insisted on taking blue-and-white porcelain to photograph inside the Forbidden City, nor traipsed up and down Liu-li Chang, the old shopping street, looking for a suitable location to photograph a bowl of mandarin oranges! Nor had most visitors asked to see an unopened Ming tomb, instead of the two open to the public. (There are 11 Ming tombs still to be opened. We saw the Ching Ling tomb, situated in a commune, beautiful for its peacefulness and untouristy atmosphere.) age dangle from a modern street light.
Peking is the center of government. The old walls of the city have been pulled down as a symbolic gesture of liberation, and now the entrance to the Forbidden City faces the enormous expanse ( 98 acres) of Tien An Men Square.

 PEKING DUCK Life in Peking, we found, is more strictly organized than in Shanghai. We were up early, and we dined early, between 6 and 6:30 P.M. every evening.

Chinese medicine stresses preventive rather than curative health． Life expectancy in China has risen dramatically，from about 45 years in 1950 to 70 in 1978. ＂One of the most important reasons is our program of exercise，＂says Dr．Hsu Chia Yü， vice－chairman of the department of internal medicine Jui Chin Hospital， Shanghai．Factory

Traditional Chinese herb medicines，right，prescribed to correct a person＇s internal balance，are based on a mix－ ture of positive＂tonic＂herbs and negative＂inhibiting＂ herbs（Yin and Yang tonics）． The most famous Chinese herb is ginseng，a root of many qualities and powers， said to help rheumatism， nerve pains，arthritis，and to promote long life．Chinese shops and other herb stores in the U．S．carry ginseng． Food for fuel

In the background, the Neustadts install one of the insulated panels that drop down from the projections outside windows.

EOWARD OLEKSAK

The house is not only a beautiful, functional place to live and work in, but also it's economy conscious. "We have learned to think about what we really need rather than what our egos require," Sam Neustadt says. So in this house there is no wasted space-the landing above the living room was made into a library. And working with a 12-foot module, the iargest size of construction material they could comfortably handle, they intentionally kept the rooms compact so there is less to heat. But because the spectacular south view was designed into all the rooms, and the spaces flow together in an open plan, the eye has distances to travel and the small rooms seem expansive. Tocut costs, standard doors and windows were used throughout and all plumbing was centralized in an 8 -foot area Sam in thlledy the plumbing, and Jana did all the electrical wiring. "Once yov do it," she says, "the mystique is removed."

The sun heats directly...

Above and above right: Above the entry vestibule, an unheated greenhouse, warmed only by the sun, bridges the living and working areas. Originally the Neustadts had planned two separate structures, but because outside walls are expensive to build and separate buildings expensive to heat, they decided to combine the two. Direct sun heats not only the greenhouse, but also the vestibule below it. Now the Neustadts don't have to go outside to get to work.

..and by 3 well-planned systems  Above: Diagram shows how heat

To raise the energy efficiency of the house, advanced solar systems were designed right in, see plan above. Solar panels installed on the south side of the pool adjust to the angle of the sun. Warmth collected by the panels serves three separate systems. In the first system, a standard pool pump used to filter the pool water simply pumps it through the panels to he heated. For hot water for the ouse, the panels heat an antirreeze fluid that circulates in pipes around a preliminary tank warming the domestic water before it goes into a storage tank. And heat for the house is fan-blown from the collectors into gravel under the house, where it is stored. There is a back-up electrical system for times when the solar system might be insufficient, but Sam Neustadt estimates that the active solar system combined with heat supplied directly through the southern exposures will provide 60 percent of the heat during a long, cold winter. And the unheated greenhouse and vestibule get enough heat directly from the sun to manage on their own. To increase the system's efficiency, a heat-return duct - a hollow tube of plastic-impregnated fiberboard-rises through the middle of the staircase, right. It captures heat that rises naturally to the top of the house and recirculates it with an electric fan. In the background, Sam and Jana adjust the duct.

Instant decorating with fabric and paint

Here's an easy way to fix up fast, without spending a lot of money. "There was no other choice for me when I rented this charming old cottage [above]," says horticulturalist Renny Reynolds. "I had to have it, even though every room needed something." Mr. Reynolds has two plant shops and a party-design staff in Manhattan. He needed "a retreat from the city, something really rural," and this was per-fect-a farmhouse in Pennsylvania Dutch country, near Kutztown. But the place needed work and was overgrown, and everything had to be done quickly, on a narrow budget of time and money. "Four things made a big difference, and I used a lot of them: Paint -white for every ceiling and wall; dark green for the living room floor. Painted fabricseven the living room rug is just a piece of painted canvas." (See more about it, next page.) "A lot of mildew spray -X-14. And furniture polish -Old English-to smooth out scratches in floors and furniture." Mr. Reynolds adds, smiling: "And beer-for all the friends who came to help out." From Memorial Day to Fourth of July, the fun was in the fixing up. After that, the fun was loafing and feeling like a country squire.

 on fabric you paint yourselfMr. Reynolds wanted flower gardens indoors, too-"but only those that would flourish without water or soil." So he asked textile designer Stephen Montgomery to paint fabric gardens that ramble over a slipcovered chair, sofa pillows, and rug. For the cotton slipcover, which has a repeat pattern, Mr. Montgomery made a stencil. For the canvas rug, he painted the design freehand, then traced it through thin muslin to make the sofa pillows. The colors are mostly dyes although sometimes Mr. Montgomery uses acrylics. "Dyes work best on natural fibers, but pigment paints are better absorbed by man-made or blended fabrics." Helena Meshekoff loves to sew. Her husband Michael, producer of the TV Dragnet series, is now a sculptor and a carpenter of exceptional skill. When she, frustrated by lack of sewing space, fervently wished for "a sewing table with a drawer," he surprised her with the handsome $17-$ drawer kneehole table at left. Its top is laminate under the folding cutting board, and each drawer has its own assignment (see page 122). Inspired by his success with the table, Mr. Meshekoff enclosed the patio leading to the garage with glass (wide windows slide open, bringing the garden in), and paved it with easy-to-keep vinyl tiles, transforming it into the sunny room here. Now there's plenty of space, and every-thing-fabrics, equipment, even a laundry wall-is close at hand. You can make the toile-lined hanging pine spool box yourself (see page 126). ## Billy Baldwin's

two-room apartment full of ideas for ## Small space, big style

Luxury means something different to everyone. To Billy Baldwin, a man who's made a life of creating luxury in other people's houses and apartments, it has always meant living in a house that's perfectly suited to his taste and lifestyle: a house that's simple but comfortable, spare but full of warmth. "The most luxurious thing I can think of is having a window next to the bathtub," says Mr. Baldwin, and in this house he does. It's the two-room wing of a 19thcentury shingled house, a linen-white paint lightened what was once dark maroon wainscotting and an old brick chimney. Tudor beams kept their natural ruggedness and, to give them strength and the room a proper dimension, the floor was stained dark and polyurethaned until it gleamed like glass. Into this country setting, Mr. Baldwin brought a mix of furniture: some, like the sofa and the faux-bamboo coffee table, that had been in his New York apartment and some, the telephone table and the ne black lacquer Louis XV black lacquer Louis XV a summer cottage. The only acquisitions are the armchair, the Irish rug, and throw pillows, made from the lining of an Oriental coat. "If you're honest about your taste and buy only what's right for you, it will always be right, anywhere you put it."
country apartment "that, with two floors and two fireplaces, feels like a house, though rooms are small." Small space, however, is no match for the man who wrote the book on small-space decorating. He simply takes his own advice: "Uncomplicate." In the living room, just 15 by 16 feet, but in no way small-feeling because of its high ceilings and four big windows (each a wonderful garden pictuse)-

When something looks right to Billy Baldwin, it's because he's asked two questions: "How will it make the room look? and how will the room make it look?" In his bedsitting room, for instance, he used the English coffee table and the Windsor chair, one of the few purchases made especially for this house, to enhance the two dark ceiling beams that point up the peaked roof and the fireplace -"the bones of this room."
(One beam crosses the chimney at just the point where the room's original designer "changed his mind and switched from plaster to brick.) Since it's my bedroom, I wanted as peaceful an atmosphere as possible. So, unlike the living room, almost all the woodwork is painted out." Even the blinds are painted white, making the five windows recede into space. "When you paint everything white, you bring in light, and a room filled with light is pure luxury."

On a Lucite table, modern artwork, classical sculpture, beach stones embellished with gold beasts and ornaments, an oyster shell that opens to reveal a jeweled lizard. In the bathroom, toilet articles in plain sight -and easy reach.

Easy two-stitch edging you can crochet for towels and bath mats with handmade appeal

What does it take to turn skeins of cotton yarn into luxurious textured borders for towels and bath mats? A crochet hook, two simple stitches, and a love of beautiful needlework. You needn't be experienced-anyone can easily master the elementary chain and single-crochet stitches needed for this project. The finished linens are so pretty they're destined to become family heirlooms. And all the yarn you need to trim a bath and hand towel or a bath mat, comes in kits with a hook and instructions-ready to stitch. Crochet always begins with a foundation chain-a long loose tail of chain stitches. Single-crochet a row through the chain, then build row upon row of single-crochet. A peaked zigzag pattern develops as you increase and decrease stitches. You can unravel mistakes quickly and start again. And for instant gratification, nothing tops this craft -results appear at once. "If you start during the evening news, you'll have trim for one towel by Johnny Carson," says one avid crocheter. But don't be surprised if you find yourself stitching right through the late movie-it's easy to get hooked on crocheting.

Baked bluefish with lime Endive salad
Pineapple in the shell
Since her days are often rushed or filled with meetings, Chris Casson Madden, author, with Susan Lee, of The Complete Lemon and head of her own public relations firm, has learned to organize delicious dinners in a matter of minutes. Her entertaining style -simplicity. That's the keynote for vacation, too, a time to relax with friends over leisurely lunches and suppers. The menu here brings together clear, sharp flavors-quickcooking fish that bastes itself, a salad of endive and avocado with cucumbers and radishes for crunch, and blackberry brandy-capped pineapple boats-and comes from Mrs. Madden's new book, The Summer House Cookbook. It should take only 30 minutes to prepare.

First julienne the cucumbers and radishes and mix with the endive. Let the salad chill while you wash and pat dry the fillets and seal them in foil packages. They'll be in the oven 20 minutes, so you can quarter the pineapple, sprinkle with the brandy, and place the fruit in the refrigerator to chill, too. Just before unwrapping the fish, slice lime wedges for garnish; cube the avocado, add to the chilled salad, and toss with a vinaigrette dressing. Slide the fillets onto a heated platter or individual plates and serve.

You can are both main course and dessert d for a party, or whip up a lastite salad and fruit. Best of all, the dish meal adapts to any occasion, in season-it's an inspiration for new binations of flavors and ingredients. : are some good cooks' favorites:
lia Child, whose latest book is Julia d and Company (Knopf), says, "For mal Sunday afternoons, we serve simple things, like chicken salad banana ice cream with chocolate for dessert."
laurice Moore-Betty, New York authority, especially likes two-dish Is for the country-perhaps vegecurry and fruit and cheese, or a , solid salade composée with four ts, vegetables, and lettuce, followed fresh, homemade fruit ice.
lorence Lin, author of Florence Chinese One-Dish Meals (Hawthorn), suggests stir-fried shrimp balls with vegetables plus fresh fruit or candied nuts. The shrimp balls (diced shrimp and pork) can be made and poached several days ahead and just before serving stir-fried with the vegetables.

Huli Citrin, Santa Monica, Calif. cooking-school teacher, chooses: bouillabaisse; Mexican chicken soup with vegetables, garnished with oregano, lemon wedges, crushed red pepper, green chilies; or mostaccioli with shrimp and sautéed vegetables, topped with Parmesan and crushed red pepper. For dessert, lemon marzipan tart.

Seppi Renggli, chef of The Four Seasons, serves fresh garlic sausage with cabbage, and crisp Granny Smith apples for dessert. Chef Renggli makes his own sausage, then braises the cabbage in butter and white wine. Once softened, add sausage and cook, covered, over low heat 1 hour.

Marion Cunningham, coauthor of the new revised Fannie Farmer Cookbook (Knopf), almost always entertains with two-dish meals. One company menu-mulligatawny soup (pass a bowl of chutney to stir in, so each person can adjust the flavor to his own liking), and spice-nut cake or a nut torte. Both these dishes mature well, so Mrs. Cunningham advises preparing them ahead.

Dick Nelson, Portland, Ore. cookingschool teacher, frequently serves pork chops with onions, apples, and beer sauce followed by an icy apple sorbet. Brown the chops in a skillet, layer on top of sautéed onions and apples, add garlic. Make a roux, add beer and cayenne to taste. Pour over chops, bake an hour.

Steve Bierman, a New York caterer, loves tiny bay scallops sautéed with broccoli flowerets and a zesty lemon sherbet drizzled with raspberry-Grand Marnier sauce. The creative genius behind the meal, designer Charles Pfister, right, head of the San Francisco Interior Design Group of Skidmore, Owings & Merrill, likes to bring business associates home for lunch: "It helps to discuss things in an informal atmosphere." Menus feature fresh, local ingredientssour dough bread, Bay shrimp, "eggs I travel clear across town for." Mr. Pfister's house overlooks Chinatown on one side and the Bay on the other, which inspired his omelet combination. "It's important to use your hands in cooking" says Mr. Pfister, who can turn out four perfect omelets in three minutes. "I use a Teflon pan to make it easier." He designed his kitchen, once a porch, with the care taken to outfit a racing sloop. Counters are marble with drop-in chopping blocks, shelving is open and tailored, cabinets are flush with bronze hardware. Centered in the space is a bench under huge win-dows-the spot to watch Mr. Pfister work or eat at the lacquered table he designed for Knoll. Recipes, page 208.

GOOD SPIRITS

Spirited desserts

A well-stocked liquor cabinet is inspiration for adding a dash or two to sweet creations. Here are some ideas and recipes from three new cook books to give desserts a lift.

The spiral-bound Tacoma Art Museum Cookbook, collected by The Women's Committee, and punctuated with Doris Lee lithographs, is full of easy recipes to spark rounds of dinner parties.
Dates Cacao: Soak pitted dates in crème de cacao for 24 hours in the refrigerator. Serve very cold with the liqueur in small dessert cups and pass a pitcher of heavy cream.

Brandy ice: Mix 2 scoops vanilla ice cream, $1^{11 / 2}$ ounces Kahlúa, and 1 ounce brandy in a blender. Serve in wineglasses.

Rosy rhubarb: Place 5 cups fresh rhubarb sliced in 1 -inch pieces in a 2 -quart casserole. Add 2 cups sugar and $1 / 2$ teaspoon freshly grated orange zest. Pour 1 cup ruby port over all. Cover and bake at $350^{\circ}$ for 45 minutes. Serve warm or chilled with a dollop of sour cream sprinkled with a whiff of grated nutmeg. Serve for breakfast or dessert.

Pears in Cointreau: Put 8 canned pear halves in a serving bowl. Add $1 / 2$ cup Cointreau. Put canned pear syrup and 1 cup brown sugar in a saucepan and boil down until slightly syrupy. Cool well and add to pears. Chill. Serve with heavy cream whipped and frozen until splintery.

Candied ginger sauce: Combine 1 cup orange blossom honey with $1 / 2$ cup boiling water. Cool. Add 1 cup coarsely chopped candied ginger, 2 tablespoons grenadine, ${ }^{1 / 2}$ cup orange-flavored liqueur, and mix well. Serve over lemon sherbet, vanilla or lemon flake ice cream, or to revive toasted leftover cake.

The Tacoma Art Museum Cookbook is available from Tacoma Art Museum, 12 th and Pacific, Tacoma, Wash. 98402, for $$ 15.66$ postpaid.

Chris Madden's The Summer House Cookbook (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, $5.95)* emphasizes quick combinations of fresh ingredients-the kind that are especially helpful to have when the house fills with guests during the summer months.

Zest-dressed ice: Spoon 1 quart lemon sherbet into goblets and dribble a little blackberry brandy over. Sprinkle grated lemon zest on top and serve.

Oranges and strawberries in champagne: Chill 2 11-ounce cans mandarin oranges, then drain the oranges and place in a bowl. Wash and hull 2 pints of strawberries and slice in half. Mix gently with the oranges. Sprinkle with $1 / 3$ cup confectioners sugar and stir in 1 split champagne. Divide among 8 oversize wine goblets.

Walnut syrup: Chop $3 / 4$ cup walnuts in a food processor or by hand. Stir into 3 cups maple syrup mixed with 3 teaspoons brandy and heat in a small, heavy saucepan until hot. Pour into a pitcher and pass with pancakes, ice cream, or dessert crêpes.

Raspberry on raspberry: Drop $1 / 2$ of a 10 -ounce package Birds Eye frozen raspberries into a food processor and add 3 tablespoons Kirschwasser, blending until smooth. Refrigerate. Place a few scoops of raspberry sherbet in 4 goblets. Pass the raspberry sauce.

Chocolate sherbet orientale: Spoon 1 pint chocolate sherbet into 4 oversize goblets. Place a few mandarin oranges on top and dribble some Triple Sec over all.

Apricot whip: Wash $1 / 2$ pound dried apricots and place in a medium-sized, heavy saucepan. Cover with water. Bring to a boil and simmer until tender-about 15 minutes. Drain and blend in a food processor until smooth or force through a sieve. Mix with 3 tablespoons lemon juice and $1 / 3$ cup sugar and set aside. Whip 3 egg whites with $1 / 8$ teaspoon salt in a bowl until stiff peaks form. Stir 2 tablespoons Galliano into the apricots and fold into the egg whites. Chill thor-oughly-about 2-3 hours. Spoon a large dollop of sour cream in the center of each serving and top with a mint leaf.

Christopher Blake's Easy Eleganc Cookbook (Chelsea House, $12.50), is "simply a collection of recipes I havi used and enjoyed" from a tempting sa lute to Creole and Cajun cooking Gaelic steak (with Irish whiskey). D veloped through his experiences as playwright, novelist, wörld traveler, reci pe collector, and good cook, each recip invokes Mr. Blake's personal philosophy that food should be enjoyed both in the preparation and the eating.
Chocolate mousse with a secret: Add strong coffee and Coffee Amaretto t? chocolate mousse, or add $1 / 2$ cup darl rum.

Whiskey sauce for bread pudding: Cook $1 / 2$ cup sugar, $1 / 4$ cup water, and 2 tablespoons unsalted butter togethei about 5 minutes, stirring, until well com-1 bined. Add $1 / 4$ cup 100-proof Bourbon and cook another $2-3$ minutes. Serve warm over pudding. You can also use dark rum, or other whiskey.

Black pound cake: Toast 12, day-old pound cake rounds lightly in an oven Transfer to a rack, let cool and sprinkle with Myers's Jamaican rum. Melt ounces semisweet chocolate and add $1 / 4$ cup rum. Keep warm. Spread 6 of the rounds with strawberry preserves and top with the remaining rounds. Place rounds in a shallow dessert dish and ladle the hot chocolate-rum sauce over. Garnish with sweetened whipped cream flavored with strained lemon juice and grated lemon zest.

Leroux Chocolate Amaretto kisses: Melt 6 ounces semisweet chocolate chips in the top of a double boiler. Remove from heat and stir in $1 / 2$ cup sugar and 3 tablespoons light corn syrup. Add $1 / 2$ cup Leroux Chocolate Amaretto liqueur and blend well. Combine $21 / 2$ cups finely crushed vanilla wafers and 1 cup finely chopped pecans or walnuts in a large bowl. Add chocolate mixture and mix well. Form into 1 -inch balls and roll in powdered sugar. Place in an airtight tin and allow to sit for several days.

Sabra Milk and Honey ("named in honor of my friend who wrote the musical"): Combine 6 egg yolks, 6 tablespoons sugar, and $3 / 4$ cup Sabra orange liqueur in a heavy saucepan. Cook over very low heat and stir constantly with a whisk until custard is smooth, thick, and rich-about 15 minutes. Cool, and fold in $1 / 2$ pint cream, stiffly whipped. Pour into small chilled wineglasses, Refrigerate and garnish with orange zest or a small section of tangerine. Serves 6 .

Braised veal in cider with cucumbers and snow peas

INGREDIENTS

3 -inch cucumbers
$21 / 2$ pounds boned veal shoulder (have the butcher leave it in a single piece) 2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
8 ounces shallots or tiny white onions, peeled up plus 2 tablespoons hard cider, like surpom
$s t$, freshly ground white pepper

- uquet garni: 2 sprigs parsley, thyme, and black peppercorns tied in cheeseloth jound snow peas, trimmed and strings removed liup heavy cream

THOD

Peel cucumbers and slice them in half gthwise. Spoon out seeds and slice in flengthwise again. Then cut them into inch-thick cross pieces.
Cut the veal into approximately equal foch-square pieces-they should be as - alal as possible to cook evenly.

Melt butter and 1 tablespoon oil in a fté pan 9 inches in diameter and about nches deep. When the fat is hot, begin sear the meat on all sides in small fches. Do this over fairly high heat so it the meat takes on a brown, crispy exior. The fat will spatter, but if you do : sear the meat at a high heat, it will w and turn gray. You will need to add other tablespoon of oil about halfway ough the searing process. Do not turn heat up so high that the fat smokes d takes on a burned taste.
Remove the meat to a bowl as it owns. When all the meat is seared, lower : heat and add the shallots or onions, ring them for a few seconds. Slowly add ;up of cider to deglaze the pan. Scrape coagulated particles into the cider with flat wooden spoon or spatula. Season h 1 teaspoon salt and $1 / 4$ teaspoon white pper. Add the veal and bouquet garni to pan and cover pan with a buttered and of brown paper and a heavy lid. nmer gently $11 / 4-11 / 2$ hours, or until the al is very tender. You may prepare the ih in advance up to this point. If you do s , reheat it before proceeding to the xt step.
Remove cover and brown paper. Add $\Rightarrow$ cucumbers and snow peas on top of $\geq$ meat, replace the cover, and steam $\geqslant$ vegetables 4-5 minutes or until just oked but still crunchy. Do not overcook. Use a slotted spoon to remove meat d vegetables to a wide sieve placed over deep bowl to catch juices. Discard the uquet garni. Degrease the remaining uid. Add the remaining cider and the avy cream to the pan, along with the ces which have dripped into the bowl. ok over moderate heat until reduced to cup. Season with $1 / 2$ teaspoon salt and teaspoon white pepper. The sauce may em salty but will not be when you have ded the meat and vegetables. Transfer a meat and vegetables to a shallow servy bowl. ## Souffléed chocolate cake

INGREDIENTS9 ounces extra bittersweet chocolate (if you cannot find extra bittersweet, use 6 ounces regular semisweet with 3 ounces unsweetened chocolate) 9 tablespoons sweet butter6 eggs (U.S. grade large), separated$1 / 2$ cup granulated sugar6 tablespoons cornstarchFlourConfectioners sugar

METHOD

$\square$ Melt the chocolate in the top of a double boiler, making sure the water underneath does not boil. When the chocolate has melted, remove it from the heat and set aside to cool a bit.
$\square$ Melt the butter in another small saucepan. Set aside, and when it is lukewarm, whisk it into the melted chocolate.
$\square$ Beat the egg whites in a large bowl until soft peaks form. Add the sugar, tablespoon by tablespoon, and continue beating until all the sugar is incorporated.
$\square$ Beat the egg yolks with a fork just to mix them up. Add them to the egg whites, continuing to beat all the while. After they have been completely incorporated, beat three minutes longer.
$\square$ Sift half of the cornstarch through a strainer into the egg mixture. Add half the melted chocolate-butter mixture on top and fold in. Add the remaining half of the ingredients in the same way and fold them in. Be careful to reach all the way to the bottom of the mixing bowl, since the chocolate is heavier than the rest of the ingredients and tends to sink.
$\square$ Turn the batter into a buttered and floured 9-by-2-inch round, false-bottomed cake pan and bake in a preheated $350^{\circ}$ oven 30 minutes. The inside of the cake should remain moist; the center will be loose when cake is removed from oven. $\square$ Cool the cake 10 minutes in the pan. Then loosen the edges with a spatula and remove the cake from the pan. When completely cool, turn the cake upside down on a plate so that the slightly crusty top will be on the bottom. Dust top with confectioners sugar, or sift sugar through doily on top of cake. Serves 8.

Presenting the GE toaster that broils and bakes.

Versatility is what makes the GE Toast ' N Broil Toast-R-Oven ${ }^{(1)}$ toaster so great.

It's a great broiler.

This GE toaster has a separate broil setting that lets you broil steaks, hamburgers and hot dogs. You can position the broil pan high or low to suit your needs. Its high walls help protect the interior from spatters ... and the pan pops right into the dishwasher for easy cleaning.

It's a great oven.

The GE Toast-R-Oven handles dozens of small cooking jobs you'd hate to heat up your big oven for.

The GE Toast 'N Broil Toast-R-Oven ${ }^{(1)}$ toaster.
Like making hot snacks, warming leftovers, baking casseroles, cooking frozen dinners and appetizers. And used together with your big oven, it lets you cook different dishes at different temperatures. Its thermostat controls the temperature from $200^{\circ}$ to $500^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$.

It's an automatic toaster.

This toaster replaces old-fashioned vertical toasters. It toasts up to 4 slices of regular bread, both sides at once, then shuts off and rings a bell, automatically. It lets you top-brown or toast odd-size breads and rolls, corn muffins or English muffins.

GE gives you broil and non-broil models.

The model featured here is the T26. Other broil models are the T114 and (two-slice) T23. The T104 and (two-slice) T93B are GE's non-broil models.

Whichever model you choose, once you own a Toast-R-Oven toaster from GE, you'll wonder how you ever managed without it.

ter a hard day photographing, we uld get together with our Chinese sts at a banquet-the Chinese way welcoming and celebrating. These nderful meals gave us the opporlity to talk in a more relaxed way h each other. In Peking we ran out of enings for banquets, so we returned r hosts' hospitality with banquets at ichtime.
The food we had in China was marvels. Always fresh, the vegetables were ecially delicious, and we had an almost inite variety of dishes. Some of our /orites were freshwater stir-fried imp, a Shanghai specialty; Shanghai ibs, a delicacy available only for about veeks in late October/early November; cy beef on a skewer; Mongolian hot pot :h bamboo shoots and mushrooms; zed sweet and sour pork; the famous king Duck (at the Old Peking Duck staurant on Chien Men Street, Peking). e had crispy and steamed noodles, the ry best light steamed rice, a wonderful ection of steamed dumplings and eads, such as "silver thread" bread iich opens out into thin strips as you eak it. Desserts included Mandarin anges and a sweet rice and fruit pud1g. Soups, which came at the end of the eal, were always filled with delicious orsels such as asparagus tips, chicken vers, bamboo shoots, peanuts, and little iffy dumplings. Our hotels all offered th Chinese and Western menus, which cluded tasty jam omelets and cream iffs, braised beef and mashed potatoes, icken and fish. Even the boxed lunch we d at the Ming Tombs was excellentick, ham, chicken, Chinese sausage, an ple, and a Chinese cookie.

HANGING TIMES

ur guide, Mr. Wang, was very interested food. He told us he cooked at home, id on birthdays or special holidays, his mily usually had a banquet or went to a ovie. American movies are now reaching nina (competing with the Japanese), and e heard The Sound of Music had been a eat success. There are about 2 million $V$ sets in China, few of them privately vned. Most of them belong to groups ich as neighborhood groups or ganizations. On the other hand, nearly 1 the Chinese have radios-and a bicye. Table tennis is the most popular ort, with basketball a close second. pera, ballet, puppets, and gymnastics e all popular Chinese entertainments. e were lucky to get tickets to see a speccular dance performance in Peking, The lagic Lotus Lantern, which is very opular with visiting foreigners.
Until recently, it was forbidden to hold ands in public in China. Even now. when we asked a student in Peking if he liked to take girls out, he confessed, "I do not like to think of such things. It might affect my mind and stop me working." But we did see young Chinese holding hands quite openly, even for our cameras.

We were particularly interested in talking to the Chinese women we met during our trip. Mrs. Liu Ku-fang was our interpreter at the banquet given for us by Mr. Kao. She was very lively and wore a welltailored gray jacket and pants with a white scarf. Her English was excellent, and during the dinner we asked her how she was able to work such long hours and raise a family. She told us that her husband was an official in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and they had met when they were in school together. They had two children, aged 10 and 2 . The 2 -year-old child was looked after by their grandmother, the other went to school. All three generations live together in a small Peking apartment. Both the parents worked 6 days a week. In spite of what must have been an arduous schedule, Mrs. Liu clearly enjoyed her work.

Imagine the difference between Mrs. Liu's life and that of Chow Ching-li, a Chinese girl born in Shanghai in 1936, whose memoirs have recently been published (A Journey in Tears, McGrawHill). Chow Ching-li was forced into an arranged marriage when she was 13 , bore her first child at 14 , lived a life of total subservience to her in-laws, and was prevented from pursuing a promising career as a pianist-customary restrictions before 1949. Mrs. Liu's life makes a happy contrast with this story of obsolete ritual.

Another personal encounter filled with contrasts was with Wang Tsu-kang, a master paper cutter we met at the Shanghai Arts and Crafts Research Institute. (The traditional Chinese art of paper cutting is a delicate skill using one piece of paper and one cutting movement to produce the most intricate freehand patterns.) Wang Tsu-kang told us he had learned the art from a master when he was 13 , and had been working at it for 46 years. Before Liberation, he sold his paper cuts in the streets. Now he teaches students at the Institute. For him, Liberation has meant food, clothing, somewhere to live, and a place to practice his art with dignity.

well as shopping, taking 7,000 tographs and talking to as many peoas we could, we saw some of the most aordinary buildings and museums in world. We loved the old city in inghai, and the beautiful curling gon walls in the Yu Yuan garden; the seum of History in Peking, where we the development of bronzes, porceis, and paintings that have inspired the rld; the Great Wall, winding over the untains at the Mongolian border, so numental it's visible from an orbiting cecraft; and unforgettable Forbidden $y$, palace after palace guarded by den dragons, decorated in red, green, low, and gold-an architectural sterpiece.
China is unique in its contribution to lization. The Chinese invented paper, amics, pig iron, the compass, gunvder, rudders for ships, and, most inious of all, the examination systemle most powerful institution ever inted by man," as Professor John K. rbank said in one of his 1974 Harvard tures on China (available on cassettes, 1 essential listening for any serious ina student).
When we looked at the Temple of aven, the water buffaloes in south ina, the cozy rooms in the Forbidden y where the Dragon Countenance took pleasure, the thousands of unlighted ycles streaming through the dusk ind Tien An Men Square, the perfect of chrysanthemums in a Soochow den, we were looking at clues to the rets of the ancient and modern world China.
The sight of a young carpet weaver rking on the ancient symbolic untain-and-waves border on a rug, or a : worker embroidering a plum blossom, nbol of spring, vitality, and hope, says re about the tenacious quality of inese civilization than any museum. 1at modern China tells us is something probably always knew or hoped-that human spirit is both infinitely creative d miraculously indestructible.

Heat oil in skillet; lightly sauté onion and garlic; remove to a 5-qt. Corning Ware saucepot. In same skillet, lightly brown meat; add to saucepot. Mix chili powder and flour and blend into meat/onion mixture. Add all other ingredients except corn and olives. Heat to boil, stirring constantly. Move to $250^{\circ}$ oven and bake covered 2-3 hours until meat is tender. Add corn and olives; bake 10 minutes more. Take the whole Corning caboodle directly to the table and serve in the pie plates with rice and cole slaw. Or cover and freeze. Serves 8 normal people or 6 chili aficionados.

Off the beaten rack.

One of the lesser-known Corning accessories is a truly unique roasting rack. It's so adjustable it handles anything from a $5-\mathrm{lb}$. Easter ham to an $18-\mathrm{lb}$. Thanksgiving turkey-then it forms handles for lifting out the roast. And it's as inexpensive as it is ingenious!

Le chef Pyrexcellence.

When I first started cooking, I would often rush into a recipe without pre-measuring the ingredients-only to find myself later in mid-stir, grabbing for sugar or spice canisters with batter-coated hands. Today I wouldn't crack the first egg without first laying out each ingredient in its own Pyrex ${ }^{\circledR}$ ware "custard" cup-perfect for this purpose because they're just the right sizes ( 6 oz . and 10 oz .), inexpensive enough to own lots of and stackable for storage. They save time and temper, and make you feel oh, so organized.

Revolution in Tien An Men Square, Peking, and is now working on redesigning Liu-li Chang, the old shopping street. "All the new buildings will be built in the traditional style, some of the existing old buildings will be preserved, and a few old shops of exceptionally fine design might be removed from somewhere else to be incorporated into the new street façade. We hope the new Liu-li Chang street, when completed, will be worthy of its old heritage and will show Chinese art and architecture in their full splendor." Since Liberation, Dr. Chang says, "we have been very busy building more houses to meet the most urgent needs of our people. In Peking alone, the post-liberation housing construction has already exceeded the total accommodation ever provided in the past history of the city."
In the countryside, people are still building their own houses, which are more or less traditional, according to Dr. Chang, using only local materials. A typical traditional Chinese house was built around several courtyards, (see picture). The Cheng Tu restaurant in Peking was formerly a private house, designed on traditional lines, and you can see examples in Soochow. Dr. Chang says that students take courses in traditional architecture and study old buildings such as these. "In the past," he explains, "the courtyard was usually surrounded on its four sides by one-storied buildings. Now the land is very valuable, and we have to build multistoried apartment dwellings. In order to ensure good orientation for every apartment, these dwellings are mostly grouped in rows, thus making the courtyard less feasible. Nevertheless, some new buildings, especially those in south China, have successfully incorporated into their design courtyards with rocks, plantings, and pools, to provide not only pleasant outdoor living space, but also a touch of national style."

Restoration work of Chinese traditional buildings is being given high priority, and in the Temple of Heaven one can see the results, as the brilliant colors and gleaming gold sing out from the spectacular dome. This is an example of a national style that has developed continuously for more than 2,000 years. It is awesome to realize how architecture, for the Chinese the ultimate expression of the harmony between man and nature, can last through centuries and still bring meaning and excitement to our lives.

$\square$ To a wok, add 1 teaspoon of the peanut oil, the sugar, and water. Slowly bring to a boil, stirring only until the sugar is dissolved. Cook this mixture until it reaches the medi-um-hard crack stage and its color changes to light brown-i.e. when a drop of the syrup put into ice water forms a hard sugar mass instantly.
$\square$ Turn the heat down to its lowest point. Reheat the apple pieces in the hot oil. Immediately lift them out of the oil, put them into the hot syrup, and sprinkle on the sesame seeds. Turn heat to medium and stir the wedges to coat them thoroughly with the syrup. Take them out one by one and drop them into the bowl of ice water. The syrup coating will harden instantly. Use a strainer to transfer the Spun Apples from the ice water to a serving plate. Serve immediately. Serves 8-10 as a dessert ( 24 Spun Apple pieces).

HOW TO BUY AND PLANTATREE

Choosing, planting, nourishing a new tree in your garden

you have decided to plant a tree, good about it: It's a good deed. You be helping a tree establish itself in ome for many years.
lect a medium-sized tree. Many peohink the biggest of the bunch will the best, but this is not necessarily Balance is more important than Look up as well as down. You want e of moderate size because the top roots will more likely be in better nee.
ost field-grown, deciduous trees are ercut, dug, and handled with little or fioil on the roots: hence the term root.
arge, vigorous trees will have a large fortion of roots cut. With this low -to-top ratio, more severe pruning is *ssary to reduce the top to a size re the roots can supply it with suffit water. If left unpruned, the end remay be a smaller tree of low vigor. Iost field-grown evergreen trees are with soil around the roots. The soil is wrapped in burlap. This method andling is called "ball and burlap" (B). The bigger the tree, the bigger rootball. If diffierent sizes of trees are with similar size rootballs, the ones larger tops may have poor vigor. or greater uniformity, ease of hang , and increased mechanization, the 20 years has seen a surge in con-er-grown trees. In a group of trees in tainers of the same size, a mediumd tree will provide the best chance of sfactory performance.
n sum, whether you're buying a bare$t$, balled-and-burlapped, or a con-er-grown tree, avoid the smallest and largest.

QUALITY

quality at the time of planting canbe overstressed because certain root ects can doom a tree to death or poor wth. A well-formed root system is imetrically branched with the main ts growing down and out to provide ik support. Container-grown and ed-and-burlapped plants should have ous roots sufficiently developed so the tball will retain its shape and hold toher when removed from the container lapted from the Ortho Book The rld of Trees ($3.98). Copyright 977, Chevron Chemical Company; permission of the Ortho Book Series.
or the ball is moved. The main roots should be free of kinks and circles.

Kinked and circling roots, if not corrected, can cause weak root support, with the result that a tree cannot stand upright without support. Also, girdling of the main roots restricts movement of water, nutrients, and food.

To check for kinked or circling roots, brush away soil on top of the rootball or stick your finger in the top 2 or 3 inches near the trunk. You can usually see or feel them in the top of the rootball.

The unstaked tree is a better buy than the staked tree. An easy way to check for adequate trunk development is to untie the tree from its stake and bend the top to one side. It should bend evenly along the trunk and return to within 20 to 30 degrees of vertical. If it doesn't, try to find a stronger tree. If you can't, realize that you must then provide special care for your tree to develop properly.

Trim off any unhealthy roots or tips. Set tree in hole so original soil line is above surrounding soil; spread roots evenly. Work backfill around roots. Firm gently with foot, eliminate air pockets. Bring soil into contact with roots by running water slowly.

The bark should be free of injury from staking or improper handling.

If the tree is in leaf, foliage is a good indicator of tree condition. Leaves should be dark green and evenly colored according to the species. Scorched edges or unusual yellowing are signs of problems.

Proper care of the tree after purchasing is as important as proper selection and planting. It should be kept moist and cool (especially true with a bareroot tree) so buds won't grow before the tree is planted.

Bareroot plants can also be "heeled in" for a short period near the planting site, preferably in shade to prevent moisture loss and to keep buds dormant. Cover the roots with either moist sawdust or soil worked in around the roots to avoid air pockets. If heeled-in, set the plants in a trench so that their tops can be leaned toward the southwest.

Most containers are made of dark-colored materials. If left exposed to the sun, soil temperatures near the side of the container can get high enough to kill the roots. Protect from sun.

SITE PREPARATION

Some soils need little or no amending to provide a suitable rooting medium that holds moisture while allowing proper aeration.

There's an easy way to find out what kind of soil you have. Pick up a handful and squeeze. A ball of clay will remain in a tight, ridged lump. Loam will hold its shape, but will crumble if you poke it. Sandy soil will begin to fall apart as you open your hand.

Soils which are either quite sandy or clayey will be improved by adding organic matter (peat, compost, nitrified bark, or well-decomposed sawdust) to the backfill at a rate of two parts soil to one part organic matter. Sandy soils usually have good aeration, but do not retain much water. Organic matter will increase the moisture-holding capacity of sandy soil.

At the other extreme, clay soils hold a lot of water but may be poorly drained and aerated. Organic matter will help improve drainage and aeration of clay soils by separating some of the particles to provide paths for water and air.

To know how well your soil drains, dig a hole and fill it with water. Let it drain and refill. After the second filling, the water should drain at about a quarter of an inch per hour. If it drains much faster, the soil is sandy and well-drained. If it drains much slower, there are several possibilities: clay soil, compacted soil, or a compacted layer below the surface.

Soil around new homes, former paths or drives, or old farmland may be severely compacted. If your soil is near its original grade, only the top 6 to 10 inches will be compacted. If fill soil has been brought in, the compacted zone will be that much deeper. In these situations surface soil or soil from below the compacted layer, mixed with a little organic matter, should be used for backfill.

If the soil is completely unworkable, and some soils are, large containers can be the answer. A container allows you to select a lightweight, well-drained soil.

PLANTING

Before planting, cut back any injured, diseased, twisted, or dead roots to healthy tissue. The bottom of the hole should be firm and level for container-grown trees. A slight rise in the center makes spreading of the roots of bareroot trees easier. Spread the roots in the bottom of the hole to provide good anchorage and to prevent circling.

With balled-and-burlapped trees, fold back the burlap at least 2 inches below the soil level. Leaving it exposed creates a wicklike action that will dry out the soil faster than normally. Carefully slice the burlap on the sides and bottom of the rootbal! to allow for easy root penetration.

Burlap generally rots away within a year; however some burlap may be treated with a preservative for nursery keeping, in which case the burlap should be removed before planting. Ask your nurseryman.

Don't place fertilizer in the planting hole or mix with the backfill soil. This can result in plant injury. Most trees will grow well the first season without additional fertilizer.

If staking is necessary, plant the stake with the tree.

Work the soil in around the roots so they are not compressed into a tight mass, but are spreading and supported by soil underneath. Firm the soil with your foot, taking special care not to tear, bruise, or debark the roots. The original ground level in the nursery or of the rootball should be 1 or 2 inches above the finished ground level for clay or loam soils, and about even with the surrounding soil if extremely sandy. A dark-tolight color change below the bud union, if any, on the trunk indicates the original soil level in the nursery.

Make the watering basin for trees at least 30 inches in diameter. Twice the size of the rootball is a good rule of thumb. A ridge 4 or 5 inches high-with soil dug from the planting hole-makes it possible to wet the soil thoroughly.

Fill the basin with water to further settle the soil and to provide roots with water. This can be done effectively by using a 3 - or 4 -foot pipe on a hose. Force the pipe, with water running, thrc the soil around the roots or rootball area of 30 inches in diameter of bare around the tree will also prevent dan to young trees from lawn mowers.

All plants require water to grow. T are a number of ways to water effic ly: basins, furrows, sprinklers, soal or drip systems. The most impol goals are to eliminate run-off, to cor water inside the drip line of branc and to apply uniformly.

Even though nursery conditions have been nearly ideal for rapid gro a young nursery tree may not be adapted for good performance in landscape. But you can, with a looking, find a good tree, one that live up to your expectations.

Build a basin so water soaks down into rootball with a minimum of runoff. improve rooting build a double basin. i rainy weather cut basin wall for draina

B&Btrees can be set out anytime. Untie top. You want solid ball of soil, not cracked or broken. A void circling roots. After you select the tree, carry rootball gently from bottom; don't use trunk as handle

When you think about it, this statement makes a lot of sense.
No matter where, when, or under what circumstances death may occur, there are needs that must be met - for the bereaved family; their friends; their close circle in the community.

The funeral helps meet those needs. It helps those who grieve accept the reality of death. They know it happened. But a part of their mind rejects it, runs away from it.

The funeral takes them gently by the shoulders and turns them to face it. And having faced it, having viewed it, things are easier.

Things continue to be easier (though it may not seem so at the time) as arrangements have them talking with sympathetic friends, reflecting upon moments shared, giving testimony to the life that was lived on earth.

Another thing the funeral does - whether the choice is made for a traditional, a contemporary or a humanist service - is to reaffirm the faith, the creed, or philosophy by which one's life was guided.

As the poet John Donne said: "No man is an island . . . ." His death touches his world. A funeral considers the feelings of all those who shared his life. It is a moment when grief shared is grief diminished.

It is truly a unique moment of sharing . . . for the family ... for friends ... for society.

GARDENER'S NOTES

By James Fanning

The new influence of Chinese gardens

Plus an 18th-century medicine garden, cascading chrysanthemums and instructions for lawn games

- THE CHINESE WAY

The whole idea of gardening began in China, uncounted centuries ago. Agri-culture-the growing of large numbers of plants for food or other uses-probably started earlier and in other parts of the world. but it was left for the Chinese to discover the joys of cultivating plants as individuals, each grown to bring out its own distinctive character. Blessed with such plants as camellias, chrysanthemums, tree peonies, and lilies, early gardeners in the fertile plains of southeast Asia saw their allotted working space as something to engage the imagination as well as the appetite. Eariy contacts between China and Europe brought about profound changes in the European approach to gardening, exemplified in English and French gardens of the 17 th and 18 th century. At Kew. England's renowned botanical garden. an outstanding feature is the "Chinese" pagoda designed by William Chambers and built in 1762. Today's resurgence of interest in things Chinese is already making itself felt in the U.S. The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York is preparing space for a Chinese Garden Court and Ming Furniture Room. Now under construction in Shanghai, these will be installed at the Metropolitan and opened to the public in the spring of 1980. Up to now, few gardens in the United States have been laid out along Chinese lines. One that is open to the public is Innisfree-nobody knows how it came by the Irish name-in Millbrook, N.Y.. a few miles east of the Taconic Parkway on Rte. 44.

目 CHINESE CASCADES

One of the outstanding gardening techniques that came to us from China is the growing of cascade chrysanthemums. At its highest stage of development, this method of growing creates glowing draperies of color, flowing over the edges of pots, sheathing window ledges and tables. Basically, the method is simplestart early in the spring with a rooted cutting of one of the varieties recommended for cascade training and keep the plant in vigorous growth right up to flowering time. Start the plant as a singl stem, pinching back side shoots as the appear. As soon as the stem is lony enough to be bent without breaking, ti. it over the edge of the pot if you want i to grow downward, or to some kind a support if you want a vertical or hori zontal final effect. Feed at weekly inter vals with fish emulsion or similar fer tilizer, and give the plant plenty of wa ter, sunlight, and fresh air. When thy stem has gotten about as long as yodl want it to be, pinch off the growing tiff to make it branch. Flower buds will be gin to appear in late summer-pinch ol the first of these to insure a denser, late crop. Pinch back the side shoots, too, t. keep the whole plant densely floriferous When the first buds begin to show color place the plant where it will show to bes advantage and stop feeding but don neglect the water, sunlight, and fresh ai -these will all help to prolong the flow ering, as will a daily misting of the entir plant. Most nurseries that sell chrysan themum plants have a few varieties rec ommended for cascade training. Ask fo these, or send for the catalogue of one of the nurseries that specialize in chrysan themums. Sunnyslope Gardens, 8631 Huntington Dr., San Gabriel, Calif 91775. is a famous one.

GARDEN OF MEDICINES Shortly after the Pennsylvania Hospita was founded by Benjamin Franklin ii 1751, the good doctor agreed that par of the hospital grounds should be de voted to the growing of medically use ful plants. This was long before th development of synthetic pharmaceuti

Ils, of course, but plants such as digilis and saffron are still highly useful medicine. With commercial supplies "physic" plants undependable or nonistent, most doctors and pharmacists id to grow their own, so Franklin's incern about supplies for the hospital as well justified. The hospital garden dn't get very far, though, probably for asons connected with the approach of e Revolution, and it was not until the centennial observance in 1976 that anting was actually begun. The PhilaIphia Committee of the Garden Club America set about recreating the aysic Garden, and they have insisted 1 absolute authenticity not only in the er-200 plants, but in the layout of the urden, which is 18 th century in design. plant list, issued by the hospital, Imes the plants and describes their es, with this caution: "In the use of ome remedies, some of the plants may ive poisonous properties." Although ere are still gaps to fill, the garden is en to visitors. It is near the entrance the Pennsylvania Hospital, Spruce 1d 8th Streets, in Philadelphia.

he Physic Garden in Philadelphia is laid it as it would have been in the 1750s.

1 FUN ON THE LAWN

me of us think of a good lawn as an id in itself, but mostly home lawns are ven active use as part of family life. ames, from badminton to croquet, are natural part of the life of a lawn, so ost of us want to know how to play the imes as well as how to keep the lawn elf in good shape. Game rules and set, instructions have been generally hard come by, but now they have all been it into book form, under the title Make e Most of Your Lawn (Hart, $6.95 perback), by James Meyers. All the wn games are there, with playing rules, id, for good measure, instructions for uilding grills and the like.
As for the lawn itself, the O.M. Scott J., Marysville, Ohio 43040, stands ady not only to supply a "family" wn seed mixture, but to answer all nds of questions that apply to lawns in neral. ## dition.

Hampton Mews recalls the furnishings found in 17th century England and America. Beautifully interpreted by Henredon, these designs offer informal warmth and distinction in living and dining room As you would expect with Henredon, attention is paid to every authentic detail. Accuracy in translation includes wood, finish and hardware. The "flat carving," for instance, seen here in a three drawer chest, has been reproduced in the manner of hand crafted antique originals. Such careful design interpretation and fine craftsmanship are also found in Henredon upholstered furnishings Henredon furniture is available through many fine furniture and department stores. ## What you need is a KitchenAid trash compactor.

No matter how many trash cans you buy, it always seems that there isn't enough room for the trash.

That's why a KitchenAid trash compactor is so worth having.

It squeezes a week's worth of trash into one small load. Does away with smelly, overflowing trash cans.

The KitchenAid compactor has three advantages other compactors don t give you.

A Litter Bin ${ }^{\circledR}$ door for quick throwaways

An activated charcoal filter that eliminates odors.

And a Tilt-Away basket that can be used with or without trash bags.

Best of all, it has the same reliability and performance as KitchenAid dishwashers.

Try it. Once you've enjoyed the convenience of a KitchenAid compactor, you'll wonder how you ever got along without it.

Culinary  comments

Good things often come in small packages, and here's a set of essays, notes, and recipes to prove it. Petits Propos Culinaires has been published in a limited edition of 500 by a group of today's best food writers. Included are recipes by Elizabeth David, a history of British cookery, an essay of coriander, the first ice-cream recipe, and more. Proceeds will go to the Royal National Lifeboat Institution. $4.95. Write: Caroline Cookson, 3232 Prospect Street, Washington, D.C. 20007.

With the burgeoning of wok sales and the newly kindled interest in all things Chinese, only one thing stands between real Oriental home cooking and success -getting fresh ingredients. Freshwater (Eleocharis dulcis) chestnuts are a true gastronomic delight, with a nutty flavor long vanished by the time the tinned kind is opened.

Occasionally fresh water chestnuts are available at specialty stores. That's the time to stock your kitchen windowsill garden. This vegetable will the harvest may not be immense, you can reap enough for one small Chinese banquet from each 10 -inch pot about iwice a year. The plant normally grows in

Potpourri made quickly with electric dehydrator

Three hours is all it takes to make fragrant, personal potpourris with flowers and herbs from your own garden and an electric dehydrator. Maurice Gibson and Stanford Stevenson, below, of San Francisco's famous potpourri shop Agraria are working on two special recipes for House & Garden, the details of which will be coming up in an issue this summer. The dehydrator has five mesh shelves and an acrylic door. $225 at Hammacher Schlemmer, 147 East 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10022.

extremely wet soil. They will grow well potted-up in the manner of your normal houseplants, producing 1 - to 2 -footlong tubular leaves, or quills, not unlike a clump of super-sized chives. Use standard loose potting mixture rich in organic matter. The kind used for African violets works well. Bury the chestnuts, $4-6$ per pot, just below the soil level. Set the pot in a deep dish in a sunny window and water well. Your first harvest will be ready in about 6 months or so, with walnut-sized chestnuts growing at the base of the old. After each harvest save a few of the biggest roots and plant them for your next feast. RICHARD LANGER

Philadelphia opens house
Philadelphia will be 300 years old in 1982, and the anticipation of the tricentennial is beginning now. Seven neighborhoods, from Society Hill and Rittenhouse Square to historic Germantown and The Main Line, will be on display from May 5-12 in the most comprehensive group of tours of private houses, gardens, and historic sites in Philadelphia. The Friends of Independence National Historical Park is sponsoring some 12 city organizations in order to offer this extraordinary event. Society Hill is a highlight of the week with 40 houses open, many for the first time. Styles range from Colonial to modern, accurately restored to revived-forliving, spanning three centuries of architecture, furniture, and paintings Sixteen different tours, days and evening, will be conducted through 70 private houses in a city whose important 18thand 19th-century buildings are famous throughout the world. The admission fees run from $$ 5$ to $$ 15$. Write for the illustrated brochure to 313 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 19106.

Dinner a ${ }^{1}$ Art

Every hostess knows that some of the best ideas are born at dinner parties. When a great idea is the dinner party, that's news. The "Dinner à l'Art" just held in Oklahoma City on two evenings, April 6-7, is the third one given to unite the city in its efforts to raise money for the Oklahoma Art Center. Some 25 separate dinner parties were given with about 10 guests at each for about $$ 35$ a ticket. Those who have hosted in the past have flown in orchids from Hawaii and tapes from Studio 54 in New York. To help your city orchestrate a similar event, write Deborah Wyant, c/o The Oklahoma Art Center, Fair Park, 3113 Pershing Blvd., Oklahoma City, Okla 97107.

INLAID COLOR: A BEAUTIFUL DIFFERENCE YOU CAN'T MISS

= INLAID COLOR.

diferent. And that difference is called Inlaid Color. It's Arrnstrong's exclusive process that builds up the color and pattern with thousands of varicolored vinyl granules. The result is a richness of color and a uniquely "crafted" look that no printed flooring can begin to match.

ANOTHER BEAUTIFUL DIFFERENCE: THE NO-WAX SHINE THAT LASTS LONGER.

Most no-wax floors have ordinary vinyl surfaces which soon dull from scuffs and scratches. But Solarian is different here, too. And this difference is called Mirabond. It's Armstrong's exclusive extra-durable wear surface whichalong with protecting the Inlaid Color and pattern-keeps its lustrous "likenew" look without waxing far longer than ordinary vinyl surfaces. And by eliminatıng the waxing chore, Mirabond makes Solarian the easiest of all Armstrong floors to care for. To keep it clean and shining, just sponge-mop with detergent, and rinse thoroughly. (If a reduction in gloss should occur in heavy-traffic areas, ask your retailer for Armstrong Suncoat ${ }^{T M}$ which can be applied to help maintain the shine.)

ONCE ' N DONE ${ }^{\text {TM }}$. THE NEW EASY WAY TO KEEP SOLARIAN FLOORS CLEAN.

The easiest way to keep any Solarian floor looking its best is with new Once 'n Done No-Rinse Cleaner. Available only at your Armstrong retailer, it was developed especially for floors with the Mirabond wear surface. It not only saves you the chore of rinsing, but it leaves no dulling dirtcatching film.

Hair care for man's best friend

"I love dogs but I can't keep one because I'm allergic to the dander in their fur," is a familiar, wistful complaint. But according to professional dog trainer Pat Widmer, the problem is not insoluble. Bathe the dog in a good, no-tears protein shampoo. Rinse with a solution of 10 percent white vinegar or lemon juice in water. Rinse with plain water and blot Fido dry while he's still in the tub. Now pour over him a solution of one part fabric softener (the kind for the rinse cycle, not the wash) to six parts water.

Let it soak in, and dry the dog. Repeat every 3 to 10 weeks-as your allergic reaction indicates. Put a good coat conditioner in the dog's food daily. The author of Pat Widmer's Dog Training Book (David McKay) says this works as well for cats.

A how-to  house on TV

Public Broadcasting fans in Boston have a unique opportunity to literally watch the process by which an old house is remodeled. This Old House is a 13 -week series on house repairs, restoration, and maintenance, interviews with a house inspector, a realtor, and a heating specialist; the scaffolding goes up and 13 weeks later a house emerges. You watch the kitchen appliances being installed, the bathroom floors being tiled, the exterior being changed, the landscaping being planned. Producer Russ Morash developed this series from a position of real experience-he lives in an 1851 farmhouse with his family, which he completely redid himself. This Old House is tentatively scheduled for airing nationally next year.

The hand-built house is becoming more and more of a real alternative for people wishing to own and design their houses. They need all the encouragement they can get. A new book, called Shelter II, is the second in a series of books about people building their own houses all over the world. Shelter II is both a basic survey of design and how-to construction manual for the first-time house builder. The book also covers many self-help housing projects underway in major American cities. Edited by Lloyd Kahn, and putlished by a nonprofit architectural organiztion in California. $9.50. Distributed hy "andom House.

Cultural exchange: TV specials on the Peking Opera

Tuesday evening, May 15 at 8 P.M., The Public Broadcasting System will air a special 90 -minute presentation which will feature, among others, The Performing Arts Company of The People's Republic of China, most notably The Peking Opera. The show has rare excerpts from ancient dramas, which have not been shown in China for many decades. The richness and details of the costumes alone make this special wellworth planning for. The dancer, below, is made up and dressed for the traditional Monkey Makes Mischief. "Three Forked Crossroads" is a highlight-a dance in which two allies unwittingly battle in the pitch dark. # The Enchanted Flowers centuries, collectors in many countries have rished fine porcelain adorned with beautiful, cate flowers. And for centuries, too, bells e been among the most sought-after of all ector's items in fine porcelain.

elve beautiful collector's bells fine bone china.  ch portraying a different orite flower, and its own icate little flower fairy... and ch one hand-decorated 24 karat gold.

ow, as a collector herself, the internationallywn artist Carol Lawson has been inspired by e traditions to create a new collection which $s$ charming as it is original. The Enchanted vers Porcelain Bell Collection.

Original art by Carol Lawson

design of each bell is a unique original work rt by Carol Lawson, who has specialized in raying the wonderful world of magic and asy. And so, she has brought her own highly onal approach to each floral design by portraying each bloom with its own pretty little flower fairy. There's the Violet, sweetly smiling, delicate as a petal in her ballet dress of mauve and green - and the very soul of modesty. The Lily-of-the-Valley, with her very own little chinawhite bells. The Primrose, Snowdrop and the Poppy-and a veritable posy of other elusive and lovely companions.

In the beauty of fine bone china

Each bell in this charming collection is elegance itself. A pleasure to look at, a delight to hold by its slender curved handle. The china exquisitely, translucently white-providing the perfect setting for a delectable profusion of color. The high glaze, reflecting the light from the gracefully curved body of each bell. Incorporated in each design, the artist's monogram. And the finishing touches of 24 karat gold, including the handpainted gold rim around the mouth of each bell, ensuring that it looks as lovely as it sounds, when rung - ever so gently.
The making of a porcelain bell is a work of true craftsmanship. And the collector who holds one of these lovely bells in his or her hand will recognize the skill and judgment that went into its making. But the strongest impression of the collection will be of its beauty, its refinement, its charm - and the engaging aura of fantasy and romance which surrounds the twelve flower bells.

These beautiful bells will be a constant joy to own, and a captivating adornment to any room -gathered together as an eye-catching centerpiece, or arranged as a striking wall display. For this is a collection to be enjoyed here and now and to be handed down from mother to daughter for generations. Thus, it will bring its entrancing beauty into your home and into the homes of those you love-for many years to come.

Available for a limited time only

In accordance with the established traditions of porcelain collecting, these fine bone china bells will be made available during a single year only. Thus, the collection will be offered solely during 1979 and will be permanently withdrawn at the end of the year.

A Certificate of Authenticity provided to each subscriber will attest to this fact, and to the status of the bells as original works of art by Carol Lawson.

The collection will be issued at the rate of one bell every other month. The issue price of $$ 19.50$ for each exquisite bell will be billed conveniently in two equal monthly amounts of $$ 9.75$ per month. Shepherd casters do much more than make your furniture easy to move.

They help protect your valuable carpets from wear and tear. And your hardwood and vinyl floors from scrapes and scratches.
What's more, Shepherd has casters of all kinds for almost any piece of household furniture you own. And you don't have to be a handyman either.Because they're a snap to install. Use Shepherd casters to help protect any surfaceand let the protection roll on.

A. Your "Burton" clock, made by Ansonia, dates about 1900. At that time, this type of clock retailed for about $$ 6.25$. An embossed "Oak" or "Kitchen" clock such as yours was popular from the late 1890s to about 1915. The larger clock companies made them. Ingraham was perhaps the largest producer, followed by Welch, Waterbury, Ansonia, Seth Thomas, New Haven, and Sessions. The average height was about 23 inches. They were substantial, 8-day clocks with striking movements.

A. Your far-from-common, covered, blue and white bowl is an example of either Dutch Delft (tin-glazed earthenware) or its progeny in Germany. The date 1687 is an unusual feature. The Chinese decoration is unsophisticated but robust, and gives the piece primitive charm. It probably served as a punch bowl, the pouch holdinge spices.

Q. My English sterling silver bottle tickets are late 18th or early 19th century. I would like to know something about the history of bottle tickets.
K.H.R. - Tidewater, Va.
A.In England, the glass decanter and the silver bottle ticket, or wine label, seem to have grown up together during the second quarter of the 18 th century when the custom arose of decanting wine from the black bottle in which it had been stored into a good-looking container to be placed on the table. Silver bottle tickets were widely popular from about 1750 to 1850 . Apart from standard names-port, sherry, etc-are found such rare liquors as Collares and Methuen. Among sauces and toilet wa ters, for which bottle tickets were alsd widely used, occur such exotic names as Coratch and Rondeletia. In all, almosi 1.000 different names have been noted for bottle tickets

A. E.A.M. Co. is the trademark of the Electrolytic Art Metal Co., active early in the 20th century at Trenton, N.J. The vase was probably made at a pottery nearby. Your piece is a very early example of the Art Deco style that captured the 1920s and 30s. Basically, a French style, it takes its name from the 1925 Paris Exposition that introduced it as an established movement, L'Exposition Internationale des Arts Décoratif et Indus triels Modernes.

> C.F.-Ceniville, N.J.
A. Gustav Stickley (1857-1942), the originator of "Craftsman Furniture"the so-called Mission style of furniture of the era, 1890-1915-was determined to create furniture of streamlined construction and design that would be, in his words, "fitted for the place it was to occupy and of the work it had to do" and which was also "comfortable. durable, and easy to take care of." He stressed the virtues of hand craftsmanship and his furniture was entirely handmade. He considered oak the most durable and best suited for his philosophy. In 1898, he formed the Gustav Stickley Company in Eastwood, near Syracuse, N.Y. He took the medieval joiner's compass as his symbol and borrowed the motto, broadly interpreted "as well as I can" from Jan van Eyck by way of William Morris. In later years, both the compass and the motto appeared with Stickley's name, either burned into the wood or paper label, on all the furniture handcrafted in his shops.

Beauty from the inside out

The busy American woman. The beautiful, active American woman. She's become a national symbol, an international ideal for modern women everywhere. But how does it happen? Not by magic. according to Gloria Vanderbilt, one of the most mulufaceted artists working in America today. Her new book, Woman To Woman (Doubleday), though not an autobiography, is a discussion about how she became an artist and about finding the art in living. Gloria Vanderbilt is first a painter, famous for her collages with textiles. She also designs-fabrics, china, glass, flatware, jeans and blouses, stationery, wallcoverings, and clothing for children. She is the mother of four sons, two of whom are in their teens. She finds the subject of beauty intriguing and in this interview her remarks are surprising, refreshing, and useful.
"The fact is," she says, sitting in her sun-filled living room on a freezing, crystal-bright afternoon, "the fact is that beauty and health are reflections of a woman's mind and her soul. As simply as I can express it, a beautiful woman, a person, radiates from within. Each woman works from an ideal image that she constantly carries with her and that she constantly strives to recreate day after day. The image may come from her childhood, or from her dreams, or from art, or from a certain style or grace shown by a friend or acquaintance-no matter. You happen to be asking me about beauty at a time in my life when I really have very little interest in the nuts and bolts approach to makeup and clothes. My own concerns with both makeup and clothes now are very minimal. This has not always been the case. but it is now. It has to be in order to accomplish everything I've set out to do. Just look at what's happened in these two years alone: I have the book, the design firm, the national traveling-the more you do, the more you can do, of course. So I find that part of a busy woman's time for beauty has to do with paring down and simplifying the details. The thing that has happened to me, the thing about success is that the more it happens -the more you have to do superbly. You think it's going to end, that you'll get some time to yourself, but it doesn't and you don't. There are always more demands and the escalating sense of responsibility. Yes, it's fun, but when I realize that it will be another year hefore I have a l, ke of time for some con-

Where does the energy come from? "Generally, I'm up everyday at 5 A.m. It's simply my internal clock and over the years I've learned to listen to it. My two sons, Carter and Anderson, are up at 7 A.M. which leaves me two full hours of undisturbed quiet in which to dream, meditate, plan, rehearse, resolve, experiment, or whatever until the day begins for the rest of the world. In that free time I try to center as closely as I can on what really matters for that day. I try to analyze what needs to be done, in what order, and how much appropriate energy it should take. An internal clock is much like metabolism in the sense that it changes at different times of your life. Now, as opposed to ten years ago, I require less slzep. These quiet hours provide a serenity, which I believe is a necessary foundation for every woman's busy day. These hours give the day a lovely face. Let me try to explain what I mean with another example. If there were one best thing that I could recommend to every woman for her wellbeing, her looks, and her disposition, it would be to take a day off every month words, make the time to zero-in on her interests, irrespective of what anyone else thinks. These small satisfactions do change the way she interacts with her family, her job. But they are very different from what I call the enlightened selfishness we've been dominated by in this decade. When a woman gives so much of her time, love, thought, consideration, and energy to her family and her work, these small indulgences restore in a measure beyond belief. A woman's private time is invaluable. Since time grows continually more precious for everyone -it is not an endless commodity-it may be that we need to reevaluate the commitments, projects, and friendships we're giving our time to. And here's a source of energy I have tremendous faith in-the power of supportive friends. Don't let blighters take away your energy. One must have supportive images throughout life. Who we select as friends, who we gravitate towards has important consequences to our abili'ies to create, love, enjoy, and share. I'm for having life-enhancing friends $n$ ?ar whenever I can. They're the ones beauty can happen with.

ever I can. It's a mini-break during the day I'm always ready for. Walking is therapy for mind and body. Diet? One full meal every day, and for a light lunch, I love water-packed sardines. It's great to find out that they're so good for you, too. Here's a tip about dinner parties. I eat before I go. At about 6 in the evening. It makes sense, because no matter what the invitation calls for, you practically never sit down before 10 . That's usually my bedtime! So I'll have some elegantly small portion of salad, soup, or fish the hostess is serving and that works just fine for me. And believe me. I LOVE to eat.
"My beauty routine is quite simple. A hot, hot shower to start the day, a cup of instant coffee for my musings. My skin is scrupulously and systematically cared for at the Janet Sartin salon in New York and I continue the treatment with her products at home. Makeup is at its simplest but most effective minimum, depending on whether the day will be spent in the studio painting or whether I'm traveling, being interviewed, selecting fabrics, whatever. For something special. such as a photography session or an important party, I'll have a professional make up artist to work with. I have my hair cut and shaped every five weeks, and it's washed and blown dry every two or three days. Neutrogena Hand Cream, the Norwegian formula, is my hardworking favorite in cold weather and after washing my paint-spattered hands with turpentine. If something worksstick with it. It's a way to simplify. My clothes are the simplest for the studio-a black sweater with black jeans, comfortable shoes, maybe a soft black shirt. Otherwise, for day, I want what's comfortable and I may buy several of the same style of a dress in different colors if the fit, comfort, and cut are right. The point is to wear it and forget it. I don't believe in seasonal colors, so I'll often wear the same colors all year round. When I shop, I try to buy staples that will last the year-expensive, well-made shoes are worth it. You should also make time for planning ahead; for an important day, do a small dress rehearsal. Attach a long hook inside the closet door and hang everything you'll need from stockings to lingerie to a sweater, blouse. and hang a small sachet with them to scent them. Fill your pocketbook with exactly what you'll need the day before: the same for an evening bag. Jewelry scarves, and your fragrance should also be easily at hand to save time. The result is that your mind will be free to do your job, free of nagging doubts about zippers, buttons, hems, or an uncomfortable, unattractive fit. Organized closets, drawers, lingerie-sacs all help simplify and systematize these daily concerns. They add to a woman's poise and fashion polish. As to the organizing of my time, I couldn't manage without a wonderful personal appointments book I order every year from Frank Smythson, through the M & M Company, at 501 Madison Avenue, New York City 10022. I keep everything in it from quotes I want to remember to addresses and each day has ample room in which to write notes to myself. Organizing time is critical to every woman's sense of calm and control.
"I feel very strongly that one of the most revolutionary aspects of this century has been to make beauty and health available to everyone. American women are constantly involved in self-improvement. I'm proud of my age and the experience that has come with it. I'm not interested in looking younger than I am, but I also feel that I would take steps to look vital. In our society, the superstition is often expressed that women are foolishly involved with their appearance. Pride goes much deeper than that, I'm sure. Age, change, and wisdom do not come easily for women-or for men. But as I see it-ripeness is all !"

EXPANDING YOUR POTENTIAL

Beauty and health products

 new this month in the stores
What's new . . . For your skin? One of the first signs of dryness that says your skin is just beginning to lose its moisture and its resilience comes just under the eyes at the tops of the cheekbones. There are no natural sebaceous oil glands in that area of your skin, so it's always the signpost. You need something to lubricate that delicate skin without pulling it, stretching it, or smothering it with a heavy-textured oil or cream. This spring Elizabeth Arden adds a third product to its very effective "Visible Difference" group of skin-care helpers. Visible Difference EyeCare Concentrate is a lightweight fluid that is quickly absorbed by the skin's thirsty top cell layers. You only need one drop. And apump-dispenser on the bottle ensures that's what you'll get. The concentrate will work with your attendant foundation and subsequent eye makeup-you just replace it after you cleanse at night. $$ 15$ a half-ounce bottle at fine department stores and drugstores across the country.

Ultra Sun Block Creme (SPF-15) is your skin's defense against the sun, especially if you're blonde, blue-eyed, and an active-sports lover. The number 15 is the highest protective rating the government has, and it means that you'll be able to stay in the sun 15 times longer than you'd be able to without the protection, before you'd begin to redden. If you're like most blondes, that means you can be out for $61 / 4$ hours instead of 25 minutes! The first day at the beach or on the water is the day you need # 15 most. $$ 3.50$ by Bain de Soleil at drugstores everywhere.

What's as refreshing as a cold glass of water on a hot day? A cool spray of water on your face. Evian Mineral Water Spray is an atomizer of pure water from the Evian spa in France-it's the same as the bottled water you can buy at the market. But the secret of making it a great, natural moisturizer for your face is the nitrogen inside the bottle, which breaks the water into a million tiny vaporous water-beads. Splashing your face with mineral water isn't the same, because it just rolls off. These micro-fine mists stay put until they evaporate. Evian's pH is 7.18 , which is almost neutral, and a small, neat size, just 5 ounces, is the new one to try. It'll last about 3 months. About $$ 5.50$ at fine drugstores and cosmetic counters.

For your feet? There's nothing like an effective foot massage to refresh you after a busy day. Everyone seems to have her own special way of doing it, from a soak in Epsom salt to once-overlightly with mineral oil. Barielle Total Foot Care Cream is a water-based, greaseless cream that's rich in proteins, emollients, and moisturizers. Use it once or twice a day, and don't worry, it won't discolor stockings or the finings of your shoes. $$ 8.50$ for 2 ounces at good drugstores and cosmetic counters.

For your hair? What's new is also free. It's the Gil Ferrer Personalized Hair Treatment Manual, a 22-page, largesized booklet that's all about your hair and your proper care program. $1.50 for mailing charges. Write to Gil Ferrer, 21 East 74th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021.

For your spirit? A new fragrance called Piqué. It's a flower-lover's floral scent-a topnote of tuberose with jasmine, magnolia, and lily of the valley to enrich a bouquet. You can find it in perfume, cologne concentrate, and a misty light cologne wrapped up in white piqué paper, but only at your hairdresser's. $$ 25$ a quarter-ounce; $$ 37.50$ a halfounce. And to try it, there's a "touchup" size at $8. By Redken.

At over $$ 200$ an ounce, 24 Kt . Gold is pretty precious.

But as jewelry, it's not worth much.

That's because it's so soft that a pure gold bracelet would bend out of shape and wear away.

An alloy, however, made

Which is why 14 Kt . Gold jewelry is more valuable to you. While at the same time it's less expensive, too.

It's the incredible Le Chef Food Processor from Sunbeam.

I love to cook-whenever I can spare the time. But those recipes that call for half a day's worth of chopping, pureeing and slicing really used to intimidate me! Now, with my Le Chef, I can do those jobs in seconds. Really! And not just for entertaining, but for everyday dishes too.

What's so special about the Le Chef Food Processor? The motor is surprisingly quiet and powerful. Sunbeam calls it direct drive. I call it incredible. Le Chef easily kneads stiff yeast dough without stalling. And its super capacity container lets me prepare enough for a crowd, all at once. The Touch On/ Touch Off pulse control makes for instantly regulated action, so I'm less likely to over-process foods by mistake. The Le Chef Food Processor comes with 4 processing blades and discs, for handling each job just right. The multi-purpose blade for minced onions or homemade hamburger, the shredding disc for cheddar cheese or cole slaw. The slicing disc turns out perfect, even slices of vegetables or sausage. I use the mixing blade for cake batter and desserts.

There's even a handy spatula and a complete 64 -page recipe book included.

"My home is very important to me.

> In it I have surrounded myself with things I love that I have collected. It gives me great pleasure to look around and enjoy it. Architectural Digest has furnished me with a beautiful photographic record of this haven which I shall always have-in the event I decide to change any part of it. After all, a woman wouldn't want to eliminate the possibility of using her natural prerogative, would she?"

-Dinah Shore

Architectural Digest is no longer primarily about architecture. Nor is it a digest. Over the years it has become what the Wall Street Journal recently called "the preeminent publication in the world of interior design."
And some of our most critical, demanding and important-to-please readers are those whose homes we portray.

Therefore we are always especially pleased when we receive a letter like the one above.
Julia Child, too, was thrilled with "the splendid feature about our Cambridge home. We are absolutely delighted to have the copy, which we shall treasure the rest of our lives," she says.

And Diana Vreeland found our coverage of her home "too delightful for words. Your photographer is a genius, and so is your writer. How beautiful the whole magazine is."

Because of our high standards, we have won the respect of the top interior designers and their clients. As a result, we are invited-and sometimes, frankly, begged-to include some 700 outstanding interiors a year. From those we choose only la crème de la crème - one out of every ten.
In addition, we seek out the private homes of such celebrities as Fred Astaire, Truman Capote, Yves St. Laurent, Jean Arthur, Mary Tyler Moore, Givenchy. And evoke with color camera and pen the grandeur of such magnificent historic houses as Sir Winston Churchill's Chartwell, Falaknuma Palace in Hyderabad and North Carolina's' Biltmore House.

If you love beautiful homes - and are curious about what marvelous effects have been achieved behind the closed doors of delightful country estates, penthouse apartments, Mediterranean villas, imposing old townhouses, film stars' mansions, French provincial castles-isn't it about time you, too, discovered Architectural Digest?
To make the discovery easy, we invite you to mail he postpaid card for a complimentary copy (retail value $$ 2.95$ ). No obligation to continue as a subscriber on the terms in the card) unless you are delighted and eel that you want to.

Color lift for rugs

Q. We have a Japanese rug that is about 15 years old. The center is gray, the border a blue that has faded considerably. Is there any touch-up product we could use on the blue?
-E.M., Freeport, Ill.
A. The RIT Consumer Service Laboratory tells us many consumers have had success in "reviving" all colors except navy or black on wool, cotton, nylon, or rayon using brush-on or spray-on methods. Both methods take skill and patience, and RIT offers instructions only with the understanding that results are not guaranteed. These methods are not capable of masking stains. For free instructions, please write Department HG at the RIT Consumer Service Laboratory, Best Foods Div., CPC International Inc., 1437 West Morris St., Indianapolis, Ind. 46206. Right after dye has dried, rub dyed areas with a clean damp cloth until no dye comes up.

Dyeing is not recommended for antique or valuable rugs, as it will decrease the resale value. RIT adds that stain- and water-resisting finishes and some fibers (such as olefins, polypropylene, glass or mineral fibers, and some polyesters and acrylics) won't absorb dye except as a light tint.

Lightweight hang-up

Q. In mykitchen, the only place to hang an 18-by-24-inch travel poster is the door, which is of hollow metal. How can I have the poster framed so it's light enough to hang up with mastic?
-M.M., New York, N.Y.
A. A frameless way of protecting posters like yours is plastic laminating. (As the process permanently seals the item in hard plastic, it's not recommended for fine posters or prints or other items with investment value.) You'll find specialists listed in your Yellow Pages under "Laminations." One specialist, Laminall Plastics Co. (11-42 46th Rd., Long Island City, N.Y. 11101) can laminate items up to 21 by 25 inches in size in matte or glossy finish plastic. Laminating an 18 -by-24-inch paper item currently costs $$ 12$ plus ship, ing and any sales tax; an 18 -by-24-inch smapshot, $14. Quantity orders are somewhet less expensive. For a price estimate on other orders, send Laminall a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Orders must be prepaid. Items to be mounted must be free of tears or creases. Ship between cardboards or in a mailing tube, by insured mail only. Please allow four weeks' delivery.

Laminating is super for turning place-mat-sized children's drawings into placemats or for saving brand-new newspaper clippings. If you want to help keep the printing on the reverse side from showing through, specify a black plastic backing, available at additional cost.

Cedar solution

Q. We've just remodeled a beachfront house covered with red cedar handsplit shakes and shingles, so I read with great interest your October, 1977 article about a red-cedar-shingled beach house designed by architect Norman Jaffe. We want our house to weather to the silvery gray patina of driftwood, not the dark color that the cedar shake roofs on neighboring houses have become. What do you suggest? -S.G., Olympia, Wash.
A. According to a spokesperson for the Red Cedar Shingle & Handsplit Shake Bureau in Bellevue, Wash., humidity tends to darken raw wood over a period of years. It often takes many years for sunlight and salt air to bleach the dark color to gray. You can protect new raw wood against humidity and speed up the bleaching process by applying a "weathering stain" (also called a "bleaching stain"). The stains are lightly pigmented to give a driftwoody tint immediately, but the pigments are deliberately subtle so that they can be gradually bleached away by the sun. Generally a weathered silver gray look is achieved about 9 to 12 months after the stain is applied. Investigate at once, as these stains are effective only on unweathered raw wood. Two popular brands of bleach stain to look for at paint or hardware stores are Cabot's and Olympic. Several paint companies also market bleach stains.

Quilting quiz

Q. How much extra fabric should you buy when you plan to have upholstery quilted? -A.F., New York, N.Y.
A. Experts suggest you buy from 5 to 8 percent over the amount of fabric needed. For instance, if you need 10 yards to slipcover a chair, but want to have it quilted first, buy $1 / 2$ to $3 / 4$ of a yard extra to be absorbed in quilting. If the fabric has a large pattern that needs matching at the seams, or if you're going to use heavy padding, use the 8 percent figure.

DHAR HOUNHEGARDHN

Through the looking glass

Q. I'd like to hang 12 -inch-square mirror tiles on my dining-room wall, then hang porcelain plates and a clock with brackets over them. Can I drill holes through the mirror to fit fasteners through? -E.M., Baltimore, Md.
A. Don't try to drill mirror tiles if they are the do-it-yourself variety. To be light enough to glue up, they're only about 1,1 th of an inch thick, so chances are drilling would shatter them. If you're using such tiles, Gene Russo of Seguin Mirror & Brass in New York City suggests that you take graph paper and plot out your wall and where each tile will go. Plan to hang your plates and clock so each fastener will be placed only where the corners of four tiles meet. Count how many tiles will abut fasteners: On each, use pliers and a glass scorer (from a hardware store) to nip off one corner diagonally so when tour tiles are hung together they leave a diamondshaped hole large enough for your fastener.

For less mess, install fasteners firstplugs if your wall is plaster, Molly or toggle bolts if your wall is plasterboard or anything else. Choose strong enough fasteners-weigh your clock and bracket before visiting the hardware store. Install tiles, let adhesive set, then hang the ## plates and clock.

Mirror at least $1 / 4$-inch thick can be drilled, but it's a job only for professionals. Mirror generally gives a much truer reflection than mirror tiles-it's also too heavy to install yourself and considerably more expensive.

Missing sparkle

Q. Can you tell me who can fill in the missing prisms on my chandelier?
-V.S., Louisville, Ky.
A. Replacement parts for chandeliers -prisms, bobêches, cylindrical cups, and such-are a specialty of Gem Monogram & Cut Glass Corp., 623 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10012. The stock of old and new parts changes constantly, and it's so large that president David Noren often has some amber-, ame-thyst-, emerald-, or ruby-colored crystal prisms among the crystal-clear.

The wire hooks or "pins" on prisms often become misshapen and rusted over the years, so you may be glad to know that Gem can also provide silverplated or plain brass pins. Pins are $$ 8$ for 200 if the labor is yours-you can cut out old pins and insert and bend new ones with a pair of round-nosed pliers (available from a hardware store or for $$ 13$ plus $$ 2$ shipping from Gem). Or you can send your prisms to Gem for rewiring at the cost of $$ 1$ a prism plus shipping.

To minimize the risk of breakage, wrap each prism separately in newspaper and ship in a sturdy box, by insured mail only. If you're sending prisms for both matching and rewiring, put one newspaper-wrapped sample of each size, shape, and color prism you want matched in an envelope within the box. Enclose a list of the quantities, by type, that you need, plus a count of the prisms you want rewired, and a selfaddressed, stamped envelope so Gem can send you an estimate for the replacement prisms: Prices vary widely depending on the quantity and quality ordered. Please note that the minimum mail order accepted is $$ 8$ for pins or $$ 15$ for prisms or prismwork, plus shipping and any sales tax.

Hot towels

Q. Am doing my bathroom over "Euro pean Hotelish,' and a heated towel bar would be a piece de resistance. Can you help me find one?
-V.M., Laguna Beach, Calif
A. An English heated towel stand that plugs into American house current is available in two models from Hammacher Schlemmer, 147 E. 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10022 (free catalogue). Built of oil-filled, chrome-plated brass tubing, the wall model is $221 / 2$ inches wide by $331 / 2$ inches long; the floor model $203 / 4$ inches wide, $343 / 4$ inches long. Either holds three rows of towels and costs $$ 139.95$ plus shipping ( 15 poundsं).

China matching

Q. My china pattern has been discon tinued, and I have plates going begging for want of teacups. I'd like to pick a new pattern that will blend with my old. Do you have any tips?
E.S., Glens Falls, N. Y.
A. Joseph Giarracco, china and glassware buyer at B. Altman & Co. in New York, does: Be sure the new pattern has the same background color as the old and, preferably, the same overall shapes, especially in high-profile pieces like cups and bowls. (All good reasons to check patterns by the manufacturer of your old china first.) Try to match porcelain with porcelain, earthenware with earthenware. If the old pattern is goldenrimmed, the new should be, too. If that's not possible, pick a plain, not platinumrimmed pattern. If your old set is anything but plain, chances are your best bet is either monochromatic china that matches the background of your old or plain, color-rimmed china where the rim color matches the dominant color in the decoration of your old.

Pressed Flower Collection

You know Grace Kelly, the actress, from her starring roles in many films. Including her Oscar winning performance in "Country Girl."

What you may not know is that Grace Kelly is also talented in another realm of the arts: creating sensitive, delicate pressed flower collages.

She's been giving collages to friends for years, and they encouraged her to have a public showing of her art.

In 1977, at the Galerie Drouant in Paris, Grace Kelly had her first one-woman show.

The public loved it. And so did we.
We've had a long association with the arts in developing many striking patterns for Springmaid sheets and other bedroom accessories.

We've derived inspiration from collections in the Guggenheim and the Metropolitan museums.

So it was only natural that we turn to Miss Kelly's original collage, Fiona.
Princess Grace and ask her to produce a series of pressed flower collages that we could adapt for our use.

To quote Miss Kelly, "Few things are as lovely as the natural, delicate colors of a pressed flower arrangement. They capture the essence of the flower and age softens them to a lovely harmony."

We think the results of our collaboration with Miss Kelly are beautiful, and so does she.

You may see these designs in the Springmaid Grace Kelly Pressed Flower Collection, at fine department stores.

There are three lovely, colorful patterns with old Irish names: Selia, Tamora and Fiona.

The fabric is a blend of $65 \%$ polyester and $35 \%$ cotton, so they feel as heavenly as they look.

There are sheets, pillowcases, bedspreads, dust ruffles, comforters, shams, draperies, napkins, tablecloths and placemats.

And you'll know it's a Grace Patricia Kelly design when you see her distinctive GPK initials.

It's an American beauty, come home.

How to garden out the window

What can make looking outside more pleasant than a window box full of colorful blossoms? Americans tend to be down-to-earth with their gardening, but window boxes are easy to tend and can be cheery all year round with a change of foliage for winter. Most people think of the plants in a window box as outdoor plants, when in fact the care of them is really the same as it is for indoor house plants. Basically, a window box is a pot. It dries out more quickly than a garden flower bed. The roots of the plants bake more easily because the soil compacts just as it does in a flowerpot.

The solution is to use a thick-sided wooden box that does not conduct heat well, loose potting soil, and plenty of water. That's all that stands between you and a flower box overflowing with color. Really.

First fill the box with a 1 - to 2 -inch layer of coarse gravel mixed with 10 to 20 percent charcoal. Crushed barbecue charcoal works fine if you can find the real thing. Do not use charcoal briquets that have been chemically treated. The chemicals in them will kill your plants. Use the pet store variety instead, or, if necessary, skip the charcoal. It's a plus for good plants, but it's not absolutely necessary.

Next, fill the box to within 2 inches of the rim with soil. A prepackaged rich potting soil works well. Or you can use garden soil if you mix it with equal parts peat moss, sharp builder's sand, and compost or leaf mold. Add a cup of bone meal and another of dried, aged manure. The soil must be rich in nutrients, while at the same time allowing good drainage.

Set the plants in place, leaving about 4 inches space between marigolds and petunias and about 8 inches between geraniums. Plant at least two rows. Single rows in a window box will never give you that rich display.

A week or two after planting, mulch. It may sound strange to mulch such a small garden. After all, there isn't much of a chance for weeds. But mulch guards against heat. A 1 -inch layer of cocoa or buckwheat hulls will keep things cool. Also, the hulls will break down, enriching the soil. With a 1 -inch mulch layer ir place, you'll have 1 inch from the top of the soil to the rim of the box. This is your water reservoir. If the box is on the sunny side of the house, during July and August you'll find you may have to water the x right up to the rim every second day. On the shady side, you'll water less. Remember, drying soil is the most common malady, and it's hard to overwater a window box with good drainage. Fertilize regularly as you water. Make sure to pinch back the young plants as they grow and remove the dead flower heads when necessary. You'll be amazed at how grand a display you'll have.

What to grow

On the whole, a simple window box is the best one, both because of the ease with which you can care for it and because it keeps things from looking fussy. That's why you'll often see boxes filled with geraniums and nothing else.

Geraniums in a sunny window box are pretty much foolproof. But don't be afraid to mix. Two kinds of flowers can make for a more striking effect. So, besides the geraniums, consider some semperflorens begonias, petunias, or marigolds. Try some sedums or even iresine for colorful leaves as well.

And don't forget the shady side of the house. An east or north wall can sustain a striking display of, say, tuberous begonias or impatiens set off by trailing ivy. And it's usually the darker side of a home that can most use a splash of color.

Tips on boxes

No matter how long your window sill,

White window box for a red house holds red begonias, blue lobelia. From The Window Box Primer, see page 256 don't make the boxes themselves longer than 3 or at the most 4 feet long or they will be difficult to handle. Anything smaller will cramp your flowers.

Then there's the question of taper. Some people like their boxes narrower at the bottom. Personally, I find the square box gives the roots more growing space. It's also easier to construct, requiring no beveling of edges.
If a tapered-bottom box is your choice, the lower inside dimension should

wood that serve best are cypress, red-wood-for their durability-and firfor its strength. To help keep things cool, a window box should be painted a light color. Off-white or cream are the colors that usually display the flowers to best advantage. Green tends to end up clashing with the foliage. Staining or simply treating the boxes with a wood preservative are also possible choices. However, do not use a wood preservative on the inside of a window box. The preservative could leak into the soil and harm your plants. Still, left natural, the inside will quickly rot. So, even if you stain the boxes outside, the insides must be given a good coat of exterior-quality paint to seal them from the soil's moisture.

The final point to consider is drainage. The bottom of your box should have $1 / 2$ inch holes spaced about 6 inches apart. Cover each hole with broken pottery before filling in the soil.

How to fix the winter box blues

Although the gardening trials of winter seem far away during the present golden growing season, keep those bleak days in mind. For few things are more desolate than a once gaily colored window box filled with the frosted brown remains of summer's former bountiful flowers.

But just because nothing will grow in the cold season does not mean the winter window box can't add its cheer to the snow-covered landscape. First, when fall comes and the flowers have faded, remove all the plants, including their roots. Then top off the window box with a layer of peat moss and dried manure. They will break down over the winter enriching the boxed soil for next year's planting. Then arrange boughs of evergreen or fir to fall over the edge of the box.

Brightly berried holly, buckthorn (Hippophae rhamnoides), or bittersweet nestled among the boughs will add contrast in texture and bright splashes of color to summon up the holiday season. One warning about bittersweet. I mention it because many people feel no winter bouquet is complete without it. However, it can become a terrible inconvenience if you have a garden. Self-seeding and aided by the birds who love the berries, bittersweet can become a major nuisance, growing where it has no right.

Besides the color of berries, add a grouping of dried cattails, milkweed pods, silver-dollar plants (Lunaria annua), or wood roses (Merremia tuberosa). Any of these will add a dimension of height to your display. Then, come the holiday season, if you wish, you can wrap a red ribbon and a bow around the box itself. With or without it, you'll have a cheery window box all winter long.

How to buy or fix up a house on terms you can live with

With interest rates and housing prices at sky-high levels, shopping for a mortgage and home improvement loans pays more handsomely than it ever has before. How much you can borrow, the interest rate charged, the length of the loan, and the repayment schedule differ from bank to bank. The more time and effort you spend shopping for good terms, the better your chances of finding financing that you can afford. And fortunately, there is a host of new kinds of mortgages from which to choose. In fact, it's getting so that a prospective home buyer can find a mortgage almost custom tailored to his or her financial needs.
If, as is often said, buying a house is the best investment you can make, making improvements to it can be second best. Generally, you can figure on recouping between 50 and 100 percent of what you spend on wisely made home improvements when you sell your house. "Wisely made," of course, is the key to getting as much of your money back as possible.

Of all the improvements you can make, those that cut energy costs tend to pay off the best. Energy-saving home improvements will not only help you get a higher price for your house, but will help sell it faster. That will prove to be even truer in the years to come since the experts forecast higher energy prices.

Finding the money to improve your house

Finding the right kind of financing for a home improvement is as important as deciding what kind of improvement to make. After all, it will add to your debt burden. If carrying a new loan becomes too painful, it could destroy the pleasure you get from your new addition. Where you go for funds will, in large part, be determined by your current assets, how much you want to borrow, and your access to various institutions that can lend you money.
If you own a whole-life insurance policy, it may well be the cheapest source of money you can find. You can borrow against the cash value build-up of your policy at an interest rate of between 5 and 8 percent-depending on where and when you bought the policy. Moreover, all you have to repay is the interest, not the principal. Do note, however, that the insurance company will subtract the outstanding balance of your loan from the policy's face value when proceeds are distributed to your beneficiary. For example, if you have a $$ 100,000$ policy and borrow $$ 15,000$, your beneficiary would get only $$ 85,000$ when you die.

Borrowing against a passbook savings account is probably your next cheapest source of funds. Most banks will charge you an interest rate of only 3 percent or so more than your passbook account interest rate. So, if you earn $51 / 2$ percent, the bank might charge $81 / 2$ percent.

Alternatively, you can borrow "on margin" from your broker against the stocks or bonds that you own. Stock brokers will usually charge their best customers less than a bank would charge for a personal loan. Generally, brokers will let you borrow as much as 50 percent of the current value of stocks listed on an exchange, 70 percent of current value of corporate bonds, and 90 percent of the current value of Federal government bonds. One caveat: The securities, your collateral for the loan, may well be volatile. If the value of the securities you have "margined" should fall in value, you will have to ante up more money to your broker to keep the margin level even. If you don't, your broker will do it himself by selling off some of your securities to make up the difference.

Borrowing from a credit union is also a good bet, if you are a member of one. Credit unions generally charge less for home improvement loans than banks or savings and loans associations.

You might also ask a lending institution if it offers a Federal Housing Administration (FHA)-insured home improvement loan. You can borrow up to $$ 15,000$ at 12 per cent interest for up to 10 years under this program. That's the maximum set by the FHA - some banks will let you have less and for a shorter period of time. The only solution is to shop around for a lending institution that will give you the best possible break.

If you have built up substantial equity in your house and need a lot of money for a home improvement, consider taking out a second mortgage on your house. Generally, you can borrow the money for between 5 and 20 years. But before you do, make sure it's worth your while. At some banks, second mortgages cost more than first (regular) mortgages. And refinancing your present mortgage isn't a good idea: If you have had your mortgage for any time at all, you're probably paying a much lower interest rate than a bank would now charge.
Finally, if you are planning an urban homesteading-going into a city's poorer neighborhood to rehabilitate a rundown house-you may be able to get an Urban Renewal Home Improvement Loan from the Federal government. It's the cheapest money around- 3 percent interest is all you have to pay. However, this money is available only in certain areas selected by the government.

Finding new-house money

If you are considering buying a new house, here is a guide to finding mortgage money. Conventional mortgages, old standbys, are offered by commercial banks, savings and loan associations, savings banks, mortgage companies, and credit unions. However, while they are called conventional, differences abound. Some banks lend more than others. Moreover, interest rates can differ by as much as a whole percent depending where you go. And the amount you have to put down can come to as little as 5 percent-or as much as 50 percent-of the purchase price. Finally, the length of the mortgage can range between 20 and 40 years.

Those can be costly differences. For example, the difference between a $$ 50$,00030 -year mortgage at 9 percent interest and one at $91 / 2$ percent interest comes to $$ 6,519.60$. A $$ 50,000$ mortgage at 9 percent over 20 years is some $$ 77,-$ 163 cheaper than the same mortgage over 40 years. Of course, the 20 -year mortgage costs $$ 449$ a month while the 40 -year mortgage costs only $$ 385$ a month-which makes it much easier on your pocketbook. What's more, if you are in a high tax bracket, you can probably use the extra interest deductions. Finally, the extra interest costs over the life of the mortgage are meaningless if you don't plan to live in the house for the rest of your life.

An insured mortgage might be the ticket if you have a problem raising the money needed for a down payment. Commercial mortgage insurance companies as well as government agencies such as the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration offer mortgage insurance. When a mortgage is insured, less of a down payment is required, because the bank is assured of getting its money back if you default on the mortgage. Hence, the down payment, which is ordinarily used to protect the bank against this risk, can be reduced or eliminated entirely.

Commercial mortgage insurance companies, such as Mortgage Guarantee Insurance Corp., insure the down payment a bank would normally require. And that will let you buy a house with as little as 5 percent down. What's more, the insurance doesn't cost very much. Mortgage Guarantee Insurance Corp., for example, will charge you an amount equal to 1 percent of the amount being mortgaged when the deal is closed and ${ }^{1}+$ of 1 percent a year on the outstanding balance over the next 6 or 7 years. On a $$ 60,000$ mortgage, the initial fee would come to only $$ 600$.

The Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration mortgage insurance programs tend to be more restrictive. The VA, for example, will insure only up to 60 percent of a mortgage. And the interest you can be charged is set at $91 / 2$ percent. Moreover, the mortgage is subject to a VA appraisal of the house you intend to buy. In addition, there is an origination fee-call it a service charge-that amounts to 1 percent of the mortgage being taken out. And while the VA prohibits buyers from paying points-a percentage of the sales price paid at the closing-buyers usually do wind up paying. What happens is that the seller pays the points-after raising the sales price to cover them.

The FHA will insure only mortgages of up to $$ 60,000$. As with the VA, the interest rate is set at $91 / 2$ percent, and there are initial service charges-onetime fees to cover the cost of the appraisal, the recording fee, and so on. In addition, there's a $1 / 2$ of 1 percent annual charge for the FHA insurance, which brings the effective annual cost up to 20 percent. House buyers who use FHA mortgages will be required to make a down payment equaling 3 percent of the first $$ 25,000$ and 5 percent of any thing in excess.

Investigating other mortgage possibilities

Other types of Federally sponsored mortgages shouldn't be overlooked. For example, the Federal Land Bank, which is part of the Farm Credit Administration, will lend you up to 85 percent of the cost of rural property. The Federal Land Bank is an especially useful source of mortgage money for farms, although it can also be tapped for home purchases. There are 12 regional Federal Land Banks, each of which has associations in the local areas they serve. The kicker to a Federal Land Bank mortgage is that the interest rate charged tends to be quite low. At the moment, some associations are offering mortgages at only $81 / 2$ percent. Do note, however, that Federal Land Banks charge a variable interest rate. That means the interest rate you are charged will rise and fall with interest rates in general. Even so, there is a time lag and hence interest rates tend to be lower than those charged by other types of mortgages.

Alternative mortgage instruments, new types of mortgages designed for today's needs, are becoming more widely available around the country. Here's a rundown of three of the newest types of mortgages:

Graduated Payment Mortgages (GPMs) are designed for people who are finding it hard to buy a house now,

You know that cleaning the inside of the oven is the worst job in the kitchen.

At General Electric, we've known this for a long time, too. That's why in 1964 we came up with a unique solution to the problem.

In 1964, we invented the selfcleaning oven. Many are still in use.

We invented the very first self-cleaning oven. Since then, GE has produced and sold over four million of them. Which means that millions of people are now free from getting down on

The oven cleans itself their hands and knees to do the dirtiest job of them all.

How a GE self-cleaning oven does the dirty work for you.

It takes just a few seconds to set the controls on a GE self-cleaning oven, and the oven goes to work.

It cleans off splashes from casseroles, spills from soufflés, even stubborn baked-on stains that once needed endless scrubbing. Even those awkward corners and nooks and crannies are left spotless.
And you should know that the General Electric self-cleaning system gets your oven much cleaner than any continuous cleaning system. The GE self-cleaning process costs only pennies each time you use it, too.*

because their income is still fairly low. Hence, young people thinking of buying their first home will find GPMs very attractive. While the interest rate is fixed, the mortgage payments start out low and then rise in predetermined steps over the first 5 to 10 years until an agreed-upon level is reached. The idea is that your income will rise to meet the increases in mortgage payments. Over the life of the mortgage, GPMs are a b:t more expensive than a conventional mortgage. But at some point, you should be able to trade up to a better house using your equity and the house's appreciation to put a down payment on your next purchase.

Flexible Payment Mortgages (FPMs) and Flexible Loan Insurance Programs (FLIPs) are schemes designed to let people get a larger mortgage than they might otherwise be able to afford. With an FPM, for example, you might pay just the interest on the mortgage for, say, the first five years or so. After that, you would pay more to cover interest as well as principal. The disadvantages of an FPM are twofo!d. First, the interest co:ts are greater than a conve tional mortgage. Second, you don't build up any equity in the hou e for the first 5 vears or so. However, if you can use the interest deductions on your income tax or if you don't plan to live in the house long, the interest costs shouldn't be of great concern. And while you won't build up any equity in the house by amortizing (paying back the principal) the mortgage, the rising value of the house would, in effect, give you some equity to put towards your next home.

FLIPs are more innovative. Part of your down payment is put in a special escrow account. Each month, part of the money deposited in escrow is used to make up the difference between your low monthly payments and what you would ordinarily have had to pay. Since the plan is insured, it costs a little more than conventional mortgages. The insurance costs an amount equal to 1 percent of the mortgage in the first year, and $1 / 4$ of 1 percent of the outstanding balance over the next 10 years.

Variable Rate Mortgages (VRMs) tend to be easier to get when mortgage money is tight. VRMs are like conventional mortgages except that the interest rate charged will rise and fall with interest rates in general. When the interest rises, your monthly mortgage payments will rise or the length of your mortgage term will be increased.

Seller-held mortgages

If you have difficulty getting a mortgage from a lending institution, you may fall back on a purchase money mortgage. That's where the seller holds the "mortgage contract." You make the payments directly to him or her instead of to a bank. The advantage of this kind of arrangement is that it can be as flexible as you and the seller care to make it. If the seller is in good financial shape, you might even be able to buy the property for as little as 10 percent down, with only interest payable for the first 5 years or so-with the level of monthly payments geared to a 25 -year repayment schedule. That means the payments would be geared to those of a 25 -year mortgage. At the end of 10 years, or whatever term you have agreed on, the balance will be due. However, at that point, you can either rework the deal or use the equity you have built up to refinance it conventionally. Know however, that private sellers who hold purchase mortgages tend not to be as understanding as lending institutions. Unless you have a purchase money mortgage contract that grants you a grace period, you may lose everything if you miss a payment.

Finally, consider trying to arrange an installment scale. It's a bit like a purchase money mortgage. You simply put some money down and pay the rest out

"THE BEST REASON FOR BUYING A NEW GE REFRIGERATOR IS AN OLD GE REFRIGERATOR:" -The Steele Family.

Jane Steele

Verona, New Jerséy

GE refrigerators are really built to last. And my old "Monitor" is lasting proof!

Talk about a great investment! I got it in 1957, when it was 23 years old. And it still works like a charm.

Of course, it doesn't have all the improvements and innovations General Electric's added over the years. But it shows how dependable GE refrigerators are. As I told my daughter Mary Ellen, they just can't be beat!

I've spent nearly half a century depending on GE refrigerators.

We bought one of these in the mid-fifties, after giving away the faithful "Monitor" Jane has now.

What a workhorse! Soda was always cold, ice cream was hard, and it never needed any service.

So naturally when we modernized again five years ago, we went right back to GE for a big, beautiful side-by-side.

Suzanne Steele Walsh

Morristown, New Jersey

Having had GE refrigerators in the family for so long impressed me more than any brochure or sales talk.

So when we buy our new refrigerator, it won't be a question of "whether GE," but of "which GE."

And I think I know which - this gorgeous dream of a side-by-side!

It has plenty of space, important with our five children. And adjustable glass shelves, great for cleaning up spills.

Separate temperature control for the meat pan. Automatic defrosting. And the GE dispenser that gives you chilled water, ice cubes, even crushed ice. I love the 'New Naturals' ${ }^{\text {TM }}$ colors, too-so soft!

The reliability General Electric's been building into their refrigerators since Great Aunt Agnes bought hers makes me feel really confident.

Maybe some day my GE refrigerator will become a family heirloom too!

Tarragon bouchées

INGREDIENTS

1/4 cup water
$1 / 4$ cup butter
1/3 cup flour
2 whole eggs
Tarragon cream (recipe below)

METHOD

$\square$ Put water and butter in an enameled saucepan over moderate heat and bring to a boil. Pour the flour into the liquid all at once-stir constantly with a wooden spoon until the batter pulls away from the sides of the pan, and the flour is cooked. Let cool for a moment, then add the eggs, one at a time, beating well to obtain a smooth, firm batter.
$\square$ Fill a pastry bag with the still-warm batter and form mounds $11 / 2$ inches in diameter on an ungreased baking sheet. Space the mounds about 2 inches apart. Bake in a preheated $425^{\circ}$ oven $15-20$ minutes, or until the batter has puffed and is golden. Remove from oven, pierce the side of each puff, and let cool on a rack until thoroughly dry. When cool, fill with tarragon cream. Makes 20 puffs.

Tarragon cream

INGREDIENTS

Butter
4 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
1 cup fresh tarragon leaves, roughly chopped
1/4 cup white wine
Salt

METHOD

$\square$ Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a heavy saucepan. Stir in the flour and cook, stirring constantly, 3 minutes without letting the flour color. Add the milk to the roux and whisk until smooth.
$\square$ Place the chopped tarragon leaves with the wine in an enameled saucepan and bring to a boil. Let boil several minutes, long enough for the wine to absorb the tarragon flavor. Strain the liquid through a fine sieve-press down on the leaves to extract all the juice. Stir liquid and 1 teaspoon butter into warm béchamel, season to taste with salt; fill puffs with cream.

How to tune up for better mileage

A car is actually a very logical instrument, and knowing how it works and how to maintain it can help you save money in repair costs and in fuel consumption (since a well-tuned car needs less gas). Whether you're a roll-up-yoursleeves tinkerer or a back-seat driver, there's a wealth of reading matter, frequently free, and schools that will help you learn more about your car and how to fix and drive it better.

Courses in car-care basics

Most high-school adult-education programs, technical and junior colleges offer courses for neophyte mechanics. Usually, the instructors teach you how to talk intelligently to a real mechanic about what's wrong with your car as well as how to tune the engine, check fluids and components, and maintain the interior and exterior of your car. You'll also get a thorough grounding in the parts of your car and what they do. There are eight such college-sponsored courses in the Los Angeles area alone, not to mention high-school adult education. Try calling your local high school or college continuing education office.

Women On Wheels

WOW is a nationwide program sponsored by Chrysler Corporation to teach women drivers basic information about their cars. It's handled through Chrysler dealers. You don't have to own a Chrysler car to attend, though obviously, the cars you'll see during the course will all be Chrysler products. Women On Wheels lasts for four 2 -hour classes. To start, you learn about the essential systems of your car-the engine, the transmission, the rear axle-and how your car runs. The second class covers the electrical system and sometimes includes practice in changing sparkplugs, jumpstarting the battery, and similar useful things. In the third session, you learn about carburetors and brakes, and you'll get practice checking fluid levels in your car. The last class usually concentrates on regular maintenance procedures and breakdowns. You'll change a tire, learn how to drive on slippery roads. In the course Jean attended, the two instructors were extremely helpful and imaginative. For example, an emergency repair lecture included a demonstration drive in a car whose broken fan belt had been replaced by pantyhose. The looseleaf textbook for the course tells almost everything you need to know about your

Dc-it-yourself garages

For those who have a basic knowledge of car repair and maintenance, a growing trend is do-it-yourself or cooperative garages. Typically, they'll rent you clean, well-lit indoor space where you can work on your car, along with small hand tools and hydraulic lifts. The average cost is around $$ 4.50$ an hour. Some shops offer just the space and tools, others have a mechanic-inresidence to help you over the rough spots or solve major troubles that your minor skills may uncover. In the

Adivanced driving schools

Good driving is a physical skill that can be taught, just like skiing, tennis, or golf, and like anything else, once you know more about driving and your car, you'll enjoy it more and be a safer person behind the wheel. You may think you are already a good driver. One thing is certain: You could be better. If you're serious about learning to drive well, advanced driving schools can teach you to be a master behind the wheel. The bestknown of these advanced driving schools is the Bob Bondurant School of High Performance Driving, located about half-an-hour north of San Francisco. Surprising discovery: Over 40 percent of the students who attend Bondurant's advanced driving school are women.

The organization of the Bondurant course is very straightforward. The first morning is spent attending a lecture, punctuated with slides and a movie that outlines superior driving tactics. In the afternoon, you practice proper use of the steering wheel, brakes, and shifter on a closed road course. For most students, the hard part is "unlearning" bad habits. Bondurant uses a large parking lot permanently covered with heavy oil to teach skid control. At 20 mph in perfect safety, the skid pad teaches you the skills you need to control a skid at 60 mph on the highway. By the end of the afternoon, you are able to spin a car through a full 360 degrees under complete control and drive away as though nothing had happened.

The second morning of the course is spent on the "accident simulator," learning to avoid the car in front during a typical freeway tie-up. The student approaches a set of three traffic lights, all green. At the last moment, two lights go red, simulating stopped traffic, and you have to maneuver safely into the "open" lane. It's exactly the situation you face on a crowded freeway, and it teaches car control and the best place to look down the road for danger signals.

Professional schools all over the country teach similar systems. Here are some recommended from personal experience: Bob Bondurant School of High Performance Driving, Sears Pont International Raceway, Sonoma, Calif. 95476.
Mosport Racing School, 1905 Avenue Rd., Toronto, Ont., Canada M5M 3 Z 9. Skip Barber Racing School, 1000 Massachusetts Ave., Boxboro, Mass. 01719.

Car care reading

Oil companies, auto manufacturers, government agencies, and consumer groups are all ready to help you learn about your car. Many now offer booklets covering almost anything to do with your car. Here is a listing:
Shell Answer Books (15 pocket-size booklets) comprise a crash course in taking care of your car from before you buy it until you've sold it. Free from Shell dealers or from Shell Oil Co., Box 61609, Houston, Tex. 77208.
General Motors publishes two helpful books for automotive neophytes. Car Owners Digest is a straightforward booklet on understanding your car, with sections on preventive maintenance, cleaning up the interior and exterior, and "how to talk to your serviceman." It even has charts in the back to help you diagnose what's wrong with your car. The General Motors Diagnostic and Repair Manual has diagrammatic pictures to help you figure out what's wrong with your car and repair it yourself or properly describe the symptoms to a mechanic. The Car Owners Digest is $$ 1.24, G M$ Diagnostic and Repair Manual, $6.45. Both are distributed for General Motors by Creative Universal, Box 1185, Southfield, Mich. 48075.
Car Care and Service, a Federal govern-ment-produced booklet, concentrates on carburetors, emission controls, timing, and ignition-things that affect how cleanly your engine runs, and cut down on pollution. It costs $35 \phi$ from the Consumer Information Center, Department 2F, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.
To Keep Your Car Working For You, published by the Fram Corporation which makes various types of filters, is a moderately technical booklet with a working vocabulary with which to impress your mechanic. Free from Fram Corp., Providence, R.I. 02916.
Car Buying Made Easier. The first section of this hefty book-a free publication by Ford Motor Company-discusses every aspect of buying a new car in detail-the sizes of cars available, the advantages and disadvantages of each size, the types of body styles, even a table for calculating the best size and type of car for you. Every option-engine, transmission, rear axle ratios, power accessories, fabric choices, instruments, and tires-is covered in detail. Car Buying Made Easier is one of the few publications that helps you honestly evaluate just what you need on your new car. Other sections include advice on picking a dealer, test driving, financing and leasing, how to interpret EPA mileage figures, even how to dispose of your old car. The second section is a run-down in minute detail of every Ford, Mercury, and Lincoln model, complete with prices and options. If youre undecided about a new car, Car Buying Made Easier is a useful tool. A vailable from Ford dealers, or from Ford Motor (o., The American Road, Dearborn, Mich. 48121 .

Photovoltaics: The new sun power that may run your house in the 80s

Picture about half a rooftop covered with what look like glistening Salton heating trays. When the sunlight hits them, it turns immediately into electricity that flows into the house and powers all the lights and appliances-for free. Sound like the wistful fantasy of a consumer opening the monthly utility bill? It isn't; you could purchase the equipment today. The government hopes that by 1986 a system for an average-sized house will cost $$ 3,400$ and last 20 years.

Photovoltaics is the name of this marvel in modern technology. It's the direct creation of electricity (volts) from light (photons) and a major step forward from the solar collectors widely used now that produce heat to warm air or water. The state of the art has come a long way since the 30 s when the better camera companies began using photovoltaics to power camera light meters.

> Already a remote village in Arizona is geared up with photovoltaic energy, a technology that could affect your electric bills sooner than you think

That success inspired NASA to outfit all its spacecraft with photovoltaics during the 50 s , and today, photovoltaics are working their magic all over the world.
Take for example, Schuchuli, Arizona, the U.S.A.'s first solar electric village. Before last December, the 62 Papago Indians living there had no electricity. The town is remote, and the costs of building power lines to the nearest utility grid were prohibitive. Understanding this, the Department of Energy invested $$ 333,400$ in a photovoltaic system. Now, Schuchuli residents have 40 electric lights distributed among their homes and community buildings, one large water pump that brings up to 5,000 gallons of water a day; 15 refrigerators (one for each family), a sewing machine, and a brand-new washing machine.

The electricity is generated from the edge of the village where a chain-link fence encircles an area about the size of a small suburban backyard. Inside the fence, mounted on the ground, are three rows of long and narrow shiny panels tilted toward the sun. To the side of the fence is a small building that houses batteries. They store the sun's electricity for nights and cloudy days. Federal officials have hailed the project as a breakthrough for solar energy, and a sign of hope for other Americans living in remote locations. Robert D. Thorne, Assistant Secretary of Energy, commented on the day of the photovoltaic system's dedication that there are 400 more villages in the United States that have no electricity.

Photovoltaics are being used-or pro-posed-in other parts of the country for equally interesting purposes. For instance, a Department of Energy-sponsored project is driving the irrigation system for an 80-acre farm in Mead, Nebraska, and by 1981, a General Electric system will supply half of Florida Sea World's electricity. The photovoltaics will also heat water for the aquatic exhibits.

Meanwhile, in West African villages, photovoltaics make electricity for pumping systems and educational television; in the Gulf of Mexico, they power navigational lights and foghorns; and in the Mojave Desert, high patrol repeater stations. Radio and TV repeater stations are the largest photovoltaic customers the world over, and requests for the products are increasing. About 3 U.S. companies are filling most of the orders
-Solar Power Corp. of Woburn, Mass., ARCO Solar of Chatsworth, Calif., and SOLAREX Corp. of Rockville, Md., but altogether about 10 firms are selling photovoltaic products.

Looking closely at a photovoltaic system, you'd see that the flat surface that collects sunlight consists of separate panels. Each panel looks like a shiny piece of metal enclosed in a picture frame. (It can vary in size from a fulllength mirror to a king-size bed.) Actually, the surface inside the frame is many paper-thin, usually circular disks about the size of tea saucers, placed side by side on an aluminum mounting. The disks are called photovoltaic cells, and they are the basic building blocks of any photovoltaic system. On top of the cells are wires that will carry off the electricity each cell generates when placed in the sun.

Unfortunately, making a photovoltaic cell is an intricate affair that demands personal attention at each step. They can be made from a number of materials, but usually the choice is silicon. There are several ways to produce the cells; the traditional approach involves melting high-quality (therefore expensive) silicon in a laboratory furnace under sterile conditions. After this, a crystal is grown from the liquid. (When complete, the crystal, called an ingot, looks like a large, arm-length sausage.) This ingot must be cut into thin disks with a diamond saw, a delicate process that turns more than 60 percent of the crystal into sawdust.

The successful cells are then polished further processed, and hermetically sealed into panels. The total process takes about 15 steps. In an effort to cut costs, scientists are trying to eliminate steps, automate the total production process, find different ways of growing crystals, and even make cells without crystals at all-but these advances are in the experimental stage. The process of fabricating photovoltaic cells remains a handcraft-and a costly-job. Should you buy equipment to power an average sized house's lights and appliances today it would cost you about $$ 60,000$.

But don't be discouraged. The Department of Energy, an enthusiastic photovoltaic fan, has invested more than $$ 210$ million so far to help the scientists develop low-cost production methods. A number of the oil companies-Exxon Atlantic Richfield, Shell, and Mobi among them-are also heavily investing in photovoltaic research. In fact, thess companies already own at least twothirds of the photovoltaic firms currently selling equipment.

There is little argument that photovoltaics should be used, but there is a controversy about how they should be used. Some technologists believe that miles of photovoltaic panels should be centrally located to create electricity for entire communities. Some advocate a project the government will pay NASA more than $$ 15$ million dollars to research over the next 3 years. It involves launching enormous satellites into outer space to convert sunlight into electricity, then beam it to earth in the form of microwave radiation. The photovoltaic panels and receiving stations might be large enough to bring power to areas the size of the entire East Coast. Most alternative technologists and environmentalists prefer to put our rooftops to work. They believe this will help each household become more self-reliant, stop the prolifer ation of bureaucratic middlemen neces sary to distribute power, and halt the inevitable losses of electricity as it travel: the long distance from station to home

Whichever way the controversy is re solved, you are sure to see photovoltair systems around you soon. Photovoltaic experts believe that in 3 or 4 years, wher prices will have dropped a great deal photovoltaic panels will begin appearing on shopping centers, highways, anc large-scale commercial farms. During that period, the government will be help. ing the photovoltaic industry build a big. ger market, produce more equipment and distribute it better. This will be in preparation for what the Department of Energy hopes will be a large demand in the late 80 s , when photovoltaics will al most certainly be inexpensive enough for home use.

Movies on record

The videodisc is big news in electronics today. In its simplest terms, a videodisc is a record that reproduces color moving pictures, as well as sound, through a television set by means of a special player attachment. Several manufacturers have been developing home videodisc systems since the 1960 s and the first one now on the market (developed by Magnavox) is generally known as the "optical" system or VLP (for video long play). It consists of two parts. One is the Magnavision videodisc player, a sleek, space-age-looking unit of brushed aluminum somewhat larger than a conventional audio turntable. Installation is simpleit's merely connected to the antenna terminals of any TV set and the leads from the antenna are connected to the player, so that the television can be used in the conventional way when the disc player is switched off.

The player is used with DiscoVision records that look like standard 12 -inch LPs except that they're shimmering silver. When the record is placed on the turntable, the lid closed, the "start" button pressed, a picture of exceptional quality appears on the TV screen. The optical videodisc player is a landmark in more ways than one: It's the first consumer product to con-
 attached to any TV set through the antenna system.
laser. There are no grooves in the shiny disc and no stylus in the pickup. A lowpowered beam of laser light is aimed at the disc and its reflections are reconstructed into TV pictures. Because there's no contact between pickup and record, theoretically the disc should never wear out

The player sells at a suggested list price of $695. See-and-hear DiscoVision albums by MCA retail for $$ 5.95, $ 9.95$, and $$ 15.95$, with a few special opera and Cousteau's underwater adventures, Britain's World at War series, golf lessons with Gene Littler, other sports and physical fitness instructions, even religious programs. These shows generally sell for $$ 5.95$ for a half-hour and $$ 9.95$ for an hour program.

The VLP system can do more than just play a picture from a record. It can store two sound tracks, and the player can be connected to a stereo hi-fi system for dual-channel sound along with the picture-a must for operas, symphonies, or rock concerts. Or the tracks can be in two different languages; for educational programs, there can be explantations at two different levels of learning.

Magnavision turntables can operate at two different speeds. One is extended play-"EP"-and is designed for movie discs which play up to 1 hour per side, a full 2 -hour movie on one 12 -inch record. The other is normal speed-for records with up to 30 minutes of programming per side operating at 1,800 revolutions per minute or 54,000 per half hour. That's synchronous with American television's frame rate. Because of this synchronism, the system is capable of producing all kinds of special effects you can't achieve on your TV. It can hold any given picture (or "frame") stockstill on the screen as long as you wish, just by tracing the same track on the disc over and over again. Discs programmed with 54,000 individual frames on one side (all of the world's great art masterpieces for example) are being planned. The player has a button for frame-byframe advance for viewing still pictures. Other controls permit you to speed up or slow down the action, or run the program backwards at any speed. Another button superimposes numbers on the screen- 1 to 54,000 for each frame so that any individual frame may be precisely located. An "index" control automatically locates the start of individual programs on discs which have more than one program or "chapter."

New videodisc systems

Early next year, the Magnavision VLP system is scheduled to be joined on the American marketplace by others. One of them, the Japanese-made Pioneer unit, will be compatible with Magnavisionthat is, it will play the same MCA optical discs. And some time late next year, RCA is expected to introduce to the market a different system which it calls "SelectaVision VideoDisc." Unlike the optical VLP system, the RCA disc has grooves and a stylus which fits in them, similar to audio records. It can play up to one hour per side. RCA says its player will sell for less than $$ 400$ and its discs can be manufactured on slightly modified audio record-pressing equipment and therefore will be easier to make than the optical kind.

While the RCA system won't have the stop and slow-motion features of the

Step $]$ Cut wood to size as follows:

- 2 pieces $311 / 2$ inches long for top shelf supports
- 4 pieces 30 inches long for verticals
- 8 pieces $251 / 2$ inches long for 6 middle shelf slats and 2 bottom shelf supports
- 17 pieces $191 / 4$ inches long for 10 top shelf slats and 7 bottom shelf slats
- 12 pieces $173 / 4$ inches long for side braces for all three shelves

Step Sand wood

Wrap paper around wood block or use power sander. Start with medium grain paper to remove splinters and ridges. Then use fine grain paper until wood is smooth. Run block over edges 3 or 4 times to smooth.
 Attach shelf braces to verticals - Start $211 / 2$-inch nails into each end of all $12173 / 4$-inch shelf braces, $1 / 2$ inch in from the ends.

- Take the 430 -inch-long verticals and mark a line across the narrow edge of each, $161 / 4$ inches from one end. (The 1 -inch edge of the 1-by-3 will be about inches. Turn pieces over and mark the other narrow edge, $16^{1 / 4}$ inches from the same end.
Stand 2 of the 30 -inch-long verticals on the $3 / 4$-inch edge parallel on the work surface, $173 / 4$ inches apart.
- Spread glue on the ends of each vertical and nail the 2 shelf braces as shown

- Glue and nail one more shelf brace at the $161 / 4$-inch mark on the verticals. Make sure the top edge of the brace is even with the mark.
- Turn the unit over and nail 3 more side shelf braces directly over the first

- Repeat the above procedures to make a second identical vertical ladder unit.

4 Attaching shelf supports to vertical ladder units.

-Start $511 / 4$-inch nails into each end of $2251 / 2$-inch-long pieces for the 2 bottom shelf supports. Two of the nails should be $11 / 4$ inches in from the end, 2 nails should be $23 / 4$ inches from the end, and one more should be centered between these 4, as shown.

-Start 5 nails into one end of each of the $2311 / 2$-inch-long top shelf supports as above. On the other end, start 5 nails, 2 that are $71 / 4$ inches from the end, 2 that are $83 / 4$ inches from the end, and a 5 th that is centered between the other 4 . - Place the 2 vertical ladder units on edge, so that the outer edges are $251 / 2$ inches apart, and they are parallel on the work surface.

- Glue and nail the $251 / 2$-inch bottom shelf support at the lower end of the verticals as shown. Then glue and nail the top shelf support into place.

- Turn the unit over and glue and nail the corresponding bottom and top shelf supports on the other side. Make sure the handle ends of the top shelf support protrude on the same side.

Step Attaching the shelf slats

- Start $211 / 2$-inch nails into each end of the remaining 23 pieces ( $6251 / 2$-inch pieces for middle shelf slats, 17 191/4inch pieces for 10 top and 7 bottom shelf slats). The nails should be $1 / 2$ inch in from the ends.
-To make sure the bottom shelf slats are evenly spaced, first glue and nail the 2 end slats next to each vertical ladder unit. Then space the other 5 slats between them and mark their positions with a pencil. One by one, glue and nail the slats into place.
- Use the same procedure-nailing the end slats and spacing the other slats in between-to glue and nail the 6 middle shelf slats. (Note: these slats run perpendicular to those on the bottom shelf.)
- Glue and nail the 10 top shelf slats (which run in the same direction as the bottom slats), starting at the opposite end from the protruding handles and leaving a $1 / 4$-inch space between each.

Step Attaching the casters

- Drill $43 / 8$-inch holes at least $15 / 8$-inch deep into the center of each corner vertical on the bottom of the cart.

- Insert casters and turn upright. Allow 24 hours for glue to dry.

Airline trips

Starting the end of May, Air France is offering one-class, budget-fare flights between New York and Paris. Air France is the first scheduled airline to offer this sort of service to Europe. From New York: a 500 -seat, one-class 747 leaves for Paris on Monday, Friday, and Saturday. Requirements: Stay 14-60 days. Buy your ticket at the same time you reserve. (You can either buy a ticket months ahead or on the day you want to leave, if there's still a seat available.) No return-reservation changes can be made once you start your trip. Cancellations cost $50. The "Vacances" program is available through travel agents everywhere, but in New York you can go to the Air France office, 888 Seventh Avenue, 9 th floor, to buy tickets, or call 212-489-7373.

The nearness of Canada is appealing to Americans who would like a real vacation without going too far. Air Canada flies from ten American cities-nonstop -to Toronto, also from our Midwest cities to the Canadian West. For tours

THIS FAMIIY OF VOLVO OWNERS HAS ONE MILLION MILES ONIT.

Some years ago, Barry Vandenberg, an insurance agent from Oxnard, California, decided on some life insurance for his family.

He wanted his whole family to drive Volvos, because he felt Volvos were the safest cars on the road.

Sure enough, as the Vandenberg children reached driving age, the Volvo population exploded. Today the Vandenbergs own seven Volvos, with a total of one million miles on them.
"These Volvos are still running beautifully, even after all those hard miles," says Mr. Vandenberg. "More importantly, Volvo's safety features help me sleep better at night. My kids are too old to coddle. But they'll never be too old to protect."

Statistics show that 9 out of 10 people who have bought new Volvos are happy, especially with Volvo's safety features.

Building roomy, dependable, safer family cars has always been a Volvo tradition.

It's nice to see that for some families, buying them is a tradition, too.

KEGP THESE INTERNATIONAL DIALNG CODES

DIALDIRECT-Dial 011 + Country Code + Ciry Code + Local Number
ALMOST DIRECT-Dial $O$ and tell the Operator the country, city and local number

HOW TO TALK TURKEY TO TOKYO

DIAL DIRECT

If you have International Dialing, the world is only a chopstick away, because you can call anywhere, all by yourself. Here's Tokyo. Just dial:

INTERNATIONAL ACCESS CODE COUNTRYCODE CITYCODE

011+81+3+\text { LOCAL NUMBER }

There's money in if for you, too. A saving of $$ 1.20$, which is more than $13 \%$ on a 3-minute call to Tokyo.

ALMOST DIRECT

Until your area has International Dialing, here's the way to make a fast overseas call. Dial O, and be ready to tell the Operator the country, city and local phone number you want and whether your call is Station or Person. The less time you spend on your end of the call, the faster you get to the other. And you leave the Operator free to handle more calls, more quickly. And on Station calls not requiring special operator assistance, you can get the same low rates as International Dialing.
P.S. Everyone can dial direct to Canada, the Caribbean, Alaska, Hawaii, and parts of Mexico-just as you dial direct to cities inside the continental U.S.

Selling sushi or saying sayonara, keep a record of the country and city codes and the phone numbers, and use them to call the world-fast.

In Bermuda: The fun, the freedom of renting a house

BY PENELOPE W. LINCK

You can fly to Bermuda in less time than it takes a large chicken to defrost. You take the chicken because you have rented a house for a week (or longer), and the chicken will be tonight's dinner.

Everyone knows about Bermuda's coral reefs, white sand, aquamarine water, its blankets of tropical flowers. But Bermuda is also a wonderful place to have fun. A frequent refrain-this one overheard in the lobby of the Southampton Princess-"We went for a ride in a glass-bottomed boat; we went skin diving, and we've been snorkeling. We're having an absolute blast!"

Renting provides an ideal way to take advantage of all the island has to offeryou can revel in the casual life that having your own house provides, and you can also make use of the facilities of the big resorts such as the Southampton Princess or the Coral Beach Club simply by telephoning ahead. A call for reservation lets you play tennis (for a nominal fee) on the Princess's beautiful allweather courts next to its particularly attractive beach. It's horseshoe-shaped with a beach club perched on the rocks above it. The most popular beach food seems to be hamburgers and French fries, and very good, too. Since Bermuda's an island, the Princess flies in food for its several restaurants from such scattered places as California (for strawberries), and Kenya (asparagus) to go with the local rockfish.

Golfers should telephone for starting times at any of several public courses as well as the resort courses. A little scouting around at home before you leave will usually produce an invitation to one of the private clubs through the well-known network of golf club pros. (You may have to walk the course, however.)

National Smoker Study:

Merite Science Works!

Low tar MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco delivers taste equal to-or better than-leading high tar brands.

The 'Enriched Flavor' science of low tar MERIT, 12 years in the making, isolates and fortifies flavor components of smoke for a taste way out of proportion to tar. Can that taste satisfy the toughest critics of low tar smoking -current smokers of high tar cigarettes?

Read the results from a detailed, nationwide research effort involving simokers who taste-tested MERIT against leading high tar brands Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to-or better than-leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT

Swimming and snorkeling are other popular pursuits on the island. Small, opalescent fish frolic in water only ankle deep. Further out, you will see fish colored neon green and electric blue (the best places are around rocks and over the reefs) and vertically striped yellow and black fish (we always called them sergeant majors) so curious you will find them tickling your toes. Bring or rent a rubber raft if you're a cautious swimmer-then float on it or hang onto it with one hand while snorkeling. Always swim in pairs or groups. It is more fun to point out the fish to each other and it is also safer. Concentric rings of reefs keep out the really big fish. There are public beaches all over the island. For a list of the ones nearest to where you're staying, write The Bermuda Department of Tourism, 630 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10020

After the chicken's gone, then what? A trip to the big, modern Piggly Wiggly supermarket. The close ties Bermuda has with England gives the supermarket a complexion unfamiliar to Americansto us it looks like a gourmet shop with aisles full of English jams, honeys, biscuits, English country butter, real Devon cream, English unpasteurized apple juice -and for less than similar products would cost at home. We baked our own bread from English stone-ground wholewheat flours. Fruits come from California, tiny incredibly sweet pineapples from the Caribbean-try to find them at the roadside stands; they are delicious. Watercress is bountiful and inexpensive. The rarity is fresh meat-so bring a roast as well as a chicken, and then depend on the local fishermen. The local rockfish are wonderful as are the not-sopretty hogfish. If not sold immediately, the fish are frozen. But even defrosted, the fish will taste fresh and you may learn for the first time what a "clear eye" as a test for freshness looks like!

And then, you must go out at least once. There are several restaurants to choose from and the one with the widest reputation is the Fourways Inn in Paget. If you arrive early enough, you can tour the dining rooms and choose your table. At lunch you can choose the outdoor patio replete with flowers and fountains. Rockfish comes three ways here-pan fried with a butter sauce; poached with a sauce of white wine, crabmeat, and mushrooms; or simply charcoal broiled. Duck for two, crisp and moist, is flamed with Grand Marnier at tableside. Try the cold lemon mousse or the hot strawberry soufflé for dessert. Service is attentive.

How to get around? Again, this can be settled ahead (or on arrival) by calling an agency that rents mopeds. They will deliver the desired number shortly after you are scheduled to arrive. Only Bermuda residents may drive cars, so call taxis for longer excursions and supermarket jaunts, or take one of the local buses up and down the Middle Road (they come often and cost little). After a brief get-acquainted lesson with your moped (helmets and locks are provided by the agency), most people become dedicated riders of the little machines and explore every nook and cranny of the island on them. A word of cautionthe roads are narrow, often walled on both sides and windy-be careful! Mopeds rent for about $$ 35$ a week.

Rentals- 2 bedrooms, $$ 750-$ 1,200$ / month. Maid service- $$ 3 /$ hour and can be arranged through the real-estate agent.

Bermuda has many reliable real-estate agencies, some of which specialize in rentals. Three of the largest are: DeCouto & Dunstan Real Estate, Box 933, Hamilton 5, Bermuda-(809) 2920616; L.P. Gutteridge Ltd., Box 1024, Hamilton 5, Bermuda-(809) 2954545; Rego Ltd., Box 169, Hamilton 5, Bermuda (809) 292-3921. For a complete list of agencies, write the Bermuda Department of Tourism, 630 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10020, (212) 246-6053.

Cold poached chicken

INGREDIENTS

2 stalks celery with leaves
2-3 sprigs parsley
1 bay leaf
$1 / 4$ teaspoon dried thyme or small sprig fresh
2 23/4-3-pound chickens
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

METHOD

$\square$ Place $11 / 2$ cups cold water, celery, parsley, bay leaf, thyme in pot that holds chickens snugly. Set over medium heat. $\square$ Wash and pat the chickens dry, then rub the cavities with salt and pepper mixed together. Truss the chickens and place neatly in the pot. Cover tightly and simmer slowly-do not let the liquid reach a boil. Cook 1 hour or until tender. Halfway through the cooking time, turn the chickens breast down to make sure they cook evenly. Remove from heat and let cool in the stock. Lift chickens out of the stock, drain, place on a platter. Cover with wax paper. It is better not to refrigerate poached chickens as this tends to harden them-cook them early the day you plan to serve them or, if the weather is very cold, leave them overnight. Before serving, remove outer skin; cut as desired.

Blanched baby okra with vinaigrette dressing

INGREDIENTS

1 pound baby okra, well washed and drained (do not trim the ends)
1/3 cup cider vinegar
$1 / 4$ cup olive oil
1/2 teaspoon sea salt
$1 / 4$ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper 1 tablespoon parsley, finely chopped 2 teaspoons onion, freshly grated

METHOD

$\square$ Fill a 2-quart saucepan with cold water and bring to a boil. Plunge the okra into the water, a few at a time, so that water continues to boil. Stir okra to make sure all pods are immersed. Cook only $2-2 \frac{1}{2}$ minutes. Drain, and immediately plunge the okra into ice water for a minute. Dip pods out and place on a towel to drain.
$\square$ Combine the vinegar, oil, salt, pepper, parsley, and onion in a bottle, cork, and shake well. Place the okra in a dish, pour the vinaigrette over, and let marinate 20 minutes, tossing occasionally. Drain and serve, or refrigerate if you wish. Serves 4.

Long after Mothers' Day, she'll remember the flowers you sent.

She's a sentimental lady who collects warm memories. And anything that reminds her of you.

That's why you should send her the "Bunch-of-Love." It's a bouquet of flowers plus something special to hold onto. After the flowers are gone,your mother can use this ceramic keepsake as a soup mug, a cachepot or even a candle holder. It comes in a variety of colors and floral designs. While you're at it, why not send some love to any other special ladies who have been like a mother to you. Just call a Teleflorist in your neighborhood and ask for the "Bunch-of-Love." They're generally available for $$ 15$, plus service charges.

Only participating Teleflorists can send your Mother's Day flowers so unforgettably.

Shrimp en brochette

INGREDIENTS

1 cup dry vermouth or white wine
2 slices onion
1 slice lemon
1 sprig parsley
$1 / 4$ teaspoon thyme
2 pounds jumbo shrimp
1 eggplant, coarsely diced
2 bell peppers, cored and cut into squares
2 ears fresh corn, cut into 1 -inch pieces
1 box plum tomatoes (if small, leave whole)
3 pounds mushrooms
1 cup sesame seed or olive oil
2 tablespoons lime juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 clove garlic, minced
Spicy cocktail sauce (recipe below)

METHOD

$\square$ Combine 2 cups cold water, vermouth or wine, onion slices, lemon slice, parsley, and thyme in a large kettle. Add shrimp and bring to a near boil. Remove from heat and leave shrimp to cool in the bouillon. Shell and devein the shrimp. Thread onto skewers with the vegetables.
$\square$ Make 2 bars from aluminum foil on which to rest the skewers. Mix sesame seed or olive oil, lime and lemon juices, garlic in a bowl and paint shrimp and vegetables well with the mixture. Rest skewer ends on foil bars; place broiling pan 4-5 inches from preheated broiler flame. Broil $2^{1 / 2}-3$ minutes on each side, basting frequently with marinade-the mushrooms absorb a lot of oil. Serve with spicy cocktail sauce. Serves 4-6.

Spicy cocktail sauce

INGREDIENTS

1 cup catsup
8 tablespoons sherry
4 tablespoons lemon juice
8-9 drops Tabasco
3 teaspoons fresh snipped chives
1/4 teaspoon salt

METHOD

$\square$ Mix all ingredients in a bowl. Serve at room temperature. Makes $11 / 2$ cups.

Watermelon with plums and raspberry sauce

INGREDIENTS

1 small watermelon
1 pound red plums, quartered
1 pint raspberries
Sugar (optional)
1 tablespoon framboise, or to taste

METHOD

Cut the watermelon in half lengthwise, then cut into quarters. Remove as many seeds as possible. Arrange the melon slices and plums on individual plates.
$\square$ Purée the raspberries in a blender or food processor, sweeten to taste, and stir in the framboise. Spoon a bit of sauce over the melon and plums on each plate, then pass the rest. Serves 4-6.
$\square$ Note: If you use frozen raspberries, thaw them well, drain off some of the syrup, and stir in the framboise.

Frozen vanilla yogurt

INGREDIENTS

1 cup yogurt

1 quart raw milk or use half-and-half
1 cup cottage cheese
1/2 cup sugar, or to taste
1 tablespoon vanilla
Vegetable oil
Tangerine sections for garnish

METHOD

$\square$ Mix together the yogurt and milk in a bowl and set in a warm place for 1 day. A spot over the pilot light is ideal. The mixture will become solid.
$\square$ Place the cottage cheese, a spoonful at a time, in a blender with some of the yogurt-milk and blend until smooth. Continue until all the cottage cheese has been used and the mixture is smooth. Add the sugar and the rest of the yogurt, and blend in the vanilla.

INGENIOUS WAYS TO MAKE YOUR LIFE

 EASIER HAPPY HOUSE CLEANING
Doing things the easy way

Cleaning is easier if you do it when you think of it-so be sure the gear is at hand. Keep cleansers and cleaning equipment in the kitchen, laundry room, and each bathroom. Keep a dustcloth in every room, too-in the time it takes to go get one, you can have half the furniture dusted.
You can teach your vacuum cleaner to do a lot by using the proper attachments. But there's no way you can teach it to climb stairs. The best time-saving investment: an easy-to-carry electric broom or two vacuum cleaners, one for upstairs, one for down.
Clean from the top down: Dust the lampshade before the lamp, do floors last. The exception: Walls should be washed from the bottom. Dirty drips are easier to wipe off clean walls. And when dusting, don't forget the light bulbs-you can increase your energy savings by 25 percent.

Some clutter keeps reappearing in the same spot no matter how often you clean up. Take a cue from these clues. Add a rack on the spot for newspapers and magazines, put a mail basket on the wall, and move the hamper where the socks usually fall.
The best time to clean the shower is on your way out. If you keep your cleaner and a long-handled sponge handy, you can wipe it clean in a flash. News from the bath: Using bath oil when you soak or adding a tablespoon or two of liquid detergent will stop a ring from forming in the tub.

Wall-to-wall cleaning

The key to spot-cleaning carpets is lightning action-and patience. Blot up the spill instantly with paper towels, then blot with a sponge dipped in a tablespoon of liquid detergent diluted in a pint of water. Blot, don't rub, for rubbing will frizz the nap. Blot dry with paper towels. Repeat until spot is gone.

Fur rugs can be whisked clean with a broom or a stiff brush. A sheepskin rug can be shampooed with spray-on dry shampoo. Or rub cornstarch into the fur, and brush clean. You can use the same technique for sheepskin coats.

Slate and quarry tile shouldn't be cleaned with soap and water-the results are slippery. Just mopping with water should do most jobs, but for stronger measures, home economist Doris Eriksen suggests washing soda or a mild detergent. Hint: If tile is not sealed, a clear, penetrating sealer makes it easier to clean.

When you rearrange furniture and your wood floor still marks the spot, dip fine steel wool (Triple "O") into wax and rub until spot is gone, and use mineral oil as a finishing touch. To level furniture indentations in a carpet, turn on a steam iron and hold it a few inches above the spot. Brush nap up with stiff brush. You may have to repeat.

Furniture finesse

Camouflage strategies for scratches and nicks in wood furniture: Use children's crayons, shoe polish, or commercial wax sticks-whatever matches best. If you can't find the right color, you can create one by melting two or three crayons or wax sticks together. To make your own natural coloring agent, clean the spot with a little mineral oil, then rub with the meat of a sliced walnut, Brazil nut, or butternut. The oils will fill in and recolor the spot.

To prevent wicker from drying out, give it a light shower once a year by sprinkling with garden hose or watering can.

To remove white rings or spots left by glasses on wood furniture, dab a mineral oildipped cloth in a few cigarette ashes and rub spot gently. Wipe clean, then polish

Super cleaners on the shelf

Take a look in your cupboard -what appear to be mildmannered household products are ready to transform themselves into super cleaners. Here are some of the best we've heard of:

White vinegar applied with newspaper (the chemicals in the newsprint are part of the secret) will clean windows with nary a streak-and never have to be dried. People who have used this technique have reported that their windows have never been shinier-not to mention their glass tabletops and pictures.

Copper pots shine right up when scoured with a paste of vinegar and salt. Vinegar on a sponge shines brass.

The best-tasting coffee comes from a clean pot. To rout out mineral and coffee deposits, run equal parts of vinegar and water through the drip of perk cycle. Rinse by running through with clean water only.

Vinegar cuts through soap film, so adding it to the rinse cycle of your dishwasher will make glass and china sparkle. A few tablespoons added to hand wash or $1 / 2$ cup in the washing machine will make sure the rinse does its work.

The airline stewardesses' secret remedy for spills is club soda. It will lift a stain out of clothing and even lift old stains out of carpet. Stock up on club soda if you have a new puppy-it's great for training mishaps. To clean sisal or straw rugs, give them a drink of club soda. Sponge on, then pat with dry cloth.

How to stop odors in their tracks? Tuck a dish of vinegar on top of a bookcase or in another out-of-sight spot and it will attack odors while the party is in progress.

Baking soda can clean up a storm. It's a wonderful nonscratch scrubbing powder. Use it whenever an abrasive cleanser would be too strong -on porcelain, marble, stainless steel, enamel, even glass.

BARBARA FIORE

Kitchen care

When washing lettuce, add a splash of white vinegar to clean off pesticides.
Rubbing a cut lemon over butcherblock and then rinsing will lighten any dark areaseven on plastic-laminate butcherblock. To give butcherblock and chopping boards a good cleaning, sponge on $3 / 4$ cup chlorine bleach added to a gallon of water. Let soak into the wood, then rinse and rub with mineral oil and steel wool to restore a rich luster to the wood.
Stains on coffee cups and porcelain sinks and tubs will wipe clean with a dilute solution of chlorine bleach.
Shine up aluminum pots by boiling a potful of water to which you've added a teaspoon of cream of tartar.

House Fixer at the scene of the grime

Deanne Raffel, H&G's House Fixer columnist, tells how to mix on-hand ingredients for 3 super cleaning jobs:

Equal parts of baking soda and vinegar down the drain will unclog even the most stubborn drain. The two produce a powerful cleaning reaction-and fumes-so be sure to replace the drain cover for safety.
A baking-soda brew that will clean nonstick cookware and even get out stains is: 2 tablespoons baking soda, $1 / 2$ cup chlorine bleach, 1 cup of water. Mix up enough to fill pot an inch below top, then simmer for a few minutes. Wash with soap, rinse, dry, and then wipe with cooking oil (helps restore nonstick action of finish) before using the cookware again.

For one of the best cleaners around, use the Vinegar Institute's recipe for $1 / 2$ cup vinegar, 1 cup ammonia, $1 / 4$ cup baking soda mixed in 1 gallon hot water. The mixture cuts the grease, cleans walls, floors and woodwork, and does a great job in the bathroom. To finish wipe off with clear water afterwards.

Clever cleaners

What to use to clean tight spots: An old toothbrush will get at grout between bathroom tiles and in tricky crevices when you polish carved woodwork. A toothpick will attack crumbs in cracks and a mesh-and-sponge pad is wonderful for getting around stainless steel and laminate corners-it's soft, flexible, and won't scratch.

Silver on display in a cabinet will stay shinier if you tuck a little camphor in the corners.
To remove wax caught in the corners of a cut glass or intricate silver candlestick, put the candlestick in the freezer. The wax will become hard and brittle and flake out easily. Or try the reverse tactic: Melt by running under very hot tap water. To remove a wax spot on a carpet or tablecloth, cover with a blotter or several layers of paper towels and melt with a warm iron. The toweling will absorb the melted wax.
How to clean up your stereo sound? Start with your records. Wipe with a soapy cloth rung dry to remove dust and finger oils. Follow up with a clean, damp cloth and let stand in a dish rack to dry.

Ink stains from price tags and newsprint will come off plastic laminate countertops with a little furniture polish-its just abrasive enough to rub out spots without affecting the original finish.
Talcum powder blots up grease stains-just cover the spot amply, let dry, and then brush the spot clean.

Scrub-a-pup

A pet in the tub will be a lot happier if you put a rubber mat on the bottom to give him a secure footing-claws sliding on a slippery tub make animals nervous! Be sure to put steel wool or a hair catcher over the drain to keep it from clogging.
Bath beauty tips for dogs: Two tablespoons of baking soda in the bath and rinse water will leave dogs' coats extra soft and shiny. For easy combing, add a little cream rinse to the water-even poodle fur will untangle with ease. Never bathe a dog before asking your veterinarian how often it's safe to do so.

Shopping tips for mortgage hunters

1. Finding the lendiny institutions tha offer the best mortgages is the key. As local real-estate brokers as well as receı house buyers where they got their mor gages.
2. Look for a sale. What you're buyin in a mortgage is simply money. An that's like any other commoditysometimes goes on "sale." For exampl if a new bank or bank branch opens $u$ it may well offer mortgages at very a tractive rates to drum up business.
3. Try to find a mortgage that won penalize you if you prepay it after, sa 3 to 5 years. If you can't prepay th mortgage without penalty until 5 or 1 years pass, you will, in effect, be locke into the deal, and you won't be able refinance the mortgage at better tern when interest rates fall.
4. Boost your chances of getting a goo mortgage by making it as easy as po sible for the bankers to see. Prepare strong financial statement on yourse and your spouse. Lay out your incom (joint, if your spouse works), list you assets and what they total, and accour for your liabilities. The idea is to proy that you know what you are doing an that you are a good credit risk who ca easily afford to pay off the mortgas you're asking.
5. Shop for the lowest interest rate yc can get. While a difference of $1 / 2$ of percent may not seem like much, it ca add up to thousands of dollars over th course of the mortgage's life.
6. Also shoot for the lowest down pa ment you can possibly get. After all, wr tie up money in your house when could be working for you elsewhere? small down payment may mean a slight higher interest rate, but keep in mir that the interest on a mortgage is t. deductible.
7. The longer the mortgage, the be ter. While long mortgages cost more total interest costs than do shorter mor gages, chances are that you will not li in the house for the full length of tt agreement, so the higher costs will ni really affect you. Moreover, long mor gages have lower monthly payments tha do short ones. The difference in mor gage payments could be invested profi ably. Dollars you repay down the roa will be cheaper, thanks to inflation.

A cooktop that never gets hot and other household miracles

> If you are planning a new kitchen or are updating one, here's a roundup of the latest equipment you can buy cooking is a smooth, 4-spot cooktop called "Magnawave."

Panasonic's "The Surface" is portable and can be toted to the patio, terrace, and your kitchen where it sits on top of the counter. Rectangular in shape, controls are at the front. You can use the entire surface for cooking, a 10 -inch skillet is the largest size suggested.

Magnetic induction ranges with electrical self-cleaning ovens, as well as cooktops, will soon be available from Roper, which is presently field-testing. Their distribution is expected after June.

Convection cooking: It's all hot air!

Convection ovens cook food quickly and evenly at lower temperatures by continuously circulating air around the oven, cooking all the food surfaces evenly at the same time. You can cook meats straight from the freezer in about the same time required by thawed meats cooked in a conventional oven. And what's more, you don't need special cookware. Your tried and true cooking pots will do just as well.

Until now, convection ovens have been available in ranges and as portable countertop models. Now Jenn-Air has brought convection cooking to built-in ovens. Its new "Selective Use" oven can be changed with a flip of a switch from conventional electric cooking to convection. It is also available in a drop in freestanding range.

Microwave ovens:

The machines that think for you Plan your day, then program your meal and the memories will defrost the food, start cooking, put the food on a holding temperature, and finish the cooking. Apart from a smooth control panel, outwardly very little has changed. Inside, however, all is humming.

By inserting a card into a slot and touching the start pad, Sharp Electronic's new microwave oven will cook you a full course meal for 8 , or scrambled eggs for two. The oven "reads" each magnetic card which depicts in full color the food to be cooked. A range of weights, servings, and portions are listed on the reverse side of the card. The card slot is positioned near the top of the control panel-as easy as mailing a letter. Through research, the cards are based on a range of 10 to 25 most frequently repeated foods. During the cooking process, lettered signals indicate when to stir, add, or turn over. If the amount you wish to cook is less than stated on the card, don't worry. You have several choices. Simply insert the card, touch the appropriate pad for quantity, and then the cook pad. In addition to the 20 cards, Sharp has provided 10 blanks for all your family favorites.

At Litton, the 500 Series has been redesigned so that a whole meal can be cooked in the 1.51 cubic-foot oven. When programming for a complete meal, all roasts and meal casseroles are placed on top of a metal rack. Less dense foods such as vegetables, puddings, and breads are placed underneath. "Meal-in-One" model #520 costs $530, sophisticated # 560 with electronic touch controls and four memories, $$ 630$.

Magic Chef's microwave oven also measures 1.51 cubic feet and is available combined with an electric or a gas range. With four memories; a Delay Start tells the oven up to 12 hours ahead what time dinner should be ready, and a Slow Cook cycle, which cooks food at low temperatures for up to 12 hours, the "Common Sense" microwave costs $$ 649$. Combined with the pilotless ignition gas model or the self-cleaning electric model, the price is about $$ 1,100$.

How we topped a great range.

We've always been proud of our ranges. But at Whirlpool, we're always looking for ways to make our products even better.

Hence this convenient Whirlpool Cook'N Counter ${ }^{\text {TM }}$ range. We've covered the burners with a counter top made of tempered black glass that resists heat, scratches and breaks. It not only gives you extra counter space, but it gives your kitchen a beautiful clean look. When you're cooking, it folds up conveniently out of your way.

We've also designed this range with a self-cleaning oven. Just set the controls. A special highheat oven cycle reduces most stubborn splatters to a light ash which is easily removed.

We've also improved the oven door heat seal design. We added a custom control panel with easy-to-clean recessed dials. And a Mealtimer ${ }^{\text {TM }}$ clock.

Then of course, we back every Whirlpool range with customer services that are designed to keep you satisfied for years to come.

We do all of this because we think you deserve the best from Whirlpool.

Quality. Our way of life.

Wall ovens: The news is combinations

Whether helping you to cook two ways or five, wall ovens are now designed to cook fast and well, in a variety of combinations incorporating microwave energy.

Cook five ways with Thermador's Micro-Thermal wall oven "Thermatronic II". Two ovens, sharing the same controls but functioning independently, have at the top, a self-cleaning microwave plus an electric oven. The lower oven is a large, self-cleaning electric oven. So you can cook with microwave, conventional, microwave and conventional combined, broiling and microwave broiling. About $$ 2,200$.

Modern Maid's microwave oven is teamed with its Slo/Cook self-cleaning electric oven. Cook all day using the energy-saving Slo/Cook method, or use convenient, fast microwave. About $1,095 from Modern Maid dealers.

Flexible components: Arrange your kitchen as you like it

Just as you prefer to arrange your stereo components to suit your listening pleasure, cooktop modules give you flexibility in arranging your cooking needs.

On a counter, an island, pass-through, or peninsula, Thermador's Retro-Vent eliminates the need for a hood over the countertop. At the rear, a Lateral Flow Ventilator remains invisible until needed. Press a button and the vent raises and stays in position. Press again, and the vent lowers smoothly to its base. Filters lift out easily for cleaning. Four coil electric elements, a recessed griddle, and grill which lift up when needed, are part of the cooktop.

Roper's "Arrangeables" cook center consists of a ceramic smooth top, two coil elements, a nonstick griddle, a grill, a powered rotisserie, and a hardwood cutting board. In two different lengths, the 36 -inch accommodates two modules at a time, the 46 -inch, three. All can be changed quickly and easily by just sliding a thumb or finger under a slot and lifting out. Specially designed hoods are also offered.

Whirlpool's 46-inch cooktop accommodates three modules and comes equipped with two electric coil modules, a low-energy 4 -inch element for smali pans and an 8 -inch element for large pans. Two 6 -inch elements are provided by another module. Their 33 -inch-wide cooktop has the same three modules, but only two can be in place at the same time. In addition, Whirlpool offers two optional modules, a Teflon-coated griddle, and a hardwood cutting board, plus a rotisserie which can be used with the grill. There are hoods to match.

Gibson's cooktop consists of two permanently situated electric coils, plus one convertible module that will accept a rotisserie, a steak grill, a griddle, a cutting board, or another electric coil module. This same cooktop is also available as part of a freestanding self-cleaning electric range with a stainless steel cooking surface.

The news from Jenn-Air: the choice of interchangeable black or white glass ceramic smooth top cooking units, or coil electric burners for heavier cooking, such as canning. Additional modules convert into a twin-grill, rotisseries, shishkabob, griddle, or French fryer.

Three of the burners on Amana's $3+1$ white glass ceramic smooth top cooktops -and ranges-have thermostatically controlled heating units, which automatically keep food cooking at the right temperature. Use flat-bottomed cooking pans on these, preferably Corning's Cookmates. The fourth burner is a conventional burner on which you can use any cooking pot. From Amana dealers.

Sears 30 -inch modular Counter Units feature a permanent grill teamed with a 2-electric coil module or a 2-burner smooth-top module. In addition, there is a Teflon-coated griddle, a butcher-block cutting board, and a rotisserie, which drops right over the grill module.

Single and double-decker ranges: High-speed ovens

Combining high-speed microwave energy cooking with the advantages of conventional baking and broiling, whether housed in one unit or in tandem, makes it possible for you to prepare three or more dishes at the same time and in a fraction of the time. Or you can start off cooking your food in the fastacting microwave oven and then transfer to the conventional oven to continue cooking. Here are the latest models to join the home front.

Caloric's new Microwave/Range is a full-size oven combining high-speed microwave energy with conventional heat. A MicroRing sits at the bottom of the oven, eliminating the chore of rotating food during microwave cooking. Conventional and ceramic oven racks fit into five positions. About $$ 950$ from Caloric dealers.

Harowick's three-level memory microwave oven is combined with a pilotless ignition gas range. Also available in combination with an electric range, it costs about $$ 1,300$.

Frigidaire's combination range Twin 30, features a microwave oven with a wide variety of power settings partnered with a self-cleaning electric oven. It's about $$ 1,490$ at Frigidaire dealers.

Dacor's range, which it calls the "Better Cooking Center for Better Living," has a self-cleaning oven topped by two replaceable two-burner modules. Each lifts out easily and can be exchanged with a barbecue grill, rotisserie, or griddle.

On Whirlpool's new ranges, a "Cook'N Counter" in black tempered glass folds out to cover the half or the whole of the burners. Safety switches prevent the burners from working when the top is in use. To store, fold into the range's recessed backguard.

New energy-saving dishwashers: They've got s-s-s-steam heat!

The top priority here is energy conservation by utilizing air, whether applied as steam to clean, or fan-circulated to dry. Steam, it seems, is more effective at cleaning than water, because it can reach places water cannot. Steam can get between dried-on food and the dish, removing the debris. Drying by convection means air enters under the dishwasher door and moves, in some models, over a heated element, up through the dishes and out through a vent at the top.

Cleaning with steam is big news at Thermador/Waste King. Called the "Steam Machine," the dishwasher has a stainless steel interior, dual wash arms, interchangeable baskets for load sizes. Convection heat dries the dishes. A delay start timer can turn on the machine 9 hours and 50 minutes after loading. Perfect to use when energy loads are lowest, as in the middle of the night.

General Electric's Potscrubber III dishwashers have a newly designed wash arm that accurately directs water, so that all your dishes are reached. Dishes are dried by convection heat and a Permatuf interior prevents chipping and rusting. Prices range between $$ 400$ and $$ 500$.

Maytag's newest Jetclean dishwashers use 20 percent less hot water on regular cycle. "Energy Saver" fan-dries the dishes. "Powerdry" combines fan drying with heat. Water is metered rather than timed for more accurate consumption minimizing water use. So for a small load, only a minimum of water is used.

An Energy Saving Button on KitchenAid's dishwashers, when selected with any wash cycle, will eliminate heat during the drying cycle. Less water is used and energy needed is reduced by half.

Refrigerators and freezers:  Saving energy by keeping their cool

HOW-TO make the braid, twisted cording, and tassels

(pages 150 to 155 )
Method for 3-color braid (used for walls, curtains, and tablecover): Make 8 -foot-long lengths, each with 12-16 strands, of each color.

- Knot them together at one end, hang from the wall hook, and begin braiding. When you get near the end of the yarn and you want a longer braid, use a square knot to tie lengths of yarn onto each individual strand, matching colors (you can make one braid as long as you want). Be sure to place the knots at varying intervals to keep them inconspicuous.

- If you want to make a thicker braid, use more than 12-16 strands in each bundle. For 4 -color braid, divide the extra color equally among the three braiding lengths.

The twisted cording

Materials: Four colors of 4-ply wool yarn (4 ounces for every 8 yards of braid or cording); wall hook; metal clamp.
Method for 4-color twisted cording (used on slipcovers): Of each yarn color, make 8 -foot-long lengths, each with 12-16 strands.

- Taking each length separately, knot one end, hang on a wall hook, and twist tightly clockwise (twist tighter than you want the final cord, because it will loosen up with each step). Clamp loose end.

- Tie two of the twisted cords together at knotted end and hang on wall hook. Twist tightly counterclockwise, clamp. Repeat using the other two colors, twisting counterclockwise. (With each step the cord is twisted in the opposite direction from the previous step.)

- Tie the two cords together at both ends. Hang on the wall hook and allow them to unwind into one another clockwise. Clamp. If you want a thicker cord, hang one end of the 4 -color cord on wall hook. Hold other end taut away from wall, grasp yarn in middle. Bring two ends together at wall. Let go of yarn at the away from wall; slowly let the four cords unwind counterclockwise.

The magic tassel

Materials: 4-ply wool yarn in as many colors as you want (figure about 6 ounces of yarn per tassel) ; a piece of cardboard 6-8 inches wide and about a foot long; scissors.
Method: Wrap the yarn around the cardboard lengthwise so that the loose ends are at the bottom. Tie to secure ends.

- Braid 12 strands of yarn until braid is 6 inches long. Knot ends together to make a braided circle.

- Slide the circle under the yarn at the top of the cardboard, and pull one side of the circle over the yarn and through its other side to make a loop.
- Cut the yarn at the bottom of the cardboard and remove. Cut off the little tie that temporarily held ends in place.

- About one-third down from the loop, wrap one strand of yarn around all the yarn to make the tassel head. Tie.
- Shake the tassel gently to free all the strands. Even up the bottom with scissors.

How the leading maker of asphalt roofing can keep you from makinga very expensive mistake.

Buying asphalt shingles without knowing what to look for is playing "roofing roulette." Mistakes can be very costly

There are many different shingles available, but GAF can help you find out which one is best for you.

First, check the weight. The heavier and thicker your shingles, the longer they're likely to last.

Be sure that they're self-sealing. Top-quality asphalt shingles have a special adhesive that holds them down tight against the rampages of wind (See illustration)

Select a color that you'll want to live with for a long time. Because GAF shingles carry warranties* of from 15 to 25 years

Remember that GAF offers asphalt shingles to suit every home. From GAF ${ }^{}$ Timberline ${ }^{}$ heavyweight shingles (pictured) with their deep, irregular shadow pattern, to the more traditional GAF* Standard "Self-Seals. And who installs your roof is as important as what's installed. For quality GAF ${ }^{*}$ Roofing Materials, check the "Yellow Pages," or write GAF. Then get estimates from several contractors. And ask them for names of satisfied customers.

Be sure to specify Timberline or other fine GAF asphalt shingles. You'll have a roof that will give your home great beauty and service for years to come.

Goes on easy and dries to the touch in 15 minutes.

With Rust-O-Crylic coatings, you can actually paint right over sound rust. The Rust-O-Crylic primer fights rust the same as original Rust-Oleum. It forms a lasting bond that seals out air and moisture.

You don't have to spend a lot of time preparing the surface, either-just scrape the loose scale away. Brush on Rust-O-Crylic primer, then apply your favorite Rust-O-Crylic topcoat. They go on easy, dry to the touch in 15 minutes and clean up with soap and water-fast.

You'll get rid of rusting in a hurry. And all that great-looking protection will stay that way for years. With Rust-O-Crylic coatings, you do it fast and make it last.

Soap-and-water clean up means you get through fast.

Do it fast. Make it last.

HOW-TO sew by hand the French way

techniques for making the pillow

 confections on pages 188-189French hand sewing is a method of joining fine materials with tiny even stitches of waxed cotton thread. Raw edges are rolled and whipstitched, and often trimmed with lace or decorative entredeux. French hand sewing is finer, and usually stronger, than machine work. Here's the proof: It lasts for generations.

How to roll and whipstitch

Rolling and whipstitching finishes all raw edges of the pillow, and prepares them for trim.

Hold threaded needle horizontally at he top right corner of the fabric. Grasp abric and needle with the left hand and oll both downward until a complete roll s made.

LYNN REITTER

Holding roll, pull needle out, place at ight angle under roll, and whipstitch hrough top of roll for 3 or 4 stitches. titches should be about $1 / 8$ inch apart, ith needle at a $45^{\circ}$ angle. To begin roll nd whipstitch again, unroll any unhipped material, reroll using just the lumb and forefinger, and continue hipstitching until desired length is eached. Lace or entredeux can be added this smooth rolled edge (see directions).

To gather fabric with a rolled edge, ill thread taut every few stitches.

How to gather lace
Lace edging is seamed to form a circle, then gathered, to make a ruffle around the "Ribbons and Lace" pillowcase.

- Cut lace $11 / 2$ times the length of the edge you wish to trim. Pull one of the heavy threads at the top of the lace, and gather to desired length. Distribute gathers by hand.

Whipping lace to a rolled edge

 Lace is whipped to inner and outer rolled edges of "Monogram" pillowcase. - Lay lace over rolled edge, right sides together.

- Whipstitch under roll and through lace, just under heavy line.
- Open, and press flat.

How to join lace and entredeux
Lace is joined to entredeux at outer edge of "Ribbons and Lace" pillowcase.

- Trim one side of the entredeux.

- Place entredeux lace on top of right sides together, and whipstitch through each hole of the entredeux and the large holes of the lace. (Be sure the heavy line on top of the lace is taken up.)
- Open, and press flat.

How to apply entredeux to a rolled edge

Entredeux ("between two") is a narrow openwork trimming that forms a decorative bridge between the outer rolled edge of the pillow front and the gathered ruffle. Its right side is raised and shiny. The wrong side is flat and dull.

- Trim one side of the entredeux.

- Lay entredeux on top of rolled edge, right sides together. Whipstitch under rolled edge and through each hole of the entredeux. Press entredeux away from fabric.
- Trim other side of entredeux and join to gathered ruffle in the same way.

HOW-TO make the keyhole curtains

(pages 153 and 154)

Materials: One reversible quilt, curtain rod and bracket, thin fabric or paper, cording, tassels (see instructions, page 130), measuring tape, scissors, needle, and thread.
Method: Measure window and cut the quilt to fit, with a few inches of overlap all around it (for this window one whole quilt was used). Hem, and finish with cording if desired.

- Sew a double row of stitching 5 inches down from the top of the quilt to make a pocket for the curtain rod. Take out all stitching-edge and quilting, plus all the batting, from there up.
- Make a template for the keyhole opening on thin fabric or paper and pin onto the center of the quilt. (For this curtain, the top of the circle is 12 inches below the curtain rod pocket.) Cut out the keyhole and stitch edges closed.
- Measure around the inside of the opening for cording, plus 6 inches for each rosette. Starting at one bottom edge, sew on cording by hand. Where you want to make a rosette, loop the cord like a pretzel and stitch.

New ceiling lamps for old, flexible sanding blocks, paints that beat mildew, and new glamour for summer screens

Q. I would like to replace the old light fixture above my dining-room table. Is this a job for a novice?

A. It certainly can be-in fact, it is easy once you have some basic information. Step 1. Preparation. Turn off the electrical power-this is important-and loosen the canopy (see diagram).
Step 2. Disassembly. Locate the two flexible thin lamp-cord wires leading from the fixture (these are attached to stiff wires with electrical tape or solderless connectors), and disconnect them. Do not disconnect any other wires. Remove the fixture along with its various mounting fittings. Take note of the type of metal box in the ceiling. If it is very old, it will be round and shallow with a threaded stud in the center. The newer type box will usually be round or octagonal with two small metal lugs that have threaded holes in them.

Step 3. Installation. Attaching the new unit will vary depending on several fac-tors-depth of canopy, depth of the ceiling box, type of box, material used for lamp suspension (cord or chain), etc. (See diagram for examples of two ways to secure fixtures to the ceiling box.) Your new fixture should be packaged with hanging instructions. Study them carefully before attempting installation. If no directions are included in the packing, then follow the appropriate diagram. Some adjustments may be nec-essary-an addition or subtraction of a fitting or two. These can be purchased at a hardware store, but be sure to take all of the fittings with you when additional parts are needed. Diameter, lengths, threads, etc. differ from installation to installation.
Step 4. Reconnection. Once the fixture is suspended and the fittings are in place, attach the lamp wires to the house wires. If the wires are color coded, splice the black to black and the white to white. in the following manner: Wrap the stranded lamp wire clockwise around the stronger bare wire and then twist a solderless connector over the joint. Repeat for the second wire connection. Secure the canopy tightly against the ceiling. Screw a light bulb in the socket, turn the electricity back on, and then flip the switch.

Q. Do the new sanding blockes currently being marketed really work?

A. Yes, they do. They are made of a flexible, tough, dense plastic foam block to which an abrasive is bonded. The four sides of the rectangle are covered with two grades of abrasive-fine and medium or medium and coarse.

Of the five kinds of abrasives made, this one comes closest to silicone carbide sandpaper, though it is not quite as hard. However, the block can be used either wet or dry to give a satin-smooth finish. When the abrasive surface fills with sanding matter, tap to help loosen the clog. ging material, rinse in clear water, and squeeze out excess moisture; then continue working.

These blocks can be used on wood, metal, plaster, and other materials. They smooth, abrade, clean, prepare walls for painting and wallpapering, soften sharp edges and shelves, smooth outdoor furniture before resurfacing, and any other sandpapering job. They have enough rigidity to work on flat surfaces, but are flexible enough to work well in concave or convex curves.

As with any sanding, work from the coarser grade down to the finer grade to get a smooth surface. Also remember always to sand virgin wood with the grain. At $$ 1.35$ to $$ 1.50$, the new flexible sanding blocks are long lasting and neat to work with.

Bird makes solid vinyl siding forpeople who love the looks of wood.

We'll be the first to admit that wood can look beautiful. It's just that taking care of it is a constant job. That's why the people who live in this house covered it with Bird solid vinyl siding.

We make siding a little differently than anybody else. The bottom of each panel is squared off to look exactly like wood clapboards. And we invented the natural woodgrain texture you see on our Woodside ${ }^{\text {ru }}$ solid vinyl siding.

But unlike wood, Bird solid vinyl siding takes care of itself. The color goes all the way through, so scratches don't show the way they can on other materials. And it can't rot, blister or peel. So it never needs painting.

We make solid vinyl siding in narrow and wide widths, with smooth and textured finishes. If you'd like a free estimate, talk to your Bird Siding Dealer. He's in the Yellow Pages, and he'd be glad to hear from you.

Q. The paint on the exterior of $m y$ house is mildowed. Is there anything that will prevent this when it is repainted?

A. Various chemicals have been formulated into mildewcides, and these ingredients are included in many paints. A mildewcide by name may not be listed in the formulation, however. Before choosing a paint, check with the technical department of the manufacturer to be sure a mildewcide is included in the coating you want to use. Mildewcides tend to be more effective in the harder, darker-colored, glossier paints, than in the softer, lighter, chalkier ones.

Mildewcides you can add yourself are readily available at a paint-supply store. Remember, though, the addition of the packaged mildewcide may lighten colors slightly-especially in latex paints-and also reduce the gloss of enamels.

A mildewcide may initially help to relieve your problem, but it will not eradicate it. Under no circumstances should you paint over the gray-black fungus. Before the paint can be applied, the mildew must first be removed. Add a quart of bleach to 3 quarts water along with $1 / 4$ cup heavy-duty detergent. Wearing goggles and rubber gloves, scrub the blighted section of the house (usually the north side and under caves where the sun's rays do not reach). Rinse with a hose. Let dry a day before painting.

Q. The aluminum window screens on my house look very dingy. Can anything be done to make them look new again?

A. The screens are probably covered with grime and a dull gray-white film. Although aluminum does not rust, with time it will oxidize, a process that contributes to the dinginess.
Step 1: Remove the screens from the window, and scrub both sides thoroughly (including the aluminum frame and the screening material) with a plastic bristle brush dipped in a strong detergent solution.
Step 2: Hose down both sides. Let dry. Step 3: If the screening still looks dull, use a fine brass brush (a soft suede brush will do the job) to polish it. Work horizontally and vertically-never in a circular motion or diagonally. Wipe with a soft cloth.
Step 4: With a painting pad, cover both sides of the screening wire with a clear, protective sealer coating which will help the screen retain its new look.

One-hand faucet

To turn on the water, you pull up the handle of the single control mixing valve. Revolve left for hot, right for cold water in a one-hand operation. The

If its worthyour time, its worth True Tempers

HOUSE & GARDEN, MAY, 1979

Doing things for the fun of it

The room was full of laughing people dressed in overalls and jeans, a disco beat thrummed from the radio, and everyone was painting. With so many friends gathered to wield their rollers and brushes, ceiling, walls, and trim could be finished nearly at the same time. A pot of coffee was kept perpetually full, and everyone was trading good-natured criticism of one another's work. The occupant of the apartment, and beneficiary of all this congenial effort, stopped putting up the shelf brackets for a minute and beamed. "This is more fun than having the finished room will be," she said. And many times, in many kinds of projects, it's true: It's the doing, not the having, that's worthwhile. The doing doesn't always have to be a group effort, of course. Baking bread for your family is often as enjoyable as sharing it, and puttering alone in the garden is, as any gardener can tell you, a satisfying and enriching experience. We humans seem to be at our best in action. Creating, producing, even playing for its own sake, is not only exhilarating, but it seems to fulfill a basic human need. In this issue, you'll meet people who garden, cook, and decorate for the fun of it, to show you how easy it is. It doesn't matter that you're not an expert; there are ways to learn to do anything, once the need -or the inspiration - arises. Here, to prime your imagination, some do-it-yourself projects you could enjoy. Go ahead-just for the fun of it.

- To give your staircase a freshair country look, wallpaper the risers with trellis or vinecolored paper. Or, stencil on your own trellis design. A matchstick or split-bamboo blind can have a gardeny personality if you paint or stencil a morning-glory at each side, to twine up the strings.
- Creating something in the kitchen is a terrific way to spend an afternoon, especially if what you're creating is chocolate, such as brownies, chocolate cheese cake, or these delicious chocolate truffles or chocolate drop cookies.

Truffles

Heat 1 teaspoon instant espresso, 3 tablespoons boiling water, and 8 ounces semi-sweet chocolate until chocolate dissolves. Beat in $1 / 2$ cup sweet butter and then 3 tablespoons Grand Marnier. Refrigerate for a few hours until firm. Form into balls and roll in unsweetened cocoa. Makes about 30 truffles.

Cookies

Melt together 1 can sweetened condensed milk, 3 squares Baker's unsweetened chocolate, and 1-2 tablespoons sweet butter until thick. Let cool slightly. Stir in 6 ounces pecan or walnut pieces. Drop by the teaspoonful on a greased cookie sheet, and bake about 10 minutes at 350 degrees.
O If you like to have your favorite photographs and drawings out where you can see them, you can make your own frames with heavy cardboard: Just cut them out with a matte knife, cover with glued-on fabric, and decorate with grosgrain ribbons in pretty colors.

- A nice way to mark off rows of herbs and vegetables is to write their names in waterproof ink on the backs of old wooden spoons, as Adelma Simmons of Caprilands Herb Farm does in her kitchen garden. And, to help you visualize how a garden bed or border would look, outline the space with your garden hose before you spade along the line. Or, use your lawn mower to outline a proposed garden bed. Leave grass standing where the garden will be, and imagine it as flowers and vegetables. You can see from all angles just about how your garden is going to look before putting spade to sod.
- A new kind of shower curtain to make yourself: Measure fabric (or a pretty sheet) against the old curtain for size: cut; hem on all four sides. Then, at 4 -inch intervals along the top, sew on two 8 -inch lengths of grosgrain ribbon or fabric strips, and tie the curtain to the rod with jaunty bows.
- To make a pretty folk-art runner for bath or hallway, you can sew together small rectangular rag rugs end to end.

The last person I ever expected to be described as a homeowner was me. When I had husbands I thought of them as the homeowners. I was the upstairs writer. To me, the "it" in do-it-yourself was all that stuff the larger-framed gender seemed designed to handle. Even more important, perhaps, than the knack of doing everything is the ability to discuss projects in that casual, fraternal way which indicates to professionals that they are dealing with an informed person. Stance and gestures are all-important. It helps, if it is still at all cool outside, to wear a down vest, into the pockets of which you can hook your thumbs. Striding around your property in mud-spattered, lace-up, rubber-soled boots, kicking aside a large pebble or so, squinting up at the sky, making dour predictions about weather, and looking at your watch which should have its face on the inside of the wrist are all details which will make the guys who work on houses level with you. Catch phrases from building manuals should be applied whenever you're sure they are appropriate. Suggesting sheet rock to the man who is putting a retaining wall in the garden is a certain giveaway.

Last fall, I bought a tiny compound of what resemble cowboy-elf houses in the woods in Connecticut. Friends who worried that I might be lonely need not have been concerned. Into my life came a flurry of contractors, plumbers, electricians, carpenters, painters, masons, heating, oil, and gas experts, basement people, roofers, garage door authorities, storm window specialists, appliance men, and carpet men. They were all charming, wryly disparaging of their predecessor's work, and "going to come back and finish up the loose ends next week." When I got tired of pacing and looking about wistfully, I decided the loose-end expert would be me. You could call it a marvelous opportunity for growth.

With the possible exception of electrical wiring, there is very little I haven't learned to do. And I have a friend who even learned about electricity in night school. There are three main methods to learn anything, however, without going to school: don't be afraid to say you don't know. You might decide not to buy a certain tool until you need it-that's one way to build a collection. I was advised to buy neither the most expensive nor the cheapest grades, and never in sets, advice I followed although almost irresistibly lured by a set of golden tools with retroussé Lucite handles.

In the same way I figured out cooking by reading cookbooks, watching friends, and trying combinations which seemed as though they might taste good, I have managed to over- (Continued on page 221)

"The beauty of a room of comforters," says designer Robert Denning, "is that while it's so easy to do, there nothing do-it-yourself looking about it." Clean-lined modular furniture looks giamourous covered with quilted comforters. And a simple pedestal table becomes a charming Victorian parlor table with a half skirt made from a quilted comforter bound with thick braid. "Comforters are wonderfully versatile," says Mr. Denning, who used one to make the curtain and to panel the walls, too-"They're terrific for soundproofing and insulation." When it comes to furniture plans, "I like to clear the walls and give the room a heart," says Mr. Denning who arranged the furniture away from the walls (see plan). He used an antique double-faced bookcase (you could use two back to back) and, "to add interest to the square room," he placed it on the diagonal and hung it with wall lamps "to avoid end tables and table lamps.

FOR THE FUN OF IT How a family that loves plants lives in a greenhousekitchen

This family of six enjoys its kitchen, and so do the plants. A new sink island was built to tend to plants as well as food-it has a trough for flowering plants and garden, storage in a pine cabinet behind it. In any kitchen, a hose like the one by the faucet is handy for spritzing foliage. Here, there is also a garden hose in the greenhouse, with a shower stall fixture "that controls pressure and mixes hot and cold to provide the tepid water plants like. My husband rigged that up," says Flora Cremezzani. Exhaust from the nearby laundry drier is piped to floor vents alongside the greenhouse. "By always drying clothes in the morning, we have damp heat to warm the greenhouse after a cold night." Flowers are the family passion, and many are grown from seed: cinerarias, calceolarias, and gloxinias started in summer to brighten winter days. Petunias, impatiens, and some vegetables are started indoors in spring for the outside garden. "I use trays of soil mix topped with 1 inch porous vermiculite, moistened with warm water. Because vermiculite is sterile, 'damping off' is no problem." Another tip: "To flower, plants need lots of sun. In flower, a cool shady spot keeps them in bloom longer."

 glamour in a forest bedroom and a tropical bathThere are those who need a private hideaway, a place to relax in sheer com-fort-a place like this bedroom, dress ing room, and bath. "It's my oasis," says actress Linda Evans, who, with her husband realtor Stan Herman, rejuv enated their outdated house. "It didn't look like us at all," says Mrs. Herman. "But the size was right and the bones were there, so we decided to make it work for us." With decorator Judy Wilder and architect Harry Fox, they added windows where there were none; brought in yards of mirror; restored all the old wood; and filled the rooms with young furniture and upbeat fabrics. In the master bedroom, French doors now open the room to the terrace, overseen by a big whimsical grove of a fourposter twig bed. Except for the bed and the antique chaise, the room is spare: "We wanted a non-overstuffed look," says Mrs. Herman, but she chose the peach and caramel batik "to give the room a sense of warmth and comfort." Next door in the bathroom, warmth comes from wood paneling "which we found under forty years of accumulated green paint." For dazzle, mirror was used generously on the ceiling, around the dressing table, and in the walk-in closet. Since there was only a shower, the Hermans put in the giant Jacuzzi surrounded by cyclamen, spathiphyllum, palms, orchids"like relaxing in the tropics.

 spot for dining in a dressing room-bathIt may look like a dining room, but behind all the fabric and the gardeny table, this room is a dressing room-bath. That's the bathtub under the banquette (just a board, cushioned, upholstered, and laid over the top of the tub). The private vanity is hidden behind the mirrored partition. "It looks like a cozy drawing room," says Paris designer and shop owner Anne Marie de Ganay, the woman behind this amusing transformation. For dining she brings in a folding table and extra chairs, puts the champagne in the sink to chill, and uses the shelf in the vanity area to hold glasses. "With the fireplace and the TV, it's always been more than a room for dressing and bathing; but it was a stroke of inspiration to serve dinner here." To prepare the room for its new role, she filled it with flowery fabric in five colors-"I couldn't decide which to use, so I used them all and turned the room into a garden." Each wall is covered with a different color garden. Curtains are blue (over lacy undercurtains), built-in cupboards, white-"My one regret: I should have used one of the darker colors that shows fewer fingerprints." For accent, the black fabric turns up around the tub, sink, and even an ironing board. "So many fabric patterns in such a tiny room is as unexpected as dining by the tub. But a good surprise is always uplifting."

A suburban house made sensational with reshaped space, greenhouse, skylight, and a whole lot of style

$\triangle$ Before and after $\nabla$

From suburban conventional to pared-down modern-that's the big move this house has made to keep pace with the up-to-date lifestyle of the young family who lives there. Its eleven rooms have been transformed into one integrated, light, airy space, with open ceilings and movable walls. Raising the ceiling near the front door, above, Joe D'Urso of D'Urso Design put in a big curved skylight, and then opened the floor beneath so that light floods down into the new family-mediagames room below. To help lighten the downstairs room even more, Mr. D'Urso replaced the front wall with a greenhouse, right and below, left, making a glassed-in garden two stories high.

Makeover for a new way of light

With space rearranged to make it more workable, ceilings and walls opened up to let more outdoors in, the whole house seems to expand

The heart of this house is the family room-a space running the length of the house, with every kind of entertainment, above and opposite page, top-giant TV screen and projector, regular TV, Betamax, billiard table, library, fireplace, and even a little kitchen. Light comes from the new greenhouse wall and upstairs skylight Family activity is centered on an enormous pad on a platform, covered with lots of big chintz cushions, and a projector in the center. At opposite ends of the platform are counters with stools, and the floor is covered in practical, easy-to-clean gray ceramic tile.

The old dining room

Double-hung windows, less costly than a wall of glass, match the originals and help preserve the cottage's character. On the outside, the old deck was extended in a wraparound walkway-ramp. The little cottage was in a shambles, blind to the bay with windows facing only the street. Owner Patrick Twyon says "the possibilities for improvement were limitless because there was virtually nothing there. Our first thought was to level the shack." But their good friend, architect Richard Sygar, was able to create just the sort of vacation place the Twyons longed for-and still stay within the limits of their budget. By prying up the roof and introducing the clerestory, the attic space was transformed into two sleeping areas open to the stars above and the room below. All the existing floor needed was to have its coat of dark red paint removed, and some of the original walls were saved. The old deck was also kept, extended with a new walkway that ends in a ramp for easy access to the back door. The door itself was moved from center to side to ease the arrangement of furniture inside. The addition of new wiring, plumbing, heating, and in-sulation-all done within the $$ 23,000$ budget-made the house comfortable year round. And though still small -only about 800 square feet-with its raised roof and wide-open areas the house now seems as airy as the outdoors the new windows bring inside. And it's easy to keep. Jane Twyon says: "I work, and I don't want to spend my weekends cleaning. This house is extremely easyall I have to do is sweep it out." Even the Twyons' baby daughter delights in their new holiday house. "For her, it's a giant jungle gym." For building facts, please turn to page 260 .

Down-to-earth hables for fork & spoon food

Tables are never more inviting - or more imaginative. What makes them so is the inventive use of things you have on hand. Wineglasses are sturdy tumblers, food is served in vegetable bowls and platters, and each course is designed to be eaten with just a fork and spoon. Centerpieces are just as inventive: garden fresh, inspired by the recipes, in bowls and boxes covered with paper to look like tile.

BY PENELOPE WISNER LINCK

Giving a party used to be a one-way street-the host and hostess gave; the guest received. Communal impulses were satisfied with occasional covered-dish suppers. Now, every party seems to become a community effort. As soon as an invitation is given, comes the response: "What can I bring?" Bring wine, bread, flowers, or a new cheese or sausage just discovered; bring a record, book, or game-and anyone arriving with a box of amaretti is instantly popular. Once there, everyone wants to get into the act, and if you don' do a me delegating of duties, there will be a traffic jam in the bif ben.

GETTING TOGETHER MADE EASY  continued

The old rules had you practice a menu until you could reproduce it under stress. The new ones say: If a dish does not work out, just call it by a new name and declare it your own invention dishes might be tiny chocolate molds.
Guests no longer tolerate reluctant hostesses who hide out in the kitchen only appearing to relax when guests are on the way out the door. Now they march into the kitchen to brandish whisks, stir pots, and generally poke around while keeping the cook company. The idea may be more terrifying than imagining hungry hordes at the table waiting to pass judgment on whatever appears in front of them, but at least if a sauce curdles it won't be all your fault. If you don't appreciate this sort of activity, and there are many sensitive cooks who do not, just tell well-meaning helpers to clear out. There will be no feclings hurt. But the best way is to have everything prepared ahead. If you are not in the kitchen, guests won't be either. Preparing beforehand takes time and organization, but this is simpler when you set the table in the morning and each place needs only one glass, a fork, and spoon. Leaving out an hors d'oeuvre to serve with drinks and shortening the drinking hour by half saves double in preparation time. After that, you'll need only a serving dish (hopefully it's a table-going cooking pot) and ready-to-set-out dessert dishes. You can even make freshly ground coffee or tea ahead: Keep them in insulated jugs-the new good-looking ones ready to come to the table.

People who work full time
-whether or not they enjoy guests in the kitchen-are bound to feel the familiar time compression. With good reason: Dinner parties used to have a first course, main event, salad, cheese, dessert. For mine, I used every pot, dish, and piece of flatware in the house, and even then I didn't have enough for all the different courses. The piles in the kitchen grew to terrifying heights. And then I discovered that this type of dinner party wasn't realistic or really even fun-the price in effort and time was too high, and ultimately prevented me from inviting people over. Something had to go. So, first the cheese went, then the separate salad, then the first course.

Farmhouse

The house Walt Whitman's father built, and where the poet was born, beautifully restored in its original colors and furnished as it might have been when he lived here as a boy

Sandwiched between a road and a major highway, overlooked by a gas station and a mammoth shopping center, the house where the poet Walt Whitman was born miraculously survives intact, a peaceful reminder of a more rural West Hills, Long Island. The simple shingled homestead was built by his father a few years before Whitman's birth on May 31, 1819. It is still supported by the original hand-fashioned beams held together by the original wooden pegs. The interior wooden doors and trim are painted "Colonial Blue" to match the color of paint chips found when the house was acquired by the Walt Whitman Birthplace Association. The Association bought the house with the aid of contributions from more than 7,000 wellwishers, including many schoolchildren, and presented it in 1957 to the State of New York, which maintains it as a historic site. The poet's family left West Hills when Walt, in his words, "was still a little one in frocks," but the house still contains a few Whitman by Whitman when he was "boarding around" and teaching school on Long Island as a young man. But an herb garden has been planted close behind the house, two rooms upstairs house an admirable Whitman library, and on the ground floor, parlor, kitchen, and "borning room" have been modestly but endearingly furnished to give a semblance of the interior as it may have looked in Whitman's day. Spinning wheel and knitty-knotty, bellows and bootjack, dough-chest and lard-press combine to create an illusion of the past almost strong enough to tempt one to believe that outside on the Long Island plains, the morning and evening processions consist, as during the poet's lifetime, not of commuters but of cows. The house, at 246 Walt Whitman Huntington Station, N.Y. 11746, can be visited Wednesday through Sunday from 1 to 4 P.M., except during February and March, when it is

MENUArmenian pizzasTurkish cucumber and grape saladPeaches with honey-lime whip

In her new book, Entertaining the Slim Way (Addison-Wesley), Lou Seibert Pappas has arranged favorite recipes from her travels into menus for all occasions, including picnics, party dinners, and spontaneous suppers. Mrs. Pappas, who is the food editor of the Peninsula Times Tribune in Palo Alto, Calif. and author of 10 books, places the emphasis on a "lighter, leaner, and delectably fresh" cuisine. This menu for six is an easy adaptation of middle Eastern floors-the exotic taste of lamb with cumin and allspice, a cooling yo-gurt-mint dressed salad, and honeyed peaches with an accent of lime and cardamom.

To start the dinner, salt the cucumbers for the salad and let them drain 15 minutes. Meanwhile, mix the dressing for the salad and toss the lamb with the spices and tomato sauce. When the cucumbers have drained, pat them dry and add them, with the grapes, to the dressing-let chill briefly. Spread the meat mixture on the tortillas or pita rounds and put in the oven. While pizzas bake, peel and slice peaches. (Mrs. Pappas also suggests using strawberries or fresh pineapple, or try nectarines), spoon the honey-lime whip over them; chill if you wish. In $10-15$ minutes, pizzas will be ready.

The cooking school vacation

First work, then play. La Varenne students bake, leff; Tuscan cooking class dances, right.

Cooking gives traveling a viewpoint, a focus that draws the experience of being in a new place together. Restaurants become part of the culinary exploration; going to the local markets brings you in touch with the people as they go about their lives; the recipes use local produce. Learning a region's cuisine gives insight into the culture-there are even museums devoted to food and wine: a pasta museum in Pontedassio near Imperia, The Christian Brothers Wine Museum in San Francisco are two.
And it's fun. Fun to join cooking classes in the cities you visit because cooking is a friendly task by nature. Below is a list of some of the classes to plan this summer's vacation around including the classes photographed on the following four pages. Recipes begin on page 201.

Food, history, and art combine naturally in Florence under Giuliano Bugialli, author of The Fine Art of Italian Cooking (Times Books). Participation classe in the 13th-century townhouse stress basics-Tuscan bread: plain, with herbs or olives, or even wrapped around a chicken. "The bread has almost no salt and is made to be eaten with food; Italians don't eat bread and butter,' says Mr. Bugialli in a cultural aside. Students learn pasta in its many shapes and uses, and desserts-all followed by wine tastings and walking tours of the city to enjoy the art as well as the marketplace. Another day, class moves to the Chianti vineyards at the Frescobaldi villa. Students pick fresh vine leaves for the quall in pancetta, right.

"Something very special happens when people meet in Bologna," says Marcella Hazan, who has been teaching her summer cooking course there for four years. "All background and language differences melt away, and when they leave, students stay in touch; many return to study with me again." And they study hard-"Im very strict, I demand attention." One effective method, the whistle she uses to announce critical points during a lesson. The hard work has its rewards, though; among them, "charcuterie corner breaks-they're tastings of delicacies from all of Italy. Afterwards students return to the new kitchen, converted from two carriage houses. The Hazans designed it for practical beauty, blending modern lighting and equipment with the original handmade brick and new handpainted tiles. The old and new of Italy merge further in one of the summer's highlights, a trip to a nearby vineyard, where farmers prepare a feast and everyone dances to the lilting music of the mandolin.

Cordials to make at home with white alcohols and inventive flavorings

Freshtwist on

BY JULIE DANNENBAUM

Editor's note: As director of the Cigahotels' summer cooking school program in Venice, Julie Dannenbaum has spent the last four summers exploring Italian food. (For details on the program, see page 193.) This past year she found a new taste-fruits marinated in grappa, the Italian spirit distilled from leftover fermented grape pressings, and brought it home with her. Here, she shares the recipes she learned in Venice, and the results of her own experiments using a variety of fruits and white spirits like grappa, vodka, gin, tequila. and white rum.
The ideas for fruit in white alcohol are endless. It seems orange-flavored one at a restaurant called Da Ivo. These were all served icy, icy cold in little tall, thin glasses somewhat like vodka glasses. Although grappa is difficult to come by at home, I decided I could try them using clear, white spirits, like vodka. I questioned all the chefs around Venice, and this is how I was told to do it:

Select wide-mouthed jars, jugs, or crocks with lids, or cover tightly with plastic wrap. Chef Celeste gave me this formula for his raspberry cordial. Boil together 2 pounds sugar with 1 quart water. Boil 5 minutes, very hard. Cool. Put 2 pounds raspberries in the clean jar, and pour the

Homemade fruit cordials make a wonderful dessert served icy cold in tiny glasses. They keep close to forever in the refrigerator getting mellower and smoother all the time that every restaurant in Venice has a version to serve at the end of a meal as an offering from the owner. The first one I tasted was grappa with orange and coffee beans at a small country restaurant where we took our class for lunch. The chef, Anna Maria Mauro, was proud of her concoction and invited us to try it. Everyone raved, and she told me how to make it. Then, in the cooking class at the Gritti [the Gritti Palace Hotel in Venice], I had a raspberry one prepared by Chef Celeste, who operates a counry restaurant of great esteem hitside of Venice called Montello. Next. came an cool syrup over them. Add 1 quart 90 -proof grain alcohol or grappa. Tighten the lid and put into the refrigerator for 3 months. Serve liquid in little glasses or liquid and berries in a small glass cup. It may also be served over ice cream or sherbet. The raspberries float on the top of the liquid for a couple of weeks and later sink to the bottom.

For my version, I used 2 boxes of raspberries, added 2 cups simple syrup, and then poured a bottle of vodka on them. The amount of sugar or the syrup is strictly a matter of taste. Take into consideration the sweetness of the fruit. After the fruit has mellowed for a couple of weeks, open the jar and taste. If not sweet enough, add more sugar and stir to dissolve or add sugar syrup. If too sweet, add more alcohol.

For the orange and coffee bean cordial, right: Take 3 oranges and cut slits, 3 in each orange, down the sides, well spaced. Insert 3 coffee beans in each slit. Put into a jar and add $1 / 4$ cup coffee beans. Add 2 cups simple syrup and a bottle of tequila and seal. Store in refrigerator for 3 months. Ladle the cold liquid into frosted, tiny glasses. The liquid may turn dark from the coffee beans, but no matter. The taste is there.

Once you start, you keep thinking of different fruits to try. You could make a straw-berry-or a blackberry-cordial exactly like the raspberry one.

I put 1 cup crystallized ginger into another jar and added 1 cup of sugar, not syrup, to see what would happen. I then poured on a bottle of vodka, and put it away to mellow. Tequila would also be good.

Fresh figs, both green and purple, work well. Use a dozen figs, 1 cup simple syrup, and a bottle of vodka or gin.

Fresh pineapple, peeled and cored and cut into rings, 2 cups simple syrup, and white rum are delicious.

I also made a Seckel pear one with a dozen little pears, unpeeled. Prick the skins all over with a needle to allow the liquid to penetrate. Add $1 / 2$ cup sugar to this and a bottle of vodka.

An excellent drink can be made with a box of dried prunes and a handful of white raisins. Add 1 cup simple syrup and a bottle of vodka or white rum.

Try grapes: Use a mix of black and white grapes and add 2 cups simple syrup and vodka.

A large bunch of mint, crushed a little and sweetened with 2 cups simple syrup plus a bottle of white rum would be great for adding to a fresh fruit compote.

Try dried apricots, made like the prune drink.

Little lady apples, left whole and pricked, would be good, made like the pear drink, but with rum or gin.

How about cherries or kumquats in sake or vodka for after a Chinese dinner instead of dessert?

Prickly pears might be good in tequila, or mangos or persimmons.

With fresh peaches, add a handful of almonds in the skin plus vodka or gin.

A good drink for winter would be lots of spiraled zests of orange, lemon, grapefruit, and lime, making certain there is no pith. Use a mixture or the zest of each fruit separately with 2 cups simple syrup plus gin or vodka.

Make sure there is enough alcohol to cover the fruits and keep the crocks covered.

Simple syrup: Boil together 2 cups sugar and 2 cups water for 5 minutes. Let cool.

made cordial. You might be a little impatient while it mellows in the refrigerator, but you can taste it as it ages to check on its progress. Within days, the orange and coffee flavors will begin to permeate the alcohol. Cut slits through the rind into the flesh with a razor blade and insert at least 3 coffee beans or more to taste.

Bread with olives

INGREDIENTS FOR THE "SPONGE"  (first rising)

$11 / 2$ ounces ( 3 cakes) compressed fresh yeast or 3 packages dry active yeast
$1 / 4$ cup lukewarm or hot water, depending on yeast
$1 / 2$ cup plus 1 tablespoon unbleached all-purpose flour
INGREDIENTS FOR THE DOUGH
(second rising)
6 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
13/4 cups lukewarm water
Pinch salt
$1 / 2$ pound pitted black olives, drained
2 teaspoons olive oil

METHOD

$\square$ Dissolve the yeast in the water in a small bowl, stirring with a wooden spoon. Place $1 / 2$ cup flour in a larger bowl, add the dissolved yeast, and mix with the wooden spoon until all the flour is incorporated and a small ball of dough is formed. Sprinkie the additional tablespoon of flour over the ball of dough, then cover the bowl with a cotton dishtowel and put it in a warm place away from drafts. Let stand until the dough has doubled in size, about 1 hour.

Arrange 6 cups flour in a mound on a pasta board, then make a well in the flour. Place the sponge from the first rising in the well, along with $1 / 2$ cup of the lukewarm water and the salt.

Carefully mix together all the ingredients in the well with a wooden spoon, then add the remaining water and start mixing with your hands, absorbing the flour from the inside rim of the well little by little.
$\square$ Keep mixing until all but 4 or 5 tablespoons of the flour are incorporated (about 15 minutes), then knead the dough with the palms of your hands, in a folding motion, until it is homogenous and smooth (about 20 minutes), incorporating the remaining flour, if necessary, to keep the dough from being sticky. Add the olives to the dough and knead gently for 5 minutes more.
$\square$ Lightly oil a 10 -inch springform. Place the dough in the springform, cover with a cotton dishtowel, and put in a warm place, away from drafts. Let the dough stand until doubled in size (about 1 hour); the time will vary a bit, depending on the weather. $\square$ When the dough has doubled in size, remove the towel and immediately place the springform in a preheated $400^{\circ}$ oven. Bake the bread for about 60 minutes; do not open the oven door for 30 minutes after you have placed the springform in the oven. Remove the springform from the oven, allow to cool 5 minutes, then open it and transfer the bread to a pasta board.

Stand the bread on one of its sides-it must cool in a very airy room for at least 3 hours before it is at its best.

Pizza with rosemary

INGREDIENTS

1/2 ounce ( 1 cake) compressed fresh yeast or 1 package active dry yeast
1 cup lukewarm or hot water, depending on the yeast
21/4 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
Salt, freshly ground black pepper
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 heaping tablespoon rosemary leaves, preferably fresh

METHOD

$\square$ Dissolve the yeast in the lukewarm or hot water in a small bowl. P'ace the flour in a mound on a pasta board. Make a well in the flour and pour in the dissolved yeast and a pinch of salt, and then, using a fork, slowly incorporate all but 3 or 4 tablespoons of the flour from the inside rim of the well. At that point the dough should be firm. Knead it for 15 minutes.
$\square$ Sprinkle the dough with the remaining flour and cover it with a cotton dishtowel; let stand in a warm p.ace until doubled in size (about $11 / 2-2$ hours).
$\square$ When the dough has risen, oil a 15 -by$101 / 2$-by- 1 -inch jelly roll pan with a tablespoon of the oil. Place dough in the pan and spread it out with your fingers until it covers the bottom. Sprinkle on the rosemary, salt, lots of freshly ground pepper, and the remaining oil, then cover with a cotton dishtowel and let stand until the dough has risen again to almost double in size (about 1 hour). Bake in a preheated $450^{\circ}$ oven about $40-45$ minutes, until crisp, then remove from the oven and serve immediately from the pan, cutting it across into slices. Serves 6 .

Chicken wrapped in prosciutto

INGREDIENTS

2 tablespoons butter
5 large leaves of sage, fresh or preserved in salt
1 teaspoon rosemary leaves
1 teaspoon marjoram
1 teaspoon salt
$1 / 4$ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 2-pound chicken, cut into 8 pieces
8 slices prosciutto (about $1 / 2$ pound)

METHOD

Melt the butter in a small saucepan over a pot of boiling water. Finely chop the sage, rosemary, and marjoram and place in a small bowl. Add melted butter to the chopped herbs, then add salt and pepper and mix ingredients together very well.
$\square$ Use a pastry brush to coat each piece of chicken with the herb-butter mixture. Wrap each piece of chicken in a slice of prosciutto. Place the chicken pieces on a large sheet of aluminum foil, fitting the whole chicken back together again. Secure the shape of the chicken by wrapping the edges of foil over the top, like a package.

Place the package in a terra-cotta casserole and cover tightly with a lid. Place the casserole in a cold oven and turn the heat to $450^{\circ}$. Bake 1 hour and 45 min utes without opening the casserole. Remove casserole from the oven, let rest covered 5 minutes, then remove the lid. Use scissors to cut from the center of the foil outward in four directions, making a large X . Fold each of the four quarters back from the center to the side of the casserole, making a flower shape. Serve hot. Serves 4.

Ricotta soufflé

NGREDIENTS

3 tablespoons mixed glacéed fruit
1 cup milk, heated to lukewarm 15 ounces ricotta
l orange
7 eggs
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
11 tablespoons granulated sugar Butter

METHOD

Soak the glaceed fruit in a bowl with he lukewarm milk for 20 minutes, then drain. Drain the ricotta in a piece of Cheesecloth to remove excess liquid, then olace in a bowl. Grate the orange peel into he ricotta.

Separate 3 of the eggs and add the yolks and remaining whole egg to the ricota and mix thoroughly. When the mixture s homogenous, add the flour, 7 tablespoons sugar, and the drained glaceed fruit. Mix very well with a wooden spoon for 3-4 minutes.

Beat the egg whites with a whisk until they are stiff, then very gently fold into the ricotta mixture. Pour the mixture into a buttered and sugared soufflé dish $81 / 2$ inches in diameter and place it in a preheated $375^{\circ}$ oven for 45 minutes. ## Broiled striped bass

INGREDIENTS

1 6-pound striped bass (have fish market remove backbone, but leave head and tail intact)
1 onion, thinly sliced
1 bunch dill, chopped
1 bunch parsley, chopped
Peanut oil
Freshly ground pepper
Sauce verte (recipз below)

METHOD

$\square$ Measure the fish at the thickest point, from back to belly-you will cook the fish 10 minutes per inch. Wash the fish, then stuff with the onion slices and herbs. Rub the exterior of the fish with peanut oil and sprinkle with pepper.
$\square$ Cut a piece of aluminum foil 2 feet long and 9 inches wide. Fold it into thirds as you would a letter to make a "bandage." Place this piece of foil on the baking pan, then place fish across the foil. Let the ends of the foil hang over the pan to help you flip the fish during cooking. Trim the tail if the fish does not fit the pan. Cut three slashes on the broilling side of the fish -do not cut all the way through. Place under a preheated broiler and broil $1 / 2$ of the calculated time. Turn the fish, make three slashes on the other side, and continue broiling. Serve with sauce verte. Serves 6.

Sauce verte

INGREDIENTS

1 whole egg
1 egg yolk
$11 / 2$ cups olive oil
1 cup mixed fresh herbs, chopped
(garlic, scallions, dill, chives, tarragon, watercress)
1-2 tablespoons lemon juice,
or to taste
Salt, freshly ground pepper
Dijon mustard to taste

METHOD

$\square$ Combine the egg and egg yolk in the work bowl of a food processor. Process briefly to blend well. Then, with the motor running, slowly add the oil in a steady stream until it is incorporated and the mixture is smooth. Stir in the herbs, lemon juice, salt, pepper, and mustard to taste. Makes $11 / 2$ cups sauce.

Poached chicken

INGREDIENTS

1 large carrot, scraped
1 medium onion
2 garlic cloves, peeled
1 leek, green parts only
1 chicken gizzard
Chicken backs, breastbones, and wings
(enough to equal 3 pounds)
1 teaspoon thyme
1 7-pound roasting chicken, trussed
Cream sauce (recipe below)

METHOD

$\square$ Place carrot, onion, garlic, leek greens, chicken gizzard, bones (do not add the wings yet), and thyme in 3 quarts cold water. Make sure all ingredients are covered with water and bring to a boil. Boil 5 minutes, then skim off any scum from the surface. Let the broth boil gently 1 hour or longer.
$\square$ Remove chicken bones from broth and place the trussed chicken in the pot. Add chicken wings, folded and tucked, to the broth. Bring to a boil, baste chicken with broth, and let barely simmer, partialy covered, 45-60 minutes. Remove from heat when tender, but leave chicken in broth to keep warm. Carve the chicken into serving pieces and serve with cream sauce. Serves 6.

Cream sauce

INGREDIENTS

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
Salt, freshly ground pepper
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
2 cups chicken broth
1/4 cup heavy whipping cream
2 egg yolks

METHOD

Melt butter in a heavy pan over medium heat, then slowly stir in flour, a dash salt and pepper, and nutmeg. Cook the roux, stirring, 3-5 minutes-do not let it take on any color.

Slowly add the chicken broth to the roux, mixing all the while. With a fork, mix together the cream and egg yolks in a bowl. Stir 2 teaspoons of the hot roux mixture into the cream and yolks, then whisk the egg mixture back into the roux and broth over medium heat. Whisk until smooth, then serve with chicken. Makes 2 cups sauce.

Yogurt and mustard dressing

INGREDIENTS

1 cup plain yogurt
1 heaping tablespoon Dijon mustard
2 tablespoons oil
Freshly ground pepper
1 scant tablespoon tarragon vinegar
Chopped parsley

METHOD

Mix together in a bowl the yogurt, mustard, oil, pepper, vinegar, and parsley for color. Whisk until smooth. Makes 1 cup dressing.

Baked pears

INGREDIENTS

3-5 slices white bread
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
6-8 Anjou or Comice pears (or use McIntosh or Rome Beauty apples)

$1 / 2$ cup pecans

11/2 cup white raisins
1/2 cup honey
½ teaspoon vanilla

METHOD

Use a biscuit cutter or rim of a small glass to make rounds from white bread. Melt butter and oil in a skillet, add bread rounds, and sauté until lightly browned on both sides. Drain on absorbent toweling.

flour from the working surface and from your hands. Wash and dry your hands. Knead the mass, pressing against it with the heel of your palm, folding it over and turning it again and again. After 8-10 minutes it should be a smooth, compact, and elastic ball of dough. Divide dough in half and pat each into a flat round. Keep one half covered between 2 soup plates while you work with the other.
$\square$ Dust the work surface lightly with flour. Open out the ball of dough with the rolling pin, starting to roll at about $1 / 3$ of the way in on the ball, rolling forward, away from you. Rotate the dough $1 / 4$ turn after every roll so that it opens out into an even, circular shape. As it begins to flatten out, gradually lessen the degree of rotation after each roll, but don't lose control of the shape. It must stay as round as possible. Don't press the dough against the work surface. Roll it out and away, without putting weight on it. Stop when you have rolled out a sheet $1 / 8$-inch thick.
$\square$ Curl the far end of the pasta sheet around the center of the rolling pin, roll it toward you, with both your palms cupped over the center of the pin (1). When you have rolled up about a quarter of the sheet, don't roll up any more. Quickly roll the pin backward and forward, and at the same time slide the palms of your hands away from each other and toward the ends of the rolling pin, dragging them against the surface of the pasta (2). Roll up some more of the sheet, quickly roll backward and forward while repeating the same stretching motion with the palms of your hands. By the time the sheet is completely rolled up, you should have repeated the stretching motion 12-14 times in 8 seconds or less. (3) Turn the pin so it lies at a $45^{\circ}$ angle to edge of table and unroll dough from pin. When repeating rolling and stretching motion, start rolling dough around pin with it held parallel to table edge. Flatten out any bumps or creases, and even off the edges with the rolling pin. If the dough is sticky, dust very lightly with flour from time to time. Repeat the same rolling up and stretching operation several times, until the pasta is almost paper thin and transparent. The entire step must be carried out in not much more than 8 minutes, otherwise the pasta will dry.

$\square$ Fold the sheet of pasta dough loosely 2 or 3 times, leaving a few inches of it not folded up. Keeping the rest of the dough under a towel, cut a continuous strip $2 \frac{1}{2}$ inches wide from the unfolded part. Trim the strip so that it is perfectly straight. (Let trimmings dry to use in soup.)
$\square$ Cut the strip into disks about $21 / 2$ inches in diameter (4). Or cut dough sheet in $11 / 2$ - make them, as the parsley and ricotta filling will not keep.

$\square$ Bring 4 quarts of water with 1 tab'espoon olive oil to a boil. Add 2 tablespoons salt, then drop in the tortellini.

While the tortellini are cooking, choose an enameled cast-iron or other flameproof cook-and-serve pan that will later accommodate all the tortellini without stacking them too high. Put in half the cream and all the butter and simmer over moderate heat for less than a minute, until the cream and butter have thickened. Remove from the heat.
$\square$ When tortellini are done-within 5 minutes after the water returns to a boiltransfer them with a large slotted spoon or colander to the pan with the cream and butter and turn the heat on to low. Turn the tortellini to coat them all with the sauce. Add the rest of the cream and $1 / 2$ cup grated Parmesan and continue turning the tortellini until they are evenly coated, and all the cream has thickened. Serve the tortellini immediately from the same pan with a bowl of grated cheese on the side. Serves 4-6.

Chick-pea soup

INGREDIENTS

$3 / 4$ cup dried chick-peas or 2 16-ounce cans chick-peas
4 whole cloves garlic, peeled
$1 / 3$ cup olive oil
$11 / 2$ teaspoons rosemary leaves, crushed almost to a powder
2/3 cup canned Italian tomatoes, roughly chopped, with their juice
1 cup homemade meat broth or 1 bouillon cube dissolved in 1 cup water
Salt, if necessary
Freshly ground pepper, about 4 twists of the mill

METHOD

$\square$ If you are using dried chick-peas, you must first soak them overnight. Put them in a large enough bowl, add water to cover by 2 inches, and let them soak all night in a warm corner of the kitchen. (Over the gas pilot would be an excellent place, but do not use a plastic bowl.)
$\square$ Discard the water in which the chickpeas have soaked, put them in a mediumsized stockpot, add enough water to come up 1 inch above the chick-peas (do not add salt), and bring them to a boil on top of the stove. Cover tightly and cook in the middle level of a preheated $325^{\circ}$ oven $11 / 2$ hours, or until the chick-peas are tender. Let cool and skin the chick-peas if you wish by rubbing between your fingers.
$\square$ Saute the garlic cloves in the olive oil in a heavy casserole over medium-high heat. When the garlic is well browned, remove it. Add the crushed rosemary leaves to the oil, stir, then add the chopped tomatoes with their juice. Cook over medium heat for about 20-25 minutes, or until the tomatoes separate from the oil.

Add the drained chick-peas and cook for 5 minutes, turning them in the sauce. Add the broth or the dissolved bouillon cube, bring to a boil, cover, and keep at a steady, moderate boil for 15 minutes or less, if you are using canned chick-peas. Taste and correct for salt, add freshly ground pepper, and allow to boil about 1 minute more, uncovered. Serve hot. Serves 4-6.
$\square$ Note: If you are making the soup ahead of time, add the salt and pepper when you warm it up.

Small macaroni with asparagus, cream, and ham

INGREDIENTS

$11 / 2$ pounds fresh asparagus, trimmed, peeled, and blanched
Salt
1-pound package maccheroncini, penne, or other smooth, short tubular pasta
6 ounces boiled unsmoked ham cut into long strips $1 / 4$-inch wide
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup heavy whipping cream
Freshly grated Parmesan cheese

METHOD

$\square$ Cut 1 inch or more off the butt end of each asparagus, until you reach the moist, tender part of the stalk. Pare away the tough green skin from the whole lower half of the stalk to a depth of about $1 / 16$ inch. Remove any small leaves sprouting below the tip of the spear. Wash all the asparagus in cold water.
$\square$ Choose a pan long or broad enough to accommodate all the asparagus lying flat. Put in 2 inches water and 1 tablespoon salt. Place over medium high heat. When the water boils, slip in the asparagus and cover the pan. Cook 4-8 minutes after the water returns to a boil, depending on the freshness and thickness of the asparagus. It should be cooked until tender but still firm.
$\square$ Drain the asparagus. When cool enough to handle, cut off the spear tips at their bases and cut the rest of the stalks into lengths of about $3 / 4$ inch. Discard any parts of the stalks that are still woody and tough. Set aside all the rest for later.
$\square$ Bring 4-5 quarts water to a boil, add salt, and when the water resumes boiling, put in the pasta.
$\square$ Put the ham and 1 tablespoon butter into a small sauté pan. Cook gently over medium-low heat 2-3 minutes. Do not crisp the ham.
$\square$ Wipe dry the pan in which you cooked the asparagus. Put in the remaining 1 tablespoon butter and set the pan over medium heat. As soon as the butter is completely melted, but before it begins to foam, put in the asparagus. Turn the heat to high and sook for $30-40$ seconds, long enough to turn all the asparagus in the butter.
$\square$ Add the ham to the asparagus, put in the cream, and set the pan over medium high heat. Stir constantly for about 30 seconds, or until the cream thickens. Remove from the heat. Taste and correct for salt.
$\square$ When the pasta is cooked al dente, drain it well, and transfer to a warm serving bowl. Add the asparagus mixture to the pasta. Toss thoroughly, mixing in $2 / 3$ cup grated cheese. Serve at once, with additional grated cheese available on the side. Serves 4-6.
$\square$ Note: Though not traditional, you can add green beans to cook with the asparagus: $1 / 2$-pound green beans, trimmed into 2-inch lengths, blanched 3-5 minutes (optional).

Sautéed diced eggplant

INGREDIENTS

2 medium eggplants (about 3 pounds) Salt
1 teaspoon garlic, finely chopped
5 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons parsley, finely chopped
Freshly ground pepper, about 6 twists of the mill

METHOD

Peel the eggplants and cut into 1 -inch cubes. Put them in a colander and sprinkle liberally with salt. Toss and turn the eggplant cubes so that there is some salt on all of them. Allow to stand for at least 30 minutes, draining the eggplant of as much of its excess liquid as possible. Remove from the colander and blot with a paper towel.
$\square$ Saute the garlic with 4 tablespoons olive oil in a skillet over medium heat until it colors lightly. Add the eggplant pieces, turning them frequently. At first the eggplant will absorb all the oil. Don't panicturn the pieces rapidly and keep shaking the pan. Add 1 more tablespoon of oil after 5 minutes. (You will not need any more oil, because as the eggplant cooks the oil will reappear on the surface.) After 10 or 12 minutes, add the chopped parsley and stir it well. Add the pepper and continue cooking until the eggplant is tender but firm, about 30 minutes. Taste and correct for salt; then spoon into a warm platter and serve. Serves 4-6.

Note: You can prepare the dish entirely ahead of time and when cool, refrigerate in its cooking juices, under plastic wrap. When reheating, put it in a skillet (no additional oil is required) and warm it slowly over medium-low heat.

Pan-roasted squab

INGREDIENTS

4 fresh squab, about 1 pound each, cleaned and plucked
2 dozen medium, dried sage leaves (if using fresh leaves, add 6 more) 4 strips pancetta, $11 / 2$ inches long,
$1 / 2$ inch wide, and $1 / 4$ inch thick Salt, freshly ground pepper 3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
$2 / 3$ cup dry white wine

METHOD

$\square$ Reserve the squab livers but discard the hearts and gizzards (or hold them for a risotto). Wash the squab in cold running water and pat dry thoroughly inside and out. Stuff the cavity of each bird with 2 sage leaves, 1 strip pancetta, and 1 liver, and season with 2 pinches of salt and a twist of pepper.
$\square$ Heat the butter and gil over mediumhigh heat in a skillet large enough to hold all the squab. When the butter foam subsides, add the remaining sage leaves and then the squab. Brown the squab evenly on all sides and season with salt and pepper. Add the wine. Turn the heat to high, allowing the wine to boil briskly for $30-40$ seconds. While the wine is bubbling, turn and baste the squab, then lower the heat to medium-low and cover the skillet. Turn the birds every 15 minutes. They should be tender and done in 1 hour.
Transfer the squab to a warm platter. (If you are serving $1 / 2$ bird per person, halve them with poultry scissors.) Tip the pan and draw off some of the cooking fat with a spoon. Add 2 tablespoons warm water, turn the heat to high, and while the water evaporates, scrape up and loosen any cooking residue in the pan. Pour over the squab and serve. Serves 4-6.

fork until the mixture is crumbly. Turn out onto a work surface and knead until the dough is smooth, $5-6$ minutes. Roll the dough out into a circle 12-13 inches in diameter. To make transferring it to the pan easier, roll out dough on a lightly floured sheet of cardboard or kitchen parchment. Transfer the pastry to a buttered and lightly floured 10 -inch springform, covering the bottom and letting it come up the sides. Smooth it with your fingertips, pressing down and thinning any thick folds.

METHOD FOR TAGLIARINI

$\square$ Combine the eggs and flour as directed in the first step of the tortellini recipe. Knead the dough by hand several minutes, then finish kneading with a pasta machine, feeding the dough through the narrow blades (between 0 and 1 on an electric pasta machine). When the dough is thoroughly thinned out, cut it with the smallest cutter and place the pasta on a dry towel.

METHOD FOR ASSEMBLY

$\square$ Layer some of the (raw) pasta on top of the dough in the springform. Sprinkle $1 / 2$ of the almond mixture over the pasta, then sprinkle part of the butter pieces over that. Make another layer of pasta, almond mixture, and butter, then place the rest of the pasta on top. Sprinkle the reserved 4 tablespoons of almond mixture and 1 tablespoon sugar over it. Place the springform on the upper rack of a preheated $375^{\circ}$ oven 15 minutes. After 15 minutes, cover the top with a round of buttered wax paper and continue baking 25 minutes. Remove springform from the oven, remove the wax paper round, and immediately sprinkle the rum over the cake. Let the cake cool thoroughly, remove from the springform, and serve the following day.

Caviar d'aubergine

INGREDIENTS

1 large eggplant (reserve leaves if you have them from the garden)
1 large Bermuda onion, peeled and chopped
1 cup olive oil
1 tablespoon salt
2 teaspoons black pepper
1 medium green pepper, roasted, peeled, and chopped
1 medium red pepper, roasted, peeled, and chopped
1/2 cup parsley, chopped
Juice of 1 lemon
3 small-medium ripe tomatoes, halved 3 small-medium zucchini, halved

METHOD

Prick the skin of the eggplant with a fork in several places. Place on the top rack of a preheated $500^{\circ}$ oven and bake until soft, about 45-50 minutes. While the eggplant is still warm, use a wooden spoon to remove pulp from skin and place in a large glass or wooden bowl. Add onion and, mixing constantly, pour in olive oil, bit by bit, until the mixture is smooth. Add more oil if necessary. Season highly with salt and pepper. Cover and chill thoroughly.
$\square$ When the mixture is cold, add green and red peppers, parsley, and lemon juice to taste. Blend well.
$\square$ Scoop the flesh out of the tomatoes and turn them upside down to drain on paper towels. Refrigerate.
$\square$ Scoop the flesh out of the zucchini, salt the hollowed halves, and turn them upside down to drain on paper towels.
$\square$ Place a washed eggplant leaf and a zucchini and tomato half on a small plate. Stuff the tomato and zucchini with the eggplant caviar. Garnish with parsley. Serves 6.

Suzy's dip for crudités

INGREDIENTS

1 teaspoon salt
$1 / 2$ teaspoon celery salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and pressed dry
1 cup sour cream
$1 / 2$ cup mayonnaise
$1 / 2$ cup parsley, chopped
$1 / 2$ cup onion, minced
Dash lemon juice

METHOD

$\square$ Combine all ingredients in a bowl, mix well, and chill, covered, in the refrigerator 4 days to let flavors blend. Bring to room temperature before serving. Makes about 2 cups of dip.

Rice salad

INGREDIENTS
1 tablespoon salt
2 cups rice
3-4 tablespoons olive oil
Salt, pepper
1 large green pepper, chopped
1 medium Spanish onion, chopped
1 large tomato, peeled and chopped
1/2 cup parsley, chopped
1/4 cup fresh basil, chopped
1 cup homemade mayonnaise (optional)

METHOD

$\square$ Pour rice into a large pot of boiling salted water. Stir once and cook, uncov ered, 11 minutes until rice is nearly tender.
$\square$ Drain rice and rinse in a colander. Set the colander back over the pot filled with a small amount of water and return to the stove. Place lid over rice and steam 20-25 minutes or until tender. Remove rice anc place in a large bowl. Toss with oil, salt. and pepper to taste and let cool.
$\square$ When rice is cool, add pepper, onion, tomato, and herbs, toss gently, then chill thoroughly. Just before serving, taste and adjust seasoning. Serve with homemade mayonnaise, if you wish. Serves 6 .

Roast chicken with carrots

$22^{1 / 2}-3$-pound or 16 -pound chicken 1 lime
Sea salt, pepper
$6-8$ small-medium carrots with tops, washed, scraped, and dried
3-4 sprigs summer savory
1 tablespoon carrot top, chopped 5-6 scallions, washed and sliced

METHOD

$\square$ Wash chicken and pat dry. Rub inside and out with cut lime halves, sprinkle with salt and pepper inside and out.
$\square$ Slice carrots thinly and place inside chicken with the savory, chopped carrot top, and scallions. Drizzle lime juice over the vegetables and outside of chicken. Truss chicken, place in baking pan lined with 2-3 whole carrot tops. Sprinkle sea salt over chicken, roast in a preheated $375^{\circ}$ oven $11 / 2$ hours, until juices run clear when thigh is pierced with a fork.
$\square$ Remove chicken from oven and let rest 20 minutes. Place a "bed" of carrot tops on a serving platter, then put the chicken on top. Carve into serving pieces at the table and serve with the carrot, herb, and scallion "stuffing." Serves 6.
$\square$ Note: You may also grill the chicken. Cut it into quarters, place carrots, onions, and herbs under skin of chicken, baste with honey and lime juice while grilling (1/2 cup honey, 2 tablespoons lime juice).

Walnut cake

INGREDIENTS

1/2 pound butter
3 scant cups sugar
6 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
3 cups cake flour, sifted
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
$1 / 2$ teaspoon salt
1 cup sour cream
1 cup walnuts, finely chopped
Confectioners sugar

METHOD

$\square$ Cream the butter and sugar together in a bowl until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, one by one, and beat well after each addition. Add vanilla to the mixture, blend well, and set aside.
$\square$ Sift the cake flour and soda together once, Set aside, reserving $1 / 2$ cup.
$\square$ Beat the egg whites with salt in a bowl until stiff peaks form,

Mix the sour cream and flour, alternating between the two, into the butter and sugar mixture. Blend well.

Dust the nuts with the reserved flour and fold into the batter. Then fold beaten egg whites into the batter. Pour into a greased and floured 10 -inch tube pan and bake in a preheated $350^{\circ}$ oven 1-11/4 hours or until done. Remove from oven and cool the cake, in the pan, on a rack. When cool, turn out of the pan and dust with confectioners sugar.

Tart Tatin

INGREDIENTS FOR PASTRY

2 cups flour
1/2 cup butter, softened
1 egg yolk
3 tablespoons confectioners sugar $1 / 2$ teaspoon salt

INGREDIENTS FOR FILLING

2 tablespoons butter, softened
1/2 cup sugar
5-6 pounds Golden Delicious apples, peeled, halved, and cored
6 tablespoons butter, melted
1 cup heavy cream, whipped (optional)

METHOD FOR PASTRY

$\square$ Sift the flour onto a marble slab or board and make a large well in the center. Add the butter, egg yolk, sugar, salt, and 3 tablespoons cold water and work the center ingredients with the fingertips until well mixed. Gradually draw in the flour, working with fingertips of both hands so that the mixture forms coarse crumbs, adding more water if necessary. Press the dough into a ball-it should be soft but not sticky. Knead it with the heel of your hand until butter is well incorporated, then chill 30 minutes.

METHOD FOR FILLING AND ASSEMBLY

$\square$ Butter the base of a heavy round mold or skillet 12-14 inches in diameter with the softened butter and sprinkle with $1 / 2$ the sugar. Arrange $1 / 2$ the apples on their sides in tight circles on top of sugar, sprinkling with half the melted butter. Repeat layers of apples and butter. Sprinkle remaining sugar on top. Heat on top of the stove for about 5-10 minutes, or until a light caramel is formed.
$\square$ Bake the apples on a cookie sheet on the bottom shelf of a preheated $375^{\circ}$ oven 20 minutes. Let cool a little until the steam evaporates.
$\square$ Roll out the dough into a circle and chill 15 minutes. Place over the apples so that they are completely covered. Trim dough to the inner edge of the skillet. Bake 15 more minutes, or until the crust is golden brown. Remove and let the tart cool to tepid in the skillet, then turn it out onto a heatproof platter. If any apple sticks to the bottom of the pan, remove it with a palette knife and replace on the tart. You can bake the tart 6-8 hours ahead of time, then keep it at room temperature. Serve the tart warm, with whipped cream to be passed separately, if you like. Serves 6-8.

Strawberry cake

INGREDIENTS FOR GENOISE
3 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
$1 / 2$ teaspoon vanilla
$1 / 2$ cup flour
Pinch salt
3 tablespoons butter,
melted and clarified
INGREDIENTS FOR ITALIAN MERINGUE BUTTER CREAM
1 cup minus 2 tablespoons sugar
3 egg whites
11/4 cups sweet butter
1112 cups strawberry purée
( $11 / 2$ pints strawberries pressed through a food mill or sieve)

- 1 tablespoon kirsch

INGREDIENTS FOR SYRUP AND ASSEMBLY
11/2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon kirsch
2 pints strawberries (leave 12 unhulled-hull and halve the rest)
Confectioners sugar
1 #10 marzipan
Red food coloring (optional)

METHOD FOR GENOISE

$\square$ Put the eggs in a large bowl, preferably copper, and gradually beat in the sugar. Set the bowl over a pan of hot but not boiling water or over very low heat and beat 8-10 minutes, or until the mixture is light and thick enough to leave a ribbon trail when the whisk is lifted. Take bowl from heat, add vanilla, and continue beating until the mixture is cool.
$\square$ Sift the flour and salt together 2-3 times, then sift over the batter in 3 batches, folding in each batch with a wooden spatula or metal spoon as lightly as possible. Just after the last batch of flour, add the butter and fold in both together. The batter quickly loses volume after the butter is added.
$\square$ Pour the batter into a buttered and floured 9-inch layer pan or a 7-8-inch springform and bake in a preheated $350^{\circ}$ oven 25-30 minutes, or until the cake shrinks slightly from the sides of the pan, and the top springs back when lightly pressed with a fingertip. Let the cake rest in the pan 5 minutes. Run a knife around the sides of the cake to loosen it and turn out on a rack to cool. You can keep the cake several days in an airtight container or freeze it.

METHOD FOR ITALIAN

 MERINGUE BUTTER CREAM$\square$ Heat the sugar with $1 / 3$ cup water over low heat until dissolved. Bring to a boil and boil without stirring until the syrup reaches the hard ball stage, $250^{\circ}$. As the syrup boils, wash down any sugar crystals from the sides of the pan with a brush dipped in water. Meanwhile, stiffly whip the egg whites in a bowl. Gradually pour in the hot sugar syrup, whisking constantly, and continue whisking until the meringue is cold-it will be stiff and glossy. Thoroughly cream the butter in a large bowl and whisk in the meringue a little at a time. Gradually beat the strawberry purée into the butter cream, then add the kirsch.

METHOD FOR SYRUP  AND ASSEMBLY

$\square$ Bring $1 / 2$ cup sugar and $1 / 2$ cup water to a boil in a heavy saucepan. Cook to $214^{\circ}$, then let cool and stir in the kirsch.

INGREDIENTS

2/3 cup unbleached all-purpose flour, sifted
$11 / 3$ cups confectioners sugar, sifted
$11 / 2$ teaspoon powdered ginger 1/2 cup heavy cream (do not use ultra-pasturized)
2 egg whites (U.S. grade large) Butter

METHOD

$\square$ Sift flour, sugar, ginger into a bowl. Whip cream in another bowl to a froth. Beat egg whites in a third bowl until they hold very soft peaks. Spoon beaten cream and whites into flour mixture, stir until well blended. Leave batter to rest about 10 minutes.
$\square$ Place a well-buttered heavy cookie sheet next to the bowl of batter. Dip a dinner knife into the batter and give the knife a turn; this should gather a half teaspoon or more batter onto the blade. Strike a mark on the cookie sheet with the knife and draw it towards you, leaving a thin line or tail. The cookies should be about $2 \frac{1}{2}$ inches long. They will spread, so leave about $11 / 2$ inches between each cookie. When you have filled the cookie sheet, place it in the middle rack of the oven for about 7 minutes. Watch carefully, and when the edges are brown, remove the cookies from the oven. Let them cool on the sheet for 1-2 minutes (they will be quite soft when just out of the oven). Finish cooling on Probably not. No famous person was born in this house. No treaties were signed here.

This house is simply a charming example of period architecture that is perfectly suited to today.
It doesn't take a mansion to be a landmark. There are thousands of fine buildings like this one all across the country. They're part of our heritage too, just like

Monticello and Mount Vernon.

These buildings can be revitalized by adapting them to modern uses.

Now it is very democratic-parties are organized like family cooking-main course, dessert, period. The stop comes out only for anniversaries, birthdays, holidays (when more help from family is usually available), and even then menus are scrutinized with a practical eyewhat can be done ahead, dishes that are easy to serve and leave few pots behind; foods that wait and hold well. You don't need flowers for a centerpiece, when you can fill a pot with pretty new potatoes. Short-stemmed glasses work fine for wine, and they fit in my dishwasher. A dozen matching plates are still a good investment, but it is fun to have four plates each of three different patterns: You will have many more parties for four or eight than twelve.

Smaller parties are comforting; little preparation is needed for four close friends coming to share a simple meal. The first and most important step for giving a party is: Invite someone over. It doesn't matter how many you ask, or if they come in pairs or match. The invitation can be as simple as "Why not drop in for a drink?" Only then do you do a mental inventory of the cupboards for a possible go-with. Necessity is the mother of invention (anchovies and butter creamed together and spread on bread that's been toasted in the oven to become Melba toast). Or you could invite a friend in for meat loaf. And give him just that-but yours happens to be jazzed up with red wine and shallots. Or, if you are feeling very brave, ask several people for dinner two weeks hence (sure sign of a serious party). Just do it; once you commit yourself to it, the rest is easy.

Opt out of any culinary competition. A party should be an adventure, not a showdown. A party is an excuse to cook in a different style after the week's routine meals. The old advice had you practice a menu ("the best surprise is no surprise") until you were sure you could reproduce it under stress (your assumed state when giving a party). But that robs cooking for friends of its creativity and also its suspense-how will it turn out tonight? The only rule is you cannot criticize your own food. If something does not work out, call it by a new name and declare it your own invention. A beurre monté sauce becomes a beurre fondu; I made cream pralines that failed miserably, but turned into a wonderful candy after some experimentation; an only half-failed first attempt at bread became English muffin bread. It was such a hit, the fledgling inventor/baker will now have to reproduce it!

New dishes do not always work-like the time I made a risotto, then without thinking (thinking: a simple process that can prevent many mistakes), put a lid on it while serving the first course. I returned to find not a risotto but my old friend gluey rice with peas and bacon. But it still tasted good, so I served it anyway (there was no choice). The party turned out to be one of my best, and I learned that the food doesn't have to be perfect.

Everyone has to find his own way of dealing with the problems and limitations that confront and confound the desire to put on a good party. A friend in St. Louis, who must do a great deal of entertaining for her husband's work, lacked a dining table big enough to seat guests for a formal party. She hired a harpist to play in the foyer as guests arrived, and spread family linens and silver on the floor-where everyone ate with great pleasure. If you want to cook a fistful of recipes from 3-star French chefs all at once, but the shopping list sinks your budget, enlist friends to help buy the ingredients to spread the cost out. If you're known as a talented cook, they will jump at the chance to eat so well. If you have a job that keeps you late, organize everything to the minute. While I refuse to vacuum before a party, especially one in the evening when dust is harder to see (there will be a new crop of crumbs afterwards-why clean twice?), I must have a clean kitchen. Because a clean kitchen is ready to hop into action: Pots are ready, spoons can be grabbed. It is the best aid when you are in a hurry. Walk in from work, drop coat on way to kitchen, put on apron, and start peeling carrots while the oven preheats. One-half hour later, the salad is assembled, the main dish is in the oven, the first course chills in the refrigerator or is on a counter warming to room temperature, and you pick up your coat on the way back to the bedroom to change. You couldn't do it if you had to wash a sinkful of dishes first.

Any time of day is fine for parties: an early breakfast before a shared walk to work, a cup of cappucino in the afternoon, or a prepared-ahead late-night supper after the theatre. My husband entertains at breakfast, which he cooks anytime from 7 in the morning to 9 at night. It is a wonderful, informal way to have friends over, and they come eagerly, especially if they already know the menu: scrambled eggs and his perfect home fries. Ritual demands that we all gather in the kitchen while he carefully prepares them, hunger rising with the aroma of onion and garlic. He makes his potatoes with such love and attention, they are irresistible. As we sit around the table sharing the food, the time, and the talk, it is clear that the new rules for entertaining-if keep it simple, minimize fuss, stay flexible, and relax can be called new rules-have made it easier to enjoy friends more often.

The fear of ing an error is only hu; it shouldn't stop anyone. 1 a mistake is a far better ce of amusement than ection. If it doesn't cost much. I try not to attempt jects which, if they fail, ld be dangerous or too ensive for me to laugh ut. Fixing the leaking roof probably the exception to a those rules: My daughter 10 is eighteen) and I got his tar and some old mops climbed up on the flat f and slathered the tar and. Yes, we did have to k back through it to get in the ladder. And yes we laged to tar the places ch did not leak, but not, we later learned, the places that did. Lesson: It is probably a good idea to walk a project through before beginning.

My favorite project was my bed, which I decided would go in this sunken area in my own little studio-house. I wanted it to be magical and dazzling, never mind smooth professionalism. Which leads me, for a moment, to this: Most do-it-yourself projects look best if flair and effect are more of a consideration than technique. This is complete self-defense, of course, because I happen to have very little patience and only do things myself because I want this look right now. No one should ever see the wall behind pictures I have hung. So, for this bed, I went to a barn in New York State, where a man has all sorts of logs and old beams (some of which also inspired me to pull down walls and ceilings just to use the beams-nothing is more exciting than pulling down walls, except perhaps living by candlelight until the electrician comes to put back the wiring one has inadvertently hacked away at. But this is another story covered by the rule about staying away from electricity, to which I add the note that it is often in places you wouldn't expect it to be). I found four perfect cedar tree trunks, stripped them of some of the bark, covered them with polyurethane, and, with the help of my friend Norman, who understands these things, put together a fourposter bed. Then I strung little white Christmas tree lights around it, forming a canopy frame, and suspended a mosquito netting on a hoop (found in Key West) from the ceiling. The effect is lovely and I have almost forgotten the part about how we had to take the bed apart in order to put it down into the sunken area after we had built it somewhere else

Determination and confidence will help you deal with experts who claim certain things cannot be done. I wanted a rustic shower lined with wood. I was told it wouldn't work, and no professional would do it. But ships have been built of wood for centuries. So Norman and I bought some planks of rough Continued on page 223 sawn cedar and cemented them up with waterproof glue, then coated them with a waterproof resin. Another shower is lined with a Spanish-tile-patterned flooring vinyl, which we were also told wouldn't work. It works-like a lot of things, if it hasn't been done, one will be told it can't be. Shower doors were made by a carpenter when I couldn't find wooden framed ones. And to continue with showers, which, it seems to me, do not have to resemble refrigerators, if you have to have a shower curtain, take a plain clear one and paint it with acrylics in a pattern you love. I adore painting anything, including sailcloth for pillows when needlework takes too long. And when my children were small I bought really terrible furniture, which still would not be chic enough to be called retro, and painted chests and chairs with such swoops and designs and fringes that they resembled carrousel ponies.

Most of the time you are told something won't work because it won't last for years. I'm not sure that I want most of my effects to last for years. It's a little like one's gentlemen friends. What is enticing this year, I'll be used to next year and bored with the year after that.

When projects seem too large or difficult to consider, I try to minimize them in my mind and ask, how would I do this in a doll house? Or I get friends to help. One way to do this is to mention first the large vat of chili simmering on the stove and then you say a little something about, "and later maybe we'll just throw up these bookshelves." I do everything with a lot of pine, which is soft and easy to work with, and left natural, with a couple of coats of polyurethane, looks pale and warm. I've even learned to put up mirrors by nailing strips of pine around them. I'm better now at using things like molly bolts, which hold up the plants, pleasing them immeasurably. Once you do something, you wonder why it ever seemed forbidding. This is especially true of electric drills, which at first reminded me of guns. However, where a man will take an entire day puttering about with an enormous amount of heavy-duty extension cords and trays of bits and so forth, if wood is involved it's a lot easier to make a hole with an awl and a hammer.

Certain things still defeat me. I am not good at getting things straight, so when straight is necessary, it helps to have help from a friend who is. Alas, help of this sort is not always available, and as a result I find people look at some of my projects with their heads slightly cocked, which is generous to a fault. I flunked elementary sewing in college (short-circuiting a dazzling career as a costume designer), because I could not master the sewing machine. This is why there are no curtains in the house. Yet. I have a feeling that if I buy the machine I will be shamed into learning how to work it. It seems to me a lot of skills come about backwards-there is a need, one asks questions, finds the right equipment, and simply (or not so simply) learns to do it.

Working on my house, helping or just watching the experts, has made me feel part of it, very close to it. I know this house now and respect its idiosyncracies. It may startle me, but it's never as mysterious as houses I simply lived in. With spring here, I'll start getting to know the land. I will read about gardens, watch my friends who already know, ask questions and see what we can grow, this acre and I.

Twelve things you probably cannot do, even if you know how

1. Put in skylights which will not leak. 2. Find goodlooking screen doors (although you can find goodlooking carpenters to help you build them. Idle observation: Carpenters and electricians tend to be cuter than plumbers and painters. But there are exceptions to everything).
2. Truck in and set up your own refrigerator. This is a matter of some sort of balancing. My friends tried to bring over my old one for the basement and it did not travel well. At all, actually.
3. Find exactly what you're looking for in stock. Anything I'm going to like has to be ordered from a place where there is a strike. The exception to the rule about exceptions is there is no exception to this.
4. Or at a sale price.
5. Have any job finished in the time you expect.
6. Have it cost what you planned. This applies to do-it-yourself as well because you shop-it-yourself and always find a few absolutely inspirational things you didn't know you needed.
7. Get any new technique right the second time you try it. The first time you will be extra careful. The second time, overconfident.
8. Plan an exterior painting job for a day it will not rain. If it is not raining that day, it will be only because you have bought the wrong kind of paint and it is Sunday and cannot be exchanged. 10. Lend tools to a friend and get them all back. The hammer will be misplaced. Or you will misplace it yourself. Buy two and hide one for midnight impulses to hang up a lot of things, such as baskets or the pictures in the coat closet which you suddenly want to see again.
9. Expect anyone to clean up. Keep old sheets for dropcloths, especially for carpenters who never think they need them.
10. Put up a lot of mirrors without breaking one. Walk around the shards seven times if you believe a broken mirror brings bad luck. It will break the spell and exercise your consternation.

Materials: One reversible quilt, narrowgauge galvanized chain, measuring tape, cording (instructions, page 122), scissors, needle. and thread.
Method: Measure the table's diameter, and add 16 inches. This will be the size of the square tablecloth. (A 36-inch table needs a tablecloth 52 inches square.) Cut enough chain to go around all four sides.

- Cut the quilt to size and, inserting chain to weight the tablecloth, stitch the inner and outer edges of quilt together to form a hem.
- Cut cording in 4 pieces, one for each side, adding an extra 2 feet to each side for tying. Sew the trim onto the bottom of each hem, leaving a foot on each end. Repeat on the other three sides.
- At each corner tie a square knot with the extra cording and let the ends drift to the floor.

Roses all the way

It's unusual to hear of a European tour devoted to just one kind of flower, but if any flower is worthy of such a distinction, certainly it is the rose. So, for the summer of 1979 -year of the rose-the Heritage Roses Group has assembled a batch of gardens to be visited in France, East Germany, and England. Beginning at the Empress Josephine's Malmaison, near Paris, the tour proceeds to the Loire valley châteaux country, then to Weimar and Dresden in East Germany, ending up at Victoria Sackville-West's Sissinghurst and a big handful of other famous English gardens. Although old-time roses and rose gardens are the focus of the trip, there will be much to interest gar-den-minded people in general. The tour leaves the U.S. on June 7, 1979, and returns July 1. Prices and full information may be had from Laveda Mair, Box 7143, Berkeley, Calif. 94707. The Heritage Roses Group is an organization devoted entirely to the study and appreciation of old-time and species roses. Membership to the Group costs $$ 3$ a year and includes four informationpacked bulletins yearly. Membership information may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Miss Jerry Fellman, 947 Broughtonway, Woodburn, Ore. 97071.

"Plant Gold in '79"

Fifty years old and still growing. That's the National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc., a federation of some 14.000 regional and state clubs with 400,000 members. Long a force for gardening and nature conservation, Garden Clubs, Inc., is celebrating its golden anniversary at a convention in New Orleans May 6-11. This summer and fall, communities in 50 states will shine with yellow and gold flowers as members compete for "Plant Gold in " 79 " commemorative awards. They'll be presented in 1980 by the National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc., 4401 Magnolia Avenue, St. Louis, Mo. 63110.

Boxes for plants

A plant box like the one on page simple enough to build, plant, and m tain if you have a good set of basil structions to follow. The Window Primer, by Maggy Geiger and La Russ (Fawcett, $1.95) tells exactly to do, beginning with construction terials and ending with suggestions carrying the window box through winter. Vegetables and herbs are cluded as are a multitude of ideas attractive plant combinations. All at lustrated with attractive line draw and photographs.

Easter in August

The Easter lily, Lilium longiflorum, most obliging plant. Having lent its bi ty to Eastertide decoration, it will c repeat performance in the late sum garden. If you had one of the lilies fl ering for Easter, all you have to d keep it growing-water and suns? will do the trick-until the dange frost is past in your neighborhood, then plant it out in the garden. Be to break off the old flowers as they $f$ to prevent the formation of seed $p$ but don't remove any leaves as lon they stay green. Apply fertilizer jus you do to the rest of your garden otherwise leave the plant alone. The $\varepsilon$ that flowered in the spring will die afl while, but a new stalk will grow up ts place it, and will flower in summer at as well as the earlier one. The bulb flower year after year, but if it doe never mind-it has already given more than your money's worth.

Making more plants

It is good to know that one of the old liable guides to plant propagatior available once more, with up-to-date visions and additions. This is Plant Pl agation in Pictures, by Montague $\mathbf{F}$ (Doubleday, \$9.95), first published 1957 and brought up to date by Marje J. Dietz. One of the last published wc Ionty Free-who spent the whole of ag lifetime working with plants-the k explains in detail every known way rultiplying plants. From the simplest hod of sowing seeds to the most soticated of grafting, all the ways of ing several plants grow from a single are clearly explained and clearly trated in black-and-white photohs. On the dust jacket, Mr. Free is ted on the "thrill of accomplishment" e found in making plants multiply. following his instructions, we can all e the thrill.

eing America

educated eye of one person, properpplied, can open the eyes of others to ghts they might otherwise miss. id Frazier has such an eye, and also a way with a camera, so his book und the House (Quick Fox, $6.95 erback) holds delight and instruction all of us. The title refers to the surndings of houses, including natural iscape, gardens of every persuasion, architectural elements used outrs. The photographs, all in color, e taken all over the U.S., and are untioned. ## Treasure in Pennsylvania

A treasure in "Small Town, USA" is the recently restored Wright's Ferry Mansion in Columbia, Pa. Here you'll find one of the finest collections of Pennsylvania William and Mary and Queen Anne furniture from 1700 to 1750. (Look for the rare William and Mary chest on chest, 1727, in the parlor.)

This limestone house, one-room deep, was built in 1783 for Susanna Wright, a Quaker of taste and learning. The house reflects a certain warmth, as if Mistress Wright were still there: Fine silk dresses hang in the bedroom; vegetables from the Lancaster markets await the kettle in the kitchen; a ledger lies on the parlor desk. Wright's Ferry Mansion, 38 Second Street, Columbia, Pa. 17512, open May-Oct.

It's $50 \phi$ and prepared by the National Oak Flooring Manufacturer's Association, 804 Sterick Building, Memphis, Tenn. 38103.

The Shakespeare Garden needs you

"I know a bank where'on the wild thyme blows" A Midsummer-Night's Dream Needless to say, there's a lot of interest in The Public Broadcasting System's ambitious airing over the next six years of all Shakespeare's plays. And gardening Shakespeare devotees have always delighted in the botanical information they contain. According to the experts, there are some 167 herbs, flowers, extracts of plants, and other natural trees and shrubs mentioned in the plays and sonnets. And one way to learn and enjoy the beauty of the plants is in the new Shakespeare Garden at the Brooklyn Botanical Garden in Brooklyn, N. Y.

About 103 varieties have already been planted in the heart of the garden's $500-$ acre plan. The official opening is June 23, when almost everything will be in bloom. A serpentine red-brick wall about $31 / 2$ feet high, on which vines and creepers entwine, borders the garden on the south. Each variety of plant is carefully labeled with a quote from its play or sonnet as well as the approximate date when the plant is thought to have been brought to our shores. The botanists at the Brooklyn Botanical Garden believe that their undertaking is the largest of its kind in America.
Shakespearean thumbs alert: Still needed are the Adonis Flower, Broom, Cowslip, Daffodil (native variety), Harebell or Holy Thistle, Lady Smocks, Medlar, Oxslips, and Aconitum. If you can help with a plant, please write to the Head Gardener, Brooklyn Botanical Garden, 1000 Washington Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y. 11225.

3E CHOOSEY

A winter savory for all seasonsand many uses

Winter savory, Satureja montana, is the original culinary salt substitute. Although it was used initially to compensate for a shortage of salt rather than to comply with a physician's recommendations, investigating its taste appeal today may well be in order for anyone on a salt-free diet. A rather pungent herb, it can substitute for pepper as well.

Traditionally served with beans, because of its oft-sworn-to ability to counteract that legume's most common digestive problem, winter savory is also, for the same soothing reason, used in salad dressings, particularly for cucumbers. Trout is delicious served in savory. And, of course, there's tea. Peppery and hot, savory tea really puts the zing into your hot beverage repertoire.

The leaves of $S$. montana are narrow, needly, and thyme-like. The perennial is adept at indoor growth if raised in a cool, sunny spot. It prefers sweet soil, so add a teaspoon of lime to the potting soil, which should otherwise be rather lean and plain. Water your winter savory' moderately and pinch back as you cook with the leaves to keep it bushy. If you need more plants, hill some rich, humusy soil an inch or 2 up the stem of the parent plant. Keep this soil constantly moist, and in two or three months new plants will form at the base of the old. Separate and pot up in lean soil, and the winter savory will keep coming. Order seeds from Park's Seed Co., Greenwood, S. C. RICHARDI.ANGER

Out of the museum and... into your life
"You have to think of a museum as a guardian of the things that have been made during the course of a civilization's development. A museum can no longer be merely a repository, a bank vault for safe keeping." So says Mr. Daniel Berger, the manager of the Metropolitan Museum of Art's new Mezzanine Gallery, scheduled to open this fall. "People today want to be able to use the beautiful things they see here." As manager of the Museum's new Print Publication Program, Mr. Berger has commissioned limited-edition prints from some of America's best-known modern print masters. Who's participating? Ellsworth Kelly's charcoal sketch of botanical subjects on fine Rives paper starts the series. Prints by Helen Frankenthaler, Alexander Liberman, Nancy Graves, Al Held, and Richard Haas will be part of the group. Another of Mr. Berger's projects is the introduction of the Italian "Doccia" pattern for a dish made from the same molds and by the same factory at Sesto Fiorentino in Italy. The dish measures over 9 inches long and costs $$ 35$; the Kelly print, $$ 500$. Write for The Metropolitan Museum of Art Catalogue, Box 255, Gracie Station, New York, N.Y. 10028. $$ 1$ ppd.

Above board

Use your counter for chopping and let your cookbook face you up front. This tidy spacemaker closes flush with the face of your 12 -inch cabinet or shelf. Made of solid birch framing a polyure-thane-coated Masonite desk with birch linkage and brass fittings. The "Stowaway" is 16 by $113 / 4$ inches wide and $11 / 2$ deep when closed. $$ 31.95$ or $$ 29.95$ unfinished. Write "Stow-away," Box 215. Franklin Lakes, N.J. 07417.

Antiques in order

When you collect antiques, you will find that you're acquiring plenty of papers to go with them-receipts, bills, insurance forms, and the like. "The most important, the bill of sale, is the best way of authenticating what you bought, because it has a description of the piece on it," says David Redden of Sotheby Parke Bernet in New York. "You should keep all other forms and receipts in order to report capital gains or losses on your tax forms." You can keep all this information together, neatly, in The Kovel's Organizer for Collectors, with space for listing over 150 pieces plus room for photographs. As the book is loose-leaf bound, you add pages. Crown. $$ 8.95$.

Foreign aid

Getting your money's worth when you buy abroad can be very confusing when you're constantly shifting between different currencies. Now you can translate to dollars in seconds with "Unicon II International Money Converter." It works like a simple slide rule with an adjustable scale. You set the exchange, line up the scale, and the dollar value appears on a second row of fixed numbers. The converter includes clothing charts, metric measurements, and an extensive list of the names of currencies. Like money, it's made of paper. $$ 2.95$ at bookstores everywhere, or write 3602 W. Common sense cat care
Two books on cat care offer useful information to all caring cat owners. The Common Sense Book of Complete Cat Care by Louis L. Vine, D.V.M., is divided into four parts: the life cycle of the cat; personality, intelligence, and behavior; an ounce of prevention; the ailing cat. Of particular help is the accompanying appendix which contains essential information listed according to observable symptoms, such as "ear, drooping," or "snoring", or "back hunched up and abdomen tucked in." It's $$ 12.95$ in cloth or you can get it for $$ 8.95$ in paperback from William Morrow Publishers. The other book, The Complete Kitten and Cat Book, by Norman H. Johnson, D.V.M., with Saul Galin, also thoroughly covers feline ailments, nutrition, and health care. It's $$ 12.95$ from Harper & Row. It is a bit chattier than the Common Sense book and there is a brief section added on facts about wild cats. Animal defenders concerned about pet overpopulation will lament the fact that both books dwell too much on breeding and say little to discourage it. Otherwise, either is a good book to keep handy.

PATRICIA CURTIS
Auction action: the Sonnenberg sale

The celebrated art and antique collections of the late Benjamin Sonnenberg will be up on the block at Sotheby Parke Bernet from June 5-9. If you are a collector yourself or an interested bystander, this sale has much to offer. For lovers of old brass, for example, the preview should be an education in itself. Mr. Sonnenberg's brass spanned four centuries of the art and is thought to be extraordinarily complete. Pottery? Rare majolica from Renaissance Italy and Isnik pieces from the 16 th-century Turkish Empire. There is a pair of Moore and Gumley mirrors in gilt-gesso frames, and fine English furniture, which Graham Child, head of the English furniture department of Sotheby Parke Bernet in London, described as being the kind he saw perhaps once in a decade. The catalogue for the sale will be a coveted document. Preview: June 1-2. Parke Bernet is at Madison Avenue at 76th Street in New York City. Its Sonnenberg catalogue is $$ 10$ postpaid. # Fitness: How important is it, really?

What do you think is the most popular form of exercise in America right now? It's not tennis. It's not running, either. It's walking. Swimming and calisthenics place close seconds. Who do you think is more serious about planning or carrying through a new program of workout, men or women? It's women. Exercise reduces your appetite, right? Not enough to validate the claims made by even the most committed enthusiasts. And almost half of the really serious runners say theirs has been increased.

Early this spring a 59 -page report documenting fitness in America was released. Louis Harris and Associates, known nationwide for its political forecasts of public opinion, made a survey of some 1,500 Americans, 18 -years and older, about exercise habits today. The report was commissioned by Great Waters of France who distribute Perrier bottled water. You may know that Perrier is a cosponsor of the New York Marathon held during the fall in New York City. The study revealed three things: Americans' attitudes and beliefs about the necessity for exercise; their exercise habits: and the extent of their clinical information and knowledge about the benefits exercise can produce. The Perrier Study is the first of its kind since 1961 and that near-20-year interval turns out to have been a period of phenomenal growth in physical awareness.

Ninety million people are taking some form of exercise today. Those millions are divided into three classifications: "high-actives," "moderate-actives," and "low-actives." The Harris poll's questions included many that were directed to people who get no exercise at all. These are called "non-actives." Then,

A fascinating look at what Americans honestly think about exercise, and how to be smart about starting a program of your own

some way had to be found to describe the kinds of demands exercise exacted from the individual; a walk in the country is not the same as 10 minutes of squash. Making these allowances, the Harris poll found a solid, committed-toexercise 15 percent of Americans who pursue fitness and self-improvement. Let's look at some of its findings:

Like father, like son

One of the most valuable and far-reaching conclusions drawn by the study is the overriding importance of shared family activity. An unusually high percentage of the "high-actives" interviewed practice the same sport as at least one of their parents. They remarked again and again that the interest and direction given by a mother or father was crucial to their developing an ongoing participation in sports. About 93 percent of the parents interviewed said that they felt fitness activities were as important for their daughters as their sons. What's changed? The notion that only certain sports are "appropriate" for boys and girls. Options are increasing for girls, and parents are expressing increasnoon slump." Use exercise like walking to replace a habit of coffee or tea with sugar. The payoff is renewed energy and a refreshed point of view.

ing disapproval of contact sports for young boys.

Women are interested, too

Women are joining sports activities at a distinctly more rapid rate than men. For example, the number of women who have begun running in the last 2 years is 20 percent higher than the number of men who have begun to run. Other sports that appeal to women in large numbers and for longer spans of time are golf (highest rated at 58 percent), then calisthenics, softball, and tennis.

Myths about the benefits of an exercise program

"You eat and sleep less when you're properly exercised." It's a widespread claim, supported by many, but the Perrier Study could not find sufficient testimony to validate these two popular assertions. Among all activists, 66 percent said that exercise had no effect on their diets at all, and 43 percent said it had no effect on their appetites, either. Only 9 percent of the actives said they felt their appetites and attendant intake of food were reduced through thorough exercising. The big effect on dieting reported by these people is that their intake of water is more ( 46 percent) and fruit juices ( 34 percent). The national average of hours for sleep is 7.5 ac cording to the Perrier Study. Its findings indicate that this remains unchanged among those who exercise.

Why people don't exercise

Many non-actives said they thought the current emphasis on physical fitness was a fad and another craze, and they wouldn't become involved. One widely held but erroneous assumption is that exercise can overdevelop the heart, which may be dangerous later in life.

The Study found that there was a strong belief among "low-actives" that an ordinary day's activities provided sufficient exercise, and that it wasn't necessary to set aside special tíme to consciously pursue it. ("High-actives," 51 percent of them, disagreed with this assertion and said that regardless of how much of a workout they got, they still required more to stay fit.) "Low-actives" also said that in their lives there wasn't enough time to pursue an exercise program. When "low-actives" and "high-actives" compared the amount they had available for "free time," it was almost exactly the same-about 25 hours a week. Other reasons for not getting involved have to do with unfavorable weather ( 15 percent), lack of interest (11 percent), and, by those who'd own up to it, laziness ( 7 percent).

Why people begin a program

The outstanding reason non-actives gave for beginning a program was a doctor's advice. The most common reason given by "high" and "moderate-actives" was for long-term preventive health maintenance.

It appears that the public as a whole understands the fundamentals of exercise and is aware that strenuous activity increases the efficiency of the heart, lungs, and circulatory system. Ninety percent of the 1,510 people questioned thought that exercise reduced their potential for a heart attack. Where the uncertainty still lies is what constitutes the best exercise to stay fit. Those least informed about exercise are the elderly, but the survey showed that there was an appreciable percentage of people in every age group who were either misinformed or not interested in what it takes to stay fit. Eighty percent of all actives were aware that exercise had psychological benefits, that they "somehow felt better" when they stuck to a course of workouts, that psychological fitness was a benefit of sustained momentum.

Future trends

Walking's the favorite; running is still booming; and swimming is leveling off along with hiking and bicycling. More than 21 million people are involved in calisthenics programs, both as a sport in itself and as a warm-up for other sports.

The overall conclusion from the Perrier Study is that America is committing itself to an ideal of fitness that can be seen and demonstrated across the country. And the Perrier Study acknowledges the family as an all-important center for instilling fitness goals and taking charge of the follow-through to achieve them. Great Waters of France has made the complete study available to House & Garden readers for a $$ 3$ mailing charge. # What you can learn from team sports

"Life is going on down on that field," my father used to tell me during family outings to football games. "Team sports dre just like marriage and business: You have to pull your own weight-but you win or lose together." Although my father's generation is one of social responsibility and ours of self-fulfillment, his wisdom abruptly leapt into consciousness as I sat with friends watching the Super Bowl on TV. What values for real life could be learned, I wondered, from watching, or playing, team sports? Goals, boundaries, game plans
The purpose of any team sport seems obvious: the goal-to win the game. It's the striving for the goal that ties team members together. Marriage, too, aims to win, although the current mood of "looking out for No. 1" has colored the goal a bit fuzzy. "The reason so many people are unclear about its objective," explains Herbert Holt, a New York City

cooperation, team effort, and good sportsmanship that can help make your life more rewarding psychiatrist, Dean of the Westchester Institute for Counseling and Therapy in Rye, N.Y., and author of Free to Be Good or Bad (Evans), "is that the getahead values of corporate life have overflowed into marriage. Just as most team managers are interested in maximum results for minimum pay, many personal relationships today are predatory, selfserving. The real goal of marriage is to maintain a loving relationship of solidarity, affection, and kindness, and although one or more interests can hinge a marriage together-business, golf, French cooking-they are like home runs or touchdowns-means to achieve an end."

No question about boundaries in team sports, either. Inherent in every assignment is a set of perimeters-the space an athlete must cover if he plays a position. "Husband and wife should also be aware of boundaries," says Dr. Holt. "Not just the obvious divisions of labor, but the sensitive areas that both silently agree not to trespass-for example, what he thinks of her ex-husband, what she thinks of his jokes. Everyone needs some privacy; it is only when hidden resentments build up that the boundaries must be torn down and a new understanding reached."

What about boundaries between parents and children? "Here one must be careful: If the boundaries are too formal with his responsibilities on the field. According to Hank Stram, the coach who took the Kansas City Chiefs to two Super Bowls, the emotionally controlled, self-directed personality usually ends up on the offense, because he must carry out the plan, initiate the action. In contrast, the outgoing, emotionally responsive/ expressive personality usually plays defense, because he must react to his opponents with utter abandon.

Family members must likewise find their niches. "A major problem in marriage today," says Dr. Holt, "is that partners enter the relationship with notions passed down from generation to generation about what a spouse's role should be. Imagine if Scarlett O'Hara's feisty business sense had been wasted on embroidering lace or pouring tea, or that Ashley Wilkes's dreamy idealism had to survive the wheelings and dealings of Wall Street. Family responsibilities should be assigned according to personality and interest. If John likes to race around outdoors, don't turn feminist on him and force him to dust; instead, let him go out for the paper and run with the dog. If Jane is sweet sixteen and constantly tying up the telephone, let her call. for the groceries. If you suffer from math anxiety, let someone else balance the checkbook."

But what about all the chores nobody wants to do like taking out the trash? "Close your eyes and draw from a hat. The important thing is that responsibilities be handed out only after they have been discussed and mutually agreed upon by all members of the family. They should never be imposed, or arbitrary."

Lessons in leadership

According to Coach Stram, now a football analyst for CBS TV and Radio, the coach is privy to more input-from management, computer printouts, team members them-selves-than the players, and therefore assumes the ultimate responsibility for how the game should be played. In marriage, husband and wife take turns playing coach: The

-the parents too distant, their attitudes too authoritarianthe child will feel isolated. If the boundaries are too laxthe discipline not firm and consistent-the child will feel insecure because he is given control of a situation he hasn't wisdom to control." As novelist Peter de Vries puts it, the values of a family "is not that adults produce children, but that children produce adults."

In sports, families, or business, the odds are in favor of those who understand the variables that determine the logistics in football-the strengths and weaknesses of one's own team and the opposition, the weather, time left to play, and the score-can also help plan real-life action. Gutsy strategies are particularly in demand for women who, as a group, have been notoriously timid about taking risks. Margaret Hennig and Anne Jardim, authors of The Managerial Woman (Anchor Press, Doubleday), say that whereas men see the two faces of risk-loss or gain, danger or opportunity-women see only its negative aspects. They need to develop the habit of strategic planning, to assess concretely what they want, weigh the costs and rewards involved, and then figure out how to go about getting it.

Execution counts

There's more to sports than strategy, however, and more to life situations, too. George Allen, formerly the winningest coach of the Washington Redskins and the Los Angeles Rams, asserts that good execution (passing, kicking, blocking) results in a lot more touchdowns than surprise maneuvers. Similarly, romantic surprises-breakfast in bed, peonies on the first day of spring-add zest to a marriage, but they do not guarantee its happiness. "You learn to love by loving," writes AIdous Huxley, "by paying attention and doing what one thereby discovers has to be done."

Who's on first?

In football, the personality of the player usually matches up action will affect an entire play. "Never think individually when the ball is in play," says Coach Allen. "There is no ' I ' in T-E-A-M."

"Marriage," says Dr. Holt, "is a voluntary obligation. If you don't want to consider your spouse's welfare, then you're better off remaining single." For instance: A husband wants to switch jobs and move to Chicago. But his wife is in a highly specialized field and may not be able to find work in a new city. Will his raise compensate for the lack of her salary? How will not working affect her self-esteem, and consequently, her attitude toward him?

Dancing school may teach us social graces, but it is in the sports arena that we first learn the nitty-gritty social skills: sportsmanship, empathy, cooperation. Tennis star Ilye Nastase may turn brat on the court, but teams rarely let their members indulge in tantrums. Teams foster self-confidence, reduce inferiority feelings, and all but cure oversensitivity to criticism and overresponsiveness to praise.

At pep talks and strategy sessions, says Hank Stram, "the coach usually includes each player in the discussion. Each mistake is talked about, each accomplishment recognizedno matter who makes them. Players don't feel the sting of criticism when everyone's performance is put on the line." So if Mom is dubbed an athletic clod, Dad a literary zero, it's because "in healthy families there is a sane dose of kidding as well as a system of checks and balances to keep anyone from soaring too high or dropping too low," explains Dr. Holt. When Lisa sticks her nose in the air-Monopoly with her younger sisters is a drag now that boyfriends are calling-they remind her that the captain of the football team never phoned back. When Tom, the family's answer to Bucky Dent, doesn't make first-string varsity, his sister sets him up with a smashing date. "Family members help one another realize that every mistake doesn't mean blowing the Super Bowl, and that every achievement

re knowledgeable partner each situation usually takes er. Mom, who began racing amarans at age 12 , gives : orders up on deck: Dad, to specializes in Bavarian eams and Babas au Rhum, ver gets challenged in the lley. "In good marriages," ys Dr. Holt, "partners are ceptive to one another's exrtise." What about the tieeakers? "Only couples who el they're playing on opposg teams must compete over erything. A good partnerip involves a little conceson here and there, and a lot cooperation." Parents often find themlves in the role of coach, sciplining, inspiring trust, ving encouragement. Allen, ho along with Stram is also football analyst on CBS-TV, ys he was often a father ure for the players: "I used hold individual conferences discuss players' problemsfootball problems, but ersonal ones. I wanted to now every detail, so we could lve them. Only with a free ind can an athlete play well; ad only with everyone playing well can we win." In the same way, Betsy, snuggled on her mother's lap, can talk about her " $F$ " in spelling and get not only help but reasurance. Peter, fishing alone with his dad, can admit that acne stands between him and a date. Like tents in the rain, good parents, like good coaches, offer comfort and/or solutions. But above all, it is by listening with an understanding heart that they gain their children's-or their play-ers'-confidence and respect. And just as rookies learn more from the superstars in sports ("Day in, day out they observe how the Reggie Jacksons handle different situations," explains Bob Lemon, manager of the New York Yankees), so children use their parents as role models. "Example is always more efficacious than precept," wrote Samuel Johnson, and parents should keep in mind that children are, at least sometimes, quick to imitate good and bad traits.

Play! Its’ good for you

Somewhere in New York City there is a bus driver who is also a good-natured comedian. In fact, people often ride a few stops further just to listen to him. When I, unknowing, boarded the bus and handed him my transfer ticket, he looked at it, looked at me, then looked at the ticket again. Then he turned to his audience of passengers and said: "It's just a transfer ticket. I was hoping for a dinner invitation." The next rider got on, a woman' struggling with packages. "Can we have a redcap to the front of the bus please, paging one redcap!" announced the driver.

This man has obviously found a good way to approach his job, playfully, making it fun for him and for his riders. It is something we can all do, whether it's by bringing play with us to work or playing hard when work is over. Play is something we're born with; it comes naturally. And we all need it.

But, you ask, what is meant by this word "play"? The dictionary has more than 50 variations on its meaning. This is probably because play depends on individual preferences and needs. You passed the bar exam, decided that he wanted to play before starting work. He decided to spend a winter sailing in the Caribbean. To him it was just time off before pursuing a career in law, but it also gave him a new skill and a fresh outalso gave him a new skill and a fresh outlook he can draw on all his life. "Play is an individual thing," says Dr. Tutko.

"It's time set aside for you, for what an individual thing," says Dr. Tutko.
"It's time set aside for you, for what you want and need. It's not selfish, it's necessary."

Dr. Edward O. Wilson, sociobiologist at Harvard University, says that "on a might play tennis, > Sports people, doctors, and experts at having a good time show why play can be the most healthful thing you can do while I'd rather play the guitar. The two are completely different activities, yet both should, in the long run, provide the same result: a feeling of pleasure and enjoyment, personal fulfillment. Play may cover a wide range of activities and definitions, but we all have some idea of what it means to us.

Dr. Thomas Tutko, sports psychologist at San José State University, defines recreational play as "time set aside to indulge in behavior that others may view as frivolous. Think of the word recreation as re-creation," he says. "You are giving yourself new space, new freedom with your time. You're re-creating it for pleasurable activities. Play is what you would do if you were totally free.

But none of us is totally free. Whether we have limitations set by time or by location, we are not always able to play the way, ideally, we would like to. So we either change to broaden our limitations if we can, or we find a new way to play. Whether it's amusing passengers on a bus, playing volleyball after work, or changing our lifestyle completely, we all find play somewhere. One young man, having just completed law school and deeper, biological level, play can be a deadly serious matter. Animal studies have shown that play is actually a rehearsal for life's later challenges. It contributes to natural survival. We often think of a kitten as a very playful animal. But if you watch closely at the way a kitten plays, you'll see characteristics of stalking, chasing, and fighting that would be crucial for survival if it lived in the wild."

From the start of our lives, play comes naturally. Before a child learns to walk or talk, he plays peek-a-boo, laughs at funny faces, and explores the world with no other purpose than to see what it's It's a way to relieve pressures from the workaday world and it's also a source of individual growth. We each have within us a highly creative person that is often overlooked in our workday routine. Through play, we can find creative outlets to solve problems and develop new ideas." Dr. George Sheehan, cardiologist and renowned runner, agrees that play can be creative. To Dr. Sheehan, running is play. "If I were trying to get people to be more productive on the job, I'd give them all sweatsuits and then send them running at lunchtime. For me, my stream of consciousness becomes torents when I run. New ideas and thoughts all about. "It's pretty hard to prevent children from playing," says Dr. Wilson.

"Children are industrious about it, too," agrees Dr. Tutko. "They 'work' at playing." In early teen-age years, he feels, play becomes a way to establish one's identity, especially by pursuing special interests such as sports.
"Sometimes around the age of 18 , when a person is accepting more adult responsibilities, play can take on a negative connotation," says Dr. Tutko. "People tend to think that if you're always playing, you probably aren't taking life seriously. Certainly all play is not the most healthful lifestyle. But all work and no play isn't possible either. No one should take life seriously all the time. You need to bring some play into your life, whether it's just a playful thought or anticipation of fun things to come.

come pouring in."

Cartoonist Charles M. Schulz, creator of Peanuts, has combined play and work for years: "I don't need to use play as an escape or to relieve work pressures, because my work is play to me. And I think that has had a great deal to do with the success of the comic strip. Because I don't have to force myself to give my all to the job, I can work even harder. I can't think of much else I'd rather be doing than drawing Charlie Brown, Snoopy, and the rest of the characters."

Often too, if you find play and work to be synonymous, this can rub off on others. This is especially true in teaching, in the classroom or in a work-training situation. One astronomy professor at a northeastern university finds that by being playful he keeps students interested. And when they're interested, they'll learn more quickly. Some of the ways he "plays": weekly contests (not quizzes) with a grand prize of a Milky Way candy bar; special previews of such records as "Hypotenuse Turtle Goes to Mars"; and occasional lectures on the evolution of the tin can. Between all these, the course is packed with a range of scientific information that is not always easy to learn. But because the approach is occasionally lighthearted and fun, students are genuinely interested, willing to work hard-and they perform well, too.
Pat Schroeder, Colorado congresswoman and mother of two, finds that play is "a survival mechanism" on her job. "I have to be playful to relieve the pressures that go with being one of 16 women in Congress. There are a lot of people here who take themselves very seriously, sometimes too much so. I take my job seriously, but I like to keep it in perspective. I like spontaneity, and surprising people a little. Once I sent a colleague some balloons in response to a committee meeting-a sort of thank you. He couldn't believe it. Some people don't understand me at first, they ask 'Why won't she stop playing and grow up?' But once they realize that I'm not making fun of them, they trust me and laugh with me. And then our job becomes much easier."

Play is also important in physical fitness programs. Says Dr. Sheehan: "People aren't going to run because they know it will make them healthier, live longer. They'll run because they enjoy it. Then they'll realize that it's good for them. Too often, I've seen play taken out of physical education. When you tell a child to run around the track as a form of punishment, he won't consider it play. Why not tell him he can't run instead?"

Play that is over-organized or forced on children turns into competition or drudgery. "When kids are left on their own they'll find games to play, organized with their own rules," says Charles Schulz. "They may argue over who was out at second base, but they still play. Often, adults try to get children to play specific games that they don't really want to." Says Dr. Sheehan: "We went wrong in the 8 th grade, when we put our bodies behind desks and concentrated on what the mind can do. Luckily, some genius discovered recess."

The attitude of "I'll be the hero if I catch the ball-or the goat if I drop it," so often expressed by Charlie Brown, is part of competition, not play. "I think a lot of people can identify with Charlie Brown; that's why he's so popular," says his creator. "But the most important value of play is to be able to enjoy it whether you win or lose, in the same way that you should be able to laugh at yourself. I don't think that you can play carelessly, without making any effort. Then there wouldn't be any game. But in my mind, there's nothing like a good loser."

At the New Games Foundation in San Francisco, there are never winners or losers because everyone manages to play on the same team. The Foundation, dedicated to bringing play into people's lives through training sessions and new games, concentrates on getting everyone to participate and play as best he can. Once a game has started, the rules can change if everyone agrees. Traditional games, such as volleyball, can be altered so that everyone plays on the same team (for example, circular rotation around the net).

Burton Naiditch, codirector of the foundation, has discovered that some people play harder than others. "I don't think it has anything to do with where you're from or what you do for a living. Some people have blocks against certain kinds of play. I think that men tend to be more competitive than women, and are often involved in sports that require strength. But once they loosen up, they have a great time. Women tend to be better at cooperating in games. So we try to combine the aspects of cooperation and competition in our new games, giving everyone a chance to learn how they play." After special training sessions, the players discuss how the games went, to learn more about how they interacted with each other.

One group that learned about play from the New Games Foundation wert some editors at a New York publishing house. "They were having trouble with the idea of a book about us," says Burton Naiditch, "so we stopped talking and asked them to form a circle. We played a game called 'knots.' People hold hands across a small circle and then try to untangle themselves from each other. Within minutes the editors were all laughing, and admitted that it was ir fact lots of fun. In abstract, play car be hard to explain, but once you ex perience it, it's great."

doesn't merit the Heisman Trophy."
Team members don't hog, they share: both champagne and the Kleenex. Just as there is togetherness in the locker room-players hoot and holler in victory and slump silently in defeat-so families should empathize with one another's moods: Back rubs help ease depression, bear hugs welcome home the raise.

Out on the field, to cooperate or not to cooperate simply is not a question. Everyone automatically leaps in to help win the game. "The 100 percent effort is not enough anymore," says Coach Allen "The world belongs to the team that gives 110 ."
"The best marriages are made by people who can accept some restraint in per sonal gratification, and are willing to forget their built-in biases and just pitch in and help," says Dr. Holt. "The only time a partner should not cooperate is when he is being used as an object or function of his mate's selfish needs." The workaholic who refuses to discuss family problems because he wants to keep his mind "free" for business is violating the emotional support clause of the marriage contract. The wife who uses her husband as a credit card should either start inviting his clients for dinner or get a job. "Marriage should not be a free ride for either partner."

Dr. Margaret Mead once commented in an interview that "American women as housewives are the least cooperative women in the world. Since Women's Lib, women are beginning to do things cooperatively, whether it's playing on a team, running a joint household, or managing an investment house. Learning teamwork is very important, because the girls of the future are not going to live ir little houses where they're queens of the kitchen."

Independence vs. trust

In marriage, says Dr. A.C. Skynner ir Systems of Family and Marital Psycho therapy (Brunner, Mazel), each part ner must be able to depend on the other yet have an attitude of independence when going about his daily business The couple that smothers in togetherness (when she shops, he pushes the cart when he plays squash, she crochets ir the gallery) still feels threatened by separation. And couples that rasp over who washes the dishes or writes the checks have not learned to trust one another There is a place for fighting for what one wants, healthy competition, and cooperative activities in a marriage, Dr Skynner adds. The relationship in which the partners can move from one to another with grace and ease will be constantly renewed.

How to get the most vacation for your money

Dollar for dollar, you can get a lot more out of a vacation with a little bit of planning. Having traveled quite extensively, I've found that well-planned trips pay off beautifully, while those taken without forethought can be disappointing.

Planning a vacation is especially important now. While the exchange rate is still unfavorable in a lot of countries, there are some places where dollars go as far as ever. Moreover, if you postpone your trip because of poor exchange rates, chances are you will have to postpone it for quite a while. The dollar won't get much stronger until we solve some of our economic problems, according to international economists. And that, they say, will take time. So don't let exchange rates dictate your destination. Just plan first, and get your priorities in order. Here are some tips.

Places to visit, places to stay

One of the best ways to save money on vacation is to pick your hotel with care. The more you save on the cost of your room, the more you'll be able to lavish elsewhere. What's more, you have a number of options. It all depends on your priorities. For example, I just want a clean and quiet place to hang my hat. I travel to see another country, not the hotel. I'm even willing to stay in a less convenient location if it will save money. More often than not, I've found that even after taking the cost of taxis and buses into account, I wind up with significant savings. In Mexico City, for example, my wife and I recently stayed at a small hotel off the beaten path, and yet quite conveniently located. It was wonderful: quaint, charming, and romantic -the perfect place to start a honeymoon. And a suite of rooms cost $$ 35$ a night as against the $$ 80$ a night the luxury hotels charged for just one room.

If the amenities a fancy resort hotel has to offer aren't important to you, why pay for them? Whether you use them or not, you will pay a proportionate cost of their upkeep. So consider staying at a smaller hotel that has just what you want: a room-and no frills to boost the bill.

On the other hand, if you want a big, fancy resort hotel with all the trimmings -pool, private beaches, tennis courts,

> The wise traveler's guide to shopping strategies, exchange rates, and other money-saving ways to enjoy your vacation more and saunas-ask your travel agent and friends for recommendations. However, since these hotels tend to be the most expensive, ask the agent for price ranges and the availability of discounts-say for frequent travelers. Above all, be frank about what you want and how much you are willing to spend. The travel agent has a catalogue of hotels he can scan to find the kind of hotel you want at a price you can afford.

If all the hotels in the area you want to visit seem outlandishly expensive, ask your agent if there are other areas that are just as nice, but less expensive. Chances are you'll get a number of alternatives. And some of them will be less expensive and probably far less crowded than the one you originally asked about. Vacation spots are subject to trends, just like everything else. If one is hot, prices rise. Then, as another area becomes more popular, prices at the former "in" spot will fall back again so it can attract vacationers-and their dollars.

Still, it pays to be at least somewhat cautious. Ask the agent if there is a reason for the resort's fall from favor-say, pollution or political unrest. One of the wisest travelers I know takes no chances at all. He makes a reservation and then calls the hotel himself. Instead of asking the hotel management for information, he asks to speak to room 202. By speaking to guests, he gets an accurate report on what the hotel, the area, and the weather are like. He also asks them to recommend rooms or wings in the hotel, if all else checks out. Most guests, he notes, are happy to act as scouts for you. As far as he's concerned, the cost of the telephone call is a small price to pay for the assurance of a good vacation.

Since it's easier for travel agents to deal with big hotels that have budgets to actively solicit business, you may have some trouble getting recommendations and reservations for smaller places. But don't despair. You can always get tips from friends and associates whose tastes are similar to your own. Odds are that somewhere in your network of friends there's a soul who knows of just the perfect place to stay in the area you want to visit. And if they don't, they probably know someone who does. That's how I found my honeymoon hideaway in Mexico City.

Moreover, these scouts can also tell you about local sights, restaurants, and ways to get around. By the way, once you arrive, do ask the hotel's staff for recommendations. They can tell you about favorite local places newcomers aren't likely to hear of. Prices will be lower and the goods or food generally even better.

Finally, consider renting or exchanging a cottage or an apartment. You'll get all the comforts of home, at a cost much lower than hotel prices. For example, a one-bedroom apartment in a central part of London might cost as little as $$ 125$ a week. And that's with maid service. Finding an apartment or house to rent is easier than you might imagine. Some travel agents, most national tourist offices, and a few airlines will give you lists of available properties and their rents. At Home Abroad and Rent Abroad (both in New York City) are catalogues of properties they've looked at. Air India and British Airways can help you find a flat in London. And TWA plans to offer package deals with apartments in Madrid or Paris.

Shopping abroad

Even with the new duty-free limit of $$ 300$ for most goods purchased abroad, you might be surprised to know that you can probably do just as well shopping at home, especially on high-priced items. Of course, the unique, small, handcrafted items you might not be able to find at home are always good buys-so by all means enjoy shopping for those. But if you have a big, smart purchase in mind-a camera, furs, jewelry-it's always wise to take a look at prices at home first. Then, when you go to Mexico, you'll know whether a blanket selling for 1,140 pesos (around $$ 50$ ) is really a bargain.

It's also a good idea to get used to the currency you will be using before you leave. Invent a shortcut to help you figure it out. For example, there are around 22.5 Mexican pesos to the dollar, so you can figure 220 pesos amounts to $$ 10$. If an item on the menu costs 190 pesos, you'll immediately know it costs less than $$ 10$.

Finally, ask the U.S. Customs Service to send you two free booklets: Know Before You Go and Advisory for International Travelers. The duty imposed by the United States varies depending on what you bring in, from where, and to which port of reentry. The U.S. Customs Service must follow its own regulations as well as those of the state you come back to. For example, if you come back through California, you can bring back only 1 quart of duty-free alcohol per person. By contrast, New York law allows you to haul back a "reasonable amount," if you pay duty on it.

The money maze

Figuring out what kind of money to use for goods and services abroad should depend on exchange rates, the places you're going to visit, and how much you think you'll need. Here are some guidelines:

If the dollar looks very weak against the currency you will be using, it may well pay you to convert your money before leaving. That way you will at least be able to protect whatever purchasing power you do have by nailing down an exchange rate before it has a chance to move against you. Note that most kinds of traveler's checks can be purchased in foreign currency, like Italian lira or French francs. It also makes sense to take enough traveler's checks to cover all your expenses, to avoid using credit cards. Reason: The exchange rate on credit-card purchases is usually set at the time the card company reimburses the merchant or restaurant. If the dollar weakens further between the time you use the card and the account is settled up with the merchant, you could wind up paying a bill that's appreciably larger than you expected.

If the dollar is stable or gaining strength, it's safe to use traveler's checks denominated in U.S. dollars. What's more, it will pay you to use credit cards as often as possible while abroad. If the dollar gains, you will pay less than you had thought. And even if the dollar just manages to hold its own, you will at least have been able to use that money for a month or so, interest free, assuming you pay your charge card bills on time (if you don't, the interest rate you will have to pay is quite hefty-up to 18 percent). And the more you plan to use your charge cards, the less you'll have to take in traveler's checks, which saves money two ways. First, it means you will have to spend less on traveler's checks. (Most issuers charge a fee equaling 1 percent of the check's face value. So $$ 2,000$ worth of traveler's checks would cost $$ 20$.) Second, the less money you convert to traveler's checks, the more you can leave in your savings account where it can earn interest for you.

Whether you plan to pay with charge cards or traveler's checks, it's a good idea to take at least $$ 50$ to $$ 100$ in foreign currency with you. For one thing, it will help you avoid the crush at the airport's foreign-exchange window. For another, it will give you the money you need to pay porters and cab drivers. If you pay or tip them in dollars, you'll probably spend more than you should.

If you have to change dollars to foreign currency once you get there, always try to do it at a bank rather than at a hotel, restaurant, or store. Banks will give you the best available exchange rate.

If you run out of money, or if your wallet is stolen, contact the nearest American Embassy or consulate. The people there will help you get the cash you need by contacting your bank or relatives for you.

When you get home, cash in your traveler's checks as soon as possible. After all, why should you give the issuing company an interest-free loan?

Finding the fairest fare

While getting there is supposed to be half the fun, it can also come to half the cost of your vacation-if you don't shop carefully for a ticket. So, ask at least three travel agents or airlines to quote you the lowest possible fare to wherever you want to go. Chances are you'll be quoted at least two different fares: There are so many different fare schedules, discounts, and special deals that it's even hard for specialists to keep up to date. And the prices keep changing, and rapidly, now that the airlines are less closely regulated. And even if a fare seems reasonable, ask if there's any way of lowering it. The point is that it's really up to you to get the best deal. Remember to ask about:

Midweek rates. Some airlines offer lower fares to travelers who fly during the middle of the week rather than over the weekend.

Night flight discounts. You can often get a lower fare if you fly after, say, 9 P.M.

Stopovers. Find out if you can make stopovers at cities that are along the way. Most airlines will let you make stopovers free, or at a little additional cost.

Budget or mini fares. Some airlines are now starting to offer reduced fares to certain destinations, such as Scandinavia.

FOR 30 YEARS CONSUMERS HA VINYL FLOORIN EYES CLOSED.

It's really not anyone's fault.
It's just that over the years,vinyl floor manufacturers have shown people plenty of shiny floors in spotless, unlivedin rooms, and given them almost no information about vinyl floors themselves. And so we at GAF - the makers of Gafstar ${ }^{\text {® }}$ sheet vinyl and floor tiles decided it was high time that someone opened people's eyes.

THERE'S A LOT TO LOOK FOR IN ADDITION TO LOOKS.

Before you decide on the fun stuff like color and design, there are a lot of other considerations to make. Like how long you want your vinyl floor to last. Unless you're either very fickle or very rich, you'll probably want it to be around for several years. So the first thing you should know is how well-armed a vinyl floor is against the assaults of everyday family life. Most Gafstar floors are topped with a tough, transparent wear-layer There to provide an extra layer of protection between your floor and your family.

Different rooms demand different things from a vinyl floor.

An entrance room floor is greeted by a lot more foot steps than a sitting room floor.

A playroom floor has to put up with falling toys and noisy kids; a dining room floor, with massive furniture and a lot of spills.

And while it would be nice to think that all vinyl floors are perfect for all rooms, it simply isn't true. So at GAF we specifically make certain floors to satisfy certain conditions. Some are amazingly resistant to abrasion; others to impact or indentation; and still others to liquids or sound resonance.

WHAT DOES NO-WAX FLOORING REALLY MEAN?

While there are many glowing hings to be said about no-wax

The 19th century offers an immense variety of beautifully crafted objects that have been historically overlooked, but are plentiful and still good bargains. Two areas that are particularly interesting are European, English, and American silver and Japanese porcelain. (See the March, 1979 issue for a discussion of European porcelain, American paintings, and Victorian furniture.) If you carefully search local auction houses and antiques shops, you should

European, English, and American silver

Recommending antique silver to collectors makes sense. Victorian silver tea and coffee services can be tabletop works of art, but unlike furniture or porcelain, they are made from a material with a marketable value of its own that complements and augments its artistic value.

As a metal, silver has always attracted craftsmen. It is hard enough to wear well and soft enough to be easily worked, but it is also a relatively scarce metal with industrial importance. The world price of silver has been rising dramatically to nearly $$ 7.50$ a troy ounce today. (Silver is weighed in troy ounces with approximately 12 troy ounces to the pound.) The price of silver has jumped 80 percent over the past few years and no less than 20 percent over the last six months!

For the collector, that is very reassuring. The price of antique silver is usually computed by the ounce. Not that this is a new idea. Several hundred years ago. silver objects were the way for a rich man to bank his wealth-extra silver coins became silver cups, cups became coins, and the silversmiths were the official bankers of the community. Silver was rare and very expensive then. But during the 19th century, huge new deposits were found, and industrialization allowed this new, cheaper silver to be worked into a vast avalanche of fashionable and useful objects for the richer classes of society. It is this later silver of the 19th and early 20th centuries that is particularly good to collect.

The first step in collecting is learning to identify the different types of silver. Almost all silver is clearly marked, although making sense of some of the symbols will require a little research. American silver after 1860 will be marked "sterling silver" or "925/1,000." Sterling simply means the silver content of the metal is 925 parts per 1,000 , as all silver must be slightly alloyed to make it hard enough for use. The name or symbol of the manufacturer and often of the retailer will also be stamped into the silver. Some marks will be easy to identify: Tiffany & Co. stamped its entire name on every piece made. But most manufacturers, and there were hundreds of them. used symbols such as the lion and the letter "G" flanking an anchor used by the Gorham Co. A over the years or included date codes.

Earlier American silver is harder to identify, as it may only be stamped with the initials of the craftsmen or with pseudo-English hallmarks. Often it is marked "coin," which like sterling is an indication of the silver content, in this case about 900 parts per 1,000 . American silver is generally marked under the base on hollowware (a term for "hollow" objects such as vases, trays, and teapots).

English silver is at once more complicated and far easier to understand. Usually the only mark-the hallmark, once the mark of the guild hall-will be four or five small separately punched symbols and letters. But they tell the entire story of the piece: its silver content (which will be sterling, though it will not say "sterling"), the town in which it was made (Leopard's head for London, and anchor for Birmingham), its maker (generally in the form of two or more initials contained within a distinctive frame), and the year of its creation (via a special date letter). And on silver made between 1794 and 1890 , the profile portrait of the reigning monarch will also be included. Inexpensive paperbacks list these marks and explain them. Look for hallmarks to be prominently displayed on the exterior of the entire object, but also check for them in odd places, buried among the leafy decoration on the rim of a basket, for example.

Continental silver often presents a problem. On later 19th- and 20th-century pieces, the clue is often the numbers 800,925 , or 84 , which like the word "sterling" indicate the silver contentin this case 800 or 925 parts per 1,000 or 84 parts per 100 . But to establish where the silver was made, you have to find (they may be anywhere) and read often semi-microscopic punch marks that give the town symbol and usually provide a way of dating this piece. You will need a dictionary of continental marks for this.

Do not be fooled by silverplate. It's been around since the 18 th century when the process of sandwiching copper between two thin layers of silver was developed in Sheffield, England-hence the generic term Sheffield plate for silverplate. Not that you should ignore itthese early pieces, usually unmarked, are a great bargain at prices like $$ 200-$ 300$ for a late 18 th-century Sheffield plate coffee urn, a most imposing ornament for the sideboard. Later, during the early 19th century, another silverplating process was developed in Birmingham using an electric current or electrolysis. This is the modern method of silverplating and it began a tidal wave of cheap "electroplated" wares. For the most part they give themselves away: Quadruple plate, triple plate, E.P. or E.P.N.S. (for electroplate and electroplated nickel silver), Extra plate, or A1. The general rule of thumb is that if it is English and has no hallmarks or if it is American (from the 1860 s on) and does not say "sterling," it is plated.

Decide on the kind of silver you want to collect. Learn styles. The austere and simple classical style of the late 18th century (in the U.S., the Federal period) developed during the early 19th century into the Empire style. Classical shapes were adorned with heavy Greek and Roman motifs. Following along in the mid-19th century, were revivals of the Rococo and Renaissance styles. The first, with its curved lines, is exemplified in the water pitcher by the important American maker Forbes & Sons, which sold at auction for $$ 650$. The American fivepiece tea and coffee service by Ward & Hughes is a stylish 1860s Renaissance revival design, which sold for $$ 1,700$. (See illustrations above and on the next page, and note the difference in the handles.)

Later 19th-century silver was made in a plethora of styles-in Japanese taste, in Moorish taste, and in every conceivable 17 th- and 18 th-century art form. By the 1890 s, a new style emerged, the Art Nouveau movement with its sinuous lines and vegetable forms. The early 20th century countered with the spare shapes and geometric patterns of the Art Deco style, as in a silver bowl made by the Danish company Georg Jensen (see illustration, page 50).

silver that exemplifies the highest fashions of its age. Turn-of-the-century Art Nouveau will be a better investment than an 18 th-century reproduction made at the same time. Is the piece finely executed, the details crisp, clear, and wellfinished? Does it have weight? It should feel solid, not light and tinny. Be a critic. Ask yourself if the piece really succeeds in being a beautiful object. Look for a strong, balanced design.

Take into account the maker. Tiffany & Co. made some of the best silver, and its name, like Georg Jensen, brings a premium. Gorham produced important and very expensive Art Nouveau silver under the name Martelé. The careful collector will want to make sure that the condition is good, with clear maker's marks, no obvious repairs or reworking, and no excessive rubbing of the details. Do watch for elaborately engraved coats of arms and inscriptions. They enhance the value, especially those flowing Victorian eulogies on presentation pieces. Conversely, erased inscriptions hurt the value, so look out for vacant cartouches (frames) or leftover traces of engraving. And why not collect something you can use? Silver comes in so many practical shapes and sizes. Buy a wine decanter to enjoy at the dinner table, a candelabrum to decorate the sideboard.
Usually, 19th- and 20th-century silver sells for under $25 an ounce. Value is determined by weight and desirability. Thus, if the "melt" value of pure silver is $$ 7.50$ an ounce, you should be able to buy at auction a very plain piece of modern silver for $$ 8$ an ounce, a Tiffany turn-of-the-century mass production bowl for $$ 15$ an ounce, and a good late 19th-century highly decorated tea and coffee service for $$ 22$ an ounce. Prices have risen. These prices are all about 35 percent higher than 2 years ago, and 10 years ago, plain silver was selling for as little as $2 an ounce. But for special pieces, that price rise has been extraordinary. A stylish, English claret jug weighed only 27 ounces but brought a Western industrialized techniques, combined with traditional Japanese esthetic orientation and craftsmanship produced a great variety of objects made out of typical Oriental materials (porcelain, ivory, cloisonné enamel, and bronze) that excited the interest of Western tourists, businessmen, and politicians who were discovering the artistic production of the newly opened island nation.

The American and European passion for World's Fairs and Great Expositions during the second half of the 19th century, presented Japanese artisans with windows to display their wares to the outside world. These shows also served to increase Western interest in objects of all types from the Orient, and especially from Japan. Thus a huge output of art works was produced appealing to all tastes.

Why then are Japanese works of art of the 19 th century good values on the present market? Only quite recently have the basic quality of the craftsmanship and the unusually decorative nature of 19th-century Japanese objects been rediscovered.

Japanese 19thcentury ceramics can be either understated and elegantly designed or brightly colored and covered with decoration. Whether you are looking for vases, small incense boxes (kogo), Japanese Satsumaor ceramic figures, porcelain vase. the wares of the 19th-century Japanese kilns are inevitably exquisitely painted, well designed, as well as often signed by important artists of the period, who were as proud of their works as the great painters and craftsmen of Europe and America.

Though there is growing interest in almost all areas of Japanese ceramics, the wares termed Imari, Kutani, and Satsuma seem to be enjoying special popularity in today's market. Examples of objects of these three types are bringing higher prices in nearly every major auction sale. Many pieces, however, are still affordable by price-conscious buyers.

Much porcelain was exported from Japan during the later 19th century and the porcelain exported from the port of Imari is therefore called by that generic term. Imari objects were generally decorated in underglaze blue and white, blue underglaze with red or green overglaze and gilt decoration or gold designs on a colored ground. The colors are unusually brightly painted and the designs are mostly floral, running from naturalistic to quite abstract.

Woman: They're fine. My husband's a Mexican food freak. Even pans with baked-on refried beans get clean. But where did the sand come from?
Consultant: What does the sand look like?
Woman: Like ...sand. In a puddle of water that didn't drain out of the teacup.
Consultant: If you're seeing "sand," it could be your dishwasher detergent hasn't dissolved. Do you have a cup with some "sand" in it now?
Woman: Right here by the phone.
Consultant: Does the "sand" look like detergent?
Woman: You mean this is detergent???
Consultant: Look closer.

Woman: It does look like detergent. So why didn't it dissolve?
Consultant: Check your water temperatuke. At your dishwasher, it should be at least $140^{\circ}$. If it's okay, then I suggest you buy a fresh box of detergent. Dishwasher detergent sometimes has a very short shelf life and doesn't dissolve completely when it's old. And make sure you load your teacups properly, so all the water drains out.
Woman: Wow. You really helped. Sorry I bothered you, but at least I didn't have to call a repairman. Thanks for your time.

THIMBLE COLLECTION

by Peter Barrett

For just $$ 9.75$ each - a complete collection of 25 exquisite collector's thimbles in fine bone china, hand-decorated in 24kt gold, and portraying the world's best-loved garden birds.

A limited edition

Advance subscription deadline: July 31, 1979.

THE BIRDS that visit us in our gardens are among the most delightful of all the creatures of nature. Soaring gracefully among the trees and flowers, they provide untold pleasure and inspiration with the richness of their color and the melody of their song.

Now, to remind us of the great joy birds bring into our lives, Franklin Porcelain will create The Garden Birds Thimble Collection. Delicate collector's thimbles in fine bone china designed by Peter Barrett, one of the world's most outstanding and gifted nature artists.

The beauty of birds-captured in remarkably detailed miniatures

Each individual thimble is small and delicate. Yet, every feature of each bird is accurately portrayed-in rich, natural color. This is the remarkable art of miniaturization, and Peter Barrett is a master of this most demanding art.

The garden birds he depicts are among the loveliest in the world: the stately Cardinal, the charming Nightingale, the flame-colored Scarlet Tanager, the Blackcapped Chickadee, the elegant Blue Jay, the Chaffinch, the Robin... 25 of the world's favorite garden birds, each portrayed in a natural setting.

The scientific name of the bird-in a graceful script - will be a part of the design of each thimble. And the finishing touch will be a pure 24 kt gold border, skillfully applied to the thimble by hand.

One of the greatest pleasures of owning this collection is to display the thimbles in your home. And, to enable you to do so, a handsome, hardwood wall frame will be provided at no additional charge.

Available only for a limited time

These fine bone china thimbles will be made available for a single year only. Thus, the collection will be offered solely during 1979 and will be permanently withdrawn at the end of the year. The original designs for the thimbles will then be retired, and this collection will never be offered again.

A Certificate of Authenticity, attesting to the limited nature of the thimbles, will be provided. And an informative folder about the bird depicted will be included with each thimble. The price for each thimble is $$ 9.75$, and the collection will be issued at the rate of one per month.

Since it will take time to craft these bone china thimbles, it is important that the advance subscription application below be mailed no later than July 31, 1979.

To save gas this summer

If everyone were to drive more economically, it would be no problem at all to have enough gasoline this summer, even if we're faced with fuel shortages of 5 percent. Surprisingly, the 55 mph speed limit has very little to do with saving gasoline. According to a recent government study, the fuel consumption differences between the old 70 mph and current 55 mph speed limit has been less than 1 percent. But you can personally save gasoline-with a combination of the way you drive and the way you maintain your car. Some of the things you can do are so simple, you'll wonder why nobody told you before. You can save 5 percent with tires, 5 percent with oil, and 10 percent with economical driving habits for a total savings of 20 percent.

Fuel-saving tips for your  present cax

- Car manufacturers recommend only 24 pounds per square inch of air pressure in your car's tires, because this gives a soft ride. But John Kelley, vice-president of Firestene Tire Company, says any tire can be safely inflated to 32 psi. Your car will handle better, your tires will last longer, and you'll save 5 percent in fuel just from this change alone. For an average driver who pays $70 ¢$ per gallon for gas and covers 12,000 miles per year at 19 miles per gallon, that's a saving of $$ 22$ a year.
Oil companies now sell low viscosity or low friction oil, which protects your engine just as well, but is more "slippery" than conventional oil. This slippery oil lets the parts inside your engine move with less friction, so it uses less fuel. Next time you change the oil in your engine which should be done at least twice a year-use a low friction oil. You'll save as much as 7 percent in gasoline or $31 a year. - Engines are like people-they work best when they are in good shape. This means regular tune-ups twice a year. Something as easy to fix as a dirty air filter can cost up to 50 percent in fuel, because it changes the ratio of gasoline and air being mixed in your carburetor. Worn-out sparkplugs and ignition wires, retarded ignition timing, or a poorly adjusted automatic transmission will cost you in gasoline, too. The $$ 45$ you save by having your engine tuned-up to run 10 percent more efficiently is just the first payoff. A well-tuned engine will last longer and require fewer repairs, too.

Air flows car as well and the underside of your car is not very well streamlined. Many manufacturers now fit a rubber or fiberglass "air dam" beneath the front bumper which improves air flow and increases fuel economy. You can buy an air dam to bolt onto almost any model. Depending on the design, it can save you more than 10 percent in fuel.

Air filters. A car's air filter keeps dirt and dust from getting into your engine. When it becomes clogged, the engine can't take in enough air and fuel economy will suffer. If you let it go too long, the engine will run roughly, stall, and sometimes just stop completely, with expensive results. Replacing the air filter (about every 15,000 miles) is the easiest maintenance to do on your car; it requires no tools and can be done quicker than it can be described. You won't even get your hands dirty.
Step one: Buy a new air filter element (about \$5) at the local auto parts or discount store. On the back of the box will be a list of the cars this filter fits, i.e., "1971-1979 Ford Pinto with two-liter four-cylinder engine, two-barrel carburetor." Check to make sure your car is listed. To find out what engine you have, look in the owner's manual, or the sticker usually found on top of the engine that says something like "Zoomfire Four, 120 cubic inches, 2V." 60 cubic inches $=1000 \mathrm{cc}=$ one liter. So the same Pinto engine can be described as 120 cubic inches, 2 -liter or 2000 cc . Most carburetors are either "two-barrel" or "four-barrel," abbreviated " 2 V " or " 4 V ."
Step two: Turn off engine, remove key, and open hood. On big cars, the hood is counterbalanced and will stay up by itself. On small cars, there will be a long metal rod clipped either across the front or side of the engine compartment. It's hinged at one end and swings up to fit in a hole in the hood at the other end. Right on top of your engine will be a big round container, usually painted black, that looks just like a deep frying pan with a lid. The lid will be held on with a wingnut (sometimes two). Turn the wingnut counterclockwise to remove, and put it in a safe place where it won't drop inside the engine. Be careful of hot engine parts if your car has been running in the past hour or so. Lift the lid off the frying pan and place it where the inside won't get dirty. Inside the pan will be the (Continued on page 64) degrees. You'll save on your gas bills, and still be comfortable.

- Anything that catches the air, like oversize rear-view mirrors, costs you in gas mileage. Small bullet-shaped mirrors can save you almost 5 percent in fuel. General Motors found that using a rubber weatherstrip to seal the gap at the front of the hood on its small trucks was worth half-a-mile per gallon, so if you're really serious about saving fuel and money, similar attention to details around the front of your car can pay off. - Your engine loses its tune very subtly. Keep a notebook in your glove compartment and record mileage and gallons every time you fill up. You'll quickly see when your miles-per-gallon figure falls below standard.

Fuel-saving tips for a new car

- All other things being equal, small, light cars with small engines are more fuel efficient than big, heavy cars with big engines. But there are small cars that return disappointing mileage, just as there are large cars which are surprisingly efficient. The Environmental Protection Agency publishes a free pamphlet, 1979 Gas Mileage Guide, which compares every available model for fuel economy and passenger room. It's available from Fuel Economy, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.
- An automatic transmission, particularly on a small car, wastes gas. A manual transmission, preferably one with an overdrive top gear for highway cruising, is more economical. Or, the new overdrive automatic transmissions let you have the best of both.
- Radial tires are better in every way, and they cost only a few dollars more when ordered on a new car. Larger diameter tires cover more ground with each revolution, which means you'll go further on the same amount of gas. Think big when buying new or replacement tires.
- Your car's final drive ratio-the number of times the engine turns for the distance you travel-is very important in determining gas mileage. A numerically lower ratio, such as the very common 2.73:1, will give better fuel economy than a $3.55: 1$ or $3.70: 1$, but slower acceleration. When you order a new car, ask for the most economical final drive ratio that will still give safe performance. If you commonly pull a trailer or carry heavy loads, you will need a higher ratio for more power.

Driving to save

- A big improvement in gas mileage comes with better driving habits. Many drivers waste gas by not anticipating traffic situations. They're constantly on the gas, off the gas, on the gas. A steady foot on the throttle is not only more economical, but safer. On the freeway, try to maintain a steady speed; gently increase the throttle going uphill, back off downhill; let gravity save you gas. - Jack-rabbit acceleration away from stop signs is a waste. Gentle acceleration lets the engine shift at moderate speeds to save gas, and momentarily backing off the gas will let your automatic transmission shift into high sooner. On the highway, plan ahead so you can pass in high gear without having to downshift to passing gear.
- Sitting in traffic or at stop signs is a total waste. Nationwide "right on red" turns are a tremendous fuel saver, as are staggered work hours and car-pooling. There's no point in sitting in rush-hour traffic if you can schedule your travel at less busy times. It's easier on your car and your nerves, too.
- It sounds simplistic, but the best way to save fuel is to leave your car in the garage. Combire errands to make one trip out of a few, or use a bicycle for nearby errands. It's fun, good for you, and often just as quick as taking the car. - The Whole Truth About Economy Driving is a full-size book on getting maximum fuel economy. It includes not only easy improvements like higher tire pressure or gentle driving habits, but more complicated engine modifications, elaborate driving techniques, and special tips on a variety of driving subjects. The author, Doug Roe, was a competitor in Mobilgas Economy Runs and similar events, so he's full of gas-saving tips. Economy Driving is $$ 5.95$ from HP Books, Box 5367, Tucson, Ariz. 85703.

Protect your car's complexion

Classic car buffs cover their expensive investments with a form-fitting cloth cover even when the car is stored in a garage, for they know airborne dust destroys the finish almost as quickly as sunlight, pollution, and ozone. Car covers come custom-made to fit any car, and are stitched together from a special poly-cotton fabric that is water-repellant but "breathes" to let trapped moisture escape so the paint doesn't blister. Particularly if you store your car outside, a cover makes a surprising difference. Elastic borders hold it on securely like a fitted sheet, but it only takes a second to pop on and off. Prices are around $$ 50$, depending on the size of your car. From:

 air filter element, a dirty version of the new filter element you just bought, a pleated paper ring about a foot across with plastic gaskets top and bottom and a metal mesh around the outside. Lift it out. (It weighs almost nothing.) Compare it to the new filter you bought to make sure they're the same. If not, return to Step one.Step three: Slip the new filter ring into the space where the old one came out. There will be a raised section in the center of the filter housing around which the filter will snugly fit. Make sure the filter is tight against the bottom of the housing all the way around.
Step four: Replace the lid of the air filter housing, being sure the hole in the center fits down over the threaded post that sticks up. Many filter housing lids have a rubber gasket around the edge. Make sure this is still fitting smoothly all the way around. If everything is in the right place, the threaded shaft should be sticking through the lid about a quarter of an inch. Spin the wingnut back on, turning clockwise this time, until it's about as tight as you can get it without hurting your fingers. Any tighter and you may strip the threads. Close hood.

luxury cars instead. Their plan is to offer the same sort of high-priced performance that Mercedes-Benz and BMW have offered for years, combined with styling and options Americans seem to love.

The Celica Supra, at $$ 9,578$, is a perfect example of this new trend. It was actually styled at Toyota's Americanstaffed design center in Los Angeles, and has a smooth aerodynamic look that's very different from most Japanese cars. It's a hatchback with a surprising amount of luggage space in a softly carpeted compartment. The rear seats fold forward for even more room, and the interior is upholstered in either vinyl or a pretty pin-striped velour. Mechanically, Toyota has incorporated many BMW-like performance features, including a fuel-injected 6 -cylinder engine with a single-overhead camshaft, 4 -wheel disc brakes, MacPherson-type suspension, and a 5 -speed manual transmission. But because it was designed for the American market, the Supra comes standard with air conditioning; a tilt steering wheel; power steering, brakes, and windows; and AM/FM stereo. Optional are cruise control, a sunroof, and a unique 4 -speed automatic transmission with overdrive that gives 30 percent better fuel economy. Celica Supra is in a class with the BMW 320i, Datsun's similar 280ZX and the new, smaller Thunderbird, coming up for 1980.

A.The English Victorian silverplaters, Atkin Brothers, working at Sheffield made your teapot about the 1880 s. This always popular pear-form was introduced in English silver in the Queen Anne period (1702-1714). Properly, the pear-shaped outline is continued in the cover and not cut off, as in your example, at the cover, so that the teapot looks like a whole pear.

A. Your relief-decorated jug was made by Staffordshire potters Samuel and James Burton, active at New Street, Hanley, 1832-1845. The mark-impressed initials on raised pad with model number-is rare. This type of English jug first became recognizable among the products of the 1830s. Your example has nearly all the Early Victorian characteristics of style and technique. Its sharply formed relief decoration cast in the mold, its shaped upward-flaring lip, its low-weighted body, and its distinct circular foot all combine to sug. gest the basic style of the years between the mid-1830s and the mid-1840s. As rule, the profile of the period was round and bulging.

Q. I know my covered bowl was made somewhere in Japan, but can you pinpoint the location and give me some idea when it was made?
T.R.-Lodi, N.J.
A. The marks "Japan" or "Made in Japan" were used on wares produced in Japan after 1921, when the mark "Nippon for country of origin was no longer acceptable to the U.S. government. The marks were used until 1940. Many of these export wares were made in the Seto and Nagoya areas, and also to a considerable extent in Arita. The wares were sent to decorating studios to be finished; Tokyo was an important center for this kind of work.

A. What you have is a Mother's Oats advertisement-an eye-catching example of American ephemera, of printed paper and not meant to last. These ads diverted our grandparents, who found it all too beautiful to throw away.

Q. My plate has on it "Altes Stadtthor, Cochem, Dec. 94, Villeroy & Boch, Mettlach, Made in Germany." What can you tell me about its place of origin and the picture shown on it? W.E.W., Jr. - New York, N.Y.
A. The well-known and still existing German potters Villeroy & Boch made your dish at their Mettlach factory some time after 1890. Cochem, a town in Germany in the Prussian Rhine province on the Moselle, is romantically situated in the deep and winding valley of the Moselle at the foot of a hill surrounded by a feudal castle dating from 1051, which has been restored in its former style. The words Alte Stadttor refer to the old town gate.

Q. Some time ago we were given a set of blue onion ware and were told it was real Meissen. However, it does not have the crossed swords mark, only the word "Meissen" on it. Can you explain this?
J. P. - Brooklyn Heights, N.Y.
A. From about 1724 until World War II, the crossed swords were the Meissen factory mark. From the 19 th century onward, several minor porcelain factories working in the Meissen tradition have been started in the town of Meissen and their mark sometimes included the name Meissen. One of their widely popular patterns was Zweibelmuster (German for onion pattern), which had been introduced about 1739. The pattern, of Chinese derivation, was composed of formal flowers and foliage and stylized peaches, mistaken for onions.

New York mantle clock

Q. I've made a rough sketch of the identification mark appearing on the dial of my old clock. From the sketch and enclosed photograph, can you tell me who made my clock and when?

How can you bring more play into your life? "First," suggests Dr. Tutko, "ask yourself 'What would I like to be doing in my free time?' Then, read up on that activity, whether it's racquetball or rose gardening. Talk to friends (especially the playful ones) and find out what's going on in your community. Then, schedule a time when you can play the way you'd like to. You think you don't have enough time? Think

Finding the better way

One way to keep track of kitchen tools (spoons, spatulas, forks) is to put a different color dot of bright enamel on each drawer or storage area and a matching smaller dot on all equipment that belongs in it. Then when people help you in the kitchen, they'll be able to find the proper place for each piece at cleanup time, and you won't have to hunt through every drawer looking for it later.

Steam cooking vegetables is not only the best way to cook them but saves time, energy, and pot washing, as you can cook most of a meal at one time. Use a heavy, spacious pot with a tight-fitting cover and a folding adjustable rack or steamer designed for the purpose. Begin with potatoes or longer-cooking vegetables and add the more delicate ones later, separating them with a bit of foil if need be. Or cook the vegetables separately and keep them in the warming oven. You can buy a two-layer steamer, which offers a variety of possibilities because fish, chicken, or shellfish can be cooked in the top compartment and the juices will drip through to the vegetables below. To get the most nutrients from vegetables, leave the skins on them. Just trim, scour with a stiff brush, and cut them coarsely.

It's now possible to have a bed that's good-looking, comfortable, and warmand can be made up for the day by simply whisking up the cover and adjusting the pillows. The key ingredient is a super-soft, light, and warm puffy quilt.

It serves as a blanket, keeping you marvelously warm and cozy, and as a spread, since it can be covered with washable fabric covers that snap off for laundering and are made to fit arry room scheme. Team it with a fitted bottom sheet, the required number of pillowe and slips, and that's all there is to it. Just arise, pull up your quilt/spread, and pat the pillows. Conran's at Citicorp Center in New York have duvets that are just the kind of quilt required, and also sell covers to go with them in several colors and patterns.

A recent survey points out some interesting facts about the use of electric light. First of all, and obvious, concentrate the best light in the most-used areas of the house. One 100 -watt bulb will provide as much light, properly placed, as two 60 -watt bulbs, and one 40 -watt fluorescent light will give more light than a 100 -watt bulb, last ten times longer, and use half the energy.

One of the most uncomfortable and irritating movements for anyone with back trouble is bending over a shopping cart in the supermarket to get out the bottom layer of groceries. It puts your body off balance, strains your protective muscles, and it's almost impossible to do your medically approved knee-bend lifting. One solution for the too-low shopping cart is to put an empty cardboard carton upside down in the cart and make your first purchases some bulky, lightweight items such as paper towels or dry cereal. Put these around the box and then add the rest of your groceries on top. They will be raised enough to unload easily. Bring your own box if you have to, but most markets will give you one if you ask.

The Flower Keeper is just that-a pretty little pear-shaped covered glass jar that keeps cut flowers fresh for a week without water. It's about 7 inches high and is on a black teakwood stand, so it's decorative enough to show the flowers at their best. There are many interesting ways to arrange them-including upside down-and all you have to remember is to be sure your flowers are fresh to begin with and to make a new cut on the stem, as the Flower Keeper works on the terrarium theory of confining plant material in an airtight container, so it makes its own moisture. You can get the keeper in gift shops and boutiques.

"Contrary to popular belief, life in the flower business is no bed of roses.
'It's a jungle out there.
'And although, as Vice-President of the largest flower business in St. Louis, I'm an expert on the likes of Floridian gladioli, Dutch parrot tulips and South American carnations, what I used to know about media buying did not amount to a hill of beans.
'So, like my competition, I depended on radio, local newspapers and the inevitable neighborhood grapevine.
"But as my business began to branch out from corsages to conventions, bouquets to banquets, I wanted a media buy that would reach more successful businessmen without nipping too far into my advertising budget.
"Then last year, my advertising agencyHarris McKenna Meng-told me about MNI. "Magazine Networks, they said, is an inexpensive way to buy national upscale magazines in compatible local groups. With azes in compatible local groups. With networks you can choose demographically, geographically, even psychographically. In markets as local and diverse as Denver, Rochester, Kansas City and Miami.
'So in the past year, ads for Nettie's appeared in magazines like Better Homes and Gardens, Ladies' Home Journal, and McCall's. 'And our business has grown bigger than ever, while-unfortunately-the flower industry in general has wilted slightly. If there's a smell sweeter than roses, it's success.' # You and ME can cook a12lb.turkey crisp, brown and juicy in less than an hour.The ME range from Caloric cooks with microwave and electric.

In the same oven.
At the same time.
So it not only cooks faster than microwave alone, but better.
Turkey comes out crisp and brown on the outside, and tender and juicy on the inside. (More juicy than if it had cooked three to four hours in an ordinary oven!)
Pork chops are broiled to perfection in just 12 minutes.
Bread bakes in only 16 minutes, and rises 15 to $20 \%$ higher.

Fact is, any recipe that calls for broiling or baking can be done in a ME range in far less time - with far better results - than with any other cooking method. And you can use it to serve up anything from a full meal to a single cup of coffee.

The ME range from Caloric. You can't buy a faster cooking microwave oven (even in a countertop), much less find it inside the oven of a full-size, self-cleaning electric range.

To discover how much fun cooking can beeither microwave or electric or a combination of both - see ME.

Constructing central connecting wall

-Take the 21 6-foot lengths of 1-by-4 wood and line them up side by side on the work area. Push slats tightly together and measure distance across the center. (If the pieces are $31 / 2$ inches wide-as 1-by-4s should be-and perfectly straight, their total width will be $731 / 2$ inches. However, board widths vary from milling to milling, so each set will produce a unique measurement.)

- Cut the 14 -foot lengths of 1 -by- 3 into 14 pieces the width of the connecting wall. Seven of these will be nailed to each side of the wall for 5 shelf supports and a top and bottom support.
- Glue and nail the top and bottom supports to the wall as shown, using $311 / 4$. inch nails wherever a 1-by- 3 crosses a 1-by-4. (Hint: When nailing the first support, do not force the 1 -hy-4s tighter than desired width or you will have trouble at the other end.)
- Mark lines for the shelf supports at the following 5 points:

- Glue and nail the 5 shelf supports to the wall, using the lines as guides for the bottom edges of the 1-by- 3 s . Again, use $311 / 4$-inch nails for each joining.
-Turn wall over and nail the other 7 supports over the first set.
-For the crown piece (which will secure the divider wall to the side walls), cut the 8 -foot piece of 1 -by- $341 / 2$ inches longer than divider width. Glue and nail it to the top of the divider using $11 / 2$-inch nails. It will protrude $21 / 4$ inches on each end and the sides will overhang slightly

Step Building the side walls

-Take 18 6-foot lengths of 1-by-4 and line them up side by side on the work area. Measure the width as in Step 1. - Using this measurement, cut 51 -by- 2 s for 5 shelf supports and 71 -by- 3 s for 5 shelf runners and a top and bottom support.

- Attach the top and bottom supports as in Step 1
- Mark 5 lines across the wall as before. (The shelf heights of the wall and divider should match.)
- Glue and nail the 5 shelf supports using the lines to mark the bottom edges. Use $211 / 4$-inch nails for each joining.

- Attach the 1 -by- 3 shelf runners to the supports, as shown, using $11 / 2$ inch nails - Repeat to construct a second wall.

StepAttach shelf braces to verticals - For each shelf module: cut 2 1-by-4s (shelf sides) and 1 1-by- 6 (shelf top) the width of the connecting wall plus 3 inches. Cut another 1-by-6 (shelf bottom) the width of the divider plus $11 / 2$ inches. You will also need $231 / 2$-inchlong pieces of 1-by-6 for shelf ends.

- Sand $1 / 8$ inch off end of each shelf end piece until it forms a wedge.
-First glue and nail one shelf side to top using 1 $11 / 2$-inch nail about every 7 inches. Repeat for other shelf side.

- Place the shelf bottom between the two 1 -by-4s and glue and nail it as shown. - Fit the end pieces into the shelf module, beveled edges facing in, and glue and nail them using $311 / 2$-inch nails for each side and 4 for the top and bottom. (Hint: The shelf module will slide onto the runners more easily if you nail the end piece at a slight angle.)

Step  Assembling the divider

- Place the connecting wall perpendicular to one side wall, 36 inches from one end, as shown. Drill two $1 / 8$-inch holes through the crown piece, $11 / 8$ inches from the end, into the side wall. Screw in $22^{1 / 2}$-inch screws.

- Check to be sure the connecting wall is perpendicular to the side wall and also the floor, then drill $61 / 8$-inch holes from the side wall into the divider where each of the 5 shelf and bottom supports meet. Screw a 4-inch screw in each hole.
- Repeat Step 4 to attach the other side wall.

Sand divider and modules first with medium grain, then fine grain, sandpaper. Apply paint, stain, or clear finish.

Peak-season fares, of course, are the most expensive. If the fare quoted is for the peak season, find out when the offseason fares will go into effect. Different geographic destinations have different seasons, so it's well-worth asking about. A difference of just one day can cut your fare substantially. And if you travel just as the season changes-the "shoulder season"-you'll still be able to enjoy most of the peak season's attractions.

Foreign flights. If you plan to make additional flights while abroad, find out how much it will cost yoũ before you go. For example, a flight from one European city to another can cost almost as much as it costs for you to get to Europe in the first place. Some Europeans even joke that the cheapest way to travel in Europe is via the United States. You may well find that planning your travel itinerary to take advantage of stopovers will give you the best break.

Charters. Many of the old rules and regulations have recently been tossed out. For example, you no longer need to book a charter in advance. What's more, if you can find a charter that's about to leave with some empty seats, you may be able to pick up a ticket for half the price the other passengers paid. The charter operator has to pay for the seats he booked whether they're filled or not.

You can find out about charter flights from travel agents or through the 1979 Charter Flight Directory ($3.75, Travel Information Bureau, P.O. Box 105, Kings Park, N.Y. 11754). One note of caution: Before you pay for a charter ticket, carefully read the cancellation rules. Cancellation rules and penalties can vary dramatically.

Package deals. Also be sure to ask about package fares or package charters -ones that include hotel, ground transportation, and possibly even sightseeing and entertainment. Sometimes these package deals are so cheap that it's worth taking them even if you don't plan to use some portion of the package. However, do note that if you take the package, you are tied in to the dates and places specified in the deal. So you should shop for one that most closely matches what you want from your vacation.

DULL, DRY HAIR. WE CAN MAKE IT EXCITING.

What you see in the larger picture is a dried out, damaged cuticle (the outer-most layer of your hair shaft). Dry cuticles make for dull-looking hair. And nobody wants that.
What leads to dull hair? Careless coloring. Over perming. Blowdrying. Electric rollers. Sunning. Swimming. They can all make your hair look drab and dull. Because they tend to rob the hair of its lustre-producing oils and precious moisture.

We'll make your hair shine. We'll make it soft. We'll make it move. With Climatress ${ }^{\circledR}$ Moisturizing Creme Protein Conditioner. It's formulated with emollients and water-loving ingredients to help maintain your hair's essential moisture balance. Acid balanced Climatress can bring your hair back to looking healthy. And that's a look you'll love.

Home-smoked foods

Whole smoked chicken

This is the recipe Mr. Mount and his partner, Daniel Rosenblatt, use for their apple-smoked chickens, which can be mail-ordered (as well as turkey, duck, filet mignon ) : Menuchah Farms SmokeHouse, Route 22, Salem, N.Y. 12865.

INGREDIENTS

1 tablespoon salt
1 2½-3-pound chicken
3 tablespoons honey
3 tablespoons brown sugar

METHOD

Rub salt well all over chicken. Truss the chicken and refrigerate 24 hours. Rub sweeteners all over chicken and smoke over a very low fire 4 hours or until tender and cooked through.

Chicken breast sausages

INGREDIENTS

4 whole chicken breasts
Chicken fat (skin and tendons from the breasts, plus fat from the cavity of a large chicken)
3 tablespoons fresh tarragon, chopped $11 / 2$ tablespoons green peppercorns, drained and roughly chopped 1 tablespoon black truffle, chopped 2 tablespoons cognac or brandy Salt, pepper to taste

METHOD

$\square$ Grind 2 of the breasts with the chicken fat coarsely in a meat grinder or food orocessor and put in a bowl. Cube the emaining breasts about $1 / 4$-inch square. Add to the bowl with the remaining ingredients and mix well. Stuff the mixture nto sausage casings or shape into patties. $\square$ Cook the sausage immediately or refrigerate 1-2 days to let flavors blend. To zook, prick the skins in several places and fry slowly in a skillet until brown all over. If you cook them outdoors over a grill, it will take about 20 minutes. They will take 1 hour in a smoker. Makes 10-12 4-5-inch sausages $3 / 4$ inch in diameter.

Pork loin sausages

'Pork loin has a good flavor for sausages. These are only about 20 percent fat, so are very lean for sausage."

INGREDIENTS

$5^{1 ⁄ 2}$ pounds pork loin
$11 / 2$ pounds fresh pork fat
Salt, coarsely ground black pepper 3 tablespoons green peppercorns, coarsely chopped
5 tablespoons fresh rosemary, chopped

Chicken and sausage with a robust outdoor flavor from Charles Mount (See his party on page 142)

2 tablespoons caraway seed

 $1 / 4$ cup cognac or brandy
METHOD

$\square$ Cut $11 / 2$ pounds of the pork into small cubes about $1 / 4$-inch square. Grind the remaining meat with the fat through the coarse blade of a meat grinder. Put the meat, $1^{11 / 2}$ tablespoons salt, 1 tablespoon pepper, green peppercorns, rosemary, caraway, and brandy in a bowl and blend well. Take about 1 tablespoon of the mixture and cook it in a frying pan until well browned on both sides and cooked through. Taste for seasoning and add more as needed.
$\square$ Stuff sausage casings with the pork mixture or form into patties. Cook the sausage in a frying pan, pricking the casings in several places to let the fat escape, until brown all over and cooked through. Or smoke them over a low fire 1 hour or until cooked through. Serve with mustard. Makes about $265-6$-inch sausages about $3 / 4$ inch in diameter.

To fill sausage casings

Casing is either pork intestine or biodegradable material that is perfectly safe. The natural casings come well salted and keep 6 months refrigerated in a jar packed with coarse salt.

A sausage stuffing attachment works like a huge pastry bag. It is simply a funnel placed over the meat grinder with the cutting blades removed.

METHOD

$\square$ Soak the salt out of the casings overnight. Change the water 4 times. Run water through the casing to open it up and check for holes. Cut casing into manageable lengths-about 4 feet.

After 7 years of good eating why change your dog's food?

Because after 7 , his needs are changing.

When your dog is over 7 , he begins to change on the inside.
His digestion may be more delicate; his metabolism may be slowing down.
So the food he's been thriving on all these years may not be right for him now. That's why it's important to change his diet to Cycle ${ }^{\circledR} 4$ dog food. Cycle 4 is the only dog food specially formulated to meet the changing nutritional needs of dogs over 7 .

It provides your dog with highly digestible, highquality protein. In amounts his kidneys can handle.
It gives him the extra calcium he needs for his bones. Plus minerals and vitamins to help keep him healthy and happy.
Cycle 4 comes in bags of delicious nuggets or cans of tasty chunks. If your dog is over 7 , start feeding him Cycle 4.

INGENIOUS WAYS TO MAKE YOUR LIFE

SPACE-SAVING STORAGE

Linen logic

Cover shelves with differentcolor self-stick paper to distinguish top sheets from bottom, twin size from double.

Small plastic bags can be used to keep napkins of a color together.

Seasonal linens can be stored in empty trunks or baskets.
Save dry-cleaning bags and use them for storing blankets and bedspreads.
Towels can be neatly rolled in a wine rack or lightweight plastic buckets (hang them or nail their bottoms to the wall).

Sports at the ready

Hang skis horizontally in the back hall, using two wooden pegs for support. Or, stack wooden cubes for boots, gloves, and jackets and leave some room in between to stand skis and poles. The narrow space above a doorway is a good place to hang skis during the summer months.

Some tips from designer Joseph Freitag:

- Hang floor-to-ceiling curtains a few inches from the wall to hang flat items like racquets, fishing rods, scuba flippers behind it.
- Use string bags to store tennis' balls, running shoes, other easy-to-lose gear.
- When you hang a tennis racquet or ski poles, use the clamps and clips you see for hanging tools in a workshop.
Keep a large bin for miscellaneous sports items-Frisbees, baseball gloves, soccer balls-by the back door where it's most needed.
Hang roller skates, skateboards, and other movable sports equipment to prevent an accidental slip.

How to keep

Silver-wrap tightly in plastic wrap. Will stay airtight, resist tarnishing.
Record albums-protect in covers with their plastic wrapping (aptly called "shrink wraps") removed.
Inflatable sports equipmentkeep at room temperature to avoid deflating.
Apples-wrap in newspaper, store in a cool place, and they'll be fresh for months.

Putaways for pets

Keep pet supplies in basketsone for each pet. Dog brushes, special shampoos, vitamins, and toys in one; another for the cat; a third for the fish or bird. And give pets a special shelf in the kitchen for food. Or, keep a separate cabinet with room for everything and hang leashes inside the door.

For the little things

Printers' drawers (find them in secondhand stores or antiques shops) can hang on the wall to display tiny collectibles or be used flat for keeping sewing supplies in order.

Nail the lids of small glass jars to the underside of wall cabinets or shelves to hold spices, thumbtacks and nails, rubber bands and paper clips, and other small necessities.
Keep a small set of drawers on your bureau for jewelry. Or, use several small trays: one for earrings, one for rings, another for pins. (Necklaces stay untangled when stored hanging.)

The pegboard puzzle

(Note: When mounting pegboard, nail a small molding strip to the top and bottom of the back to make room for the hooks.)
Pegboard can be used almost anywhere: Panel all the kitchen walls, or just the inside of cabinet doors. Or, put some under wall cabinets and hang utensils from there.
To know where everything fits on a pegboard wall, outline each utensil in black, as Julia Child does.
Use pegboard on the back of a freestanding bookcase or wall divider to mount baskets, art work, collectibles.

Pegboard on the back wall of a closet holds tennis racquets and other sporting gear.
A small strip of pegboard near the front or back door will take keys as you walk in, hold them until you leave.
Pegboard in the garden closet or toolshed keeps everything neatly in place.

Storage in places you never thought of

Turn hats into decoration: String up a small clothesline along the wall, hang them by their brims with clothespins.

Don't overlook the area beneath wall cabinets or window ledges: In the kitchen use cup hooks for scrub brush, pot holders, utensils. Under windows, do the same for scissors, small mesh bags of whatever's needed in that room.

If there's a door you never close, do what Joseph Freitag does: Use the space behind it for hidden storage.
Be on the lookout for small niches-near windows espe-cially-that are perfect for shelves. Or, make a seat with one shelf skirted to the floor.

Folding screens can create storage space in an instant: Screen off a corner to make a closet, or run screens lengthwise down a long hallway.

Skirt a table, sink, or shelves by attaching Velcro and hanging fabric. Then, hide cleaning supplies underneath.

Hang a curtain in front of an eave space to make a closet.

Three-tiered mesh baskets can be used all over the house: in the kitchen for vegetables; near a desk to hold erasers, paper, typewriter ribbons; in the bathroom for cosmetics, shampoos, or cleaning supplies; in the toolshed or garden closet for small tools, seeds, and plant food; or in a closet for accessories or socks and underwear.

In the kitchen

A freestanding rolling cabinet with butcherblock top will add counter and cabinet space to a small kitchen.

Plastic margarine bowls or ice-cream containers make excellent freezer dishes for sauces and individual servings.
Keep plastic baskets under the sink for cleaning supplies.
For more counter space, keep a piece of butcherblock or cutting board that will fit over the sink (or an open drawer). Keep it handy between cabinets or under the sink.

Narrow bread baskets can be used to keep spices in line. Use smaller baskets in kitchen cupboards for loose packetssalad dressing, soups, sauce mixes.

Use the inside of cabinet doors for towel racks, hanging flat utensils, or posting most-favorite recipes

Comings and goings

Hang coat hooks and a shelf lower for children to hang their coats and put books on when they come home from school.

For keys, skate keys, and small things that are easily lost and always needed in a hurry, keep a small bowl or jar by the door. Or line several small hooks on a strip of molding on the wall. A small bowl full of change for the bus or for lunch money is also handy on a hall shelf. And keep a bulletin board or cork board near the back door for keys, messages, grocery lists.

Keep a flashlight and extra batteries in the front and back hall closets and make sure everyone knows where they are. Candles should also be kept handy (and don't forget the matches).

A large metal milk container can be the perfect umbrella stand.

Look for used metal lockers to place by the back door for sports storage in the bathroom, or as a cabinet for cleaning supplies.

If your mail comes through the front door, hang a basket under the slot to collect it.

Double up

Clothes rods can be hung at two different heights. Or, in a deep closet, hang one forward and another behind it.

Two tables of the same size can be used individually for games and work space, then pushed together for a dining table.

In a small eating area, use a gateleg fold-down table that opens on both sides for dining and takes up half the space during the day.

Moneyback guarantee.

Well-kept closet

Paint or wallpaper a closet in bright colors, so opening the door is like opening a wonderful present.
Take advantage of boxes in all shapes and sizes: shoe boxes, hatboxes, clothes boxes. If they're not pretty already, paint them, or cover with paper. Stack or line them up as needed.

Color-code clothes as they hang so you can coordinate outfits in a hurry: Hang red blouses with red skirts, gray pants and blazer, etc. Sweaters can be stacked by color, too, and kept in see-through plastic containers.
Hang jewelry and accessories on the closet wall.

For more space in a closet, add a small set of drawers or stacked trays, or install floor-to-ceiling shelves to one side. Or, put shelves up high and store seasonal items in the hard-to-reach places.

To use the backs of closet doors for hanging accessories and other often-used items, use shoe bags, pegboard, or wooden pegs. If you have lots to hang, stretch a marine shock cord (heavy elastic) across two hooks to keep everything in place.
Shoe bags are not just for shoes. Hang them on the back door of the broom closet for cleaning supplies.

Patchwork prerequisites

Q. Do you know a place that has quilt kits? -L.A., Greensboro, Ala. $\boldsymbol{A}$. Three sources for quilt kits and books -two of which also offer calicos and plain cottons, batting, and such-are: Ginger Snap Station, P.O. Box 81086, Atlanta, Ga. 30366 (kits and supplies catalogue, $50 \phi$; fabrics catalogue, $50 \phi$ ). Gutcheon Patchworks, 611 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10012 (seen in January 1979 issue: catalogue, \$1). Quilts and Other Comforts, Box 394, Wheat Ridge, Colo. 80033 (catalogue, \$1, offers patterns too; fabric swatches, $75 \phi$ ).

Since quilting supplies are readily available, places that offer only quilt patterns with yardage estimates are also worth investigating:
Contemporary Quilts, 3466 Summer, Memphis, Tenn. 38122 (catalogue HG, $$ 2.50$ ). Over 80 patterns from antique quilts, many shown in color photographs. The Stearns & Foster Co., Creative Quilting Center, Lockland, Cincinnati, Ohio 45215 (catalogue, $1.75). Over 130 pattern designs.

Mailbox decorating

Q. We have a regulation metal mailbox and would like to paint the outside with a freehand floral design. Can you tell us what materials we'd need?
V. S., Greenwich, Conn.
A. Neil Janovic of Janovic/Plaza paint and wallpaper store in New York City can!

If your mailbox is unpainted metal, wear rubber gloves and thoroughly wash the outside with Metal Treat concentrate by the Klean-Strip Company of Memphis, Tenn. Wipe off with a clean cloth and let dry thoroughly. Promptly apply a coat of Rust-O-Crylic #5769 red water-based primer by Rust-Oleum. It should dry in about 2 hours.

If your mailbox has old paint on it, rough up the surface with $# 80$ aluminum oxide sandpaper. Then use a tack cloth to remove any metal burrs or sandpaper particles. Coat mailbox with an oil-base metal primer such as #769 Damp-Proof primer by Rust-Oleum.

The next steps are the same whether the mailbox was unpainted or not: Apply your background color and then decorative motif using good exterior enamel paints, either oil-base or latex. Let each coat dry thoroughly before applying the next. Then help protect your decorative work from the elements by applying a coat of good spar varnish such as "Man-O-War" by McClosky. (Don't use a polyurethane product-it won't expand and contract with temperature changes as the metal-and spar varnish-will.) All products are sold at paint or hardware stores nationwide.

Herb teas you can grow

4 of the most avorful herbs for tea, lus how to plant, arvest, prepare, nd enjoy them as made from herbs-or tisanes, cor-etly-have a history "more ancient an the sunne or moon or starres," acrding to one 17 th-century herbalist. rtainly, they were brewed as far back King Tut's Egypt. In America, too, ey have a long past; wild herbs were thered and enjoyed by the Indians d, later, by the early settlers who also ten cultivated them. As the Revolution proached, herb teas were rediscovered the Colonials who wanted to boycott e Chinese teas imported by the British. en, during the following bicentennia, herb teas were neglected in favor of iental varieties. Today, however, they e experiencing a revival and Amerins again are enjoying their many flars and aromas, sipping them not only a refreshing alternative to imported -leaf blends but, once again, as a form protest, this time against the prices of ffee.
Compared to most flowers, fruits, and getables, herb tea plants are extraordirily easy to grow. Plus, they make a onderful sight, indoors or out, if you ow a variety that includes the creamy een-flowered angelica, say, or the arlet-flowered bergamot.
For all their ease in growing, however, en the greenest-thumbed gardener ould order from or visit a health-food re or herb specialty shop, and buy tall quantities of the many different as that come either prepackaged or ose. This will enable you to run a taste st, sampling the large choice both indidually and blended, thereby discoverg which herbs or mixtures most suit ur palate. (Remember, too, that tines can be mixed with imported Chise and Indian teas; the boycott of 76 is over.) Then, once you have sected your favorites, you can grow your vn . Seeds and plants are available at ost of the same stores that sell the teas, id there are many companies that sell mail (for a few, see page 190). Most herbs flourish best in direct sun d in well-drained, sandy soil. Only rely are they fussy about the quality the soil, however. In fact, if the ground is too fertile it will diminish the teas' flavor. Nor are the herbs too bothered by diseases and pests. The occasional aphid or red spider mite can be sprayed with a naphtha soap-and-water mix, but otherwise the herbs' aroma seems to act as a bug repellent. Consequently, some gardeners intersperse herb tea plants among their other plants as an alternative to insecticides. (Bees, incidentally, love herbs, particularly the bergamot, which also goes by the name "bee balm" and the melissa, or lemon balm. And cats, as new gardeners should be cautioned, love to wallow and roll in Nepeta cataria, better known as catnip.)

To grow herbs indoors

In addition to thriving outdoors, most herbs grow equally well indoors. Those that originate in the sun-blessed part of the world will need to be in windows facing south, or can make do under fluorescent lights.

Indoor pots, as well as patio or balcony containers, must be equipped with drainage holes and crocked with pieces of broken pots to assure good drainage. Use a standard potting mix-top soil, peat, sand-adding half a teaspoon of lime (crushed eggshells do fine) for every 5 inches of depth. (Most plants need a pot 9 inches deep.)

The warmth of the average home will be sufficient. The air, however, will almost certainly be too dry. Increase the humidity, therefore, by a daily misting, and stand the pots on a tray filled with pebbles that can be doused regularly with water in order to keep the immediate climate damp. During the summer growing months, feed every fourth or fifth watering with half-strength fish emulsion or similar liquid fertilizer.

The harvesting of your crop will depend on which varieties you are growing -and which part of the plant you intend to brew. Unlike the Chinese and Indian teas, where only the leaf is used, some, though not all, tisanes can be made from different parts of different plants, and excellent flavors can be derived, variously, from the leaves, flowers, seeds, stems, bark, or roots. (But be very cautious about this and know your plants. Not every part of every plant is edible.)

The leaves of an herb plant can be picked at almost any time, though peak flavoring is reached just before flowering. Don't be hesitant about picking, even up to a third of the plant in one go, as this will stimulate new growth. Flowers should be picked when fully open, and seeds when they look brown or gray. Stems can be cut along with the leaves or flowers. You can also harvest your own bark and roots, but it's much easier to buy these.

Tea herbs can be brewed either fresh or dried. Thin stems can be hung upside down or in an airy place, out of direct light, but everything else should be dried in a low oven, with the door left open. (Stems, bark, and roots should first be finely chopped.) Once the herb is crackly to the touch, it is ready for storing in an air-tight, opaque container. (If you are using more than one herb, remember to label the container.)

The best part of all in growing herb teas is drinking them-and that calls for brewing them properly. If the tea is to be made from leaves, flowers, or seeds (seeds should be lightly crushed), maximum flavor is brought out by infusion. This simple technique makes all the difference to the final taste. Use a warmed china or earthenware pot (metal ones may taint), and put in one teaspoon per cup if you are using dried herbs, two if fresh (they have a less-concentrated flavor). Add an extra portion "for the pot," pour in boiling water, and let the pot sit there, with the lid on, for 5 or 10 min utes, depending on how strong you want the tea. This steeping, or "drawing," step is important. Rush it, and you will have a cup of hot water with only the faintest hint of herb; prolong it, and the tea will be bitter. Pour the tea through a strainer-maybe a Chinese one of woven grass. Iced herb teas for summer are brewed in exactly the same fashion, strained, cooled in the refrigerator, and usually served diluted with iced water. Seed-based herb teas, such as anise or dill, need to have their ingredients bruised to release the essential volatile oils before brewing. Use a mortar and pestle, like the alchemists of old, or simply wrap the seeds in a clean cloth and lightly crush them under a rolling pin.

Roots, barks, and stalks must be decocted rather than infused: This means that you must add about 1 ounce of whichever you are using to $11 / 2$ pints of boiling water. Simmer for 15 to 20 min utes, leaving the lid off the pan so that the liquid reduces. Again, the beverage may be drunk hot or chilled.

Even though all the teas are fragrant, some people nevertheless like to add a little something extra. You can be different here, too, just as you have been with your tea: Instead of sugar, for instance, try honey; instead of lemon peel, orange.

musky tea with a hint of celery. The plant is a self-seeding biennial best started with a nursery-bought seedling. Unlike most herbs, it likes a degree of shade and rich, fairly damp soil. Use leaves, stem, or root.

Anise (Pimpinella Anisum) has the distinct taste of licorice. The plant, an annual, grows best in warm, sunny regions. Raise it from seed in peat pots or sow directly in a light, dry soil if your spring is a mild one. Use the seeds.

Bergamot, or bee bălm (Monarda didyma), is a minty tea first gathered from its wild state by Winnebago Indians around Lake Ontario. A perennial, it usually is raised from root divisions set out during springtime in moist semishaded ground. Use the leaves.

Borage (Borago officinalis) has a cu-cumber-like flavor. The plant is grown from seed and fares best in a dry, poor soil with plenty of sun. It is an annual but will self-sow freely-often too freely, if your backyard space is limited. Use the leaves, flowers or stem.

Catnip (Nepeta Cataria) has a minty, slightly bitter taste. It grows to a height of 2 feet and is a perennial with heartshaped leaves and lilac or white flowers. It is easy to grow from seed, root division, or rooted stem cuttings in a moderately sunny but cool and airy place. Use the leaves.

Chamomile (Matricaria Chamomilla, the German annual variety, or Anthemis noblis, the Roman perennial) emits the aroma, and therefore the taste, of apples. Sow the seeds or set out ready-raised plants in the early spring in a well-limed, moist soil with lots of sun. Use the daisylike flower heads.

Dill (Anethum graveolens) has an astringent, licorice flavor. It demands plenty of sunshine and a light, welldrained, and limed soil. It is an annual that grows willingly from seed sown outdoors provided the weather isn't too severe. Use the leaves or seeds.

Horehound (Marrubium vulgare) has a bitter, somewhat medicinal flavor. (Those who enjoy it usually add honey, and perhaps licorice or hysop to mask that edge.) Start horehound from seed sown in the spring, or divisions or cuttings, and give it all the sun you can spare. It is a perennial that thrives in poor soil, so don't pamper it with fertilizer. Use the leaves.

Lemon balm (Melissa officinalis) is easy to grow from spring-sown seeds, cuttings, or root divisions set out in the fall. It is a perennial that requires a richer soil than most but isn't too demanding about the sun. Use the leaves or flowering tops.

Sweet marjoram (Origanum majorana) is, as its name implies, one of the sweetest of teas. Sun-loving perennial, it

African violets made easy

The African violet is probably the most popular flowering house plant in the U.S.A. And with good reason. An almost constant bloomer, this easy-to-grow, velvet-leaved beauty thrives under artificial as well as natural light. About its only drawback is that, as a friend put it, "an African violet is an African violetthey all look the same." If that's your feeling, look again. Things have changed.

You'll have to look beyond (or overlook) the hybrid names, however. They remain as kitschy as ever and are probably the single factor most responsible for the African violet's for-grandmoth-ers-only image. I mean, what is one to do with Pooty-cat, Pucker Up, Wee Too, and Sassy Lass, and with plants described as having "girl" foliage and "boy" foliage? Grow them and forget the names, that's what.

Take Sassy Lass, for instance. I went up to Buell's greenhouses one day with a friend. Six-foot-four, strong as a horse, and an airline pilot by profession, Wayne isn't exactly your ladies-circle stereotype, but he's hooked on African violets,

How to start a collection of the most popular plants in America, plus foolproof ways to keep them lush, healthy, and full of flowers

grows them by the hundreds. At Buell's, we each picked up a superb specimen of that nonsensically nomenclatured Sassy Lass, a striking white-flowered bloomer whose multiple blossoms are striped with brilliant rays of lavender/crimson. The plant is a standout far removed from the cliché image of the purple African violet. Where its name came from I have no idea. In this case I'm simply not interested. The plant's beauty speaks for itself.

On the same trip I picked up a Laven-der Love, with dainty frilly mottled purple flowers, a Red Wow, which has the deepest maroon flowers I've ever seen, and a Wild One, whose striking symmetrically scalloped leaves are quite unlike the standard vision of the African violet. I also picked up . . . but I won't go through the whole list. Visiting a greenhouse can be very dangerous. It's so often easier to buy more than you meant to than to make a difficult choice.

One thing that is not difficult is caring for your African violets. Basically what they need most is good light. Contrary to popular belief, direct sun is good for African violets, encouraging them to bloom continuously. However, summer sun in the middle of the day is too intense for them. An east or west window is usually the best all-year location for these plants.

Rotate the pots a quarter of a turn a week, or once every two weeks when you fertilize. Otherwise you will have leaners, plants that literally tilt right out of their pots toward the light. The ideal African violet forms a rosette of leaves that lies flat and covers the entire pot rim evenly.

Fertilizing is simple, but also absolutely necessary for floriferous plants. There are a number of special African violet fertilizers on the market. They all work well if used according to directions, which usually means every 2 or 3 weeks. Some people, myself included, prefer to fertilize with every watering, using a very dilute solution. It solves the did-I-fertilize-last-week-or-not problem. But make sure you use very little fertilizer each time. Experiment until you get good results.

The potting soil for African violets can be one of any number of fancy combinations, but most growers use one of the prepackaged sterilized soils especialty blended for these plants. If you use plastic pots, the soil must be very porous, or you'll end up with too moist soil and crown rot. On the other hand, plastic pots do retain moisture longer than clay pots do, and thus help to keep the soil from drying out. My own personal preference has always been for clay pots. They not only minimize the dangers of overwatering, but, because the pots "breathe," they keep the soil in good shape and promote root growth. Whichever type you use, keep the pot small in proportion to the plant. Things will grow better.

Probably the biggest controversy surrounding African violets is the top watering versus the bottom watering debate. Both schools agree that the water should be at room temperature or slightly warmer. But how to apply it? Watering from the bottom, that is, filling the pot's saucer and letting the soil wick up the moisture, prevents any chance of water collecting in the plant's crown and inducing rot. On the other hand, it means salts will collect in the soil, so once a month you will have to water from the top in any case, to wash them out. The choice is up to you. And, frankly, it really doesn't make that much difference. With just a little care it's almost impossible to fail. African violets simply grow on you.

The homegrown sun

The real boom in African violet enthusiasm followed World War II, hard on the heels of a technological breakthrough in indoor lighting, namely, the fluorescent tube.. Although this energyefficient fixture never made it past the kitchen and is rarely seen in the rest of the house today, fluorescent light had an overpowering impact on office and factory environments-and on African violets.

Incandescent bulbs, for the most part, do not offer strong enough light in the red and blue parts of the spectrum for African violets. And used by themselves, they generate too much heat for the tender young leaves. Because of the heating factor, however, some growers like to use an incandescent bulb or two in addition to fluorescent light, although the incandescents are not necessary.

What is necessary is a pair of fluorescent tubes. A single tube really doesn't throw off enough light. Furthermore, the least amount of light is generated by the couple of inches at the ends of the tubes, so the longer the tubes, the more efficient they are. The 4 -foot models provide a good balance between efficiency and unmanageability. Most people ùse two or four of these 40 -watt tubes in a parallel reflector. Left on for 10 to 12 hours a day, the bulbs will produce excellent plants at a fraction of the energy cost of a color TV.

The type of fluorescent tube to use is open to debate. I have used the specially balanced grow lights such as Duro-Lite's Vita-Lite with great success. The purplecolored grow lights I find visually unacceptable for anything but the most purple of plants. Some growers feel that by combining natural-white and daylighttype fluorescent lighting they achieve good results for lower costs.

All your plants should be grown with their leaves 10 to 14 inches below the tubes. One tip: The darker foliage African violets need more light than the variegated or light green varieties, so grow them toward the center of the fixtures, the others toward the ends.

Whether your home is in the south or the north, PPG has an energy-saving environmental glass for your windows and sliding glass doors.

Where the climate is blistering, you can reduce your air-conditioning costs with Solarcool ${ }^{\circledR}$ Bronze reflective glass. It cuts heat gain through the glass by almost 50 percent, compared to clear glass.

Newest in the PPG line, Solarcool cuts way down on ultraviolet light, too, which is a major cause of fading. Its beautiful mirrored face provides comparative privacy, and by reducing glare makes it a lot nicer to look out on a summer's day.

Up north, PPG Twindow ${ }^{\text {® }}$ insulating glass uses two sealed panes to bring breathtaking winter scenes indoors while you breathe in comfort. Since it reduces heat loss through the glass more than 40 percent, it obviously saves energy. It cuts messy condensation. And if you want to save even more, add storm windows for triple glazing.

Safari thrills without going to Africa

BY PATRICIA S. FALZARANO

It was a warm summer day, the sun climbed high in the sky. There were more than 200 wild animals roaming the 38 acres that lay before us-elephants, tigers, rhinos, antelope, wild cattle, mountain goats, deer, and birds. Eight of us climbed into our car relishing the cool shade it provided. It was our job to find the animals, so with the help of our driver-guide we kept a careful eye on everything that moved. Around the first turn, there they werea small herd of Reeves' Muntjac deer hard to believe that this was going on daily from May to October at the Wild Asia exhibit at the Bronx Zoo in New York. This very special exhibit is just one of the very un-zoo-like things zoos are doing in this country. Many animals are moving out of cages with iron bars into enclosed environments that simulate their natural habitats. Clever landscaping with stone fences, moats, multilevels and air currents-depending on the occupant-gives the impression of closeness and enables the animals to act as they would in their natural habitats. The new zoo philosophy tries to bring the public closer to the way animals live in the wild. Zoo curators hope it will stress the importance of animal conservation to visitors. Breeding pro-grazing in the bush. They called out to one another announcing our arrival, but let us slip by without stirring. Moving on, the barking of the Muntjac was drowned out by a deep growl-two Siberian tiger cubs were alternately wading in a pond and teasing their mother to join them. Our car crept silently by without interrupting mama tiger's "cat" nap. Next, a huge rhinoceros trotted right past ignoring us for two other rhinos. He tried to coax them to play, but not being in a playful mood, one retreated while the other dived into a small mud puddle and all but disappeared. It would have been difficult to miss the elephants we came upon next, they weighed thousands of pounds each. They plunged right into the 50 -foot-round pool. One young elephant rolled over on his back, water covering all but his trunk and four kicking legs. The others were simultaneously showering one another with their built-in shower heads.

We watched all this in wonder-it was

Zoo-fun for you

and your family this summer
Zoos are busier than usual in the spring and summer. Aside from moving animals to their warm weather homes, they begin their summer programs for hu-mans-zoo camps for 1 to 5 days, special lectures, classes, and tours. Some interesting programs to investigate for week days and weekends:-
The Bronx Zoo offers a booklet describing courses and activities for adults, children, and families. Join the zoo staff early one morning for their preopening duties of waking and feeding the animals: learn about animal law and order: zoo photography. The Animal Kingdom Zoo Camp, a special 5-day adventure for children at the zoo, invites campers to an overnight stay at the zoo on the last day. Teen-agers can join a month-long summer internship on animal care. Write the New York Zoological Society, The Bronx Zoo. Bronx. N.Y. 10460, attention: Education Department

The Brookfield Zoo (Chicago Zoological Park) is planning to celebrate several birthdays this summer. Mary, the black rhinoceros, is the oldest living rhino in captivity. A party to honor her 46 years takes place on August 31. The small primates will celebrate their birthdays, too. Check the date with the Brookfield Zoo, Brookfield, III. 60513

The St. Louis Zoo conducts a series of classes for all ages. A few are: animal care at home; wild life conservation; animal crafts; photography workshop; Let's Go To The Zoo, which is a special tour for children with balloons and a ride. Some classes offer a behind-the-scenes look at the animals and zoo management. For more information, write the St. Louis Zoo, Forest Park, St. Louis, Mo. 63110.

San Diego Zoo has a 5 -day zoo summer school for young people. This summer, the Wild Animal Park's gates are open from 9 A.M. to 9 P.M., but you can stay until 11 P.m. Catch up on old ani-mal-related movies such as The African Queen at the outside amphitheatre. Board the last monorail ride, which leaves at 10 P.M. and returns 50 minutes later. Near silence is kept on the monorail. A special orange-glow light on the train illuminates the fields and animals without disturbing them. Hear the growl of the tiger, catch the reflection in his eye, observe the herding behavior of animals at night. For a copy of scheduled events write: San Diego Zoo, Public Relations Dept., Brochure Request, P.O. Box 551, San Diego, Calif. 92112.

Skylark for a day in

 Boston's marketplace
BY DEE HARDIE

You can turn a sow's ear into a silk purse! Look at Faneuil Hall Marketplace in Boston, one of the classiest transformations around. Wildly successful, the three buildings in the complex, Quincy Market, South Market, and North Market, all over 150 years old, have been restored to make a new sort of downtown center with a million visitors a month.

For many, Faneuil Hall Marketplace is a market, a corner grocery, but to visitors it's more like a day at the fair or a night on the town. Mayor Kevin White often has his early-morning coffee at Marion's; proper Bostonians, vested and pin-striped, discuss business over lunch at Seaside. Just as many improper Bos-tonians-the young-break bread purchased from Au Bon Pain, as they sit on benches in the cobblestone mall and watch the world (plus wandering mimes, jugglers, and a score of pushcarts selling anything from hammocks to puppets) go by. There are 150 shops and restaurants, a flower market open 24 hours a day, 365 days of the year. Downtown Boston has a heart again.

Only a 12 -minute ride from Logan Airport, the marketplace covers $6^{1 / 2}$ acres and is an exuberant pedestrian precinct. Even the streets between the markets are closed to cars. Quincy Market, the central hall, is a bazaar of foods sold in restaurants, cafés, bakeries. North and South Markets have restaurants, too, as well as a wide assortment of retail shops, and on the upper floors, modern offices.

In 1742, a Peter Faneuil built the original Faneuil Hall alongside the Town Dock. Food stalls operated on the first floor, and overhead was a meeting hall for the town.

What a fire almost extinguished in 1761, patriotism rekindled. The meeting hall was Hancock and Adams's arena for cries of liberty. The Stamp Act was denounced from its rostrum, the Tea Party begun.

By the early 1800 s, Mayor Joshua Quincy commissioned architect Alexander Parris to design a new marketplace as an extension. Wharves were torn down, the Town Dock filled in. Since the project was initiated by the city government using reclaimed land, it is often referred to as America's first example of urban renewal.

The three new markets built of granite in the Greek-Revival style were finished in 1826 on landfill reaching out into Boston Harbor. The centerpiece, Quincy Market, named after the mayor, was the most elaborate with Doric columns and a Pantheon-like dome. The two side markets, South and North, were simpler. Used until 1960 as wholesale food markets, the buildings stood vacant for a decade, and once were slated for destruction. Today these markets are on the National Register of Historic Places, and have been called the finest architectural composition of that period surviving in the United States.

Not knowing quite what to do with the market area, but convinced it should not vanish, the Boston Redevelopment Authority began acquiring the market buildings in 1963. By 1966 there were already plans for restoration and revitalization, the work of Benjamin Thompson, an architect and entrepreneur, founder of Design Research. Later The Rouse Company, creators of the new town of Columbia, Md., became the project developers.
"We went in where other developers with any sense feared to tread," says James W. Rouse, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the company. "Retailing was bleeding away to the suburbs. The market buildings were deplorable, ravaged in every possible way. Ben Thompson came to us and after we looked and listened, we knew that if anything new was to happen in

What to Buy

Quincy Market: The Coffee Connection offers coffee from all over the world. The day we were there the special blend was Colombian Supremo-French. The Salty Dog-for carry-home scallops, scrod; United Provisions Companyfruits, vegetables; $M$. Berenson & Co. -its own farm-grown geese; Great American Lobster Co.-lobsters at the counter or to go; Aegean Fare-Greek salads and all the sweets of Greece: Baby Watson Cheesecake for cheesecake and Syrian bread rolled into sandwiches to eat as you walk. Jennetta's offers homemade gnocci and cavatelli, The Juicerie sells milkshake-thick blends of puréed fruit. And in the center ring-a rotunda for sitting, eating, watching people. Or for white linen luxury, Lilly's Restaurant serves a pear and prosciutto salad at lunch. The Proud Popover makes a succulent pudding, and the Magic Pan, a myriad of crêpes.

South Market: Artisans Cooperative for quilts; Have-a-Heart palpitating with hearts on everything; Crabtree & Evelyn's for wild raspberry honey, broadstriped napkins from Crate & Barrel, Operculum for shells, posters at Graph$i k s$, teddy bears, china bears, bears in dinner jackets from Bear Necessities. For lunch Seaside and Café Cybele. Or if you want to start from the beginning again, you could have a codfish breakfast at Crickets Resaturant.

North Market: Fiorucci for clothes, the Bill Rodgers Running Center run by Bill Rodgers, Kreeger & Sons for outdoor clothes and equipment, also Goods Department Store-an old-fashioned, small-scale department store with another branch in Cambridge. And shops for children-the White Rabbit & Co., a bookstore for the young with shelves at their level; The Kite Site; Sweet Stuff for a chocolate pizza; The Name of the Game for games. And the unusualPavo Real, a shop for life-size papiermâché fantasy animals. Food here ranges from the Chowder House at the Landmark Inn to Lord Bunbury, the pub's interior imported from London.

Hours: Shopping, Monday through Saturday 10 A.M.-9 P.M., Sunday noon6 P.M. Dining seven days until 2 A.m.

How to get there: By automobile, John Fitzgerald Kennedy Expressway. Heading south, take Dock Square exit: heading north take Government Center exit. By subway: Green or Orange lines to either Government Center or Hay-market Station. Blue line to Government Center or Aquarium Stations. American Airlines flies non-stop from New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Washington, D.C., St. Louis, Cleveland, Dallas/Ft. Worth, Detroit, Baltimore, and Bermuda.

The sports car of jetcraft: Air France's Concorde

After 18 months of daily service to Paris from New York, Air France's Concorde service seems to have won ifself a place in the lives of enough Americans that the sleek supersonic aircraft rarely take off with an empty seat. (Washington, D.C. has had the A.F. Concorde since May, 1976 and Dallas since January, 1979.) But if you've never taken the Concorde and want not only the experience but also the conveniences and benefits of supersonic travel, Air France recommends the less hectic summer season when many of the Concorde's regular business travelers are on vacation. Late last summer, House & Garden's Ed-itor-in-Chief, Mary Jane Pool, did just this, making her first round trip. Here's her report:
"The flight from New York goes at 1 P.M.-a day flight, which is such a restful way to get to Europe. The 1 o'clock departure allows for a leisurely breakfast and time to do last-minute packing. At the airport everything is streamlined for the check-in and boarding from a special Concorde lounge. The plane is boarded a few people at a time, starting with those sitting in the back of the plane.

The Concorde cabin is arranged with two seats to each side of a narrow aisle. It's almost like a sports car: the jumbo jets now seem like big sedans. We take off sports-car fast, bank to the left to avoid noise over populated areas, maneuver up above the weather, out over the water, flying faster and higher-everything smooth and quiet except for the constant wooshing sound of the engines. The sign in the front of the cabin shows our speed: Mach 2, twice the speed of sound, $1,350 \mathrm{~m} . \mathrm{p} . \mathrm{h}$. We felt no jolt-nothing-as we reached first Mach 1 and then Mach 2. At 60,000 feet, I think I can see, through the bright haze outside my window, the curvature of the earth. The captain who has been narrating our progress tells us our cabin is pressurized at 5,500 feet above sea level. Subsonic aircraft are pressurized at 7,500 feet.
"Lunch is French and delicious. Pastel napkins, attractive glassware, sleek stainless steel, and handsome china containers for the various dishes make a very appealing tray. You're only on board long enough to have one meal-and it's

Q. A collection of china miniatures is a nagnet for dust on an open bookcase. s there a way to enclose the shelf?
A. Installing sliding glass doors on a ookcase shelf is an easy way to convert to a display cabinet. Top and bottom racks for the doors are available at most lardware stores. For a wood bookcase, vood runners will be most attractive, ince you can stain or paint them to natch. They are also available in alumium or plastic.
Purchase a track for $1 / 4$-inch doors nd cut with a hacksaw to fit the exact vidth of the shelf. To install the bottom rack (the shorter one-see diagram), un a small bead of carpenter's glue long the shelf, $1 / 2$ inch in rom the edge. Position the rack flush with the front dge of the shelf and nail n place with $3 / 4$-inch finshing nails. Glue and nail he top track to the underide of the next shelf. You vill need at least 1 -inch lails, depending on the leight of the track. A lamp is helpful to hold the track in place while working-a piece of cardboard slipped under each clamp jaw protects the shelf from scratches.

You can have the doors cut to size at a glass shop. Each one should be half the length of the shelf plus $1 / 2$ inch and as tall as the distance between the two shelf tracks, plus $1 / 4$ inch. Have the glazier grind two identations for "thumbholes" on each door. Slip the doors up into the top track and then drop them into the bottom grooves. They should slide back and forth with little effort.

Q. Is it possible to retrieve something once it has fallen down the sink?

A.Maybe-if you turn the water off fast enough. Something light like a contact lens may have been washed away, but a ring may still be caught in the J-shaped trap. Larger objects like combs and toothbrushes will be snared by the J-bend and must be removed or a clog may occur.

The J-trap is fastened by large nuts to the sink drain and outlet pipe. To remove it and check for objects inside, first place a bucket on the floor beneath it to catch any drips. Then loosen the nuts with a monkey wrench, a 12 -inch adjustable wrench, or a pipe wrench (but be sure to wrap cloth, heavy tape, or a piece of leather around the nut to prevent the jaws of the pipe wrench from biting into the chrome). Remove washers and the trap, and pour the waterand your lost treasure-into the bucket. To dislodge combs and larger objects still stuck in the pipe, tap the trap to loosen them or reach in and pull them out.

To reassemble the trap and insure a water-tight fit, wrap a layer of Teflon pipe-joint tape over the spot where the washers go on the drain tailpiece and outlet tube. Slip the nut onto J-trap, put washer into nut (you may have to replace worn washers) and hand tighten nut around trap and tailpiece. Tighten with wrench.

HOUSH MPATH

Q. How should I finish butcherblock kitchen counters and care for them properly?
A.If the wood is to be used strictly as a work surface and not for cutting, all the treatment it will need is a periodic coating of boiled (not raw) linseed oil. Cover the block with oil, let penetrate for 10 minutes (no longer), and wipe off with soft absorbent cloth. You may need a second cloth to soak up all the oil. When scratches appear, just sand with fine grain paper, working with, not against, the wood grain, and reoil the area.

You can also seal butcherblock with varnish or polyurethane. These, however, will give the wood an unnatural shine, rather than take advantage of its own luster as linseed oil will. These treatments also cannot be repaired if scratched.

If you're planning to use all or part of your counter as a cutting board, you should treat it with mineral oil instead of linseed. Mineral oil is edible, transparent, odorless, and will not become rancid. Cover the wood with oil, let it soak and wipe off as before. To maintain the wood and remove grease and accumulated dirt, scrub down with steel wool and detergent. Sanitize by covering with chlorine bleach and letting it soak in for several minutes. Wipe, rinse with clear water, and wipe again. After the wood is thoroughly dry, you may want to sand down some of the knife scratches. Refinish with mineral oil. This treatment should be repeated whenever the board starts to discolor.

Butcherblock treated with linseed oil can also be scrubbed down, bleached, and reoiled to clean it and give the wood new luster. With either oiled surface, wipe after each use with a squeezed damp rag. Follow by wiping with a dry cloth.

Q. Is there any way to stop hinges from squeaking permanently?

A.A hinge can be lubricated to silence it, but sometimes a squeak is a sign of excess strain on the hinge pin. Check to see that all the screws fastening the hinge to the door and door frame are secure; they may have pulled out of the wood. If they have, remove them. Fill the holes with plastic wood filler, let dry, and drill pilot holes in the same spot (hardened plastic wood filler is actually stronger than wood). Reinsert the screws and tighten securely.

Penetrating lubricants, sold at hardware stores for use on metal parts, work wonders on noisy hinges. They come in aerosol cans with a narrow, 6 -inch long tube that attaches to the spray opening and allows for very precise aim. Close the door, hold a cloth under the hinge, and spray lubricant in the joints. Wipe off excess. Open door and spray seams on the inside of the hinges.

An alternate cure that makes use of ingredients on hand is to coat the hinge pin with petroleum jelly. Use a screwdriver and a hammer to coax one hinge pin out. Cover it with jelly and reinsert. Repeat for each hinge, then open and close door to work jelly well into joints for quiet entrances and exits.

Closet sauna
Here's the Solo Sauna Door for use in small space. A prefab unit, it can turn an unused closet into a sauna (minimum space $311 / 2$ inches wide, $341 / 2$ deep, 77 high). Complete with heater, light, vent, window, and controls (timer, thermostat, light switch), the redwood door is 78 inches high, 24 wide, $11 / 4$ thick. Hung left or right, it connects to 120 V household current. By adding redwood paneling and insula-

Summer: a time for outdoors, bare-skinned freedom, play!

Starting here, dozens of ways to get more out of your decorating, > cooking, entertaining, sports - even creative relaxationto show how a positive outlook can make anything more fun.

Old-fashioned cotton chenille in summery sherbety colors makes great washable cushion covers for porches and pool decks.

For summertime dining, cover a glasstopped table with see-through fabric, as Lella Vignelli does, then light it from beneath for a floaty, translucent look.

You can update last year's sisal or straw rug by painting or stenciling a flower border or a leaf design in the center.

How about a new kind of scarecrow? Shimmery pinwheels along a newly seeded lawn or garden will give birds second thoughts.

Lettuce planted between rows of flowers fills the whole garden with green.

For outdoor entertainment, your own portable media room: the new lightweight 5-inch TV/radio from Quasar.

Here's a zingy summer drink from sailing expert Heather Bondy: half iced red zinger herb tea, half fresh-squeezed grapefruit juice, sprigged with peppermint or a circle of lime.

Fresh cut herbs in a bowl of water keep the air sweet and look as pretty as flowers. Herbs like mint and sage planted in window boxes will help keep insects away.

Wonderful summer dessert: a big glass bowl of ice and water heaped with fresh peaches and nectarines. The colors are beautiful-and the fruit stays cool.

Quick art for a rented summer house kites, either hung or tacked to the wall.

Turn a screen porch into a summer room by enclosing it with rolled canvas shades or matchstick bamboo shades.

Comfortable summer relaxation rugquilted moving-van mats, sewn together in rainbow colors.

Give a window the sunshine look: Hang a window shade covered with yellow and white awning striped fabric; trim the edges of white canvas curtains with a matching bias strip.

A lightweight straw mat is easy to carry to a picnic and makes walking easy on the beach.

Here's how to give pillows a quick summer start: Two bandanas, one on top, one on bottom, knotted at the corners.

A fresh spray of white paint gives an old Victorian gilded mirror a fresh look, say the folks at The Wicker Garden in New York City.

How to turn a chest into a Chinese wedding trunk (and a pretty place to store extra table linens): Cover with Oriental floral print fabric, and shellac.

For bright billowy ceilings, hang a wonderful striped spinnaker (from marine sailmakers). Just tack to cornice molding, or suspend from cup hooks.

Special summer celebrations are happening all over the country-and they're not hard to find. Check with the Chambers of Commerce near you.

For lunch, how about: Melon soup. Cool and luscious as it looks. Just blend a sweet ripe melon with cold white wine.

To make tie-back curtains twice as nice, hang curtains from a top rod, catch to each side with two hooks-one above the other, about 2 feet apart. Cover hooks with ribbon bows.

For a summer party outside, light the way with lanterns made from sturdy candles rooted in sand inside shallow paper bags.

Pack picnics in portions-so each person carries his own. And turn the tablecloth into totes. Simply cut printed sheets into lap-sized squares, tie opposite ends, tuck in a lunch, and slip over an arm or a shoulder. The leftover sheet becomes the napkins.

You can line a pool deck, patio, or terrace with no-slip mats that look terrific, too. You piece together interlocking squares of flower-colored rubber. Tiledeck by Uniroyal.

"A house should not inhibit you, lock you into a rigid living pattern," says Peter Jefferson, architect of his own freewheeling Florida house. So he made enjoyment of life and freedom of activity indoors and out the essentials of this open-space dwelling. Wide verandas wrap around three sides of the square house, serving as outdoor rooms with glorious views. The site, at the confluence of river and creek, offers a subtropical backdrop of sky and water, mangrove, bird and marine life. Children's boating exploits can be watched, water skiing, the arrival of friends' boats, an occasional tugboat chugging by. And there are occasional tropical sunset spectaculars, which can also be viewed from a bathtub installed on the south porch for open-air dips. The porches open to the living-dining-kitchen making it, too, a part of the outdoors. Sliding glass walls line nearly three sides of this great 35 -by- 29 -foot room. ## Why men like to cook outdoors

BY MARK O'DONNELL

An inconclusive but exhaustive report

Why do men like to cook outdoors? The answer may be stupid, but it is not simple.

Let us examine the question scientifically, since people will then assume our opinions are correct Besides, it will allow us to carry clipboards and talk authoritatively. True, we could just go by our gut feelings, but we'd be less likely to get government funding for it, and it's too soon after lunch.

First of all, let us wash our hands with a good abrasive soap and examine our terms. When we say "man," we refer to any organism that changes fuses, sleeps late, and doesn't understand women. In this case, the species can be identified by the large hamburger turner he carries (see Parloff's Grasping in Males studies) and a white apron that reads "Looky at Cooky." When we say "outdoors," we mean just barely. Not the dense, buggy forest primeval; rather, we refer to nothing more untamed than a backyard patio, or, at the wildest, a nearby state park, and even then within walking distance of the parking lot. When we say "cook," we mean to describe a sort of friendly poking at pieces of meat, usually accompanied by the sort of noises man otherwise reserves for his bowling misfortunes. God knows what we mean when we say "we."

It is a combination of man's most basic drives that preconditions him to initiate barbecue behavior. (At this point it might be a good idea to start taking notes.) The barbecue, an instinctive ritual that began in the Stone Age (without the apron), has continued down through the centuries uninterrupted, except for a stretch during the Restoration, when everyone was a wimp.

But what are those most basic drives in man that send him bounding out of doors with a cry of "Come and get it?" (Cominued on page 195)

who gathers recipes

like souvenirs

People who have not read any of my books sometimes ask me what they are about, and it is difficult to give a precise answertravel basically, set in the present but leaning heavily on the past, a mixture of history and the arts. For longer than I care to remember, my publishers have kept me posted to different parts of the globe: much of Africa, large tracts of Asia, the Pacific islands retracing Captain Cook's voyages, all of Latin America, and more recently the Antipodes. Memories crowd in on me: the coasts of Ceylon, half-obscured by the waves' mist-like spume; nights on the beaches of Zanzibar with land crabs clattering home over heaps of dry weed. In Tonga, Ve'ehala, the keeper of the Royal Records gave me a recital on his nose-flute. We were sitting in his office at Nuku'alofa, the capital of the islands, preparatory to visiting Queen Saloti's palace, when, unexpectedly, he put his flute to his nose, blocked one nostril with a thumb, and breathed gently down the instrument. The subject of his tune was the sorrow of a seagull who, at the hour of dawn, discovered she had lost a feather.

Intermingled with these impressions come memories of a more tangible nature; those, for instance, of the various taste sensations enjoyed in different parts of the world. Curious always about food, I have been in the habit of taking notes, either trying to describe the unusual dishes served to me, or better still, whenever the occasion presented itself, trying to analyze them.

Among some of the more surprising delicacies must be counted Australia's sugar ants. I was staying at a Lutheran mission in the Central Deserts and the pastor's wife had asked the female aborigines to collect them for me. It is a deep burrowing ant, which feeds on the bloom of a certain plant. After rain, its abdomen becomes distended to a bladder about the size of a grape and is filled with a thin syrup, the sweetness of which is relieved by a slight acidity and a flavor of malt. The women will frequently do half a day's digging, sometimes following the galleries 4 feet deep in the loam, in order to get perhaps fifty or a hundred ants. In Mexico I always ate in the small popular restaurants, the only places, apart from private houses, where one finds genuine Mexican cooking. Perhaps the most recherché of the delicacies I sampled is huit la cochi made from sweet corn that had been attacked by a fungus. The grain swells and turns a milky charcoal and in this condition is sauteed in creamdelicious.

Quite obviously the ants and the diseased corn are not for general consumption, and in collecting dishes one has to be careful, for food prepared in certain ways, although perfectly practicable, is not always suitable and needs (Continued on page 224)

Winning is everything...

BY PAULAA RICE JACKSON

Two human performance experts

give the reasons why
"Everybody loves a winner. . . ." It seems to be a very human desire-the striving that results in joy. To exult in the joy of winning, of succeeding, of knowing you're the best. And, of course, it's also great fun to be admired, to have ascribed to yourself all those glories winning brings. Being a winner is its own identity. Dr. Ernest Vandeweghe (pronounced van-de-wee), who, with his associate Dr. Laurence Morehouse, runs the Human Performance Laboratory at the University of California, at Los Angeles, says winning-at a game, a sport, at anything-has profound positive effects on a person's self-esteem and well-being. Dr. Vandeweghe feels there are five important reasons why winning is worth the effort:
(1) Winning builds confidence. It fosters attitudes that become a cause of the success. "You make your own luck" follows from this kind of thinking. (2) Winning produces good morale. If you are a player of a "one-on-one" sport, such as tennis, a habit of winning strengthens your future chances. If you're a team player, winning generates the "team momentum" that often results in "streaks." (3) Winning is a reward, a prize in itself in a world where there are precious few rewards or recognition for discipline and effort. Winning brings approval.
(4) Winning a competition, opponents being of about equal skill, prepares you for the real competitive issues and arenas of life.
(5) Winning sets up an attitude of striving that spills over into other areas of life. It also deepens the interest to overcome one's own limits, or in competitive sports, one's own record. This becomes the aspect of "putting forth one's very best effort."

Advice from authorities  who look beyond winning and losing

Our American enthusiasm for competing in sport has overflowed into many other areas of our lives. We use the vernacular of sport as the metaphor to describe our feelings about people and events. Phrases such as a whole new ballgame, a winning streak, Monday morning quarterback, he's a winner, she's a great competitor, they're a bunch of losers, have become everyday catchalls, used in politics, business, and even in the arts. Vince Lombardi's famous maxim that winning isn't everything, it's the only thing, sometimes seems to have become our new golden rule.

Winning is terrifically important, no question. But extreme obsession with winning takes away the whole meaning of playing; often it precludes winning because it makes you uptight, you make mistakes, it all begins to matter too much. Under these conditions, even if you win, you haven't had a very good time.

One of the prime reasons we play sports is that very thing: to have fun and to feel happy about how we played. That ball you retrieved from the back line in tennis, the putt you sank on the third green against all odds, the little boy on the baseball field who made his first catch for an out-these are the things you remember. Maybe you lost the game, but you succeeded in playing very well indeed, and in the experience you found enjoyment.

I realize that this is a hard point to make stick. I've discussed it with my schoolboy son who, at this stage of his life, wants to do well in sports more than anything in the world. "But, it isn't fun if you don't win," he tells me. I understand what he is saying, but nevertheless I argue that if you don't feel desperately that you have to win, conversely you don't feel you have to lose, which is the only alternative within this tight dichotomy. In order to succeed you don't necessarily have to win.

It seems to me that competition and the whole win-lose ethic are rather (Continued on page 192)

f you want a green garden, his is the way to have it. Elinor Merrell's garden vas too shady to grow nuch else, so she bought ome ferns-only three osrich ferns to start-then ransplanted some from urrounding pastures and noods. Ferns as a decoraive motif interest her, too she's a New York-based pecialist in antique texiles), and she has added gradually to her fern deign collection while her erns have multiplied hrough spores and spreadng. 'Spores-the fern's answer to seeds-are a Nonderful job of packagng," she notes. "Once you get a stand of ferns growng, you really don't need much else. Ferns are ideal or busy people and weekend gardeners. They need 1o fertilizers, no raking, no nsecticides. They can be lanted at most any timef you keep the roots moist. You just try to duplicate heir natural habitat-but nake sure you have the owner's permission if you pade them up in the wild!" As a beginner, she bought erns and learned about hem from Ruth Hardy's Wildflower and Fern Nursrry in Falls Village, Conn. She also read and recomnends Senator George D. 4iken's book, Pioneering vith Wildflowers, now in saperback from Countrynan Press, Taftsville, Vt. "My soil was miserable," he says, "but I discovered hat ferns are not too paricular about soil as long as hey have some leaf mold and moisture. Another good thing about ferns is hat even in winter, beds Non't look desolate if you olant evergreen ferns unler deciduous ones. My osrich ferns, for instance, urn a stunning brown in ate August, but the underlanting carries on through winter." More on pages 222 and 219.

Fossil
The earth knew ferns before dinosaurs; even their fossils are beautiful, above Some 12,000 species thrive today in temperate and tropical climates. Many are winter-hardy in U.S. gardens, even window boxes. Ferns are long-lived and will grow in shade where flowers or shrubs might fail.

How Ferns Grow

Croziers are curled immature leaves ready to unfold as graceful fronds. This typical frond has spores under each leaflet. Ferns reproduce by spores, not seeds, and by runners, bulblets, and feet. They can also be divided.

Northern

 maidenhairAdiantum pedatum 1'-2'. Deciduous. Dainty fans on wiry dark stems. Shade. Rich moist soil. Other maidenhairs, such as A. capillus-veneris, grow in warm-climate gardens, or indoors.

FERN  FACTS

Cinnamon fern Osmunda cinnamomea 2'-4'. Deciduous. Sun or shade. Common and easily grown. Fertile "cinnamon stick" holds spores. Spreads slowly.

Goldie's fern

Dryopteris Goldiana
4'. Deciduous. Non-spreading. Moist shade. Largest of woodferns, which include useful evergreen Dryopteris intermedia, the florist fern (picked in summer, kept in cold storage), and D marginalis.

Interrupted fern

Osmunda Claytoniana
$3^{\prime}-6$ '. Usually 4'. Deciduous. Full to partial shade. Tolerates dryness. Fronds are interrupted at center by spore cases.

Maidenhair

Adiantum Raddianum
1'-2'. Tiny leaflets
Cool shade year round. Mist often. Likes calcium. Pruning promotes new growth.

Bird's nest fern

Asplenium nidus

$1^{\prime}-4^{\prime}$. Bold glossy fronds held upright around nestlike center. Tolerates medium humidity. Shallow rooted, likes tight pot.

Golden Polypody  Polypodium aureum

To 4'. Coarse segmented fronds, bluish-green. Furry rhizome resembles hare's foot. Easy.

Boston

Nephrolepis exaltata 2'-5'. Cascading fronds ideal for basket or pedestal. Tolerates medium humidity. Happiest when least disturbed.

Matteuccia Struthiopteris

Ostrich fern $4^{\prime}-7$ '. Deciduous. Likes moist shade, tolerates some sun. Spreads quickly by runners. Some catalog. ues list as Onoclea Struthiopteris or M. pensylvanica.

House ferns need moist spongy soil, good drainage. No direct sun unless in winter. Cool atmosphereto low 70 s. Dilute fertilizer used sparingly.

\section*{Plantation fora President

\section*{Fabulous restoration

Fabulous restoration of the house where President Tyler lived, worked, and danced the Virginia reelnow open for visitors to share its treasures.

When President Tyler left office in 1845, he retired with his bride, Julia Gardiner, to a 1730 house on 1,600 acres along the James River in Charles City County, Virginia. He renamed it Sherwood Forest (for Robin Hood, whom he admired for putting public welf̂are before private gain), and added a colonnade and a ballroom, making it the longest frame house ( 300 feet) in the United States. The house was scarred by Union occupancy during the War Between the States, yet today, owned by the President's youngest grandson, Harrison R. Tyler, the house stands completely restored, and its 1,600 acres are still a working, family owned plantation.

Above: The Gray room, President Tyler's family sitting room, which takes its name from "The Gray Lady," a ghost said to have haunted it for 200 years. On the President's table is one of his books, with the mark of a burn and rifle-shot dating from the occupation by Union troops. Stools were gifts from the Thomas Jefferson family. Right: The dining room, with original French china, and wallpaper pattern chosen by his wife. The original paper, ordered from France in 1844, was removed and copied in 1976. The gilded valances were bought by the President's mother-in-law for $$ 7.50$ apiece. White Spode tea set belonged to Meriwether Lewis. Top: Sherwood Forest, a working plantation, open to the public.

PLANTATION FOR A PRESIDENT

The house is alive with irresistible history: The ballroom was designed for reels; the living room was once the President's bedroom, where he and his First Lady often breakfasted in bed; and in the drawing-room window stands an 1830s teapot with a lock: At the time, tea in Virginia was selling for $$ 80$ a pound.

Above: A bedroom on the second floor, furnished mostly with antique family pieces inherited by Mrs. Harrison R. Tyler. Framed fans on the wall are American 19th century. Shaving stand on Queen Anne table is Charleston Hepplewhite. Linen bedspread with patterned chintz cutouts dates from first half of 18th century. Top, left: The drawing room. Left: The ballroom, 68 feet long, designed by the President's wife for Virginia reels. Hand-hewn pine floor. Right: A corner of drawing room: 1720 Boulle clock, 1750 English petit-point fire screen.

When the present Tylers began restoring the house, only a third of the original furniture was still intact. But, using Julia Tyler's voluminous and enthusiastic correspondence as a source of reference, they matched colors, copied wallpapers, and added other heirlooms brought in by later Tyler brides, notably Mrs. Harrison Tyler herself, who directed the entire restoration. Matching foundation bricks, floors, doors, and paneling were found in two neighboring 18th-century houses, one of them formerly a Tyler property. Among the original furnishings ordered by President Tyler's wife for the house, and still in place today, are: a silver cake basket on the dining room table, and two pairs of girandoles bought for $$ 37.50$ a pair. All the door knockers and knobs were chosen by the President himself. Sherwood Forest is now a National Historic Landmark. It is located on State Rte. 5, 18 miles west of Williamsburg, and open to the public daily from 9 to 5 except on Christmas day. For information write Sherwood Forest, Charles City County, Va. 23030.

New lifestyle,newlook

You don't have to build from scratch to have a house that's suited to your likes and lifestyle. Instead, you can remodel an old house, and, as designer Jack Bodi says, "get the best of the old and the new." Mr. Bodi and photographerartist Joe Leombruno worked with builder Leonard Gordon to transform an ordinary house with tiny dark rooms into the handsome one here, with lavish sweeping spaces streamlined with white tiled floors, white walls, and lots of mirror and glass. The spacious livingdining room, for example, was created by combining the old wood-paneled family room and the largest bedroom. (The new bedroom and bath were once living and dining rooms; the kitchen was totally updated.) New additions are the fireplace here, and the 12 -foot-long window that overlooks the new swimming pool and flagstone terrace.

Inside, the remodeling was extensive, changing not only the look of the house, but the layout too. Now you enter through a bright white foyer to be welcomed by the living-dining room and new eat-in kitchen next door. Beyond the kitchen in its own private corner of the house, are the new bedroom (created from the old living room) and bath (once the dining room). In the bedroom, floor tiles continue over the built-in bed-footboard-night table platform. And the bedspread is quilted with squares that make a point of the all-tiled look of the room. And in the adjacent bathroom, mirrored walls echo tiles on the new bathtub ledge. Was the makeover worth all the work? "Yes," agree the owners, "because

Wash, trim and dsain the greens well, and toss in a large bowl with a bit of the special spicy Trattoria dressing. Arrange cucumbers radishes, tomatoes, eggs, tuna, and assorted garnishes on top of the lettuce and spoon on more dressing. To round oul the flavors and textures of the salad, serve with a wedge of mild cheese like Fontina or Bel Paese to slice at the table and a loaf of crusty Italian bread or heated hard rolls. Follow with bowls of mixed strawberries, blueberries, and raspberries sprinkled with confectioners sugar or honey.

There may still be places on earth where Grand Marnier isnt offered after dinner

Sandwiches of imagination tower in the mind-layer upon layer of favorite foods. The skill comes in the eatinghow to approach the luscious creation without its coming apart at the seams? The ideas described here and illustrated on the following four pages suggest some answers. Individual portions are shown; however, the idea can easily be expanded to become a sandwich buffet-cold sliced meats, salads, breads, lettuces, cheeses, sauces-a perfect way to serve many people and indulge their pursuit of the ideal sandwich.

At breakfast page 172

"The French eat chocolate on French bread for breakfast," says Devon Fredericks, New York caterer, who created the three breakfasts for those of us more inclined to traditional fare. Eggs are famous sandwich stuffers, but teamed with caviar they are fit for company. Ms. Fredericks dips her cream cheese and jelly sandwich in batter, then grills it. Peanut butter makes a breadless sandwich with apples. Nut butters with their high protein content make good breakfast fare-try them with bananas, raisins, and honey on whole-grain bread or between pear halves. Julie Jordon, in her Wings of Life cookbook, suggests a spread of 2 parts yogurt to 1 part peanut or sesame butter plus raisins and honey to taste. Or try buttermilk instead of the yogurt.

For dessert

What is a cake if not a sandwich? There are layers and fillings! So Michel Richard's mille-feuilles filled with strawberries and cream takes the cake as the prettiest sandwich. He owns and runs a pastry and catering shop in Los Angeles, where you can sample some of his other sandwiches-a layered omelet in a crust, or a dacquoise, or a torte . . . Richard Irving of L.A. Desserts, also in Los Angeles, makes his desserts as rich as he possibly can. His marjolaine has 3 flavors of butter cream sandwiched between four layers of nutstudded meringue. Jelly rolls qualify as sandwich desserts -fill them with homemade marmalades or jams and freeze them.

page 172

Pita breads were made for carrying: Cut in half to form two pockets or cut all the way around to make a super-sized mango, avocado, and sprouts sandwich to double wrap. Poke one corner out of the wrapping and use it to keep the sprouts in while eating. The juice of the mango and the oil of the avocado create all the dressing needed. Other good fillings are guacamole and chick-peas with sprouts; cheese, tomatoes, and mushrooms with garlic mayonnaise; any cold meat plus lots of sprouts for texture and vitamins. For other lunches try pâté with mustard and chopped pickles between slices of five-grain bread. If you're near an oven, try Cheddar over avocado or apples on pumpernickel. Or make pizzas on whole-wheat with homemade tomato sauce and shredded cheese plus chopped olives.

Finger sandwiches page 173

New ideas for food to serve with drinks are always welcome. Cornelia Minges, a New York caterer, balances hers for color and texturelike red beets with orange, pear with Stilton. She also suggests Gruyère, tomato, and rosemary griiled on grainy bread, or use cucumber slices as a base to top with watercress chopped and blended with cream cheese.

Fork and knife sandwiches

Sandwiches to satisfy an ap-petite-"I prefer ones you can't pick up," says Seppi Renggli, chef of The Four Seasons restaurant in New York, who likes big, open-faced sandwiches at home. They combine artfully arranged meats with enough crisp greens to make a salad. Another idea from chef Renggli is sautéed turkey breast ("I like it better freshly cooked") or veal with a tuna sauce (vitello tonnato) on dark bread. Try sliced steak with tarragon mustard on rye or turkey with a sweet pepper julienne and orange-flavored mayonnaise on wheat.

For supper

The best are warm and comforting, but light and not overly filling. Connie Burdick of Piecemeal, a catering and cooking school in Los Angeles, suggests multilayers of crêpes alternately filled with mushrooms, spinach, and diced ham. She also hollows out individualsized French loaves to fill or one larger bread to slice. Sautéed mushrooms on anadama toast are delicious for supper as are flaky feuilletés filled with creamy seafood.

Vegetable sandwiches

page 175

The breadless ones: Even when you're not dieting, they are a welcome change of pace. Richard Simmons, of Los Angeles's Ruffage and Anatomy Asylum, has a fondness for vegetables. His leafy creations are a riot of beans, sprouts, avocado, pineapple, papaya. Cabbage leaves are favorite "coverings" for their color and sturdiness. Mr. Simmons suggests romaine or iceberg lettuce as a base for chicken, papaya, sliced grapes with puréed papaya dressing. Recipes, page 180

The white wines of summer

Summer is white wine time. Summer is for fun, for outdoor living, for informality, for patio dining and picnics, for fight, uncomplicated foods. White wines are admirably suited for all such activities.

The whites have three great advantages for this time of year. First, they make a light and refreshing drink, especially when mixed with sparkling water. Second, they can be brought from the store and drunk. With a few excep-tions-great Burgundy, fine Sauternes, and top-level German wines-white wines do not require aging. Third, while chilling kills the taste of most red wines, whites benefit from an hour in the refrigerator or 20 minutes in an ice bucket.

Consumers in this country are fortunate in that they have a wide choice of domestic and imported wines in many price classes. Starting at the most inexpensive level, we have the white jug wines from California, which are genuine jugs include Los Hermanos Chablis ($3.60), nicely dry for its price; Paul Masson Chablis ( $$ 3.85$ ) with a pleasant bouquet and a hint of sweetness; Gallo Chablis Blanc ($3.49) fresh, clean, and a trifle sweet; Inglenook Navalle Chablis ( $$ 3.65$ ) a well made, well balanced wine; Taylor California Cellars Chablis ($3.60) a fruity, semisweet wine with good body. Though they cost more than the brands cited above, the generic (made from several grape varieties) wines in big bottles from Sebastiani, Fetzer, and Robert Mondavi have both character and value.

A tip: One should try to buy jug wines, and indeed almost all whites, from shops that have fast turnover. A white wine that sits on a shelf too long can lose its freshness and charm.

At the opposite end of the price spectrum from the jugs are the California Chardonnays, probably the finest whites made in this country. Made from the same grape that produces the famous white Burgundies and Blanc de Blancs Champagne, these wines are gaining the international recognition they deserve. For example, Sterling Vineyard's highly regarded Chardonnay, which costs about $$ 8$ here, is on the wine lists at the Ritz Hotel and the three-star L'Archestrate restaurant in Paris at twice the price. Like the best Burgundies, the domestic Chardonnay is a powerful, mouth-filling, big-bodied wine with a taste of the oak in which it was aged. Some examples made by small, "boutique" wineries go for $$ 15$ to $$ 20$ the bottle, which can take some of the spontaneity out of summer drinking. However, many less pricy bottles are available when you want a special wine to accompany elaborate seafood and poultry dishes, especially those with cream sauces. Château Montelena's 1976 Chardonnay costs $$ 10$, is very good, hard to find, and worth looking for. Freemark Abbey's 1975 and > "White wines have three advantages in summerthey make a light, refreshing drink, they can be brought directly from the store and drunk, they taste best chilled."

1976 vintages, about $$ 9.50$, are much admired. For those who want to try the Chardonnay flavor without an accompanying high price, the following are suggested: Dry Creek 1977 ($7.50); Geyser Peak 1977 ($4.50); Sebastiani 1976 ($5.50) ; Almadén 1977 ($3.70); Parducci 1977 ($5.50); Louis Martini 1977 ($4.50); Paul Masson N.V. ($4.45); Christian Brothers N.V. ( $$ 5.10$ ) ; Pedroncelli 1977 ( $$ 5.50$ ), and Sonoma Vineyards 1976 ($4.10).

Between the modest jug wines and the lordly Chardonnays are several other American wines that deserve attention this summer. The Johannisberg Riesling, the classic grape of Germany's Rhine and Moselle valleys, is doing beautifully in this country, producing flowery, bargains. These wines are clean, fresh, well made, and are considered by many experts as the best vins ordinaires in the world. Their wide availability and modest prices make them a good choice to serve to large gatherings, at picnics, or on any occasion where informality reigns.

There are about a score of jug wines available, and one's choice should be strictly a matter of personal taste. However, a number of brands have been doing well in blind tastings lately and deserve mention. Italian Swiss Colony Chablis, which sells for about $$ 3.50^{*}$ for a 1.5 liter bottle ( 50.7 ounces), is fruity, flavorful, well balanced, and a good value at its low price. Many tasters, when they don't know they are sipping Swiss Colony Chablis, guess that it is a California Riesling, which is quite a bit up the price fruity, slightly sweetish wines that please many tastes and are as good for sipping by themselves as they are with food. Rutherford Hill has made a distinguished 1977 ($5.75), and Château St. Jean is turning out flowery yet dry vintages ( $$ 5.75$ to $$ 6.50$ ). Other Johannisberg Rieslings worth keeping company with include Sonoma Vineyards 1976 and 1977 ($4.50); Wente 1977 ($4.25): Monterey 1977 ($4.75) ; Barengo 19.77 ( $$ 4.50$ ) ; Sebastiani's Northern California 1976 (a buy at $3.80) ; Firestone's sweet and fruity 1977 ($6) and Château Ste. Michelle's 1976 and 1977 vintages, which show how well the grape has taken to the state of Washington (about $5).

The Chenin Blanc from France's Loire Valley has been successfully domesticated and produces a clean, fresh, fruity wine that goes well with summer's light foods. Many of the vineyards mentioned above produce good Chenin Blancs. A fine example is Parducci's 1977 ($4.25). The French Colombard is another grape that more people ought to get to know. It produces a wine with good body, and an inexpensive introduction to the Colombard is Inglenook Navalle which has good flavor and is drier than many others (under $$ 3$ ).

experiment-minded might try: Buena Vista's Green Hungarian, which is soft and pleasant and resembles a less spicy Gewürztraminer and makes a nice apéritif (about $3); Christian Brothers Château La Salle, made from the muscat grape, is an excellent sweet dessert wine in its price class ($3); and Concannon's Sauvignon Blanc, which is full-bodied and whose bouquet reminds some of new-mown hay ( $$ 4.75$ ).

We all have heard stories about how high French wine prices are and that they will go higher still. There is some exaggeration at work; there are still reasonably priced French whites to be found. Muscadet, from the westernmost part of the Loire Valley, remains a perfect and affordable summer wine. It is light, fresh, pale, dry, and an excellent foil for seafood, especially shellfish. Two reliable producers of Muscadet are Château Noë and Marquis de Goulaine, both of whose 1976s sell for under $5. Try the crisp taste of Muscadet this summer. By next year the price might well be $$ 7.50$ and then wouldn't be recommended drinking.

The refreshing white Macons, with their glint of green, still remain reasonable as well. Situated just south of Burgundy, the Macon area produces large quantities of pleasant wine from the Chardonnay grape, much of which is exported. In buying Macon the rule is: know your shipper. If he is honest and dependable, the wine will be worth the $$ 4-$ 5$ it costs. The Macon-Villages 1976 shipped by Henri de Villamont is a sound example, equally good with food or as an apéritif by itself. The village of Lugny makes particularly nice Macons, so it is wise to search labels for that name.

Alsace, France's charming wine-growing province across the Rhine from Germany, remains a source of attractive wine. In general, Alsace wines are drier than what is made in nearby Germany. They are flowery with a nice balance between fruit and acid. Gewürztraminer from Alsace is likely to overpower food but makes a fine cocktail drink. The province's best wine is Riesling, dry, balanced, fruity, and still available around $$ 5$. Very good shippers are Dopff, Hugel, Charles Jux, Trimbach, and Willm. The latter, incidentally, sends a less expensive dry wine, Cordon d'Alsace, well worth its $$ 3.50$.

One of the best bargains in French wine unfortunately is an endangered species. It is called Coteaux Champenois and is a still (non-sparkling) wine made in the Champagne region from the same grape varieties used in the world-renowned bubbly. Coteaux Champenois is a bit drier than Champagne itself and at $$ 4$ to $$ 6$ gives better value than many whites selling for as much. Most bottles bear no vintage year, so one must be careful not to buy Coteaux Champenois when it is too old and oxydized. The telltale sign is a brownish color. Good inexpensive brands include Charbaut ( $$ 4.75$ ) and Canard-Duchêne ( $$ 4.25$ ). Moët makes a splendid example, Saran Nature ( $$ 13.50$ ). Some find Bollinger ( $$ 5.50$ ) a bit heavy. The drawback to Coteaux Champenois is that it won't be around long. The 1978 harvest in Champagne was dismally small, and so the older wines that were earmarked for still blends will go into Champagnes instead. This is the summer to enjoy Coteaux Champenois.

Germany, nearly all of whose wines are clean and carefully made, is an excellent supplier of summer whites. Its regional wines, which come to market bearing such names as Liebfraumilch, Moselblümchen, and Zeller Schwarze Katz and are packaged in fifths, liters, and magnums, are modestly priced and good for picnic drinking. Wines from specific towns are likely to be of higher quality. To give just one example of many available bottles, the shipper Hans Walter's 1977 Piesporter Michelsberg ($3) is a clean, pleasant, slightly sweet visitor from the Moselle Valley. Other names worth looking for include Piesporter Treppchen, Piesporter Goldtröpfchen, Niersteiner Domthal, Wiltinger Scharzberg, Zeller Grafschaft, Zeltinger Himmelreich, Mainzer Domherr, Saulheimer Probstey, and, in a higher price range, Schloss Johannisberg and Schloss Vollrads. The 1976 vintage was superb in the Rhine and Moselle, producing large amounts of the later-picked, finer and sweeter wines labeled Auslese and Spätlese. To many tastes, they are a bit cloying for hot-weather drinking, and such consumers should be directed to the 1977 vintage. That year produced a large quantity of light, fruity, early maturing wines. Many of them are rated as Kabinett, which means a good quality but dryish wine that should be ideal for drinking this summer. Many Kabinett wines from the vineyard townships mentioned above are available at $$ 4$ and less.

As French wines have grown more costly, Italy has moved into the breach and is now providing what probably is the best buy in imported whites. This is the 1.5 -liter ( 50.7 ounce) jug of Soave, a straw-colored, crisp, dry wine from the area east of Verona. Folonari and Barbella both retail their oversize jugs of Soave for under $$ 4$. There are many other good makers, so a bit of tasting around is in order. Verdicchio, a fresh. light, quality wine from east-central Italy, is becoming more and more popular here. Imported in both oversize bottles and fifths, it costs a bit more than Soave and is worth the difference. Other Italian wines that shouldn't be over-

14-Carrot Cold.

Here's a rich, cold soup that I consider pure gold. And with all those carrots, it has to be as healthy as it is delicious!

3 T. butter
$1^{1 / 2}$ cups onion, finely chopped
1 celery stalk with leaves, finely chopped
$11 / 2 \mathrm{lbs}$. carrots (approx. 14 baby carrots or 6-8 regular size), cut in ${ }^{1 / \prime \prime}$ " rounds
2 med. potatoes, peeled and diced
1 tsp. sugar
1 T. chopped fresh dill (or 1 tsp . dried)
3 cups chicken broth

1 cup milk
1 cup heavy cream Pinch cayenne pepper Salt and white pepper to taste
Garnish: chopped fresh parsley

Melt butter in 3-quart Corning Ware saucepan. Add onion and celery and sauté until onion is translucent. Add carrots, potatoes, sugar, dill and broth. Cook, covered, on low heat 25 min utes. Cool slightly and puree in blender or processor, $1 /$ at a time. Replace in saucepan. Cover and chill (or freeze for later use). Just before serving, add milk, cream, cayenne, salt and pepper. Garnish. Serves 8. (P.S. Some like it hot-why not? But don't let it boil after adding milk and cream!)

How we invented microwave cookware before they invented the microwave oven.

One thing the experts agree on is that the best microwave cooking materials are glass and glass-ceramic. The very stuff of which Corning's kitchenware has been made for over 54 years! Because Pyrex ${ }^{\infty}$ ovenware, Corning Ware ${ }^{\infty}$ cookware, and Corelle ${ }^{\infty}$ livingware are all so suited for microwave cooking, we've prepared a free 40-page booklet packed with tips, techniques and recipes. Just drop me a note with 25 c for postage/ handling, for "Make the Most of Your Microwave with Corning." - Please allow $4-6$ weeks for delivery

We've got you covered.

Yes, yes, yes, I'm happy to reply to readers who've asked if Pyrex replacement covers are available for Corning Ware items. If your store can't supply them, write to me and I'll tell you exactly which sizes are available and how to order.

Well, that should cover it for now.

White wines of summer continued from proce limes posa looked include Frascati, a delicate and pale white from the hills southeast of Rome; the firm whites from the Chianti area which cannot carry that name but are produced by the famous Chianti houses: and from northern Italy the good, light Pinot Grigios. Of the latter, one nice example among many is Enofiulia's 1977 ( $$ 3.50$ ).

Some years ago it was a rule of thumb that attractive white wines couldn't be produced in hot climates. No longer. Cellar techniques have improved so much that sun-drenched countries are sending us increasingly interesting whites. Some examples are Yugoslavia's Adriatica Rizling, inexpensive and Rhine-like: Romania's Premiat Tarnave Castel, dry and under $3; Algeria's fruity and dry Clairette Blanc de Blancs ($2); Sicily's Corvo white, with character and flavor ($4); and Spain's Torres Vina Sol 1977, a light, fruity bargain ($2.50).

Some people, when urged to concentrate on white wines in warm weather, reply, "Yes, but what am I supposed to drink with cheese?" They are paying too much attention to an obsolete rule: White with fish, red with cheese. In fact, some years ago the then president of France's National Brotherhood of Cheese Tasters listed the ideal combinations of cheeses and wines. Many of his recommendations called for whites. For example, he thought "cooked" cheesesEdam and Gruyere-went best with dry whites. For Port-Salut, Cantal, St. Nectaire, and St. Paulin he liked light, fruity whites. With fresh cheeses he favored sweet whites. And for people who don't want to bother their heads about what goes with what, he disclosed that still or bubbly wine from the Champagne area blends nicely with any cheese. So there's no reason not to think white this summer.

Oyster loaf

METHOD

$\square$ Slice off the top of the loaf of bread and reserve. Cut a neat trench about $11 / 2-2$ inches deep along the length of the loaf and remove the soft bread. Brush all cut surfaces, trench, and lid with melted butter and toast the loaf in a preheated $350^{\circ}$ oven just until it turns light gold. $\square$ In the meantime, pat oysters dry with paper towels, dip in beaten egg, then in crumbs seasoned to taste with salt and pepper. Pour oil to a depth of $1 / 4$ inch in a heavy skillet and set over moderate heat. When oil is hot but not smoking, sauté oysters quickly, several at a time, 1-2 minutes. Place oysters in rolls or loaf, replace lid, and serve immediately. Serves 4.

Crêpe sandwich loaf

INGREDIENTS FOR CRÊPES
4 eggs
1 cup flour
1/s teaspoon salt
Pinch sugar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter, melted
Vegetable oil
INGREDIENTS FOR FILLINGS
4 tablespoons butter
5 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk, heated
$1 / 2$ teaspoon salt
White pepper
Nutmeg
1 cup heavy cream
3/4 cup Swiss cheese, grated
$11 / 2$ cups cooked spinach, well drained and chopped
2 cups mushrooms, chopped and cooked in butter with 2 tablespoons chopped shallots
1 cup cooked ham, chopped
Fluted mushroom caps for garnish
Asparagus tips for garnish

METHOD FOR CRÊPES

$\square$ Combine all ingredients in a blender or food processor and process just until smooth. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. When ready to cook crêpes, heat a very small amount of oil in a $7-8$-inch skillet, pour in approximately $1 / 4$ cup, or less, batter, and tilt the pan so that the batter covers the bottom thinly. Cook until the crêpe is browned on the bottom, then flip and brown the second side. Makes 20-24 crêpes.

METHOD FOR FILLINGS AND ASSEMBLY

$\square$ Melt the butter in a heavy saucepan, whisk in the flour, and blend until smooth. Remove pan from the heat and stir in the hot milk, salt, pepper, and nutmeg to taste. Return the pan to low heat and bring the mixture to a simmer. Stir in the cream and cheese and continue stirring until the mixture is smooth and thick.
$\square$ Place the spinach, mushrooms, and ham in separate small bowls. Stir a few tablespoons of the béchamel sauce into each of the bowls-the mixtures should be fairly thick. Add just enough sauce to make a fairly thick paste, or it will be difficult to stack the crêpes neatly when assembling the loaf and to cut it neatly later. $\square$ Butter a low, round baking dish, about 9 inches in diameter, and place a cooked crêpe in the center. Spread with about $1 / 8$ of one of the fillings. Top with another crêpe, about the same amount of the second filling, then another crêpe and the same amount of the third filling. Repeat this layering until all the fillings have been used. Try to keep the sides of the crêpe loaf as even as possible.
$\square$ Reheat the remaining béchamel sauce in a saucepan-it should be quite thick, but if too thick to pour, stir in a spoonful or two of cream. Spoon the sauce over the loaf and sprinkle with a little grated cheese. Bake in a preheated $375^{\circ}$ oven 30 minutes. Garnish with mushroom caps lightly sautéed in butter and asparagus tips. Slice the loaf into wedges with a sharp knife. Serves 6 generously.

Chicken in lettuce leaves

INGREDIENTS

2 slices good quality white or egg bread
2 cups chicken broth
$11 / 2$ pounds chicken breasts, boned, skinned, and ground

2 eggs

2 tablespoons fresh dill, chopped
Salt, pepper
Heavy cream
1 ham slice, about $1 / 3$-inch thick, cut into 1/3-by-1/3-by-2-inch strips

Flour  Sweet butter

Several leaves butter lettuce
Watercress or dill for garnish

METHOD

$\square$ Soak bread for a minute or two to soften in a bowl with chicken broth. Pour off the broth and reserve. Shred the bread lightly with a fork and mix with the chicken, eggs, dill, and salt and pepper to taste. Add a tablespoon or two of cream and just enough of the reserved broth so that the mixture barely keeps a soft shape when picked up in a spoon. Chill mixture in the refrigerator an hour or two to make it more manageable.

Divide the mixture and form into "fingers" about 3 inches long and about $11 / 2$ inches in diameter. Form each chicken finger around a stick of ham. Roll the fingers in flour. Heat 2-3 tablespoons butter in a skillet and sauté the fingers until they are crisp and browned. Drain on absorbent toweling and let cool to room temperature. Roll each finger in a lettuce leaf, garnish with a sprig of watercress or dill, and serve with herb mayonnaise if desired. Serves 6.

METHOD

$\square$ Season ground beef with salt and pepper to taste. Shape miniature hamburger patties, using about 1 tablespoon for each, from the meat. Cook the patties in a heated skillet or under a preheated broiler for a few minutes on each side until brown. $\square$ Split and toast the bagels. Place a hamburger patty between the 2 sides of the bagel. Serve with a small piece of lettuce, a tomato slice, and assorted relishes. Makes 8 mini-hamburgers.

Potato chips

INGREDIENTS

1 large potato
Vegetable oil
Salt

METHOD

Wash and dry the potato and remove any bruised spots. Do not peel the potato. Use a vegetable peeler to slice thin strips lengthwise from the potato.
$\square$ Heat 3 inches oil in a large skillet or kettle. Drop a few strips of potato at a time into the hot oil; fry until golden brown and crisp. Drain on paper towels, sprinkle with salt, serve immediately.

Red cabbage canapés

INGREDIENTS

2-3 slices bacon, thickly sliced
2-3 leaves red cabbage
1-2 leaves Boston or Bibb lettuce
2 ounces Roquefort cheese
Danish watercress for garnish

METHOD

$\square$ Fry bacon in a skillet until crisp; drain well on paper towels and crumble.
$\square$ Cut 8 2-inch squares from the top tender part of the cabbage leaves. Cut 8 triangles of lettuce leaves. They should be about half the size of the cabbage leaf squares.
$\square$ Place a lettuce triangle on a cabbage leaf square. Crumble about $1 / 2$ tablespoon of Roquefort cheese on top of the lettuce triangles. Sprinkle a little crumbled bacon on top of the cheese and garnish with a few sprigs of tiny Danish watercress. ifiske.. \& canapies

Stuffed zucchini

INGREDIENTS

1-2 zucchini, depending on size (they should be $11 / 4-11 / 2$ inches in diameter)
2 medium carrots, scraped
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 teaspoon lemon juice or to taste
Zest of $1 / 2$ lemon, grated
Salt
8 small sprigs lemon thyme for garnish

METHOD

$\square$
Cut zucchini into 8 rounds each $1 / 2$ inch thick. Scoop out centers of the slices with a melon baller-make sure not to go all the way through. You may decorate sides of slices using a vegetable stripper. $\square$ Cut carrots into 1 -inch pieces and grate finely in a food processor. Mix carrots with the olive oil, lemon juice, lemon zest, and salt to taste. The mixture should have a very refreshing lemony flavor. Refrigerate until ready to serve.
Heap carrot mixture into zucchini cups and garnish with a small sprig of lemon thyme. (If unavailable, use grated lemon zest.) Makes 8 zucchini cups.

Lamb and carrot canapés

INGREDIENTS

1 small, thin carrot

Salt
2 thin slices marble (rye and pumpernickel) bread

Maille's lemon mustard

A few slices lean cooked lamb
8 small lemon verbena leaves (if unavailable, use 8 small mint leaves)

METHOD

$\square$ Drop carrot into a pan of boiling salted water and cook 5-7 minutes or until tender but firm. Slice thinly.
$\square$ Trim the ends of the bread. Cut each slice into 4 squares. Spread with a little lemon mustard and cover with a thin slice of lamb, cut to the size of the bread. Top the lamb slice with three overlapping carrot slices and garnish with a lemon verbena or mint leaf. Makes 8 canapés.

Shrimp and dill canapé

INGREDIENTS

8 medium shrimp

Salt, freshly ground pepper
Several thin slices white bread
Fresh dill for garnish

METHOD

$\square$ Drop the shrimp into a kettle of boiling water and simmer just until they turn pink. Drain the shrimp, rinse under cool water, peel, and devein. Place shrimp in a nonaluminum bowl, cover with oil, vinegar, dill, $3-4$ slices onion, salt and pepper to taste. Marinate at least 3 hours, preferably overnight, in refrigerator.
$\square$ Use a plain round $11 / 2$ - $13 / 4$-inch biscuit cutter to cut 8 circles from bread slices. Toast the bread on both sides. Drain the shrimp. Cover the toasted circles of bread with a red onion slice, top with a shrimp, and garnish with a small sprig of dill. Makes 8 canapés.

Beet and mandarin orange canapé

INGREDIENTS

Several slices whole-grain or white bread Salt
1-2 fresh beets, trimmed of tops
1-2 scallions, white parts only
Dijon mustard
Small can mandarin orange segments
Few strips orange zest cut into fine julienne

METHOD

$\square$ Use a $1 \frac{1}{2}-13 / 4$-inch plain round biscuit cutter to cut 8 circles from bread slices. Toast on both sides.
$\square$ Place beets in a large pot of boiling salted water. Return to a boil and cook until tender. Drain the beets and slip off the skins. When the beets are cool, cut into thin slices. The slices should be the same size as bread rounds-if not, trim with the biscuit cutter.
Slice scallions into thin rings. Spread mustard on bread rounds, place a beet slice on top. Place orange section on top of beet, end with a few slices of scallion, sprinkle with zest. Makes 8 canapés.

Pears with Stilton

INGREDIENTS

2 thin slices whole-grain bread
1 ounce Stilton cheese
1 ounce sweet butter
1 ripe pear or canned pear halves
$1 / 2$ lemon
Watercress for garnish

METHOD

$\square$ Trim ends of bread, toast on both sides, and cut each slice into 4 squares. $\square$ Cream together the Stilton and sweet butter in a bowl. Spoon into a pastry bag fitted with a small fluted tip. Peel the pears, cut in half, and remove the cores. Cut each half into thin crosswise slices and squeeze lemon juice over them to prevent discoloration. You may use poached or canned pears if the canapés are not to be served immediately.
$\square$ Place a small sprig or two of watercress (avoid large stems) on each toast square. Cover the stem ends of watercress with two overlapping slices of pear and pipe a rosette of Stilton butter on top. Makes 8 canapés. Note: You may serve these hot by simply broiling a few minutes until the cheese melts, and pears are heated through. Garnish with watercress.

Mayonnaise

INGREDIENTS
2 egg yolks
1/2 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt, freshly ground black pepper to taste
$11 / 2$ cups olive oil
$1 / 2$ tablespoon wine vinegar

METHOD

$\square$ Combine the egg yolks, mustard, lemon juice, salt, and pepper in a bowl. Stir briskly until well blended. Slowly add the oil, drop by drop, beating vigorously without stopping. When the mixture is thick, add the remaining oil in a slow steady stream. Stir in the vinegar and b'end well. Refrigerate in an airtight container. Makes $13 / 4$ cups.

Roast pork sandwich

INGREDIENTS

2 tablespoons oil
Salt, pepper
1 pound loin of pork, center cut
Rye bread
Dijon mustard
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon curry powder
2 oranges
4 eggs
Bibb or Boston lettuce
Several stalks celery
Several scallions, trimmed and fluted 2 daikon
2 carrots

METHOD

$\square$ Heat the oil in a roasting pan on top of the stove, place the salt-and-peppered pork loin in the pan, and brown well on all sides. Roast the meat in the same pan in a preheated $400^{\circ}$ oven $25-30 \mathrm{~min}$ utes, then lower the temperature to $350^{\circ}$ and roast 20 minutes more. Lift the pork loin out of the pan to a plate with a fork and pour off excess fat from the pan. Deglaze the pan on top of the stove with $1 / 3$ cup water and continue cooking until the juices are reduced almost to a glaze. Place the pork loin back in the pan and roll it in the glaze to coat well. Let cool at room temperature. When cool, slice thinly $\square$ Spread the rye bread slices with Dijon mustard. Mix together the mayonnaise and curry powder in a bowl and set aside. Cut very narrow strips of orange zest lengthwise from the oranges, then slice the oranges into thin rounds. Cut the zest away from several slices of the oranges to use as a garnish.
$\square$ Poach the eggs in simmering water, then drain on absorbent toweling. Place several slices pork on the bread and top with orange slices. Put a leaf or two of lettuce on the orange slices, then a poached egg on the lettuce-add a spoonful of curry mayonnaise. Garnish the sandwich with celery stalks, fluted scallions, decoratively cut daikon and carrot strips, and the reserved orange zest strips. Serves 4.

Ham and celery root sandwiches

INGREDIENTS

3 medium, young celery roots
Juice of 2 lemons
3/4-1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons sour cream
12 slices cooked ham
3 slices rye bread, each cut in half
3 slices pumpernickel bread, each cut in half 1 Jerusalem artichoke, peeled, sliced, and dipped in acidulated water

12 scallions

Radishes
Danish cress
Butter lettuce
Several carrots, finely julienned

METHOD

$\square$ Peel the celery roots and cut into fine julienne with a mandoline, in a food processor, or by hand. Mix the julienne with a few drops of lemon juice as you proceed to prevent discoloration. Mix together the julienned celery root, mayonnaise, and sour cream in a bowl.
$\square$ Lay all the ham slices out on a board and spoon equal amounts celery root on each. Roll the julienne mixture in the ham slices and place on halved bread slices that have been spread with a little mayonnaise. Place Jerusalem artichoke slices decoratively on the ham rolls. Serve three rolls per person. Garnish with scallions, radish flowers, and lettuce leaves filled with cress and julienned carrot. Serves 4.

Gravlax sandwich

INGREDIENTS FOR GRAVLAX

21/2 pounds center cut fresh salmon, with skin on (2 fillets)
1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons mixed black and white peppercorns
1 tablespoon sea salt
1 bunch fresh dill
INGREDIENTS FOR DILL MUSTARD SAUCE
3 egg yolks
3 tablespoons Dijon mustard
Freshly ground black pepper
1 cup vegetable or corn oil
1/2 teaspoon sugar
Juice of $1 / 2$ lemon
2 tablespoons fresh snipped dill

INGREDIENTS FOR EGGS AND ## ASSEMBLY

4 eggs
Salt, black pepper
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons heavy cream
Chopped dill
Black bread
Butter lettuce
Julienne of carrots, julienne of daikon
Dill sprigs for garnish

METHOD FOR GRAVLAX

Bone the salmon and pat dry with paper towels. Mix together the sugar, peppercorns, and salt in a small bowl. Sprinkle a shallow flat dish with $1 / 3$ of the sugar-salt mixture and place one of the salmon fillets, skin side down, on top. Lightly pound the dill stalks with the side of a mallet and spread over the salmon. Sprinkle with another $1 / 3$ of the sugar-salt mixture. Cover with the remaining salmon fillet, skin side up, and sprinkle with the rest of the seasoning. Set a plate on top but do not weight the salmon. Cover with foil and refrigerate 3 days, turning the salmon each day. Baste with the juices that accumulate around the salmon.

Remove the salmon from the dish and wipe off most of the marinade. Chop three of the dill sprigs used in the marinade and mix in a bowl with 2 tablespoons of the marinade juices, strained-reserve. Discard the remaining dill sprigs and marinade. Slice the salmon on the diagonal.

METHOD FOR DILL MUSTARD SAUCE

$\square$ Beat the yolks with the mustard in a bowl. Season to taste with pepper. G’adually beat in the oil in a slow steady stream, whisking constantly. Stir in the reserved dill and marinade juices, sugar, lemon juice, and fresh snipped dill.

METHOD FOR EGGS AND ASSEMBLY

Beat the eggs lightly in a bowl with a dash of salt and pepper. Melt the butter in a double boiler over hot water, stir in the eggs, and continue stirring until they thicken slightly. Gradually stir in the cream and stir until the eggs are thick and very creamy, adding a little chopped dill as the eggs finish cooking.
$\square$ Use 2 slices of bread per person. Spread the bread with the dill mustard sauce, then place several slices of gravlax on the bread. Make a lettuce leaf shell on top of the gravlax and spoon in scrambled eggs. Garnish with carrot and daikon and sprigs of fresh dill. Serves 4-6.

Homemade jam without cooking. Yum! Yum!

In less than 30 minutes, you can make fresh, scrumptious homemade jam without going near the stove. Gone are the days of tedious cooking and more steam than a steam bath. Now, all it takes is Certo ${ }^{\circledR}$ Fruit Pectin, fresh fruit, sugar and a dash of lemon juice. Can anything touch the flavor or the magic of spreading your own special jam on the family's morning toast - or on the kids' sandwiches for school? Just follow our easy recipe and the rest will be family smiles and a rather proud you.

30-MINUTE STRAWBERRY JAM

 13/4 cups prepared fruit (about 1 qt. 2 tablespoons lemon juice fully ripe strawberries) 4 cups ( $13 / 4 \mathrm{lbs}$.) sugarUse any containers 1 pint or smaller that have tight-fitting lids. Wash, scald, and drain containers and lids; or use automatic dishwasher with really hot ( $150^{\circ} \mathrm{F}$ or higher) rinse water.
Stem and thoroughly crush strawberries, one layer at a time. Measure exactly $1^{3 / 4}$ cups fruit; place in a large bowl or pan. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit; let stand 10 minutes. Combine lemon juice and fruit pectin; stir into fruit. Continue stirring about 3 minutes. (A few sugar crystals will remain.) Ladle quickly into containers. Cover at once and let stand at room temperature for 24 hours to set. Then store in freezer. If jam will be used within 2 or 3 weeks, it may be stored in refrigerator. Makes about 5 cups of jam.

Because this is a "no-cook" jam it will have a natural fruit color and a softer set that's easier to spread.

METHOD FOR MERINGUE
$\square$ Roast the hazelnuts and almonds on a baking sheet in a preheated $350^{\circ}$ oven until brown. Let them cool, skin them, then grind them in a nut grinder or food processor. (Do not overprocess, or the nuts will become a paste.) Mix with 1 cup of the sugar in a bowl and set aside. $\square$ Butter and flour a 12-by-16-inch baking pan. Line the bottom with parchment paper. Beat the egg whites with the cream of tartar in a large bowl until stiff, then beat in the remaining $1 / 2$ cup sugar by tablespoonfuls. Fold in the sugar-nut mixture carefully. Do not overfold and deflate the whites. Pour into the prepared pan and spread the mixture evenly. Bake in a preheated $350^{\circ}$ oven 25 minutes. As soon as meringue begins to get crusty, bake 5 minutes more. It should have the texture of a macaroon. Let meringue cool completely in the pan on a rack. Run a knife around the edge and flip it out onto a tray or rack and peel off the parchment paper. Use this as the side to ice. Cut the meringue into 4 pieces, 4 by 12 inches each. METHOD FOR BUTTER CREAM AND ASSEMBLY $\square$ Stir the sugar together with $1 / 3$ cup water in a saucepan, bring to a boil, and boil without stirring until the syrup reaches $240^{\circ}$. Beat the hot syrup slowly into the egg yolks in a bowl; continue beating until mixture is thick and cool. Gradually beat in 2 sticks butter and taste. Add third stick only if you think it needs it. Don't let mixture become greasy.
$\square$ Melt the semisweet and unsweetened chocolate together in a small saucepan over very low heat and let cool. Combine $1 / 2$ the butter cream with the chocolate in a bowl. Combine $1 / 4$ of the butter cream with the vanilla in another bowl. Combine the remaining $1 / 4$ of the butter cream with the praline powder in a third bowl.
$\square$ Spread the butter creams on 3 meringue bands, one flavor on each band (use only half the chocolate), and chill. Place the bands on top of each other and set the remaining band on top. Spread the remaining chocolate butter cream around the sides of the cake. Press the toasted ground almonds onto sides of the cake and sprinkle with confectioners sugar. Chill several hours but take out of refrigerator $1 / 2$ hour before serving. Serves 10 .

Strawberry napoleon

INGREDIENTS FOR PASTRY CREAM 1 cup milk$1 / 2$ vanilla bean3 egg yolks2 ounces granulated sugar1 ounce pastry flour

INGREDIENTS FOR ASSEMBLY

1 pound puff pastry, prepackaged frozen, or homemade (Michel Richard's proportions: 1 pound pastry flour, 15 ounces sweet butter, $3 / 4$ ounce salt, 1 cup water-use half and freeze half)
$1 / 2$ cup heavy cream, whipped
4 ounces butter, softened
1 pound strawberries, hulled
3 ounces confectioners sugar
Fresh lemon juice, strained (optional)
3 ounces semi-sweet chocolate
Fresh mint leaves

METHOD FOR PASTRY CREAM

$\square$ Bring the milk and vanilla bean to a boil in an enameled saucepan, then remove from the heat and strain. Mix together the egg yolks, sugar, and flour in a medium-sized bowl at medium speed until sugar dissolves and mixture forms a ribbon when beater is lifted-add the hot milk slowly and continue mixing until it is incorporated. Rinse and dry vanilla bean and reserve for another use.
$\square$ Pour the mixture into a saucepan, place over medium-low heat and bring to a boil. Boil slowly 1 minute whisking vigorously. Remove from heat, pour into a bowl, film with butter to prevent a skin forming, let cool, and refrigerate. Makes $11 / 2$ cups pastry cream.

METHOD FOR ASSEMBLY

$\square$ While the pastry cream is chilling, roll out the puff pastry to $1 / 4$-inch thicknessthe sheet should be large enough to cover a baking pan about 11 by 17 inches. Pierce the dough all over with a fork so it won't rise, and bake in a preheated $350^{\circ}$ oven 45 minutes. The dough should be caramelized but not overcooked. When done, divide the dough into 3 equal pieces and let cool on a rack.
$\square$ Blend the whipped cream and softened butter into the pastry cream in a large bowl. Divide this cream, which is now napoleon cream, into 4 even portions. Spread $1 / 4$ of the cream evenly across the first $1 / 3$ of the cooked pastry (mille-feuille). Place hulled strawberries close together, stem side down, on the napoleon cream. Spread second $1 / 4$-portion of cream over the strawberries to fill in the gaps.
$\square$ Place the next piece of mille-feuille on top and repeat with cream and strawberries. You should finish with the third piece of mille-feuille on top.
$\square$ Mix the confectioners sugar together with 2 tablespoons hot water in a small bowl. Add a few drops lemon juice to taste, if desired. Blend until smooth, then spread the icing on the top layer of mille-feuille. Melt chocolate over low heat in a small, covered saucepan. Cool slightly and spoon into a small pastry bag with a very small round tip. Pipe a squiggly band of chocolate around the top of the cake. Place cardboard against the sides of the completed napoleons to hold them together and refrigerate 30 minutes. To serve, cut the napoleon with a hot serrated knife, slicing on all four sides for attractive pieces. Garnish with fresh or glazed strawberries (see May House \& Garden, page 216) and mint leaves.

Scrambled eggs and caviar

INGREDIENTS

4 tablespoons butter
2 eggs
2 tablespoons cream cheese
2 slices pumpernickel bread
2 tablespoons black or red caviar
$1 / 2$ teaspoon fresh dill or chives, chopped

METHOD

$\square$ Melt 2 tablespoons butter in the top of a double boiler over hot water, stir in the eggs and cream cheese, and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until the eggs begin to set.
$\square$ Toast the bread and butter it lavishly. Pile the eggs on one piece of the toast, spoon on the caviar, and sprinkle with the dill or chives. Cut the other piece of toast into 2 pieces and serve on the side. Serves 1.

Grilled cream cheese and jelly

INGREDIENTS

Cream cheese

2 pieces white bread, thickly sliced
Strawberry or raspberry jam
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vegetable oil
Butter

METHOD

Slice the cream cheese into $1 / 8$-inch slabs and arrange them so that they cover the surface of the bread. Spread jam over the cream cheese and cover with the other slice of bread. Press down on the sandwich with the palm of your hand.
$\square$ Beat together the eggs and milk in a bowl. Rub the oil into a frying pan, then melt 2 tablespoons butter in the pan. While the butter is melting, dip the sandwich into the egg-milk batter. Fry the sandwich over medium heat until golden brown, then turn over and fry the other side. Cut into 2 triangles and serve. Serves 1.

Apple and peanut butter sandwich

INGREDIENTS

1 red Delicious apple
Peanut butter

METHOD

$\square$ Cut the apple into 4 circles. Spread the cut side of the bottom circle with peanut butter, press the second circle into the peanut butter, and then spread the top of that circle with peanut butter. Continue in that order until you have reassembled the apple. Eat slice by slice. Serves 1.

Baked salami on cinnamon toast

INGREDIENTS

4 slices Genoa salami
2 pieces rye bread
Butter
Cinnamon sugar

METHOD

$\square$ Put the salami on a wire rack over a roasting pan and bake in a preheated $400^{\circ}$ oven 10-12 minutes, or until salami changes color and begins to harden. $\mathrm{Re}-$ move to paper towels.
$\square$ Toast and butter the bread, sprinkle with cinnamon sugar, and tilt the toast to shake off excess sugar. Lay the salami on one slice of toast, cover with the other slice, cut in half, and serve. Serves 1.

12 black olives (preferably Gaeta)

Salt, freshly ground black pepper

METHOD

$\square$ Drain all salad greens well, combine in a large bowl, and toss with $1 / 2$ cup of dressing. Arrange the remaining ingredients attractively on the greens and spoon the rest of the dressing and the oil from the tuna over the completed salad. Season with salt and pepper. Serves 6-8.

Trattoria  dressing

INGREDIENTS
1 quart olive oil
2/3 cup red wine vinegar
1 egg yolk
$3 / 4$ tablespoon Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon parsley, chopped
Generous pinch oregano
Generous pinch thyme
Generous pinch dried basil, or 4 leaves fresh basil, finely chopped
Generous pinch dried tarragon, or 4 leaves tarragon, fresh or preserved in vinegar, finely chopped
1 mint leaf, finely chopped
Pinch nutmeg
Pinch paprika
Salt, pepper
3/4 tablespoon A- 1 sauce
3/4 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
6 drops Tabasco sauce

METHOD

$\square$ Mix oil and vinegar in a large bowl. Use a wire whisk to mix in egg yolk, mustard, herbs, spices, and sauces, and beat until dressing has a smooth, velvety consistency. This can also be done in a food processor. Makes approximately 5 cups.
$\square$ Note: This dressing can be refrigerated for at least a month if kept tightly covered but should be mixed well every time it is used.

Feed the casing onto the funnel and tie a knot in the end. Check that there is no air in the casing. Start feeding sausage mixture into the grinder slowly and evenly to avoid air pockets. Hold the casing firmly in one hand (having an extra person, one to feed sausage and one to work with the casing, makes the job much easier). Pack sausage meat solidly into casing. If air holes do happen, prick them with a pin. Since sausages shrink when cooked, the meat will not leak out of the casing.
$\square$ When about 5 inches or so of casing have been filled, form the first sausage by twisting it around completely $360^{\circ}$ 4 times. This should be sufficient to keep it tight. Fill another 5-6 inches and twist again, but this time in the opposite direction, 4 full turns. Doing the work on a low counter will be helpful as well. Continue until all the sausage mixture has been used.

Herb teas  continued from page 102

it needs to be brought indoors in very cold climates and coddled through the winter as a pot plant. Use the leaves.

Mint (Mentha) teas come in a large variety, including spear-, pepper-, apple-, orange-, and pineapple-. All mints are perennials and easier to grow than to stop. Their roots are invasive, traveling far and wide, so restrain them by using some sort of container, even outdoors. Start by rooting cuttings in the spring (fall in warm regions), or buy young plants of a variety that appeals. All will thrive in a shady spot with the soil fairly rich and not too dry. Use the leaves.

Rosemary (Rosmarinus officinalis), dew of the sea is found throughout the world in wedding and funeral ceremonies where its piny flavor is tasted "for remembrance." Rosemary is a sun-loving evergreen that flourishes best in poor, sandy, well-drained and limed soils, but since it is tender, you should grow it in a pot and bring it indoors during the cold winter months. Propagate by seeds or cuttings. Use the needle-like leaves.

Sage (Salvia officinalis) has a pleasing astringent taste. This basic kitchen herb can be grown from seeds or cuttings. It reaches a height of roughly 2 feet and has gray-green pebble-textured leaves and clusters of lilac-blue flowers. Sage is a perennial, a lover of semi-shade and dry, poor soils that are well-drained and limed. Use the leaves.

Common thyme (Thymus vulgaris) has a gentle, sweet-sour flavor derived from a small perennial shrub that, with a lot of sun, grows willingly from a tiny seed (there are about 170,000 to the ounce) or cuttings planted in a calcareous dry soil and coolish temperatures. The lemon variety (citriodorus) is more usually chosen for tea making. Use the leaves.

the best incentive, that it's a terrific motivator. He also points out that many people think the phrase means "winning at all costs," a behavior no one condones. Poor sportsmanship was never intended by this kind of literal "pep talk." Dr. Laurence Morehouse, author of Total Performance says, "Lombardi would have used the competitor as a stimulus for the team spirit, as a way to bring each player to peak performance. Winning means being at your best."

Dr. Vandeweghe stresses the importance of a series of little wins in his book, Growing With Sports (Prentice-Hall), which he wrote, with George L. Flynn, for parents who want to help their children find a sport they can stick with. He describes the ideal learning situation for children but the advice applies perfectly to adults: "When you're teaching anyone something new, look for one aspect you know he'll be able to do really well. Create some situation he can win at and you'll be amazed at how his enthusiasm and stick-to-it-iveness will grow." Says Dr. Morehouse, "There's no fun unless there is an opportunity that allows you to show your skill, get credit for your performance, or develop your abilities as a mature strategist. Games and sports in youth provide the testing ground."

Dr. Morehouse continues, "Man appears to have a need to win, a need to test his capacity." The next time you're at the beach or in a park where there are children, watch how they seem to almost naturally choose teams, define the rules, and then set about the game. Children have little experience at controlling their desire to win. Games and sports are also places where they learn the rules that will carry them through life. Adults need to be reminded of this as much as children.
"Winning is everything," says Dr. Vandeweghe, "if we define it as an endless goal composed of tiny successes that train and condition a person to expect victory, and if we define winning as the result of devoting oneself to being successful. True winning is making the winning effort."

out of style in today's world, this wonderful, growing and shrinking, changing and still seeming the same, evolving cosmos , with its interaction of people, ideas, and knowledge. There is a new sense of sharing and cooperation abroad in the world. The so-called global village makes conperation more graceful and more effective than cutthroat, sudden death competition and heavy-muscled power plays. I might even say that we are in a whole new ballgame, which affects our lives in their totality, including our attitude to sport.

Fortunately, this is a question which is engaging the minds of many qualified people, and in our search we are not without guidelines and role models. Dr. Jean Houston, who with her husband Dr. Robert Masters directs The Mind Research Foundation in upstate New York, is both a philosopher and a physiologist, and the combination of these two disciplines-the study of mind and body -has led her to a fascinating contagious optimism about the challenges of the time we're living in.

Based on a large study, with Margaret Mead, of people she calls "high actual-izers"-people who have shown high level creativity and accomplishmentshe has found components in their mind sets:
"First of all, they don't think in terms of competing, in terms of winning and losing. They have a sense as if everything that is necessary is available. They recognize options and opportunities. Never before in human history have you had so many options and opportunities available. I find that most people just don't see them. But I remember Margaret Mead, and so many others I've known, who have recognized these options, and they act on them, and they don't have the usual kind of inhibitory structure. Most people I know have a terrible self-consciousness which inhibits their actions, because they think the whole world and everything depends on anything they may or may not do. But in these actualizers, there is essentially a whimsical attitude toward the world. There is almost a comic sense, homo ludens, man the player. Man works much better when he is in a playful mood."

He also plays much better when he is in a playful mood. This is the main thrust of Timothy Gallwey's book "Inner Tennis. Playing the Game" (Random House, 1977, $8.95). He too underlines the adverse effect of self-consciousness, the ego. He too denies that winning is the main objective of playing a game. If it were, there would be no problem. You can win inevitably, he declares, if you always play against people who are not as good as you are. "It's the sure way to win." But, obviously, none of us is interested in that kind of contest: We want to beat somebody who is better than we are. We want something more than mere winning. "If you want to get philosophical about it," Mr. Gallwey tells me, "I don't think society knows what winning is. We're playing games, but we don't know what the purpose of human life is. The desire to win, as I see it, is a kind of substitute for that real winning, for what would really bring satisfaction.'

Anxiety about winning, which is really anxiety about losing, is one of the factors that keeps you from winning, Mr. Gallwey says. If you can lose that anxiety you still may not win, but you will play a better game. Anxiety comes from selfconsciousness, the feeling that something will be as damaging to your ego as looking silly or inadequate. Putting that anxiety aside "takes away a lot of the pressures that can build up in game, because then games are games again." This is exactly the spirit of homo ludens.

Another trouble with win-lose is that it is so limiting. Losing is the only alternative to winning. Winning brings very transitory satisfaction. The euphoria only lasts until the next contest. You're only as good as your last victory. And winning becomes tougher, because you are in the number one spot now, and you are expected to win. This expectation produces all kinds of psychological reactions: It's that much harder to be relaxed when you're living up to your own and other people's expectations. And, on the other hand, when you lose, well, you have lost. It's the end, there's nowhere else to go.

But for Jean Houston, and her high actualizers, failure has a whole other connotation. It can be the moment of opportunity. Often at the moment of seeming failure, all the other options come in. "It's almost a natural law of the universe that when one door closes about seven flow open." The high actualizers regard failure as a release, a state of freedom. In our win-lose culture, we are conditioned to look at only one door of possibility. It's a shut-out situation. The actualizers have a different perspective on reality. "Their achievement looks like spirals, not straight lines. They don't think of it as achievement, or success or failure. They think of it as doing. It's living. It's not winning any more. It's fulfillment, which is very different from winning."

These people, then, have gone a giant step beyond win-lose. They are, as Dr. Houston puts it, into the psychology of abundance; they sense that there is enough for everyone to share. This sense comes from, of course, in part some inborn quality, but it is reinforced by the new discoveries in science, especially in physics. "We now know," remarks Dr. Houston, "that we live in a totally limitless universe, and we are part of that limitlessness. We used to say that the whole was made up of the sum of its parts. In terms of the new physics, the new physiology, we now say that each part might actually contain the whole." This concept opens up whole realms of thought and conjecture. Jean Houston and Timothy Gallwey both speak of learning to trust life, to commit to life, to lose our fears. We can learn to change.

Wherever you look deeply, there is life surging, thriving. You are greater by far than anything you can imagine. It's irresistible. You find that when you begin to commit to life, life begins to commit to you: There's a reciprocity. You will find the appropriate ideas, practices, disciplines. Our culture is rich, and you begin to recognize what is appropriate for you."

One practice that Houston recommends is something she_calls Fair Witness. It is a method by which you spend a little time at the end of each day, going over the day's events. You are fair to yourself, not judgmental, because you are looking for connections, you are recognizing patterns of moods and behavior. You don't see everything as positive or negative, rather everything as interesting. You are harvesting yourself; you don't get ecstatic. "Most of us don't grow very much," Dr. Houston believes, "because we literally don't harvest. We make the same mistakes over and over again." Fair Witness is a way of learning and putting your life together. "And then, so-called competition or winning and losing look kind of silly. You've become much more of an ecological system, part of a much larger picture. Once we have that larger picture, so many more things become possible. We are not on the line, to use the sport term. We are part of a flowing melody." We become not so much self-conscious as selfaware; we acquire a kind of creative detachment, and within this larger framework we can accomplish much more. And we also acquire a sense of confidence: The larger picture supports us.
"Confidence," says Timothy Gallwey, "is something that comes when you learn to trust your own potential, and by seeing what it can do, you gain trust in it. You just concentrate, and not worry about hitting that tennis ball."

There is another element in all this, too: the X-factor, that unexpected event which mitigates against disaster. Jean Houston put it this way: "Throughout history there has always been the X-factor, the creative, positive factor, which has always saved us. It is the nature of life to survive. We may get into binds, but the fact is we do survive."

Perhaps this is the point: We do survive, we do go on-even if we lose the game. Remember that high actualizer William Shakespeare, "There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy." Never have these words been more sig. nificant than in today's world. To discover those "things" is a goal for everyone In the process we can all become winners, sharing in the abundance of the limitless universe.

'oremost is the urge to eat (you've probbly felt it yourself when you're alone nd your steady phones to cancel your ate), but even stronger is a male drive, hich any married woman understands nly too well, and that is the urge to how off.
Yes, men would probably do nothing t all if there weren't people around to 'atch them, and the Cookout, giving 1em the visibility of high priests or ratadors, allows them in addition that ratifying sensation of being a Good Joe, f being sociable in a highly watchable ray. It is a baronial sociability, to be ure, like the viscount allowing Easter gg hunts for the tenants' children on 1e manor lawn, but, after all, inforrality to guests has always been someow insulting and flattering at the same me. If racing is the sport of kings, then ntertaining is the sport of men who rould be kings, and the economical anoply of the Cookout combines the ugged and the regal in a way that few $f$ the less fair sex can resist.
So, men barbecue to indicate superiory and pacifism simultaneously. Known ntisocial types (e.g. John Wilkes Booth, t. Simon Stylites, Ivan the Terrible) are otorious noncookout fanciers (or at east won't wear the apron), whereas 1ost Presidents are photogenically ond of the custom. Hermits tend to be elpless with three-wheeled grills and ong strips of wieners, though some aoist monks do man a mean hibachi. $t$ is safe to assume, then (especially if ou're insured), that the Cookout is a ort of ongoing Club Function, a rite of ormalcy that betokens dependable ibesmanship. This may be completely correct, but it's an assumption we can lake in safety since it costs us nothing. Furthermore, to barbecue is a safe /ay to "win your antlers," as ethologists ke to say (to each other, since they ave no other friends). A man gets the dmiration of the Hunter when all he is t a Cookout is a Gatherer. True, his bb at the Firm may require some fairly avage hunting to earn the money to ather the steaks, but that involves anther realm of behaviorism and to study would require a building pass. Suffice it observe that few men have met their 1atch in a struggle to subdue a set of pareribs, yet the ravaged aftermath al'ays suggests triumph: bones strewn in 1e grass, man yawning and picking his zeth, etc.
Finally comes the most elusive aspect f the appeal of outdoor cooking-its sthetic attraction. It is commonly cknowledged that a man prefers pinyoods colognes to being dumped out in re piny woods to smell them; he likes good rassle as much as the next man, provided it is the next man who does all the rasslin'. In short, he is adventurous, but lazy, and cooking outdoors is an idyllic compromise between the Wild and the Cushy. Consider the atmosphere: a Styrofoam ice chest full of beer (refrigerators and glasses are left behind with the rest of civilization), paper plates (the true barbarian throws away everything, leaving nothing behind to wash), and ample outdoor opportunity to roughhouse and horseplay with his hirsute fellows from "beyond the hedge." Charcoal smoke decks all present in a pungent, virile smell, and people talk in loud voices. The adult male has a crucial need to play, but so little aptitude for it, the hybrid carrying-on of a cookout serves his desires and limitations in perfect synchrony.

Why is it, one wonders, that men love to barbecue but for the most part dislike cooking in the kitchen? Why do children love swimming pools but hate bathtubs? Why do teens despise the meaningless specifics of history but willingly embrace the meaningless specifics of rock music lyrics? Perhaps our cantankerous chromosomes have a taste for unfamiliar (albeit riskless) settings imposed on familiar routines. After all, breakfast-in-bed and candlelight dinners are just everyday occurrences with a slight twist to make them exciting. Some people like to kiss in trains and elevators. You get the picture.

So, men like to cook outdoors not because they like to cook, and not because they like to be outdoors, but because the playful mixing of the two satisfies a male taste for the incongruous. Besides, juxtaposition is about all the exercise man can stand.

firm your reservation 72 hours in advance or the computer will cancel it automatically-something Americans often forget about air travel in Europe. The other thing to remember is that Concorde passengers are permitted the normal first-class baggage allowance of 66 pounds. (Though U.S. airlines now only care how many suitcases you are checking, many European airlines with which you may connect once in Europe still go by weight.)
"Waiting to board for the flight home, I wandered through the Charles de Gaulle food shops. Was tempted by an array of delicacies in tins-at tax-free prices-like truffles and caviar. Air France treats all its Concorde passengers like celebrities. It's almost as though we were taking a private plane. Even the small, cozy cabin adds to the feeling that it's really a private jet.
"This leg of the trip is perhaps the most dramatic, not only because the trip normally takes 8 hours plus in subsonic aircraft, but also because of the curious time change. Leaving Paris at 11 A.M. we arrived in New York before we left at $8: 45$ A.M. That early we were able to go right through customs. (We're given special folders for our passports and customs declarations. Remember, U.S. citizens-that includes childrenhave a $$ 300$ duty-free allowance. I was home by 10 A.M., had the whole day to unpack and unwind, at 5 took a nap, afterward went out to dinner. The next day there was little jet lag, only the euphoria of the trip." ## NEW! A portable fridge that could save you $$ 500$ a yearWe recently surveyed buyers who had used their KOOLATRONS for at least one season.

The average saving $156.03 in just 9 months! And several cus tomers stated they had saved well over $$ 500.00$ !

And that's not all KOOLATRON does. It keeps food fresher, drier and colder than any ice chest (and without the hassle and mess). It's handier, lighter, and easier to use than any conventional portable because it is solid state. You can run it off the 12 volt cigarette lighter in your car, boat, or van It weighs less than an ice chest with a block of ice, yet holds 40 lbs. of food or 40 12 oz . beverage cans.

Stopping always at little wns like the ones described in the ok. (The towns of Collarenebri, ungundi, and Walgett are all conaced they are the counterpart of the titious Gillanbone.) On the thirteenth y there's a boat trip to a coral cay in Great Barrier Reef. Tour: $$ 1,355$ thout airfare. See Booklets, page 119.

11 about fun in Vermont

kteen inches high, a foot wide, and 92 thoritative pages deep, The Vermont las and Gazetteer is a wonderful aid plotting accurately what Vermont has st to offer: rural fun. There are 24 deled mountain hikes that range from 5 miles to 12 miles. Each hike can be traced on a map in the 59 pages of maps in the atlas section. The same for canoe trips, bike trips. The fishing guide gives lists of lakes for each of four types of trout, two types of pike, bass and salmon plus perch, smelt. There's a list of 108 covered bridges with descriptions. And that's not all. For your copy of this softback wonder by editors William Hancock, Paula Lane, Lindsay Huntington, and writer Jerome E. Kelley, send $$ 5.95$ plus $$ 1$ postage to David Delorme Company, Box 81, Yarmouth, Maine, 04096.

SAS helps you feel fit on long plane trips

Long-distance travelers, armchair exercisers, and office workers will appreciate the new SAS In-the-Chair Exercise Book by Dr. Folke Mossfeldt and Mary Susan Miller. Initially written for people on long plane trips, the book has eight sets of exercises that can be done anywhere: in the office, at school, in the car, on a train or bus, and, of course, on the plane. For example, you can learn to jog in your seat, to practice rowing, and to do other exercises that will keep you feeling good until you can get to your regular exercise program. $$ 3.95$, Bantam Books. The exercise book is included with all first-class SAS tickets. N.R.

And the rewards?

What about those end-of-season dinners when team members are rewarded with their teammates' recognition and public acclaim? "Good families prize their rituals," writes Jane Howard in Families (Simon and Schuster). "Nothing welds a family more than these . . . because they evoke a past, imply a future, and hint at continuity." Pretend to remove them, and we would be denied the recognition that cheers our growth.

There is something about teams that makes us stop, look, and like. We may fill with awe over Amelia Earhart's solo flight, but we melt with smiles at the Trapp Family, perhaps because they remind us that through sharing, the burden of winning doesn't fall on one person's shoulders. And it's easier to be a good loser when you've learned how to lose together. By joining something bigger than ourselves, we are no longer locked in solitary confinement, our reality blurred. There, plopped on the hall bench alongside her opera program and tennis racket are his camera and golf balls, Jennifer's ballet slippers, Jeremy's riding boots and guitar. Team membersand family members-are proud of each other's accomplishments. And through the sustaining interest of one another, our talents have a decent chance, and our humanity can blossom.

> A show of ferns, a year of roses, seed bank, herb book, and the right way to mow a lawn

Ferns for everyone

Long before flowering plants, there were ferns. Fossils millions of years old show many ancient ferns were substantially the same as today's, and the fact that ferns are found in abundance on every continent-except possibly Antarcticaattest their hardiness and adaptability. Elinor Merrell, in her fern garden (see page 152) has used species that grow wild in the northeastern U.S., but a fern garden can succeed almost anywhere. In full sun or deep shade, heat or cold, indoors or out, properly chosen ferns will provide the variations of size, form, and texture that go to make an interesting and attractive garden. One of the best books for guidance in deciding what to grow where is the Fern Growers Manual, by Barbara Joe Hoshizaki (Knopf, $$ 7.95$ paperback). A good melding of botanical and horticultural information is found in The Home Gardener's Book of Ferns by Dr. John T. Mickel (Holt, Rinehart, & Winston $7.95). The best way of really learning about ferns is to join one of the societies devoted to that branch of the plant kingdom. The American Fern Society, Inc., issues a bimonthly bulletin on ferns, as well as other publications from time to time. Membership costs $5 a year, from Dr. Judith Skog, Dept. of Biology, George Mason University, Fairfax, Va. 22030, or $8 including American Fern Journal. The Los Angeles International Fern Society, 14895

( in namon fern (Osmunda cinnamomea)

Gardenhill Drive, La Mirada, Calif 90638 , issues a monthly bulletin anc gives up-to-date information on where to find the plants. Membership is $$ 10$ year. And there are regional fern so cieties in other parts of the country-as around for one near you. Ferns can bi ordered by mail from many sources John Scheepers, Inc. offers interestiny collections even for dry shady places anc open borders. The catalogue is free fron 63 Wall Street, New York, N.Y. 10005

The book of herbs

Sal Gilbertie, one of the nation's leadin authorities on the group of flavorsomi plants we call herbs, has combined hi horticultural knowledge with the writing skill of Larry Sheehan to produce at outstanding book on an ever-populal subject. Herb Gardening at Its Bes (Atheneum, $12.95) combines thi growing of herbs for use with the crea tion of gardens that are beautiful in theil own right. While the emphasis is mainly on herbs grown for food and flavoring (the carefully-drawn plans include gar dens for soup, salad, bread, and the hom bar, among many others), those used fou other purposes are not neglected. Mr Gilbertie sprinkles his practical instruc tions with anecdotes about the forty-odd year-old family business, all adding ui to a book as easy to read as it is practica and informative. Also-praise be-the book is printed in a clean, elegant type face, with crisp line drawings and twe shades of ink for visual emphasis.

Mow it straight

Every lawnmower leaves a track. Wheel and rollers bend the grass blades, ant the cutting process itself inevitably in clines the grass in the direction thi mower moves. So every well-cared-fo lawn shows a mowing pattern, and thi pattern is an important part of the lawn's visual effect. For the best effect, mowing should be done in straight lines, running the length of the lawn area, with curves only where necessary to get around flower beds and the like. An occasional change-off-mowing at right angles to the usual pattern-will prevent ruts of matted-down grass that might develop from constant mowing in one direction.

A year for roses

June is generally recognized as the month of roses, and this year it's worth special attention because the whole of 1979 has been designated as Year of the Rose. So this would seem to be the perfect time to join the American Rose Society. This sixty-odd-year-old society sets standards for judging roses, sponsors flower shows, and issues a compendious Rose Annual, as well as monthly bulletins and information about everything connected with roses. Membership costs $$ 15.50$ a year, from The American Rose Society, P. O. Box 30000, Shreveport, La. 71130.

Seed bank

Uniformity is fine when you're dealing with measurements-pints, pounds, kilowatt hours, and the like-but with plants uniformity may well be the kiss of death. Food crops, for instance, may give spectacular yields when large quantities of a single "improved" variety are grown, but what happens when a disease or insect pest gains a foothold among the growing plants? Since all plants of the variety are equally susceptible, the whole crop may be wiped out. Old methods of growing crops had each grower saving his own seed from year to year. This insured diversity-if one variety of wheat fell prey to disease, the farmer growing that variety was out of luck, but his neighbor who had planted a different kind could replace the loss. Modern plant breeding has given us heavy-cropping varieties of food plants and splendidly floriferous varieties of decorative plants-all from genetic backgrounds so similar that the advantages of diversity have been lost. So, the Frank Porter Graham Demonstration Center has been established to preserve the genetic variety that makes it possible for plants of all kinds to survive and propagate their own kind for generation after generation. The Graham Center works primarily with farmers, but does try to help the home gardener by providing a list of sources for seeds of all kinds of plants that the big seed houses no longer supply. Priced at $1, the Seed Directory not only gives sources of supply, but also information about how long seeds remain viable, and the like. Order from the Frank Porter Graham Demonstration Farm and Training Center, Route 3, Box 95, Wadesboro, N. C. 28170.

The taste collector
careful editing. How often in one's travels, for instance, has one come home with odds and ends that end up in a drawer or cupboard. The same with the culinary arts. Another point: I personally am discouraged if a dish is composed of too many different ingredients or appears at all complicated in its preparation. Only too often these days one is the person entirely responsible for the final result. I find these two recipes ideal, one from Morocco and the other from the gold-mining town in Ouro Prêto in Brazil. The Moroccan dish is to be used as a vegetable: slice medium-sized onions, put in saucepan with butter and a little water. Add raisins and saffron, pepper and salt, and cook slowly for about half an hour, or until onions are soft and transparent. The Brazilian recipe is a sauce and was served with meat rissoles: sauté 3 onions in butter, add 2 nuts of crystallized ginger cut up fine, about $1 / 2$ a bottle of mango chutney, 1 tablespoon of brown sugar. Cook together until sugar is melted.

Not all of the dishes I have collected, however, come from distant or exotic places; indeed a majority of them originate much closer to home. Some I have inherited from an Australian grandmother, others from an American aunt or even my mother, a sophisticated creature of great beauty, not a person one would have thought connected at all with the kitchen. From my grandmother comes an unusual salad dressing based on Nestlé's sweetened condensed milk. You dilute the milk, which comes out of a tin, with a little wine vinegar and sprinkle in Colman's powdered mustard. The quantities depend on your taste, and the finished product should look like medi-um-thick mayonnaise. It is surprisingly good with cold lobster.

When we all lived at La Fiorentina, a large villa the family owned in the south of France, we were fortunate enough to have had the same cook for nearly forty years. Catherine was a remarkable woman, and when we sold the place she was well past her eightieth year. She would ride up on her motor scooter every morning from Saint Jean Cap Ferrat, where she lived, and greet one over the breakfast table in a crisp white apron, always lively, always good humored, impervious it would seem, to the number of people she must feed. She would stand hands joined in front of her while we discussed the menu, a procedure we had reduced to a form of telepathy. She would make delicious fish soups liberally dosed with absinthe, but one of my favorites were her beignets de fleurs de courgettes, the squash flowers having to be picked early in the morning while in full bloom, and once picked turned upside down and placed face downward on a slab of marble or some cool, flat surface to prevent them from closing. Next a pâte à crêpes has to be made, and at the last minute one dips the flowers in the mixture and throws them into a pan of deep, hot vegetable oil. They are then drained on a clean towel and served with fresh spiced tomato sauce.

Fiorentina and Catherine are now memories of the past, and I have moved to the Vaucluse and luckily have found a local couple, Yvette and Marcel. My recipe book goes on growing and added to it comes oeufs brouillés aux truffes, the truffles found under the oak trees in my own garden. Marcel has an almost uncanny understanding of nature, he knows where the wild hen pheasants are nesting, understands the winds and the rains, and knows where to find the different species of mushrooms, and frequently, during the spring months, will come back with a handful of morilles, not easy to detect with their honeycombed domes almost the color of the wastes in which they grow. His most remarkable feat, however, is the ease with which he discovers the truffles. This costly delicacy is generally sniffed out by specially trained dogs and in certain districts rooted out by pigs, but Marcel despises these aids and finds them with the modest help of a certain species of fly. He caught one of them for me-small, champagne-colored, with transparent wings. They hover close to the ground, and where they hover there are invariably truffles buried in the loam. Marcel can even detect the size of the truffle by the smell of the earth and knows instinctively if it is worth digging for.

    # Club Med Cancun: Super beach-week for a single parent and child

    By Jane O’Reilly

    We went to the Club Méditerranée in Cancun, Mexico-I, the * single parent, and my son, the 14 year-old-because I wondered what a Club Med would be like, because of the Mayan ruins nearby on the mainland, because of all the snorkeling and scuba diving, and all the other great things to do there. My son loved it. I loved it. The place might have been designed especially for a parent and teen-age child to have great times together.
    Parrots entertain 14-yearold Jan in Cancun.

    The two of us and the rest of our group who had flown nonstop from New York on a Saturday were greeted by the traditional Club Med version of a pep

    They certainly didn't have to walk very far, but they had to move fast to take it all in.

    We ran, on the double, from early tennis (bring your own balls) to midmorning post-breakfast yoga, to snorkeling or diving, to lunch, to crafts, to sailing, to water polo, to nap, to drinks (for me) and Ping-Pong (for my son), to dinner, to cabaret, to bed. We should have brought along an alarm clock.

    The Club urges visitors to forget about clocks, but at the same time all activities are scheduled and some are signed up for in advance.

    If I had been alone at the Club, I would never have left the beach-a 12-mile curve of white sand and pale green water. I would also have been badly sunburned, so it was just as well I was kept to a busy schedule. It was also fun. I loved being able to take a sailing lesson-or any other sort of lessonwithout finding a charge on my bill at the end of the

    One of the best days that week was spent on an excursion to Chichén-Itzá. It included an adventurous local flight, an excellent guide, and a pleasant lunch. My son climbed the great Castillo temple twice-a feat I did not attempt to match. I stayed below and bought embroidered Mexican blouses.     Cross-country skiing at Woodstock Inn
    The first time I saw the Woodstock Inn -that's Woodstock, Vermont-was from a horse: It was summer and I rode right through town and past the inn. The next time, I was in college-and I spent a whole colorful fall weekend there. Just recently, I went back again. This time it was well into winter: There was snow everywhere-I could just see the tips of the (Continued on page 53 )

    rection, and pushing yourself up on your poles. (We all struggled through the motion and promptly agreed that there'd be no more falling.) On we went, learning how to skate, herringbone up a hill, side step downhill, and pole to stop.

    One of the nice things about crosscountry skiing is that competence comes quickly. By the end of one class, having peeled off several layers-(it's best to wear three or four lightweight sweaters that you can take off one by one as the day warms-plus jeans, knickers, or warm-ups)-I was ready to strike out on my own. I crisscrossed the trails in front of the Touring Center, then took off across a little wooden bridge that led me over a stream and into the woods. Once there, I followed a nature trail marked by John Wiggin, who has a master's degree in forestry from Yale. As I went, I learned about all the trees and wildlife around me and couldn't help thinking what a terrific outing this would be for a whole family.

    There's also a day-long 15 -mile crosscountry route you can follow from the inn to Barnard, Vt. (This trail is part of the 47 miles of trails operated through the Touring Center.)

    If you decide to make this trip-or any other that will take you away from the inn's facilities-the inn will pack a box lunch for you (just leave your order with the desk the night before). You have your choice of two: The Hiker or, for those who can work up a big appetite, The Long Haul.

    If you're less ambitious you can have lunch at the inn-or at the Touring Center, which is what I did. Above the rental shop (from which you can also rent snowshoes), there's a charming restaurant with a big picture window overlooking many of the trails. Warmed by a fire, I had a big bowl of homemade clam chowder (New England style, of course) and a piece of still-warm raspberry pie.

    In addition to all its cross-country trails, the inn operates two downhill ski areas: one mile away is Mt. Tom and three miles beyond that is Suicide 6 (which is much friendlier than its name implies). On the way to Tom be sure to stop at Gilbert's Hill where 35 years ago, Farmer Gilbert rigged the first mechanically operated ski lift in the United States-a rope tow powered by a Model T engine. And across the road from 6, you can visit the inn's sugarhouse where the staff produces all its own maple syrup. (If you're there in March when the sap is running, you can watch them tap the trees, then transfer the sap into huge cauldrons where it's boiled until it

    When you're not skiing, you might want to stroll through Woodstock-no effort, since the inn is right in the center of town. Don't miss four Paul Revere bells or the Dana House Museum. I peeked through the windows and saw the old fireplace ovens where the original inhabitants baked their bread. I also ducked into several antique shops where there were some beautiful examples of Early American furniture; a needlepoint shop where there were lots of samplers and designs with fruits and vegetables and forest animals. And then I stopped in at The Young Cheese Shop, which, with its pedestal tables and iron chairs, old-fashioned soda fountain, and huge rounds of aged cheddar, has much more of the feeling of old-fashioned Vermont. I ordered a hot chocolate which came with a mound of real whipped cream afloat and, sipping it, I debated about whether to buy a hundred-year-old sap bucket and put it back to work as a wastepaper basket or a planter at home.

    You don't even have to leave the inn to get a sense of Vermont years ago. The inn's gift shop, with all of its locally made crafts, Trappist jams, and maplesugar candy, is more of a Vermont general store than an ordinary hotel gift shop. Keep an eye on the inn's bulletin board across from the desk for special activities: When I was there, one of the inn's basement conference rooms was turned into an antique marketplace. You could buy old quilts, farm tools, furniture, prints, and decoys.

    As far as food and drink goes, the inn has its own bar, coffee shop, and dining room where, on Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons, lavish buffets draw loyalists from all over Vermont. In addition to a long table filled with hams, turkeys, roast beef, vegetable and seafood salads, the buffet is famous for its desserts. Especially appealing is the maple mousse made from local maple syrup.

    After dinner on Saturdays there's dancing in the ballroom-or, you could go on a sleigh ride (this is a very popular activity, so be sure to sign up as soon as you arrive). Forrest Quinn, a local farmer, hitches two enormous brown-eyed, Belgian bays to a hay wag-on-turned-sleigh and takes 14 guests up the side of Mt. Tom. You huddle together under blankets which he provides, and then glide up a carriage trail that was cut through the woods more than one hundred years ago. Bring your own hot toddies. On the way, you'll pass an evergreen farm and Pogue Lake (Kiss Lake in Scottish-and when you see it, nestled high in the mountains with the moon glistening on its frozen face, the romance becomes clear). From the top, where the old iron horse ties are still intact, you can look east, north, and south over the whole Ottauquechee Valley: Woodstock is but a tiny cluster Continued on page 56

    # How to make the growing value of your home grow even faster.

    If you own a home or property California these days, you know ow good an investment real estate in be.

    Your home is probably returning a handsome dividend in owing equity as California operty values continue to soar.

    But there's a way to make that vestment produce an even better turn.

    ## 2 ways your house can increase in value.

    You see, the rate at which a uuse continues to grow in value is e same whether the equity mains in the house or not. So if iu were to take that unused equity id put it to work in something itside of the house itself, your oney could be growing even ster.

    The only problem simply, is at it has been too expensive to ke the money out.

    With current interest rates at
    $10 \%$, you would have to go through the trouble and expense of refinancing your home or property and then have to net after taxes, a return higher than $10 \%$ in order to make the whole thing worthwhile in the first place.

    That has been difficult, if not impossible for most homeowners-until now.

    ## A program

    that really works.At CDS Financial, we've developed a program that makes it not only possible, but practical to refinance your home and have the refinanced capital generating growth income outside your home, while your home itself, continues to grow in value.

    ## Keep your house

    payments the same.Best of all, our program in most cases, keeps your house payments the same as they are right now-and eliminates the need for any additional cash outlay!
    We help you get the money and the best return from it.

    In addition, we not only work with you to obtain the best possible refinancing of your home, we also recommend the best potential application of the refinanced capital.

    Although no one can guarantee the future, one of our current recommendations has been averaging a return of $30 \%$ a year for the past ten years.

    ## Think of the possibilities.

    Just think what a program like this can mean if you're building a retirement income you can live with, or looking for a way to supplement the one you're trying to live with right now.

    ## It's a whole new approach.

    We haven't discovered some magical way to "beat the market", nor have we evolved a method to make bank savings beat inflation. At CDS Financial, we're financial planners who have developed bold new approaches to dealing with today's financial conditions.

    Call us for more information, or mail the coupon today to learn how this program can work for you. You're under no obligation of course-except the one you owe yourself to see how the growing value of your home could be growing even faster.

    ## SEW WARM

    I'm thinking of making a down comforter. Do you know where I can find out how? -I.M., East Detroit, Mich. Why not consider the comforter kits available by mail from Frostline Kits, Department 128, Frostline Circle, Denver, Colo. 80241? There are two styles: One is reversible, in beige and brown or in light and medium blue Trinyl fabric, in four sizes. The other is a "duvet" in white nylon taffeta, in five sizes including crib-size. The "duvet" is designed so you can cover it in your own fabric-instructions but not the fabric for the slipon cover are included. Both styles show 6 quilting-stitch patterns, are available in down or less expensive half down, half feathers filling, packaged for minimum mess. Kits for pillows, parkas, packs, sleeping bags, too. Free catalogue.

    ## SHEET SHAPE

    In 1966 I was able to buy fitted sheets for my 60 -by- 75 -inch mattress. Since then I haven't seen any. Does anyone mass-produce them?
    -E.B., Greenwich, Conn. The National Association of Bedding Manufacturers' voluntary standards went "super size" about ten years ago, and major sheet manufacturers followed suit. The standard queen-size mattress is now 60 by 80 inches. Short of using new sheets and tucking in the extra inches, you could turn to The Norman Dine Sleep Shop at Wuensch Co. ( 33 Halsted, East Orange, N.J. 07018), where fitted sheets, mattress pads, and-a boon to platform-bed owners-blankets (even electric ones) can be made to order for virtually any mattress shape or size. Choose from white 100 percent cotton sheeting; white, solid-color, striped. or printed no-iron polyester and cotton; or white or solid-color polyester satin. To borrow swatches, please send 50 to Norman Dine. For price estimate, send mattress measurements (including thickness), fabric preferences. For "unmeasurable" mattresses (ovals, diagonal boat bunks, etc.), include a wrapping-paper template of the shape.

    It mightn't be far-fetched to consider buying a new mattress. According to Nancy Butler of the N.A.B.M.. "The average American consumer expects her everyday mattress to last 15 to 20 years -an overestimation in terms of optimal support."

    # ENERGY-SAVER HOUSE

    ## How computer analysis can help you save energy and money in building or adding on to a house

    Built at Hawley, Pa., by Tahoe Homes, Ltd., the Kingsberry Homes "Cedarbluff" house by Boise Cascade Corp., Inc., on pages 90-95, cuts heating and cooling costs by energy-saving measures. Extra insulation was added in roofs, heating ducts were insulated, double glass and storm sash were used in windows, double glass in sliding doors, weatherstripping, insulation and a storm door for the wood front door. These optional measures, added by the Tahoe Homes builder, will result in less heating and cooling being needed, at less cost, than in the basic "Cedarbluff" house. And, consequently, the heat pump that heats and cools the house is a smaller, less expensive model.

    To learn the precise savings these measures made possible, they were checked at the house and followed by a computer analysis. The analysis, by York Heating and Air Conditioning, manufacturer of the heat pump, assessed the energy-saving measures and their costs.

    It calculated the heat loss and gain the house, recorded the insulation $\mathrm{f}_{5}$ tors of walls, roofs, windows, and doo checked the size and efficiency of heat pump, and compared them w those of the basic house and estimat the savings gained.     # PLANTS AROUND THE HOUSE

    ## Plants that make scents  A dozen ideas to give winter a lift with color and fragrance

    ## By Richard Langer

    Of all of our senses, that of smell is the least understood-and yet perhaps one of the most important for psychological well-being. New-mown hay, autumn leaves, a special perfume, burning candles, or ocean breezes can all evoke moods and thoughts far beyond their significance to our day-to-day life. One of the most common and expected sources of scented stimulation is flowers. Yet we rarely think of house plants for their fragrant qualities. And, it's true, specimens such as African violets, begonias, and most cacti aren't usually tempting in an olfactory way. But there are a number of plants with scintillating scents to grow on the windowsill or under lights. Nose around a bit and you'll find lots of them to your liking.

    Several of the most fragrant plants are orchids, among them my daughter's favorite, Epidendrum phoeniceum; its bloom smells exactly like chocolate cake. Fortunately, while seemingly exotic, most of these fragrant orchids make good house plants and do not need greenhouse conditionssomething which can't always be said for that scented marvel, the gardenia. Temperamental as gardenias may be, however, if you're successful with them, the sweet smell of that success is hard to beat.

    But first try sometis

    ## FRAGRANT ORCHIDS

    The major difference between growing fragrant orchids and growing your other house plants lies in the soil. Orchids are for the most part epiphytic, or air plants. This means their roots are used to growing in the cracks of bark, moss, and other accumulate debris high up in the crotches of jungle trees. Because of this, they need a special, almost soil-free potting mix, but one that packs firmly as well to give their roots something to hold on to. Use one of the special orchid mixes available from suppliers. Don't use potting soil. Orchid roots, incidentally, will often climb right out of the pot. Let them. As beautiful as their flowers are, orchids have rrible pot manners, so you'll just have learn to live with extraneous roots awling about where they will. - Inyman is orch d, Lycaste aromatica, adds the fragrance of cinnamon to your scent spectrum. Water heavily during the April-to-October flowering period, although as with most orchids, the potting mix should be allowed to become quite dry between dousings. This, after the special potting mix, is the second key to a successful beginning with orchids. When you water them, drench them to the hilt, then give the roots a chance to MCNEILL dry off a bit before you soak them again. As with a jungle cloudburst, when it rains it should pour. The third key to raising orchids is a continuous program of fertilization. Every time you water your orchids during the growing season, you should use a dilute solution of an orchid fertilizer such as the popular Peter's. No food, no flowers. (Continued on page 64) tree itself, try sweet bouvardia (Bouvardia longiflora). A small shrub from Mexico, growing to 1 to 2 feet indoors, it has snowy white blossoms that will fill a whole room with their fragrance. Prune heavily after the May-June flowering to keep the bush compact. Blossoms form almost exclusively on the new growth, so you'll need to shape the plant before this growing spurt commences. Let the loamy soil become rather dry between waterings for best results.

    The Brunfelsia pauciflora richly deserves its fame as a fragrant bloomer. Laden with flowers six months of the year, it's hard to beat. However, its popular name, the yesterday-today-and-to-morrow-tree, may have originated because, if things aren't to its liking, you will have waited yesterday for flowers, and again today, and may still be waiting tomorrow. A borderline greenhouse plant, Brunfelsia thrives in some living rooms and completely refuses to produce in others. The main positive factors seem to be lots of sun and atmospheric moisture. If you have a corner that offers these two conditions, here's a fragrant plant that is most rewarding.

    More easily grown is the Natal plum (Carissa graniflora). Dwarf varieties are your best bet, since the standard plant will grow to 7 feet and it can become rather unmanageable. The closely set

    For flowers that will outdo in orangeblossom fragrance those from the orange leathery leaves are evergreen and look their richest if misted often. This also encourages blooming: Carissa seems to object to dusty leaves. The very fragrant white star-shaped flowers are born in clusters that can decide to put in an appearance just about any time of the year, although fall seems to be the most frequent choice. Easily shaped by pruning, the Natal plum makes a striking indoor topiary.

    One rarely thinks of iris as fragrant, and even less as a candidate for indoor grow(Continued on page 64)

    ing. Yet Neomarcia gracilis, the twelve apostles plant, is a member of this family with both attributes. The fragrant white, blue, and brown flowers keep coming one after the other when specimens are grown as pot plants. Their floriferous nature counterbalances their only drawback, namely, the individual blossom's rather short duration. Keep the loamy soil constantly very moist, and both you and the plants will be happy.

    Intensely aromatic white-to-pink waxy flowers erupt on the Daphne odora just when we need them most, during the dark winter months of January to March. Also known as the winter daphne, this fragrant harbinger of spring is a fast grower that likes its temperatures a bit cooler than your African violets. Keep the soil constantly moist to maximize flowers and fragrance.

    The gardenia may well be the archetypal fragrant flower-but beware, it's fickle. What it needs without fail is good atmospheric humidity, full morning sun, temperatures of 70 degrees or less, lots of fresh air without any drafts, and an even soil moisture. Give your gardenias those conditions and they'll bloom beyond belicf-and then refuse to do so again the following year even though the conditions remain exactly the same. Dependable the gardenia is not, but when the flowers come, all is forgiven. Use acid fertilizer on a regular basis and your chances of a good show are vastly improved.

    Are things a bit dry around the house? Well, then, try the Persian violet (Exacum affine). It looks about as muct like a real violet as the African one does But, oh, that delicate fragrance. A pro fusely blooming perennial, the Persiar violet is nevertheless usually grown as ar annual from seed, starting in March for June-to-October blooms, because oldel plants tend to become scraggly. Africar violet soil works well for the Exacum but let it become drier between watering than other so-called violets.

    Jasmine, like gardenias, may presen some erratic difficulty for the average grower. For almost the same fragrance without pain try sweet olive (Osmanthus frangrans). The tiny white flowers are diminutive-but the jasminelike perfume is heady. Grow sweet olive on the cool side with constantly moist loamy soil. and this easiest of fragrant plants will exude its tantalizing aroma from No vember through May.

    There's something a little perverse in growing a flower that smells like choco late cake. Still, the orchid Epidendrum phoeniceum, with a dozen or so striking long-lasting flowers on a single raceme is a visual delight as well as a fragrant oddity. The key to its success is to stop watering almost completely for a few months after the new leaves have ma tured.

    ## LIGHT IT RIGHT

    My apartment kitchen has a fluorescent fixture. The light is hard on my eyes and gives food a purplish cast. Is there a bulb that will fit my fixture but give more pleasant light? -P.H., New York, N.Y. Lighting designer Jim Nuckolls, author of the textbook Interior Lighting for Environmental Designers (Wiley-Interscience, $$ 24$ ), has these tips for improving flourescent lighting:

    1. Choose color-improved ("deluxe") fluorescent bulbs. All major bulb makers market two models that fit most fixtures A "warm white deluxe" or WWX bulb gives a pinkish light, a "cool white deluxe" or CWX bulb, a bluish light. Both of them reproduce colors with very little distortion.
    2. The harshness of fluorescents is par tially due to invisible flickering. To counteract this, use fixtures that take two or more bulbs.
    3. For less glare, use a translucent shield over your bulbs.

    Before you buy a washer, take off your socks. Throw one into a Frigidaire washer, the other into the best selling brand's best washer. Start the machines, and watch what happens.

    See how quickly the Frigidaire sock is sucked beneath the suds. And see how long the other sock just hangs around the top.

    What you are seeing is our special Jet Cone agitator at work.

    It goes up and down instead of back and forth like other washers. It pulls the clothes down to the bottom of the tub. And that's where the best cleaning action takes place.

    In fact, independent laboratory tests, using AHAM standard large cotton loads (15-lb. dry weight), have proven that our Jet Cone washing action circulates the wash load three times more often per regular wash cycle. And gets clothes cleaner than the best selling brand's best washer.

    But our quest for clean didn't stop there.
    Only Frigidaire washers have the Jet Circle Spray action. It shoots water into the tub from not one but twelve outlets around the top of all $1-18 \mathrm{lb}$. washer tubs. This forces the detergent into solution and even helps push the clothes down under the water to loosen dirt.

    So take a look at a Frigidaire Jet Cone washer.

    It'll not only knock your socks off. It'll get them clean.

    Will the instant bond super adhees do what they are supposed to do?

    The so-called "instant bond super hesives" are supposed to glue two ces together by using one drop of nent to make a quick, almost instant ad. The question is are they capable doing as much work? In most cases, answer seems to be no. Originally mulated for industrial use for specific olications under strict production con1, they never were intended to be nufactured for residential use. They $y$, sometimes, work to bond hard, rt , non-porous materials, but there are eards involved in using these products. the carded packages indicate, the ger of stack-together fingers, glued lids, etc., is always present. Material nding may not be instant, but skin ding certainly is. If you do use one hese products, be sure to keep a bottle acetone or fingernail polish remover nediately at hand for overspills and ck fingers. Under no circumstances ould children or the uncoordinated be swed to use the above adhesives.
    Jther safer adhesives such as the twot epoxies (resin and catalyst system) 1 contact cement do most of the jobs one-drop cement is supposed to do. oxy and contact cement may have a ch longer set-up and curing time, but y usually are dependable and safe dducts to use. Packaging for both adives contains detailed information for Masking tape can be an excellent for "holding" while epoxy sets-up.

    Can anyone install a wall dimmer tch?

    4 There is no magic involved in inling a dimmer switch in the wall. It be done easily within a few minutes, $n$ if you have no electrical experience all. Switches are manufactured for ee-way connections (one fixture conled from two locations) and for fluomeent lighting as well as for single tch incandescent bulbs. Before you p , be sure to measure the depth of switch wall box. (First turn off current, remove switch plate. Pull out switch from box.) This measurement is very important. Wall box sizes vary in depth as do dimmer depths. You need a unit that will be shallow enough to fit the box size in your wall.

    How can I deal with a buzzing fluorescent fixture in the kitchen?

    A A slight buzzing sound coming from a 6 -foot or 8 -foot fluorescent bulb is perfectly normal. However, the annoying buzzing in a fixture with lights 4 feet or less is caused by a faulty ballast which needs replacing. Several things must be determined before a new ballast can be purchased. How many tubes are in the fixture? How much wattage is used? Is the fixture a pre-heat unit (uses starters) or a rapid-start unit (no starters) ? How many ballasts are in the fixture? (Usually, as a rule, for residential lighting, there is one ballast for every two tubes regardless of wattage.) Take a trip to an electrical supply house armed with the above information in order to obtain the correct ballast for your fixture.

    To install the new ballast do as follows: 1. Turn off the power. 2. Remove the tubes, the cover, and then cut the wires leading to the old ballast. 3. Unscrew the old ballast and remove. 4. The diagram for wiring is printed on the new ballast and should be followed for hookup. Directions do vary, so there is no set rule for connection.

    Have you a simple solution for dealing with under-the-sink clutter?

    A Often the sink cabinet is really not a cabinet at all but rather just a front that has been attached to the two adjacent cabinets or to the wall and a cabinet. In many instances, the floor area inside the space is actually the room floor. One way to organize the space is to add a cabinet floor, if there is none, plus a second shelf 16 inches above, so that bottles, dishwashing equipment, cleaning supplies, etc., can more easily be retrieved from under the sink. To make the job simple, 2 -by-4s can serve as a support for the flooring material and shelf. Use plywood or composition board.

    Take the measurements of the inside area, taking off half an inch from length and width. Then have the lumberyard cut necessary lumber. The assembly is a simple job that can be done in $15 \mathrm{~min}-$ utes. You may need to drill pilot holes in for securing screws to supports but otherwise this is an uncomplicated job which greatly improves storage.

    Brightening a guest room, dulling brass, an ingenious use for old tie clips, and other helpful tips

    ## By Mary Elizabeth Falter

    Sachets under the pillows as well as in the bureau drawers are a nice touch for your guest room-along with the usual fresh flowers and selected light reading. Other thoughts: an optional night light, two pillows per bed (a soft one for sleeping and a firm one for sitting up to read), and a nightly carafe of ice water. And consider putting a statement on a table, which will tell your guest that the bedside lamp is also connected to the wall switch by the door (which can lead to confusion), that the shade on the window to the right behaves badly, where the extra blankets are, and which window is best to open at night. List any other pertinent facts, including the time coffee will be ready in the morning. Sometimes these things are forgotten in the flurry of greeting guests.

    If you're a regular user of a two-part steamer, a steaming basket for vegetables, or a double boiler, you've probably had the nasty experience of having the pot boil dry and scorch. A friend tells me she keeps some marbles in the kitchen drawer and tosses them in with the water in the bottom of the pot. If the water begins to dry up, the marbles will rattle and attract her attention.

    The perennial art museum and gallery visitor may find an extra pair of glasses helpful. Most people like to get an overall look at a picture and then move in closer for an inspection of the surface quality and detail. Unfortunate$l y$, this can produce a nasty crick in the neck from peering through the bottom half of bifocals. The cure is to have a special pair of glasses made with the lower or close correction only. Good for needlepoint and watching mini-TV, too.

    The General Electric company has produced a new, flat-hinged wall plug, called the "GE Wall Hugger 3-Way Tap," with three outlets, making it possible to use in many places where the conventional one won't fit. Only half-an-has a hinged pronged portion so the plug folds flat and holds the cords against the wall, so they can't be pulled loose. The hinges also make it adaptable for use on medicine cabinet outlets and other difficult spots. The overall thickness, when folded flat, is no deeper than the average baseboard.

    If you have any decorative gold or silver tie clips from another era (the usual was about an inch-and-a-half long), take it to a jeweler and have him attach a sturdy key ring. Then you can clip your keys to the mirror pocket of your handbag and not have to dive to the bottom to retrieve them. Clips can often be found in antique jewelry shops.

    More antiquing: Some antique book and print shops carry stacks of old newspapers dating back to the early and mideighties. Because they were printed on fine rag paper, they stay remarkably well-preserved, and are both interesting and decorative. Usually not very expensive, they make amusing presents rolled and wrapped in cellophane and fastened with a red ribbon and maybe even a spot of sealing wax. Wonderful old valentines are to be found in the same places and the young-and even the not-so-young-adore them.

    Flowers look pretty in glass containers, but it's difficult to anchor the stems without having an ugly flower-frog show as plainly as the flowers. To find a prettier way to arrange flowers, visit a shell shop and look for a piece of white coral, some shells, or even some interesting pebbles and rocks to use in place of a frog. Some craft and gift shops sell glass marbles encased in mesh to use as an adjustable frog, but these work best and look nicer if they are emptied out of the mesh. Beachcoming may yield some new ideas for you.

    One way to keep an egg from cracking when you're boiling it is to dip a ladle into boiling water, put the egg in the ladle, and lower gently into water. If you have the patience, it's also a good way to poach an egg. Just add a few drops of vinegar to the water in the ladle, break the eggshell, add the broken egg and lower it into the pot without getting any more water into the ladle. Rotate it gently until the egg is set and it will come out looking like the fanciest poached egg that Room Service can deliver.

    We may spend much time and effort polishing our brass candlesticks and teapots only to have a brass object that is too shiny. Replacement doorknobs, for instance, or new hinges and other brass hardware that stand out from their neighbors and look obvious. To tone them down so they blend into the overall effect, get a small paintbrush and some white vinegar and paint an even coat of vinegar over the offending brass every day for three days. The bright gleam will soften-an old cabinetmaker's trick.

    Is we confront the last year of a hectic lecade, there seems to be a new surge fenergy in the air. American techology continues to astonish us with liscoveries for making life easier at iome (see page 96). The rush to good lealth shows no sign of slowing down. The incidence of cardiovascular disase fell by 16 percent from 1970 to 976). New civilizations are opening ip just when we thought ours was hrinking-from the exciting new rcheological finds in Africa to the ewly accessible society of China. And ur ideas about how we should live re moving into freer and less charted vaters than ever before - what could e more invigorating than that?
    Trend-guessing is a risky exercise, ut spotting decorating trends is likely o be useful to House & Garden readers, ince what the designers say today nay well see the light of day in your ving room next month. So here is a oundup of their crystal-gazing:
    "Decorating is going to two extremes at one time: Some people want more clutter, which comes from a strong Victorian and Edwardian influence, while others want complete simplicity. You'll find a less formal approach to decorating with more emphasis on comfort."

    Arthur Smith
    "Individuality is the keynote. Rooms will have a more romantic feeling, with an emphasis on softness and easiness. A lot more attention will be paid to controlling the lighting. People want lighting that can be changed, using, for instance, rheostats, to tone down or lift up lighting according to mood or activity."

    ## Bill Hodgins

    "We'll be doing more with ceilingsup till now an ignored area. In modern apartments there's little wall space and lots of ceiling. Watch for small patterns on the ceiling, or small borders along the ceiling edge that are unrelated to the wall covering. Or small patterned wallpaper for the ceiling or sprig work with a bold ceiling paper." Robert Denning
    "People are moving toward a more pragmatic approach. The room must work first. But there will still be areas for frivolity - we like lace, for example using an antique lace collection in the sitting room."

    Lucretia Robertson and Donna Lang and Donna Lang
    "There'll be more soft lilacs, dusty roses, beiges, feminine colors used with one sharper color-It's really a new look." Georgina Fairholme
    "We are witnessing a softening of the militant 60 s, both in terms of decorating (away from the hard chrome look), and in our social and economic environment. Rooms will be softer in nature, but more practical and less frivolous.

    Jay Spectre
    "Young people are becoming more and more interested in crafts-knitting curtains, weaving rugs-to make their homes reflect them. That's the look we'll see more of -homes that reflect our personalities."

    Mario Buatta
    "Furniture will be even simpler, because so much more is going on at home these days-you may see a room that has one of those giant Advent TV screens, a working fireplace, a disco dancing area and a place to eat. With all that happening, what's better than one enormous banquette, one enormous table, and two enormous ottomans?"

    Tom Britt
    "Care in planning will become more essential. Rooms will have alternate floor plans so you can, for instance, move the chairs nearer the windows in summer for the view. This needs planning ahead so that electrical outlets, for example, are in the right places for the changeover. It will make designing rooms more like choreography." Joseph Braswell
    "Applied decoration will return on contemporary furniture, echoing the return to the Beaux Arts in architec-ture-enhanced by lack of clutter. One or two important accessories are worth more than a carload of mediocrity." John Dickinson
    "A new kind of bedroom no longer looks like a bedroom but takes on the abstract air of any other room in the house. Rooms no longer have to be specific or show their utilitarian purpose." Mary McFadden
    "More opulent interiors are coming - not fussy, but spare, rich and romantic colors put together in diverse ways to create a personal fantasy world."

    ## SIMPLICITY MEETS FORMALITY

    By Paul GoldbergerThe shoemaker's children may be allowed to go barefoot, but I'm not sure that architecture critics have a similar dispensation in terms of their living quarters. People seem to expect that those of us who cover the fields of architecture and design will have houses that are virtual showrooms of the best of what we write about, and after a while, we can start believing that, too. But I have never been entirely comfortable with the idea of living in an environment of perfect objects, perfectly arranged -much as I admire a great deal of the work I write about, I tend to be more comfortable with the idea of my own house as a place that is in process, not a place that is a pure and perfect finished product. What a critic writes about as significant may not be what he wants to live in himself, and I've always felt it was important to keep this distinction in mind. The old cliché-"it's spectacular to look at, but would you want to live there?"-wasn't really so far off base, and there are times when I feel it expresses my thoughts exactly.

    On the other hand, no one whose life revolves around design is going to be happy in an ordinary space, and when the time came not long ago to seek new quarters I looked all over New York, determined not to end up in a conventional apartment. I found most New York apartments boring, either because of the dreary architecture of their outsides or because of the unimaginative, cramped space they offered inside. I considered going downtown and renovating a loft, but before I had the chance to get serious about that, the perfect thing appeared-three rooms in the Dakota, the great 1884 building by Henry Janeway Hardenbergh on Central Park West. Like most New Yorkers, I had always loved the building; my only problem with it was that it seemed almost too right for someone in my business, and I wondered if my living there would suggest that I lacked the imagination to make a fresh choicesort of like a music critic who, when asked what his favorite music is, chooses Beethoven's Fifth Symphony. But then again, I reasoned, even if it is known to everyone, Beethoven's Fifth is the greatest of its kind. And so with the Dakota.

    The apartment itself, however, had its share of problems. The layout was faintly ridiculous - a cramped entrance hall, a large kitchen and pantry complex just ahead of the front door, and a living room flanking the kitchen to the right and a bedroom flanking it to the left. It was in rather wretched condition, and the floor plan, with the kitchen in the center, seemed at first

    If you have a barespot where you wish you had a garden, take heart from the miracle two young rent ers achieved on a roof in New York. Tom Pouch and Jerry Schwam, left, started the garden one lustery winter day. They fixed-up ome boxes and furniture they had bund on the roof, then cut in half $55-$ allon metal drums they had salvaged. hey built a trellis to enclose the garden rea and painted everything cottage red , blend with the building's bricks and le paving, below. To create partitions and private nooks for breakfast coffee id twilight drinks, the boxes and barIs were lined up as flower borders. eeds were ordered from catalogues id then one sunny day in early spring, om and Jerry rented a van-"cheaper an having things delivered in the ty"-and traveled to country garden enters to buy 50 -pound bags of potag soil, gravel for drainage, fertilizer, 1d other supplies. Expenses came about $$ 400$, not counting the labor love. Soon the word spread: "Have bu seen the roof?" "What roof?" "Go e." Tenants who had merely nodded I the elevator began speaking. Gift ivelopes marked "Roof" were handed the doorman, making it possible to iy roses and shrubs. Tenants even intributed melon rinds and vegetable rapings to the tidy compost bin in a rner. "What these young men have one for us," a retired woman execure said, "is something landlords are ot likely to do because of labor costs. e have flowers to enjoy in spring, mmer, and fall-but not to pick, or would spoil the pleasure for all. We ive a park we can go into without en stepping into the street. We have country place at home."     Showy annuals are the mainstay, barrels of them. Started from seed after frost, they add splashes of bright color ali through summer and well into fall. Favorite marigold varieties here are Climax and Sunset Giants. The zinnias are Bouquet hybrid's, Firecracker, Persian carpet. Dense stands of self-seeding cosmos include Sensation, Klondyke. Along the edges of the containers are cascading white petunias flecked with sweet alyssum, blue browallia and ageratum, Blaze verbena, torenia, impatiens (all best nursery-grown). Plants are set very close together to make the most of every precious inch of soil.

    Vines planted in containers and supported on trellises can provide a quick hedge to give privacy, buffer the wind, create a soft leafy-green background. Vines provide beautiful flowers, too. Here, morning glories open at breakfast time and fragrant white moon flowers unfurl each evening. Lush scarlet runner beans are covered with little flowers and long beans good enough to eat. These three are grown from seed. Others winter over: sweet-smelling Hall's honeysuckle, silver-lace (Polygonum Aubertii) with sprays of white flowers, wisteria growing against the brick, and clematis with flower heads in the sun, feet in the shade of lower plants, just as it likes to be.

    Roses and perennials add spice, along with flowering shrubs. Favorite roses here are pink Betty Pryor and Queen Elizabeth, yellow New Day, red Merci trained as standards. In spring after tulips and daffodils have bloomed, bas-ket-of-gold and sedums add color. In summer, perennial Canterbury-bells, dianthus, daylilies, gaillardia, bee-balm, hosta, and phlox fill in among the annuals. Field flowers adopted for city living are daisies, black-eyed Susans, loosestrife, and sunflowers-beautiful and free. Shrubs and small trees give extra height, variety: forsythia, cherry, lilac, quince, deutzia, rhododendron, summer-blooming but-terfly-bush (Buddleia), rose-of-Sharon.

    Boxes, barrels, almost anything will do. Annuals need at least 8 inches depth; perennials, 16 inches; shrubs and trees, 18 or more. Elevate containers on small wood blocks for air and moisture circulation. Half-inch drainage holes can be made with a high-speed drill. These barrels were cut with a saber saw fitted with a metal-cutting blade. Barrels were rinsed with a strong detergent and painted inside and out, like the boxes, with an exterior oil-base primer. Possible container sources: commercial barrel and planter firms, scrap metal dealers, shippers. Trellises for partitions and privacy can be attached to 2-by-2 supports anchored in soil and stones in barrels, boxes, or cinder blocks. This gale-proof trellis is made of quarter-inch lath strips joined at each overlap with silicone glue and tiny nails. Low trellis set at the back of boxes along the parapet extends a foot above the wall.
    Enriched potting soil or garden loam is a must. To two parts soil, mix one part sphagnum peat, by volume not weight. Enrich with bone meal, dried cow manure, 5-10-5 fertilizer according to directions; add compost if available. Mix large portions on a drop cloth for neatness. Spread the soil over 1-2 inches of gravel, leaving 2 -inches below box rim for easy watering. Water almost daily and fertilize every 2-3 weeks to keep plants strong

    In the short span of one generation, technology has taken on new meaning and importance in our lives. It is equated with the blinking lights of the computer, the digital magic of the calculator, the supersonic speed of the Concorde, and many other remarkable space-age spinoffs. A friend of mine saw the movie Rocky six times, twice in the theatre, four times at home. My friend and thousands like him in major cities across the country are subscribers to Home Box Office, a service that delivers current, first-rate films to the comforts of home. Home Box Office and many other media services utilize communication satellites -solar-power spacecraft that transmit au-dio-visual signals from one remote earth station to another. The capability of satellite communications has only begun to be tapped, and as cost factors of launching satellites are reduced, many more-with literally thousands of new channels-are likely to be launched. Jim McKenna, Senior Information Officer at COMSAT (Communications Satellite Corporation) in Washington, D.C., explains: "Today we are limited in what we can put in space by our current rocket launch capability. As that capability increases, more satellites will be launched. In addition, the number of potential channels is increasing as our technology for powering the station improves.'

    Innovative broadcasters will certainly look beyond the situation comedy for programming ideas. It may be possible to learn French, "explore" ancient Egypt, view masterworks of arts, or enjoy a steady stream of La Boheme. Some futurists have even predicted a totally television-oriented system of mass education, administered via satellite, in the home. Already communications satellites are delivering vital teachings to underdeveloped cultures and medical assistance to remote rural areas. Communications satellites have also been instrumental in improving-as well as lowering the cost of-world-wide telephone connections, shrinking the span of our globe at an ever-increasing rate.

    viewers would have dreamed possible. NASA did not invent electronics. But most experts agree that the space program forced the electronic industry into a quantum leap forward. And the reason is simple. Robin Snelson, Science Editor of Future magazine, explains: For NASA to develop electronics effective enough to work in space, yet lightweight and compact enough to get off the planet, they had to allocate huge sums of money to the study of micro-electronics. The big breakthrough was the tiny chip'-a piece of silicon substrate the size of your thumbnail or smaller, on which thousands of miniature electronic sircuits are located." The refinement of he "chip" is what has caused calculators o diminish in size from that of a radio o a thin wallet, and in price from over $$ 1,000$ to less than $$ 10$.

    The micro-miniaturization of elecronic components has created a market hat seems limitless in scope.     ## ENERGY FROM THE SUN hether we believe there is an energy isis or not, most of us are alert to the ct that we, Americans, are the fuelubbers of the world. One potential power source that is both puzzling and promising is a direct off-shoot of the space program-solar cells. Solar cell, or "photovoltaic conversion," is the process of converting the sun's rays into electricity. Photovoltaics powered the Viking Probe to its historic landing on Mars, and they provide energy for our orbiting satellites. The Department of Energy has an active program studying photovoltaic conversion. The photovoltaic cell is made up of purified silicon, an abundant but costly earth resource. According to Dr. Morton B. Prince, Program Manager, Photovoltaics, at the Department of Energy, one kilogram of silicon costs $\$ 65$. Moreover, as there is no technique for mass-producing the cells, only a handful of firms are engaged in small scale production. The energy output of a solar cell "array" is measured in terms of "peak watts"or the maximum energy generated on a clear day at noon. Right now a peak watt costs from $\$ 10$ to $\$ 30$. The Department of Energy hopes to get that figure down to $50 \phi$ by 1986. At present, there is a prototype array powering a pumping/irrigation system in Nebraska, and the DOE hopes to install a solar cell system next year that will provide heat and electricity to a community college in Arkansas.

    In the meantime, solar cells are already performing important tasks. They provide information about the sun that allows other energy conservation devices to function more effectively. For instance, a solar cell is the basis of a product developed by Dodge Products, Inc., of Houston, Tex., that detects and measures the amount of the sun's radia-tion-potential energy-at a particular building site. This information helps builders and architects devise optimum plans for solar heating and cooling systems.

    The General Drapery Services Company utilizes solar cells to control a motorized exterior drapery designed to conserve energy expenditures in large buildings. The solar cell reacts to the various positions of the sun, thereby "instructing" the motcrized roller to raise or lower the drapery.

    Mr. Lecht, the computer expert, has a similar system in his Manhattan apartment, which has a greenhouse adjacent to the main living space. Having spent one winter "in a bathing suit" because of the heat transferred through the unprotected glass, Mr. Lecht installed a motorized awning that is tied into a solar cell and his home computer. When the heat reaches a predetermined level, a solar cell thermostat trips a signal to the computer. The computer then reads a set of thermometers around the apartment to get an accurate picture of the temperature overall. It then determines whether to move up or down, and to what degree.

    Another proposal for harnessing solar power is an orbiting satellite power station that would collect and beam the sun's rays to earth in the form of microwaves, which would in turn be converted to electricity. The idea was formulated by Dr. Peter Glaser 10 years ago. A $$ 15$ million, three-year program has been established by the DOE in conjunction with NASA to study the concept. The "powersat" would be a structure several miles in length and width, presumably launched by the shuttle into "synchronous orbit" (above the same location on earth) some 22,000 miles high. The satellite would receive sunlight almost continuously. The electricity produced would be converted to microwave, beamed down to large "antenna farms" on earth, where the microwaves would be reconverted to electricity, and then fed into existing power lines. It is estimated that one power station could provide enough electricity for all of New York City. By 1980, the researchers should have gathered enough data to make an educated guess at powersat's feasibility.

    The bright, open feeling that makes this Super Kitchen so inviting grows straight out of the architectural design. "We wanted to give the owners a sense of participating in their environment, and to enjoy nature indoors as much as possible," explains architect Yann Weymouth. The kitchen also incorporates intelligent use of nature's energy. Roof is angled to accommodate three solar collectors used to heat water. A skylight brings light and warmth to the north wall. The shaded terrace, above, seems like part of the room, but an ingenious glass wall stands between: its double glaze can fill with polystyrene beads, to act as insulation and retain heat.     MENUBaked sole with green peppercornsSautéed cucumbers and snow peasSteamed riceApricot mousse Flaky sole fillets baked with white wine and scallions, crisp herb-topped vegetables, softly steamed rice, and a tangy apricot dessert make a light, nicechange menu during weeks of winter soups and stews. These recipes are from José Wilson, noted food and wine writer and author of The Complete Food Catalogue (Holt, Rinehart & Winston).

    Since the mousse for dessert should chill an hour, purée the apricots and liqueur and fold in the whipped cream early in the day or before you begin preparing the main course. Make sure the butter for the sauce is in the freezer when you set the fillets, in their foil pouch, in the oven. While they bake for 20 min utes, steam the rice, prepare the cucumbers and snow peas (if they're hard to find, try strips of green pepper or blanched broccoli florets) and crush the green peppercorns for the butter sauce. When the fillets are done, keep them warm and start the vegetables -stir them constantly, they'll only take a few minutes. Turn the vegetables into a warmed serving bowl, then whisk the butter and reduced fillet juices together until thick and creamy. Stir the peppercorns into the sauce and serve im-mediately-it's all done in about 40 minutes.

    ## Baked sole with green peppercorns

    ## INGREDIENTS

    6 sole fillets (or haddock, if sole is unavailable)
    $1 / 4$ cup scallions, finely chopped Salt, freshly ground black

    ## pepper

    3 teaspoons butter
    3 tablespoons dry white wine
    3 tablespoons strong fish stock or clam juice
    4 ounces unsalted butter, frozen and cut into 8 pieces

    2 teaspoons green peppercorns, drained, rinsed, and crushed in a mortar

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Arrange the fillets, skin side up, on a large sheet of heavyduty aluminum foil in a baking dish. Sprinkle with the scallions and salt and pepper to taste, then dot each fillet with $1 / 2$ teaspoon butter cut in tiny pieces. Fold each fillet ovel lengthwise so flesh side is uppermost. Pour the wine and stock over the fillets, close the foil, and bake fillets in a pre heated $400^{\circ}$ oven 20 minutes Remove fish to a warm serving plate and drain all the juices into a small heavy saucepan or skillet. Bring juices to a rapid boil and reduce to about 2 tablespoons. Remove pan from heat and whisk in the frozen butter, bit by bit, as for a beurre blanc. The butter must not be allowed to melt but should mount to a creamy thickness. Stir in crushed peppercorns and serve immediately with fish. Serves 6.

    ## How to find fine wines for under $3

    ## Winetaster's guide to budget buys from the U.S., Europe, and Latin America

    ## By B.J. Cutler

    Consumers who are accustomed to drinking the classic French wines from Bordeaux and Burgundy and the equally good wines from California made from the top-ranked Pinot Chardonnay and Cabernet Sauvignon grapes have a problem: a money problem. A number of small harvests in France, higher labor costs, a shortage of white grapes in California, and increasing demand for "name" wines have combined to send prices soaring. A bottle of Pouilly Fuissé, a popular white Burgundy, commands $$ 8$ to $$ 10$. Any château-bottled red Bordeaux that one is likely to have heard of will soon start at $$ 8$. A French red, labeled only "Bourgogne," which means it can come from anywhere in the province of Burgundy, sells for $$ 4.50$. In California the lovingly crafted Chardonnays and Cabernets from small "boutique" wineries are winning in blind tastings against fine French imports, but prices of $$ 15$ a bottle are not uncommon.
    So what should a person do in today's wine market if he or she is budgetminded and still wants to serve good wine? The first thing to do is to relax and stop worrying; there is a lot of sound, decently priced wine on the American market. I know because I recently did a survey to see what was available at $$ 3$ a bottle or less, which is a quite modest price these days, and I found scores of wines from a dozen countries good enough for family drinking and to serve to guests at all but the most rarefied dinner parties. I certainly did not come close to finding all the good buys in my arbitrary $$ 3$ price class. You can easily make your own discoveries if you ask a few wine merchants for suggestions as to good values and carefully taste their recommendations to determine which ones please you, no matter how they rate on vintage charts and experts' lists.

    The place to start hunting bargains is California, source of about 85 percent of American wine. Interesting ones will be found among the so-called generic wines bottled in fifths. Generic wines are made from a blend of several grape types (in contrast to varietal wines which are made mostly from the grape variety named on the label) and usually bear the names of European wines, such as "Chablis," "Burgundy," or "Rhine," which they may or may not resemble.

    Recently, American winemakers have gained in confidence and begun giving their products honest, no-nonsense names (which often are clues to wellmade wines). Thus, Robert Mondavi calls his generic wines Red Table Wine and White Table Wine. You couldn't ask for less puffery than that, and both are excellent value at $$ 2.25^{*}$ a fifth. Prices may be higher or lower in different parts of the country. In the same class with Robert Mondavi's red are Fetzer Mendocino Premium Red, $$ 2.35$, a rugged wine that will look a steak or roast in the eye and make it say uncle; Kenwood Sonoma County Burgundy, $$ 2.75$, Pedroncelli Sonoma Red, $$ 2.25$, and Sterling Napa Valley Red, $$ 2.80$.

    Among the generic white wines to try are Kenwood California Chablis (98 percent from the Chenin Blanc grape), $2.90, Fetzer Mendocino Premium White, $$ 2.35$, and the above mentioned Robert Mondavi Table White. Wente Bros. is noted for its whites. Whenever one is spotted at less than $$ 3$, it is a buy. Paul Masson's Emerald Dry is a pleasant inexpensive white, good as an apéritif or a table wine. Other good makers of modestly priced wines, whites and reds, are Louis Martini, Scbastiani, and C.K. Mondavi.

    While doing my research, I asked Harry M. Siegel, whose Ace Beverages has been supplying Washington's embassies and better homes for more than a quarter century, for tips on inexpensive varietal wines. "Keep two grapes in mindChenin Blanc and Zinfandel," he said, and he was right. Chenin Blanc is a grape from France's Loire Valley, where it produces Vouvray and Saumur. In California it yields a crisp, pale, slightly fruity wine that makes a nice apéritif and goes well with fish, chicken, and indeed most dishes that do not call for red. Some nationally distributed Chenin Blancs follow: Almadén, $$ 2.60$; Gallo, $1.75; Geyser Peak, $2.95; Italian Swiss Colony, $1.70; Korbel, $2.75; Pedroncelli, $$ 2.95$; Souverain, $$ 2.99$; Wente, $$ 3$; and Winemasters, $$ 2.15$. The ones pushing $$ 3$ tend to be finer than their inexpensive cousins. Incidentally, Inglenook's Navalle Chenin Blanc ( $$ 2.30$ ) is nicely sweet and a candidate to serve with dessert.
    Zinfandel, whose origin in Europe is shrouded in mystery, is the California grape par excellence, doing better there than elsewhere. Depending on how it is handled, it produces a dark, powerful, long-lived red wine, usually expensive, or a light, fruity version with a berry-like flavor. The latter is sort of America's Beaujolais, fresh and meant to be drunk young, and fortunately it is modestly priced. Here are some interesting Zinfandels in our price range: Beringer, $2.65; Fetzer, $2.95; Gallo, $1.75; Heitz Cellars, $2.95; Pedroncelli, $2.75; Sonoma, $2.99; and Wente Bros., $2.95. I thought the Heitz and Pedroncelli especially good buys.

    Another European grape, the Barbera from northern Italy, also does better in California than in its native soil. In the (ontinued on page 124

    Stouffer's Broccoli au Gratin and Scalloped Potatoes are just two of the 13 side dishes Stouffer's makes. To liven up a simple meal. Or do justice to a special one.

    Out-of-the-ordinary dishes. Made with uncommon care. To be uncommonly good.
    That's why theyre the great mealtime accessories.
    right hands the Barbera gives a satisfying, robust red wine. Louis Martini makes a fine example, which, when found for around $$ 3$, should be tasted.

    Because it is highly productive and was inexpensive, the Colombard grape finds its way into most California jug whites. Now many growers also are treating it as a varietal grape, and Colombard is yielding a rather dry, fresh, pale wine. Among the pleasant offerings are Almáden, $2.29; Cresta Blanca, $2.55; Foppiano, $2.90; Gallo, $1.75; Paul Masson, $2.60; Parducci, $2.99; Sonoma, $$ 2.85$; and Winemaster's Guild, $2.15.

    Although California dominates the American wine scene, fine wines are now being made in more than a dozen states. Many of them unfortunately cost more than our $$ 3$ ceiling. In New York State, which has a long winemaking tradition, the large firms of Taylor, Great Western, and Widmer make complete lines of inexpensive wines that can be found almost anywhere. In the East, the Boordy Vineyards of Riderville, Md. has devoted followers of its simply labeled Boordy Red, White, and Rosé wines. Made from hybrid Franco-American vines, Boordy's products resemble the simple country wines that used to enchant travelers in France. Regional winemakers are springing up in many parts of the country, among them New York State, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Arkansas, Ohio, Michigan, Oregon, and Washington. People living near the new vineyards would do well to taste their local wines. They will make some interesting discoveries.

    Because Burgundies and the higher rated Bordeaux wines have skyrocketed out of reach is no reason to give up on France as a source of enjoyable and affordable drinking. The Macon area, south of Burgundy, still provides its Valpolicella) and let things go at that. But they would be missing out on an even better red, Chianti from Tuscany. A Chianti Classico, identified by the black rooster on its neck label, coming from a conscientious maker and selling for less than $$ 3$ is one of today's best values. Good inexpensive Chiantis come from Saccardi (which has been winning blind tastings lately), Melini, Verrazzano, Brolio, and Ruffino. There are many other shippers of good and less good Chianti. One very good way to select your Italian wines is to pick up six bottles of different Soaves and six Chiantis and invite friends in for a tasting. Don't let them see from which bottle you pour the wine to be tasted and have them keep careful notes about color, bouquet, flavor, and general quality. Have some bread to clean palates between Companies that ship Soave also send Verona's other two leading wines, Valpolicella leading wines, Valpolicella and Bardolino, both light, fruity reds. People who want to simplify their lives could pick a Soave and a Bardolino tastes and serve some cheese when the tasting is over and the remaining wines are being polished off. At the end of the evening your friends will have had a good time, and you will have painlessly located your House White and House Red. It's a miracle that the Germans can send us so much good inexpensive wine. They can and do, and we might as well enjoy their miracle while it lasts. It is a wise strategy to look for the names of vineyard towns on the bottle labels, such as Bingen, Bernkastel, Mainz, Nierstein, Oppenheim, Piesport, Saulheim, Wiltingen, Wehlen, Zeltingen, Rüdesheim, Wachenheim, etc. These wines come from a single town, sometimes a specific property, and are likely to be better than the regional blends. Until recently, most German wines have been rather sweet, according to many tastes too sweet to accompany a meal and better reserved for dessert. Now, however, canny German vineyard owners have noticed the growing use of dry white wines as apéritifs and have changed their vinifiContinued on next page is French prices rise, as $y$ will, more and more ation will be paid to the ii. This enormous winewing area stretches along Mediterranean Coast alit from the Riviera to the nish border. The growers he Midi have sensibly upled their product. With er vinifications and strictules, they are producing isant vins de pays, or counwines, that will play an imtant role in the American ket. They are starting to w up here, in the squareIldered Bordeaux bottle, ing names like Vins de Is des Côteaux, Varois, Côteaux du Pont du Gard, Côtes du Tarn. Better established names are Minervois, Corbières, and Côtes du Roussillon. Midi wines will bear the words "Vin de Pays" or "Appellation VDQS Controllée" on their labels and should be experimented with as Bordeaux gets pricey.

    The ace in the hole for lovers of imported wine at moderate prices is Italy. Italy now sends to America about twice as much wine as France and, fortunately, Italian wine making has improved considerably. From California, the Italians picked up the technique of making crisp dry whites in a hot climate and are selling such wines here in vast amounts. Italy's best known wine is Soave, from near Verona, and a satisfying and pleasant wine it is, widely sold at about $$ 2.50$. There is no difficulty in finding a good Soave. There are big, nationally distributed brands like Bolla and Bertani and scores of smaller firms turning out nice examples. Other whites to look for include Pinot Grigio and Frascati, the latter the favorite of Roman cafés.

    cation. Wines are starting to appear with the word "trocken," for dry, on the label and make fine dinner wines.

    Another good place to look for bargains is the Communist countries of Eastern Europe. With their perennial need for hard currency, they sell wellmade red and white wine in this country at below their real value. Yugoslavia's Adriatica line of wines has a nice Riesling and a hearty Cabernet, each $$ 1.99$, among other interesting offerings. Romania, too, ships a Cabernet Sauvignon, from the Bordeaux grape, which is somewhat heavy but satisfying at $$ 1.99$. The brand name is Premiat, and it is widely distributed. Hungary is, of course, famous for its Egri Bikavér ("Bull's Blood"), a hearty, dark-colored red ($2.79). In the same price class are Nemes Kadar and Vörös, two lighter reds. Two recommended whites are Badacsonyi Kéknyelü ($2.79), which resembles a Rhine wine, and Egri Léanyka , which is drier.

    Spain's best wine-producing area, the Rioja, long has turned out excellent Bor-deaux-style reds at moderate prices. Inflation and world demand have pulled many Riojas over $3. One good example that still is undervalued is Cune's Claret ($2.69). A bit of prowling the shops will turn up others. Riojas are fine red wines, worth searching for. Spain's neighbor, Portugal, used to be content to send us huge volumes of crackling (carbonated) wine. Now honest reds and whites from northern Portugal, location of the better vineyards, are coming in. One brand in national distribution, Mateus, will give you an idea if Portugal's nonsparkling wines are for your table.

    Since Moslems do not drink alcohol, one would not normally look for wine in an Islamic state, but Algeria is an exception. Extensive vineyards were planted there when it was a French colony, and the now independent nation continues to produce wine for export. Medea Rouge and Dahra are two of Algeria's better wines available here. Like most reds grown in hot climates, they tend to be a bit heavy flavored. But I've seen them offered as low as $$ 1.53$ a bottle, and that is a bargain for a red hearty enough to be served with stews. Much farther east along the Mediterranean coast, Israel produces an interesting range of table wines. Adomatic, a dry red at $$ 2.20$, is a good introduction to Israel's offerings.

    Chile, settled by Europeans from winegrowing countries and favored with a temperate climate, has large and well tended vineyard areas. Bordeaux's Cabernet Sauvignon does well in Chile (better than the grapes used in that country's "Burgundy") and two Cabernets, Concha y Foro and Santa Rita are sound huys al $2.40. (onchat Toro's Riesling, a rather austere white, also is intere at the same price.

    Finally, the budget-minded wine will always keep in mind that wine rarely price-fixed under state law: spirits often are. Therefore each chant can decide his own markup, prices vary all over the lot. It's a idea to follow the advertisements in local papers to learn which dealers bitually offer wine at low prices. S shops advertise wine as a loss-leade bring traffic in, and they provide op tunities to put away a case or tw your finds at moderate cost. Most merchants give a 10 percent discoun case lots. The very worst way to wine is to run out to the corner just before company comes for din You'll pay top price and have a lim choice. By comparing prices, shop carefully, and buying at sales, you cut your wine budget by a third. worth doing.

    ## HERE TIPS

    FROM THE SILO

    ## Herb-flavored oils

    Pour warm, good, light salad oil over fresh herbs. Marjoram, thyme, and rosemary create excellent flavors for grilling meats. The rosemary-flavored oil may cloud because of excess moisture-it helps to dry out the rosemary twigs and leaves before putting them into the oil. Add $4-6$ sprigs fresh herb to 1 cup oil. Peppercorns and bay leaves add extra zest to these oils. Dried herbs can also be used to great effect-especially if the herbs are homegrown and dried on the stalk. The oil will bring out the oils in the herbs and be almost as flavorful as the fresh. The best use for these flavored oils is in recipes for cooking meats and vegetables.

    ## Buttermilk marinades

    Freshly chopped herbs such as marjoram, tarragon, chives, parsley, dill, and basil in buttermilk serve wonderfully for marinating meats for roasting or barbecuing. A bath in herbal buttermilk especially benefits lamb and pork. The buttermilk itself tenderizes the meat and enhances the flavor as do the herbs

    Buttermilk flavored with rosemary and sage is especially complementary to venison. Marinate a roast or stew-size pieces overnight in this mixture, drain, dredge in flour, and brown in a meat fat such as lard or suet. The resulting pan juices will produce a tangy, lightcolored, smooth gravy.

    Note: Meats marinated in buttermilk burn easily in the browning procedure because of the milk solids. Coat them well with flour and sauté in a sufficient amount of fat. Add salt and pepper at the end of the cooking time, not in the marinade itself, because the salt, particularly, will draw juices out of the meat.

    ## Herbs for drinking

    Chopped mint in buttermilk and yogurt is a welcome drink in many parts of the world, and there are many variations on that mix. Some include minced garlic and chopped cucumber as well, which make the drink more accurately a liquid soup.

    Bloody Marys can be more perky with a sprig of basil or lovage added, or if they are made with a clam/tomato juice base, parsley and tarragon sprigs go well with them

    Add a freshly picked sprig of rosemary to a glass filled with ice cubes, white wine, and a little soda. A more strongly flavored wine for rosemary lovers can be made by pouring white wine over chopped rosemary leaves. Let stand a week to 10 days, strain, and serve very chilled or use as a base for spritzers

    ## Bouillabaisse of chicken

    ## INGRED:ENTS

    1 cup onions, coarsely chopped
    1/2 cup leeks, sliced or chopped'
    3 tablespoons olive oil
    2 tablespoons tomato paste
    3-4 cloves garlic, peeled
    3-4 cups tomatoes, peeled and coarsely chopped
    Bouquet garni (3-4 sprigs parsley, 2 sprigs thyme, 1 sprig oregano, 2 large basil leaves)
    1 tablespoon fennel seed
    1 -inch piece dried orange zest
    Large pinch saffron
    Small pinch cayenne (optional)
    3 cups chicken stock

    ## Country pie with herbs

    ## INGREDIENTS

    $11 / 2$ pounds puff pastry or plain pastry given 2 turns, chilled
    Oil
    1 egg yolk beaten with water for glaze
    5 eggs
    1 cup heavy cream
    1/2 cup Gruyère cheese, grated
    1 tablespoon mixed parsley and chives, minced fine
    Salt, pepper
    Nutmeg
    Watercress or lettuce leaves

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Roll out chilled pastry on a lightly floured surface. Using a $11 / 2$-quart, 8 -inch diameter, stainless steel bowl as a basic round shape, cut a freeform turtle from the pastry. Outline the head, four feet, and a tail and transfer the flat turtle to a baking sheet.
    $\square$ Cover the bowl's exterior with aluminum foil and place it upside down on the baking sheet. Oil lightly. Reroll the dough and place a sturdy layer of pastry over the foil. Trim the round edge. Let both shapes rest 15 minutes, then bake in a preheated $350^{\circ}$ oven 10 minutes. (Do not prick dough before baking.) Remove the flat turtle shape from the oven, but allow the dough on the bowl to bake another 10 min utes, then remove the bowl and foil from pastry. Brush the top with egg yolk and water glaze.
    $\square$ Beat eggs, cream, cheese, herbs, salt, pepper, and nutmeg together in a bowl and pour into the pastry bowl. Wet the rim of both pastry pieces with a little of the egg mixture and place flat turtle shape on top of the pastry bowl. Return on baking sheet to the $350^{\circ}$ oven for about 50 min utes. Halfway through baking, protect the turtle's feet and tail from excessive browning with aluminum foil. The eggs will eventually expand and, in effect, glue shell to body.
    $\square$ Remove from oven and carefully tip the turtle. If the egg is not completely set, leave to bake a few minutes longer. If the interior is firm, turn turtle right side up and place him on a bed of greenery. Cut in pie wedges to serve. Serves 12.

    Olive oil
    1 medium onion, finely chopped
    1 large clove garlic, minced
    2 medium zucchini, sliced
    12 eggs
    2 anchovy fillets, minced
    Pepper
    Small pinch cayenne
    1 tablespoon mixed parsley and chives, minced
    2/3 cup Gruyère cheese, grated
    Watercress
    Hyssop or violet flowers, optional

    ## METHOD

    Parboil the green beans and peas together in salted water in a saucepan. When just cooked and still crisply green, drain and refresh under cold water $\square$ Heat 1 tablespoon oil in a heavy skillet and stew onion and garlic over low heat until tender. Saute the zucchini briefly in a skillet, then combine the vegetables in a colander and press down on them gently to remove excess juices. Beat the eggs in a bowl until well blended. Add anchovy fillets, salt, pepper, cayenne, herbs, and half the cheese. Stir in the vegetables.
    $\square$ On top of the stove, heat $1 / 3$ cup olive oil in a 15 -inch paella pan. Pour in the frittata mixture. Gently shake the pan over heat and stir lightly with a fork to place the vegetables evenly. When the egg is set on the bottom but still runny on top, sprinkle on the remaining cheese, dribble over another 2 tablespoons oil, and place pan under preheated broiler until lightly golden. Serve lukewarm to cool. Border the pan with a frieze of watercress and sprinkle with flowers. Serves 12.

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Cut down both sides of the entire backbone of each fish just to the tail, leaving it intact. Cut the bone off at the tail end, then lift it up and out. The small intestinal section can be easily removed at the head. What is left should be the empty shell of the fish with head and tail intact. Rinse and dry fish well. Dip skin side into flour. $\square$ Place bread, garlic, parsley, salt, pepper, and juice of $1 / 2$ lemon in blender or food processor and blend to a fragrant green crumb. Divide mixture between fish and pat crumbs firmly onto the fleshy side of each fish, flattening out the fish.
    $\square$ Heat oil in a large round or rectangular pan, preferably the final service dish, on top of the stove. When quite hot, place fish skin side down in the oil. Cook until the bottoms are crisply browned. Remove pan from heat and, with a bulb baster or spoon, scoop up the oil in which the fish have been frying and dribble it over the crumbs. When the bottom is dry, place fish under preheated broiler to lightly crust the crumbs.
    $\square$ Mix together the mayonnaise, spinach purée, and fines herbes in a bowl. Squeeze the juice of $1 / 2$ lemon over the fish and pipe a thin line of the mayonnaise down each fish. Garnish with watercress and lemon wedges. Serves 12 .

    ## Summer salad of greens and herb flowers

    ## INGREDIENTS

    1 large clove garlic
    $1 / 2$ teaspoon coarse sea salt
    A few peppercorns
    1 teaspoon fines herbes (parsley, chives, chervil, tarragon) plus whole, fresh herbs to scatter on top of salad
    About $1 / 3$ cup red wine vinegar
    Olive oil
    1 head romaine
    Assorted salad greens
    4-6 tomatoes, cut into wedges
    Flower petals-hyssop flowers, violets, chive petals, marigold petals, thyme or oregano blossoms, etc.-for color

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Place garlic, salt, peppercorns, and fresh herbs in a heavy bowl or mortar. Pound with a pestle until the mixture becomes a smooth paste. Stir in vinegar, add olive oil to taste. Mix well, taste, adjust seasoning. Place dressing in salad bowl.
    $\square$ Arrange large leaves of romaine around the bowl's edge. Heap salad greens, torn into bite-sized pieces, in the center. Place the central leafy core of the romaine at the center of the greens. Add tomato wedges, fresh herbs, and a final scattering of flower petals. Serves 12.

    ## Space age comes home  continued from page 97

    environments for long periods of time. The point is, obviously, that even the most perfect place begins to pale after a short period of time. This is precisely the challenge facing the engineers who design vehicles for space travel. One observer likens the task to trying to recreate the comforts of home within the confines of an automobile.

    Quite a bit of thought has gone into the designing of space "homes." In confronting new problems, unexpected solutions often pop up that have a bonus benefit for old problems as well. This has happened with many of the materials and techniques developed for space.

    One example is the space blanket. The astronauts needed a blanket that was lightweight, compact, and super-efficient at conserving body heat. A blanket was developed that weighs a mere few ounces, can be folded to fit inside a pocket, and has an aluminum coating that reflects heat. New York furniture and fabrics designers John and Sarina Mascheroni think space blankets are terrific for saving energy in the home. They recommend laying them on the floor under area rugs, stapling them onto walls that are to be covered in fabric, or using them as liners for draperies or even window shades. Says Sarina Mascheroni, "Space blankets need never be seen to be effective. If you don't like the way they look as a liner, try sandwiching them between two pieces of drapery material, or laminate window shades to either side." She finds space blankets, which most often are aluminum on one side and other colors on the other, at camping supply stores.

    Fire-retardant fabrics made of OwensCorning Fiberglas's Beta yarn coated with DuPont's Teflon were developed for NASA after a tragic ground-testing fire claimed the lives of three astronauts.

    Advances in flammability technology may eventually result in window coverings that not only conserve heat but actually produce it. Emilio Ambasz, visionary architect/designer and former Curator of Design at the Museum of Modern Art, is reportedly experimenting with a system of vertical flat blinds containing filaments that conduct heat, generating warmth at precisely the location where it is most vital-the window. Lillian Levy, head of special projects for the Public Affairs office of NASA, put forth a similar idea over a decade ago in an essay called "The Domestic Side of Space" (in Space: Its Impact on Man and Society, Arno Press). She wrote that electrically sensitive fabrics, made of a 99 percent carbon fiber, used as an ablative on the heat shields of some rockets, could be easily adapted to "Space-Age draperies" powered by tiny, half-voit transistor batteries.

    Similar technology has been applied to warmth-giving socks, mittens, and long underwear, which contain heating elements connected through insulated strips of wire to a small battery worn on the body, on the principle of an electric blanket. A spokeswoman from Timely Products, Inc., in Fairfield, Conn., one of the manufacturers of such gear, says the problem with adapting the idea to draperies is finding a battery that would need recharging after 4-5 hours. intriguing as heat-giving fabrics is hnology that may result someday in ing walls! Lighting engineers have oped a substance that is, in effect, at bulb in thin, sheet form. Called troluminescents," this opaque ma-- or combination of materials-is foximately $1 / 16$ of an inch thick. When yed into a normal socket, the sube emits a soft, colored light. What's , through the use of silkscreen pro, one can print luminous shapes on ored background. While some colt present are more receptive to the tology than others-namely blues greens-lighting designer James volls feels this may improve as the tology is refined. At present, elecminescents are used primarily as grounds for digital clocks and signs, Mr. Nuckolls sees no reason why might not eventually be applied to , baseboards, or as backgrounds for or art. Perhaps electroluminesare what Ms. Levy envisioned she predicted in her book that ances in electronics may eventually er paint and wallpaper obsolete."onflammable paints have also been by spacecraft designers to safed against fire. They use what is d "intumescent" paint, which means when it's subjected to heat above degrees Fahrenheit a chemical reaccauses a protective foam, up to :hes thick, to form. This foam prethe transfer of heat to a comble surface for a period of 8 to 10 ites. According to John O'Rourke, codes expert and former general ager for a pioneer producer of firedant paints, there are many useful cations for the paint, especially in - buildings that contain a great deal ood. He recommends fire protection ood paneling and wainscoting with ar intumescent varnish made by the rican Vamag Company, Ridgefield, ong with anxiety over energy and $y$, there is growing concern for ris, vater costs. On a spacecraft, where $r$ is in limited supply, a recycling $m$ is of vital importance. NASA ied its knowledge of water recyto a partial system at a futuristic CH" house in Langley, Va., built to and monitor space-age innovations me building. The TECH house sysreclaims water from the bathtub, , and washing machine, then recyit for use in toilet flushing-an act accounts for almost 40 percent of verage family's water expenditure. this point, problems in purifying r from the kitchen sink, dishwasher, garbage disposal, which contains orc food particles difficult to filter, prea total recycling system from being omical. But the TECH house sysis a step in the right direction.

    Another interesting feature of TECH house is a security device for warning of intruders, patterned after a seismic (shock) measurement tool implanted on the surface of the moon. A seismic detector buried in the lawn can "sense" approaching footsteps and alert the occupants of the house by emitting radio signals. An antenna under the eaves of the house reflects the signals indoors, where they can be picked up by a standard FM radio, tuned to certain frequencies. What's more, the pace of the foot-steps-whether fast or slow, running or walking-can be determined by the type of signal transmitted.

    Another security gadget in TECH house is an ultrasonic (extremely high frequency sound waves, inaudible to human ears) transmitter that can send a signal to turn on the porch light from a distance of 30 feet! The device is about the size of a fountain pen.

    ## THE MAGIC POWERS OF SOUND AND LIGHT

    Imagine how alien this new technology would seem to our great-grandparents. The very concept of transferring information between two points not physically connected would have shocked a culture just grappling with the mechanization of their world. Italian-born designer/artist Remo Saraceni has been fascinated by this new realm of sound and light. "The ability to send powerful beams of energy from Point A to Point B , without going through wire, or water, or anything else, has thrust us into a new electro-magnetic frontier," says Mr. Saraceni, who worked with NASA in developing the lunar landing gear. "Ultrasonics can accomplish astonishing feats. When projected in water, they cause it to vibrate intensely, producing a remarkable cleansing action." NASA engineers use ultrasonics to clean delicate rocket components, and now other equipment is being cleansed in the same way. Dentists use these powerful sound waves to purify instruments, and even to clean tartar from their patients' teeth! The Japanese are reportedly experimenting with an ultrasonic bath for the home, and eventually, engineers may perfect a kitchen sink that uses ultrasonics to automatically scrub and scour dirty dishes!

    Mr. Saraceni's spacious loft is filled with interactive sculptures and "hightech" objects for the home that glow with light or burst into sound when a person walks by. During the Bicentennial, he created an exhibit in Philadelphia in which thousands of bubbles were released as a visitor repeated the phrase "The American Way." He and a handful of other enlightened designers have found a new use for ultrasonic technology in the "switchless" control of lighting. Called "motion detection" devices, or, in Mr. Saraceni's parlance, "people-activated lighting," the devices emit a series of inaud ble signals that are sensitive to movement. Basically, an ultrasonic transmitter fills a volume with a series of tones that bounce around space in a continuous pattern. When someone enters the space, that pattern is interrupted and a new signal triggers the ultrasonic receiver to switch on a light. According to lighting designer James Nuckolls, a great proponent of switchless controls, the technology has been applied for some time to activate burglar alarms. Only recently have designers begun to apply the technology to lighting.

    In his own apartment, Mr. Nuckolls employs such a device in his entrance hallway. Not only is the device a conserver of energy in that the light only comes on when needed, then goes off when the motion has passed, but it is effective at warding off unwelcome intruders. Last year, a number of apartments in Mr. Nuckolls' building were broken into, but apparently, the burglar was scared away from his home by the sudden appearance of hallway lights!

    There are other sources of motion-detection controls than high-frequency sound waves. Mr. Saraceni has installed a simple gravity detection device, hidden under carpet, in the Scalamandré fabrics showroom at the to-the-trade center, The Marketplace, in Philadelphia. Besides enchanting the many curious customers-who marvel as light precedes their tour through the room-the system has cut fuel bills almost by half.

    Still another system utilizes infrared light waves, which seek heat as a means of activating controls. According to Mr. Nuckolls, ultrasonic systems are more effective at filling large volumes, while infrared sources can be better trained to cover a small, specific space.

    Even more powerful than ultrasonic signals are the concentrated, high-intensity light waves resulting from Laser (Light Amplification by the Stimulated Emission of Radiation) technology. Lasers are being used to clean antiques, sculptures, and jewels, to cut and weld with tremendous and rapid force.

    The pursuit of a sensitive device for X-ray imaging in space led a NASA scientist to develop a portable compact X-ray machine that will be invaluable here on earth. Dr. Lo I Yin, who works in a NASA Laboratory for Astronomy and Solar Physics, in Greenbelt, Md., explains that the heart of the device is a "night vision image-amplifier" borrowed from the U.S. Army. The image-intensifying tube amplifies very faint light into bright light. Scientists had already devised a way to get X-rays from a small phosphor source, but the visible image was very faint. The army image-intensifier allowed Dr. Yin to couple the two technologies into an X-ray machine that is lightweight, as compact as a pencil sharpener, and completely portable.

    Space age comes home

    The Lixiscope, as the tool was named, will complement, not replace, existing X-ray technology, according to Dr. Yin. In medicine it will be useful in surveying extremities. Dentists will find it convenient for surveying the mouth. The tool does have the advantage of a reduced X-ray source, which will spare patients excess exposure to radiation. The Lixiscope has a promising future in industry as well, predicts Dr. Yin. He feels the device will be used for examination of complex machinery parts, such as electronic components.

    Alvin Toffler wrote in Future Shock, "We all learn from our environment, scanning it constantly-though perhaps unconsciously-for models to emulate. These models are not only other people. They are, increasingly, machines." Knowingly or not, we have been irrevocably influenced by the "machine"-in its broadest sense-that lifted us into the terrifying, but beautiful realm of space. In two short decades, the technology that got us there has begun to filter down into the most basic aspects of our lives. Take computerized banking transactions, made possible by microelectronics. Within days of its introduction in New York, customers were lined up in front of little machines that blink "Hello, may I help you?"-as if they had been doing it all of their lives. And if we are conditioned to the rapidfire advances of technology, our children will be even more so. How many children over four years old have escaped being exposed-and enraptured -by the spin-off toys from Star Wars, and now Battlestar Galactica? Will this generation-accustomed to rockets and robots, rather than teddy bears and trains-find anything at all unusual about battery-powered curtains or electric walls?

    It is not an exaggeration to say that we are on the forefront of a new scientific age-one with perhaps more manifold impact on our lives than the great industrialization of the world. We cheered en masse as Star Wars' young hero dueled with a Laser gun. Our media-hungry children watch wideeyed, but with surprisingly little skepticism, as Wonder Woman performs her superhuman feats. Yet while science fiction continues to draw a wider and less dubious audience, science fact is rapidly closing the gap that has long kept the two light-years apart. Some scientists feel that a Six Million Dollar Man is a plausible eventuality. Holograms-three-dimensional images on film-are the realization of sci-fi's fantasy of dematerialization. Can there be much doubt that the long-heralded space age is not a probability for tomorrow but a reality of today?

    ## Proper indoor humidity reduces the amount of heat required for comfort

    Theres no doubt that you'll use less fuel with your thermostat set at $68^{\circ}$ rather than $72^{\circ}$. But, you don't have to be uncomfortable. Humidity makes the difference. Raising the humidity in your home makes you feel comfortable at lower temperatures. Reduces infiltration of cold air through spaces caused by shrinkage of wood framing around doors and windows, too
    And the ideal way to give your family the benefits of central humidification is with an Aprilaire humidifier. Accurate humidistat control. High capacity Minimum maintenance. Dial down to save heating fuel And be more comfortable with the humidifier that gives you more-Aprilaire.

    Stop winter dryness in your home

    ## GREENING A  ROOFTOP

    In creating their rooftop garden, Jerry Schwam and Tom Pouch (see page 88) did not hesitate to fly in the face of traditional methods of growing things. For instance, it is a long-established gardening "principle" that plants need room to develop properly. Tom and Jerry, observing the strong winds that often sweep across city rooftops, decided that the best way to avoid blown-over plants was to make them mutually supportive. So their plants are close-set-no more than 6 inches apart. To compensate for the loss of root room, frequent applications of fertilizer keep the plants growing lustily. A soluble fertilizer (MiracleGro) is used-at the strength recommended by the manufacturer-every 2 or 3 weeks, changing off to fish emulsion for every third or fourth feeding. Even more important is a regular schedule of watering. Hot sunshine and drying winds make a constant moisture supply imperative, so watering follows the weather -twice a day in hot, rainless periods, and at least once on every day when it's not actually pouring. The soil is important, too, so the top 3 to 5 inches is replaced every year to eliminate the soot and other city pollutants that inevitably accumulate. The soil change is made just after the spring bulbs finish floweringworking above the bulbs themselves, and leaving their leaves to mature naturally -with garden soil, compost, peat moss, cow manure, and 5-10-5 fertilizer. This is watered down and allowed to settle before the annual plants are set in their places. Tom and Jerry grow many of their annuals from seed, protected under panes of glass. Once seedlings are transplanted, they are covered with domes of chicken wire to discourage hungry pigeons. The rapidly-growing annuals quickly hide the fading bulb foliage which is left until completely mature. Natural predators-praying mantises and ladybugs-take care of most of the garden's insect enemies, heavy infestations of aphids are simply drowned by the plain water spray from a hose, and caterpillars are picked off by hand. Only rarely is it necessary to use a chemical spray-malathion-for such intractable pests as scale on the shrubby plants. When the spray is used, it is strictly confined to the infested plant, never sprayed around indiscriminately. In late fall, the planting boxes are bedded down for the winter with a light salt hay mulch, and rose bushes and evergreens are given a coating of Wilt-Pruf. Tom and Jerry share their expertise by creating city gardens for other people. Their address is: Tom & Jerry Enterprises, 10 Waverly Place, New York, N. Y. 10003. (212) 982-0201.

    Now comes catalogue time, and weather that drives us indoors leads to more and more complete-and more practical-plans for the growing season to come. Vegetable growing will unquestionably take first place in our plans for the summer of 1979, and our catalogues will provide the information we all need to plant, grow, harvest and feast wisely and well. The All-America Selections, given a prominent place in most catalogues, are an invaluable guide for ordering seeds and plants. Vegetables-and flowers as well-given the AllAmerica seal of approval have been rigorously tested in various parts of the country and may be counted upon to produce well anywhere. Of course many -if not all-of us will be led on by the pictures and intriguing descriptions of things we have never tried, and will find ourselves ordering seeds we won't have space to plant, or time to look after if we do plant them. But this comes under the heading of gardening fun-instructive fun it is, too, and inexpensive, considering that seed prices have pretty much resisted the inflationary forces that have sent so many things beyond the reach of gardeners with limited means. Remember, too, that seed catalogues, whether or not you have to pay for them, are prime sources of information about where, when, why and how to grow practically everything.

    ## Apartment reborn  continued from page 84

    glance to discourage much of anything in the way of conventional living. To make things worse, the pantry was set in a corner of the kitchen, and it contained the sink and counter space; the stove and the refrigerator were outside, in the $L$-shaped space of the kitchen itself that wrapped around the pantry. The kitchen and pantry were a sort of putrid blue; the living room and bedroom were both done in a somber green tone with damask curtains so heavy that they made my grandmother's house look like a minimalist design by Joe D'Urso.

    My friends all thought I was crazy, and I have to admit that several years of writing about design were still not enough to make me absolutely certain that they were not right. But Paul Segal, the architect who was, happily, also a friend and a Dakota neighbor, thought the gamble was worth it. He was even willing to overlook the fact that architectural critics are notoriously difficult clients (we think we know everything), and he agreed to join with me on the job.

    What appealed to me most about the apartment was the quality of the space itself-the ceilings were 14 feet high throughout, which made the spaces feel like volumes more than rooms. The more I thought about it the more it seemed as though the odd layout could be turned to advantage - the apartment could be made to take on some of the characteristics of the sort of living space I had considered at one point, a loft.

    The plan was kept relatively simple, in part because the budget was tight and in part because I did not want anything so elaborate it would obscure the generous, simple quality of the rooms. Dakota rooms are large and rich in moldings, but the details are never fussy or prissy-they stand back and let the spaces speak. There is a benign quality to the rooms in the building that allows them to take all kinds of objects and all kinds of styles within.

    The main principle of the design Paul and I evolved was that of building on what we had-of keeping the essence of the existing spatial arrangement, not fighting it. Budgetary considerations prevented us from gutting the apartment and starting from scratch even if we had wanted to, but I enjoyed the experiment of trying to make something out of what was there. Thus the kitchen, right on axis with the front entrance, remained there, and rather than try to hide it like most New York apartment kitchens, we gave in to its placement in the house and made it the centerpiece of the apartment, enlarging it by removing the pantry and a closet and starting anew with the larger space. Though I am not a serious cook, I continue to fantasize about getting serious about it someday, and I grew up in a house with a large kitchen, so the idea of a kitchen as a main room appealed to me.

    Paul came up with the idea of eliminating a front closet to enlarge the entrance hall, I did the kitchen layout that created a diagonal axis and placed the stove in a center island, he designed the island itself-we went back and forth like that, and the relationship, thanks to his kind indulgence of my continuous flow of primitive sketches, was a good collaboration. Paul Segal's own style leans toward the clean, white lines of the neo-Corbusians, which was the mode of his education at Princeton; I studied at Yale where purism was less sought after, and I later told Paul that his clean, sleek forms and my 45 -degree axis made the kitchen the place where Princeton and Yale met to fight it out.

    The center of the apartment-the entrance hall and the kitchen-are sharply defined white spaces, a deliberate contrast to the rich mahogany paneling of the outside corridor. But once the contrast was established at the point of entry, I wanted the apartment to relax a little, and as a result the two large end rooms, the living room and the bedroom, are more eclectic. The living room is a subtle shade of off-white with white trim; the walls have 19th-century prints and early 20th-century French posters, and the furniture is an intentional mix of new and old-modern, rounded Italian chairs and two Aalto tables, but then an old Victorian desk and a brass chandelier. To prevent the room from getting too formal, I turned the axis, setting all $t$ l
    furniture on a diagonal and putting $t$ furniture on a diagonal and putting th room in motion.

    The living room turned out to be rel tively formal nonetheless, which is fin beeatse both the kitchen and the be room are loose and relaxed, and I lil the idea of contrast within the san apartment-it is rare that a small apar ment can stretch to accommodate diffe ent moods and styles. One of the things like best about the apartment is the fa that there are places for two or thro people to sit in every room-in th kitchen, the bedroom, and the livin room-and I can sit down with a gue anywhere depending on our moods.

    The bedroom has ended up as a con bination bedroom, library, workroon and sitting room-it is the largest roo in the apartment, and it really function for me as a kind of studio apartment. fell rather neatly into functional areasthere are a couple of chairs around tt fireplace for a seating area, a large cove at one end has been made into work area, and the bed was positione so as to face both the fireplace and view out the window. We designed larg heavy bookshelves, scaled to the size ( the room, and set off the work alco with a thin beam containing indire lighting to provide just a hint of wa without the intrusion of any real part tion. The desk itself is a big surface, it tended to contain the mess I always cri ate when I work. It wasn't big enough of course-one's mess always expand to fill the space available-but I've neve been too comfortable working at a clea desk, so I don't really mind.

    There is a lot of eclecticism to thi room, too-modern objects like Breue and Eames chairs on an antique kilin rug, a print by Ed Ruscha over an ol wooden desk, which was painted whit and turned into a bureau. The art coll lection will probably never pass seriou muster, because I keep framing thing I like, like postcards and gallery at nouncements, and dropping them nex to "real" graphics. But that, in a sense is the way the whole apartment was pu together-it is a mix of things I liki some of which are worth something $b$ collectors' standards and others of whic have value that is purely personal. W have a tendency, I think, to confus things we admire with things we like and sometimes, especially if we ar knowledgeable about design, to fill oil houses with objects we admire mot than with objects we like. If I've usei any criterion in my own house, it was t demand that everything in it fit botl categories-I want to be able to say no only that I admire the objects I own, bu also that I like them.
    editor's note: Paul Goldberger is ar chitecture critic of The New York Times and is currently preparing an architec tural guide to Manhattan.

    How to grow plants successfully in water

    ## By Richard Langer

    House plants are usually grown for either their striking foliage or for their beautiful flowers. Roots aren't exactly something you rave about. They are, after all, hidden beneath the potted terra firma. Yet, roots can be intriguing. And by focusing on the idea of roots for a minute, you may come up with some creative alternatives to traditional terracotta pots. The art of water culture in glass containers is an old one. And it can produce striking effects when it comes to house plants.

    What you use as a container is as unlimited as your imagination, so long as it holds water and is not lead, copper, or brass, which can be harmful to plant growth. Antique bottles are often shown to their best effect filled with water and plants. Chemical glassware, such as beakers, flasks, and graduated cylinders, is another possibility. The only other real consideration, besides not using certain metals, is cleaning. White vinegar or Clorox works well with glass-just be sure to rinse well before refilling. A good bottle brush can reach the difficult areas in almost any container. The key word is almost. Try it before you plant. Algae may grow in a clear container, and if you can't clean it out, its appearance will spoil your water garden.

    In addition to a container, you'll need some gravel, stones, and charcoal (available at pet stores). A thin layer of charcoal will keep the water fresh. The layer of gravel and stones, washed first, goes on top of the charcoal to keep it from floating up. The gravel also acts as an anchor for your plants, giving some of the roots a foothold. In a narrowmouthed bottle that naturally holds the plant upright, you can skip both the charcoal and the gravel if you choose. The only difference it will make is that you'll have to change the water every month instead of every second month. Water does become stale, losing oxygen the plant needs.

    True hydroponic techniques require that a complete mixture of chemicals be kept in suspension to nourish the plants growth. However, the house plants suggested here are such rampant growers that they will do fine for a long time with simply water and good light, just as grandma's cuttings rooting in a glass of water on the window sill did in years past. For best growth, however, a little food does make a lot of difference. This doesn't mean you have to have a chemistry set. The water-soluble fertilizers sold for potted plants will work fine. Some plant stores also now sell special mixes for growing plants in water, and you may want to try these.

    Three varieties of cyperus in glass souffé dishes in Jacqueline Hériteau's office

    ## WHAT TO GROW

    Almost all foliage plants can be grown in wáter with ease. Some flowering plants may thrive as well, but unless you're an inveterate experimenter, they are probably more trouble than they're worth.

    The whole group of Syngonium, called African evergreens or arrowheads, make splendid indoor water plants. They look as if they belong in water. Keep them warm and in good light. No direct sun is needed.

    The Chinese evergreen, Aglaonema, is probably the archetypical indoor water plant, a no-fail grower requiring only moderately good light. Dieffenbachia, with relatively the same appearance, thrives right alongside Aglaonema under the same conditions. Which brings up another point. There's no need to limit your water culture to one plant

    ## NO GUESSWORK!

    Jobe's is a complete fertilizer made with a unique form of 100\% organic nitrogen called Nitroform. Something no other houseplant food has. So Jobe's never underfeeds or overfeeds to "burn" your plants. Plus the concentrated formula (10-4-5) assures plant response.
    NO MIXING! Just push JOBE'S HOUSEPLANT SPIKES into the soil around your plant. They disintegrate as the nutrients spread through the potting soil. Use two Spikes for each 4 -inch pot. That's all there is to it. Jobe's lasts for up to 60 days.

    sure better and heavier root development. If the cutting you've taken has leaves along most of its length, remove the lower ones before putting it in water. Submerged leaves will rot.

    Plants growing normally in soil can also be transplanted to a water garden. Personally, I don't like to do it. because it can be a bit messy and because I feel cuttings that root the way they are going to growsoil roots or water roots-tend to do better. However, "unpotting" a growing plant does produce an instant water garden, complete with roots. Knock the plant out of its pot. Set the ball of earth in a shallow pan of tepid water. Unless the plant was really potbound, most of the soil will readily wash off. Give the roots a final thorough rinse under a not-too-gentle flow of tepid water. Once the roots are clean, prune them reasonably thoroughly, removing all the broken and damaged ones.

    If you find the plant thoroughly rootbound when you knock it out, you'll have to shear off the fine roots. This will do the plant no real harm as long as the main roots are kept intact and as long as you cut off some of the top leaves to keep the plant's system in balance.

    Small plants can be lowered into their containers to seek their own level. with the roots more or less floating at will and the stem and leaves supporting themselves on the container's edge. Large, tall, topheavy plants such as tree ferns and dieffenbachias will need to be well anchored in gravel. Unstable plants make a mess if you happen to brush against them, toppling the container. But more importantly, plants are used to a stable life. Shifting about in their pot, they become cranky

    Other easy warmth-loving water growers include Acorus, or sweet flag, philodendron, Epipremnum or pothos, Plectranthus or Swedish ivy, and Cyperus or umbrella plant.

    For cooler spots such as the windows, try pachysandra (the same one that is used for ground cover outdoors) and Iresine, or blood leaf. The latter, referred to as Irene by our not-yet-botanically-conversant children, is particularly nice because it adds a vivid shade of magenta to the water garden.

They can have provision to preset up to six stations, so you merely have to push buttons to pick up your favorite FM channels. Some also have a "channel search" or "scan" feature-when a button is pushed, the set automatically tunes across the dial, stopping at each station in order. (This is particularly useful for carhi-fi systems.) Synthesis tuners automatically tune to the exact center of each station's frequency. The quartz oscillator can also be used as the reference signal for an extremely accurate clock. so some models give the exact time of day in digital numbers.

    One European stereo receiver (tuner-amplifier combination) uses a single knob to control all functions. This includes tuning, volume, balance, tone, and so forth. Separate switches and pushbuttons determine the various functions of the master knob. Such complexity costs money but foreshadows the design of popularly priced equipment in the future.

    # How to hang a heavy plant

    ## Tips on tool sources, an easy-to-build ironing

    organizer, plus light bulbs that save energy
    ## By Deanne Raffel

    Q What is the best way to hang a heavy plant?
    A A heavy plant definitely should not be suspended from just any spot in the ceiling, because it literally can land on someone's head. A joist (ceiling beam) must first be located before a hook can be situated.
    If the ceiling material is plasterboard, tap the ceiling in the general area where you want to hang the planter. The sound will be hollow until the joist is foundthen the pitch will be higher. Drill a small hole in the ceiling. Be sure that the bit bites solidly into $1 \frac{1}{4}$ to $1^{1 / 2}$ inches of wood. If it does not, then drill another hole an inch or so away from this first one. This routine must be followed until the beam is found. Then twist a heavy screw hook (purchase at hardware store) securely into the hole.

    If the ceiling is composed of lath and plaster, drill a small hole at the desired hook spot. Bend a 2 -foot length of thin wire in the middle at about 90 degrees and slip one end into the hole. Rotate it until it touches the joist. Listen carefully to hear the approximate area that the wire has struck. Drill a hole in this general vicinity. Again, if the drill goes into $11 / 4$ to $11 / 2$ inches of solid wood, the hook can be secured at this location. If the drill hits wood (wood lath) and then continues through it, try again until you hit solid wood. Sometimes several excavating holes will be necessary. These voids can easily be patched with prepared vinyl spackle. Once the joist has been located and the hook secured, slip a rope over it and test it before hanging the plant.

    Q Can you suggest a way to organize ironing equipment?
    A A shallow closet can be attached to a wall or hung on a door to hold ironing board, iron, sprinkling bottle, spray starch, hangers, etc. Above is a design you might copy. Basically it is made of a 1 -by-6-inch lumber frame, with three (or tour if you hang it on a door) attached 1-by-3-inch hanging bars in back. You can have the wood precut at your local lumberyard. You will need a $1 / 2$ inch plywood door to fit. Be sure to check the wood for exact measurement before beginning assembly. If the sizes are not correct, return them to the yard and have them recut. Sand each piece, then nail wherever two boards cross. Use at least 2 nails at each joint, driving them into the wood in opposing directions and then countersinking with a nailset tool. Support side shelves on metal standards and clips (from the hardware store), which are quickly secured with small drive nails. Once the door is hung, add a magna-lock and a knob.

    $\mathrm{K} 20^{\circ \prime} \longrightarrow$
    To hang the closet on a wall, locate and mark 2 studs. Drill holes in the hanging bars 16 inches apart, and then pilot holes in the studs to coincide. Use flathead wood screws to secure closet to wall. To hang on a door, drill tiny holes where the 4 hanging bars will be attached. For solid core doors, attach with flathead wood screws. If the door is hollow, then drill $1 / 4$-inch holes and insert Molly anchors. Secure the closet to door with flathead machine screws.

    What is the most energy efficient type of lighting?
    A Incandescent bulbs produce point source lighting, strong shadows, and generate a lot of heat. By using fluorescent lights, you gain savings two ways. First, a fluorescent tube will give you almost four times the amount of light for the same amount of incandescent wattage Secondly, because it generates less heat,

    ## HOUSE FXER

    the fluorescent is less wasteful of energy. Fixtures are more costly to install, and the bulbs are more expensive, but the initial cost is soon offset by the savings in utility bills. Fluorescents have been improved not only in range of colors, but in comfort on the eye. The most recent are stabilized and do not flicker obviously. While most people think of using them only in bathrooms and kitchens, they can be creatively used in any room in the house, for instance, lighting art, or placed under built-in furniture to give light from beneath.

    ## Q  Where can I find the kind of specialty hardware tools I need for doing remodeling projects?

    A When your local hardware store does not carry the tool you need, inquire about special ordering it. If it is an item that is readily available at a supplier, the store usually will accommodate you. Also, try a large home-repair center for an out-of-the-way item such as a small tack hammer, miniature pliers, or shaped paint scrapers-a phone call will tell you if it is an in-stock tool. An outlet for the smaller mini-type tool is the hobby shop as well as various craftsupply houses. If the tool you want is not obtainable at any of the above sources, then request a catalogue from the follow-

    Ideas are what House & Garden is all about: imaginative, practical ideas from the most inventive people in the world. Some are so obviously fresh and exciting they wave banners at you; others, just as valuable in their more subtle ways, need to be plumbed from the depths of photographs. Here's the way to find them.

    ## How to be ## an idea sleuth

    Does the room solve a problem similar to yours? Small or odd-shaped spaces might be enlarged and reproportioned with mirror, color, furniture placement. Low ceilings lifted with clever window treatments or lighting. An appalling lack of storage space relieved with curtained walls or rafter bookshelves.

    Can the principle be applied to other problems? Ceiling tracks built to hold lights might also suspend plants, or, against a wall, pictures that slide and stack for a changing display. Cupboards under banquettes could be adapted for stereo storage. And a one-can-deep closet might be just the thing for that useless space behind the bathroom door.

    Is the effect you see one you'd like to create? Plants can be grouped to give the height and lushness of a tree, to balance a piece of furniture, or filter windowlight. Collections might be displayed importantly all together, or scattered about on tables for a more homey, please-touch look. Colors can keep to a family or join fabulous forces in unexpected combinations, and patterns can work together to create a wonderfully warm and inviting ambiance, Look for details, too. The way a slipcover is welted, a curtain edged and tied back, a light hidden below and behind a piece of furniture, can give a room just the polish it needs to be sensational.

    ## How to make ## an idea your own

    Imagine the same thing in another material: A carpeted platform could be handsome in quarry tile instead; a pleasing mix of fabrics might be recreated in sheets; and a collection of baskets could be just as handsome grouped on the wall as blue and white porcelain platters.

    Try scaling the idea to your own needs. A whole wall of stenciling might be too much for you, but how about a stenciled dado or a band around the ceiling? Or take the opposite tack, and glorify the design on a tiny lacquer box by putting it all over a painted armoire.

    Can you do it yourself? Nothing is more personal -or more authentic-than something you create with your own hands. And it's often the easiest thing in the world to whip up an armload of mauvey pillows that give life to an all-white room. Or to screen off a private dining area at the end of a room with hinged Masonite panels painted, papered, or fabric covered.

    Take a good look at the pages that follow, and, for that matter, all the pages coming up in the months ahead. You can take your pick of pretty, livable, wonderfully adaptable ideas, starting right here.

    Turn back to the preceding photograph and see how many decorating ideas you can find. Then, on these pages, see how many we found. When you compare scores, note that we've added a bonus here: pictures of the room from every angle.

    Reading a photograph is a treasure hunt the closer you look, the more ideas you find. To launch you on the game, we ve analyzed the photographs of one room for attractive, adaptable ideas, just the way we analyze every photograph when we are choosing the stories for an issue. But if you're an accomplished idea-spotter, you may have noticed things in this room that we haven't pointed out, especially if they solve a problem for you or set your imagination sparking. As you study the rest of this issue-and every issue - you'll find lots more. If we haven't mentioned them, it's because we're using our words for the ideas you can't get just from a picture: the thinking behind the rooms and houses and gardens and food that we show and that only the people who created them can tell us. A case in point-What initiated the color scheme in this living room-the rug, the fabric, or the collection of blue and white china? Youll find out on the opposite page.

    ## Fumiture arranged to satisfy the eye

    Notice how this room is balanced not only by color and pattern but by the furniture. The mantel is balanced by the piano at one end of the room. the oak armoire at the other: and by the two tables that flank it. The sofa faces two chairs across a rug: each has a table behind it: lacquer for the sofa, oak for the chairs.

    ## IDEA.

    Let a pattern inspire a room

    Interior designer Celia Cleary

    The whole design of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cleary's living room was structured around the blue and peach fabric Mrs. Cleary chose for the sofa. "I like to start with a fabric and use it as a jumping off point." says Celia Cleary, who is a partner in California design firm P'Zazz. "I had the mantel, the piano, and the armoire, and since they were all big dark pieces, I used the fabric's soft peach as background." The walls and ceiling are washed with shades of peach and the armchairs are covered in a peach-and-white flamestitch pattern that is "more interesting than a solid." To define the seating area, Mrs. Cleary designed an area rug in another variation of the to mix patterns freely if you extract one common color and use it as background throughout the room" sofa's print. Once the colors were chosen, she concentrated on arranging the furniture. "All the furniture is carefully balanced to let the bold color and pattern speak without interruption." But the symmetry of the arrangement is not obvious because, except for the chairs and two lamps on the tables flanking the mantel. there are no pairs in the room. "I buy things I love and then work the arrangement around what I've collected:IDEA!

    ne nice idea is to use color consistently-but imaginatively-throughout a whole house. That way you feel a relaxing unity when you walk from one room to another," says degner Celia Cleary. She used blue-the same deep blue of the living room's sofa fabricrelate all the spaces in her house. Even the exterior is blue, opposite page top left, zipped , by a dash of yellow in the awnings.     If this living room reminds you of Hollywood in the thirties, there's a very good reason: Its designer-owners, Marty and Sandy Davidson, filled the house with Art Deco-"We think Art Deco is a wonderful memory of Hollywood at its best"-and lots of soft pastel colors. (If you spend a sunset here, you'll see where the colors come from.) The house sits high on a hill overlooking Hollywood, and the Davidsons, who relish their view, brought as much of the outdoors in as they could. They had some windows enlarged, others addedand eliminated curtains altogether. An existing deck was extended to make room for a hot tub and an outdoor dining room. Tropical plants and trees became part of the family. "We wanted the house to be the best of Hollywood, past and present," says Mrs. Davidson. "All those bold geometrics and slick plastics combined with glamourous palms - it's right out of the movies.'

    ## A taste of the 30s in color, art, design

    Since there's more than one way to enter this room, the Davidsons made space for traffic by arranging a seating area in a corner. The L-shaped sofa provides more seating than meets the eye-and the eye is drawn up to the highhung poster and mirror.

    We don't think about our ears much. We are aware of what we see, touch, and taste, but our knowledge about sound falls way behind. What our ears are exposed to is so pervasive and constant that we seem to take it for granted. Yet we are moving into an age when sound, and its science, acoustics, may play an increasingly important part in making our lives more carefree, stress-free, and in harmony with our environment

    Dr. Amar Bose, Professor of Acoustics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, believes that our poor intuition about sound, as opposed to light, for instance, is due to our upbringing and experience. "For example," he explains, "everybody knows that if you put a large ball in front of a light bulb, you don't see the light bulb any more. But if that light bulb was a sound source, very few airplanes endlessly roaring away at full volume. But in the try, noise is also present, from farm equipment to delivery s. Everyone is exposed to the ubiquitous transistor radio. And home contains potential noise hazards-an electric blender, istance, producing up to 100 decibels, can be noisier than a ay train rumbling under a city street.
    lat does loud noise do beside making us wince and cover our The obvious effect is on the ears themselves. Medical evidence s that exposure to pressures over 90 decibels can cause a lative degenerative effect on hearing. The British medical al, Lancet, reported that hearing loss may be significant in 3 people exposed to very loud music over a period of about 'ears.
    t other physical damage is also a potential threat. Loud sounds your body to danger, pumping adrenalin, tensing muscles, hing the stomach, putting a strain on the heart. Laboratory have been known to die when exposed to 175 decibels for 60 ids. Experiments with monkeys at the University of Miami cal School confirm the possibility of serious health hazards g from noise.
    ntal pressure is also a possible consequence. Much research is ,eing presented to prove the stress arising from noise in offices; wo City University of New York researchers have shown that can seriously impede learning in children. People who work ge offices are probably aware of the strange feeling of peace elaxation that comes over them when the air-conditioning n is turned off, or when the public address system is silent. no doubt that ambient noises, such as air conditioning and : sounds, have a tiring effect on people," says Dr. Bose. "The less that comes with quiet is a positive experience." In other ;, you are more likely to unwind successfully in the peace and of a country garden than in an apartment above the subway.
    ome people, it should be noted, are more sensitive to noise than others. Women, for instance, are recognized by hi-fi dealers to prefer to listen to their music demonstrations at a much lower volume than men. How often is it the woman at home who asks for the music to be turned down? It's not just Mom being tiresome - she is simply reacting more sensitively to sound (although no physiological basis has been found for this phenomenon). It has also been sug$d$ that drinking alcohol makes people more sensitive to noise. recent experiments at the University of Utah show that if a n has been drinking, the muscle in the middle ear that contracts tect your eardrum against loud noise relaxes, thus losing some it protection. So dancing and drinking in one of those deafenscos will not do your ears much good.
    most people don't want complete quiet. It makes them nerDr. Bose mentions the interesting feeling of being in an anechamber, that is, a room that is quite literally soundless (it is elaborately designed, impossible to achieve without highly technical expertise). "Going into this room for the first time makes many people uneasy," he says. "It's an environment that nobody has experienced before. I had a similar experience when I first went into one. One feels one has lost one's bearings. But in later years, I have had to work a lot in these chambers and found that once the uncertainty disappeared I became aware of the value of this perfect quietness. And then when I wanted to think in depth about a problem, I would go into an anechoic chamber and work on it; the absolute silence is very conducive to relaxed concentration."

    We can't all have anechoic chambers in our houses or apartments, however. Even if we did, we couldn't stay in them forever. It is more to the point to try to lower the noise levels in our daily lives. The laws are not particularly helpful in this respect. Under a Federal standard that went into effect in 1971, it is illegal for an employer to expose an employee to noise of more than 90 decibels for 8 consecutive hours. There is also a revised Noise Control Act before Congress which legislates for noise levels of trucks, buses, motorcycles, lawnmowers, and so forth. The Environmental Protection Agency also sets standards to protect people from a variety of noises from trucks to home appliances, even going so far as to propose a program that would require manufacturers to put noise labels on their products, so that consumers could shop around for less noisy items.
    "Our main thrust is setting regulations for vacuum cleaners, air conditioners, and chain saws," explains a spokesman from the EPA's Office of Noise Abatement, "as well as other consumer products, and also products that reduce noise, such as hearing protectors, mufflers, and acoustical tiles. But the process will take about two years before you will see labels on products in the stores."

    Meanwhile, you might begin to think about the quality of your sound waves at home. Dr. Bose, who has built his own house outside Boston, took particular care, as you might imagine, with its acoustics.
    "Many houses are built without any thought at all for sound levels or reverberation, so that, for instance, you can hear the TV in the living room reverberating in the bedroom, or the kitchen dishes clatter in the dining room. Another problem with many homes is something called standing waves. A standing wave can be generated wherever you have parallel walls. A sound wave hits one wall, reflects back on itself from the opposite wall, and keeps on repeating itself, making an unpleasant effect you can feel. You can hear it as a ringing or 'slap echo' when you clap your hands. This kind of noise, although you may be unconscious of it, can contribute to tension and stress within the family."

    Dr. Bose would like to see new houses built with fractionally nonparallel walls. In an existing building, you can break up these standing waves by doing anything to interrupt the flat, hard surface of the walls, such as installing blinds, wall fixtures, lamps, drapes, or a piece of furniture, which deflects (Continued on page 150)

    ## How to get in on the

    AUCTION ACTIOI

    Buying at auction has become the new American pastime for those who want to get the greatest value for their dollar. Auctions range from the small country sales where everyone sits on the grass as the farm and its contents are sold, to the great international auction houses like Sotheby Parke Bernet with sales of rare objects of art that can sell for millions of dollars. In fact, nearly every city in America has its local auctioneer, some of them great characters who enjoy selling pots and pans as much as antiques and works of art. Everything can be purchased at auction. The back pages of the Sunday papers advertise auctions of large factories and their contents, as well as sales of art, antiques, and household effects.

    What are you looking for? Old silver, porcelain, a painting, something useful or something to decorate with? Or are you a collector of toys, dolls, Greek or Roman antiquities, Oriental ivories, stamps, or coins? Remember, the price does not have to be high. Country sales sell items for as little as 25 cents or a dollar, and even the most glamorous auction houses in New York or London catalogue thousands of items selling for only a few hundred dollars. Auctions offer a chance to buy something you will love, but first learn the rules of the game

    ## Choosing the auction

    Ask around, get to know the reputation of the local auctioneer. Study the antiques, leisure, or auction page of the newspaper and look through the special magazines and journals devoted to art and antiques, which list hundreds of sales. Where you go and which sale you choose depends much on what you are looking for The local auctioneer may have just what you want. However, if you are collecting something just a little more rare or sophisticated, you may have to turn to one of the great metropolitan auction houses. You will also see the best things go under the hammer at these salesrooms. and that is how you learn about auctions.
    Every auction has an exhibition period when the property to be sold is open for the inspection of the public. The exhibition may last several hours or many days, and if you are a prospective bidder, you should always attend it. It may be elegant, with a fancy cocktail party to start it off, or it may be casual, with objects still coated with dust. Each item or lot (group of items) will have been given a number and the tag will be prominently displayed. These numbers refer to the order of sale and will help you gauge when you should arrive to bid on the day of sale.

    ## Checking out before sale

    Most exhibitions will have some sort of catalogue available. which you should buy. Even the most rudimentary will provide a useful checklist for you to note down which lots are most interesting to you. The better catalogues, however provide important information about each object, giving dates. attributing authorship, describing damages, and listing estimated prices. At the largest auction houses. the catalogues are often models of scholarship. with numerous illustrations. and give the antique collector one of his most important reference tools. These catalogue descriptions are sometimes guaranteed by the auction houses. If within a given period. generally five to seven years, the buyer determines his purchase is not as described, he may return it for a full refund. However, remember that most catalogues are not guaranteed.

    At casual sales, your eyes will have to strip away layers of grime, quickly separating good from bad. Walk about the entire space. Poke into corners, scrutinize the cases, look through boxes. Remember, that the last auction buff who went through the case may well have nudged the choicest object in the darkest corner. It's remarkable how often the Georgian silver seems to be hiding behind the silverplate. Do not be put off by appearance. That's the trick of auction exhibition. When nothing has been cleaned up. it takes imagination and experience to see something important or useful beneath the surface grime, the great print in the cheap frame, the 18 th-century landscape beneath 200 years of varnish. Occasionally, a country auctioneer has no idea of how important that early Chinese vase is. so don't be put off by the brief catalogue description

    ## to build a house  powered by nature

    At this moment, twenty-two houses across America are being built with a totally new concept called envelope architecture. The invention of architect Lee Porter Butler, envelope architecture ensures an energy-producing house that can be 100 percent self-sufficient, needing no backup fuel-powered system at all. Impossible? "The techniques involved are rooted in classical physics and have been in use for centuries," declares Butler. Fundamental to the system is a thermal envelope around the house proper. It is achieved with an attached greenhouse on the south, and air passages in the roof, the north wall, and under the house, which also has an underground heat storage medium of earth, insulated by urethane. What this construction method does is set up a circulation of air that maintains a pleasant climate inside the house all through the year. Each house built in this way requires its own individual calculations, i.e. size of thermal mass, air passages, greenhouse, etc. Your own architect or builder works with Butler who provides the mathematical data.     New eclecticism seen in a garden pavilion by Philip Johnson in 1962. Arched colonnades reflect a classical style.

    Above, top: During daytime, cooler, dense air from north side drops, moves under house, forces hot air from greenhouse to rise and exit through roof ventilation or circulate across ceiling space to be cooled again on north side. Below: When there is no solar gain, the air in envelope enters a reverse cycle, picking up warmer temperature from thermal mass.

    Braataway house by Robert Venturn built in 1962 represents postmodern architecture. Split gable, arched doorway, asymmetrical windows upset "correct" abstract theory.

    this is the post-modern neo-revivalist, neo-Corbusian, neo-historicist, contextualist, radical, eclectic age. At least that's what one would be tempted to call it after reading a lot of current architectural criticism, where all of these terms swarm about like bees in search of honey. They don't always make much sense to professionals, either: Indeed, if there is anything at all to be said about the period through which architecture is passing right now, it is that architects seem as confused about it as anyone else.

    But it is not all jargon, and it is not all pointless. I am convinced that there is something going on in architecture that makes this period unusual, and it has to do with a lot more than the design of a few esoteric, hard-to-understand houses. There is a major rethinking going on by some of our best architects, a rethinking that, for all its rhetoric, springs from a base of common sense. What is happening is that architects are beginning to realize that many of the precepts of modern architecture that had guided them for so long were, in a way, like the emperor's new clothes - a lot of talk, but not much reality. Was there really a reason walls had to have so much glass? Do all houses have to have flat roofs?" Must every wall be entirely lacking in ornament? For years, architects had answered an automatic "yes" to these questions, and now they are beginning to feel a sense of freedom that lets them say "no."

    A lot of nonarchitects had been saying no all the while, of course, and that is part of the story. For architects are realizing that the popular voice is not always to be spurned - that sometimes it has something to say, and that perhaps the distance between architects and the general public comes in part from the refusal of architects to do enough listening to what the users of buildings were saying. The modern movement in architecture didn't do too much listening - though it had pretensions to social service, it was really more of a technological and esthetic revolution, a way of making buildings that sprung from the new materials and new building methods of the 20th century, as well as from this century's dissatisfaction with the approach to all the arts which it had inherited from the 19th century. Modernism thrust aside history and threw away most of what had come before-a house or a church or a school should not look like a lishment: It became stodgy, cold, uninterested in new ideas. The general public came to view modern architecture as sterile - and finally, a number of architects did, too.

    The way the profession turned its ideas around is a story in itself, but let it just be noted here that thanks to the work in the 1950s of Eero Saarinen, Philip Johnson, and Louis Kahn-architects all very different from each other - by the early 1960s, something new was beginning to emerge. Robert Venturi was a leader, and in his book Complexity and Contradiction in Architecture, he answered Mies van der Rohe's famous dictum, "Less is more" head on: "Less is a bore," Venturi shot back, and he went on to say, "I like elements which are hybrid rather than 'pure, compromising rather than "clean; distorted rather than 'straightforward'"-in short, the opposite everything modernism had stood for. And Venturi, along with Charles Moore, Romaldo Giurgola, and later Robert Stern, Stanley Tigerman, Michael Graves, and a number of other architects, began to turn these notions into real buildings. Their buildings break away from modernism in three crucial ways: They use elements from historical styles, figuratively if not literally; they use ornament: and they relate closely to their surroundings instead of existing as pure, isolated objects, as so many modern buildings do.

    Venturi s first house to achieve reknown, the 1962 house for his mother in Chestnut Hill, Pa ., has now become a classic of the so-called "post-modern" style, and it remains as good an example as there is of what that style is after. It is, at first glance, an almost exceedingly primitive house - a big gable, a chimney in the middle, and a wide central doorway. It is almost a child's version of a house, and that is intentional - one of the things Venturi is trying to tell us here is that there is nothing wrong with that image of "house" that we all carry around in our minds, and that the modernists desire to purge architecture of the little house with the peaked roof and the chimney and the flowerboxes out front and replace it with an abstract box was wrong.

    Venturi is not literally reproducing the child's image of the house, of course. It doesn't take long to notice the quirks that make this design different - the great split in the gable, the arch in wood over the doorway, the offset central entry. All of these things comment in one way or another on the architecture of the past (the gable makes reference to Blenheim Palace), and in so doing, they take another swipe at modernism, for they remind us that there is nothing wrong with reusing a piece of history that gives one pleasure. Now, the Venturi house, like so many houses of our times, is in part a polemic: It exists to convey a set of ideas as much as to shelter a family's life. But architecture has always done this; the single-family house has always been a laboratory for ideas, a place in which architectural themes are tried out on a small scale. The point with a house like this one is not that it is a vehicle for ideas, but the validity of the ideas themselves.

    In Venturi's work, the underlying ideas have a considerable common sense. They do in the work of a number of other architects shaping current directions as well-Charles Moore, for example, whose architecture seeks to integrate the objects of different sorts into a picturesque, almost sensuous, and cluttered whole that is the utter opposite of pure, abstract modern space. Moore is entranced with the idea of objects that have special meaning to the occupant of a house, and he builds a lively, bright, and highly emotion-laden collage around them.

    architects Hardy Holzman Pfeiffer tend to use more modern elements, but like many of the "high tech" interior designers today who use modern, industrial objects, Hardy Holzman Pfeiffer is also interested in the notion of collage, and pulls these things together into a brash, exuberant style that uses modern elements in a free-wheeling and picturesque manner altogether opposite from the way the modernists intended. Robert Stern's work is more well-mannered, and tends to mix different aspects of historical allusionone of his houses joins influences as diverse as Frank Lloyd Wright and Italian Baroque villas, all given a Stern-esque veneer of warm, soft color.

    All of these architects are moving away from the orthodoxy of modernism in one way or another, and there are othersRichard Meier, who reinterprets 1920 s modernism in a way that is so personal and picturesque that it might almost be called a historical revival of that style; Allan Greenberg and John Barrington Bayley. who are using classical forms so literally that it is fair to call their work a real revival,

    This is the table you've always dreamed of owning. It's a full-size dining table, 60 inches long by 30 inches wide, comfortable enough for six people. But it's incredibly maneuverable. The top comes off instantly, the base folds flat, and the two pieces can be stored-in a closet, under the bed. As if this weren't marvelous enough (imagine the pleasure of moving or changing room arrangements), this piece of furniture performs alternatively as a coffee table. By turning the x -shape base on its side, the table can be assembled quickly at a second height, 10 inches below the dining table level. This ingenious design worked out by Peter Stamberg is an easy project. To make it you need 38 pieces of 1 -by-3-inch lumber, 2 pieces of 1 -by- 2 -inch lumber, plus 2 carriage bolts, 2 wing nuts, and 4 washers. Total cost: approximately $$ 40$ if you build it with #2 pine, and do your own sawing. (Wood prices vary across the country.) Figure on 4 hours to hammer and glue it all together.     ## What's in the kit

    - Skeins of white acrylic/ wool/mohair yarn. Number of skeins will vary according to the size you specify.
    - One size 15 circular needle.
    - Complete instructions, calculated to your measurements.

    ## Method

    - Cast on stitches. The number will vary according to the window width.
    - Work in pattern as follows: Garter stitch (knit every row, do not join rounds). Openwork row (wind yarn around right needle twice. On following row, knit through only one loop).
    - To make a bed cover or throw, knit 16 rows in garter stitch, followed by an openwork row. Continue this sequence until worked to desired length. Bind off. - When making curtains, compensate for the weight of the panels (which lengthens the lower rows) by decreasing the number of rows of garter stitching as the length of the curtain increases. Knit 16 rows in garter stitch, followed by an openwork row. Repeat 3 times. Knit 14 rows of garter stitch, then openwork. Repeat 3 times. Knit 12 rows, then openwork. Repeat 3 times. Continue decreasing by two rows every three times to desired length. Bind off.
    - For a touch of color, weave ribbon in and out of the openwork.

    Blanching and parboiling as terms are used interchangeably. Usually the cooking water will be well salted to preserve the vegetables' color. However, if you want to use the cooking liquid for another purpose, go easy on the salt or leave it out.

    It is best to have a bowl or sinkful of ice water ready into which to plunge the blanched vegetables immediately after draining. The cold water sets the color and stops the cooking fast, so vegetables will not overcook.

    Twice a week, buy several pounds of green beans, broccoli, or any seasonal vegetable that looks crisp and fresh.     ## What's in a vegetable?

    Vegetables are good sources of many vitamins and minerals, especially potassium, Vitamins A and C. For complete nutrient composition information, see Nutritive Value of American Foods in Common Units by Catherine F. Adams, Agriculture Handbook No. 456, Agriculture Research Service, USDA from which these igures are excerpted. Calorie and nutrition contents are ap-proximations-they vary with the conditions under which the foods are grown, how they are stored, how old they are once the consumer purchases them, and, finally, how they are cooked. Vitamin C is water soluble; vitamin A is fat soluble. Both can be lost through oxidation and heat. To prevent vitamin loss, refrigerate vegetables in plastic and fresh juices covered. Cook in very little water and save that water for other uses. Values are for 1 cup cooked food unless otherwise indicated.

    A complete meal of vegetables from Mme. Cecilia Chiang, whose techniques can make you a master of vegetable cooking Rediscover the wealth of color, texture, and flavor in vegetables with an 11 -dish feast! Mme Cecilia Chiang, above owner of the famed Mandarin restaurants in San Francisco and Beverly Hills and author of The Mandarin Way (AtlanticLittle. Brown), uses the ingredients at right to create a modern version of The Monks' Banquet, a Chinese tradition dating from the T'ang dynasty. According to religious rule, Buddhists eat a vegetable diet twice each month and for the whole period of the sixth moon (July) to cleanse the soul and purify the body. During the hottest time of the year, the foods eaten should be "cold" in character-the Chinese include celery, lettuce, cucumbers, mustard greens, chives, and white turnips in that category. Carrots, spinach, and cabbage are all "hot". The choice of food. to achieve a harmonious balance, corresponds with an individual's metabolism and health-for a fever. tradition prescribes cucumbers or celery.     to as "sour mash," which simply means that some of the previous distillation is used to aid in fermentation of a new batch of mash. It is rather an "old tie" system where one generation looks after the next.

    Grand Scotches subscribe to the "old tie" system, too, and for them it's a very "old tie." Here each generation of Glenlivet is made from straight barley malt to which no outside "maize or foreign grain" may be introduced to contaminate the pure bloodline. Each generation is twice distilled at low temperature to retain the barley's character and then is aged for 12 years to create a personality. It graduates smoky and smooth as does its older cousin the 21 -year-old blend of Chivas Royal Salute. Then there is the lesser known but equally fine straight Laphroaig (pronounced La Froya) which is aged for 10 years.

    Like Scotch, the primary grain of Irish whiskey is barley, though unlike Scotch the Irish do not permeate the roasting barley and malt with burning peat, so their whiskey does not have a smoky flavor. Also they distill their whiskey three times rather than twice, and they have been doing it nearly 1,500 years. This, in Irish eyes, makes it three times as good as Scotch and nearly eight times that of Bourbon. Also they are eager to point out that the old Bushmills' plant in Ulster is the world's oldest continuous operating distillery which was founded by James I's deputy Thomas Philips in 1608. They are, however, less eager to acknowledge that when Sir Thomas was granted permission to issue patents to distill, by his liege lord and master, he issued the first one to himself. But this is not sur prising, for the Irish have all along exhibited a fine sense of priorities, as when they imported the first steam engine it was not used to power locomotives, thrash grain or card flax, but rather to generate energy for Sir John Power's distillery in Dublin. Today "Old Bushmills," "Powers Gold Label," and "Sir John Jameson'" are still among the finest sipping whiskeys in the Western world.

    Like Bourbon, the formula for making rye is set down by our law which states that it must contain at least 51 percent of its namesake. This "pumpernickel" grain is as interesting as the liquid's flavor in that it was "domesticated" later than wheat and other staple grains, for it has not been found in tombs such as the Pharaohs' or the ruins of primitive Swiss lake dwellings. It apparently was developed somewhat later in Europe and has been used as the primary grain in American rye whiskey since about the time of our revolution. Among the earliest practitioners were the Overholts, who in 1810 established their brand in the western Pennsylvania county of West Overton. A cousin, Henry Clay Frick, "clerked" in their firm before floating a loan with Andrew Mellon and forming a partnership with Andrew Carnegie to take advantage of the rich coal lodes that lay below the rye. It is pres that Frick's relationship to "Old Over then changed from "clerking" to ping," and the same "Old Overholt" available today.

    Though Bourbon and rye are consi deep-rooted in our history, rum may played an even more important, i known, role, for as some historians tain, "it was to our revolution mor than tea." Better than a century befor Boston Tea Party colonists became inv in what later was known as the Triangle," where molasses from the Indies was brought to New England al square-riggers, distilled into rum whic sent to Africa, and traded for slaves w turn, were shipped to the West Indie traded for molasses-a kind of per motion machine. However, the I Parliament in 1733 threw a spanner in machine with its "Molasses Act," restricted the tax-free importation in Colonies of the syrup except fror British West Indies islands such as bados. These new regulations ha salutary effect of turning a number leading citizens such as John Hancoc Samuel Adams into smugglers. "Ta without representation" was not in solely with tea leaves.

    Though our forebears' motive breaking with the crown may have mixed, their rum was pure; in fact been called the "purest of liquors, there is no need to cook or malt the c convert it into sugar. It is sugar. The three basic types of rum: the light-t variety produced by the Spanish-spe lands such as Puerto Rico, the full-t rums from English-speaking islands s Jamaica, and the pungently aromatic from Java. Some other soul will hi lionize the rums from Java, but the colored, semilight-bodied and gos soft Mount Gay Rum from Barbadc the very dry, raw-amber colored, bodied Añejo which Bacardi makes in to Rico leave no reason to doubt the that "rum is the purest of liquors.'

    ## Bar Room slaw

    ## INGREDIENTS

    Carrot
    Zucchini
    Red, green pepper
    Celery, celery root
    Yellow squash
    Chayote
    Chinese cabbage
    Japanese white radish, black radish
    1/4 head white cabbage
    1/4 head red cabbage
    1 large cucumber
    2 tomatoes
    2 heads romaine lettuce
    3 Belgian endive
    2 bunches watercress
    Dressing (recipe below)

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Choose vegetables (carrot-radishes) according to season and preference and cut into fine julienne. The cabbage should be julienned hair-fine. Cut cucumber in half, core with a melon baller, slice very thin and put in iced water to crisp. Slice tomatoes thinly. Surround the julienned vegetables on a platter with the tomato and cucumber slices, leaves of romaine and endive, and watercress. Dress with Bar Room slaw dressing.

    Salt, freshly ground black pəpper
    1-11/2 cups olive oil
    $1 / 2$ tablespoon wine vinegar

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Combine egg yolks, mustard, lemon juice, salt, and pepper in a mixing bowl. Stir briskly until well blended. Slowly add oil, drop by drop, beating without stopping. When mixture is thick, add remaining oil in a slow, steady stream. Stir in vinegar.

    ## Eggplant, zucchini, and tomato gratin

    ## INGREDIENTS

    2 1-pound eggplants
    $1 / 2$ cup olive oil
    2 red-ripe 1 pound tomatoes
    2 pounds zucchini
    8-9 mixed crackers (Ritz, whole-wheat, etc.)
    2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese, grated
    1 teaspoon fresh marjoram leaves
    3 tablespoons butter
    1/4 teaspoon salt
    Freshly ground black pepper

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Peel the eggplants and cut into $1 / 2$-inch slices crosswise. Halve the slices if very large. Heat the olive oil in a large skillet until very hot and sauté the eggplant until golden on both sides. Remove from the skillet and allow to drain on paper towels. $\square$ Drop the tomatoes into simmering water for 10 seconds, then peel them. Halve each and cut into thin slices. Slice zucchini about $1 / 4$ inch thick.
    $\square$ Combine crackers, cheese, and marjoram in a blender or food processor and grind to a powder. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons of the mixed crumbs on the bottom of a well-buttered 14 - or 16 -inch gratin pan. Arrange alternate slices of eggplant, tomato, and zucchini down the length of the dish. Season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with the remaining cracker crumbs, dot with butter, and bake in a preheated $350^{\circ}$ oven for 20 minutes. Run under a hot broiler to brown the top. Serves 6 .

    ## Asparagus Chinoise

    ## INGREDIENTS

    3 pounds wild or thin asparagus
    2 tablespoons butter
    2 tablespoons soy sauce
    Juice of $1 / 2$ lemon
    Freshly ground black pepper

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Cut the tender part of the asparagus on the diagonal at 1 -inch intervals. Cut the thicker stalks also on a slant, but thinly. Heat the butter in a skillet until hot. Add the asparagus and saute over medium-high heat 1 minute. Make a well in the center of the vegetables and add the soy sauce and lemon juice. Boil down to almost a glaze. Cook, stirring, 30 sec onds or longer or until the asparagus are tender but still very crisp. Season with freshly ground pepper. Serve at once. Serves 6.

    ## Pesto

    ## INGREDIENTS

    1/3 cup pistachio nuts, peeled
    2/3 cup pine nuts
    5 large cloves garlic, peeled
    2 cups basil, firmly packed
    1-11/2 cups olive oil

    ## METHOD

    Grind pistachios, pine nuts, and garlic to a fine paste in a food processor or with a mortar and pestle. Add basil and continue to process until puréed. Add olive oil in a thin stream. When mixture is thick and mounds like a mayonnaise, you have added enough olive oil. Makes about $2^{1 / 2}$ cups sauce.

    ## Zucchini with pesto

    ## INGREDIENTS

    2 pounds zucchini
    Olive oil
    Pesto sauce
    Salt, pepper
    Toasted pine nuts

    ## METHOD

    Make zucchini julienne on a mandoline or by hand. Sauté in olive oil in a skillet 1-2 minutes until just tender. Stir in 2 tablespoons pesto and toss well. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve sprinkled with a few toasted pine nuts. Serves 6.

    ## Zucchini and spaghetti with pesto

    ## INGREDIENTS

    1 pound zucchini
    $1 / 2$ pound spaghetti
    Salt
    1 sweet red pepper
    1 green bell pepper
    Olive oil
    1/4 cup pesto
    Freshly grated Parmesan

    ## METHOD

    Julienne zucchini on mandoline; the juliennes should be long to look like the spaghetti. Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water until al dente. Drain and reserve. Peel peppers with a vegetable peeler. You will not be able to reach the indentations where the lobes of the peppers meet. Cut the peppers in 4 lengthwise along the lobe indentations and then peel the edges. Cook peppers in olive oil over moderate heat 5 minutes or until just wilted.

    Saute the julienned zucchini with the cooled spaghetti in olive oil in a skillet over moderate heat 1-2 minutes. Mound on a warm platter, top with pesto and oss well. Ring with peppers, alternating zolors. Serve with freshly grated Parnesan on the side, or put a cheese grater on the table. Serves 4 as a main dish.

    1 tablespoon fresh or $1 / 2$ tablespoon dried rosemary $11 / 2$ tablespoons fresh or 2 teaspoons dried marjoram $11 / 2$ tablespoons fresh or 2 teaspoons dried sage l1/2 tablespoons fresh or 2 teaspoons dried savory
    3 tablespoons fresh Italian parsley, chopped (only if using dried herbs)

    1/2 tablespoon whole black peppercorns 1/3-1/2 cup olive oil

    ## METHOD FOR VEGETABLES

    $\square$ Blanch the broccoli, cauliflower, carrots, snow peas, and green beans for 1 minute in boiling salted water. Drain and rinse under cold running water.
    $\square$ Arrange all the vegetables attractively on a heatproof serving dish which will fit nicely inside a large roasting pan. Sprinkle the vegetables with sea salt.
    $\square$ Bring 1 inch of water to a boil inside a large roasting pan with a tight-fitting cover. When the water is boiling, p'ace a cake rack supported by two or three inverted custard cups (or any other suitable support) in the pan. Make sure the cake rack is above the level of boiling water. Place the serving dish on the rack, cover, and steam for 15 minutes.

    ## METHOD FOR HERBED OLIVE OIL AND ASSEMBLY

    $\square$ Grind together all the herbs and spices in a spice grinder or blender until you have a fine powder. Transfer to a bowl and stir in olive oil. The oil will turn fragrant and green. Dribble the sauce over the hot vegetables just before serving. Serves 6 .

    Note: Herbed olive oil can be made ahead and refrigerated. If using dried herbs, the parsley will add the green color. Stir before using.
    $\square$ Heat a large skillet over moderate heat. Add the walnut oil and spread with a spatula all over the bottom and sides. Add all the vegetables and sauté 1 minute. Season with salt and pepper. Mix in the butter sauce and serve hot. Serves 6.

    4 small Japanese cucumbers or small, light green English variety
    $11 / 2$ tablespoons soy sauce
    1 teaspoon sesame seed oil
    Few drops white wine
    Pinch sugar

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Cut the cucumbers into $11 / 2$-inch sections, then split each section in half lengthwise. Use a very sharp cleaver or knife to cut a "fringe" on the diagonal along one edge of the cucumber at $1 / 8$-inch intervals. Apply pressure with the heel of your hand to flatten and spread the cucumber section so that it opens slightly, resembling a small pale and dark green striped fan. Fringe each cucumber section, then arrange on a plate.
    $\square$ Mix together the soy sauce, oil, white wine, and sugar in a bowl. Pour over the cucumbers so that each section is coated. Serves 4.

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Break off the tough part of asparagus stems and discard. Cut asparagus diagonally into $1 / 4$-inch-thick pieces.
    $\square$ Bring $11 / 2$ quarts of water to a boil in a wok or large saucepan and add $1 / 2$ teaspoon baking soda. Add asparagus and poach for $1 \frac{1}{2}$ minutes. Do not overcook! Remove asparagus with a strainer and submerge in cold water to stop cooking. Cool the asparagus completely under cold water, or refrigerate it covered with water -it will keep nicely for a couple of days.

    Mix together salt, sugar, and sesame seed oil and sprinkle over the asparagus. Serves 4.

    ## Chinese breakfast

    ## INGREDIENTS

    1/3 bowl (1/3-1/2 cup) short-grained raw rice, well washed
    Shredded fried pork
    Tiny dried fish or shrimp
    Scrambled eggs with Chinese chives
    Fermented bean curd
    Pickled vegetables (ja tsai)

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ To prepare the congée, or liquid rice, place rice in a saucepan, add 5 bowls (approximately 5 cups) cold water, place over high heat and bring to a boil. Mix with chopstick or spoon, then turn heat to very low and simmer, partially covered, until almost all liquid is absorbed-a bit of milky liquid should remain.

    If you use this method, the rice will take about 40 minutes to cook.

    Chinese cooking for health continued from preceding page

    If you already have a bowl of ordinary cooked rice, add to it, in a saucepan, 3 bowls of boiling water. Bring to a boil, lower heat, and cook until milky and very soft, about 25 minutes. Serve with small bowls of the pork, shrimp, eggs, bean curd, and pickled vegetables on the side.
    Serves 4.

    ## Steamed egg

    ## INGREDIENTS

    2 large eggs
    1/3 teaspoon salt
    Soy sauce (optional)
    Chopped scallions (optional)

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Beat the eggs in the bowl you intend to cook in with a pair of chopsticks, using them like a whisk. Beat well until the eggs are blended, then add 1 cup cold water, continue beating, and add salt.
    $\square$ Place 4 chopsticks, crossed like a grid, in a wok. Pour 2 cups water in the wok and bring to a boil. Set the bowl with the beaten eggs on top of the chopsticks, cover wok, and steam about 12 minutes. Check to see if the eggs are puffed and serve, like a soufflé, spooned into rice bowls. Sprinkle with a little soy sauce or chopped scallions if desired. Serves 4.

    ## Steamed dumpling

    ## (Chaio-tzu)

    ## INGREDIENTS

    1 head Chinese cabbage
    $1 / 4$ pound ground pork (or a mixture of pork and shrimp)
    Ginger root, chopped or grated
    Scallion greens, chopped
    Cilantro, chopped
    Soy sauce
    Sugar (optional)
    Sesame oil
    4 cups all-purpose flour

    ## METHOD

    Chop $1 / 2$ of the cabbage leaves very fine, reserving the rest. Wrap the chopped leaves in a towel and squeeze to remove excess moisture. Mix the chopped leaves with the pork and season with a little ginger, scallion, cilantro, soy sauce, sugar, and a few drops sesame oil. Store in refrigerator about 1 hour before using, to let flavors blend.
    $\square$ Meanwhile, combine flour with $11 / 2$ cups cold water in a large bowl and mix well. Knead until smooth, then let dough rest 20 minutes.
    $\square$ Roll dough on a floured board into a long roll about $11 / 2$ inches in diameter. Cut into 1 -inch chunks, sprinkle lightly with flour, and roll around and flatten with the palm of your hand. Roll into 3 -inch circles. $\square$ Place a spoonful of filling on each circle of dough, then press circle edges gether to form a half-moon shape. Or fo the dough circle into a cup shape, fill w a spoonful of mixture, turn and seal, tw ing the top closed to make pao(steamed package).
    $\square$ Line bamboo-tray layers of a traditio steamer with the reserved cabbage lea and place the dumplings in the trays. the steamer over the wok (water in wok should be boiling/steaming) steam for 6-10 minutes. Serve hot dur lings with soy sauce and clean, cle astringent white vinegar, Chinese or J anese type. Makes about 12. Note: Th may be frozen if wrapped very loosely ; layered into an airtight container.

    Try a low-calorie vegetable casserole: In a large, heavy pan heat 1 tablespoon olive oil. Add 1 large clove garlic, minced, and $1 / 2$ onion, diced. Cook over medium heat until translucent. You must cook slowly, since there is not much oil. Add 3 fresh tomatoes, peeled and diced, or 1 small can plum tomatoes. Add some thyme, a bay leaf, $1 / 2$ tablespoon Spike, 1 teaspoon pepper, chopped fresh parsley and basil. Cover and let mixture stew a few minutes. Add 1 peeled and diced small eggplant, $1 / 4$ red pepper, $1 / 4$ of a green pepper, and a few mushrooms, 1 zucchini, all diced. Simmer 25 minutes. Check seasoning. 1 cup of this mixture has about 50 cal ories.     3 tablespoons red wine vinegar, and freshly ground pepper. When done, slip the skins off, cool. Cube beets and marinate in the refrigerator in 1 egg white, 3 tablespoons safflower oil, 6 tablespoons red wine vinegar, pepper to taste. Shred 1 head cabbage; add fresh ginger to taste, beets and their marinade. Mix all together, arrange on a platter, garnish with fresh watercress.

    Hot papaya-zucchini: Scrub and thinly slice small, narrow zucchini and baby mushrooms. Put in a nonstick pan with 3 tablespoons water, 1 tablespoon snipped chives, 1 tablespoon parsley, 1 tablespoon dill, and $1 / 2$ teaspoon butter. (This method is semi-steaming which is especially good at drawing out flavors of freeze-dried herbs if you use them.) Cover and cook until water evaporates; uncover, turn heat to low, and sauté until dry. Just before serving, add diced fresh papaya.     ## Humanizing the house  continued from page 109 just like those of the 19th century: and Philip Johnson and John Burgee, who, in a work like the projected American Telephone and Telegraph Co. headquarters for New York City, are trying to create a new form of skyscraper that will allude to history on the scale of a huge building just as Venturis and Moore's and Stern houses do on the scale of small ones A.T. & T. is to be a 600 -foot-high skyscrape of granite with an 80 -foot-high arched en trance at the bottom, an open colonnad at its base, lots of moldings and column and other such classical details, and then at the top, a 30 -foot-high broken pedi ment, its center scooped out in a form tha seems to be a cross between the 18 th century visions of French architect Boulle and the 18 th-century furniture of Chip pendale. Indeed, the whole thing migh be called the world's first Chippendal skyscraper.

    The A.T. & T. building will not look muct like anything else going up today, any mor than the houses of Richard Meier loo like those of Charles Moore. I'm nc bothered by this-in fact. Im pleased by it, because I think what is most importan of all about what is going on right now not that we are evolving a new style, bu that we are edging away from the very ide of the style at all, as we have known it.

    There are no rules today, and there is r longer a belief that there is anything simple as a "spirit of the age." That's why t confusion a number of architects feel is $n$ surprising-there are no direct and simp models today, the way there were in the a of the modern masters, when there was on right way to do things. But if our age is le able to seek packaged solutions, that shou make it more able to think through problen from scratch, for there is no longer the temp tation to let fort as do our thinking for

    So if there is any truth to be stated abo our time. it is not that modernism is deat it is that ideology is dead. There is longer any belief that dogma will do ou work for us: there is no longer a certaint that there is one true way to the making good architecture. Many styles are valid each has a certain place if it can be justifie by factors of program, client preferenci and so forth. We will continue to see a lot buildingsina lot of different types, includin many that we would consider "modern" derivation. The point is that when suc buildings are made today, it is not becaus of any belief that they are showing us th one true route to the Kingdom of Arch tectural Heaven-it is merely because the happened to do the job in that particula instance.

    This end of ideological basis for arch tecture can, in the worst scenario, lead chaos. But in a more ideal sequence events, it can free us to get in touch wil architecture's basics more than we hay done for generations. Post-modernism, ne revivalism, historical allusionism, whatev you call it, is not just picking up a cut little split gable or a piece of ornament: is being free enough from dogma to that where it seems appropriate, and to something else where that seems to mak sense, too. If architecture comes to foct more and more on what brings pleasun rather than on what is correct according

    ## WHO NEEDS WHALES?

    We all do. From life in the oceans comes what is most important to us on land-food and oxygen. The whales play a vital role in maintaining the marine ecosystem. Our future may well depend upon their survival.

    What we don't need is whaling. Man is slaughtering the last of the world's great whales-destroying creatures many scientists believe have an intelligence equal, perhaps even superior, to our own. There is no reason on earth to kill whales.

    Greenpeace wants whaling to stop. For the past 3 years our members have placed themselves between the whales and the whalers' harpoon, non-violently protesting whaling at sea and focusing world attention on this critical problem.

    From the North Atlantic to the midPacific and off the shores of Australia we will continue our struggle to save the whales from extinction.

    In order to continue we need your support.

    some abstract theory, it is altogether likely that post-modernists will deal more seriously with questions of space, scale, plan. composition, procession, and so forthwith architecture's very fundamentalsthan previous generations have done. The work of the best designers around today succeeds for that reason-their rhetoric aside, they know the basics, they know how to make space and plan and form, and they care more about this than about theories
    Richard F. Brown, the director of the Kimbell Museum in Fort Worth, the great Kahn building finished in 1972, once told me he hired Louis Kahn to do the design because "I thought he would approach the problem of designing a museum as if for the first time, like Adam." That attitude, that freedom from theory but devotion to a basic search, is something that architects should have been doing all along, and the fact that more of them are doing it today makes this. for all its confusion, a time of great excitement and promise

    the sound and prevents it from bouncing back and forth on itself. Adding soft things like upholstered chairs or ottomans can also help by absorbing the sound.

    Reverberation noises from household equipment can be reduced by remounting washing machines, for example, on rubber pads, or by fixing the equipment with rubber mounts into a cabinet or wall in such a way that it does not move -since sound is basically vibration. In Dr. Bose's kitchen, he has installed wooden slats in the ceiling above the sink, with a layer of fiberglass between the slats and the roof, so that the sound goes through the slats and is absorbed by the fiberglass.

    Carpets are well known to ease sound problems. A test done by Kodaras Acoustical Laboratories in Elmhurst. N.Y., revealed that carpet substantially reduced three kinds of noise-airborne noise, floor surface noise within a room, and impact noise to rooms below. All types of carpet will have this effect, but the best possible results are obtained from a high pile and a cushion of foam rubber, all-hair, all-jute felt, or a combination of hair-jute-foam rubber latex. Walls also can be covered with carpet, fabric, or padding for sound absorption.

    Assuming that you have tried to "acoustic-ize" your home and still feel the need for a more noise-free environment, other devices are available. Earplugs are made in a variety of designs (Caswell-Massey in New York sells "Boules Quies" Ear Plugs at $$ 3$ for a box of 14 ), but a more contemporary technique-a "psychoacoustic record"-has been invented by Syntonic Research, a company which produces records and tapes of what they call "Environments," for instance, The Ultimate Seashore, Wind in the Trees, Gentle Rain in a Pine Forest, and The Ultimate Heartbeat. Mike Kron, of Syntonic Research, explains that what they are really producing is "synthetic sound," i.e., a white sound that blocks out or neutralizes other sounds. "People basically don't like silence," he says, "so we create a soothing, peaceful sound, designed to be played at low volume, that you can read to, sleep to, meditate to, or relax to."

    Whether we are really beginning to control the noise in our environment is questionable. The Noise Abatement office of the EPA is certainly working at it. Dr. Bose believes that more and more architects are learning about acoustics and will design new homes accordingly. They are already practicing these skills in restaurant design-and look how designers succeeded in controlling car noise. Dr. Bose also thinks that as interest in good music grows, and as more sensitive sound equipment becomes available, people will realize that they could enjoy better sound. We are becoming more expert about the sounds around us-and in this way knowledge of acoustics is entering our lives.

    burden is on the buyer to decide what damage or what restoration there is and how that will affect his bid. (In this light, always remember never to bid on something that you have not seen during the presale exhibition, even if it seems to be going very cheaply. Some of those "off the cuff bargains" can be expensive mistakes.) Remember, you are buying something used, so don't be disappointed by small chips and scratches. Just know about them before you bid.

    But how to decide what to bid? A comparison with comparable modern items might give you a basis for value. After all. a modern china bowl with painted designs may cost $$ 25$. Spending at least that much for a hand-painted 19th-century bowl is clearly not out of line. Go to several auctions. Visit antiques stores. Certain items always seem to command roughly the same prices.

    ## Bidding

    Try to attend at least one sale before you begin to bid yourself. You will become more comfortable and have less fear (fear will be overcome by the excitement of competition for the item which you have chosen and researched). Become used to the style of auctioneering at the salesroom you have selected. Some auctioneers chant or sing the bids, while others simply call out bids in a very easy-to-understand manner. Learn bidding "increments." These are the ing levels of bids that the auction accepts between each bid. If, for ex: ple, a painting with a presale estim of $$ 100 / $ 200$ is being sold, the a tioneer may start the bidding at $$ 30$ raise the bidding by $$ 10$ increments each bid, from $$ 30$ to $$ 40$, then to $$$ and so on. Leading auction houses $h_{i}$ guidelines such as the following: If bidding is from $$ 10-$ 200$, there is a increment; if it is from $$ 200-$ 500$. th is a $$ 25$ increment: if it is from $$ 5$ i $$ 1.000$, there is a $$ 50$ increment; from $$ 1,000-$ 2,000$ there is a $$ 100$ crement. Each auctioneer, howev may use his discretion to change the crements depending on the "inter" (number of people bidding at one tin on the lot. If there are many people terested, the bidding often goes al faster clip and the increments incre as rapidly.

    ## Outbidding the dealers

    At most auctions, you will see gro of men and women clustered toget (usually at the rear of the salesroor These are the dealers, the professior of the antique world, whose living pends on getting items at wholes price or below. Don't let yourself be timidated by their boisterous behavi If you have done your homework, ) have the distinct advantage over dealer who will usually not pay mid than his predetermined "market pric Remember, the dealer must raise price to his customers in order to co his overhead (in many cases, rel prices can be two to four times the al tion price for antiques and works art).

    Now that you have built up your d fidence and are prepared to bid, the is one last almost sacred rule for buy at auctions: "Pick a maximum pr and stick to it!" During the excitem of an auction and the occasional "bal between bidders" there are those w ners who turn out to be losers. So people new to auctions get carried aw and end up begging the auctioneer take back items for which they hi overpaid. Buying at auction is a le contract. When you raise your hand paddle and the item is "knocked dow (at the fall of the auctioneer's hammi to you, at a certain price, it is your sponsibility to pay for and pick up th lot of merchandise. So set your high price firmly in mind and try not to 1 beyond it. You will find that ma times you will pay only a fraction your maximum bid. But if you m your lot, there will always be anotl chance to buy another similar cha lamp, or painting at other auctions. Cl tainly you will be much happier kno ing that you waited and purchased real bargain!

    When you attend an auction, try a seat in the front half of the gal-
    You want the auctioneer to see (even the most experienced of auceers can miss your bid if it is too le). The auctioneer wants to sell something-leave the secret signs the winks of an eye to the experid collectors and professional dealDon't be shy. Raise your hand or Hle high in an obvious gesture to the ioneer. After he sees you bidding, vill continue calling your bids until are either successful in getting your or until you drop out of the bid-

    If you are in doubt whether the ioneer sees your bid, simply ask him. out your bid, and he will respond sir, your bid," or if it's someone i, the auctioneer will say "against sir" or "not yours" or some similar se. Then either you can bid higher frain from further advances.

    ## tion by mail order

    y auction houses offer the conence of permitting a buyer to send through the mail, telephone (after ng through and choosing desirable from the sale catalogue), or to confidential maximum "order with a representative of the auchouse. "Order bids" enable you to fit auctions when you cannot at-

    Since auctions are usually held g standard weekday working hours, $r$ from where you live, it is often menient to attend the exhibition on urday or an evening after work and 4 your bid with the house. They lisid up to, but never beyond, your num bid. If, for example, you 4. an "order bid" for $$ 200$ on an tal carpet, the house will bid on it , u for no more than $$ 200$, but posifor $$ 100$ or $$ 150$. In other words, the bid more than the last bid in the

    The auction house will try to it easy for you to bid at sales, wer you bid in person, send a bid tgh the mail, or leave a bid with the during the exhibition period.

    ## words of advice

    fantasize about finding a museumobject for a song. You can often rgains at auctions, and occasionick up a rare find. But on the expect to pay a fair price, the et price" for auction objects. This way to enjoy and find satisfaction tion.

    ## NEW WOOD STOVE BIG INSIDE SMALL OUTSIDE

    Energy Harvesters is a beautiful and extremely effective cast iron stove. Its low profile, charming sculptured form and clever slanted sides make Energy Harvesters so perfect in any room.
    It has a better heating capacity than other stoves that look big and ugly. This is possible because of its large burning chamber, its super air tight construction, its unique double direction air regulator (pat. applied for) and its large effective iron baffle. Its large loading door accepts large, long logs, even crooked ones, and it burns 15 hours on one load with good heat output.
    Energy Harvesters is made by us in our own New England foundry and we guarantee it to be of finest quality. Extraordinary value at $$ 395.00$.
    Learn more about this new energy-efficient way to heat with wood. Send $$ 1.00$ for the big Energy Harvesters Information Kit. ( $$ 1.00$ back if not satisfied.)

    ## Mail Order Beginners

    Get Cash by Mail!Have you ever thought of operating a litthe mail order business of your own? Something you could start on a shoestring right from home in your spare time. It's a fabulous business!

    Bob Carter of Newark, N.J. ran his first small mail order ad in House Beautiful magazine-offering an auto clothes rack. Business Week reported that his ad brought in $$ 5,000$ in orders. By the end of his first year in Mail Order, he had grossed over $$ 100,000$ !

    Another beginner-a lawyer from the midwest, sold a mail order item to fishermen. Specialty Salesman magazine reveals, he made $$ 70,000$ the first three months !
    There is no other business where you can make a fortune so fast. Come up with "hot" new item . . . and WHAM
    It strikes like a bolt of lightning

    Millions of people read your ad and suddenly, you are swamped with cash orders from all over the country . . . MORE MONEY in 60 could earn in a lifetime!
    Like the Vermont dealer who ran one ad in Sports Afield magazine. His ad pulled 22,000 orders-over A HALF MIL LION DOLLARS IN CASH

    Yes, Mail Order is the fastest-growing, most profitable business in America! And now with the population explosion the huge teenage market
    . . . and more people moving to the suburbs-we are on the verge of the BIGGEST BOOM in Mail Order history

    ## Free

    If you are sincerely interested in starting a lucrative business of your own ACT NOW! We can help you get rich in Mail Order just as we've helped others. Mail the coupon or send a postcard. We'll send you a free book, catalog, ads and complete facts about our offer. No salesman will call. No obligation. You don't need previous experience but you must be over 21. Write to Nowadays, people are ordering everything from fur coats to nights at the opera by mail. So it's no more than natural that the gardening community should be continuing its long-established custom of ordering the choicest plants, seeds, and supplies for home delivery. For generations, farmers have relied on mail-order seeds, and home gardeners have followed their example. But today, mail ordering is the only way fanciers of particular kinds of plants can obtain the rarities and new introductions they hanker for. In fact, it is only through the catalogues of specialists that the average home gardener can learn about the more desirable and hard-to-find plants as they become available. Growing large numbers of unusual plants is not only a task in itself-writing, printing and distributing a catalogue is no easy chore, either. So it is to be expected that specialist growers should be paid for their catalogues. To the plant buyer they're worth the price simply in terms of the information they have to offer. Charges for packing and handling may be expected, too, but why not? After all, it is careful packaging, with expensive materials, that insures our getting the things we order in prime condition.

    ## All-America Selections

    plus news about roses, ivy screens, radical radishes, popular narcissi

    - WINNERS FOR PLANTING It's seed-ordering time, and this year there are even more than the usual number of fine new flowers and vegetables to plan on growing next summer. Thinking first of the edible part of the garden, a new tender-pod pea might well head the list of things to try. Named Sugar Snap, it has a thick, succulent pod very much like that of snap beans. Sweeter and more tender than any bean pod, though, it is best when eaten raw, snapped into bits for a salad, or served right off the vine as an appetizer. Sugar Snap has been awarded a gold medal of the All-America Selections, the first introduction to be so honored since 1977. Other AllAmerica selections for 1979 are the pepper Dutch Treat, kohlrabi Grand Duke, squashes Sw'eet Mama and Early Butternut, and cucumber Saladin. Among flowers, marigold Queen Sophia, nicotiana Nicki-Red, pansy Orange Prince, and zinnias Gold Sun and Peter Pan Gold have all been given bronze medals. And the pepper Holiday Cheer, both edible and decorative, has also been awarded the bronze medal. Very much like the familiar Jerusalem cherry, this makes a low, compact plant st! with cream-colored fruits that bright red as they mature. Unlik Jerusalem cherry, however, the cl sized fruit is edible-if you like i that is. The All-America selectior 1979 will be available from mailseed houses and garden shops where for spring planting or, lat the season, as started plants. Loo the red-white-and-blue shield on packets and plant labels.

    ## YEAR OF THE ROSE

    Change being the order of the day necessary to report that the Conaro Co., of West Grove, Pa., is no longe ing roses by mail. The Conard-Pyl of Star Roses will hereafter be ava only through nurseries and garden -just look for the star-shaped your local source of supply. Since has been designated "The Year o Rose," anyone who wishes to obser event can still order plants by mail Jackson & Perkins, Medford, 97501, or from Armstrong Nurs P.O. Box 4060, Ontario, Calif. 9 Both firms have long lists of outstar introductions to their credit, and send out free catalogues.

    VINES FOR SCREENINC
    Albert Keidel used ivy on a chain fence to solve a bothersome proble screening (see page 100). English quick-growing and evergreen, is for the relatively mild climate of I ericksburg, Tex.     ## RADICAL RADISHES

    Let your radishes go to seed? Traditi gardeners wouldn't think of it, but there's a variety with seed pods that just as edible as the roots. Harvi when still tender and juicy-aboi inches long-the pods are crisp peppery, making an intriguing comb tion with leafy greens in a salad.
    ots are edible too, of course, being ing and white and big enough to be iced into ribbons and served, German yle, with beer. Even the name suggests e use: Munchen Bier, from the tradional home of the beer-and-radish comnation. Seeds of the Munchen Bier dish will be available for spring plantg in 1979 from Thompson & Morgan, ox 100, Farmingdale, N.J. 07727, hose catalogue is free for the asking.

    I POPULAR PAPERWHITES hey're usually thought of as beginners' ants, but paperwhite narcissi are attrace enough, and satisfying enough, to erit the attention of expert gardeners well. But even the experts need to be minded occasionally that you have to gin with plump, firm, heavy bulbs, free om bruises and blemishes. To force operly, the bulbs must have a good pth- 2 or 3 inches-of porous marial under them for the roots to peneate. This may be coarse sand, broken ashells, or pebbles small enough to low growing roots to shove them aside. he bulbs should be placed on the rootg material with only enough of the bulb iried to hold it upright, with plain water ided to barely touch the bulb's base. re planted container should then be aced in a cool, dark place-in your frigerator if there's room-until the hite roots are about 2 inches long. By is time the tops should be growing, too, take the whole thing out to a sunny ndowsill and watch the flowers pop 1. Don't let the roots become dry, keep e plants as cool as possible-short of eezing, that is-and the flowers will last r a couple of weeks. Meanwhile, have other batch coming along. It pays to y your bulbs early in the season, while ocks are still plentiful-in a plastic ck in the vegetable bin of your refrigator, they'll keep until needed.

    What you need is a KitchenAid trash compactor.
    No matter how many trash cans you buy, it always seems that there isn't enough room for the trash.

    That's why a KitchenAid trash compactor is so worth having.
    0e= It squeezes a week's worth of trash into one small load. Does away with smelly, overflowing trash cans.

    The KitchenAid compactor has three advantages other compactors don 't give you.

    A Litter $\mathrm{Bin}^{\circledR}$ door for quick throwaways.

    An activated charcoal filter that eliminates odors.

    And a Tilt-Away basket that can be used with or without trash bags.

    Best of all, it has the same reliability and performance as KitchenAid dishwashers.

    Try it. Once you've enjoyed the convenience of a KitchenAid compactor, you'll wonder how you ever got along without it.
    KitchenAid. Because it's worth it.

    # "MY HUSBAND DION'T WANTMETOBUYIT. NOW HE THINKSTI'SHIS?

    Betsy Nov, Ridgewood, N.J.

    When Betsy Novy wanted to buy a Volvo station wagon, her husband John tried to steer her to something else.
    "Buy an American car," he said. "You'll get a bigger engine, a big car ride". (He himself owned a Cadillac Sedan DeVille.)

    Mrs. Novy humored him.
    "We spent weeks test driving the cars he thought I should have. I was thoroughly unimpressed."

    When Mrs. Novy finally did get her husband to test drive a Volvo wagon, he was very surprised. He liked the handling and responsiveness. And even at six-feet, 200 pounds, he found it very comfortable indeed.
    "Okay," he told his wife, "if you want it, buy it. After all, it's your car."
    "That turned out to be a joke", Mrs. Novy says. "We hadn't had the Volvo wagon a week before he was driving it himself. I'd look out the window and my Volvo would be gone. And his car would still be sitting in the driveway.
    "I had a hard time getting him into a Volvo wagon. Now I can't get him out"* vOLvo

    A car you can believe in.
    *We're happy to report that things have become a little easier for Mrs. Novy. Mr. Novy recently sold his American car and bought a Volvo 242 GT for himself.

    Efficient gas energy gives you more for your money. And it promises to remain your most economical fuel-for a long time to come.

    It's good to know then, that in the future, we expect to deliver even more gas than we do today.

    The biggest source should be our huge underground and offshore deposits-plus new sources, like gas from coal. Beyond that, new technologies could provide gas for centuries:*

    Remember too, your wise use of gas today will mean that much more for tomorrow.

    Advice from doctors on what it takes to keep your eyes healthy and fit; plus what's new in eyeglasses and contact lenses

    ## By Catherine Ettlinger

    Editor's note: The medical information contained in this article came from Dr. Richard Kochman, attending ophthalmologist at St. Luke's Medical Center in New York City; Dr. William C. Cooper, associate professor of clinical ophthalmology at Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital in New York City; Dr. Charles A. Perera, consultant in ophthalmology at Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital; and Dr. Stephen Kurtin, professor of dermatology at Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York City.

    ## Undercover eye care

    The skin around your eyes is thin and delicate and, compared to the rest of your skin, it has few oil glands to keep it soft and supple. "It's important to lock in whatever natural moisture there is," says Dr. Kurtin, who recommends using eye creams regularly morning and evening-and never using astringents around the eyes.
    "Young skin is best lubricated by a light lotion, but as you get older you might want to use a heavier cream." One word of warning: "Don't overlubricate. Excessive amounts of oil around the sensitive eye areas can cause swelling, irritation, or milium (little white bumps) on the eyelids and under-eye area."
    No matter how conscientiously you lubricate, the skin around your eyes will wrinkle. "It's constantly being pulled and stretched as you blink or squint or smile," says Dr. Kurtin. "How much you'll wrinkle is determined genetically, and by how much you're exposed to the sun.

    ## Rx for tired eyes

    "Nothing is as soothing as a warm compress if your eyes are tired or sore," says Dr. Kochman, who recommends wetting a waslectoth with tepid wate and laying it across your cyes until it cools.

    He also recommends warm compresses for swollen eyelids, a common condition that occurs when the small glands in the eyelids that secretc oil become obstructed. Dr. Kochman says this swelling can be exacerbated by cigarettes, alcohol, or fatty foods.

    ## Dry-eyed?

    Don't be. Many people, especially when they're out in the wind and sun, suffer from lack of moisture. If this happens to you, Dr. Kochman suggests you wear sunglasses for protection and get special prescription eye drops from an ophthalmologist. "You need to replace the natural tear film that's been washed away by overexposure to wind and sun."

    Food for the eye?
    Vitamin A (whose source is in dairy products, fresh leafy green vegetables, and yellow fruits and vegetables) has always been associated with good vision. That's because a deficiency of vitamin A interferes with the production of rhodopsin, the pigment found (in the rods) in the retina that helps you distinguish between light and dark.
    "Most American diets have adequate supplies of vitamin A to nourish the eyes and don't need supplementing," says Dr. Kochman.

    Tips on using eye makeup "When you apply eye makeup, be careful to keep it out of your eyes," says Dr. Kochman. "Your eyes are extremely sensitive and can be irritated by makeup." In fact, if your eyes are easily irritated, consider a hypoallergenic makeup-makeup with ingredients free of all known irritants.

    If you wear contact lenses, you might want to use a mascara without fibers, since fibers can find their way into your eyes to cause irritation. Look for a mascara that doesn't list "contains fibers" in its ingredients. . . . And removing it
    "The important thing about removing eye makeup is finding a product that does the job so well you don't have to scrub around your eyes," says Dr.
     Kurtin. "Be gentle-work from the outside of your eye in toward your nose to avoid pulling and stretching the skin."

    ## New developments in photosensitive lenses

    Photosensitive lenses have been improved so that they can change color in less than thirty seconds. There are still two types of photosensitive lenses-one for outdoor wear, one for indoors-because, says Dr. Cooper, "The lightest indoor shade can never get dark enough for outdoors, and the darkest outdoor shade can never get light enough for comfortable wear indoors."
    Although outdoor photosensitive lenses meet most people's needs, those who are exposed to very bright lighton the beach or high in the mountains -should use dark brown or gray lenses. "Photosensitive lenses do not filter as much light as the darkest brown or gray lenses," says Dr. Cooper.

    ## Invisible lenses

    There's a new bifocal lens available that shows no sign of the line which divides the near and far viewing segments. The new lenses come in a variety of sizes and can be tinted any color, including gradients.
    Aspheric lenses, the lenses cataract patients are fitted with after lens removal surgery, have also been improved. The lenses, which have traditionally been thick with a center circle of strong prescription, are thinner and have a prism bifocal that's barely distinguishable. They provide a wider field of vision than the old lenses, and they are available in fourteen shades and in gradients.

    ## The private eye

    Now you can wear contact lenses for up to a week without removal. The new ex-tended-wear contact lenses are gas-permeable, letting oxygen through to the cornea even while you sleep.
    In England and Canada, some of these extended-wear contact lenses are made of silicone and can be worn for months without removal. These lenses are awaiting approval by the U.S. Federal Drug Administration.

    Also awaiting FDA sanction is a new soft bifocal contact lens. (All of those currently on the market are hard lenses.)

    ## Glaucoma or ocular hypertension?

    Glaucoma, an increase in the pressure of the fluids within the eye, turns up in 3 percent of the population and can lead to partial or complete loss of sight. Doctors regularly measure the intraocular pressure in every thorough eye examination because, when detected early enough, the most common forms of glaucoma can be treated with medication so that sight will not be impaired.

    But, according to Dr. Kochman, the tension test is only the beginning in determining whether or not a patient has glaucoma. The upper limit of a normal intraocular pressure is 20-21 millimeters of mercury, says Dr. Kochman. But, he has seen patients with pressures of 17 18 who have glaucoma, while others with pressures of 25-28 do not. "Glaucoma should not be confused with simple ocular hypertension, which is an increase in the pressure within the eye that does not in itself damage sight, but should be watched closely by a physician."

    ## When should you see an eye doctor?

    "The eye is equipped to take pretty good care of itself," says Dr. Kochman. "But even if you see clearly and effortlessly, you should see an eye doctor once a year.
    'Sometimes a change in your eyesight is so gradual you aren't even aware of it. The simplest error in your vision that goes uncorrected can lead to eye strain, and, as you try to overcome the error, to frustration and to headaches.

    ## Whom should you see?

    An ophthalmologist is an M.D., Medical Doctor, specializing in the treatment of the eye. He or she can prescribe eyeglasses and contact lenses, and can treat the eyes with medication and with surgery.

    When an ophthalmologist examines the eyes, he will check for nearsightedness or farsightedness, and for astigmatisms. He will measure the eyes' motility, and will examine the exterior and interior portions of the eye. In addition, he will test intraocular pressure for glaucoma.
    An optometrist, an O.D., Doctor of Optometry, can prescribe eyeglasses and contact lenses and can examine the eyes fur vistal profisem. If symptoms of cye disease are detected, an optometrist will efer a patient to an uphblalmologes.

    All optician dispernses ferises Youl can take a prescription for eyeglasses or contact lenses given to you by an ophthalmologist or an optometrist to an optician. Look for a Guild Optician-he or she has been certified by The Guild of Prescription Opticians for meeting certain training requirements.

    ## How aspirin can cure

    The power of mood-altering drugs, plus possible hazards of sex therapy

    Is it true that aspirin is a therapeutic medicine?
    A Aspirin has a long medical history. Hippocrates used it as an analgesic a few hundred years B.C. He had women chew the leaves of the willow which contain salicyclic acid to help the pain of childbirth.

    Since 1900 , aspirin, which is the commercial name for acetylsalicyclic acid, has been the most widely used medication in the world. It causes pain to be stopped at the source through an effect on the local nerves combined with action on the thalamic part of the brain. Aspirin also reduces inflammation.

    Only in the last few years have we learned how inflammation is decreased. Prostaglandins, a group of hormones produced by cells, are responsible for inflammation. Unique among pain killers, aspirin stops the production of prostaglandins, and this actually reduces the swelling, and the redness and heat of inflammation, particularly in arthritis.

    Aspirin may also be useful in helping to prevent strokes and heart attacks. It was Dr. Harvey Weiss, a hematologist at Columbia University, who discovered the effect of aspirin in the blood. He noted that aspirin abolished the stickiness in the platelets, which is the first step in clot formation. Taking one or two aspirins a day regularly renders a person less likely to have clots. Since clots can cause heart attacks and strokes, the usefulness of this inexpensive, simple therapy is obvious.

    There are one or two drawbacks to aspirin therapy. In dehydration, the blood level of aspirin can quickly become toxic if the medication is repeated every 4 hours without sufficient fluids. Aspirin also has the well-known thinning effect on the blood, increasing bleeding tendency. In a normal person, this is not significant. We all lose about a half teaspoon of blood daily in the intestine. Aspirin in moderate dosage may increase the rate to one teaspoonful, so the medication should be avoided by anyone with a bleeding tendency. This may increase the tendency to anemia caused by inadequate diet and poor appetite for meats. And since aspirin is a mild stomach irritant, it should not be taken by people with stomach disorders. Some people with a history of hay fever or asthma may find aspirin causes an allergic reaction.

    However, the more we learn about aspirin, the more of a miracle drug it seems, in many instances mimicking the wonders of cortisone without the same attendant dangers. It is still the drug of choice for acute rheumatic fever and rheumatoid arthritis.

    For those who are advised not to take aspirin, acetaminophen, developed around the turn of the century to control pain, rarely causes toxic reactions. Acetaminophen (Tylenol and Datril are well-known brands) works in a different fashion than aspirin, easing pain not by its local action but through the central nervous system. It raises the threshold of pain in the brain and mild or moderate pain is not felt. Since it has no antiinflammatory effect, it is less useful in cases of rheumatoid arthritis or severe inflammation. For pain relief alone, however, it is a good choice for children and older people, since it only stays in the body 6 to 8 hours, in contrast to aspirin's 24 to 30 hours.

    ## Q What are the benefits of mood-altering drugs?

    A Depression is the most common psychological condition which requires treatment. It is estimated that about 10 percent of the population at some time in their lives has severe enough depression to profoundly disturb them. Fortunately, in the last 20 years, a number of drugs have been introduced which can alleviate depression. They are the psychotropic or mood-altering drugs. However, these medications must be given only by a physician who will monitor the dose.

    The all-too-commonly used Valium, Librium, and Milltown tranquilizers have no place in the treatment of depression. They depress the central nervous system and commonly aggravate the condition. These mood-altering drugs are helpful for nervousness or agitation. In the case of sadness, grief, or mourning, the use of drugs is inappropriate with two exceptions. A mild sedative can be useful if insomnia is a problem.

    Also, there may be a place for a mild mood-elevating drug temporarily to relieve the feelings of helplessness or loss enough for the patient to become interested in life and to be active. The activity itself may then bring about some easing of the depression.

    It is only in severe neurotic or psychotic depressions that antidepressant chemicals can work miracles. However, there are many toxic side reactions and limitations (no alcohol, other medications, or driving because of sedation) to be aware of.

    ## Is there any danger in sex therapy?

    A
    Some psychiatrists say yes. Sex therapy undoubtedly helps people, but it can cause problems as well as solve them. Since Masters and Johnson's original work, many marriages have been enriched. But not everyone who goes into sex therapy will benefit and some will even be harmed.

    In a relationship where there is love, understanding, and a good deal of sharing, it is possible to benefit from help for sexual problems. But when sexual dissatisfaction is an excuse for indicting the other partner, or reflects an inability to adjust to someone else, sex therapy alone is unlikely to help.

    One reason for a large number of people seeking sex therapy is the attitude of our liberated times. People who go into sex therapy to get more physical pleasure, rather than a richer sex life to share through some elusive insight into themselves, will probably be disappointed. It is important to be on guard against the impression that happy, satisfying sex is a matter of gymnastics, and one has only to be initiated to lead a fuller life.

    Another pitfall in gaining knowledge but not perspective or insight is in thinking there is a single thing called "normal." The great range of normal has not been stressed enough. This in particular causes people who are happy to feel perhaps they should not be. Some men suffer from psychological impotence because they feel inadequate to live up to what they think is normal. Still other people are "turned off" by incessant talk about sex. They feel it is so analyzed that there is no intimacy or romance left. Openness is being able to talk freely, not forced to live your every thought and feeling publicly.

    While therapy can help some good relationships to be better, and can rescue some truly disturbed people, it is not a happiness pill. Nothing is.

    From the mark I've drawn and my photograph, can you tell me when my jardiniere was made and something about its background and use? F.W.C. -Chicago, III.

    ## pd 165933  (ENELAMi

    According to the registration number, the English manufacturer registered the design of your earthenware "majolica" jardiniere and pedestal with relief decoration under warm-colored glazes, at the English Patent Office in 1891. Majolica was a typically Victorian ceramic. Minton introduced it into England in 1851, started the craze for it, and was probably responsible for misnaming it, as it has little connection with its prototype, the Majolica of the Italian Renaissance. It is the material of innumerable late-Victorian jardinieres, which were purchased to house aspidestra flower pots. Green is particularly a color that is associated with this Victorian majolica.

    ENGLISH DISH-CROSS
    We bought this dish-cross at an auction and know nothing about its background. Can you help?
    E.L.D.-Newton Centre, Mass. Your brass dish-cross is probably of English manufacture, dating perhaps about 1900. The dish-cross was introduced in English silver about the 1730 s . It continued in fashion until about the end of the 18 th century, when it was supplanted by the hot-water stand, or even a hot-water reservoir in the serving dish itself.

    My old bank works this way: An Indian holds a fish; after the coin is deposited, a hidden frog leaps out of the pond for the fish; when the frog jumps for it, the Indian pulls the fish out of the way. Do you know who made this unusual bank? C.H.-San Francisco, Calif. Your mechanical bank was patented by Charles A. Bailey, a prolific designer of mechanical banks, and assigned to the manufacturers J. & E. Stevens of Cromwell, Conn. John D. Meyer in his "Handbook of Old Mechanical Penny Banks" writes: "Originally named Indian Camp Bank. Name Chief Big Moon in very small letters on the base."

    ## BUTTER DISH

    I've drawn the mark that is on my butter dish and hope that from my rough sketch you can tell me who made the dish and when.
    P.G.-Gaylord, Mich. The mark indicates that your butter dish is plated silver and was made by the Meriden Britannia Company located at Hamilton, Canada. The firm is a branch of the well-known Meriden Britannia Company of Meriden, Conn., which in 1898 was one of the leaders in the formation of the International Silver Company. It was established in 1879 and merged with the International Silver Company of Canada about 1912.

    - ENGRAVED CRYSTAL

    I have a set of elaborately engraved crystal glasses and would like to know how this engraving is done. On the crystal is the word "Hawkes."
    D.W.-Columbus, Ga. All the decoration on your crystal was done by copper wheel engraving with various abrasives. The fruit was done by intaglio engraving, an age-old lapidary technique reintroduced about 1900 that resulted in a new kind of luxury glass. Only the finest of crystal blanks were strong enough for this kind of engraving, which was practiced by such fine American firms as T. G. Hawkes, of Corning, N.Y., the maker of your crystal. Apart from the water and wineglasses, your service includes champagne and highball glasses. The latter joined the company of beverage glasses about 1900 and about the same time champagne glasses were made in greater quantity than ever before. The style of your crystal suggests a date about the 1920s or 1930s.

    ## KOKESHI DOLLS

    What can you tell me about my delightful wooden dolls that come from Japan?
    B.L.-San Francisco, Calif.

    Of all the folk toys of Japan, the most popular today both among Japanese and Westerners are the Kokeshi dolls, especially those from the Tohoku region, Miyagi Prefecture-the most outstanding area of folk-art toys. Kokeshi dolls are almost 100 years old in origin; your dolls are of more recent manufacture.

    Their origin is not known, but it is generally accepted that they were originally presented to shrines by worshippers to ensure the prosperity of their descendants.

    ## PEWTER TEAPOT

    I would appreciate any information you can supply about my pewter teapot.
    S.M.B.-Haddonfield, N.J. Your interesting pewter teapot enriched with brass mounts was made in China, perhaps about 1900. It is very possible that a considerable amount of pewter was exported to America in the 19th century and into the first years of the 20th. The Centennial Exhibition held in Philadelphia, 1876, listed a number of pieces of pewter from China which were "foreign," that is Western, in shape.

    ## TAMBOUR DESK

    I'm told I have a "tambour" desk. What does this mean? About when and where was my desk made?
    D.B.O.-Old Greenwich, Conn. Your early Victorian tambour desk was made about 1840, probably in New York City. The term tambour is given to a series of small strips of wood glued on a strong piece of cloth in such a manner as to make it a flexible sheet. The class of your tambour desk is distinguished by a recessed superstructure and a writing surface made by opening the hinged lid, which, when open, is supported by two pulls. In your example, two glass doors have supplanted the usual two tambour slides, which move horizontally along the front of the small drawers and pigeonholes and disappear into the sides of the desk.

    # MONEY MATTERS

    ## How to have the money you need when your children are ready for college

    If you're like the rest of us, you may well expect your children to go to college, but probably haven't planned for it. Few do. While ignorance may be bliss, procrastination is painful-especially when it comes to college costs. Sending a child to college now costs what an average home did a few years ago. And college tuitions are expected to spiral even higher.
    But, be of good cheer, there are some ways of easing the pain-especially if you have some time in which to plan. Put simply, the longer you have to prepare for these expenses, the better off you'll be, since you won't have to scramble for the money at the last minute. That can hurt in two major ways. First, you'll probably have to borrow the money and pay interest at fairly high rates. Second, you'll be going into debt at just about the time that you should be thinking about setting some money aside for your retirement.

    ## AN EDUCATED WAY  TO PLAN AHEAD

    The best time to start putting some money away for your child's education is when he or she is just 10 years old. The beauty of planning ahead is that it gives you a number of options. Moreover, most of these plans also help give you a tax break. Here are some of the best and the brightest.

    Consider setting up a custodial account for your child at a bank or brokerage house-which will probably set it up for free. While you will probably be offered a variety of investments, it pays to be a little cautious. Your child's education may be at stake.
    You set up a custodial account by putting money in your child's name into an account set up for him or her. According to the IRS, you can give each child up to $$ 3,000$ a year $($ 6,000$ if your spouse makes the gilt with you) tax free. The sweet part of it all is that your child, and not you, will be liable for the taxes earned by the custodial account's assets. Under the 1978 Revenue Act, a dependent can earn as much as $$ 1,000$ tax free. If your child should make more than that, he or she will still be in a far lower tax bracket than you probably are in.
    If you do decide to set up a custodial account, there are two reasons for you to make sure that you name someone other than yourself (your lawyer or accountant) as custodian. For one thing, it will keep the money in the account from being included in your estate if you should die before your children get those funds. For another, it will also help avoid a potential problem that may exist because of your location. In more than a dozen states, a child cannot receive the money in a custodial account until he or she reaches the age of 21 . If you live in one of those states, the custodian you name can use the account's money to pay college costs.

    Alternatively, you might consider setting up a so-called "Clifford trust" to fund your children's education. A Clifford trust is simply a short-term revocable trust that is set up to last for at least 10 years and 1 day. Any income earned by the trust belongs to your child and hence is his or her tax liability, not yours. So, the money will compound far faster because it is not being gouged at your tax level. A Clifford trust is a nice way of having your cake and eating it too. When the trust ends, the property you put into it reverts back to you.

    If you decide to set up a Clifford trust, consider establishing it for longer than 10 years and a day. That will let you make additional contributions to the trust-say, to fund a second child's education. If you set it up for just 10 years and 1 day and make additional contributions to the trust, you will be liable for the income taxes on what those contributions earn. And even if you have only one child, letting the assets in trust ride for more than 10 years and a day should be no problem, since everything you put into it will come back to you again when the trust does end.

    There's another trusty way to deal with your children's college costs-if you're willing to give up the property altogether. A charitable remainder trust (House & Garden, November, 1978) could be set up to give your child an income for a set number of years. What's more, you will be able to take a possibly hefty tax deduction when you set up the trust since the charity will eventually get the assets you have donated. The amount you can deduct is based on IRS tables. And since your child will receive the income generated by the charitable remainder trust, he or she will be liable for the income taxes on it.

    If trusts don't appeal to you, consider a company savings plan-if you are fortunate enough to have access to one. Under these plans, which a growing number of companies are setting up, you can contribute a set percentage of your salary-usually between 6 and 10 percent. The company will generally encourage you by donating 50 cents for every dollar you contribute. Some companies match your contributions dollar for dollar. As long as your contributions stay in the plan, they grow tax free. How fast they'll grow depends on the types of investments. Most companies will give you a choice.
    Before you decide to take this route, however, find out if you can pull your money out at will. If the company will only let you withdraw from its savings plan when you retire, you may be hit with a painful penalty if you pull out before then.

    Finally, if you are self-employed or earn extra income, you can make additional voluntary contributions to your retirement plan. You can contribute an additional $2,500 to a Keogh plan. However, do note that this additional contribution is in after-tax dollars. You can contribute up to $$ 7,500$ or 15 percent of your income in pretax dollars to a Keogh plan. It's considered pretax dollars because you can take a deduction for the amount you contribute. If you withdraw just the amount of your additional contribution, you won't have to pay an income tax on it. (The contribution was made in after-tax dollars, remember.) And by leaving the earnings of those additional contributions in the plan, you'll have more money working for your retirement nest egg.

    ## HOW YOUR CHILDREN CAN HELP OUT

    One of the best ways to ease the burden of rising college costs is to let your child help out. There are two basic ways this can be done: by qualifying for academic scholarships or by developing a job skill for part-time work. In either case, your child will have to start preparing himself 2 or 3 years before he is expected to enter college.
    To win an academic scholarship, your child will have to maintain a very high academic average throughout his or her high school years. However, all else being equal, the last 2 or 3 years of school are what really count. (Note also that schools pay close attention to your child's extra-curricular activities in his or her last years of high school.) There are a number of ways that a bright and ambitious child can help out with col-

    "I loved the Pill when I was on it. But, like many women, I had to find another way to prevent pregnancy. I didn't know which way to tum, so I asked my doctor. And he recommended Delfen. Now, I love Delfen. It does everything I want it to do."

    Effective. More doctors recommend DELFEN * Contraceptive Foam than any other foam. It contains one of the most potent sperm-killing ingredients known. And has been proven effective in clinical tests.

    Easy. Delfen Contraceptive Foam is pleasantly easy to use. An applicator delivers the correct amount of foam to give you coverage where you need it. And since it's ready to work immediately, with no waiting, Delfen doesn't interrupt your mood.

    Safe. Millions of women have used Delfen safely. It's gentle to delicate vaginal tissues and non-iritating for most women. No wonder so many doctors recommend Delfen. Yet, you don't need a prescription for it.
    Remember, no method of birth control of any kind can absolutely guarantee against pregnancy. For maximum protection, Delfen must be used according to directions.

    ## Give your car a mind of its own

    ## Computers and other electronic marvels have taken to the road.

    They will help you save time, money, energy, fuel and drive safer

    Electronics is the latest happening in automobiles. Microprocessors keep your carburetor tuned for maximum economy or your stereo tuned for maximum sound. Car computers tell you where you are on the road, whether you have enough gasoline left to get where you're going, and when you'll get there. Automotive stereo radios and tape players are now available with quality that was only available in concert halls two years ago, and even clocks have been upgraded with digital readouts accurate to a hundreth of a second. Here's a guide to the latest in subminiature automobile electronics.

    ## Car computers

    Cadillac's 1979 Seville and Eldorado and Buick's 1979 Riviera have a similar computer. Chrysler and Ford will have their own microprocessors later in the spring. The Cadillac Trip Computer, like the Buick Trip Monitor, is a multiple-function microprocessor, a true digital computer with eleven distinct functions. It keeps track of relatively simple things like your speed, engine revolutions per minute, engine temperature, battery voltage, and time of day. It can also compute your average miles per gallon on a trip, your average speed, and how many miles you can travel on the amount of gasoline still left in the tank. It will tell how many miles there are to go until you reach your destination, what time you'll arrive, and how long you've been on the road. This makes even short trips more fun, and can save worry on long trips. This 11 -function microprocessor costs $$ 920$, and, of course, to get it, you have to buy a Cadillac or Buick.

    If you want just a car computer, for $$ 400$ you can buy a Prince-Board Computer. This very advanced gadget has two digital displays, 36 buttons to push, and performs over two dozen different tasks. The Prince computer weighs 1 pound, and its slim case is less than a foot wide and 3 inches high. It easily mounts on top of or under your car's dashboard, or can even be built into the dash if your car has space. The Prince can do all the things Cadillac's Trip Computer can do, and more. For example, it will automatically ring an alarm, if your speed has edged up over 55 mph , and do other clever tricks like figure the cost per mile or cost per kilometer of driving your car, the cost of the gas you use, and supply a variety of other helpful and entertaining information. It even has an alarm clock.

    The Prince On-Board Computer can perform over two dozen different tasks.

    Probably the biggest bargain in car computers is a tiny microprocessor, not much larger than a pocket calculator, that performs 28 different functions. Called CompuCruise, it costs only $$ 160$, though there's a fancier model for $$ 190$ that includes an electronic cruise control. CompuCruise can be wired into any car, and monitors your car from five different places. It has a transducer on the speedometer cable, another for engine temperature, and one to measure fuel flow. The electronic speed control needs a servo-mechanism, and of course, the CompuCruise must be connected to your car's electrical system. These are all tasks that an enterprising do-it-yourselfer can do in a few hours. On the CompuCruise, you preset the cruising speed you want, and forever after all you have to do is touch one button and the CompuCruise will accelerate your car to the speed you preset and then accurately keep it at that speed for as long as you wish. You never have to fiddle with the speed control again. In addition to the complicated calculations that other computers can do, it will report information like the inside and outside temperatures or how many hours and minutes till you run out of gas. Within five years, you can be sure that every new car will come with a computer like this as optional equipment, but why wait that long?

    ## Music on the road

    One of the nicest results of the revolution in electronics is the miniaturization of really top-quality audio components. The same technology that can fit a digital computer into a pack of cigarettes can also fit a concert hall into your car. Start with an antenna. In most experts' opinion, the best are signal-seeking electronic antennas, which have their own solid-state amplifier built into the base of the antenna itself to amplify the signal going to the $\mathrm{AM} / \mathrm{FM}$ receiver. The least expensive is the Hirschmann Model 3800 at $\$ 40$; the automatic retracting Model 6900 costs around $\$ 110$.

    For around $$ 300$, you can buy a topquality AM/FM / Cassette sound source. This combination tuner-tape deck will be the size of a Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, and can be mounted right in the dashboard of your car where the radio normally goes. Many different manufacturers make high-quality sound sources, from medium-price companies like Jensen, Pioneer, Craig, and Motorola to really expensive brands like Blaupunkt and Audio Mobile. Radio Shack makes a high-power cassette player if you only want to play tapes.

    For best sound in a car, get a component amplifier of at least 40 to 50 watts per channel, to drive your speakers harder than normal, compensating for lack of air space to transmit sound in a car. Linear Power, Audio Mobile, and Laser Acoustics are among the companies making high-quality amplifiers. These cost around $$ 200$ and are also about the size of a Webster's Dictionary and can be mounted inconspicuously under the dash, under the seat, in the trunk or almost anywhere there's room in your car.

    While automobile manufacturers all use 6-by-9-inch oval speakers in their stereo systems, ideally the shape for a speaker is round. Good quality round component speaker systems cost anywhere from $$ 100$ to $$ 500$, and are made by companies like EPI and ADS. If you own a big, luxury car that's fairly quiet, you're ready to enjoy a sound system of this quality. Smaller cars or trucks should be insulated for the best stereo sound. Most audio experts recommend using foil-backed fiberglass household insulation. Stuffed above the headliner, inside the door panels and under the carpets, it will not only make your car quiet, but also keep it cooler in summer and warmer in winter.

    ## Electronic ignition system

    The new electronic ignition system or CDI is standard equipment in many new cars, but you can add this refinement for $$ 50$ on your own vehicle now. A small infrared light, a notched scanning disc, and a modular amplifier replace the inside of the distributor which controls the firing of the sparkplugs. Now your sparkplugs will always produce an optimum, high-voltage spark. There's nothine to wear sut, and theres no need for your mechanic to replace ignition panels again. Just the savings in tuneups and replacement parts will usually pay for an electronic ignition conversion within a year, plus your car's engine will run more smoothly. It should use less gasoline and produce fewer exhaust pollutants.

    ## Electronic gauges

    For the keen driver who wants a simultaneous reading of all facets of his car's condition, there is the Avatar 8000 , which costs $$ 350$. It is a collection of eight super-accurate gauges with digital readouts for your speed, engine revolutions, water temperature, oil temperature, battery voltage, elapsed time, and time of day. There is even a special tachometer which lights up a series of 24 lights across the top of the Avatar to tell you when to shift into the next higher gear. The Avatar 8000 weighs 1 pound and is only 9 inches wide and 1.5 inches high. It can be mounted on top of or under the dash. It doesn't have a memory and it won't do all the calculations of the other computers but some prefer the advantages of simultaneous readouts without pushing buttons.

    Avatar 8000 has 8 accurate gauges with digital readouts-no pushbuttons.

    Finally, for $$ 9.95$ you can buy a tiny space-age gadget that's perfect for people who lose track of car tune-up schedules. The Car-Comp is a 2-by-1-by-1inch cube that contains a counter which starts when your engine is started, stops when you shut the engine off. It adds up the total amount of time your engine is running, so you can have it serviced at the proper intervals. You can preset the Car-Comp to go off at either 100,120 , $150,180,200$, or 220 hours of engine running, which is roughly 5,000 miles to 12,000 miles of highway driving. When the Car-Comp lights up, it's time for a tune-up, oil change, and tire rotation. The Car-Comp uses a sealed solid-state timing capsule which you replace for $$ 1.95$ after the warning light goes on. If you're the sort of person who habitually forgets to have your car serviced, that's a small price to pay for a dependable reminder.

    ## 1979 an American Classic

    ## Hood ornaments are one easy way to tell Granada from Mercedes at a glance...

    If you sometimes confuse Granada with Mercedes, just check the hood ornaments. Two symbols of two classics.

    Compare Granada's elegant style and clean, functional lines with far more expensive cars, like Mercedes.

    Its ride is largely due to Granada's independent front suspension, with stabilizer bar, and Hotchkiss-drive rear suspension.

    Generous amounts of insulation help absorb noise and road vibration.

    Granada surrounds you in luxury with your choice of rich cloth fabrics, supple vinyls and color-keyed carpetings.

    Before you pay a high price for luxury, pay a visit to your Ford Dealer. Examine the new Granada, an American classic. And if it still reminds you of that German classic, remember to compare hood ornaments.

    ## Microwave cooking: It's good for you

    Plus how to program your electronic housekeeper and news about machines that teach a language

    I know microwave cooking is very convenient. but how do the nutritional values of food cooked by microwaves compare with those of food prepared in conventional ways?
    A This is an area in which there has been an extremely large amount of research. and test after test has shown substantially greater amounts of nutrients are maintained in foods cooked by microwaves than in those cooked by traditional methods, such as boiling, frying, and baking. This is generally attributed to two factors: Since microwave cooking is faster. fewer of the nutrients are "cooked away." And because little or no water is added in microwave food preparation, there's less chance of boiling the value out of the food.

    A recent study at Cornell University comparing the cooking of fresh fruits and vegetables by microwaves and by conventional methods found that in 18 out of 24 cases "the ascorbic acid (vita$\min \mathrm{C}$ ) content of the microwave-cooked product was significantly higher" than in food cooked in other ways. Other research has shown sharply higher retention of thiamin (vitamin B1) and riboflavin (B2) in hamburger, frankfurters, haddock, and beet and pork roasts, as well as a variety of other foods, even including cake mixes, when prepared by microwave. Further studies show that heating of frozen foods by microwaves retains more vitamin C and niacin content than other methods, including infrared cooking.

    In a survey of cooking methods used by hospitals, Dr. Robert V. Decareau concluded that "the potential for microwaves in maximizing nutrient retention has only just been tapped" and "it can hardly fail to grow in importance and be expanded into all food-service areas to the benefit of mankind." Dr. Gertrude Armbruster, associate professor of nutritional sciences, who supervised the Cornell research, summed up: "For a society that is as nutrition-conscious as the U.S. population is, these results are strong arguments favoring the use of microwave cooking methods.

    ## Q How can I learn to program and operate a full-size home computer?A Before a computer can be operated, it must be "programmed." A program is simply a set of instructions to the computer. Most home computers come with at least some programs already prepared and have a variety of others available at extra cost. These programs usually are on tape cassettes, similar to those used for sound recording. For familiarization with a computer, it's a good idea to use a few of these simple, ready-made programs, particularly those which are fun -for example, ones which let you play games, such as blackjack or tick-tacktoe, against another opponent or the computer itself. This is an excellent way to learn not to be intimidated by the very idea of a computer.

    To do your own programming, you must learn "computer language." The most popular of the several computer languages for simple personal computers is called "Basic" (which stands for "Beginners" All-purpose Symbolic Instruction Code"). The instruction manual which comes with the computer usually gives easily mastered details on programming. In addition, there are several good elementary books on computers and programming which are generally available at the same stores which sell the computers. Some computers even have cassettes which use the computer itself to instruct users in how to program them.

    A new trend is to classroom instruction by computer dealers at both elementary and advanced levels. Some public-school adult-education courses are now available in the use of personal computers. And if you have children of school age, they may be able to teach you a lot more about your computer than you think, since many schools now use computers in the classroom. Within the next year or so, however, a large number of prepared programs on virtually every subject from menu preparation, list storage, household finances, diet and nutrition, to learning a foreign language and music composition will become available. Although the idea of a houschold computer still (and falsely)

    Q I've heard it's possible to learn a language on a portable computer-how does it work?

    A As new integrated-circuit "chips" are developed, small electronic gadgets become more and more "intelligent" and more useful and intriguing. The new hand-held computers for learning languages look very like calculators. These battery-operated, portable machines have letter and number keyboards and a screen. You punch in a word or phrase in one language and the screen displays it in another. Two units, one sold by Lexicon Corporation and the other by Craig Corporation, sell for $$ 200$ to $$ 225$.     - Wood glue ( $1 / 16$ bottle) ............ $$ 0.08$
    - 2 sheets sandpaper

    Total $4.67

    ## Tools

    Hand saw Hand drill
    Hammer
    Carpenter's square
    Sanding block
    Tape measure
    Pencil
    Step Construction of basic box
    Cut wood to size as follows:

    - 6 pieces 1 -by- $6-$ inch pine, $311 / 2$ inches long for 4 seat slats, plus front and back of seat frame (see " $A$ " in above diagram)
    -2 pieces 1 -by- 6 -inch pine, 30 inches long for sides of seat frame (see "B") 22 pieces 1 -by- 2 -inch pine, $311 / 2$ inches long for narrow seat slats (see "C")

    ## Step 3 and wood

    - Sanding can be done by wrapping paper around a short block of wood or with power sander. First use medium "rain sandpaper to remove splinters, dges, and bumps. Next use fine grain per until wood is smooth. (If you plan paint, this will be sufficient. If you plan to apply a clear finish, sand with finishing paper before applying first coat and also between coats.) To smooth the wood edges, sand them three or four times.

    ## Step To make box frame

    - Start four nails into each end of two $311 / 2$-inch-long 1 -by- 6 -inch pieces. The nails are $1 / 2$ inch from the ends and evenly spaced about $11 / 2$ inches apart.

    $1 / 2^{\prime \prime} 1^{1 / 2^{\prime \prime}} 11 / 2^{\prime \prime} 1 \frac{1}{2 \prime \prime} 2^{\prime \prime} 1 / 2^{\prime \prime}$
    -Spread glue on the ends of the shorter 30 -inch-long frame pieces.
    - Nail the $311 / 2$-inch-long pieces to the 30 -inch pieces as shown to form a square.

    ## Step To complete box

    -Start 2 nails into each end of the two 1 -by-2-inch pieces, about $3 / 4$ inch apart.

    - Start 3 nails into each end of the four remaining $311 / 2$-inch-long 1 -by- 6 -inch pieces evenly spaced about 2 inches apart.
    - Spread glue on the top edge of the frame along the $311 / 2$-inch lengths which form the front and back.
    - Making sure the frame is square, nail the 1 -by- 2 -inch narrow seat slats to the frame (see below).
    - Nail three more nails into each 1-by-2inch piece, spacing them evenly about $71 / 2$ inches apart along the length of the wood, $1 / 2$ inch from the edge, as shown.

    - Spread glue for remaining seat slats starting $11 / 2$ inch from the 1-by-2-inch slats and continuing across frame as marked in the following diagram.
    - Nail the four $311 / 2$-inch 1 -by- 6 -inc seat slats as shown.

    $1^{7 / 16^{\prime \prime}} 1^{1} 8^{\prime \prime} 1^{1} 8^{\prime \prime} 1^{1} 8^{\prime \prime} 1^{17} 16^{\prime \prime}$

    ## Step To make complete seat unit with two boxes

    - Drill four $1 / 2$-inch holes 1 inch deep each box, two in the top and two in tt bottom, as shown. The holes are ce tered 3 inches from each side and inch from each side as shown below.

    - Insert dowels to keep boxes from slip ping when stacked.

    Step

    Assembly of back unit

    - Cut wood to size as follows:

    3 pieces 1 -by- 6 -inch pine, $311 / 2$ inche long (see " A " in first diagram).

    - Sand wood as above.
    - Start 5 nails into one end of two $311 / 2$ inch-long pieces within an area 5 inche from the top (see below).

    - Mark 4 lines across the remaining piece at the points marked above.
    - Spread glue between lines.
    - Place the first two pieces on the gluer surfaces and, making sure they art square, nail them into position.

    Notice the changes in these faces, reflecting Van Gogh's growing self-awareness. The final self-portrait was painted only months before his suicide. In his brief career, spanning only 10 years, Vincent Van Gogh produced more than 1,700 paintings. Yet he sold only one-and that for an equivalent of $$ 80$. (Recently, a Van Gogh sold for more than $1 million.) During his life, he so belittled himself that he signed his work merely "Vincent."

    To have a clearer understanding of art, to know what to look for when you stand before a painting, you will appreciate the Time-Life Library of Art. Written in informal, narrative style by distinguished art historians, these books give you a complete introduction to seminal artists-Michelangelo, Rembrandt, Titian, Vermeer, Cézanne, Matisse, Picassoand knowledge of the influence each had on the world's 700 -year heritage of fine art.

    ## Giving plants the right drink

    Tips and tactics for watering your indoor garden

    ## By Richard Langer

    The when-and-how of watering house plants is probably the most asked question in the tending of indoor greenery. And it's the most difficult to answer. To a large extent, this is because, unlike baking, for instance, where one can readily define matters by specifying what's needed-a cup of flour, 2 eggs, a tablespoon of sugar, and so forth-watering plants is much less precise, more like Grandma's recipes: "Add milk to the dry ingredients till the dough has the right consistency." The question remains, of course, what is the right consistency?

    Probably more plants are killed by overwatering than by underwatering. On the other hand, due to underwatering, too many plants look like scraggly messes. The solution is to look beyond the watering can itself. Find out which plants like a lot of moisture and which do not. And find a way that no matter how much you water your plants, you won't overwater, which means taking a look at how you pot up your plants in the first place. When it comes to watering, what actually kills the plants is having their roots stand in the water. Submerged roots are unable to breathe. It's the same difference between walking in a heavy downpour and holding your head completely under water.
    Cacti specialist Dr. J. DeWorth of

    ## HOW TO WICK POTS

    While I wouldn't bother with them for all my plants, pots with wicks have a definite place in a plant grower's repertory. Before you pot up a plant, thread a wick of fairly rot-resistant material through the bottom drainage hole of the pot. (Special potting wicks are available at many garden centers.) Anchor it in place with shards, but make sure you let it extend through them into the soil. Fill a reservoir beneath the pot with pebbles and water, and the

    Texas A&M, and other researchers in the field, have learned that growing specimens in very porous, gritty, sandy potting mixes promotes superior drainage and air circulation around the roots. An exceptionally loose, porous potting mixture, combined with proper potting methods, will make it impossible to overwater.

    First into the pot, of course, go the traditional shards, those broken pieces of pottery that cover the bottom drainage hole. Now why put a hole there in the first place, you may well ask, if it's only to be covered up? The answer is that it should be covered in such a way that the soil won't wash out, yet water can pass through freely. This is why pieces of broken pottery are used. By placing the concave side down over the hole, you produce both desired results.

    After the shards are in place, cover them with a 1 -inch layer of very coarse gravel to which you have added a tablespoonful of activated charcoal (available at pet stores). The gravel gives extra drainage area. The charcoal keeps the soil and water "sweet." Now fill the pot with a very loose soil mix, one all the excess water will literally run right through. The so-called soilless mixes originally developed at Cornell work very well. The basic one consists of one part coarse sphagnum peat moss, one part medium-to-coarse vermiculite, and one part medium-to-coarse perlite, with about a teaspoonful of ground limestone per pot (except for acid-loving plants). This mix works very well in keeping your plant roots moist and happy. However, it provides no real nourishment, and plants grown in it must be fertilized on a regular basis. Replacing the perlite, whose white color I find aesthetically unpleasing in any case, with an equal portion of rich, loose potting soil produces a mixture I've found pretty ideal for most house plants, providing nourishment as well as good, light footing.

    When you pot up the plant, don't bring the soil level up all the way to the edge of the pot. This is probably the factor that produces more watering problems, psychological and physical, than any other. The rim around a pot serves two functions, neither of them thought about much these days. The first is that when the pots are stacked empty, one within the next, the pots don't jam together, but remain easily separable. Secondly, and most importantly, the rim indicates the proportionate amount of reserve space needed at the top of the pot in order for the soil to become moistensed properly when watered.

    Bring the soil level up barely above the bottom of the pot's rim when you plant, and you have a natural indicator of how much to water. Fill this reservoir with tepid water and the water will permate all of the soil, with a little excess draining out the bottom, just what the plant needs.

    Too many potted plants have soil all the way up to the top of the rim. When you water the soil, water flows over the side almost immediately. So you automatically stop watering, but, unfortunately, only the top half or so of the soil becomes moist this way. Consequently, the plant develops a very small, shallow root system, not at all what it needs for good lush growth.

    This, by the way, is probably the cause of the old water-from-above/wa-ter-from-below controversy. Some people found that pouring water into the saucer beneath the pot produced better growth than watering from above. But this was only because the plant never received enough water from above. The best way to water is still the traditional top-of-the-soil method-making sure that there's enough water each time so some excess drains out the bottom, indieating that all the soil in the pot has been moistened.

    With regard to the quality of the water itself, heavily chlorinated water should stand overnight to permit the harmful chlorine to volatize off. Water that has been treated with a softening agent may harm plants. And plants find cold-water showers no more pleasant than most people do, so always use tepid water.

    How often to water is, of course, a crucial question, but one that has solved

    ## PLANTS AROUND THE HOUSE

    continued from page 70itself if you have used a really loose porous potting mixture, a gravel bottom layer, and the properly sized top reservoir. Even if you water the plants every day, you can rarely give them too much, because the excess will immediately drain out. So if the surface soil feels dry, go ahead and water. All that will happen if the soil doesn't really need more moisture is that a puddle will grow in the dish beneath the pot. One note of caution in this regard: If you use a cachepot instead of a saucer for the overflow, too much excess water may collect in the bottom where you can't see it. Lift the plant pot out ten minutes after watering to check that the excess in the cachepot is not higher than the pot's gravel level. An inch or 2 of gravel in the bottom of the cachepot itself will provide some room for the overflow to evaporate slowly, raising the humidity around the plant to healthful levels.

    ## Humidity

    When one thinks of watering plants, one thinks of just that-pouring some water into the pots to moisten the soil. But atmospheric moisture, or humidity, is just as important to a plant. Lack of humidity dries out your plants, at best keeping them from growing well, at worst dehydrating leaves till they turn brown. To protect themselves from excessive water loss in the dry air, plants lose their leaves. Fewer leaves, less moisture loss -and less attractiveness. Plants need a relative humidity of about 40 to 50 percent. So do paintings, people, and fine wood furniture.

    Misting your plants with tepid water daily, or better yet, two or three times a day, is helpful. But misting raises the humidity only temporarily. Growing the plants in groups, say five or six pots together on one table or window sill, also helps because they tend to form a small high-humidity area around them from combined soil evaporation and leaf transpiration. Putting the group of pots on a pebble tray, where there's extra water in between the pebbles to evaporate constantly around the plants, is better yet. Best of all is a humidifier. You may make the humidifier less obtrusive by covering the top with arching plants. Your plants will thrive as never before, and you'll probably be healthier too.

    ## The wet vacation

    One real watering problem: Who does it, and when, while you're away? For shorter vacations-anything up to three weeks, or maybe even four if the plants are in big pots, which take longer to lose their moisture-you may use the bathtub with success. Put some of those plastic-covered wire dish drainers upside down in a bathtub. Then fill the Continued on page 191

    By Beverly Russell

    When the wind whips at your face, snow is gathered in the gutter, and winter has lost its magic, it's time to go south very far south. Eight-and-a-half hours by jumbo jet from New York, you deplane into the tropical fiesta resort, Rio de Janeiro

    You will bless the jumbo's wide seats and the classical music lullaby on the headset (Horowitz played Chopin for me). You land at 8 A.M., two hours later than the information on your wrist watch. Palm trees and luxuriant foliage line the streets on the half-hour drive to the fabled Copacabana Beach. In the humid haze glinting with early-morning sun, your driver points out the eerie-shaped "Sugarloaf" mountain, and the baroque Gloria church balanced precariously on a hilltop. The impression for the newcomer to the Southern Hemisphere is that architecture, avenues, beach, alfresco restaurants resemble a fabulous soufflé of every Latin country in Europe-Portugal, Spain, Southern France, Italy.

    You can stay on the "Copa" as your pocketbook dictates. Probably most luxurious is the Copacabana Palace-like

    ## The Biltmore House

    A French château in the North Carolina Hills

    ## By Penelope W. Linck

    Chutenu-like fuende of Biltmores Honse
    The rolling hills outside Asheville, North Carolina, hide treasure: a 250 -room, almost-French château called Biltmore House. When George Washington Vanderbilt, grandson of Cornelius, stood on the balcony outside his family dining room (not the Banquet Hall which seats 50 at one long table), he could see 30 miles to Mount Pisgah and know that he owned all of it- 125,000 acres. In the late 1880 s, Mr. Vanderbilt had asked Richard Morris Hunt, architect, and Frederick Law Olmsted, landscape architect, to come to Asheville and create a country retreat-like a Loire Valley château.

    Today, Biltmore is much more than a big house. The driveway winds 3 miles from the lodge gate before reaching it, then through Mr. Olmsted's signature work-along the French Broad River, across it several times on fieldstone bridges, by fields of wheat and hay and through parklike places full of native plants. Walking paths crisscross everywhere and are open to strollers. Olmsted's plan was to have something in Cominued on page 80 many parasols as you want for protection? The rollers burst forth in frothy tiers, gorgeous tanned bodies dive in and out of the surf. The assortment of bikinis is as confusing to the sensory system as 1,000 varieties of ice cream. There's no need to break the idyll for lunch. The beach is a fairground of itinerant salespeople. We take juicy wedges of pineapple, a slice or two of Brazilian couscous, a triple-layered sandwich of shredded coconut, tapioca, and sugar. Five o'clock finds us back in the hotel showering off sand, smoothing in aftertan lotion, and deciding on the night's entertainments. By seven, the moon is glistening over the bay. All the way along the Avenida Atlantica between the beach and hotels are alfresco bars, restaurants, and cafés that you might see in Europe. For an apéritif, we try something more Brazilian, the Bip Bip, a street corner bar where there are more locals than tourists. Standing at the counter, we order a caipirinha, a drink composed of the local alcohol, cachaça, over a whole crushed fresh lime, drenched in sugar and ice. We pair it with an empadinha, a delicious little pie stuffed with shrimp or chicken. Behind the bar is a blackboard chalked with other petiscos (hors d'oeuvre), sausage, salami, quail eggs, olives, pickles.

    From the Bip Bip, we walk along the Avenida leisurely, enjoying the people and the samba music, to the Ouro Verde, a small, elegant hotel with a reputation going back to the 30 s. Another apéritif in the garden, and then into a gastronomic event. The cuisine is basically French, but you can find Brazilian tastes if you choose carefully. The local fish badejo, for example, is beautifully poached in a wine and cream sauce, with asparagus and whipped potatoes. Among the temptations on the dessert trolley is a pink, sweet guava compote, a native fruit that's a cross between an apricot and a fig.

    Does the beach ever close? It seems not. There are people dancing, kissing, moon-gazing as you walk back along the Avenida. At five in the morning, some Cariocas are out there jogging and exercising before the day gets too hot. By eight, on a weekend, the shore is as crowded as you will see it any time of day. No wonder the bodies are so beautiful. With constant ocean massage, every muscle is toned. Brazilians are very sports-minded. All the way along the beach are volleyball nets. Fifteen minutes drive away, past the chic Ipanema beach, where the waves are high rollers, the surfers get their thrills. Carioca fitness consciousness extends to food and drink. For lunch, a Brazilian will often stop at a juice har. Casa do Sucos, and choose from 19 different fresh fruits. Or mix two together-passion fruit with papaya, melon, and coconut. For novelty, try fruta do conde, the count's fruit. Fo'low with a vitamina do abacate, a blend of avocado, milk, and honey. These two are enough to keep you going until dusk.

    While the beach is a continual magnet, with so many intriguing mountain peaks silhouetted in every direction around Rio, you can't resist adventuring. Climb up one hill to the Colonial church Outerio da Gloria, which many believe is one of the finest 18 th-century baroque churches in the world. From there, continue to Santa Teresa, Rio's equivalent of Montmartre, where you can see work of the local artists in a museum on the Largo do Guimaraes. Some well-seasoned travelers choose to stay in this neighborhood, at the inexpensive but charming Hotel Santa Tersa-a good choice if you don't care to tan or swim.

    Brazilians thrive on color. You see it in the cars they drive, the zingiest blues, greens, yellows, reds, and oranges ever seen on the road. And their housespainted pink, lavender, blue, terra cotta, yellow with white shutters, or in the reverse with white walls and rainbow shutters. A drive to Petropolis, the "summer" capital an hour north into the cooler hills, will impress you with visual delights-houses nestling against tropical shrubs, the bright hibiscus, and everywhere the dazzling yellow national flower of Brazil called the ipe amarela.

    In Petropolis, you find native ceramic and furniture ateliers. At Bonsuccesso, a village just beyond, young girls handpaint or screen-print tiles with modern, traditional, or blue and white Portuguese designs. A table for six or eight, lacquered red, inlaid with red, white, and blue tiles on its surface is $$ 300$ with two matching lacquered benches. A little further along at Ceramica Luis Alvador are more tiles for walls, roofs, swimming pools, fountains. Pitchers, vases, plates, bowls, mugs, wine glasses, glorious casseroles, huge lamp bases, great cachepots for plants or trees are in marvelous colors-a rich red like château-bot:led wine, an intense blue, deep sea green, a luminous white. Four heavy white dinner plates, with "crinkiy" edges are $5. A marmalade pot, $3. Allow time for this day trip. You will spend longer than you planned, especially if you stay for lunch at the 18 thcentury Quitandinha, once a casino in Petropolis.

    Back in Rio for dinner, we take a refreshing batida de coco, coconut milk cocktail spiced with pinga, on the 30th floor Sky Lab bar of the Othon Palace. There's a pool here, open to the sky; a canvas canopy shades the bar. From there, cab to the Copacabana Palace for dinner, where the dining room has black marble walls, white Chinese furniture,

    It's ten years since the world was impressed by Brazilia, an architectural assemblage of modern design. Today something else seems to be going on in terms of building. At the Barra and Costa Brava, a few miles along the coast from Rio where the affluent Cariocas are moving, recycling is in full swing. Each house is constructed with recycled materials-tiles, timbers, old planks, Victorian staircases, driftwood, railroad ties. You stand and stare at one extraordinary example, a house with a base of enormous logs lashed together to support a cement and steel structure topped off with a terra-cotta tiled roof. It is perched on its steel girders high on a rock, with a sheer drop to the ocean hundreds of feet below. A Victorian staircase winds up to a cantilevered deck. You feel if a hurricane hit this house and it toppled into the sea, miraculously it would float on its base of lashed-together tree trunks.

    Two hours' plane trip northeast from Rio at Salvador, known to most Brazilians as Bahia, you will find one of Brazil's most spectacular architectural restorations. It's a 17th-century nunnery, now a very fine hotel, the Convento do Carmo. (If you saw the movie Dona Flor and Her Two Husbands, you will recognize the streets in this city.) Once in Bahia, you are no longer in familiar Latin surroundings-the atmosphere is Africa. People walk rhythmically with loads on their heads. Music is in their voices. Make the trip to Bahia if you possibly can to experience the contrast in lifestyles.

    As your cab climbs narrow cobbled streets to the Convento, you are dazzled with houses in a rainbow of colors, iced with white decoration. The nunnery is hardly changed architecturally (part of it is still in use), just polished up, yet here is as much luxury and comfort as you can find anywhere in the world. The central courtyard is now a sunning terrace with a big round swimming pool in the middle. Your room is a nun's cell, with timbers criss-crossing the ceiling, polished wood floor, marvelous antique furniture. The bed is covered with a white hand-crocheted spread; white lace curtains hang in front of shuttered windows. There's a window seat where once a solitary nun sat and looked out on to the courtyard. If you want quiet, peaceful seclusion, you find it in these surroundings. Yet you can venture out and find throbbing African music just around the corner. For $$ 1.50$, buy two tickets for an evening performance in an outdoor theatre, part of a community center in a beautiful old restored house nearby. Drums, chanting, dancing get your feet beating. You sip a cocktail as you watch exuberant male warrior dancers, and girls dressed in swirly white dresses with lacy pantaloons. When it's all over, rhythms pulsating in your head, you climb a cobbled hill to the Hotel Pelourinho where women in exotic Carmen Miranda costume-turbans, colorful cotton skirts, rope upon rope of beads cascading around the neck-serve you dinner.

    In Bahia, you get up early to see the city. Take your cab down to the Mercado Modelo market, at 8 A.m. where craftspeople sell their work. The birimbau rhythm (played from a coconut shell with a flexible bow of wire) is all around you as you browse here, looking at leather bags, beautiful embroidered cottons, silver trinkets, handwoven hammocks, ceramics, baskets, 'old wooden trunks and chests, and endless stalls with macumba or "voodoo" charms. From the market, walk to the extraordinary elevador which takes you, for 30 cents, to upper Bahia, where the air is fresh and the atmosphere historic. This was the fortress where, in 1620, the Portuguese fought off an attack from the Dutch. Take a refreshing vitamina de fruta with a coconut cake at the bar at the top of the elevator, overlooking the bay. By 10 A.M., you are back at the Convento for a quiet saunter through the nunnery museum and a cool swim.

    There is one restaurant you are told is a must and it certainly lives up to its reputation-Sol de Unhao. It's in the former slaves' quarters of an old elegant estate down by the water. Vaulted ceilings, views of the sea, a bistro feeling, and Bahian cooking-a very special kind of soul food cooked in dendepalm oil-and coconut milk. Try mиqueca de siri mole, soft-shell crab or vatapa, a peppery mixture of fish and shrimp, peanuts, cashews and coconut, drenched in golden sautéed manioc flour. You drink very sour fresh lemon drinks in the heat of the day. An afternoon trip to the beach, perhaps, with almost white sand fringed with palm trees, and empty like a desert island. (Bahia is an industrial city, so there's no time for play as they do in Rio.) Then back to the Convento, dinner in the subterranean dining room where candles light the tables and you are surrounded by a flotilla of waiters. For dessert, not one but four different kinds of coconut specialties. Take the brown, sugary one. Delicious, different. Like Brazil.

    OLAR HOUSES takes up where the first generation of solar energy books zaves off; showing through photographs, interviews and practical informaon what the new solar life style involves, how owners are reacting to it, nd what the economic factors are. Providing a nationwide look at residen al solar applications, the 48 energy-saving designs in the book include assive and active solar systems, pre-manufactured and mail-order plans, nderground houses, remodeled and new custom-designed houses.
    he book's author is Louis Gropp, who, as editor-in-chief of the House & iarden Guides, has been criss-crossing the country over the past several ears keeping up with the multi-faceted new solar architecture. His text, lus easy-to-follow plans and diagrams, gives us-whether layman or xpert-a clear idea of how each of these solar houses work, while the lany handsome architectural photographs document the wide spectrum i design possibilities that exist within the solar context.
    handsome record of a profound and exciting change in architecture, OLAR HOUSES has been chosen as a Book-of-the-Month Club hardcover Iternate; a main selection by both The Library of Urban Affairs and the rchitects Book Club, an alternate by the Designer's Book Club, and, in aperback, by the Quality Paperback Book Club.

    Beautiful interior and exterior photographs, more than 100 of them in color, and the quality of the book's design, lift SOLAR HOUSES above the more flatly illustrated books on the subject, giving the reader a vivid picture of how handsome, comfortable and practical solar houses can be.

    After touring the house, take a stroll in the air through the 4-acre, stone wallenclosed English garden and then the fanciful, all-glass conservatory with its orchid and cactus houses. The estate now covers 10,600 acres (the Blue Ridge Parkway cuts through the miiddle), but most was given to the state as a park and a few thousand acres were sold for development into Biltmore Forest, where the two Vanderbilt grandsons have houses. One grandson has established a winery, but since the vines are still young, wines are not available to try. The place also supports a large dairy herd and the Biltmore Dairy which produces, among other things, a regionally distributed Biltmore-brand ice cream. These enterprises, with the $$ 7$ admission charge, make the estate self-supporting. Where to stay:
    The nearby town of Asheville has lots of hotels and motels and is very popular with lowland tourists, who come to the cool of the mountains. There are also full-fledged resorts like the Grove Park Inn, which is tucked into Sunset Mountain, built at the turn of the century of jagged boulders. You can swim, play tennis or golf on a steep and beautifully kept course. Dinner outdoors on the terrace is very attractive. Try the trout and raw spinach salad. You can also visit the Biltmore Homespun Shops on the Inn's grounds, which sells fabric made right there.

    ## Shopping:

    The mountains in and around Asheville abound in craftsmen. The Southern Highland Handicraft Guild, whose members come from eight states, runs two shops in Asheville, each crammed with handmade baskets, pottery, weaving, carving. The most colorful baskets are woven by the Cherokee Indians on their reservation about 65 miles west of Asheville. The gift shop there has the widest selection and is worth the jaunt, but all craft shops carry some.

    Devote some afternoons to exploring: Go south to Fletcher for hooked and braided rugs or head east about 16 miles to Black Mountain, which is making an exciting beginning-Cherry Street is lined with antiques shops, a saloon, a health-food store, jewelry maker, and frame shop. At the base of the street in the old railroad depot is a craft shop devoted to local artists working in traditional mediums and new ones like soft sculpture. Around the corner is the Appalachian Wind Chime Factory. Its anteroom is hung with the available designs

    # A SHORT COURSE ON GLASS

    ## A complete shopping and care guide to glass

    By Margaret Morse

    Throughout history, manners and design have gone hand in hand. Until the 17th century, glass was so precious one glass was passed around the table. After the French Revolution, each diner got his own glass, and when more than one wine was served, a special glass-rinsing basin was set at each place. As 19th-century mechanization made glass more affordable, three to five glasses a placesetting generally became the rule, depending on the wines being served. Today-keen on informality and easy care-we've taken up the all-purpose wineglass.

    Here are some terms to look and listen for when you shop:
    Full lead crystal-contains at least 30 percent lead.
    Crystal or lead crystal - contains at least 24 percent lead.
    Flint glass-glass or crystal with an unspecified high lead content.

    Soda-lime glass-may be called semicrystal or half-crystal if it contains between 8 and 24 percent lead. Or just plain glass, containing less than 24 percent lead-or no lead at all.

    What's so important about lead? The higher the lead content, the brighter and clearer-and stronger-the glass will tend to be. And, on glass that hasn't been deliberately colored, the closer to "water white" rather than gray it will be. At the other end of the scale is soda-lime glass that has not been skillfully "decolorized": It may look slightly green or tan instead of gray-commonly caused by trace amounts of iron oxide-as little as $5 / 100$ ths of a percent! You may not notice a tint by inspecting glasses individually, but try looking through several glasses of a pattern shoulder-to-shoulder. The tint will probably be more apparent when you get your dozen glasses table setting. And get a true reflection of your culinary abilities. For more ideas, send us home and set the dining table or buffet with them. So compare patterns in the store.

    There are other characteristics of lead content. The higher the lead content, the darker the shadow the glass will cast and the heavier it will seem for its size. Crystal rims tend to give a metallic ring when you tap them with your finger. Glass rims tend to go "thunk." A thin glass rim may sound metallic too-a thick crystal one will not. The more lead, the deeper the designs the manufacturer can cut into the glass without it fragmenting.

    Whatever the type glass, remember that it will tend to take on the color of the background, so unless the background is white, it's best if you ask to see the glass by a daylit window. But don't-one expert suggests-choose a glass on beauty alone: "Choose a glass you'll feel comfortable holding-and using."

    ## How is it made?

    There is ofien some confusion between the manufacturing terms freeblown, handblown. and machine-made. If the glass is labeled freeblown, it means it was handblown and shaped without a mold (offhand). Until a few years ago you'd see freeblown glass only at a few stores and at galleries ard crafts fairs. Recently an increasing number of department stores have added "craft" sections to their glass departments. You'll find many more freeblown vases and the like than glasses, as duplicating shape and size without a mold takes supreme sk 11 .

    The term handblown usually means the glass was handblown in:o a mold, not the air. There is often slizht variation between one glass and the nixt. A : d that's what makes it interesting. S:me molded glass looks cut-it's o.ten made with a percentage of a barium coms pound, to make the edges better defined, like those of cut glass.

    In both freeblown and handblown glass you'll often notice other tiny irregularities that are all part of the handcrafted process: (1) a tiny bubbla cr two ("seeds"). (2) A pontil mark - the small central indentation on the glass bottom or pitcher handle where the picce was attached to the pontil for the final step, fire-polishing. (Some glasses are attached from the bowl end, and the glass is cut away at the rm, leaving no mark.) (3) "Rings of light," caused by variations in the density of the walls of a glass, bowl or vase.

    Machine-made glass is the least expensive. It's mechanically blown and molded-and usually called mold-biown or blown-molded. At its best it can be very clear and strong. Glasses of a given pattern are virtually identical. You can tell machine-made glass by its seams, although some simple, symmetric ma-chine-made pieces have no seams.

    ## Cut or uncut?

    Should you choose cut or uncut glass? It's up to you. Imagine two vases of brilliant, virtually colorless glass-one cut, one plain. On the cut vase you'll probably notice the cutting more than the overall shape. The glass will scintillate and break the light into a rainbow of colors as a prism does. On the plain vase you'll tend to notice the shape and transparency of the glass.

    In an interview when he was VicePresident and Design Director of Tiffany & Co., George O'Brien made the remark that "Clear crystal's the hardest thing to do-cutting was almost invented to cover up bubbles and imperfections. It's much easier to do a mediocre cutting job than to produce pristine uncut crystal." Superlative handcutting, however, is very hard to do. Tiffany carries a massive punch bowl with deep handcut key-hole-shaped scallops. It requires so much careful work that three out of four bowls end up literally on the cuttingroom floor.

    ## Crystal care

    Washing. You shouldn't put collector's crystal or gilt-decorated glass in the dish-washer-heat may crack it and remove some of the gold. In general, wash other fine glass in the dishwasher as little as possible, since-one expert claims-the detergent may slowly etch glass till it's permanently dull and gray. Much inexpensive machine-made glassware, on the other hand, is dishwasher-safe. So use your judgment-and check manufacturers' instructions.

    If you do use the dishwasher, space and brace pieces so vibrations won't rub or throw them together. If your dish. washer has a "fine glass and china" setting, use it: The cooler temperature will be easier on the glass and china.

    When washing by hand, "cushion' your sink with a perforated rubber "sink mat" or with a terry-cloth towel. Don'। crowd pieces. Add a little vinegar to your soapy wash water and to your rinse water to discourage water-spotting Don't plunge cold glass into hot wate and vice versa-heat extremes may crack it. Cracking often happens when you knock a rim against the faucet while you're rinsing glass-help prevent it by capping the faucet with a rubber strainer.

    Drying. Look for lint-free dishtowels They often have the word glass wove into them. Dry stemware on a terry towel-covered counter: It's less tips than a dishrack.
    Dusting. Foil scratches. Use a soft, lint free cloth dampened in a mild water an ammonia solution. Never "dry dust."
    Displaying and storing
    Space pieces apart. Separate stacke plates with felt pads. Keep bottom scratch-free. Don't slide or twirl piece: Place each tabletop piece on tiny felt o rubber discs. Line shelves.

    Glass is pretty at a window, but kee it out of direct sunlight, just in case you piece is one of the rare ones that woul act as a burning glass.

    Don't keep glass in excelsior, news paper, or another moisture-absorbin material for a long period of time. Pr longed contact with moisture leaches th sodium oxide in the glass to the surfact This leaching is called hazing, and it more common in soda-lime glass than i

    ## We've

    From den to living room, kitchen to dining room, bedroom to bath - even patio doorsLiken Home Furnishings has you covered.

    Take our famous Del Mar Woven Woods, for instance. Equally at home in any room of the house, every woven wood shade we build (and we build more shades, in more patterns and styles, than anyone else) is made from the choicest of imported woods.

    Stained in walnut, pecan or five other natural colors, the slats are handsomely interwoven with hundreds of decorator yarns, plied for stability and strength.

    The results are breathtaking.
    You get a long-lasting, rollable, foldable got you shade that turns any window into an instant conversation piece.

    Or try our ultra-modern Classique Metal Blinds. Clean lines, beautiful colors. No one needs to introduce you to the fashionable world of one-inch metal blinds.

    They're the beautiful new coverings you've seen in all the best of windows. Available in over 50 colors, these stylishly slim slats (and the devilishly simple plexiglas control wand) are as practical as they are pleasing.

    You choose the room. Classique sets the mood. Up, down, open, closed or tilted-youf can throw a splash of color on virtually any window in the house.

    - HOUSE-RAISING READING Re: Sandra Oddo's "Give Me Shelter" article in the March, 1978 issue, where can I find out more on owner-building? -M.R., Evansville, Ind. You can get a free mail-order catalogue of about 70 publications on owner-building and related fields from OwnerBuilder Publications (P.O. Box 550, Oakhurst, Calif. 93644). The firm is run by Ken Kern, who has written The Owner-Built Home (Scribner's, $6.95 paperback, $$ 12.95$ hardcover) and other books. The two-page catalogue includes titles not only on homebuilding but on homesteading, alternative technology, and other down-to-earth subjects. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your inquiry.

    ## 回 COOKBOOK HUNT

    I lost my favorite dessert cookbook several years ago and have searched-hungrily!-for another copy without success. Do you know any place I might track it down?-M.F., New York, N.Y. Eleanor Lowenstein of the Corner Book Shop ( 102 Fourth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10003) has been helping "hungry" readers for years. If you send her the name of the author and title you're looking for, she'll check her stock of thousands of out-of-print and second-hand books on cooking and gastronomy and let you know if yours is among them. If it's not, she'll keep an eye out for it. A catalogue listing over 360 of the shop's current offerings is available for $$ 1$ ppd., refundable with a purchase.

    ## BRUSHING UP

    I have a sterling silver dresser set. The bristles of the brush are so worn. Some of its tufts-and teeth from the combare missing. Do you know any repair person who can "redress" this?
    -M.L., Princeton, N.J. No silver-blessed brush should go begging for want of bristles. If you wrap the brush and comb carefully and send them -via insured mail-to Gabriel Hirsch at Hess Repairs (200 Park Ave. at 17th St., Room 1514, New York, N.Y. 10003), he'll send you an estimate. Two kinds of bristles are available-pig or nylon. Pig ones are more expensive, but Mr. Hirsch says many owners of Victorian sets prefer them for their oldfashioned look. Hess Repairs will remove minor dents and give the brush a whole new set of bristles, in a new base of ivory-colored plastic. A "tortoise" plastic comb can be fit to the silver comb spine. If the original teeth are real tortoise shell, the comb may be better left as is: By law, endangered-species tortoise shell-and things made from itcan no longer be imported into the U.S. so you'd have a period piece. Hess can also give a silver handmirror a new bright and shining face by installing new mirror, either with or-less expen-sive-without a beveled edge.

    ## FEATHERED FRIENDS

    We read with great interest your December 1975 story "How To Welcome Song-birds-The Joy of a Winter Garden." Can you suggest an equally good source for information on building birdhouses?
    -B.T., Aurora, N.Y. As you probably know, to have a birdhouse in demand, you have to build it with a particular species of local bird in mind. Roger Tory Peterson's "Bird Houses" booklet gives the vital measurements you need to design your own houses for 18 kinds of birds, from bluebirds to wood ducks to purple martins. A copy is available for $50 \phi$ plus $25 \phi$ shipping from the publisher, the National Audubon Society, 950 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. New York residents please add sales tax.

    Or you might send for the plan book 102 Bird Houses, Feeders You Can Make, available for $\$ 4.95$ plus $50 \phi$ shipping from Audubon Workshop, 1501 Paddock 753, Northbrook, III. 60062. Its catalogue ( $25 \phi$ ppd.) also offers birdhouses in ready-made or kit form, feeders, and such-even birdbath heaters and "Magic-Mirror" aluminized sheets that turn any window into a twoway mirror. The workshop also has John V. Dennis's book, A Complete Guide to Bird Feeding ( $\$ 10$ plus $50 \phi$ shipping), mentioned in the December, 1975 story. Illinois residents add 5 percent sales tax. Shipments only within the U.S.

    ## NEW SHAKER TOPS

    Please tell me where I can find silver tops for old salt and pepper shakers.
    -W.K.D., Kingsport, Tenn. If you wrap your salt and pepper shakers carefully and send them via insured mail to Thome Silversmiths Inc., 328 E. 59th St., New York, N.Y. 10022, they'll look over their store of old shaker tops (most are sterling) and see if they have any that fit. Fitting is tricky-Thome must see the shakers, not a sketch. If they don't have any old tops that fit, they can make new sterling silver tops to match. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your package, and they'll send you an estimate for old or new tops. You pay return postage in any event.

    Because salt can corrode and pit silver, a silver shaker top should be wiped inside and out after cach use. If you have a new top made for a salt shaker, it's a good idea to have the inside plated with gold, which is impervious to salt: Thome will gild the inside if you ask.

    Alabama's State Parks are a genuine surprise to most people. The diversity is incredible. There are parks in the foothills of the Appalachians. Acres of natural, wooded mountains studded with clear, quiet lakes and streams. There's a beach park, too. Sunny stretches of white sand. You can camp in Alabama State Parks. Or stay in a luxury resort. You can cook hot dogs over an open fire. Or eat steak with bearnaise. You can fish, swim, play golf or tennis, whitewater canoe, eat seafood-the list goes on and on. Find out about Alabama State Parks. And expect the unexpected.

    ## A GREAT VACATION IDEA

    This year, take your family to a fascinating foreign destination right here at home. Take them South-to a vast and richly varied domain of spectacular natural wonders and intriguing cities, old and new. Your welcome will be as warm as sunshine, and your dollars will go a long, long way.

    Foreign? Venerable Charleston, Savannah, Mobile, Colonial Williamsburg, Natchez, St. Augustine and New Orleans are older than the United States itself. Their cobblestoned byways echo a proud heritage from England, France and Spain.

    On a more contemporary note, inter-nationally-minded Atlanta has Paris boutiques, haute cuisine, foreign consulates and non-stop flights to Europe. Miami swings to a Latin rhythm.

    Listen closely, and you'll catch the Scotch-English accents that cling stubbornly to the villages that dot the Blue Ridge, the Smokies and Appalachian highlands of Virginia, Tennessee, and the Carolinas. The hardy spirit of the frontier runs through the Ozark Mountains of Arkansas, and there's a bit of Daniel Boone in the Cumberland Mountains of Kentucky.

    ## Where America was born

    As they set their sights on an exciting future, the 11 states of Travel South USA continue to revere their colorful past. America began in Virginia, with the settling of the first permanent English colony at Jamestown in 1607. Landmarks of our history can be found all over Virginia, from the Tidewater to the Shenandoah Valley: Yorktown, Appomattox, Bull Run, Washington's Mt. Vernon, Jefferson's Monticello. Colonial Williamsburg has been recreated as it was when Patrick Henry cried out against kingly injustices in the House of Burgesses. Cobblers, candle makers, blacksmiths and others still practice their centuries old crafts in shops on Duke of Gloucester Street.

    ## Spring is festival time

    When the dogwoods, azaleas, camelias and rhododendron break into millions of blooms, Atlanta, Knoxville, Charlotte, Richmond, Jackson and Little Rock will make you doubly glad you decided to spend spring here instead of Paris. Cities and towns from Louisiana to Virginia celebrate spring's arrival with music festivals, art shows, ethnic fairs, candlelight tours of ante-bellum and colonial homes; catfish rodeos in Tennessee; deep-sea fishing advertisement

    # Once ayear, aworddtwo centuries old becomes brand new.

    Spring in the 18 th Century is a time for renewal. For flowers and for the spirit.

    Take a walk through spring in the 18th Century, when the flowers are reborn and the windows are reopened. It's an experience you can have in only one city in the world. Take in the sights and sounds as you walk through 90 acres of colonial gardens.

    From the instrument maker's shop comes the music of the harpsichord. In the distance, the blacksmith keeps time with his hammer. The sweet smell of the baker's freshly-made gingerbread fills the air.

    This is Williamsburg in spring, where the silversmith, the milliner and the cooper, the gardener, the wigmaker and the tavern keeper still live and work in the 18th Century.

    Come see the fife and drum corps parade through the city. Inspect the magnificent formal gardens at the Governor's Palace and see the miller's windmill turn in the spring breeze.

    The roses that bloom in spring in Colonial Williamsburg are an 18th century species found in few other places in the world today. The bricks are made as they were made 225 years ago. The horsepower is provided by real horses.

    From April 1-4 this year, we're sponsoring the 33rd Williamsburg Garden Symposium. April 21-29 is Virginia's Historic Garden Week.

    The flowers will be blooming, the bakers will be baking and the miller at the windmill will be grinding corn.

    So don't miss it. It only happens once a year. And it only happens in Williamsburg.

    Hailing its large Irish population, Savannah throws the biggest, most exuberant St. Patrick's Day celebration south of Fifth Avenue. New Orleans has its Jazz and Heritage Festival, Memphis its Cotton Carnival, Tampa its Gasparilla Days, Charleston its Spoleto Music Festival of Two Worlds (imported from Italy). At Biloxi, on Mississippi's Riviera-like Gulf Coast, the blessing of the shrimp fleet is an annual revival of an ancient European custom, one that's also part of the rites of spring at Brunswick, Georgia, and coastal towns in Florida, Alabama and Lousiana.

    ## Greyhounds, thoroughbreds, and stock cars

    Spring marks the beginning of the automobile racing season in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. It's horseracing season at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and at tracks in New Orleans, Shreveport, Tampa and Miami, and in Kentucky's fabled Bluegrass Country. What red-blooded sportsman wouldn't pay almost any price to be at Churchill Downs in Louisville on Derby Day? The greyhounds are running at Mobile, West Memphis, Arkansas, and at tracks throughout Florida.

    Nearly 300 years ago one of the best ways to see it was by horse and buggy. It still is.

    Charleston, we've kept it for you. A living museum of Colonial America, spiced with touches of the West Indies, nestles gracefully in the 20th century. An open-air market throbs with the beguiling music of the vendors' Gullah dialect. And fine European cuisine ? competes with Low Country corn fritters and She-Crab Soup.

    Life has the easy rhythm of another age. Of cobbled streets and walled English gardens. It's all within easy reach of unsurpassed golf and fishing and white-sand beaches. Come. See Charleston. Because the way it was is the way it is.

All this golf is complemented by 125 tennis courts, over 40,000 hotel and apartment accommodations, campsites, deep-sea fishing, excellent restaurants, and night-time entertainment with floor shows, dance bands and disco.

    Ocean Dunes, a 150 -room resort hotel right on the Atlantic, offers guests entree to 25 Grand Strand courses. The Tryon Seville Hotel, on the widest swath of Grand Strand beach, gives guests carte blanche to a dozen courses, all within seven miles of the hotel's front door.

    ## Charleston, Fripp Island

    Fripp Island is that quiet, secluded ocean resort so often searched for in vain. Twenty miles over the salt marshes from historic Beaufort, S.C., Fripp Island's 18-hole George Cobb Course curls seductively around lagoons and seashore. Other pleasureable diversions include 16 tennis courts, marina, freshwater pool, and accommodations in the Fripp Island Inn or lavish oceanside condominiums.

    Historic Charleston is at her most fetching in spring. The azaleas and camelias are in bloom at Magnolia and Middleton Gardens, and the weather's right for leisurely biking and mopedding the ancient byways. The Mills Hyatt House, in the heart of the historic district, is Charleston's premiere address, a modern luxury hotel all dressed up in ante-bellum decor, with some of the city's most outstanding cuisine.

    ## Sea Island, Callaway Gardens

    At Sea Island, Georgia, The Cloister Hotel reigns as one of America's most prestigious resorts. Service is with a velvet glove, and the 36 holes of golf appear to have been clipped by hand. In addition to accommodations in its Spanish-style main hotel and seaside villas, The Cloister this spring opened its new Harrington House, with 36 beautiful rooms opening onto the private beach. A new tennis clubhouse, and luxurious dressing quarters for golfers will also be ready for spring vacationers at The Cloister.

    Although much newer than The Cloister, Callaway Gardens has become a Southern tradition in its own right. Located in the green and rolling Pine Mountain Valley, 85 miles south of Atlanta, Callaway Gardens strikes the perfect balance between the rustic and elegant. Its 63 -hole golf course winds around more than a dozen bream and bassfilled lakes. In the spring, the famed gardens come alive with more than 600 varieties of azaleas. advertisement

    ## Scenic, historic Mississippi

    For Civil War buffs, Vicksburg, Mississippi, is an essential pilgrimage. The 1600 -acre national military park on bluffs above the Mississippi River, was the site of a months-long siege that ended in a Union victory which split the Confederacy.

    Natchez is the epitome of Old South magnolias-and-moonlight romance. During the Natchez Pilgrimage in early spring, 30 of the most glorious old mansions are opened for daytime and nighttime tours. For late spring vacationers, Holly Springs' piladvertisement grimage begins April 29.

    Other spring festivals in "The Magnolia State" include: the Railroad Festival in Amory, the World Catfish Festival at Belzoni, the Gum Tree Festival at Tupelo, and the Yellow Dog Festival at Moorhead.

    Mississippi's Gulf Coast is the home of lush fairways and tight, fast greens. A dozen first-class courses are augmented by more than 100 all-weather tennis courts. Oyster, shrimp and flounder from Gulf waters are prepared to perfection in restaurants from Pascagoula to Pass Christian. At Diamondhead, a deluxe resort on the Gulf Coast's highest point, there's an 18 -hole golf course, tennis, riding stables, and plush condominium villas among the oaks and pines.

    ## Way down yonder in New Orleans

    New Orleans is old and new, part French, part Spanish, part African, still reflecting the glory days of Andy Jackson, Jean LaFite and the palatial Mississippi River paddlewheelers. The "Crescent City" is the birthplace of the blues, Dixieland and jazz, and its distinctive cuisine makes it one of the world's dining capitals.

    To accommodate the millions who come courting her every year, New Orleans has become a city of fine hotels. The Monteleone, rising above the antique shops of Rue Royale, has a revolving bar downstairs, a superb continental restaurant upstairs, and some of the city's largest convention facilities.

    The New Orleans Hilton reflects the tastes, traditions, and excitement of New Orleans itself. From the tri-level open space atrium, the elegant rooms and suites, the luxurious indoor tennis courts and the very special "hotel within a hotel" The Towers -to the sublime restaurants and lounges, it offers a unique vacation holiday.

    Anthony Sureau: media consultant.

    "I use Diet Delight for what it has, and for what it doesn't have. What it doesn't have is processed sugar and a lot of extra calories.

    There's not a speck of processed sugar in Diet Delight, only ripe fruit and natural sweeteners. And there are up to $40 \%$ fewer calories in Diet Delight than in regular canned fruit.

    What it does have is good, natural taste.

    Because Diet Delight - unlike regular canned fruit-doesn't bury its fruit in a lot of heavy syrup, so their peaches taste like they came off a tree and not out of a factory.

    And good taste makes good sense to me.

    Of course, Diet Delight is only part of a well-balanced diet so check with your doctor before you start any plan.

    You may have to be on a diet, but it doesn't have to be dull."

    # FOR BEGINNING COLLECTORS:  BEST BUYS AT AUCTION

    How to pick good investments in 19th-century porcelain, paintings, and furniture

    ## By John Block and David Redden

    Everyone collects, and almost everything is collectible. Given the variety, where do you start? Prices for some art objects are sky-high. All the well publicized auction galleries in New York and London send out the same message: Good art works are very expensive. Buy the classics and the money you pay will be obvious. The trick is to go after the objects which are currently in the process of reevaluation. There, the prices won't be high, but the value will be.

    Through America's auction rooms and antiques shops pass everything from fabulous jewels to tin toy cars. Prices seem to be rising in almost every area. Fortunately, there are categories where you still can get in on the bottom rung.
    . I9TH-CENTURY ART
    Works from the last century are plentiful, beautifully made, generally in good condition, but historically overlooked. These items were made all over the newly industrialized world, and were purchased by eager travelers from America, Europe, and Great Britain. There are a number of collection areas which typify the art of the 19th century. However, some fields are especially interesting, reasonable in price, and available all over America. We give you three:

    ## E EUROPEAN PORCELAIN

    Little else so well represents the 19th century as the vast and varied productions of its porcelain kilns. Here, the craftsmanship of the 18 th century combined with the mechanical and industrial ingenuity of the 19 th century to cater to the ornamental needs of the newly rich middle classes.

    The great centers of 19th-century continental European porcelain manufacture were Germany, Austria, and France. The two major German factories were Meissen and Berlin. Meissen, famous as the oldest porcelain factory in Europe, drew on its legacy of outstanding 18 thcentury rococo designs by great ceramic artists like J.J. Kaendler and P. Reinicke to produce an extraordinary array of mythological groups, romantic couples, animals and birds. Elaborate dinner services, beautifully painted with bouquets of flowers, cases for clocks, knife handles, baskets raised on vine-wreathed stands, and magnificent carved urns were also produced, all well labeled with the factory's blue crossed swords mark. The standard of quality was always high; the porcelain thick and heavy, the modeling well executed, and the enamel paints carefully applied with meticulous attention to detail.

    Meissen groups are especially appealing, showing putti huddled around a winter fire or drawing a sled-always, mind you, clad incongruously in the most perfunctory costume-or courting couples engaged in endless pursuit of one another, with a sly cupid forever in attendance, or the cupid himself sharpening his arrows, or forging a heart, or bound with flowers, admonished against further mischievousness. Or children may clamber about grape presses, sampling the wine or play at being loverschildhood innocence tempering adult folly. These and a host of other charming groups frequently appear at auction. Their prices range from $$ 300$ for a simple figure, perhaps 5 or 6 inches high, to over $$ 2,000$ for an important piece or a large group.

    But the most interesting Meissen wares for the collector are 19th-century productions that owe nothing to the 18 th century, often figures dressed in contemporary costumes such as models of soldiers, or large plaques designed to be framed as pictures, or service plates adorned with copies of old-master paintings. These, however, are not cheap. The plates, for example, painted with remarkable precision, sell for about $$ 500$ each. Still, these are a relative bargain, when you consider that these sample plates in the 1890 s were retailed by stores like Tiffany & Co. for what was then a very respectable $$ 100$ apiece.

    The Berlin factory was even more famous for its copies of old-master paintings on porcelain. Another of the great German factories with a distinguished 18th-century past, Berlin, during the first half of the 19th century, produced wares in the French Empire style. Architectural views and historical scenes were painted with extraordinary care on urns and table wares. A single cup and saucer of this sort now fetches upwards of $$ 1$,- 000 at auction. During the second half of the century, the Berlin factory revived 18th-century models, similar to those at Meissen, but decorated them with a more restrained use of color and embellishment. The factory also made painted porcelain plaques, and it is for these paintings on porcelain, impressed with the initials of the company, K.P.M., and produced from 1850-1900, that the company is famous. Here the colors glow undiminished, as only enamels on porcelain can, and the quality is superb, a triumph of technique and technologyhighly skilled painting working with remarkable range of colors. The subject: of these plaques were never original, but were drawn from paintings hanging ir German museums, particularly those old-master or contemporary paintings hat displayed a touch of sentimentality Young children and scantily clad maid ens predominated. And that was jus what the late 19 th century wanted. Ar army of painters specialized in plaques usually painting them outside the factory and proudly signing their work. The great name to look for is Wagner, actu ally the name of a large family of ac complished porcelain painters.

    Berlin plaques must have sold like ho cakes in the 19th century, because larg numbers turn up in the salesrooms. And modern taste has gone full circle, be cause buyers today are more eager tha ever for them. Prices range from $$ 300$ o $$ 400$ for a 7 -inch-long oval plaque, of Madonna and Child to $$ 16,000$ for 12-by-15-inch mythological subject maidens bathing in a moonlit poo Clearly, Berlin plaques are no bargai now. But nothing illustrates better th extraordinary potential for 19th-cer tury pieces. A year ago, these plaque cost 20 to 25 percent less. Four yeal ago, the difference was 50 to 60 percen Ten years ago, they would have bee virtually unsalable.

    Sumptuous decoration, very much the Berlin style, is what the late 19tl century Viennese factories are famoı for. These companies all used the san marks to identify their ware, the trad tional shield (or "beehive") mark in us derglazed blue of the old Vienna factor which closed its doors in 1864. At the best, they produced some of the fine decorated plates, trays, and urns Europe. Subjects tended to be girls wi streaming hair or classical scenes, pain ed within fanciful gilt and colored bo ders. Several years ago these plates were very affordable at $$ 200-$ 300$ a plate; however, in a recent New York sale, the illustrated plate brought $$ 850$ !

    One point to be aware of is in the field of French porcelain. Here, pairs of huge "palace" urns, 3 or 4 feet tall, indifferently painted and applied with crudely cast gilt-bronze mounts, will sell for $$ 10,000$ to $$ 20,000$ and occasionally much more. Just now, prices seem unrelated to quality. For the collector, though, true 19th-century Sèvres porcelain, properly marked with variously changing printed marks, is very much the thing to buy (if you can find it). Until the revolution of 1848 , the style was Empire, similar in taste to the contemporary Berlin factory production. From 1848 until the end of the century, the style was High Victorian, similar to the English porcelain of Royal Worcester and Minton. By the turn of the century, it was Art Nouveau. Prices range from the low hundreds for interesting figures or a vase to the thousands for an claborate tea service.

    ## - AMERICAN PAINTINGS

    American pictures, like all Americana. are currently very popular. Many collectors are specializing in American furniture of the 18 th century, folk art of the 18 th through the early 20 th centuries, and in fine paintings by artists of the Colonial and later periods, who were trained by European masters. The natural patriotism of American collectors and the newly art-educated American population have added impetus to the quickly soaring prices of Americana. However, as in all categories of collecting, there are those areas that have been forgotten and until recently overlooked in favor of better known works by historically acclaimed artisans and artists.

    You can still buy American paintings at reasonable prices. Buy carefully, searching through auction sales and dealers' shops. You can find a lovely landscape, a charming primitive unsigned American portrait, or an American impressionist painting as beautiful as the earlier French impressionist works, at almost unbelievably low prices!

    Topographical landscape paintings are important records of American history. Hundreds of local and itinerant artists, both formally trained and self-taught, captured the beauty of their native American scenery. Throughout the late 19 th and early 20 th centuries, these artists portrayed American land as it appeared to them: romantically, in soft tones in an almost idealized manner, or naturalistically, in straightforward reproduction of the view or scenc.

    Bruce Crane's (American, 1857-1937) work, for example, represents a more romantic view of American landscape. His colors and style refleet those of the French Barbizon school, yet he is typical of a large number of American painters. His paintings are of good quality and often reasonable in price. In February, 1977, a work sold for $$ 475$, quite accessible to many new collectors. In a recent sale in New York City, a landscape sold for $$ 2,000$. It seems that some of his works are already expensive, but there are many still available for under $$ 2,000$. The works of many similar artists represent good buys for the collector who hopes his purchases will be worth more in years to come.

    Edward Darch Lewis (American. 1837-1910) is typical of previously overlooked American artists whose work is becoming increasingly popular. Lewis's views of New England seaports are charming, beautiful, and easy to appreciate. In the spring of 1978, a picture by Lewis brought $$ 650$. In a recent sale, a similar painting brought $$ 500$, a low price for a quality picture.

    Perhaps the area of greatest potential price increases for American paintings is that of the lesser-known American impressionists, often trained by European masters or by major American artists during the late 19 th century. Colorful paintings in the impressionistic style were produced during the first third of the 20th century in great quantity throughout America, especially in New England. Though many works can go for tens of thousands of dollars, many fine paintings can be bought for $$ 500$ to $$ 1,500$.

    The works of Ben Foster (American, 1852-1926) have been attracting interest in the auction market in recent months. His beautiful impressionist landscapes full of light and color are rapidly increasing in value. In October, 1978, a view of "A Forest and Stream" brought $$ 1,200$. In a sale this past December, a painting by Foster brought $$ 1,900$, a good but still low price.

    The New England scenes of William Lester Stevens (American, 1888-1969) are also currently selling for rising but still reasonable prices. A landscape by Stevens was sold in June, 1978 for $$ 1,100$. In October the price of $$ 1,400$

    Portraits of the 18th- and early 19thcentury American school have always demanded high prices. Even folk por traits painted by itinerant artists can bring thousands of dollars. However, many unsigned, primitive portraits by unknown, but not unskilled, artists turn up at sales throughout the country and can be purchased for under $$ 1,000$ !

    Two charming portraits were sold in a recent New York sale dating from the late 19 th century. One, a delightful portrait of a woman and her child, and the other of a woman in her fanciest lacetrimmed gown. The former brought $$ 550$, the latter, $$ 750$. The appeal of these portraits is universal-they do not have to be of your ancestors to add a touch of 19th-century America to your home!

    ## - VICTORIAN FURNITURE

    A few years ago, Victorian English and American furniture was regarded as little more than used furniture; it was found in thrift shops and occasionally in the shops of small dealers and in small auction houses. Currently, interest has reawakened in several areas of Victorian furniture. Prices of this furniture in the French style can go as high as $$ 10,000$ to $$ 50,000$. But there are still some bargains to be found. Well-carved pieces can be bought quite reasonably. A love seat made in New York in about 1850 with a foliage and fruit carved crest rail sold in the fall of 1978 for $$ 500$.

    Nearly every collector would like to own a useful piece of furniture like a carved cylinder front desk with pigeonholes for organization of letters and papers. This late 19th-century desk brought only $500 at a September, 1978 auction in New York City. The mahogany chest of drawers and the dressing mirror represent the real bargains that can still be had when buying Victorian furniture. The dressing mirror brought $$ 250$ and the chest with the crotched-mahogany vencer sold for only $$ 150$. Pieces such as these can often be found at auctions and antiques stores all over the country But prices are rising, so go out and collect now!

    From the 1880 s until the early 1900 s Gustave Stickley created what is known as mission furniture. This "arts anc crafts" period furniture was manufac tured to be utilitarian, simple in design comfortable, and affordable. You can buy signed pieces of mission oak furni ture throughout America, sometimes for a steal. A labeled rocking chair recently was sold for $$ 200$. The desk and chail together brought $$ 400$, and the pair of chairs recently sold in New York for $$ 150$. Currently being rediscovered, mis sion furniture is a sure bet to go up in value in the coming years. Already gal Icries specializing in Stickley mission furniture are springing up in variou cities, and asking and getting amazingly high prices.

    How to stop heat loss through glass, frames, and cracks

    ## By Jim Morgan

    To take a serious look at windows, like other aspects of energy efficiency analysis, you have to dig into technicalities a jit. It is necessary to break heat loss (or zain) through windows into three parts: oss through the glass; loss through the rame and sash; and infiltration, or cold in leakage, through the cracks around he window.

    Double glazing, of course, reduces the oss of heat by more than 50 percent. That sounds wonderful until you comsare the amount of heat lost by a similar rea of insulated wall. The window still oses eight times as much heat as the lvall! In fact, in a well-insulated house, wo-thirds of the heat is lost through unrotected windows. That is why, in a ruly energy-efficient house, windows are - noly used to collect sunlight. At other imes, especially at night, they must be huttered with thermally effective panels r shades

    The second aspect of heat loss is hrough the frame and sash of windows. t is standard practice today to pack oose insulation tightly in and around the rame when it is installed in the wall so hat the frame loses no more heat than he wall itself. A continuous metal strip sover the joint between wall and frame vith exterior moldings tightly caulked :ompletes the job. If you replace an old vindow in an insulated wall with a wellnade new one, be certain that this step is n arried out, or you will gain little in heat d avings.

    The sash itself, usually about 2 inches n. hick, is where most of the argument of nivood versus metal windows centers. Metal windows usually have sash made rif hollow square tubing with a slot formed to take the glass and some ridges iro accommodate weatherstripping. It 2 loes little good to stuff insulation inside the tubing, because the principal heat .oss is directly through the metal from in aside to out. The heat-conducting prop1 rties of metal are well-known. But that ninroblem can be solved. In their best ${ }_{15}$ uality units, the aluminum window hanufacturers now insert small strips of Continued on page 220

    ## The pros and cons of water filters

    plus how to hang pictures on brick, cover intense-colored paint, where to find antique plumbing items

    ## By Deanne Raffel

    Q Are water filters a necessary addition to plumbing fixtures?
    A There are pros and cons about water filters. Some scientists will tell you they may cause a negative reaction. They caution against the dangers of bacterial build-up in the filter overnight when water is stagnant. Some filters are so good that they will filter out the trace minerals that the body needs. They are the expensive units costing up to several hundred dollars. On the other hand, in areas where water has an objectionable taste-such as too much chlorine-a filter can change the quality considerably. The small filter units, price about $$ 30$, that thread onto the kitchen sink spout are an easy way to help improve your drinking water without involving additional plumbing work. However, remember the filter will require frequent maintenance if the water problems are severe. The unit uses replaceable carbon or charcoal granules to help screen out impurities. They need changing periodically.
    There are a few steps that you can take to improve your drinking water without resorting to a filter:

    1. Store water in the refrigerator for six or more hours.
    2. Boil water before use.
    3. When drinking water from the tap, let it run for several seconds before filling a glass.
    Q How can I hang pictures, or secure shelves to a brick wall?
    A Hanging a lightweight picture on a brick wall is a simple matter. Just drive a hardened, fluted masonry nail at least $1 / 2$ to $3 / 4$ inch into the mortar between the bricks. (Do not nail directly into the brick as it may crack.) Slip the wire attached to the back of the picture frame over the head of the nail. To suspend a large, heavy frame, take a piece of 1-by2 -inch or 1 -by-4-inch lumber the width of the frame, drive $13 / 4$-inch masonry nails through it, at each end. Place the wood against the wall with nails restin in the mortar line. Hit the nails squarel on the head until the wood rests tightl against the bricks. Secure regular pig ture hooks to the wood and hang th picture.

    Securing shelves takes more time. Us an electric drill (preferably a variabl speed tool that can work at fewer rpm's and a $1 / 4$-inch carbide-tipped masonı bit to drill holes $11 / 4$ inches deep in th mortar. Insert 1 -inch lead anchors int the holes. Use the end of a $3 / 8$-inc dowel and the hammer to coax ancho into the mortar joint holes. Attach th shelf brackets to the anchors with shed metal screws. Try to use the morta wherever possible, but when it is not la cated in the exact position for the she brackets, holes will have to be drille into the brick. (Mortar holes can easil be camouflaged at a later time, bric holes cannot.) If you are putting ul many shelves using adjustable standard it's best to attach vertical 1-by-2-inc lumber strips first to the wall with ar chors and screws. Secure every 9 or 1 inches wherever the mortar falls, the attach the standards to the wood wi screws.

    For best results on brick walls, drive ar chors into mortar between bricks.

    How can I prevent a dark or a vel bright paint color bleeding through walls of a different color?
    A Most undercoatings are not sealer To cover dark or very bright colo properly, use white shellac. This pi mented shellac does two jobs in oneprimes and seals. White shellac can al: be used to prevent other stains-fro grease, rust, crayon-seeping through the surface and causing discoloratio Because shellac uses alcohol as its wor ing medium, it dries quickly (to ti touch in 15 minutes) under most co ditions, and is ready to be recoated another 45 minutes.     load the applicator. Spread it on thinly and work quickly since the drying time is so short.
    Q We are remodeling an old house and want to retain the old plumbing fixtures. How can we find replacements for worn exterior or interior parts?
    A Finding replacement parts for old plumbing fixtures can be difficult. Spouts, handles, stoppers, escutcheons, etc., are no longer made by their original manufacturers, even if the company is still in business today. By law, the vitreous china fittings we used to see can no longer be manufactured, because of the sharp, jagged edges they acquire when accidentally broken. Acrylic plastic now replaces ceramic. You may, with luck and leg work, be able to locate hardware on old fixtures that clutter used plumbing supply yards. (For locations, check the Yellow Pages under "Used Plumbing.") Parts for worn inside fittings (the guts of the hardware) can usually be found in the bins of a long-established plumbing-parts supplier. Your plumber may tell you that a replacement part is unavailable. But remember, one can be specially machined, though this can prove costly.

    If you have set your heart on antique hardware, there are some modern facsimiles you can investigate. Kohler produces some reproductions called the "Antique Line." 핌

    ## what's new, what's exciting

    From the first red and yellow dyes our ancestors used in early cave paintings, we have always found a way to lift our spirits by surrounding ourselves with color. There are colors as old as the Imperial Yellow in Peking's Forbidden City, and as new as the rich rainbow canvases of Frank Stella.

    In decorating with color, the only thing that counts is how the colors work for you in your rooms, to reflect your moods, give you pleasure. Here is what is going on in color today, in fabrics, furniture, and things for the house. From this roundup, you may find some bright ideas for using the oldest decorating tool in the world in a new way at home.

    ## Fabrics

    Look for surprise combinations - Chinese lacquer red with mauve, turquoise with fuchsias and pink. lavender with soft greens, melons, and pinks, salmon and shocking pink with Nile green...Tiny overall patterns still, but newest of all are the over-scales-sumptuous, exaggerated. larger-than-life. Think of exotic flowers like orchids, water lilies hibiscus or romantic perennials like hydrangea. wisteria, and geraniums-in bright flower colors on dark backgrounds. Traditional motifs appear in giant scale, too, giving new importance to the tree-of-life pattern or Indian paisleys or Jacobean lilies... Newest look in color comes from handpainted silks and cottons. From handpainting and air-brushing have evolved sophisticated, spare new designs, often in shadings of just one or two colors, such as beige and apricot or rust. Notice the influence of abstract painters, and softedged impressionist designs often in the soft blues and greens that are associated with Monet.

    ## Sheets

    Clean colors and designs are everywhere: blues, pale pinks, white, and butter yellow; Oriental looks such as paisleys, a dark ground with jewel-like colors....Garnet red and true blue big in prints... New solids: blue and chocolate brown, plus new grays and camels. Toned-down browns are coming in. and neutrals that blend with pastels. The word overall. mellow:

    ## Furniture

    In America. the news is naturals and softer colors, with always a few pretty prints in bright colors. Most popular of the new House & Garden Colors is Greensilver. used in velvets, canvas, as a solid color and as background for prints...More Oriental influence in new Chinese-look beds and lacquer finishes. From Europe, it's pastels -in particular, pinks, peaches, blues. greens, mauves, yellows...Natural colors still very strong, in natural materials like cotton, leather, suede, silk. Brighter primary colors are found in lacquer finishes, plastic, painted metal frames.

    ## Wallcoverings

    The prettiest walls around seem to have subtle texture or shiny surfaces. Textured wallcoverings such as straw and grass cloths are sometimes given a soft wash of color with whitened or diluted paint. Subtle paint techniques such as strié or stippled finishes add interest to plain walls. Lacquered walls are the ultimate in shine. A short cut to the lacquered look: polyurethane over painted walls-especially effective in deep colors. Art has spilled over onto the wall, with artists and artisans hand-painting scenes on walls or ceilings. or air-brushing subtle patterns of colorlightest near the ceiling. graduating to the deepest shade at the baseboard.

    ## On the table

    For the first time in ages, we're seeing solid color plates, in primary colors (yellow, blue, lacquer red), and-even newerbright pastel earthenware. The Orient continues to be a major influence, with brightcolored flowers in pinks, reds, or oranges on backgrounds of white or ivory, and lots of blue and white in wide borders. Chinese patterns, or narrow cafe-striped borders. To see all the best color ideas in action, read on.

    Tricia Guild: Here's a designer whose passion for flowers is reflected in the colors she uses in decorating. "I love the freshness of soft garden colors," says Mrs. Guild, opposite page right, who designs fabrics like "Flower Garden" cotton chintz, left, "with informal fluid patterns inspired by nature." In her guest-dressing room, top left, and bedroom, bottom left, she used gentle greens in patterns so subtle they almost become texture: In the bedroom, one fabric pattern is quilted on a chair, shirred on the walls, made into a table skirt-and enlarged for the rug. "The tiny design is calm enough so that it can be used generously. It turns the room into a soft, warm cocoon," says Mrs. Guild. In the guest-dressing room, lavish swags of fabric make balloon window shades and a larger version of the bedroom's fabric pattern covers the walls and shelves. All fabrics from Designers Guild.     ## "A quiet pattern can create the same unifying effect as a neutral solidbut with more personality"Joseph Lembo for John Saladino: "Color should be used to enhance the architectural features of a room," says Mr. Lembo, who likes to use cool colors and sleek materials, opposite page left, to show off a clean crisp modern room. For instance-think of using House & Garden Ice Blue in a high-gloss paint for walls and ceiling. Aluminum paint glossed with polyurethane rubbed on oak planks could make a floor shine with a sil-ver-green glow. For furniture, you might consider cleanlined banquettes in Greensilver canvas, and metal shelves epoxied metallic green.

    Tricia Guild arranging vegetables

    # "For exciting tables, put your color in flowers-flowers on plates, flowers on table linens, and real flowers in flowered vases"

    Like any other art, the art of entertaining requires an eye for color. "The fun is in creating a pleasing atmosphere -with decoration, food, com-pany-that your friends will enjoy," says designer Tricia Guild, who likes to give casual dinners which, whether sit-down or buffet, are always in her kitchen. Guests watch her put the finishing touches on the food-and are often invited to help: "Food should be savored not just for its taste but for the joy of preparing it and making it look wonderful," says Mrs. Guild, who serves mostly fresh fruit and vegetable dishes like the ratatouille en gelée and the prosciutto with kiwi fruit she served at this buffet. "I collect recipes and change them to suit my mood-and my taste." For dessert, she usually gives friends a choice: here, strawberries on a chestnutfilled meringue ring or a rich chocolate dessert like the heart of chocolate mousse studded with candied violets. Mrs. Guild fixes each platter as if she were arranging a bouquet: "Food colors, like flower colors, always look wonderful together," she says. Soft flower colors are everywhere in this room, giving you the feeling you're in the middle of an old-fashioned English garden. Collections of thirties' flower-painted porcelain color open shelves, counters, and tabletops. Patchwork quilts and afghans cover the walls and the big cane chairs, each cushioned with its own tiny print. Baskets, some filled with fruits and vegetables, some with plants, some awaiting assignment, hang from the ceiling. In the cooking area, old tile backsplashes-gathered tile by tile at flea markets -make a practical contribution to the all-over sense of color. "Bits and pieces of objects and memorabilia can give a room a friendly feeling," says Mrs. Guild. "No secrets here-all of my favorite things are out for everyone's enjoyment." On the buffet, each platter is positioned on its own placemat and surrounded by flowers and funny old porcelain treasures like the sundial butter dish. On the dining table, each place gets its own flowerprinted placemat - square ones to alternate with scalloped round ones (available in her London shop.) Giving life to the tabletop garden, real flowers in baskets and vases. "When tables are filled with food and flowers, guests feel cared for. And in the end that's what entertaining is all about-it means caring."

    A lavish use of color requires a measure of restraint: "If you're using a lot of color in adjoining rooms, the colors ought to complement one another,' says designer Ann LeConey, who put her advice to work in the apartment where she lives with her husband Michael, and their year-old son Morgan. You enter a dark green foyer covered with huge handpainted green-black banana leaves. To one side, you can see the yellow living room, its facing wall filled with blue and white English and Oriental porcelain. In another direction is a long hallway, below, which, like the living room, has yellow walls hung with porcelain. Or so it seems. "It's really wallpaper," says Mrs. LeConey. And if its roots are in a pattern you've used generously within the room, it's a foolproof decorating technique." In the dining room, center left, the hint of blue in the wallpaper was all the inspiration Mrs. LeConey needed to bring in the blue china and the crystal drops on the chandelier and wall sconces.     a new lease on light, with a new skylight, rejuvenated fireplace, and fresh ideas with paintThere's a lot more to color than meets the eye. "To 'color' a room is to give it character not only with paint but with fabric, texture, furniture design-even the arrangement is important," says designer Melvin Dwork of Dwork/Maguire Inc., who colored all the rooms in this house with light. First the library, left, was opened with glass-a triangular skylight angled in between existing roof beams, and tall glass windows replacing the original tiny panes. Floor-to-ceiling fireplace bricks were removed, replaced by whitepainted wallboard, and hung with an antique quilt. "For light, you need light-hearted materials," so dark wood floors were bleached pale and dark paneling gave way to clean white shelving that continues nonstop around three sides of the room. "When you use a lot of white and glass you need anchors, and the books and objects give weight to the expanse of ceiling, walls, and floor." Other anchors: small dark tables for the white antique Rumanian kilim rug, and pillows of Indonesian batiks for sofas designed with just one arm to give a chaisey feeling of romance.

    1A lot of living goes on inside this colorful light-filled kitch-en-living center in a rambling old house by the sea. It's a gathering place for family and friends, and can be independently heated in winter, with a sleeping wing above, as a self-sufficient weekend retreat. Once a warren of 7 tiny rooms, the space was restructured by kitchen designer Wayne Walega of New Design, and interior designer David Hamman. The central kitchen became the heart of the new space, with a laundry, bar, child's play area, home office, and breakfast area radiating outward. Green carpeting stretches from foyer to table, past the Lacquer Green snack bar with sink and dishwasher on one side, appliances plugged in behind sliding doors in the center. At the far end of the room, another sink and dishwasher service the dining room. Two cooktops were installed at the windows "to enjoy the view while stirring." Next to the table, a revolving storage column keeps dishes and the microwave oven handy.

    Once a Victorian parlor, now a charming kitchen in black, white, and wood

    trays, and a pull-out cabinet collects trash under a cutout near the sink, right. "We love to cook and the island is large enough for both of us to work simultaneously," say Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pokel, who enlisted the he'p of architect David Hirsch to help with the alterations. Original stained glass windows, carved woodwork and a parquet floor combine with decorative cooking gear, butcher block, and collected treasures on the walls, to add color and interest to a room that's basically black and white. By the fireplace opposite page, below left, wire wall grids display tea tins, pasta in jars, and food-processor accessories. Suspended above the island, an ingenious double-duty track holds light fixtures as well as copper pots, baskets, and herbs. A restaurant range was recessed into an arched niche, left, and a neighboring closet with its door removed became a nook for the refrigerator/freezer. Another closet, opposite page, top right, fitted with shelves is now used as a pantry Lace curtains from Paris filter sunlight at the windows and cover the door (once a window) that now leads to a redwood deck overlooking the backyard garden.      you how to simplify your life

    "Color speaks a universal language that everyone understands," says Faber Birren, color consultant and one of the original developers of the National Safety Color Code. "People respond to colors first, symbols second. We once ran a test to prove this: We let hundreds of people drive by a stop sign that was painted red but spelled "TOPS." Everyone stopped, but only two people noticed the misspelling."

    If you take a look at the world around you, you'll probably discover many aspects of your life that are "color-coded." For instance, garage parking lots use different colors to identify sections, office buildings are often color-coded by floor, and fast-food restaurants have adopted a code of bright colors that stimulate hunger and movement.

    Professional organizers, people who advise you about the best way to organize at home or at the office, have realized the adentages of color-coding and are using it fore frequently-and successfully. "It's a Breat insurance against misfiling," says Stella McBride, who has been color-coding homes and offices for four years. "It becomes an imprinted memory device so that you don't think any more, you respond to color." Adds Maxine Ordesky, another professional organizer: "It's a great way to give a sense of unity and order to any group."

    Color-coding can take anywhere from one hour to several months to accomplish successfully, and can cost from $$ 25$ for consultation to $$ 200$ per day. Maggie Cadman, an organizer who uses color most of the time, once had to organize a library of 500 cookbooks by color. "It took a full week to code. Since the library shelves could not be repainted, I used colored stickers on the books and organized them by categoriesFrench cookbooks, vegetarian cookbooks, casserole cookbooks, and so on. It took me a week, but it took the client a few weeks to learn the key that we had developed for the code."
    "When I sit down with my clients," says Ms. Cadman, "we first throw out everything that's not needed. Often that's the hardest part. Then we decide on a color system that will work best for the individual client. Color-coding is not always the answer, although I use it most of the time as a means of organization. When we've decided on the system and color, we then apply the colors to the files or closets and make a color key that will explain the system."

    Ms. McBride also stresses the individual approach. "One of the first things I ask a client is 'What's your favorite color?' If I

    ## color code

    ## CHILDREN'S ROOMS:

    Teach children to put toys back in the proper storage places through color-coding. All toys in blue box, books on red shelf, etc. Clothes drawers can also be painted different colors, or you can color just the drawer handles. Colored plastic cubes, with drawers or dividers, are great for storage in children's rooms.

    If you have several children, let them each choose a color that becomes 'theirs.' Use this color to mark appointments on the calendar-red pen for one child, blue for another. You can extend this to many other parts of the house-give each child different colored linens, hang colored hooks in the back hall for coats and hats, sew colored thread in white clothes to help you sort laundry. You can even get different colored notebooks for children to take to school.

    Color can also be used for safety around the house. Use orange for things children should avoid-electrical outlets, exposed pipes, matches. Blue can be used to mark those things that they are allowed to use only when supervised or given permission-kitch en appliances, tools in the workshop, etc. And red is a good 'fire protection' colorlet children know that the fire extinguisher is red, that their fire escape route is marked with a piece of red tape or paint on the window, and that the number for the fire department is written clearly in red on the underside of the phone. Lastly, yellow is a good safety color to mark tricky steps for children (or low ceilings for adults).
    find that the person I'm working with has a sensitive eye for color, I can do an entire room in a monochromatic scheme-with variations of that color. That's how I've also worked successfully with color-blind clients. Often, they can distinguish between shades of colors-darks and lights-so we establish a system with a range of color shades."

    The number of colors used in a color organizing system varies according to individual needs and taste. "Use as many colors as you feel are necessary," says Ms. Cadman. "If you have two basic categories to classify, two colors will do." In retailing, however, architect Ken White has found that uneven numbers are most effective. "If you have red and green, you're indicating a stop/go, either/or situation. Add yellow and you've introduced a 'maybe.' I've found that five or seven colors work best. You need at least three, and more than nine becomes confusing." Maxine Ordesky found that three was the magic number for one client, a secretary with three bosses. The solution: Assign a color for each boss, and use that color everywhere, from files to phone messages!

    The organization of space is also important and can enhance the success of your color-coding system. Ms. Ordesky feels that the items which are used most frequently should be put at eye level or slightly above, "because your eye will respond immediately to the color association with those objects. Least-used materials can be stored at a lower level." Architect Ken White also uses the organization of space to complement colorcoding. "I think of an area in terms of a cube rather than a square. If all colors were on one plane, at floor level, it would be much harder to find what you're looking for. In a bookstore, we set up three different levels, through raised platforms, treating each one in a different color family."

    Where should you start your own colorcoding? "Probably in the home office/ library," says Ms. McBride. "But first ask yourself, 'What's bothering me? Is it that I can't ever find the right recipes, or that the bills are not in order, or that I can't locate old magazines?' Next, choose the colors you wish to work with and buy some small labels (or files) at your local stationery store. Commercial labels now come in twelve different colors, and file folders in at least seven (as in House & Garden's Idea Box, see Ingenious Ways to Make Your Life Easier). Categorize the material and apply one color to color it safe

    Because color is a language quickly learned, various codes have been developed over the years for safety purposes. In 1970, the U.S. Congress adopted a National Safety Color Code. Some of its applications may suggest useful adaptions in your house:
    RED: for fire-fighting equipment, fire protection, alarm boxes, extinguishers, sprinkler lines; as a signal for "stop."
    ORANGE: for acute hazards such as exposed hot pipes, machinery, sharp cutting edges, electric wires or rails. In boating, a bright "dayglow" orange is internationally recognized for use on all life-saving equipment.
    YELLOW: to mark pipes containing hazardous gases and liquids; with a greenish tint to mark highway and road equipment and vehicles used in heavy industry; as a signal for "caution"; and, in boating, a yellow flag stands for the letter Q and indicates a boat is sailing in foreign waters and wishes to clear customs.
    YELLOW AND BLACK STRIPES: to mark stumbling hazards or obstructions, Continued on page 189 round the house

    ## CLOSETS:

    Clothes closets are ideal for color coding. You can cut down on time spent wondering "what have I got to wear?" if all your blues are together, all browns, all plaids. This means everything-blouses, skirts, shoes, accessories-both in closets and drawers.

    In storage closets, boxes and shelves can be separate colors, or you can paint the entire inside of one cabinet one color. Green for gardening, orange for electrical materials, brown for sporting goods, etc. A home workshop can be organized this way-nails and tacks one color, cutting materials another, measuring instruments a third color, and so on.

    If you're moving, color-coding can be invaluable. Mark boxes with small colored tags according to where they belong-blue boxes for downstairs books, yellow boxes for linens, green for kitchen items. Not only will it make the move easier, but unpacking will be a breeze!

    Seasonal items that are in storage most of the year can be kept in colored boxes also. Store Christmas ornaments in green and red; summer clothes in yellow boxes, winter blankets in blue ones.

    ## KITCHEN/DINING ROOM:

    Recipes are often the first place to start. If you keep them in files, organize the files by color-coding. If not, you can color-code cookbooks by attaching labels right on the page. Choose a color for current recipes, one for party snacks, children's favorites, low-cost menus, holiday meals, etc. Set up a system that fits your needs.
    Kitchen cabinet shelves can be colororganized quite easily: Group china and dishes by color, or homemade jams and jellies, flour and sugar jars, etc. Use color on the shelves or cabinet doors or paint the insides of cabinets to identify what's there. Color is also a good way to label homecanned goods and other items that are often hard to identify.

    In the freezer, set up a code to help organize wrapped goods. Pick a color for meats, one for casseroles, one for individual servings. Or you can label foods with colors that represent months, to indicate how long something has been there.

    In the dining room, store table settings by color, plus candles, vases, centerpieces.

    ## LINEN/BATH:

    "If you have bathrooms of different colors in the house, organize the shelves of the linen closet with those colors," suggests Mario Buatta.
    LIBRARY/OFFICE:
    If you have a home filing system, it can be organized by colored files or labels. Bookshelves can also be color-coded by category.

    One client of Ms. McBride's found that she had saved her tax accountant a great deal of time (and thus saved herself a lot of money) by presenting him with color-coded receipts in categories for her tax returns! The same can be done on a day-to-day basis with your checkbook - put colored dots by those items that are strictly personal expenditures, business expenses, tax deductions, and so on. Or, buy different colored checks. Remember, organization with color has one aim: to make life easier for you!
    GARDEN:
    "The obvious place to start is in the tool shed," says James Fanning. "You can buy tools with different colored handles, or paint them yourself. Use bright colors, as they'll stand out in the garden. Color is also a good way to identify liquid sprayers and containers so you won't confuse plain water with plant food, for example."
    In the garden, Mr. Fanning suggests using colored stakes to mark planting areas-perennials, annuals, herbs, bulbs, and vegetables. When planting, remember that a strong background of green will bring out other colors in the garden. Whites are also good for added contrast. And, between garden sections, colored pathways-brick and gravel for example-can be used to further identify each area.
    LIVING ROOM/DEN:
    Records can be kept in order with color. If your collection is like many families', you'll need a color for rock, one for classical, one for jazz, and perhaps another for popular music. Magazines can also be sorted by category-news magazines, entertainment magazines, magazines for the home. Large plastic cubes in different colors are a convenient way to store and code at the same time.
    Using color to identify objects can also

    # Architecture by collage: How an old cow barn, a cobbler's cottage, a greenhouse, and a collection of recycled treasures became # a house with pioncering spirit

    Who would have thought that two buildings, with nothing in common but a shared piece of ground, could be brought together to become a fascinating new house-contemporary, livable, and still in sympathy with its New England neighbors? It took vision and courage to move the turn-of-the-century cow barn and the 19th-century cobbler's cottage to frame an old maple tree, see plan below, and link them with a new prefabricated greenhouse. But it was architectural insight and a lot of hard work that transformed the two recycled structures into the house you see here. Rio Raikes and Joe Speranza of Roxbury Contractors, who make a career of turning uninhabitable buildings into living spaces, searched for materials that "while not necessarily historically correct, would enhance the spirit of the space." They did most of the work themselves with the guidance of the architects of Redroof Design, whose help they sought after seeing the Super Bath Redroof designed for House & Garden (February, 1977). The house is a collage of materials, each with its own history - French doors from an old Massachusetts mansion, cobblestones for the court from New York City's old Westside Highway, and the same wood flooring for the cobbler's shop that went to the George Washington rooms in the American Museum at Bath. But the design is the product of a creative collaboration, and this house was a team effort: Says Redroof's Yann Weymouth, "for good architecture, you need good clients."

    2. New prefabricated greenhouse. Building facts, page 191.

    Far left: French doors frame the view from the barn. Original windows, placed low so cows could see out, are by happy coincidence at the perfect height for seated humans. Top: Roxbury Contractors studying the blueprints. Above: Cobbler's shop-before.

    The most striking new element-the prefabricated greenhouse-at once links and separates the cobbler's shop from the barn, providing a plantfilled transition between the barn's expansive living, dining, cooking, and entertaining space and the bedrooms and baths of the intimate little cottage. To have fit three comfortable bedrooms and two baths into the shop's 896 square feet, "Yann Weymouth of Redroof Design had to exercise some architectural wizardry," Rio Raikes says. He did it by creating a second level in what was originally the attic space. Now the master bedroom and bath, far left, are at field level, and two more bedrooms and a bath are reached by a space-saving spiral staircase. And though the interior space was gutted and redesigned, existing windows, doors, and porch were retained to keep the shop's original façade. Inside, floors were left bare and furniture kept to a minimum to make the small rooms seem uncrowded and serene.

    ## Breezeway with a difference, the greenhouse makes a weatherproof garden path between barn and cottage

    Above: From the outside, the three units-barn, shop, and greenhouse-now brought together, still retain their individual characters. The barn has its weathered siding, while the cobbler's shop continues to present its original clapboard face. Left: Looking from the cottage, the glass and aluminum green-house-link frames the barn's façade; the greenhouse is like an open-air corridor, but protected in any weather.

    ## At the heart of the barn's open living. dining space: a reshaped hayloft

    "Whenever you use something for ing area. But to make the most of an unexpected purpose, you get the barn's abundant space, the rest is some serendipitous surprises," Yann left open, with the four rectangles Weymouth says. In the barn, for formed by the original chestnut instance, the old loft, once used to beams organizing the space into pitch hay down to the cows, was areas for entry and staircase, living, raised and cut to a quarter of its kitchen, and dining. Some elegant original width to become a serene old furniture and an 18th-century retreat, top. The new storage wall, hibachi, whose copper lining now left, extends down from the loft and holds flowers, add new comfort to separates the kitchen from the din- the old barn.

    GARDENGEOMETRY- 2 EASY WAYS TOGROW

    The garden circle has a revolving sprinkler set to water this garden's exact circumference. A tall pipe, propped by a homemade tripod, lifts rainbow arcs above a center faucet.
    "I decided on a round garden for esthetic reasons and for practicality," says Edwin Eberman, above right. An artist by profession and an experimenter by inclination, he wanted space to grow enough vegetables and flowers for family and friends. He and his wife also give huge bouquets to a nearby nursing center twice a week. Easy watering was a must, so garden size matches range of a revolving Rainbird sprinkler. Set near the center and turned on once a week for 12-14 hours, it provides the equivalent of an inch of rain-just what most vegetables need. When not in use, it can be moved aside. To keep soil in good condition, a top-dressing of leaves from

Before spring planting, this leaf mold is turned into the earth along with dry cow manure and a commercial fertilizer, Rapid-Gro. During hot Connecticut summers, leaf mold is used as a mulch around the roots to keep weeds out and moisture in. To protect the garden from animals, wire mesh tacked to the rails of the fence continues 8 inches below ground. Because birds were knocking peppers off their stems and pecking at tomatoes, Mr. Eberman built a wire cage over part of the garden. To foil tunneling moles, he grows Euphorbia Lathyris. "It seeds itself like a weed but is easy to pull out, and really works." (See page 216.) And one more tip on big-garden care: "I'm inclined to want to grow what grows easily."

    # Garden by the square foot

    Every inch counts in a high-yield vegetable garden with squash towers, a three-level sun-box, other inventions that make the growing easy
    Here's a no-nonsense garden where every bit of space and ingenuity goes into raising vege-tables-more and better. They grow in every direction squashes up stakes, tomatoes over arbors, and lettuces in neat no-row checkerboard squares. Soil rich with manure and leaf mold allows rapidsuccession planting, and stays loose thanks to plank paths. Careful single-seed sowing packs a lot of plants into every plot. An ingenious multilevel portable sun box can fit over garden patches to protect spring seedlings and cool-growing fall crops. And unlike the conventional cold frame with angled sides, it turns full face to the sun propped on angled ground. Another experiment-prepunched carpet tile mulch-fits snugly around growing stems, above, acting as a barrier to hungry bugs. Many of these ingenious ideas are brought together in owner/engineer Mel Bartholomew's Green Machine, a kit for a 12 -vegetable garden. More details on page 216 .

    MINUTES

    MENUHam with Madeira sauce Turnip purée Citrus sections with crystallized ginger

    For an any-season, almost any-occasion menu that offers appealing flavor and texture contrasts, try this suggestion from Julie Dannenbaum, who has taught cooking all over the world and directs Creative Cooking, Inc. in Philadelphia -sliced ham with a shallot studded Madeira sauce, a satiny, pale turnip purée, and a lively dessert of ginger-and-brandy-laced fruit. The yearround ingredients can be prepared in under 45 minutes; add another slice of ham, a few more turnips, and an extra grapefruit, and this dinner for 4 works easily for 6 or 8 .

    While the turnips cook (they should be done in about 25 minutes), peel and section the oranges and grapefruit, sprinkle with ginger, and let the dessert chill, covered, in the refrigerator. Cook the ham gently on both sides, then remove to a platter, cover with foil, and keep it warm in the oven. Drain the turnips, shake the pan over high heat a minute to evaporate any moisture, then purée. Beat the butter into the purée and season to taste. Saute the shallots briefly in the skillet you cooked the ham in, then reduce the Madeira and cream, in stages, for the sauce. Spoon the turnip purée into a warmed serving bowl, cut the slice into "fingers," and nap the ham with the sauce. Don't forget to stir a sprinkling of cognac or ginger brandy into the fruit when you're ready for dessert.

    ## Ham with  Madeira sauce

    ## INGREDIENTS

    3 tablespoons butter
    1 large slice well-flavored, precooked ham, $71 / 2$ inches thick
    3 tablespoons shallots, finely chopped
    1 tablespoon tarragon

    6 tablespoons dry Madeira $1 / 2$ cup heavy cream
    Salt, freshly cracked black pepper

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a large skillet and when the foam subsides, put in the slice of ham. Cook slowly 3-4 minutes, then turn and cook the other side 3-4 minutes. Remove ham from the pan and keep warm.
    $\square$ Put the shallots into the skitlet and sauté 2 minutes-do not brown. Add the tarragon and Madeira to the pan and cook over moderate heat, stirring, until reduced by half. Add cream and continue to reduce by half. The sauce should coat a spoon. Season with pepper and a little salt, if needed (ham may be salty). Swirl in 1 tablespoon soft butter. Carve the ham slice into thin finger slices and pour the sauce over the ham. Serves 4.

    HOW CAN ANYTHING NAMED AFTER MANHATTAN BE AS GUTSY,SWINGING AND ALIVE?

    TRY IT...ALL THE LIQUOR'S IN IT. THE HEUBLEIN MANHATTAN.

    ## Why

    An old French maxim states: ' $l$ ' appetit vient en mangeant.' (Appetite comes while eating.) What better way to appeal to the palate than first through the eye? "People are now using the same language and involvement with food that has been associated with wine-inspecting it for color, bouquet, and taste. Using all the senses to heighten the experience," says Dr. Freda Adler, a New York sociologist, who because of her husband's job at the United Nations entertains often. "For a beautiful plate you should have the proper environment. Eating is association of times and places, and part of the experience is the table setting, sitting down with proper lighting (candles), and quiet music. You should eat quietly and slowly so that all the senses become involved."

    Garnishing used to mean an added something on the plate to provide a color contrast. No more-now the design of the plate is an integral part of the recipe. Arranging the components creates the design-sauces go underneath the food or around the edges of the plates, purées are coarser to show texture, or turned into molded mousses, vegetables are cut into matchsticks or olive shapes and served in pastry boats, artichoke bottoms, or arranged one by one like spokes in a wheel, perhaps. Even cooking techniques give thought to the look of the finished dish-vegetables are quickly blanched to retain color and texture, pâtés and terrines are layered, and some ingredients are left whole to add shape, identity, and color.

    The large, 12 -inch plates are the ones most often used by restaurant chefs like Michel Guérard, but the same effect can be achieved with smaller plates-just serve less. It's a good everyday method of portion control! Also experiment with which foods will look best on which "In the old days, it would have been unheard of to serve plates from the kitchen. In today's world of tiny spaces and relaxed entertaining, it often proves to be the easiest, the most efficient, the most graceful-and therefore the best - way in which to do it." (From The Amy Vanderbilt Complete Book of Etiquette, Doubleday, 1978.) The practical bonus - no unwieldy platters to find space for; and surprise - your guests are treated to a visual delight even before they taste.

    plates with a central white space are favorites of the French masters of the picture plate, Guérard and the Troisgros.

    Jean Troisgros recalls that it was about 16 years ago at a spectacular pot-au-feu dinner in honor of the imaginary literary figure, Dodin-Bouffant, that the Troisgros first used the large plate. A merchant had come in with the plates and the Troisgros immediately recognized that they were perfect for this meal of many courses and practical, too, for a whole fish which on another plate would hang over the edges. The plate also worked well for their now-famous salmon in sorrel sauce in which the salmon escalope is pounded flat between sheets of wax paper. Since the escalope turns out quite large, it fits the plate perfectly.
    "I look at cookbooks for the photographs," says Christopher Idone (page 173). One he might look at, The Nouvelle Cuisine of Jean and Pierre Troisgros (William Morrow) is full of ideas like the ones on page 173. Michael Guérard's two books, Cuisine Minceur and Cuisine Gourmande, likewise provide inspiration in their pictures and the recipes usually describe the chef's preferred presentation.
    'I like to put a visual stamp on the things I cook. I want people to say 'that looks like something Judith would cook,'" says Judith Olney (see next page). "You can be as original with food as you are with your decorating or clothing. I have some trademark disheseveryone should have some-the butter rose is one (see January, 1979 Wine & Food), the shaped vegetables might reappear in another dish (see next page). You don't always have to think of entirely new ways to present things, but reuse certain successful ones until they become trademarks.

    The frame makes a difference! Imagine sitting at a dinner table-which plate would you prefer to be served? "The large plate is particularly suitable to creating an instant impression to surprise and delight the guest," says Judith Olney, the author of Summer Food (Atheneum). "Lots of food is golden brown and white. You need something to counterbalance those colors, something bright and colorful. And you have to think about symmetry within the plate, how the food will balance." On the largest plate, the three separate portions space out evenly around a small cup of tomato sauce. When the same portions are placed on the dinner plate, the rice serves as the sauce holder. On the smallest plate, all white space is lost and the portions crowd together in an attempt not to fall off the edges! The menu leans on Chinese ideas given a Provençal flavor with herbs, garlic, and olive oil. "I go through a catechism when developing a menu: What is the texture-crunchy, firm, soft or hard; is the food juicy or dry; is the plan colorful or Believe it or not: The same amount of food

Idone once had a bass marinated in cognac and ground cloves at Le Duc fish restaurant in Paris; "I talk to them often about ideas and recipes because they are so good with fish. I experimented with the cloves and many fish until I tried it with the scallops. The whole recipe doesn't take 5 minutes to do." The foods are presented against basic, neutral backgrounds. Mr. Idone favors white (even the catering kitchen is all white tile, counters, and shelves) in table linens and plates with creamy beige linen or a soft mauve thrown in for contrast. Table decorations are found on walks at the beach or in the woods. "To create a total eating experience, it helps to design the environment in which food will be placed." Recipes, page 178 .

    ## A cellar of friends

    > Wines you can count on and how to get to know them - an expert's advice

    ## By Michael Buller

    editor's note: Michael Buller has been a part of the wine business since 1964, first in France and then as a wine educator traveling the country for the Bordeaux Wine Information Bureau, as a wine writer for several magazines, and as a consumer. He is now concentrating on a book compiling his extensive interviews with Emile Peynaud, wine consultant to 50 leading French châteaux and one of the world's foremost authorities on wine. Mr. Buller's many winemaker friends, earned through years of traveling and tasting with them, have given him a uniquely personal store of knowledge about wines.

    To me, a wine means so much more if I know the winemaker, the all-important man who directs the making of the wine from grape to bottle. When I see the name of a winemaker I know and respect on a wine list in a restaurant, I feel immediately more confident in that wine. I may not know the vintage or the wine itself, but I know the winemaker is a serious professional and I am reassured. Trusting these winemakers, I am rarely if ever disappointed. (The exception could be due to bad storage or an accident in transit.)

    The following wine suggestions-sets of wines and their winemakers - make up my idea of a cellarful of friends. You will see I have included some "openers" for everyday as well as a few wines for special occasions. If these ideas can start you off to build your own cellarful of friendswines and winemakers you personally like -then I shall be delighted.

    ## CALIFORNIA ZINFANDELS

    These increasingly popular wines are allAmerican. Perhaps because they have no sure forefathers from abroad, California winemakers feel free to create wines according to their own taste. Zinfandels are made to improve with age. When you find one you like. you might buy some extra bottles to lay away. You may even find bottles of older vintages to taste against the younger wines. Another day, move on to California's Cabernet Sauvignons, tasting and comparing what the winemakers are doing with these wines. Hert are a few zinfandels to try:

    ## Mixed sautéed vegetable flowers

    INGREDIENTS20-25 pearl onions, peeledSalt, pepper1 large, stout carrot, scraped2 medium-sized, sweet red peppers2 small, firm zucchini, trimmed1 garlic clove, peeled2 tablespoons parsley, chopped2 tablespoons olive oilJuice of $1 / 2$ lemon

    ## METHOD

    Parboil the onions in a pan of boiling, salted water until just tender. Using a vegetable stripper or a small, sharp knife, cut five grooves along the length of the carrot at its thicker end. Cut the carrot in thin slices which should then resemble five-petaled flowers. Just as the onions finish cooking, drop the carrots into the boiling water, let them turn a vivid orange, then drain onions and carrots together into a colander and refresh them under cold water.
    $\square$ Slice the peppers in half lengthwise and seed them. Cut each half into quarters lengthwise, then cut in half crosswise. Cut each piece into 3 -pointed shapes resembling tulips. Cut the zucchini into 2 -inchlong pieces, cut each into quarters lengthwise. Cut away flesh, leaving $1 / 8$ inch attached to peel. Save the flesh for another use and make a notch on either end of peel strips for decorative effect. The vegetables may all be prepared ahead up to this point-keep them refrigerated.

    Chop the garlic clove and parsley together until they become a fine mince. Heat the olive oil in a frying pan. Add all the vegetables and let them saute briefly until the peppers and zucchini are brightly colored and just crisply cooked. Sprinkle in the parsley-garlic mince, add lemon juice, salt, and pepper to taste. Shake the pan to mix and mingle everything, then serve immediately. Serves 4.

    ## Saffroned pilaf

    ## INGREDIENTS

    4 tablespoons sweet butter
    1 medium onion, finely chopped
    1 cup long-grained rice, preferably Basmati
    2 cups boiling, salted water colored with 1/4 teaspoon powdered saffron

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Heat 2 tablespoons butter in a saucepan, add the onion, and cook until tender. Add the rice and stir until it gains a pale, translucent color. Pour on the boiling saffron water, give a brief stir, and regulate the heat to the barest simmer. Cover the pot. In approximately $24-26$ minutes, the water will have completely evaporated, and the rice will be cooked. Test it by moving a small portion of rice from the center of the pan. If the pan's bottom is completely dry, the rice is done. Stir in the remaining 2 tablespoons butter.
    $\square$ To mold the rice, butter 4 small ramekins, divide the rice between them, and press down on the grains to compact them slightly. Hold the ramekins in a warming oven until needed, then unmold on plates. Serves 4.

    ## Stuffed chicken wings

    INGREDIENTS FOR BATTER
    1/2 cup flour, sifted
    1/4 teaspoon salt
    1 tablespoon olive oil
    1/2 cup lukewarm water
    2 egg whites
    INGREDIENTS FOR CHICKEN
    18 chicken wings
    3 tablespoons black olives, pitted and chopped
    1 small clove garlic
    $1 / 4$ cup dry white wine
    1 teaspoon olive oil
    1 tablespoon mixed oregano and thyme
    1 tablespoon parsley, chopped
    Salt, pepper
    $11 / 2$ quarts peanut oil for deep frying
    Homemade tomato sauce

    ## METHOD FOR BATTER

    Sift flour and salt into a bowl and make a well in the middle. Add olive oil and lukewarm water. Using a whisk, gradually incorporate the flour into the liquid until it is a smooth paste. Cover with a towel and let rest 1 hour.

    ## METHOD FOR CHICKEN

    $\square$ The portion of the wing used for stuffing is the small, upper "drumstick" length. Sever through the "elbow" joint, cutting off the double-boned middle joint and the wing tip. Reserve these for stock.
    $\square$ Starting at the small, less fleshy end of the bone, cut through the skin and tendons with a sharp knife, then push and scrape the flesh cleanly down the length of the bone toward the "shoulder" end. Using the fingers, pull the mass of meat up and over the bone's end. The wing should now resemble a small lollipop, with a clean bone/ stick and a fat rounded mass of meat on top. Trim off any ragged bits of skin.
    $\square$ Chop the olives and garlic clove to a fine mince and stuff a small portion of the mixture into the center of each chicken wing. Place the wings in a bowl, sprinkle them with wine, olive oil, herbs, and seasoning, and leave to marinate $1 / 2$ hour.

    ## METHOD FOR ASSEMBLY

    $\square$ Heat the peanut oil in a deep fryer or high-sided pot. Beat the egg whites in a bowl to firm peaks and fold into the batter. Pat the chicken wings dry with paper towels. Test the oil by dropping in a small amount of batter. When it sinks slowly then bobs sizzling to the surface, the oil is ready. Dip the stuffed ends of the wings into batter, drop into the oil, and let them fry to a deep golden brown. Do not overcrowd the pan. Remove the wings as they cook, blot gently with paper towels, and place on absorbent toweling on a cookie sheet. Leave in a warm oven until all are finished. Serve accompanied by a small dipping pot of thick, flavorful tomato sauce tangy with cayenne pepper. Serves 6/3wings per person.

    ## Sautéed bay scallops

    ## INGREDIENTS

    $1 / 2$ cup clarified butter (butter melted slowly, foam, if any, skimmed; then drained of the milk solids that sink to the bottom of the pan)
    $1 / 2$ sweet red pepper, cut into thin strips and finely diced
    1 pound fresh bay scallops (do not wash them)
    Pinch ground cloves
    2 tablespoons finely chopped chives

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Heat clarified butter in a sauté pan that will comfortably hold the scallops. When the butter is hot, add the diced pepper and sauté 1 minute. Add the scallops and sauté 1-2 minutes-just long enough to warm them through. Add ground cloves, stir, and mix in the chives. Serve immediately on warmed plates. Serves 4-6.

    ## Muscovy duck with spinach, fresh limes, and lemon zest

    INGREDIENTS
    4312 -pound Muscovy ducks (or use Long Island duckling)
    Salt, pepper
    4 Granny apples, quartered
    $1 / 2$ cup dry white wine
    1/2 cup duck or chicken stock
    1/2 cup sugar
    Zest of 2 large lemons, cut into wide strips 2 fresh limes
    2 pounds fresh spinach, stems removed and leaves washed and dried thoroughly

    ## METHOD

    Salt and pepper the inside of the duck carcass and stuff each bird with 1 Granny apple. You may remove the legs and thighs before roasting if you wish to use them in a terrine later. Set the ducks in a pan that will comfortably hold them and roast in a preheated $500^{\circ}$ oven 20 minutes. Roast Long Island duckling 50 minutes. The duck will be cooked; the breast meat pink and juicy. Remove from the pan and drain the pan of all fat. Add the wine and stock, deglaze the pan, and strain the juices. Reserve and keep warm.
    Remove the breast meat and skin from the duck carcasses and set on a flat pan that will fit into the broiler. If you have cooked the ducks whole, reserve the legs and thighs, with the carcass, for a borscht. $\square$ Melt the sugar in a heavy saucepan with 1 cup water. Triple-fold the lemon zest strips as you would a letter and julienne. When the sugar has dissolved, continue stirring until the consistency is syrupy but do not let it caramelize. Add the lemon julienne, stir briefly in the syrup, then remove the julienne with a slotted spoon and reserve.
    $\square$ Neatly slice away the zest and pith from the limes. Remove each section by slicing between the membrane with a very sharp knife. You should have 4 sections for each serving.
    $\square$ Arrange the spinach on individual plates and tuck the lime sections around the spinach. Broil duck breasts, skin side up, under hot broiler until the skin is crisp. Cut each half breast on the bias into 4 or 5 slices. Arrange on top of the spinach leaves. Place a little of the lemon julienne on top of the skin of each duck slice and spoon a bit of the reserved juices over the duckling. Serves 6-8.

    ## Poached Bartlett pears with raspberry sauce and chopped pistachios

    ## INGREDIENTS

    6 nicely shaped, firm, ripe Bartlett pears
    Zest of 1 lemon
    Juice of 1 lemon
    11/2-2 cups granulated sugar
    1 package frozen raspberries
    2 ounces kirsch
    Sugar (optional)
    3 tablespoons pistachios, coarsely chopped

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Peel the pears, leaving stems intact and place them in an enamel or stainless steel pot with the lemon zest and juice and enough cold water to cover. (Pears float; press them down when adding water.) Add sugar. Cut a piece of waxed paper to fit inside the pot and cover the pears with it. Place the pot over high heat, bring to a boil, then simmer 25-30 minutes or until pears are tender. Let the pears cool in their own juices. Refrigerate them if planning to serve them the next day.
    $\square$ Purée the raspberries in a food processor and strain through a fine sieve. Wash the seeds with the kirsch: Pour kirsch over seeds through strainer; discard seeds. Stir mixture to incorporate kirsch. If you are using fresh raspberries, add sugar to taste. To keep for several days in the refrigerator, bring to a boil, then cool. $\square$ Slice a sliver off the bottom of the pears so they will stand straight. Pour 2 spoonfuls of sauce in the center of the plate and spread out with the back of a spoon. Arrange on individual plates and dribble a few tablespoons sauce from the stem down. Sprinkle chopped pistachios on top. Serves 6.

    ## Duck with black currants

    ## INGREDIENTS

    2 Barbarie or Muscovy ducks, about 3 pounds each, dressed, or 1 large Long Island duck
    Salt
    Freshly ground pepper
    1 tablespoon peanut oil
    10 ounces black currants (available preserved in light syrup, imported from Poland and England)
    $11 / 2$ tablespoons sugar
    3/8 cup red wine vinegar
    1 tablespoon red currant jelly
    2122 tablespoons crème de cassis (black currant liqueur)
    $11 / 2$ cups concentrated veal stock with tomato (recipe below)
    6 tablespoons butter

    ## METHOD

    $\square$ Truss the ducks and season with salt and pepper. Place them in a heavy casserole, brush with peanut oil, and brown them on all sides over medium to high heat. Allow about 20 minutes for this operation, then finish the ducks in the oven. Roast them about 20 minutes in a preheated $450^{\circ}$ oven, turning them several times. Roast a 6 -pound Long Island duck 1 hour. When the roasting is completed, place the ducks on a carving platter and let them stand for at least 1 hour at room temperature. Pour off all fat remaining in the casserole, but do not wash it.
    $\square$ If using fresh black currants, place them in a saucepan with $1 / 4$ cup water and $11 / 2$ tablespoons sugar. Simmer, covered, for 5 minutes. If the berries are preserved, drain a heaping cupful in a sieve. Reserve their juice.
    $\square$ Place each duck on its back, untruss, and cut off the legs at the joint above the thigh. Then, using a sharp carving knife, make one long incision down the middle of the breast, and scrape from the length of the breastbone down the rib cage until you reach the joint of the wing. Remove the large fillet in one piece and repeat on the other side.
    $\square$ In the same manner, disengage the filet mignon (the long strip which adheres to the carcass just below the breast). Using a heavy knife, chop off and discard the tail. Cut the carcasses into manageable pieces. (Use a meat cleaver or poultry shears for this operation.)
    $\square$ Deglaze the casserole in which the ducks were cooked with vinegar and, after a minute or two, add the red currant jelly. Boil until the juices caramelize, then stir in the crème de cassis.

    Add the veal stock, the carcasses of the ducks, and a scant $1 / 3$ cup of the juice rendered from the cooked currants. (If using preserved currants, add the same amount of syrup.)

    Bring to a boil, then reduce heat to very low. Let the sauce barely simmer for 20 minutes-watch carefully, as it burns easily. During this time skim off any fat and impurities that rise to the surface.
    $\square$ Pass the sauce through a fine sieve into a small heated casserole, pressing down on the bones. Then, stir in the butter, a tablespoon at a time, to give it gloss, add the currants, and taste for seasoning. The sauce should be neither too sweet nor too salty.

    Separate the drumstick and thigh sections of the legs at the joint above the drumsticks, and arrange them in a cross in the center of a hot, flameproof serving platter. Cut the fillets into 4 thin slices each, and arrange them, slightly overlapping, in a crown surrounding the legs. Heat the platter for a few seconds on top of the stove, then nap with hot sauce. Serves 4.

    ## Concentrated veal stock with tomato

    INGREDIENTS FOR BROWN VEAL STOCK
    2112 pounds veal knuckle and leg bones, cut into manageable pieces (ask your butcher to do this)
    1 large onion, sliced
    2 carrots, sliced
    1 clove garlic Bouquet garni (sprigs of thyme and parsley and a bay leaf, tied together)
    INGREDIENTS FOR CONCENTRATED
    VEAL STOCK WITH TOMATO
    2 tablespoons peanut oil
    1 small carrot, finely chopped
    1 small onion, finely chopped
    3 fresh tomatoes, chopped
    $1 / 2$ tablespoon tomato paste
    1 stalk celery, cut into several pieces
    Parsley sprigs, tied together
    1 quart brown veal stock
    5 peppercorns, slightly crushed

    ## METHOD FOR BROWN VEAL STOCK

    $\square$ Spread out the bones on a large baking sheet. Roast, turning them once or twice, in a preheated $475^{\circ}$ oven until well browned on all sides (allow about 45 min utes).
    $\square$ Place the hot bones in a large stockpot with the onion, carrot, garlic, and bouquet garni. Do not add salt. Fill the pot with enough cold water to cover the ingredients and bring to a vigorous boil. Then skim off the surface scum.
    $\square$ Let the stock boil gently for about 4 hours. Frequently skim off the scum and fat that will continue to rise to the surface. Strain through a fine sieve. There should be about 1 quart brown veal stock. When the broth has cooled, lift off any excess fat with a shallow spoon. Refrigerate or freeze the stock until ready to use.

    ## METHOD FOR CONCENTRATED

    VEAL STOCK
    $\square$ Heat the oil in a heavy medium-size casserole. Add the mirepoix of carrot and onion and cook, covered, over low heat to release their juices. Add the tomatoes and, when the vegetables are soft, stir in the tomato paste. Add the celery, parsley, and stock, and bring to a boil. Then reduce heat to the barest simmer and cook 1 hour. Skim the surface occasionally and add pepper during the final 10 minutes of cooking.
    $\square$ When finished, the stock should be reduced by half, with only 1 pint remaining. Cook longer if necessary. Strain through a fine sieve. Cool, and refrigerate or freeze it until ready to use.

    4 thick slices jambon de Roanne, about 4 ounces each (or substitute boiled or Virginia ham, with all rind and outside coating removed)
    Salt, freshly ground pepper
    $1 / 2$ lemon
    2 whole cooked vegetable serpentines (recipe below)

    ## METHOD

    Melt $11 / 2-2$ tablespoons butter in one or, if necessary, two large skillets. Lightly brown the ham on both sides, then arrange it on a hot platter.

    Bring 3 tablespoons water to a boil over high heat in a small saucepan. Using a wire whisk, incorporate the remaining butter, cut into tiny pieces, a little at a time. Stir briskly until thickened, then season with salt, pepper, and a few drops of lemon juice.
    $\square$ Cut the hot rolled vegetables into 12 coils each $1 / 2$-inch thick. Divide the ham slices among 4 hot plates. To decorate, nap ham with the beurre fondu, and arrange 3 coils over the center of each slice and unwind them slightly, so that they cover the entire plate harmoniously. Serves 4.

    ## Vegetable serpentines

    ## INGREDIENTS

    2 large yellow turnips, about 7 ounces each
    2 large carrots, about 3 ounces each
    1 large cucumber, about 7 ounces
    (For this recipe, choose the largest vegetables available)
    Salt
    7 tablespoons butter
    Freshly ground pepper

    ## METHOD

    Trim off the tops and bottoms of the turnips, trim so that each becomes a cylinder 3 inches long, then peel them. Blanch cylinders about 5 minutes. Using a sharp knife with a blade 3 inches long, turn the vegetable on its central axis to cut
