MODERNIST RADIO

ARCHITECTURE YOU LOVE

New on USModernist Radio: In architectural photography, both digital and social changes in photography affect decisions about the kind of buildings we see built, the design competitions where photos play a part, and how you can take better photos of architecture you love, like your own house. You'll meet architect Harry Wolf, who won five national AIA honor awards and over 30 regional and state AIA honors; Raleigh Architect Matt Griffith whose firm has won twenty-two local and state design awards; and architectural photographer Jim Sink who has been shooting buildings, with his camera, for nearly 50 years. USModernist Radio is sponsored by Angela Roehl, your special real estate agent for Modernist houses. Listen via iTunes. Listen on Android devices and PC's.

CONNECT- IONS 81.2

A 3-day architectural workshop
May 18-20, 2018
to re-imagine 81.2 acres in Raleigh, NC

DAY 1

Opening Lectures
CAM Raleigh . 5:30-8pm

An evening of inspiring talks from five New York planners, architects and landscape architects responsible for monumental urban design projects across the globe. These talks are open to the public and are designed to inspire those who live, work, and play in Raleigh, to be bold and forward-thinking in the development of this growing metropolis.

open to the public

DAY 2

Design Workshop
Citrix . 8:30am-6:30pm

A day-long architectural workshop with teams of architects from North Carolina, exploring future possibilities for the sites where Central Prison and The Governor Morehead School are located, on 812 acres north of Dix Park. Consideration will be given to Raleigh's economy, connectivity, and design - for the good of its people and its environment.

by registration only

DAY 3

Ideas Presentation
NCSU Burns Auditorium
12:30-3:30pm

A presentation and discussion of workshop results, including team visions for the sites and connections to neighboring properties and beyond. Invited guests will include the design community, civic officials, developers, property owners and the public - especially young professionals making Raleigh their home. The goal is for resulting conversations to continue after the presentations.

open to the public
