Recently Brad Pitt's Make It Right Foundation was hit with a lawsuit from the New Orleans homeowners. Now Pitt and the Foundation are suing the architect, John C. Williams. The Foundation, which doesn't talk to the press, built 106 eye-catching units some of which developed leaks, mold, and other significant issues. Video.

The World Monuments Fund kicks off a new Instagram campaign to save modern buildings around the world. Hat tip to Virginia Faust.

In one of the longest preservation battles in recent history, the deteriorating Richard Neutra Connell House in Pebble Beach (with one of the best ocean views in California), is up for public comment on the recent Environmental Review. The owner Massy Mehdipour has since 2010 wanted to demolish the house and build another Modernist home by Mexican architect Ricardo Legorreta that is three times larger. Preservationists oppose the demolition and want to compel Mehdipour to repair and restore the original design.

Is your business (food, art, architecture, construction, furniture, fixtures) looking for customers who love good design? Up to 200 people attend our monthly design parties. The next one could be at your office or studio - or at a client location showing off your work. Dates available starting in December. Email Rebekah Laney, rebekah@ncmodernist.org.

Both sides have dug in. Advantage Preservation: this is a magnificent Neutra house worth saving, and there are more time-consuming and costly delays which can be forced on Mehdipour through additional procedural reviews. Advantage Mehdipour: eventually the house will be beyond reasonable repair, making preservation irrelevant, and she can proceed with construction. Plus so far, no one has cited any laws which can make an owner ultimately keep a house against their will.
