This Thursday, February 28, 6-8pm, join Will Alphin of REdesign.build, at the new 926 Tower Street Project, Raleigh. It's the first of four new Modernist houses on that street. Thirst4Architecture is our free monthly party for anyone with a huge crush on Modernist architecture - sponsored throughout 2019 by Modernist realtor Angela Roehl. Details.

New on USModernist Radio: Most people refer to architect Mies van der Rohe as Mies, which puts him into that rare club of people known by their first names, like Cher or Sting or Wynonna. Mies got worldwide attention with two projects, the Barcelona Pavilion and the Villa Tugendhat. He joined the avant-garde Bauhaus school as director of architecture and left Germany in 1937 to head up the architecture school at the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago. Mies died fifty years ago in 1969. Dirk Lohan, grandson of Mies, was born near Berlin in 1938 and left Germany to study with his grandfather at the Illinois Institute of Technology. Later, he worked with Mies designing projects as the New National Gallery in Berlin, the IBM office building in Chicago and The Toronto Dominion Centre. Dirk is known for the renovated Soldier Field, the original McDonald's campus (where he witnessed the first McNuggets), and many other buildings.

USModernist Radio is sponsored by Angela Roehl, your special real estate agent for Modernist houses. Listen via iTunes. Listen on Android devices and PC's. Learn about the show and see past episodes.

Cheers to Our State magazine, which did a huge spread in the March issue (on newsstands in about a week) on North Carolina Modernism, featuring articles on Randy Lanou, Frank Harmon, Adam Sebastian, Michael Ross Kersting, George Smart, Carter Williams, Aaron and Calder Wilson. and more! To celebrate, Our State offers you a $5.00 discount on a full year's subscription, good on all new subscriptions, personal or gift. Go to ourstate.com, go to subscribe, and type in your special code: DSMHA.
