WHY SHOULD TEEN-AGERS STAY HOME?

"Suppose we just turn the fixtures around like this—"

"... it's the most practical plan, Tom. I've tried them all, and if we don't put the plumbing fixtures back to back, we'll use up all our money just to change a few old pipes around."

Tom was a little more receptive than usual. "And what do we gain with that arrangement?" he asked.

"Well," I said, "we could partition off the toilet. That would give it some privacy and keep it out of sight. Then on the lavatory side of the partition we could put up a big mirror—one that's high enough so you can shave in comfort and still low enough to let Buddy see if his face is dirty."

There was just the hint of a grin on Tom's face. "Then what?"

This time I crossed my fingers. "I want to put in another Armstrong Floor. Oh, I know the old one isn't worn out," I added quickly, "but we've had it such a long time, Tom. While we're redecorating let's go the whole way."

Tom thought a minute. "Guess we have had more than our money's worth out of it."

Once Tom agreed to a new Armstrong Floor it was easy to sell him on the idea of putting Armstrong's Linowall on the walls. He agreed that I should have walls that are easy to keep clean, too. Then I told him how I planned to box in the washbowl and have a hidden clothes hamper built in underneath.

Tom's a salesman and he always says that it's smart to make your sale and get out. Well, I'd made my sale, so I didn't bother him with details. I just went ahead and had the carpenter build in a much-needed dressing table while he was putting in the sliding doors for the storage cabinet. The cabinet, by the way, has lots of storage space on both sides of the partition.

Mr. Cleveland from the linoleum store came up with the idea of having a nice inset design put in my Armstrong's Linoleum and Linowall. It's amazing how it helps to tie the whole color scheme together.

Then he began to tell me about the other advantages of having an Armstrong Floor... how long it would wear, how little effort it took to keep it sparkling clean. I just smiled to myself and let him go on raving about it. You see, having had one once before I knew all about those things—that's why I made sure I was buying Armstrong's Linoleum the second time.

Write for decorating book, "Ideas for Every Room," by noted interior decorator, Hazel Dell Brown. Its 32 pages are packed with full-color illustrations and scores of remodeling and decorating hints for new homes and old. Send 10¢ (outside U. S. A., 40¢) to Armstrong Cork Company, 4909 Pine St., Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

Just the simple idea of turning toilet and washbowl back to back set the stage for this lovely bathroom. The pale Primrose Yellow finish on walls and cabinets is water-repellent Armstrong's Linowall, Style No. 708. The pretty floor: Armstrong's Gray Marbelle® Linoleum, Style No. 018, with twisted-ribbon design of plain chartreuse and coral linoleum. For plan of room and free list of furnishings, just write.

PRIDE'S CASTLE, by Frank Yerby
—One woman sacrificed her honor to win the love of big, ruthless Pride Dawson; the other only PRETENDED goodness in order to become his wife. A daring new novel by the author of "The Foxes of Harrow."

PRAIRIE AVENUE, by Arthur Meeker
—They talked about Lydia Stack in whispers—but she knew the family skeletons in every secret closet! An exciting story of lusty, brawling Chicago in the fabulous 1880's.

Lydia—loved by so many men; hated by so many women! — From "Prairie Avenue."

How could she resist this bold, unscrupulous gambler? — From "Pride's Castle."

SHANNON'S WAY, by A. J. Cronin
—Young Dr. Shannon risked everything to find a cure that meant life to millions. But the only cure for the ache in his own heart was the love of a woman he was forbidden to marry. By author of "The Citadel" and "Keys of the Kingdom."

WINE OF SATAN, by Laverne Gay
—Beautiful Zoe trembled as she looked into the arrogant eyes of Bohemond, the great warrior of the First Crusade. Could she conceal her love—or would he force her to betray her vows?

SHORT STORIES OF DE MAUPASSANT
—Over 50 of the frankest, most daring stories ever written—complete and unexpurgated!

A CALF FOR VENUS, by Nora Lofts
—Young, innocent Letty was headed straight for a fate worse than death. But the young doctor recklessly risked his future in a desperate gamble to save her!

ARABIAN NIGHTS —The fabulous "thousand-and-one" tales of adventure, magic, and exotic romance which have captivated millions.

TALES FROM THE DECAMERON
—Boccaccio's lusty tales—about amorous antics of sinning "saints" and saintly "sinners"—stories unexcelled for sheer verve and gusto.

NOW! PROOF that brushing teeth right after eating is the safe, effective way to

HELP STOP TOOTH DECAY

with Colgate
Dental Cream

NOW dental science offers proof that always using Colgate Dental Cream right after eating helps stop tooth decay before it starts!

Continuous research—hundreds of case histories—makes this the most important news in dental history!

X-RAYS SHOW HOW PROPER USE OF COLGATE'S HELPS STOP TOOTH DECAY

Eminent dental authorities supervised 2 groups of college men and women for over a year. One group always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating. The other followed their usual dental care.

The average of the group using Colgate's as directed was a startling reduction in number of cavities—far less tooth decay! The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate.

Colgate's has been proved to contain all the necessary ingredients, including an exclusive patented ingredient, for effective daily dental care. No claim is made that using Colgate's can stop all tooth decay, or help cavities already started. But brushing teeth right after eating is the proved way to help stop tooth decay with Colgate Dental Cream. The Colgate Dental Cream now at your dealer's is the same formula used in the tests.

Ready-made draw curtains with a custom workroom look

Celanese* DECORATIVE FABRICS

With a pull of the cord you let in the sun; shut out the night. That's just one of the joys of new, decorator-approved draw curtains of both Celanese Multicord* and Serenacel* of acetate rayon. Have them in either sill or floor lengths—enjoy the handsome color and texture interest they bring to a room. You'll find them at the drapery department nearest you, in sizes to fit any type window—and important, despite their made-to-order look, they're completely budget-conscious! Also by the yard. Celanese Corporation of America, New York 16.

Ready-made curtains in Celanese decorative fabrics are manufactured by the following firms: O'Brien Curtain Co., Los Angeles; Empire Curtain Co., Boston; Angwell Curtain Co., Chicago; Ardsley Curtain Co., New York City.

Of course, you want plenty of windows for that new or remodeled home. But choose them the weather-wise way! Insist on Curtis Silentite windows . . . for positive, scientific protection from heat and cold, dust and wind. Curtis Silentite windows are truly weathertight!

No Other Window is Like Silentite!

Yes, only Silentite has the famous patented floating weatherstrips that fit snugly against the sides of the window, yet permit easy movement! Remember, too, that Silentite is a WOOD window—to provide extra insulation. And Silentite windows are easy to operate—no sticking or binding.

Weather-tight Casements, Too!

Here is one of the most weather-tight casements made—the Curtis Silentite! Made of wood, it's specially insulated. Silentite casements won't rattle, vibrate or swing in the wind. There's no exposed hardware outside—no bulky hardware inside.

Send for Silentite Window Book—it shows you how to plan for a more beautiful, more comfortable home with Curtis Silentite windows!

This EXTRA cooling system means safe cold from top to bottom!

When you pick a Frigidaire Refrigerator with a full-width freezer, you get the extra protection of concealed chilling coils in the back and bottom of the food compartment!

Full-width Super-Freezer Chest of this Frigidaire De Luxe holds 45 lbs. of frozen foods.

Don't judge by appearances alone when you select a new refrigerator with a full-width freezer across the top. There's a big unseen difference in this Frigidaire De Luxe—a patented feature that insures safe cold even in the bottom of the cabinet. Frigidaire's Super-Freezer Chest holds up to 45 lbs. of frozen foods in freezing cold—and it helps to cool the fresh food compartment as well! But that's not all. There are extra cooling coils going to the bottom of the cabinet and under the Hydrator to make doubly sure you get safe cold from top to bottom.

Ask your Frigidaire Dealer to show you the Thermometer Test—visible proof that Frigidaire maintains correct temperatures in all parts of all food storage areas. Ask about the simplest refrigerating mechanism ever built—the famous Meter-Miser that produces oceans of cold on a trickle of current. See how every Frigidaire is packed full of features that save food and money, save time and work—proof that America's No. 1 Refrigerator is America's No. 1 value.

See how much less it costs at today's lower prices to get just the Frigidaire Refrigerator that fits your kitchen, your needs. Remember—into every Frigidaire is built the experience gained in manufacturing over 11 million Frigidaire refrigerating units!

3 different types of Frigidaire Refrigerators—14 models in all! Safe cold from top to bottom is a vital feature of every Frigidaire Refrigerator—a thrifty Frigidaire Master, a Frigidaire De Luxe, or the Frigidaire Cold-Wall Imperial, a combination refrigerator and home freezer! All have Frigidaire's Automatic Cold-Control—Double-Easy Quickcube Ice Trays that pop out cubes without melting—acid-resisting porcelain in food compartments and Hydrator—and all the great basic Frigidaire advantages. All are styled by Raymond Loewy. On some models Frigidaire offers the famous Lifetime Porcelain exterior finish.

FRIGIDAIRE Refrigerators

Over 11 Million Built and sold

Ask your Frigidaire Dealer for proof that Frigidaire is your best. He will gladly tell you about any Frigidaire Appliance—including the famous Frigidaire Electric Ranges, All-Porcelain Automatic Washer and Home Freezers.

Look up the name and address of your Frigidaire Dealer in your Classified Phone Directory—or write Frigidaire Division of General Motors, Dayton 1, Ohio. In Canada, Leaside 12, Ontario.

World's simplest cold-making mechanism—the Meter-Miser, powers every Frigidaire Refrigerator. Built like a fine watch, it's compact, without belts, pulleys, extra parts to cause trouble or wear. Sealed for life against moisture and dirt, permanently oiled.

The Thermometer Test is proof Frigidaire gives safe cold from top to bottom! Place a thermometer anywhere in the large food compartment or the Super-Freezer—see how correct temperatures are constantly maintained!

Here's a
WHOLE WALL
IN ONE PIECE

—weatherproof
—crackproof

These Big Sheets of Homasote—up to 8 feet by 14 feet in size—cover the average wall in one piece. If a wall is longer than 14 feet, the joint is made at a door or a window and covered with an architectural panel.

No batten strips—no unsightly wall joints—no cracked or falling plaster—ever! Instead . . . a smooth, clean surface—a perfect base for paint or wallpaper.

Homasote gives you great structural strength and high insulating value. Permanently weatherproof, its use insures a dry house—no musty closets or mildewed walls. And its sound-deadening qualities are instantly sensed; street noises and indoor noises are minimized.

Mail the coupon today for illustrated folder suggesting many practical, money-saving and attractive uses for Homasote Big Sheets.

Books

Parent and Child by Catherine Mackenzie. (William Sloane Associates, Inc.) Price $2.95 . . . The writer of the New York Times Magazine column has welded into book form her advice on family living. Describing child behavior from the preschool infant to the teen-ager, she discusses how adult attitudes affect the young, includes problems of the gifted child, the teaching of manners and morals. Her information is gleaned not from one school of thought but from the latest research on many fronts.

Understanding Yourself by William C. Menninger, M.D. (Science Research Associates) Price 75¢ . . . A psychiatrist helps teen-agers analyze their own reactions to problems. He also describes how to keep emotionally healthy and where to find aid when troubles are overwhelming.

The Handbook for Flower Shows compiled by Mrs. Jerome W. Coombs and Mrs. William Crocker; edited by Esther C. Grayson (National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc.) Price $2.50 . . . Superseding the Council's "Handbook for Judging Schools," this is a detailed manual for anyone who has to do with flower shows. Basic information about Flower Show Practice, Schools, Judging, Arrangement, and Standards is supplemented by lists of plant societies and their scales for judging, a glossary, a bibliography, a color chart, and index.

The Valley of Flowers by Frank S. Smythe. (W. W. Norton & Co.) Price $5.00 . . . Mr. Smythe takes you into the Bhyundar Valley of the Himalayas where, for four months, he enjoyed "beauty, health, good comradeship, peace." A professional mountain climber, he makes you share the thrills and triumphs of that perilous sport. But he is also a gardener, a flower lover, and a plant explorer, and on his trip he collected mountain plants representing some 50 families. Of them and their country he writes with charm, especially when his "pen runs away with him" into flights of pure description and philosophy.

Sorry, we cannot purchase these books for you. They may be obtained through your bookstore.

"Smackin' good...it's GRO-PUP"

For "sniff appeal" heap his dish with wonderful Gro-Pup Ribbon. Crunchy-good . . . and nourishing!

Dogs crave solid food . . . and that's what they get in Gro-Pup. Top quality protein—in skim milk and homogenized fish. Meat meal, too. Plus many "dog thrive" ingredients, including every vitamin and mineral dogs are known to need!

Give your dog Gro-Pup—for sleek coat, good condition and lively bounce! It's veterinary-approved . . . it's the only Ribbon-type dog food available!

9¢ A DAY! Yes, you can feed a Cocker tasty Gro-Pup Ribbon for only 9 cents per day. A saving of 43% over most canned dog food. Treat your dog to nutritious, thrifty Gro-Pup Ribbon. Biggest box on the shelf!

Yes, Smackin' Good...it's Kellogg's

there's more to TELEPHONE PLANNING than meets the eye

Of course you'll want to see telephones in your new home. But you won't want to see telephone wires on handsome walls and woodwork. It's very easy to avoid them — if you plan ahead.

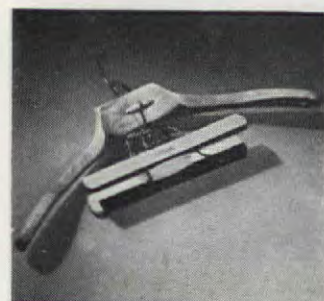

Just pick the places where you'll want telephones. Mark them on your plans. While construction is going on, your builder can place a few lengths of pipe or tubing inside the walls leading to each outlet. Then, when telephones are installed, wires are run through these raceways to each instrument.

If you want to know more about this important home feature, call your local Bell Telephone Business Office and ask for "Architects and Builders Service."

How we retired with $200 a Month

We'd never be out here in California today, financially independent, if it hadn't been for what happened back in Scarsdale, the night of September 10, 1926. How do I remember the date? It was my fortieth birthday and Nell had gotten tickets for "Countess Maritza" to celebrate. While she was dressing that night I sat in the living room, looking through a magazine.

I suppose any man feels kind of serious when he hits forty. Someday we wanted, Nell and I, to really enjoy life. Move out where it was summer all year, in southern California. Grow flowers and soak up the sun. Have time for living. But how could we?

We hadn't saved much. And I realized that a half of my working years had gone. I had a good job and a fair salary. But we found it hard to bank anything. So I began to wonder—must I always live on a treadmill, like so many others?

As I turned the pages, an ad caught my eye and I started to read it. Oddly, the ad seemed meant for me. There was, it said, a way for a man to retire on an income—without ever being rich. It was called the Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan. With it, I could arrange to get a guaranteed income of $200 a month beginning when I reached 60. And it wasn't just an income for myself alone. The Plan actually provided an income as long as either Nell or I lived.

Just as I finished, Nell came rushing downstairs in a hurry as usual. But I stopped long enough to tear out the coupon at the bottom of the ad. I stuck it in an envelope and dropped it in the mail on our way to the show.

Well, that was back in 1926. A few years later, the stock market crashed and the depression came along. Then the war. Many times I was thankful that I had my Phoenix Mutual Plan.

Well, a while back my sixtieth birthday arrived—and was that a celebration! I was all set to retire. And it wasn't long before my first Phoenix Mutual check for $200 came in. So we sold the Scarsdale house and headed for California.

We're in a beautiful spot here, just right for us. And every month, right on the dot, the postman hands us another check. Security? Why, we have more than lots of rich people. Our income is guaranteed for life!

Collective Shoulders "behind the wheel"

SARAH WINSTON

The story of the community playground in Westgate Hills, Pennsylvania, is a revealing chronicle of human co-operation and democracy in full swing. It is the story of the 1800 residents of this Delaware County community and the 5½ acre tract of rough, undeveloped land which they converted into a fine civic center by determination and back-breaking work.

As playgrounds go, the one in Westgate Hills is one which might well serve as a model for similar recreation areas throughout the nation. Still in the process of being built, it now boasts a "tot lot," four tennis courts, baseball diamond, football field, park area, and a cabin for indoor recreation purposes. The grounds are beautifully landscaped.

The thing that sets this playground apart from others is the fact that every bit of it was built and paid for by the people themselves—people from all walks of life. They are still carrying on their playground work—still paying! The playground is operated and maintained on a highly organized basis, with a committee of residents voluntarily contributing their services and the rest of the community supporting the project financially through year-round money-raising activities.

When Westgate Hills was developed nine years ago (it was one of the largest single-home developments in America at the time), the new residents of the neighborhood found they lacked a playground for their youngsters. Township authorities were not prepared to provide a playground at the time, so the residents banded together and made plans for one. Bob Wetter, an enthusiastic Westgater from the beginning, tells how the community playground got its start.

"There was a large plot of ground at the southern end of the development

Collective Shoulders (Begins on page 18)

Fans of all ages cheer would-be Big Leaguer up at bat. Westgaters created diamond from rough, undeveloped land where homes couldn't be built because of the rock formation beneath the soil," he explains. "The builders of the development agreed to give up their option on the land and contribute $1,000 as a good-will gesture if the community raised the balance needed to purchase it. That's all we needed. We began ringing doorbells and in a short time had the required amount."

According to Bob Wetter, a Westgate Hills architect helped out with plans, and the men went to work with picks and shovels—and a couple of hired bulldozers—to grade the rocky, rough expanse. They rooted out four-ton boulders, moved mountains of earth, ran in a 500-foot water line at a depth of four feet. Every spare moment—evenings and week ends—were spent digging, leveling, and planting. One Westgater went so far as to spend his vacations at the playground, working with pick and shovel.

While the men of the community contributed most of the physical labor, the women were right behind them, helping with money-raising activities. Apparently, they were also generous in letting their husbands spend so much time working at the site.

The playground was nine years a-building, but finally Westgaters had accomplished all they had set out to do. Equipment catalogues were studied, swings and other equipment selected. A baseball diamond was laid out, and "boys" of all ages lost little time in

WATER - dollar a drip!

Pretty costly, isn't it?

Leaky roof, driving rainstorm outside. Ruined ceiling, wallpaper, rugs, furniture inside. Cost of replastering, redecorating, refurnishing . . . at today's swollen prices . . . $1,527.80. Heavy blow to any budget! Hard to foresee, but easy to protect against, with the right insurance!

Bad Breaks Cost Money! $65 in this instance . . . almost the price of a brand new Fall coat. Picture windows and mirrors constantly are exposed to breakage . . . and are expensive to buy.

One Night and Two Thousand Dollars "Out"! At today's prices, stolen furs, jewelry, silver, clothing or household goods cost plenty to replace . . . can wreck your budget.

Unexpected Danger . . . Ruinous Lawsuit! This householder never even knew his porch step was loose . . . but it cost him $4,850 to find out! Visitor tripped, broke his hip, sued and collected!

These and many other mishaps could happen in your home . . . and cost you as much or more. So, for safety's sake, ask any Agent of Indemnity Insurance Company of North America or your own broker about Indemnity's Combination Residence Policy.

This policy offers you one big "package of protection" . . . covers so many common everyday hazards . . . costs so little compared to what you could lose . . . you simply can't afford to be without one!

Insurance Company of North America, founded 1792 in Independence Hall, is the oldest American stock fire and marine insurance company. # Happy Ending for my Cracked Ceiling

We had tried everything! Visions of costly repairs haunted me! House torn up... irritating delays... weeks of confusion... white gritty dust seeping and sifting everywhere... oh, how I dreaded it!

Then, happy day! Our lumber dealer told me about Upson Ceilings. Big, lightweight Upson Kuver-Krak Panels, he said, could be applied right over our old ceilings, without replastering.

An Upson Ceiling, he said, would be crackproof forever!

What a grand idea! Panels! Colors! Beautiful shadowline patterns on our ceiling. Instead of a dull monotony overhead, why not character, and design, created by patterns? Why not indeed?

Carpenters applied our Upson Ceiling in a matter of hours. Used clever Upson Fasteners to anchor the panels from the back. So no nail holes show. Now, after painting, isn't our Upson Ceiling lovely? Cost so little too!

Take our word! Call your lumber dealer or carpenter in the beginning. Specify an Upson Ceiling and save yourself a peck of trouble.

Collective Shoulders

(Begins on page 18)

All pitch in to keep playground in good repair. Even teen-agers lend a hand, go to work on "tot lot" equipment making use of it. Today an automobile drive forms a circle at the entrance to the park, and in the center of the landscaped loop is a plaque dedicating the playground to the young men of Westgate Hills who served in World War II.

Close-knit co-ordination is revealed in the model civic association which has been established. Democracy is in full swing at meetings. Criticism is encouraged and welcomed. The occasional complaints received are taken care of with dispatch.

Officers and seven directors are elected annually. Every phase of community living is mapped out and placed under the guidance of the seven directors. A committee works under each director.

Perhaps the most important by-product of the playground is real, old-fashioned neighborliness. Because of this recreation area, Westgate Hills has become an exceptionally co-operative and harmonious community, where friendships have multiplied, differences have disappeared, and understanding has broadened.

Bob Wetter, who has contributed so much time and effort to building the Westgate Hills playground, has this to say:

"If a typical American community of this size—with an even distribution of Catholics, Jews, and Protestants—can achieve solid unity, it is hopeful that the idea of nations working in unison is not mere wishful thinking. Only when communities demonstrate a working democracy can we expect a country to follow a similar pattern. After all is said and done, a country is no better than its thousands of small communities."

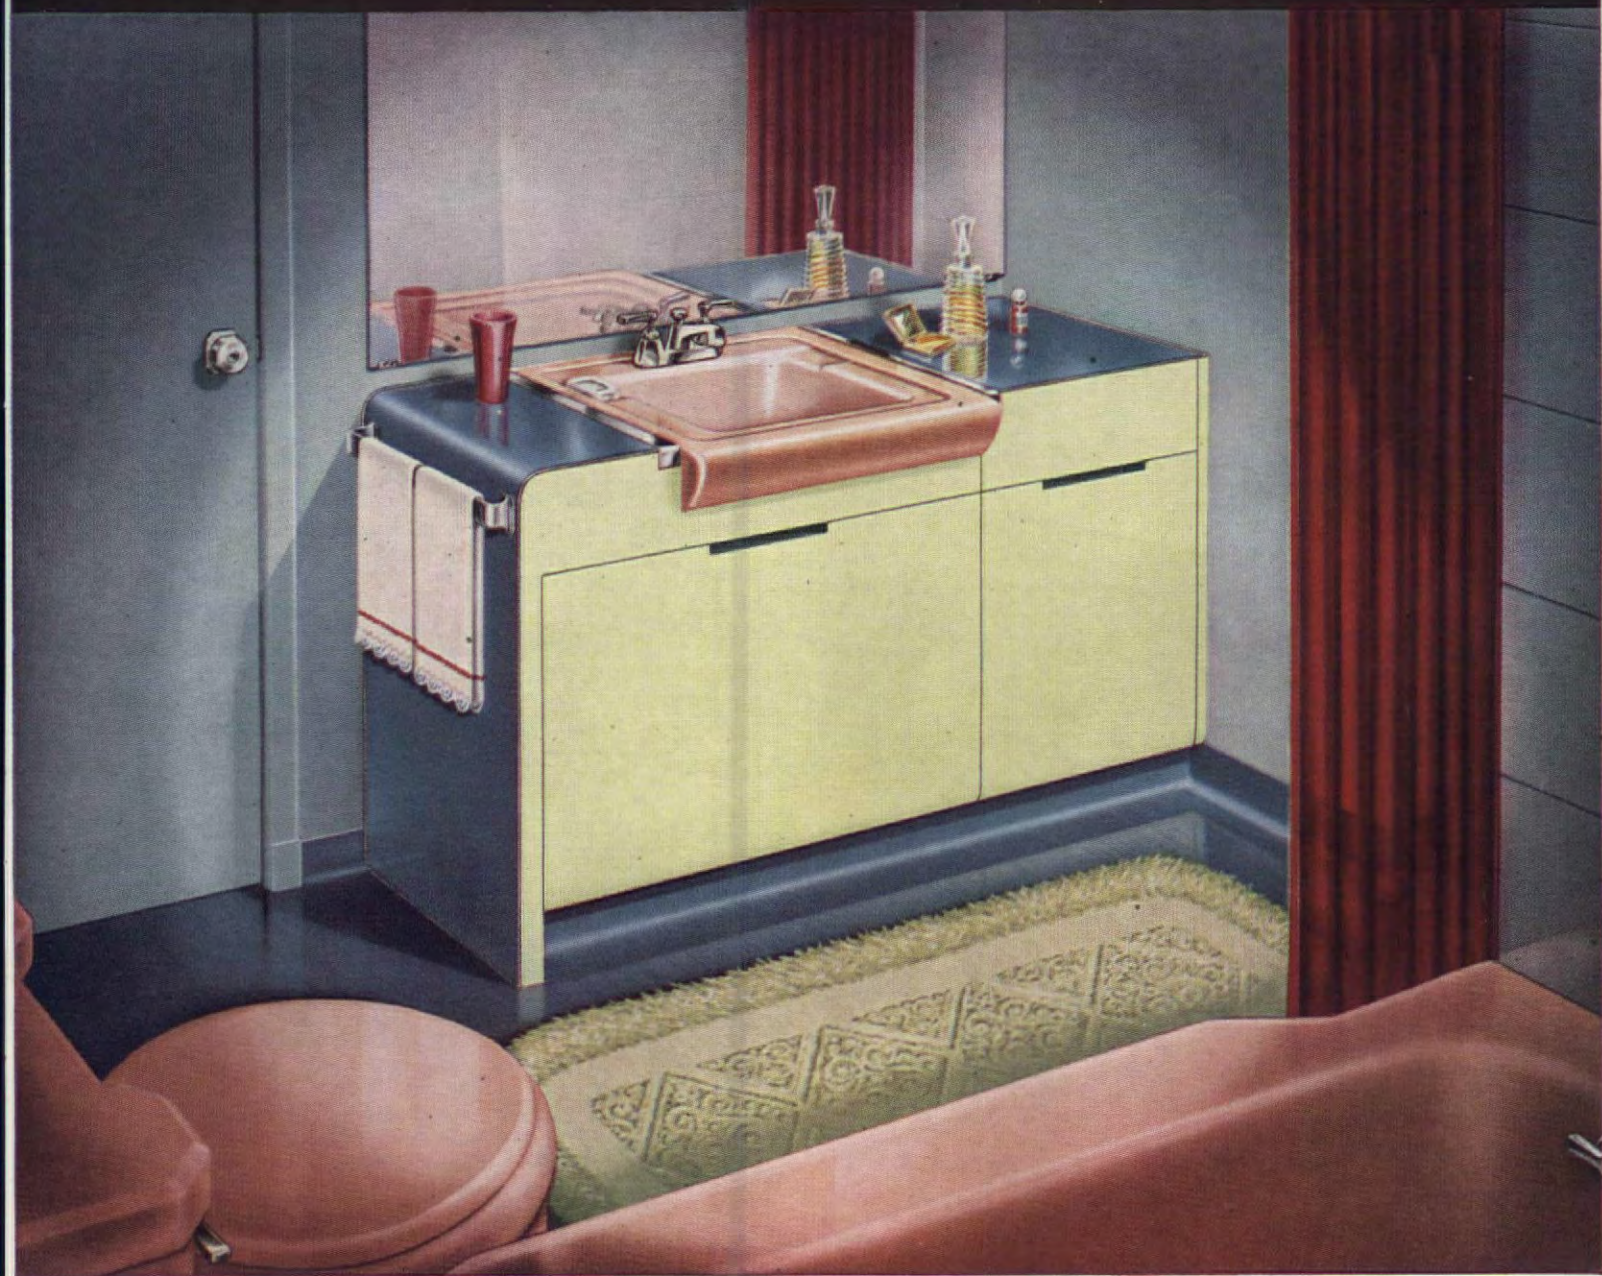

Civic association is fine example of democracy at work. Board of directors is chosen annually—by popular vote

HAL STEBBINS

Junior had lung power. The circle of candles had gone out like a light. The huge frosted cake looked at once gay and desolate—as if its shining hour had come and gone. Junior was 18. This was his day. Tomorrow he was off for college.

And Father was proud. Proud of this fine, upstanding lad he had brought into the world.

As Junior started sawing the birthday cake, Father's memory started cutting into his past. Funny, how each slice of cake was a slice of life; how the texture of one piece matched the texture of another; how the ingredients of faith and fear, sweat and struggle, had sifted and seeped into every grain. It wasn't so long ago—or was it?—that Father himself was 18. America was licking its wounds after World War I. Things weren't so hot. The boys from over there were coming back over here. Trying to get their old jobs. And—their old girls. Trying to get married; get a footing; build a home; have kids. Trying to find a safe little niche in the great big world that had been made safe for democracy. Or, so they said.

Across the misty span of years, Father remembered all sorts of dire talk. The country was going to hell. A man was a hero today and a bum tomorrow. The boys in Washington went in for big talk and small deeds. The boys in Wall Street were shearing the lambs and storing the wool for the hard winter ahead. The front pages screamed murder and mayhem. The nation's morals were shot to pieces. People were spinning. Prices were spiraling. America was headed for the Big Bust.

Yet somehow Father's family had managed to muddle through. He recalled—with a sudden stab of pride—how thrilled his parents had been that he had graduated from high school when most lads of his generation had to be content with a grade-school education. Yet here his Junior was headed for college—just family routine. He and Mother had planned it that way from the start—that bright, starry-eyed day at the hospital when they said, "It's a boy!"

And all the glad, sad, tattered years between. It hadn't been easy, but it hadn't been too tough. Old Man Opportunity hadn't been gobbled up by the passing parade. He had a new face; but so did America. It was still true that a man made the job that made him; that you didn't improve your eyesight by watching the clock; and that you'd get yours if you gave yourself.

Yes, he knew, it had become old-fashioned to talk about such homely things as Work and Hope and Ambition. Too virtuous; no glamour; no box-office. It was so much easier—and so much more amusing—to hug a rail, order a "double Scotch" and yack about America.

The country was going to the dogs sure-shootin'. Too many people were making too much money—and not getting anything for it. A sirloin cost you a lung. Butter was a dollar a pound. Taxes trounced you up and down from year end to your end. Politics were rotten to the core. The foreign situation stank. Uncle Sam was just pouring millions down a gopher hole. Why bleat about One World when we know it won't work? The Red menace was sweeping the world. Every time you took a deep breath a Commie was watching. Besides, what did anything mean or matter when a few choice Atom bombs would mean Exit for Everybody? Why bring innocent children into the world—only to have them blown to Kingdom Come? And why do anything about anything when it's all so damned hopeless?

So, eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow . . . "another double Scotch, please!"

Father stirred from his reverie. It had all been a dream, a bad one. But that's what life was made of: good dreams, bad dreams. He looked over at Junior—this fine, upstanding lad who looked like him and smiled like Mother—this boy who was leaving for college in the morning. No, he didn't have to worry about Junior. That boy has what it takes to make the grade, ride the bumps, reach the summit. For he is America!

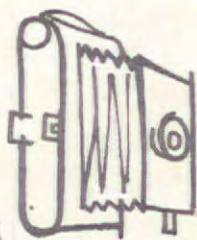

"Sure, son, I'll have a piece of that cake" . . .

ONLY SERVEL Stays Silent Lasts Longer

because... it has no moving parts in its freezing system

Here's how our family looked in 1927—the year we got our silent Servel. (Only refrigerator in town* that never made a sound!)

Here we are, twenty-one years later—all grown up. But that same Servel is still in Mother's kitchen. Still as noiseless and faithful as when we were kids.

Now I'm married, and have a new Servel, too. So I speak from experience when I tell friends, "Choose a Servel Gas Refrigerator." After all, with no moving parts in the freezing system, there's nothing to wear or cause noise. Just a tiny gas flame does the work silently, efficiently... We think the new Servels are beautiful, too. They've every new convenience. Yes, Servel has everything!

This story is typical. Writes Mrs. Floyd Buck of Middlebourne, W. Va., "Our son was a baby when we got our Servel. Now he's 20. And all this time we've never had a thing wrong with our Servel."

"No, dear, the bricks are just on the outside."

"BRICKS are just like any other exterior finish—clapboard, shingles, stucco, or anything else. They're put on over the sheathing for appearance and protection from the weather. It's the sheathing that's really important because that's what makes a house strong and tight, easy to heat, and free from drafts."

No matter what the exterior finish, Armstrong's Temlok® Sheathing makes a stronger house. It's a manufactured product, made of extra-strong wood fibers, formed into large, absolutely uniform boards. During manufacture, Temlok Sheathing is impregnated with asphalt to give it extra strength and to ageproof it against deterioration. Nailed to the framework of the house, Armstrong's Temlok Sheathing makes the whole structure strong and solid, firm and secure against wind and vibration.

The insulating value of Armstrong's Temlok Sheathing is an important extra feature. It substantially reduces fuel bills and adds to winter comfort by stopping drafts and making it easier to keep an even temperature over the whole house. In summer, Temlok helps to keep the house comfortably cool.

The surprising thing is that, with all its advantages, it costs no more to use Armstrong's Temlok Sheathing than to build with ordinary wood sheathing. Because the big-size boards are so convenient to handle and so quickly put up, labor costs are lower. There's almost no waste of material in cutting and fitting.

Before you build, be sure to ask your lumber dealer and your contractor about Armstrong's Temlok Sheathing. It makes a stronger house, cuts fuel costs, and yet costs no more.

Beat your competition!

The wise Wilfred Palmers choose the way of life, the kind of house, that makes their home the most popular teen-age hang-out in their neighborhood

Data: Edward J. Ives

To keep your children home . . . they must want to stay home. It is as simple, as basic as that. No amount of gentle bribery, parental tears—or force—can really be successful in making them take their fun at home if home is no fun.

There is a delicate balance, yet a vast gulf between the business of making them stay home—and having them want to stay home. It means giving on your part, it means planning, it means being very wise. Perhaps most important: It means knowing where your rights as a parent STOP.

In Medford Lakes, New Jersey, live two wise parents. Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred C. Palmer have learned the secret of getting along with their children. The way that they live, the kind of house they live in were deliberately chosen for their effects on the mental and physical health, happiness, and well-being of their two daughters, 13-year-old Patricia and 15-year-old Dorothy Claire (DC). The Palmers may not have all the answers; but they have gone very far in the right direction in providing a normal, healthy, happy home life for their youngsters, a hospitable house for their friends. For proof that the Palmer Method works, see these and the next two pages.

Absence of personal privacy is a serious cause of family friction, much escapism from home. The Palmer parents are firm believers in inviolate domain, rate a private room of one's own high on their family's success list

GIVE THEM THEIR OWN QUARTERS... THEN KEEP OUT!

DC helps guest Patsy roll up hair, nightly chore. Separate wash basin is built-in behind doors at right

Lack of personal privacy in the home is one of the most frequently contributing background causes to juvenile delinquency, according to a recent study of many case histories made by a noted psychiatric clinic on the West Coast.

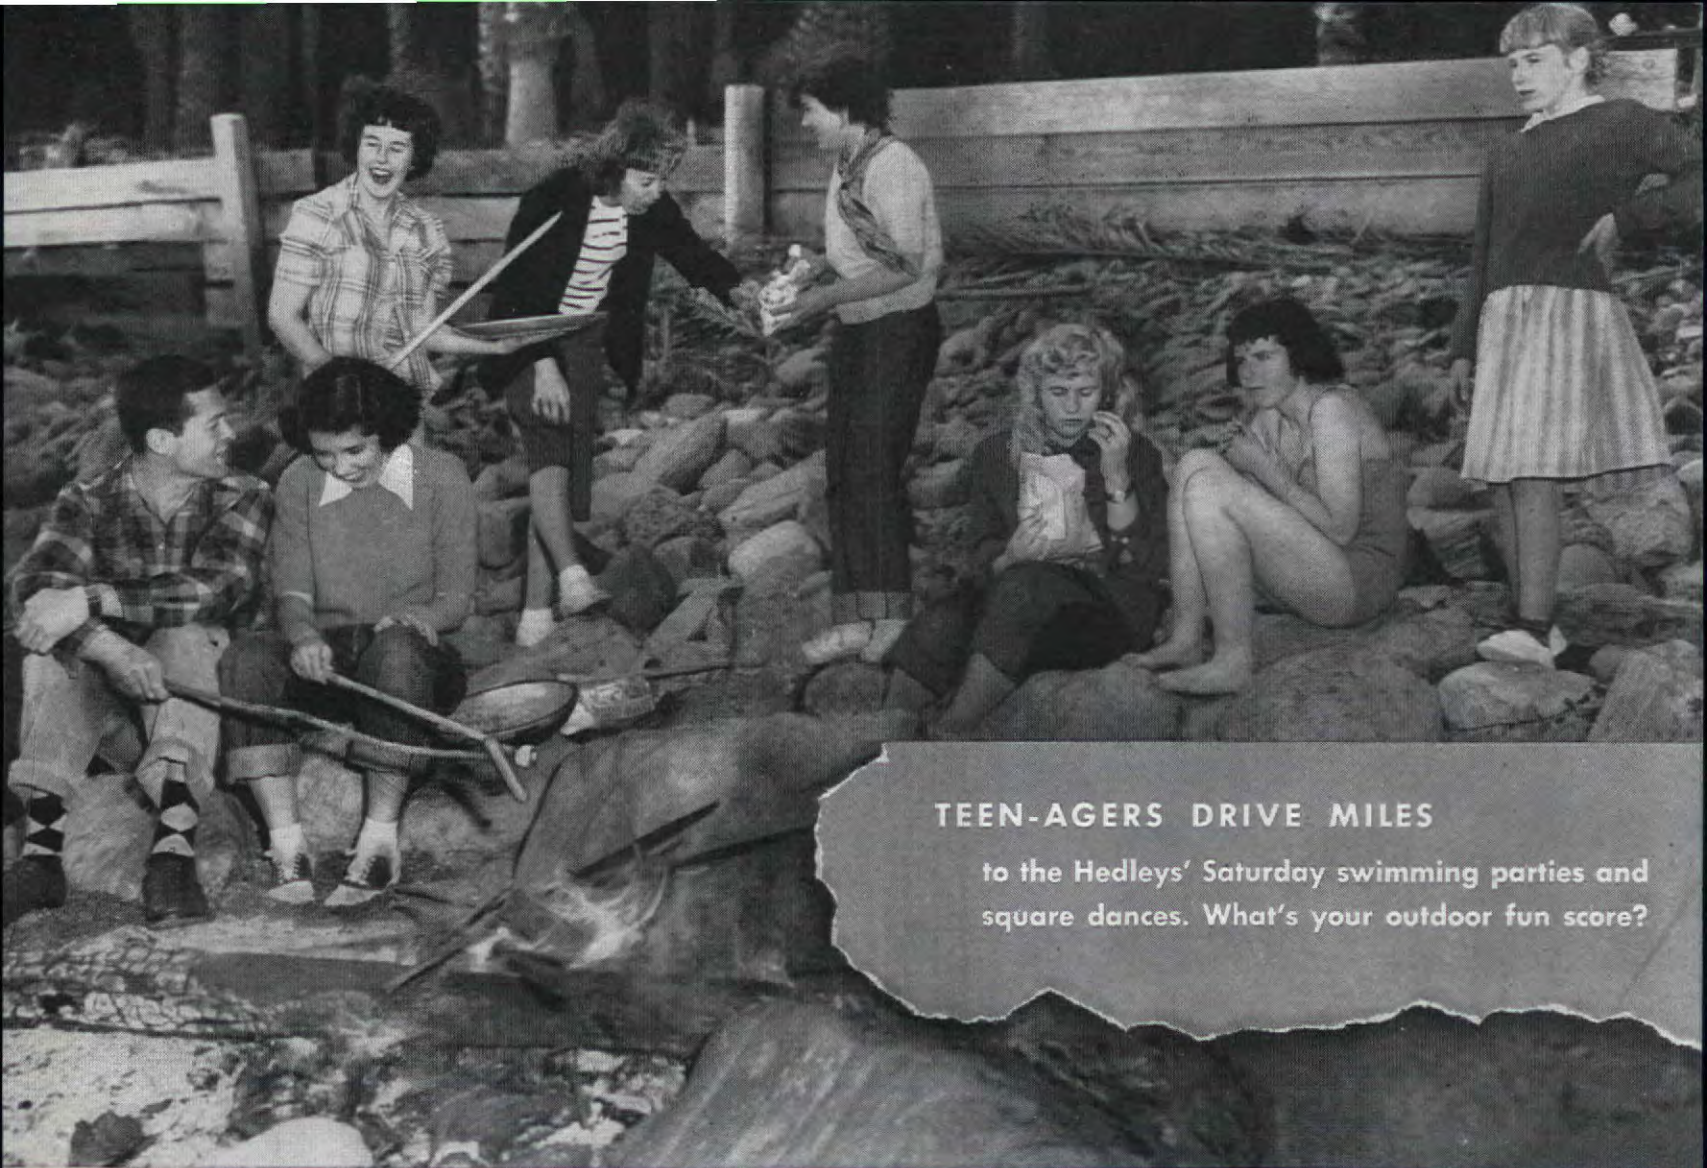

Lack of personal privacy—and the consequent family discord, dissatisfaction with home—results in desire to escape from an unhappy environment to substituted pleasures.

If you would keep your adolescent happy at home, don't underestimate the importance of a separate bedroom. Know when to leave them alone. Your teen-ager is a near adult with many problems of the head and the heart that require lengthy pondering in solitude. More than just a place to sleep. . . . But a place to think, to study, to mess up in peace, to throw a slumber party, try a tricky hair-do, a refuge in which to sulk, to mend a hurt heart, a quiet place to dream.

AMERICAN HOME's editors are well aware of over-priced, under-sized housing conditions in the land, that two in a bedroom is the rule rather than the exception. Nor do we mean to suggest that hieing your family to a log house on a lake, as did the Palmers, may be your own personal solution. As reporters we show you how one family has worked out an individual but highly successful answer to a question which troubles many parents today.

TEEN-AGERS DRIVE MILES

to the Hedleys' Saturday swimming parties and square dances. What's your outdoor fun score?

Take two parents whose fundamental principle is the enjoyment of life at home with their children, four daughters ranging in age from eleven to twenty, a nearby college from which countless young friends come calling. Add a carefree house wedged between sea and cliffs on the California coast, a huge outdoor fireplace, a slab-paved outdoor play area that's just right for square dancing, roller skating, Ping-pong, other games—and you have the Eli Hedleys' recipe for fun at home.

The house they live in, an architect's nightmare, is built from driftwood with mahogany doors gathered from a shipwreck. But it is filled with treasures, room for everybody, and there's a view of sunset over the Pacific.

The Hedleys, parents and offspring, seldom "go out"—their guests and their fun come to them. They get up with the chickens, stay up to all hours, work hard and play hard. Their entertaining is spontaneous and casual—beach wiener roasts, barbecues, square dancing to the music of a radio-phonograph.

Eleven-year-old Charlotte brings classmates home from school to skate with her; fourteen-year-old "Bungy" brings her gang for a swim and snack on the beach. Marilyn, 19, is the square-dance devotee, goes to college in Palos Verdes. A college president, his wife, an attorney, a well-known surgeon may join the students participating in the dance. Everyone has fun at the Hedleys'.

Opposite page: Square dancing is dance rage in Southwest. Some favorites: Pop Goes the Weasel, Golden Slippers, Buffalo Gals

Fun on the rocks at the beach: Bob, Betsy, Connie, Patty roast wieners over driftwood fire. Outdoor-wise Hedleys and guests dress casually

Mostly they eat anywhere but in the house. Makings of a beach party are brought down from the house in wooden bowls, big polished shells

If your house is small, if your grounds allow none of the fun facilities which the Palmers and Hedleys have, there still must be something you can do to make home a gay place for the children to be.

Turn the downstairs rooms over to them. Every Friday night, let them have the gang in for a party, dance, jam-session, hamburger feast. The old question occurs: where do mom and dad go when the young crowd arrives?

If your bedroom is as big as 12 by 14 feet, there is something you can do about it if you care enough. You can rearrange your room into a combination den-bedroom-sitting room for two as we have sketched on this page. Should your room be smaller, even the addition of an easy chair and good lamp, increases comfort.

While you're about it, study these rooms from another angle: Two daughters or two sons, if they must bunk together, could benefit in happiness from such a bed-splitting arrangement. A bed, a chair, books, radio, lamp for each, would be the next best thing to a room of one's own.

In a 12 by 14 room. Put away headboards of beds for present. Box springs on legs can be placed at right angles to each other, gaining more floor space. Buy small comfortable chairs, provide good reading light next to each

Drawings by Sigman

CAN YOUR BEDROOM DOUBLE AS PART-TIME LIVING ROOM?

If bedroom length is 16 feet or better, you can adapt this arrangement. Bookshelves have been built in, making deep window reveal for dressing table. Again, comfortable chairs, lighting, for lounging and reading

You'll need 15-foot wall for spool beds placed end to end, footboards touching. Cabinet behind headboard holds radio, lamps, books. Chairs convenient for radio tuning. Family snapshots hang over beds

When the kids take over downstairs what happens to mom and pop? Here are three ways to rearrange your bedroom into a private, cozy sitting room

THIS KIND OF FUN ROOM MAKES STAYING HOME FUN

Here's a good example of waste space put to work to make fun for the whole family. Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Young of Highland Park, Illinois, built this wonderful recreation room in their basement for two teen-age sons and themselves.

The Youngs went all out for comfort. Not a leftover piece of furniture from anyone's attic has a place here. A well-upholstered sofa, a studio couch, comfortable rustic chairs take kindly to the body. All sorts of fun go on here, for adolescents or for adults. There is a game table for bridge and rummy, the pianola takes the beat from those who want to roll back the rug and dance on the asphalt tile floor; there's a radio for the Sunday-night programs, a Ping-pong table for the boys, a built-in bar for the grown-ups. The room is big enough to hold a crowd. It is so successful that the Youngs find they usually bypass their pretty upstairs parlor for fun in the basement.

FOR SEPTEMBER

THE JAMES WELSHMANS START EARLY TO KEEP THEIR CHILDREN HOME

Something had to "give" when the children needed more room and privacy. It went the car, garage became inviting and without adding one inch to house

The James Welshman house is No. 7

in our series of comprehensive blueprints, 34 by 44 inches overall, with all plans, elevations, and specifications for careful home study

Take an average five-room house, perfectly suited to a newly married couple, add enough years to raise a brood of three healthy, active youngsters and quarters get pretty cramped. Something must give!

In the case of the James Welshman house it was the attached garage. Father, in this case an engineer, ingeniously converted the garage into a dining-room den, thereby freeing the original dining room for a bedroom. This now accommodates six-year-old Linda. Everybody's happy—the grownups have their own living room and the children can romp to their hearts' content in their own.

Actually the original lines of the house were improved by the alteration. Painted a rich brown with gay red door and polished brass knocker, it sits comfortably at the front of a deep triangular tree-shaded lot. Windows are flanked by long white shutters; window boxes are filled with gay red geraniums. To take care of the family car, a new garage was constructed at one corner of the lot, designed to blend with the Cape Cod lines of the house and affording a rainy-day playroom for the children in the attic upstairs.

Existing garage walls were retained when the new room was built. In place of the original garage door, there's now a big window, 44 panes in all, while a smaller sash affords cross-ventilation on the opposite wall. The room has an informal, cozy look with its floor-to-ceiling ponderosa pine paneling and huge fireplace at the gable end.

The bricks for this chimney have served a twofold purpose. Originally purchased at a bargain from an old factory site, they were first used to pave a driveway, terrace, and barbecue. During the alteration, they

Young Carter Kocher is a lucky guy. He has a private apartment of his own with his own bed-sitting room, bath, and kitchenette. Corky, as he is called, also has a couple of wise—and lucky—parents. They know how to keep a son at home, and have him love it.

The Kochers happen to think a great deal more of Corky than they do of their car. That's one reason Corky lives in garage—but there's more to it.

During the time Corky was away at war, the Kochers moved with their other child, Corky's sister, into a small house in Santa Monica, California. When Corky returned they saw that the youngster to whom they bid a goodbye had returned a young man.

They knew Corky would not be long content with the doubling-up they would have to do in the house. Parent-fashion, they wanted to keep their son with them just as long as they could. The garage was the answer: elbow room

It just doesn't make sense when we try to get maximum value out of every penny, dote on labor-saving devices, make every square inch of storage space count—to waste one-quarter of the yard in a driveway used only a few times a day.

That stretch of smooth concrete, at back, side or front of your house, can be put to work, will provide a barrel of fun for the youngsters in your family and neighborhood, and yourselves. Here's a way to keep the children off the streets and happy in your own yard. It's also fine for adult physical activity, to achieve mental relaxation and waistline trimming.

At a trifling cost for paint, plus of course the equipment for a few games, you can set up your driveway to accommodate deck tennis, badminton, volley ball, shuffleboard, or basketball shooting practice. A bit more money will buy the makings of a simple stairway and railing to fit the top of your garage as a sun deck, if it has a flat roof.

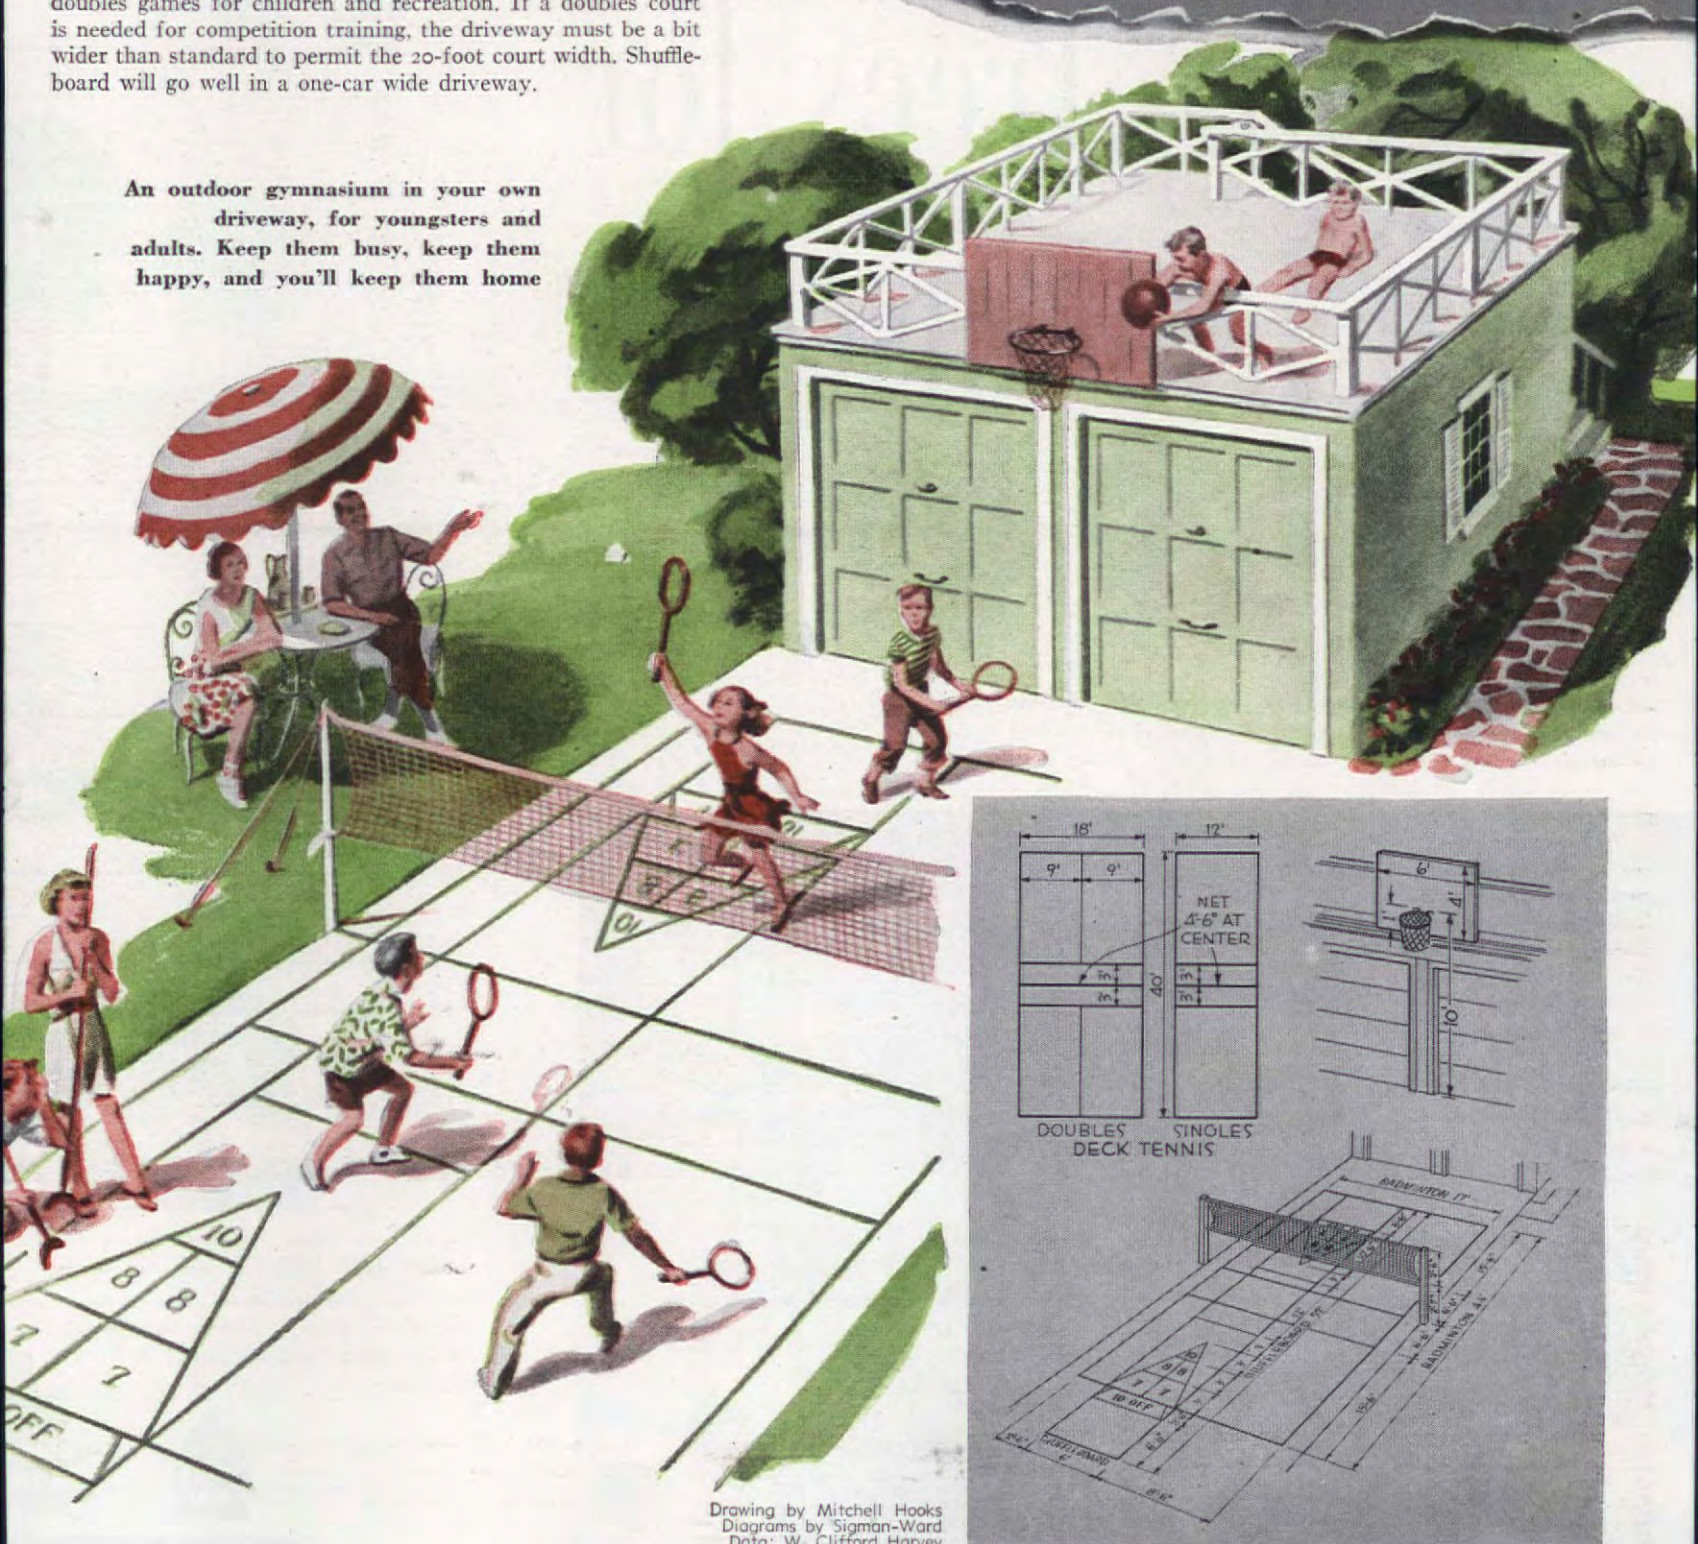

Check the measurements of the sports areas on the diagram in the lower right corner of this page. Compare with dimensions of your own driveway. The singles badminton court will fit in a standard two-car driveway easily, and will serve for doubles games for children and recreation. If a doubles court is needed for competition training, the driveway must be a bit wider than standard to permit the 20-foot court width. Shuffleboard will go well in a one-car wide driveway.

Young fry love this back-yard sportsplatz.

Costs little, keeps them out of trouble

How to select shade trees for better results and fewer disappointments

Big Trees for Little Houses

M. W. STAPLES

When you buy or plant a tree, be sure that the kind and the place agree. Don't base your choice solely on what you see, but think about what it is going to be

Acacia photograph, Gladys Diesing

If you are one of the millions who own an "estate" of half an acre or less, trees, evergreens, and shrubs may be for you a prized possession, a major headache and taskmaster, or even a menace and burdensome expense. Sometimes they can prove to be all three in one short season.

In recent years, landscape architects, nurserymen, planting contractors, and tree surgeons have been giving increasing attention to the problems of the small homeowner, or rather of his grounds. Many magazine articles have discussed them. Authorities have compiled lists of plant material especially adapted for small properties. Innumerable planting plans have been offered, ranging from simple layouts to complicated designs including miniature replicas of features found in public parks. According to some recommendations, the small homeowner need only choose from these selections, and all will be well. But too often this sort of advice seems based on the idea that the owner of a small house is also dwarfed; that he cuts a miniature lawn with a toy lawn mower and tends Lilliputian flower beds in a doll-size garden. Actually, of course, he is as big, and is built along the same lines, as the owner of a large place. Nature stays the same size. And his lawns, flowers, shrubs, and trees have the same sort of soil, moisture, sun, shade, and space requirements.

This means that his choice of both major and minor trees involves the same factors as that of the large property owner. He, too, should emphasize type of tree rather than variety, even though he will need only a few major trees—perhaps but one or two—for shade or landscape effect. He, too, should view his property as a specific problem and choose his trees in relation to the exposure, soil, climate, appearance, adjacent plantings, and, above all, the elements of time and growth.

Time, a factor in all plantings, becomes dominant in the placing and spacing of trees for shade or ornament. Rate of growth times years of expected usefulness determines proper spacing for a particular variety. The familiar crowded plantings in many older city districts have led to a reversal of former tactics and the compiling of charts telling how to space trees of different kinds. Yet few of them have considered sufficiently the vital time and growth-rate elements. Experience tells us that most neighborhoods change their character every 30 to 50 years. So 40 years may be taken as a maximum residential expectancy, and 25 to 30 years as the peak efficiency period, for most shade trees. Based on long time observations over a wide range of localities and conditions, the average growth of

Aside from basic rod and brackets, these are the ingredients: Sleeves, pulleys, cord, carriers, two master carriers, pull-cord weights

How to string up a traverse rod

GLADYS GOUGH

Don't be baffled by a balky traverse rod. Here's how to string one up—a new one, or repair your old one

Before proceeding with the steps illustrated at right on how to string up a traverse rod, it is important first to get your rod cut to the right length for your window.

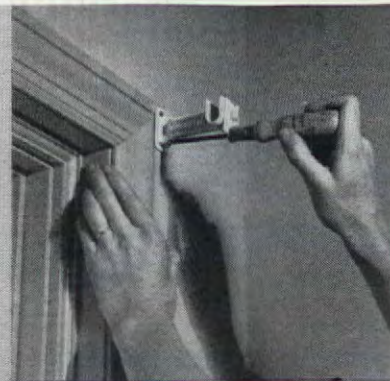

First determine just where on the window frame you want to screw the brackets. Make pencil marks through the screw holes onto the frame. Use a punch drill and drill holes slightly smaller than the diameter of the screws. Be sure to drill these holes. If you attempt to make the screw holes with a nail, you run great danger of splitting the wood.

Putting up the brackets first means you get them placed exactly where you want them—the rod is then cut to fit between the brackets.

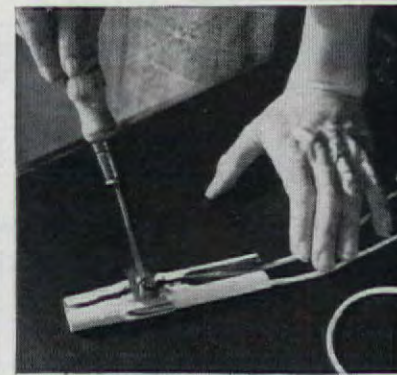

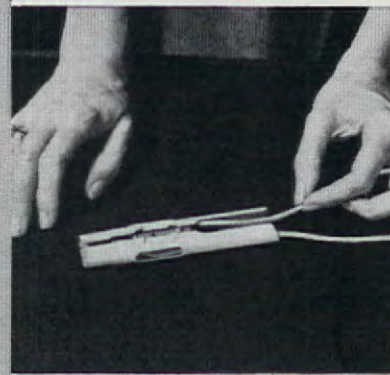

Measure exactly between the cradles of the brackets. Cut your rod to this length with a hacksaw, then file the ends smooth. Slip the sleeves over each end of the rod, and try it again between the brackets. Rod plus the sleeves will be slightly too long. But then you will be able to determine how much you must again cut from the rod. Refit the sleeves, then drop the sleeves neatly into the supporting cradles of the brackets.

Pulley and housing are then slipped into enameled sleeve. Both ends of cord emerge from thicker part of sleeve. Far right: Screw brass plate on. Screw goes through pulley, holding it in place

How to stretch a drapery

Old plaid draperies used for deep ruffles on new material make floor-length curtains to fit jumbo-sized window. Ruffles could be accordion, box, knife-pleated, or gathered

Wide ruffles give extra length to white cotton draperies. Fill in with inexpensive dotted-swiss curtains. Tie-backs are potted plants

Ideas suggested by Helen Upp

Ingenious ways of adapting your present curtains to new windows

Moving to a new house or apartment with windows in various and assorted sizes presents a real problem to the budget-wise homemaker. Especially difficult are the oversized windows that require longer and wider draperies. She cannot afford to discard draperies that are as good as new, and wouldn't if she could.

Our sketches show five different ways to make a two-and-a-half-yard pair of draperies, originally designed to fit a regular-sized window, stretch to dress a window that requires possibly three yards in length and additional width. Many new houses and apartments have windows with large panes of glass, corner and grouped windows that can be treated as one unit, using only one wide drapery at either end and a valance across or around the entire group. Sheer glass curtains, sill or floor length, fill out and help to dress such a wide expanse of windows.

Plain fabric like velvet or satin stitched to damask in wide bands to add length, width. Plain fabric covers cornice. Few extra inches of length gained by hanging draperies from hooks screwed to underside of cornice board

Wide ruffles of polka dot add interest and length to plain chintz, cotton, or taffeta. A fine stripe, contrasting color, or check would prove equally effective and practical

How to Capture the Fragrance of Summer

The fruits of the first of some friendly visits with

Mrs. Everett Rowley, gardener

As I entered, I sensed that the whole house was filled with the most tantalizing odors.

"What are these 'airs that breathe from Paradise, upon a world of crime'?" I demanded.

Mrs. Rowley laughed. "Come and see," she said, and led me to the dining room. The table was covered with boxes of fragrant dried rosebuds and rose petals, bottles of flower oils, all sorts of aromatic spices, leaves, and roots, a great wooden bowl, an old-fashioned red-and-gold coffee mill. From the kitchen came a pungent aroma of drying fruit peels.

"Potpourri!" I exclaimed, and settled myself firmly in a chair. I had always wanted to know the secrets of Mrs. Rowley's sachets and scent-jars, and now I was actually going to be able to watch the magical mixing. First into the bowl went the rosebuds and petals. "You can use all petals if you want to save your buds for decoration," explained Mrs. Rowley. "Most of mine come from a short hedge of Gruss an Teplitz bushes which blooms continually. All summer long, on nice mornings as soon as the dew has disappeared, and not later than eleven-thirty, I have the pleasure of going into the garden and gathering roses—often instead of doing the dusting! The petals, promptly pulled from their bases, are spread on fine wire screens or newspapers. The

Peel of orange, lemon, lime, or tangerine, scraped clean of white pith, stuck with cloves, and dried in oven for hour or two (at lowest heat, with the door open), are ground in coffee mill with spices and dried roots, then mixed with the dried flower petals in big bowl

Bowls of completed potpourri can be decorated with petals of varied colors, or entire small, dried flowers, such as rosebuds, pansies, and bachelor buttons. Delphinium blossoms dried resemble double violets; those of Rosa damascena are best to dry open; the little buttons of pearly everlasting are good where a touch of white is needed

While potpourri can be enjoyed in the most inexpensive container, the lovely 18th century jars made by master artisans expressly to hold such fragrances are true collectors' items. Here are pieces of Wedgwood, Rockingham, Worcester

A bit of lace or silk makes a sachet for linen closet or bureau drawer that not only smells sweet, but is extra pretty if you add a bouquet of everlastings and sweet grass, or dainty artificial blossoms for a touch of rich red or blue

A series for young marrieds or about-to-be-marrieds. . . .

Why not start to work on a "trousseau for the home?"

The young in heart believe that where there's a will, there's a way. If you've a will to make your home pretty and attractive, AMERICAN HOME has a way, in our tried and proved AMERICAN HOME Patterns.

The series which begins in this issue we call our "Trousseau Patterns for Young Marrieds." We know from experience that young people all over the country—as well as some not-so-young people—are turning more and more to making things for their own homes with their own hands. It is part of a definite saving policy and, besides saving quite a bit of money, you have the pleasure and satisfaction of creating with your hands.

Our construction patterns for the pieces of furniture illustrated on these pages are not the elaborate, intricate and often unintelligible working drawings which come from a professional designer's drawing board. They are simple, readable perspective drawings of the individual pieces which anyone can understand. Exact measurements appear right on the drawing and, wherever necessary, further close-up drawings of details are given.

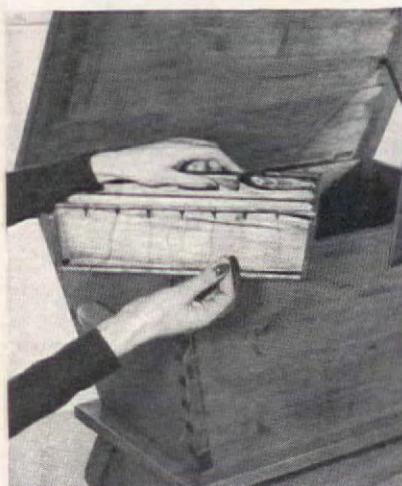

The painting patterns on these pages are equally simple. If you have any facility at all with a paint brush, you'll have no trouble. You trace the designs right onto your work, fill in areas and outlines according to the color charts we enclose. Rug fanciers will recognize something really special in a new rug we show. There's a new trick to making it—so easy you almost won't believe it. Even your husband can help you. It's assembled first in small pieces—what we call "lap-work"—and put together later.

AMONG THE CHERISHED POSSESSIONS in a charming home is a U. S. Koylon Mattress. It took eighteen years of research and experience to produce Koylon, the mattress of utter luxury—the only mattress with this background. Koylon Foam is whipped of quality-controlled latex from U. S. Rubber plantations in the Far East. It is electronically baked in one piece under the supervision of Koylon technicians.

The air-borne upthrust of a Koylon Mattress distributes pressure evenly, makes relaxation easy.

When you shop you will discover that all foam rubber is not alike—so let Koylon enhance your good living. It is the ultimate in sleeping comfort. No money could be more wisely invested.

Air-borne Upthrust—Koylon responds to slightest touch, holds its shape without bulging or sagging. Keeps its resilience always.

Self-ventilating—Millions of air bubbles and exclusive straight line coring on both sides means greater area of breathability.

The U. S. Foundation is engineered to rigid specifications expressly for use with your U. S. Koylon Mattress. Its crown and rigidity are correct. Your store will explain its advantages over ordinary box-springs.

How to S-T-R-E-T-C-H Your Food Dollar!

Plan at least major meals of entire week. Shrewd planning means better meals (especially leftover dinners). Allow enough menu flexibility to take advantage of "good buys." Check recipes with supplies—don't "run out" halfway through recipe

Pennies saved turn into dollars . . . and pennies are saved by time spent in careful planning before buying

Young marrieds, new at the homemaking game, are finding that it takes a lot of dollar stretching to show that two can live as cheaply as one. This adage is somewhat challenging—but worth aiming for—says today's bride, Mrs. B. E. Brennan. Careful planning, buying, storage, and careful preparation of food in the home kitchen can pay off in low food bills as well as in more leisure time to enjoy the delights and dignities of a first real home of one's own.

Our careful homemaker saves money by planning for each week's meals as a unit. She checks prices and values constantly, and buys for their needs only. She saves time and money, too, by shopping once each week; she realizes that shopping can be a great joy when it is done leisurely and at a time when clerks can give her the information she needs. So she selects a time when other shoppers are few.

Mrs. Brennan keeps up to date with food news from the experts by reading home-service magazines, newspapers, and government bulletins. She knows that nourishment and economy often go hand in hand.

Some staples are cheaper in bulk, not all keep well over a too-long period. Keep record to know when bulk buying is economy

Far left: Prices on individual servings of baked goods too high for Mrs. Brennan. She selects large angel-food cake that makes more servings, keeps well

Mrs. Brennan consults her list, compares prices of ready mixes against flours and shortenings; decides biscuits and muffins are easier to do than cake, buys cake mix to save time

Far left: Mrs. Brennan buys vegetables in morning, catches them fresh and saves many a lettuce leaf and berry. Buys what's plentiful—thus cheaper

Mrs. Brennan takes time to make a real friend of her butcher. She knows cheaper cuts have as much nutrition. Because he's interested, he helps her dollar s-t-r-e-t-c-h

Far left: The Brennans select coffee ground to order. They make it a point never to over-stock on this perishable item

Mrs. Brennan often uses cheese as valuable budget stretcher—it provides concentrated nourishment

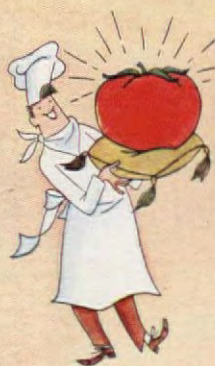

Far left: Read labels—buy large sizes if you can use entirely or have definite leftover plans. Buy less expensive packs if for puddings or for casseroles. If only half of frozen package is needed, cut and put remainder in freezing compartment

Bulk of one week's food for two, plus usual guests, in one easy marketing. Time, money saved. Smart Brennans pleased

ALICE B. KLINE

Adventure...

The spirit of adventure rides high in September; it's in the air, on the road, in the sky, and in the kitchen. The six-year-old, setting a tentative foot over the threshold of knowledge, encounters adventure—although somewhat reluctantly. More eagerly, the teen-age adolescent greets it with a high heart, and all over the land adults, back from varied vacations, meet again in offices, plants, and factories.

In September, the lady of the kitchen will prepare food that would have charmed Balboa from his peak in Darien, or Ponce de Leon from the delights of Florida.

In our September menu, attention centers on Beef Stew in Pie Wedges. This is just plain old-fashioned beef stew presented in a new form—pie shells which have been made in individual "piece of pie" shapes from either packaged pastry or from your favorite pastry recipe. The shells are baked first, then filled before serving. Beef stew, rich in its brown gravy, contains tiny round onions, small golden carrots, tender green beans, and well-cooked chunky cubes of beef. Stew is a universal favorite among youngsters and adults. When it's served with pastry, it makes a hearty dish which needs the accompaniment of only a salad and a crisp bit of celery, carrot stick, or green pepper.

Savory Tomato Aspic is our choice for a salad. It has a cottage cheese base with chives; it is topped with a tomato jelly that depends upon condensed tomato soup for its grand tomato taste. Of course, the subtle administration of clove, onion, bay leaf, and bouillon is responsible for Savory Tomato Aspic being so different from any other.

Hearts of celery and crisp, thin rings of green pepper give this supper extra satisfaction. Most folks, particularly children, like something crisp to chew. Currently, youngsters have started a new fashion in green pepper consumption; they eat them in chunks, strips, circles, or whole (except for the seeds!). They not only like this crisp green vegetable in its raw state, but at the drop of a hat they'll tell you how very valuable it is in vitamin C—one medium-sized green pepper contains almost twice as much of this vitamin as a medium orange, for instance. We suspect that this nutrition information has been passed along by our grade-school and high-school teachers. Very good!

Very good, too, is the dessert we suggest for our September food adventure. A dessert should not remove one's primary interest in the main course of a meal; it should beckon and entice. We think Snow Top Apples is the dessert of the month in this respect. Sound, firm apples have been baked long enough in sweet syrup to be really permeated with the sweet flavor. Topped with whipped cream and creamy coconut, their baked-red sides seem richer than ordinary baked apples do. This is a dessert that can be served warm, right

• snow top apples

• orange applesauce

Preparation time: 1 hr.

1 tsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. orange extract
1/2 cup shredded coconut

6 firm red baking apples
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
1/2 cup heavy cream

Core the apples, then pare them about 1/3 of the way down from the stem end and arrange in a shallow baking pan. Boil the 1 cup sugar and water together for 10 minutes and pour over the apples. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F) 30-40 minutes or until apples are tender, basting frequently with the syrup. Allow apples to cool and top each with the following mixture: Whip cream, add 1 tsp. sugar, and flavor with orange extract. Sprinkle each topped apple with shredded coconut.

from the oven for those who like a mountain whose snow is melting in rich creamy rivulets; or it can be chilled and thus preserve its snow cap of cream.

Accompanying each bite of dessert, and preceding it too, is Hot Chocolate, a beverage which isn't exactly neglected. Indeed no, but not served often enough as a dinner beverage to all its many devotees. Wonder if you know the secret of full chocolate flavor for this hot beverage? It is a long cooking process. There are many chocolates and cocoas on the market that can be prepared instantly and these are excellent, but for a really full-bodied chocolate, try our recommendation: use unsweetened chocolate and mix (according to directions on the package of whichever kind you select) in the top of a double boiler, turn the heat low and let it cook for about an hour. You'll be surprised at the reputation you'll acquire for wonderful hot chocolate.

As a matter of fact, acquiring a reputation for cooking is a pretty fine thing to do and has its own satisfactions just as making a home or harvesting a garden have. Compliments for the cook are not always verbal ones; sometimes they are paid in smiles, other times in deeds. Many, many times the cook is rewarded by an adventure that leads to a new and exciting recipe.

pie wedges

Preparation time: 40 min.

3 3/4 cups flour
1 1/2 tsp. salt

1 1/2 cups vegetable shortening
7-8 tbs. cold water

Sift together the flour and salt. Add the shortening and cut it in with a pastry blender or two knives until particles are the size of peas. Sprinkle in part of the water and mix lightly with a fork. Add enough of the remaining water to make the particles stick together when gently pressed. Lightly form the pastry into a ball, wrap in wax paper and chill for 30 minutes. Roll pastry out on a lightly floured board about 1/4 inch thick into a large circle about 13 inches in diameter. Then cut into 6 (6 inch) wedges. Turn up the back and two sides of the wedge about 1/2 inch. Cut strips of pastry about 3/4 inch wide with a pastry wheel or knife from any remaining pastry and cut the lengths the same size as the back and sides of the wedge. Moisten each strip with water and place inside the wedge against the corresponding back and sides. Repeat for each pie wedge. Wrap a moistened strip of pie tape around the entire wedge and secure around with a piece of string. Prick the bottom of the wedge with a fork. Place on a baking sheet and bake in a hot oven (450°F) for 15-18 minutes or until lightly browned. Carefully remove pie tape as soon as wedges are taken from oven. Fill each wedge with beef stew and serve.

savory tomato aspic

Preparation time: 35 min.
(2-3 hrs. to chill)

Cottage cheese mold:

1 tbs. unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
2 cups cottage cheese
3/4 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. paprika
3 tbs. chopped chives
1/2 cup light cream or milk

Tomato jelly:

1 tbs. unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
1 can condensed tomato soup
1 cup bouillon
1 small bay leaf
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
3 whole cloves
1/4 tsp. sugar
1/4 tsp. salt

Soften 1 tbs. gelatin in 1/4 cup cold water. Place over boiling water and stir until dissolved. Put cheese through a sieve, add salt, paprika, chives, milk, and dissolved gelatin. Pour into a lightly oiled 10 x 6 x 2-inch pan and chill until mixture is practically congealed. Then pour over cottage cheese the tomato jelly made as follows: Soften the gelatin in cold water. Simmer the remaining ingredients together for 10 minutes. Strain; add to softened gelatin and stir until the gelatin dissolves. Chill until firm. Cut in squares and serve on lettuce or escarole.

old-fashioned beef stew

Preparation time: 3 hrs.

3/4 cup flour
2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
2 lbs. boneless beef, chuck or round, cut into 1 1/2 in. cubes
3-4 tbs. fat or salad oil
3 cups boiling water
1 bay leaf

1/2 tsp. marjoram
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1/2 cup diced celery
3 medium white potatoes, diced
12 small white onions, peeled
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup cut green beans

Sift together flour with salt and pepper. Roll meat in flour mixture. Melt fat in Dutch oven, add meat and brown well. Then add water, bay leaf, marjoram and Worcestershire sauce. Cover and simmer for 2 hours. Then add vegetables, and more salt if needed, and simmer 20-30 minutes or until vegetables are tender. If a thicker stew is desired, mix 2 tbs. flour with 1/2 cup cold water and add slowly to stew. Stir and cook until mixture thickens. Serve in pie wedges.

Five Sandwich Stories

MARIE PETERS

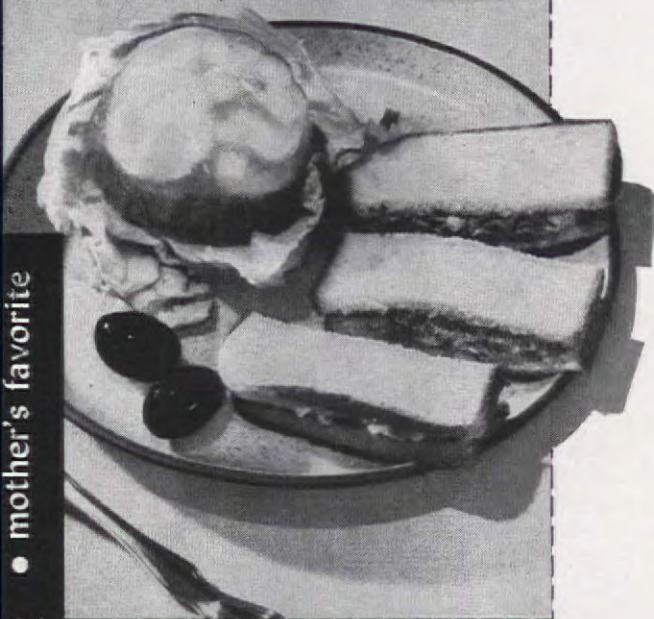

Here are five sandwich stories that are all helpful answers to the perplexing problems of menu planning that have to be answered each and every day by the homemaker. You'll find them appetizing, satisfying, and complete little meals, slanted towards special occasions, but adaptable to your own needs by a little switching of salad, dessert, beverage, or soup to fit your own requirements. On the back of some of the recipe cards, you'll find additional suggestions for sandwich fillings to help vary your menus.

Company Snack: When company drops in, of course you can feed them! With a can of tuna fish and a package of chocolate pudding on your emergency shelf to form the basis for extra-special French Tuna Sandwiches and for creamy Princess Pudding. This meal is versatile enough to please the most critical of guests.

School Day Lunch: Hot soup and peanut-butter sandwiches are cheerful news to hungry scholars. Hearty Vegetable Soup combines two cans of condensed soups—vegetable and bean with bacon. There never was a greater boon to children or mothers than peanut butter; it's convenient, popular, and nourishing.

• mother's favorite

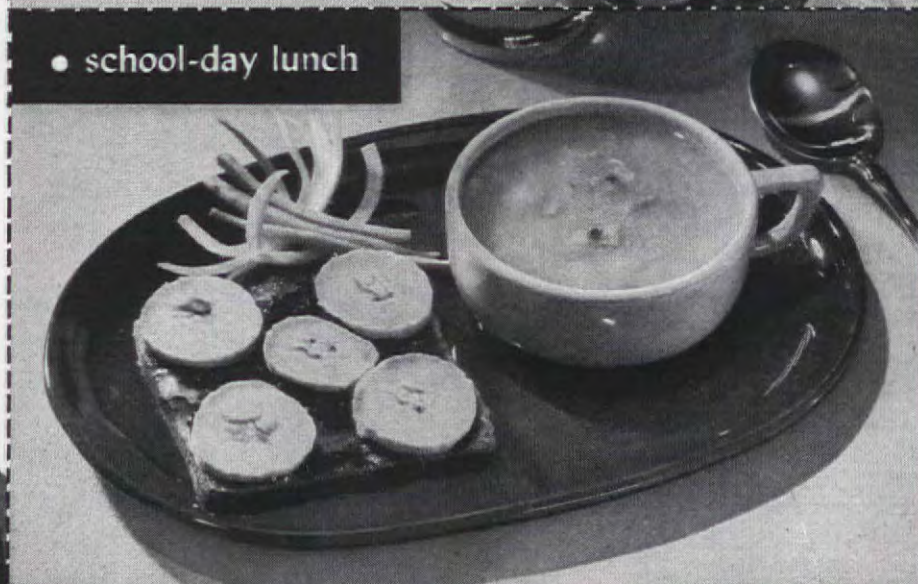

• satisfying supper

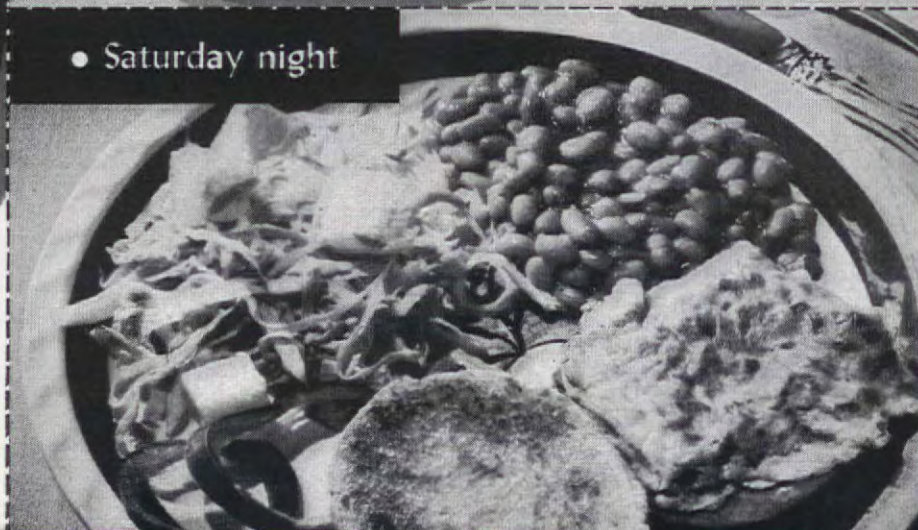

• company snack

• school-day lunch

• Saturday night

Satisfying Supper: A ragout of rice and green beans is flanked by chopped egg sandwiches that are topped with something new, bacon lattices. Easy to make they have eye appeal—and a very satisfying taste. This is a supper that men will like. We suggest molasses milk for a beverage, but don't forget that there are "double beverage" folks who like coffee, in addition!

Saturday Night: Saturday night's a party night and chances are there'll be somebody in the teen-age department (or older!) raiding the refrigerator. Why not make things easy for them by providing the makings for Denver sandwiches and coleslaw with pineapple chunks? Reinforced with baked beans for those who are really hungry, here's a snack that will lure anybody away from the jive joints and into the kitchen. The fun starts when Junior becomes chef making sandwiches to order.

Mother's Favorite: Here's help for mothers who are trying so hard to get the brood to eat liver. Chopped liver sandwiches that combine liver with onion, celery, bacon, green pepper, and other intriguing flavors. A zippy gingerale salad that is laced with the tang of orange and lemon flavors adds just the flavor contrast you want for this little supper. The salad provides sweetness so no dessert is needed.

—truly does
all these things:

Actually adds whiteness to clothes—Because of its new light-reflecting ingredient Luminess, the New La France makes white clothes whiter than new. You can see the difference!

Actually brightens colors—Again, it's the Luminess that helps New La France to do what no other bluing can claim: make colors brighter instead of duller!

Whites and color-fast tinted items together!

Now—you can wash color-fast colored things in with your whites! New La France will whiten one and brighten the other!

LAUNDRY NEWS

Better than any other bluing—Most bluing covers up "yellowness" with a light tint of blue. Many bluing over-blue, leaving a blue tint. New La France makes clothes whiter by adding whiteness.

Can't streak, spot or cause rust spots—Old-fashioned bluing can do all three, unless used with great care. La France can't—if used properly—because it goes in with the soap or detergent and is completely dissolved during washing.

Perfect with soap or detergent—Use any soap or any detergent. New La France was made with both soaps and detergents in mind.

Works as well in washers as in tub laundry—La France works just as wonderfully in the new automatic washers, as in agitator-type washers, or hand laundering.

SINCE DETERGENTS!

Easy to use as adding salt to recipe—All you do is add a quarter box of La France when you add the soap or soapless detergent. It's easy as that! No extra bluing rinse needed, either.

Guaranteed or double your money back—If you can't see the difference in whiteness and brightness when you wash with La France, mail the box to General Foods, Hoboken. We'll send twice the price you paid.

Costs only pennies per week—What a mighty pile of work it does for small pay! Get New La France today... try it next time you wash!

LA FRANCE BLUING
with whitening—brightening Luminess!

The Care and Feeding of Lyons

LUTHER H. LYON

Several years ago, we secured the part-time services of a college girl who was as inexperienced in housework as we were as employers. As wage-slaves ourselves, we know the importance of defining responsibility. We had definite ideas on the care of household equipment. Carol, we agreed, should know exactly what was (and what was not) expected of her and would have complete charge of the kitchen. And, to avoid misunderstandings, our instructions should be in writing.

We established a work outline to be followed until Carol's experience indicated changes. When a person is hired, he accepts the conditions of employment as something established; once he is on the job, suggestions are apt to smack of criticism.

Our carefully typed manual on "The Care and Feeding of Lyons" was an immediate success. Carol was delighted to have it. We were happy for things operated smoothly at once.

SUGGESTED TIME SCHEDULE

4 P.M.-5 P.M. If house seems cold, turn up the heat. Make the beds. Clean the washbowl in the bathroom. Put clean ash trays in place. Empty the wastebasket into the incinerator. Check the dinner menu for cooking time. Inspect outside of stove and refrigerator by daylight and go over with a damp cloth followed by a dry one to remove dust or spots. Remaining time can be spent in dusting, to lighten Saturday's work.

5 P.M.-5:30 P.M. Make special preparation for dinner, washing and preparing greens, scrubbing potatoes. Breakfast dishes may be washed at this time or left to do with dinner dishes. Put out butter.

5:30 P.M.-6 P.M. Prepare meat and vegetables. Mix and cut biscuit dough. Jot down on pad low supplies. When everything is under control, sit down and relax.

6 P.M.-6:30 P.M. Dinner at 6:30. Put meat and vegetables on to cook.

Warm plates and platter. Set table. 7:15 P.M.-8 P.M. You may leave before 8 P.M. if you are through. Wash dishes and cooking utensils and put kitchen in order. Set breakfast table. Be sure stove is off, outer back door closed, inner door locked.

DISH WASHING: Rinse milk or egg articles in cold water. Rinse greasy articles with hot water. Glasses, silver, and dishes should be washed in hot soapy water, rinsed with hot water, dried.

KITCHEN STOVE: When lighting the oven, hold the lighted match to the "port-hole" before turning on the gas. Don't clean the range with a damp cloth while it's hot as the porcelain may crack; if not cool—clean tomorrow. Soap and water are usually adequate. Do not use a high flame when a simmer flame is sufficient.

REFRIGERATOR: Wipe off milk bottles, after pouring them. Practically all foods must be covered to prevent odors and to avoid their drying out in our refrigerator. Foods that come packed in liquids—such as olives, shrimps, pineapple, etc.—should be kept in the liquid and placed in a covered dish. Place foods with a little space between to permit the circulation of air. Spills and drippings should be cleaned up at once. Do not keep door open longer than necessary.

GENERAL: When in doubt, ask questions. We expect a certain amount of breakage. Don't burst out in cold sweat if you accidentally chip a plate. All we ask is that you be careful. If you can think of anything to make your work easier, ask for it.

When Carol had been with us six months I secured a grade-school promotion certificate which I filled in to show that she had been promoted from "Maid-of-all-works, Junior Grade" to "Expert Home Manager." Though she knew it was all in fun, she was immensely pleased. We all like a pat on the back now and then, and Carol deserved one.

Plum-Orange Conserve

Try this quick, easy Sure-Jell recipe for a famous new conserve!

PLUM-ORANGE CONSERVE

- 4½ cups prepared fruit
- ½ cup seedless raisins
- 7 cups sugar
- 1 box Sure-Jell
- ½ cup coarsely chopped walnut meats

To prepare fruit. Chop 1 orange fine; add 2 cups water. Simmer, covered, 20 minutes. Halve and pit 2 pounds fully ripe plums. Chop fine. Add orange. Measure 4½ cups into large saucepan. Add raisins.

To make conserve. Measure sugar; set aside. Place saucepan of fruit over high heat. Add Sure-Jell; stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once stir in sugar. Bring to full rolling boil; boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add nut meats, skim, and ladle quickly. Paraffin. Makes about 11 six-ounce glasses.

Delicious jams and jellies—with exactly one-minute's boil!

Wonderful ripe-fruit flavor, because you use ripe fruit with Sure-Jell!

How to Stretch

Electric dishwasher eliminates housewife's most tiresome daily task, frees her for more hours with family

No chore, not even housecleaning and meal planning, has so sinister a connotation as dishwashing. And why not? Looming ahead of the housewife in a calendar year are some eleven hundred meals. Planning, shopping, cooking for the family holds a reward as she sees the family relish her good works. But not so with the dishwashing! Off goes the family to enjoy fun in the living room or outdoors. Even with the best of co-operation from the family, a mother still has the biggest share of the burden of dishwashing.

But the electric dishwasher means much more time for her to spend with her family. In good dishwashing by hand, there is scraping, rinsing—hot water for greasy dishes, cold for starchy and egg ones. Then soap, rinse, and towel dry. With an electric dishwasher it's a different story: After scraping, rinsing, stack them into dishwasher, add recommended detergent, turn on switch, and it works for you. Pots and pans, scraped and rinsed, can be washing while meal is being eaten.

There is no danger of chipping; the very hot water is most efficient (less is used than in hand dishwashing), and the dishes dry themselves by evaporation—all for the turn of a switch!

No martyr banished to kitchen, she never misses television
programs. Lunch, dinner dishes are in electric dishwasher

No mental picture of dish-littered sink to spoil evening's entertainment. More leisure time than ever before. Stacked in dishwasher, dishes are washed as Mother plays

The last picnic of the summer should be an all-day treat

for parents and children

As soon as Mother stirs, getting baby Jill fed, it's a signal for Sharon, Margo, and John to begin the day for Daddy. This morning the discussion centers on the September Roundup

Photographs by Ralph Stead

GAE BAKER

September Roundup

For a successful party, everybody helps prepare. Margo telephones invitations to guests. Sharon and Margo make up hamburger patties for the picnic lunch. John decides on a cake he'll make himself, and once in the oven, he'll do the vacuuming because he loves to use mechanical things. Sharon selects the dress Jill will wear to the picnic and then helps dress her. This kind of co-operation makes family parties fun for the Bailhes, big and small

The last picnic of the summer turned into a "roundup" this year at the Bailhe home in Connecticut. The Bailhe children—Sharon, John, Margo—have, like other children all over America, teased and coaxed and acquired cowboy outfits of varying degrees of reality from their parents. Some "cowboys" (and this includes girls, too!) wear blue jeans, a shirt, sneakers, and a scarf; others are more resplendent in shiny new boots, five-or-six gallon hats, blue jeans, and bright red shirts. This latter group generally packs a water pistol in a real leather holster. Lariats are not standard equipment but they help many a 36-inch cowboy to achieve social prestige in his own group. This cowboy equipment started the roundup on its merry way.

On father's last day of vacation, the roundup starts at the crack of dawn at the Bailhe household. It will be easy, and it will be fun. Mr. and Mrs. Bailhe believe that they can have more fun with their children if they all work together to get the chores done, and then all play together with their friends. Every child has definite responsibilities from day to day, and they are often changed for variety but, in general, the Bailhes like to see their children develop wholesome talents for living. They feel that if the children can take care of themselves and co-operate happily in a family pattern, it helps make every day a picnic day for everybody.

PLEASE TURN TO PAGE 70

Chores done, guests invited, picnic prepared, the roundup starts. Everybody carries something for the picnic while Mother and Dad share the pleasure of carrying Jill. She seems to be enjoying her first September Roundup!

Building a fire for cooking food is a serious occupation that engages the full attention of two of our men, Mr. Bailhe and guest cowboy Chris

Good cooks have a healthy respect for heat. Chris, having started the fire, helps with the preparation of hamburgers at a safe distance

September Roundup (Begins on page 68)

Picnics are such fun! And more so, when you have contributed a cake you've made yourself. Perhaps he'll be a famous chef some day! Sharon and best friend, Holly, share a container of milk because it's companionable—and allowed—at a picnic. Allowed, too, is a scramble over rocks in rubber boots that temporarily supplant cowboy variety

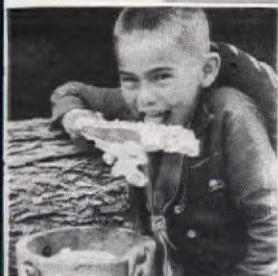

The Bailhes did not ignore responsibility involved in protecting their neighbors' children as well as theirs. Remembering games their children liked to play, Ping-pong balls were ready. Player loses one point every time ball is blown off table. Children are amused for a half hour or more. Balloon blowing contest led to other games

When children tire of balloon game, Daddy stretches rope tight on dock. They scramble for nearest object with which to balance themselves. Winner is child who can balance on rope without falling off. No fair pushing!

What a reward for the grand prize! He is really a champion—the winner of the most games. Tired but happy! Who wouldn't be, licking homemade ice cream from the dasher!

Not really wanting to leave, these youngsters, worn out with play, pleaded with Mr. Bailhe to carry them to the car. What an armful! And what a wonderful way to wind up the last day of your vacation with your family

690 short-order meals

EILEENE COFFIEL

To us formal parties are work; casual entertaining, play. We advocate the role of the uninhibited host who invites guests on spur-of-the-moment moods, who unabashedly shares grilled steak in the garden or sandwiches on the living-room floor. In exactly two years, Dave and I have cooked almost 690 such short-order meals for friends.

Planned entertaining means dutifully repaying social debts, remembering to seat Allergic Alice far away from Impossible Ike's cigar, and nervously warming rolls as dinner awaits Always-Late Larry. It means house cleaning, silver polishing, fancy cooking, worrying, hurrying—and after it's over, a big, fat headache!

Casual meals require little extra fuss if another plate is added to the table setting. Guests know they have been invited because they are really wanted. That's why we never plan dinner parties. If friends drop in to see the garden, we merely suggest, "Why don't you stay for dinner. Grilled chops and baked beans." Or, deciding we'd enjoy friendly company, we reach for the phone to say, "We're grilling hamburgers. Come on over."

For instance, the day our portable barbecue grill arrived, Dave suggested a party to christen it. For some time we had wanted to have Gladys and Don Morgan over for dinner. Etiquetters might have frowned at our 5 p.m. telephone invitation. Yet they came as they were, Gladys arriving breathlessly in a cotton blouse and skirt.

The boys grilled steaks while Gladys and I baked potatoes, tossed salad, and perked coffee. We ate at exactly 6:30, then chatted. The cool evening breeze was relaxing. Gladys even slipped off her shoes. It was a comfortable and refreshing party.

"Why this is more fun than we've had in a long time," Don exclaimed. "Most parties are planned far in advance, but this is real living."

"Call us again," said Gladys. "Next time we'll bring the steaks."

Evening suppers are only part of our casual scheme. We live in a small town and my husband comes home to lunch every day. He delights in escorting unexpected company to share pot luck. These unforeseen guests may be college fraternity brothers, salesmen, Dave's last patient before noon, even an oil company executive. I love entertaining every one of them, even if I am caught in blue jeans while painting the garden's rose trellis. And I never apologize for the clothes I wear or the fare I serve. I have learned that even a word or gesture will make a guest feel unwanted.

Dave does, from time to time, forget that projects are under way at home. It was the day the painters and paper hangers came to redecorate the kitchen and dining room that he walked in the door with a weary salesman. All available eating spots were cluttered

You'll be just as thrilled as they are!

Dear Sirs:

May I congratulate you on your exceptionally fine new cake mix? It has all the flavor and texture of a homemade cake, and is far better than any other mix I have ever used.

MRS. ANN TYLER
East Rockaway, N. Y.

We think it's wonderful, too, Mrs. Tyler, that a cake can taste so homemade and yet take but 4 minutes from box to oven!

Dear Sirs:

I was amazed at the way your cake mix turned out. The cake is just like the ones I bake—and better.

I couldn't help writing to say thanks for a truly grand product. Baking will be a breeze now—cakes, cookies, etc.—time and money saved.

MRS. KATHLEEN SPRINGER

The reason Swans Down Instant Cake Mix makes cakes like the ones you bake—"and better"—is because the ingredients in it are as fine as your own, Mrs. Springer.

We use the one and only Swans Down Cake Flour. Egg whites that taste farm-fresh... prepared by an exclusive process. Long-keeping vegetable shortening, pure, delicate flavoring.

Dear Sirs:

I want to write and tell you that I think your Swans Down Instant Cake Mix is simply wonderful.

So many of my friends have started using it since I told them about it.

MRS. MYRTLE MOGLE
Wheaton, Ill.

It seems that women all over the country feel the same way about Swans Down Instant Cake Mix, Mrs. Mogle. And they are all telling their friends about it, too!

That's why we're having such a hard time keeping everybody supplied. If your store is sold out—please go back another day. We're filling orders as fast as we can!

Makes all your favorites!

White cake, chocolate cake, yellow cake, spice cake, orange cake, upside down cake, brownies, cookies—no end of delicious variations. And every one's a Swans Down beauty! See recipes in box.

with books, lamp shades, and buckets of paint. Even the card table was bow-legged under a heavy weight of magazines and assorted dishes.

"Don't fix any lunch for me, I'll eat down the road," stammered our blushing guest. "But just sitting in a house again will be such a treat," and he slouched into Dave's favorite living-room chair and lit his pipe.

"Do you mind eating on the floor?" I asked. "That's where we were going to have our lunch."

He nodded puzzled approval and I spread a red-checkered picnic cloth on the living-room rug. We sat on pillows, munched egg sandwiches and gulped chocolate milk. I have never entertained at a more successful party. Later I even received an appreciative note of thanks written by the salesman's wife.

I never prepare fancy desserts or elaborate dishes for company. Most of the girls in our town do their own housework, and guests usually help with the dishes. I don't know a single woman who enjoys spending visiting hours in someone else's kitchen. I certainly don't, so we usually plan meat dishes that can be cooked outdoors, and we keep a complete stock of paper plates and cups. A grill steak, a simple salad, and a glass iced tea, with time left for a walk in the garden, a drive through the park or a game of badminton are more fun for me and my guests than an elaborate yet tiring formal dinner.

Although we occasionally use our best china and sterling silver, we prefer to save them for parties planned at least five hours in advance. Often we use fragile ware on occasions when Dave and I are alone, when I can take my precious time washing afterwards.

Our inexpensive pottery, which I bought in twelves, sets an attractive table indoors or out. When I hear an extra car rolling into the driveway I can easily add another plate without rearranging the entire table.

Our pantry is stocked with canned foods. For spur-of-the-moment meals this costs much less than running out and buying food at the last minute. It saves embarrassment and time.

Perhaps the greatest compliment I've ever had came from a ten-year-old boy munching barbecued ribs. "I sure do like to come over here to eat," he remarked. "You don't fuss and go to a bit of trouble, do you?"

The Versatile Cheese Tray . . .

LILA M. JONES

Margaret Nielsen

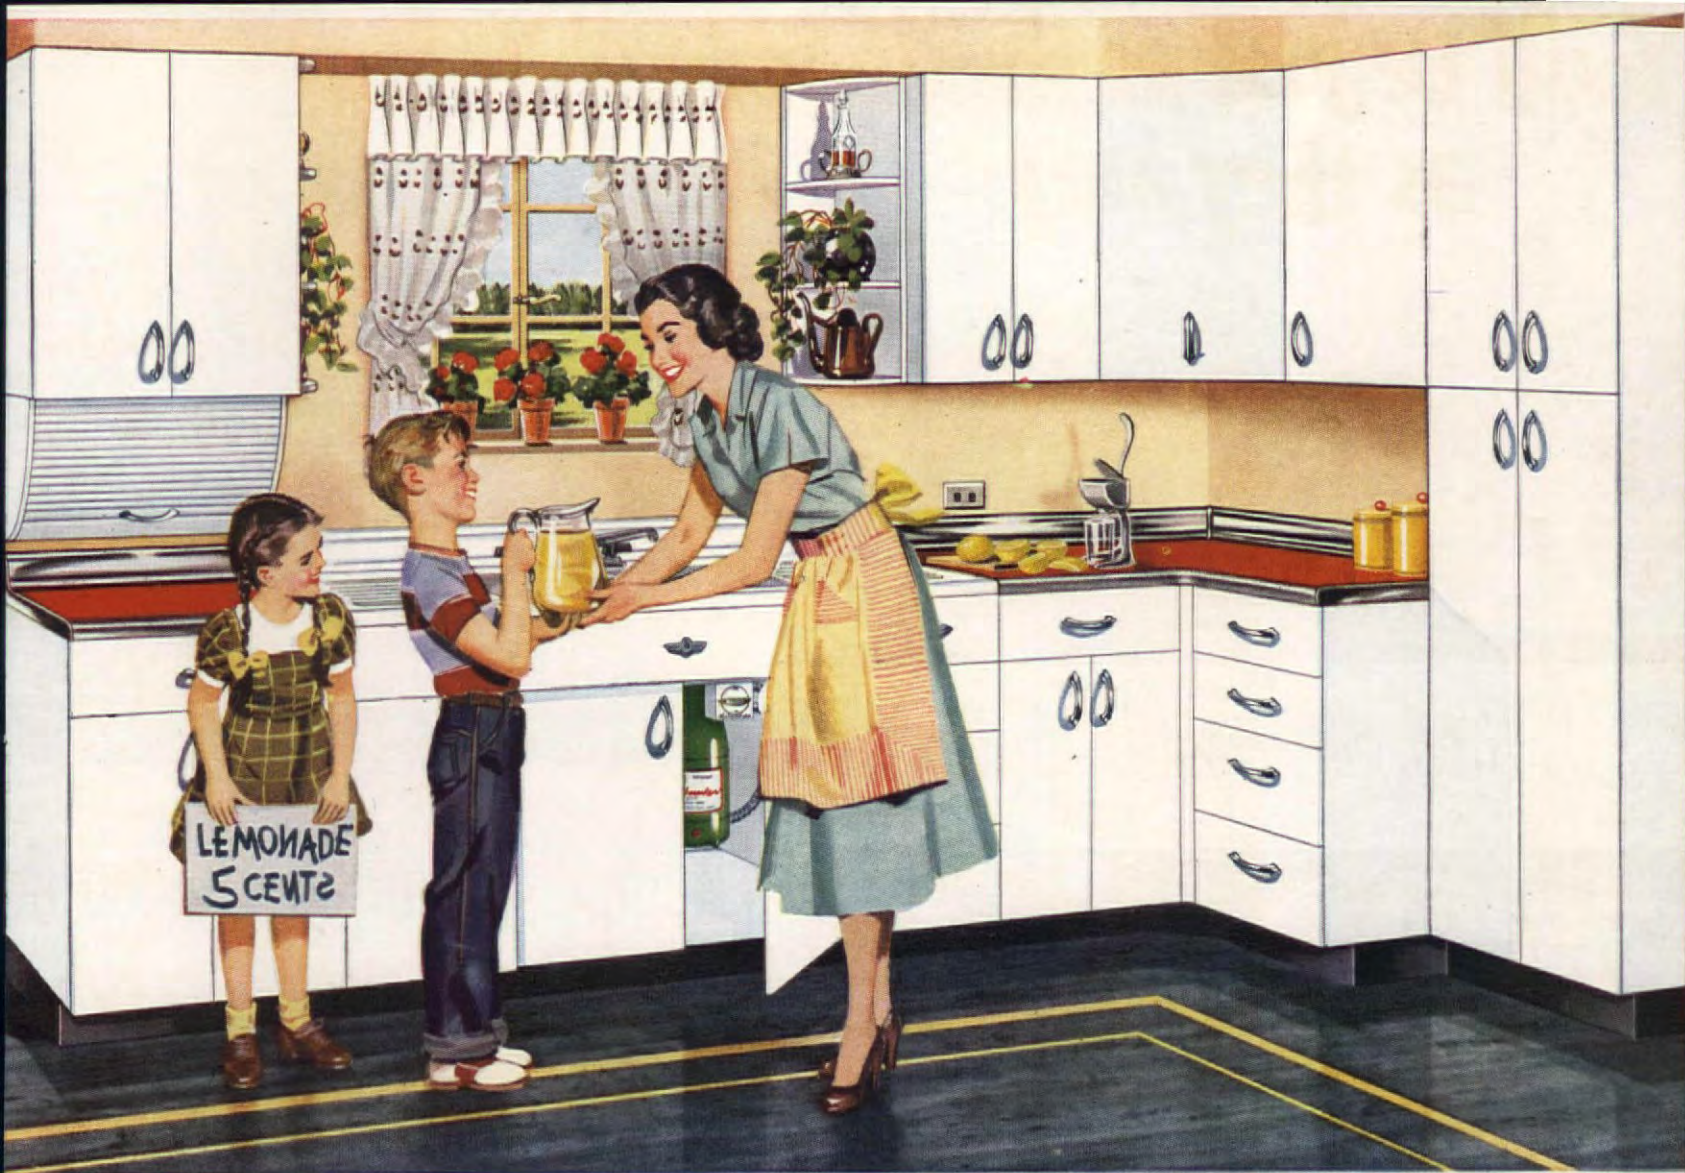

Whether it's a formal or an informal get-together, it's always "right" to serve a tray of distinctive cheeses.

For that 5 o'clock party: Let the guests help themselves from a make-it-yourself tray. Cream cheese rolled in minced parsley or chives, cubes of sharp cheese, cheese spreads in jars, or a red-coated Edam are always popular.

The man of the house entertains: An occasion for plenty of sharp cheese and crackers. Wedges of Camembert, Roquefort, or blue cheese when served with apples and pears in place of crackers are flavor-favorites that shouldn't be missed.

Dinner desserts: Served at the table or in living room with after-dinner coffee—the cheese tray is a conversation piece. In center of tray, on galax or grape leaves, arrange sections of cored pear, petal fashion. Around them place cored apple rings with small bunches of grapes in center; then the cheeses—individual portions of blue, Camembert, Swiss, Gouda, or cream cheese. Don't forget to pass the bowl of salted nuts!

Recipe to make the cook

DOROTHY CABLE

Some say a cook is born, not made—but you can prove an old maxim wrong by creating this cook yourself. Our jolly chef, though not from Oz, might be cousin to the Tin Woodman. At what poise! Last-minute company never flusters him, nor can he be needled into divulging top culinary secrets. He'll amuse back-yard picnic guests and merrily display a barbecue menu. Hang him on clothesline or a convenient garden tree—or send him to a bride's kitchen shower.

The recipe to make the cook requires the following ingredients:

- |                                             |                                                     |
|---------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------|
| 1 tin baby plate                            | 1 piece of board or plywood about 3 1/2 by 5 inches |
| 1 large-sized biscuit cutter without handle | 4 nutmeg graters or 2 salad forks that can be bent  |
| 1 rubber ball of tennis size                | 3 straight pins                                     |
| 1 large grater                              | Oilcloth for the chef's apron                       |
| 2 soup spoons that you won't mind bending   | Lightweight wire                                    |

Add to these a can opener, a pair of pliers, an ice pick, and India ink. Use the large grater, handle upward, as the body of your little man. Make each leg by wiring two nutmeg graters together. Fasten them with wire to the inside of his tummy. If nutmeg graters are not available, make legs of salad forks. Bend the prongs to represent feet. To attach forks to the body, punch a hole in the top of each fork and wire in the manner described for the nutmeg graters.

The recipe calls for arms of soup spoons. Accentuate the handle's natural curves by bowing the spoons still more. Let the bowls represent hands. Using a can opener, make a slit in each side of the body. Insert and bend the tops of the spoon handles. For additional security, punch holes in these ends and wire to the body.

Our chef needs a head. Using an ice pick, bore a hole through yellow, black, or orange rubber ball. Then punch two holes in the middle of the grater's handle. Make similar pairs of holes in the biscuit cutter and the baby plate. Run wire through the baby plate, biscuit cutter, and ball—then around through the grater handle and back again. Pull tight and twist wire ends together. Now complete with hat and head, the cook is ready to be hung.

But the recipe still calls for a smiling face, so draw facial features with India ink. (If the head is a black ball, use white paint.) Cut an apron from oilcloth and pin on a collar. For sleeve ties narrow bows of oilcloth around the spoon wrists.

To make a trade label, letter M-E-N-U on the block of wood. Bore a hole at each end with a heated ice pick. Hang the sign with wire around the chef's neck. Your cook is now ready to serve you.

How to Care for Books

J. R. E. CAMERON

Books play a great part in our lives—they afford us so many hours of pleasure that they deserve the best of care. Are you faced by a series of ragged, dusty bindings? Are you tempted to exile the whole lot of them to the attic? No need to, for a few hours of simple first-aid treatments can put new life into those well-worn but well-liked friends of armchair and fireside.

Place books upright on the shelves. On shelves not used to capacity, use bookends for support. They look tidier and you ease the burden on the bindings. Just as you break in a new car, break in a new book gently. Hold the pages upright, run your fingers along inside front and back hinges, then towards the center of the book a few pages at a time alternating from back to front.

Camera Associa

Book Enemy No. 1 is dust. Soft brush on vacuum cleaner is best means of getting rid of it. Piece of stale bread or soft gum eraser will remove ingrained remnants on rough bindings

Small amount of alum in warm water will remove water stains. Pages should be dried between sheets of blotting paper. Cautious application of soap jelly, sponging with cold water may remove fingerprints

Most grease spots will lift with application of a warm iron over pieces of blotting paper on top of and under page. Fuller's earth or some powdered wallpaper cleaners will also help absorb grease spots

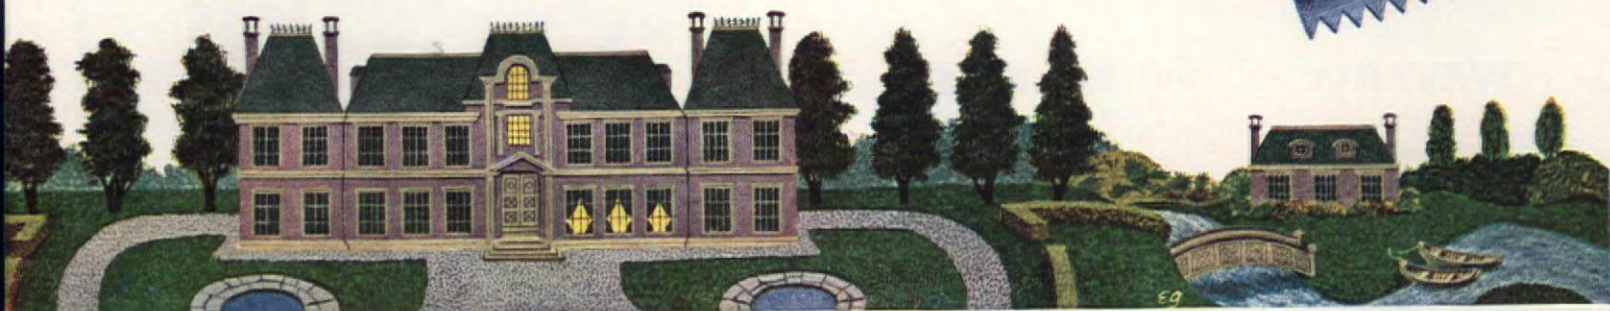

To preserve rare leather-bound books, work animal or vegetable oils such as lanolin or castor oil into them with the hands, specially along the backs. Avoid mineral oils, for they rot the bindings

Corky Kocher's Story

Young Corky's room has two studio beds, to occasionally bunk a buddy. Walls are pine, excellent built-ins of fir plywood. Floor is asphalt tile. Corky has collection of guns, keeps them in glass-doored case near head of his bed. Door leads to dressing room, tiny bathroom off left. Mrs. Kocher, a decorator, designed layout of room for Corky, plus privacy, independence, and comfort—a separate apartment for a young bachelor, yet just a few steps away across the back yard from mom and pop.

Papa Kocher knows his way around with a hammer. Mother Kocher is a talented decorator. Doing much of the work themselves, the Kochers added a four-foot lean-to on the alley side of the garage to take care of bath and dressing room, broke through one wall of the structure to install a big glass window, built a "pullman" kitchenette into another wall of the room.

On Sundays Corky rises late, yahoos across the back yard, and Mr. and Mrs. Kocher come over to Corky's apartment for coffee which he brews. Later Corky's friends come by, read the funnies, play records, amble down the beach which is near by.

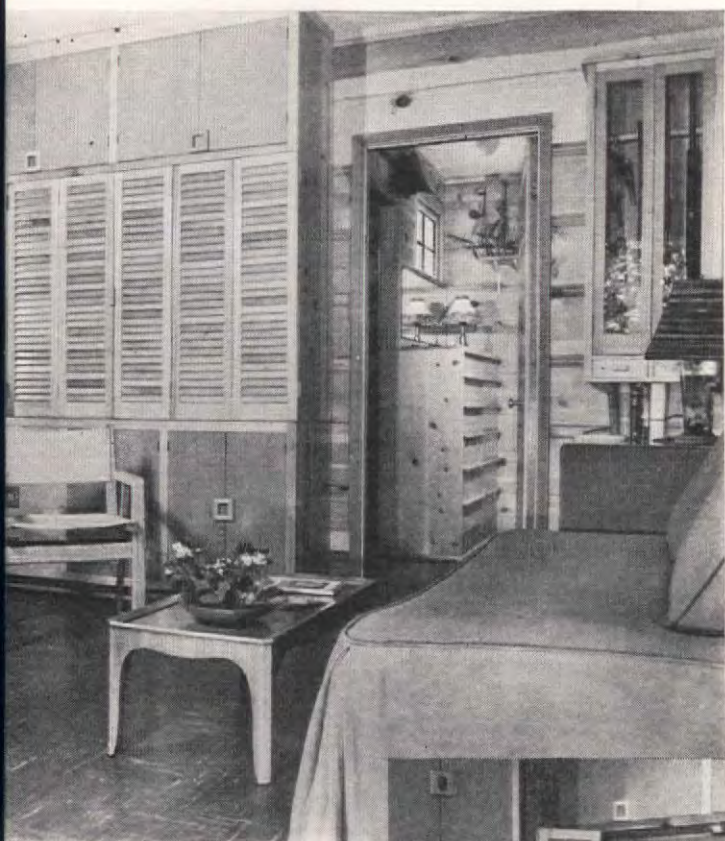

Built-in shelves at foot of extra bed contain war trophies.

Flap-down table is used for eating or as a desk. Map of world nearly covers one wall. Lamp is decoy duck

(Begins on page 38)

Canny built-ins are a space saver in a house as small as Corky's. Cupboard door next to kitchenette lets down to make breakfast table or buffet counter, doubles as desk

They're coffee hounds at Corky's house. Table, beds, two folding chairs are only movable pieces of furniture in house. Cabinet next to studio couch holds bedding

Stickley "American" FURNITURE

*rooted in the past, yet unfolding
the promise of tomorrow!*

Reflecting America's cultural growth from the days of pioneer Cherry Valley to the highly urbanized Empire State of today, Stickley "American" furniture has a charm and individuality all its own. It is more than "reproduction" furniture. Rather, it is a truly living American style — one that follows a basic tradition and character, yet ever evolves to fit the changing needs and means of today's homes.

Every Stickley piece has the characteristics of custom-built furniture — is soundly and honestly built from solid cherry — famous fruitwood that has gone into treasured American creations for the last three centuries.

Past-Perfect Modern

EDNA DEU FREE NELSON

Potters of all ages have been inspired by a desire to be of service. They have designed functional ware for religious worship, planting, and for the home. Always in simple, honest forms, ageless in type, they keep company with any century.

Proof of this—and there for all to see—are the ceramic collections in the country's museums. Side by side stand the wares of the young Egyptian who made water and wine jugs or cooking pots for his people; of the Persian artists who labored happily under the directive eye of wealthy patrons; of the Chinese whose products seem symbols for beauty, patience, timelessness; of the first Americans—the Indian—whose pottery vessels were the equal of those made in Egypt and Rome. The bold contrasts, color harmony, power of construction of modern pottery stems from this ancient heritage—a past that is perfect modern.

Why be content with just listening to music?

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE an armchair musician who listens while others play! You can play the Hammond Organ in your own home!

You play and a simple tune becomes a fresh and beautiful melody. Strings, reeds, woodwinds, brasses, and scores of other marvelous effects add new color and depth to everything you play.

Your fingertips command and the Hammond Organ, music's most glorious voice, speaks in whispers. Then it swells to full volume. No other instrument enables you to play with such feeling and freedom.

And it doesn't take long to learn how!

If you can play the piano, you can quickly learn to play the Hammond Organ!

If you have a little experience on the piano, or can read simple music, you can quickly and easily learn to play the Hammond Organ. A few lessons won't make you a finished performer, but they will help you to express yourself in music as you never have done before.

And a Hammond Organ costs much less than you think!

Priced no higher than most fine pianos!

This is the only organ in the world that can't get out of tune. It fits into any living room without special installations. Just plug it into an electric outlet and it's ready to play.

But why just read about it?

Mail the coupon today!

See, hear, and play the Hammond Organ yourself at your dealer's. For more information and the name of the dealer nearest you, just mail the coupon.

AFTER: With wide overhanging eaves and trellis, view windows and geometric front-entrance design, the remodeled home of Mrs. Sigrid Nelson in Seattle, Washington, is now as up-to-date as today's newspaper

WILLIAM J. HENNESSEY

How to Streamline a Middle-aged Frame ...

A house high on a hill with a magnificent view below of a thriving city, busy harbor, and mountains beyond sounds like a dream come true. And well it might, all things being equal. Mrs. Sigrid Nelson did find the ideal site but—and a very big BUT—the house was ugly beyond words. It took several visits before this former decorating student decided upon a definite course. Grim as the house was, the view was worth fighting for. Many a hopeless house had been given a new lease on life, and she was determined that hers would be no exception.

A consultation with a modern architect, Donald Dwight Williams, gave her further assurance. The impossible could be made to happen! Off came the cumbersome, heavy front porch; light and brightness entered the interiors through a new super-large view window. After the exterior walls had been given a new layer of siding, a concrete-paved terrace under a geometric trellis completely transformed the front elevation. On the east side where a neighbor's house came too close for comfort, obscure glass added both light and welcome privacy.

Interior walls were in such a state that most of them had to be replastered. Downstairs they were given a coat of light green-turquoise. Being an artist at heart, the new owner used colors functionally and with an eye to bright airiness. For instance, in order to display better the yellow-green multicord draperies in the living room, a soft-gray carpet was chosen. This carpet just about covers the floor area. The same gray was used on the small fireplace seat which also has rose cushions to match color of custom-built curved sofa near the corner window. Modern simplicity is the keynote throughout all principal rooms.

The stair hall just glows with brilliant yellow, a color that has been used in the second-floor hallways as well. Here one notices the definite open feeling so prevalent throughout the house, for the old heavy stair rail was torn out and, in the space formed by a turn in the stair, a well-planned coat closet now guards against accidents. This closet is not ceiling-high; it allows light from the stair sash to filter into the lower hallway. The point of focal interest in this hall is a colorful "Ancestor Portrait" from China; the telephone alcove is a thoughtful touch.

The walls in the master bedroom are blue, the rug white, the ceiling covered with silver and blue wallpaper. Silver, too, is found on the several chests in the room, ingeniously covered with paper in checker-board design. Contrasting with these cool tones are the rose-colored velvet bedspreads.

This view of living room looking toward front hall could well be of any new, well-designed modern house

Mrs. Nelson with daughters, Jeanne and Doris, in living room form pretty family portrait against rose circular seat. Rose bamboo shades hang on corner view sash

Built-in bookcases flank one side of new chimney breast with its large shadowbox. Simple molding frames tile fireplace

Home-Owners' Quiz

The right answers can mean money in your pocket

Q. Which insulation should I choose?

- ☐ Batt ☐ Blanket ☐ Loose fill

A. Most insulations are good. However, blanket insulation offers two important advantages: first, it will not pack down or settle when installed in sidewalls . . . therefore it provides uniform insulating efficiency. No money-wasting thick spots, no thin spots where heat can seep in or out. Second, builders will tell you that the correct way to insulate walls is the blanket way—leaving air space on both sides of the insulation to prevent heat lag and condensation. Among blanket insulations, KIMSUL* is outstanding. It's the only many-layer stitched blanket in the world and is flexible, non-crumbling, non-irritating.

Q. Insulation for the average new 6-room house would compare in price to what?

- ☐ A grand piano ☐ An easy chair ☐ A small new car

A. Insulation is one of the most important, yet least expensive features of the home. To completely insulate the average new 6-room home with KIMSUL costs about $150—actually less than a new easy chair! Moreover, KIMSUL applied throughout cuts new home fuel bills as much as 44%—up to 33% when applied in the attic of an existing home. So the original cost is paid back within a few years. To save money, insulate first—you can always buy the extra furnishings later.

Q. How can I determine whether or not a new home is efficiently insulated?

- ☐ Check walls and ceilings ☐ Check the insulation ☐ Check both

A. Check both! The ceilings and especially the sidewalls should be completely insulated. Make sure the insulation is not a type that may settle. Check it for fire, insect, vermin and mold resistance. Finally, inspect the window and door frames for caulking to prevent drafts. If the builder has specified KIMSUL, this information will be readily available.

Q. Where is insulation sold?

- ☐ Building material dealers ☐ Lumber dealers
☐ Mail order houses

A. In the case of KIMSUL, all three answers are correct. Most dealers will install KIMSUL for you, or you can install it yourself. And in addition to providing wintertime comfort, KIMSUL lowers inside temperatures as much as 15° on hottest summer days.

Home Study Plan

were taken from the driveway and used for the new chimney.

It is an easy matter to provide heat for this den because pipes for the radiant steam system were laid directly on the concrete slab, then covered with crushed rock, another concrete slab, and finally finished with asphalt tile built level with the kitchen floor.

All evening meals are served here; however, breakfasts and hurry-up lunches are eaten in the bright kitchen at a round table surrounded by Mexican chairs. Through a window flanked by ivy in red pots, Mrs. Welshman can supervise play-yard goings-on.

Covering the living-room floor is a 10 by 20 foot braided rug, product of the two adults and largest of several in the house. Actually it took six months to make. Here the color scheme is gray-green and wine, the former found in the woodwork and floral wallpaper, the latter in the rich burgundy draperies. A recessed cupboard on the fireplace wall, painted white, holds Mrs. Welshman's collection of ruby glass. Nostalgia is apparent in the old-fashioned spinning wheel and love seat in delicate floral designs.

Since much of the time is spent out of doors, there's a large terrace for family meals. Father, assisted by many small willing hands, takes over duties as chief cook. Naturally there are always several dogs, cockers to be exact, and a big yellow cat to complete the authentic homespun look. With such a setup the Welshmans, father and mother, need never worry about their flock straying too far from the family hearth for where could they find a substitute for such congenial, co-operative family living?

Mrs. Welshman, a professional harpist, teaches six-year-old daughter Linda on miniature replica of her own instrument in formal gray-green and wine living room

Good living spreads out onto terrace where father and son, Lynn, roast frankfurters over open fire. Linda, Dana, and mother await with growing appetites

How to Fix a Split Clapboard

ALDEN STAHR

Fifteen minutes is all it took to complete this job. The materials involved were a few 6-penny common wire nails, putty, and a piece of old clapboard which matched the rest of the wall. Tools were simple: key-hole saw, square, nailset, wide chisel, hammer, crosscut saw, and a wooden wedge made from a piece of 2 x 4.

First the nails in the split area of clapboard and the clapboard above were located and driven completely through the boards with the nailset. Irregularities in the surface and the paint color will usually show where nails are.

With the wide chisel the upper clapboard was pried out a bit from the wall, and the wood wedge was inserted to hold the board out. Running the keyhole saw under the raised board (upper photo), the split section was cut out after marking a vertical guide line with the square. Next the repair clapboard was fitted and nailed in place (lower photo).

If there is no sheathing behind the clapboards, cut the split board out to the nearest stud past the split. Then nail a cleat (short piece of 2 x 4) to the stud with 10-penny nails. Nail the new piece of clapboard to the cleats and the studs.

The upper clapboard was renailed. All nails were set, and the holes puttyed. When the putty was set, the repaired area was ready for painting.

R. K. BULLARD LAUDS LOW-COST EFFICIENCY, OF DELCO-HEAT BOILER

Mr. Bullard had a Delco-Heat Boiler installed in this Port Washington, N. Y., residence in the fall of 1947. He recently wrote us: "I've kept a monthly record of oil consumption since December, 1947, through two severe winters. At no time did my Delco-Heat Boiler use over seven gallons of oil a day. I call this real economy of operation!"

Mr. Bullard has proved to himself what thousands of satisfied Delco-Heat users know: that General Motors' products give real value—and that factory-trained Delco-Heat dealers install the units right. Alpha Utilities, Inc., Freeport, N. Y., made the Bullard's installation.

FULL-LENGTH MYSTERY NOVELS

by ERLE STANLEY GARDNER

IMAGINE! Yours FREE—THREE baffling, full-length mystery novels by Erle Stanley Gardner, famous creator of Perry Mason, and the man The Saturday Evening Post calls "The Undisputed King of Mystery Writers." These books are not condensed versions—but the regular full-sized publisher's editions that sell for $2 to $2.50 each. But on this generous offer you get ALL THREE books at once—FREE—as a new membership gift from the famous Detective Book Club.

By "The Undisputed King of Mystery Writers"

THE CASE OF THE Dubious Bridegroom

When millionaire Edward Garvin finds himself with two wives, he retains lawyer Perry Mason to get rid of the first one—legally. But somebody beats Mason to it—by shooting wife No. 1. Now Garvin has nothing to worry about—except a charge of MURDER! All the cards are stacked against him, until Mason comes up with the "joker" in a dramatic courtroom finish!

THE CASE OF THE Lonely Heiress

Can you imagine a beautiful heiress advertising for boy friends? Perry doesn't believe it. But neither do the cops believe Perry when they trap him in an apartment with a murdered woman! Especially when the only fingerprints at the scene of the crime belong to Perry himself!

THE CASE OF THE Black-Eyed Blonde

Just ONE blonde can cause enough trouble—and Mason is tangled up with THREE! No. 1 bursts into his office wearing practically nothing but a fur coat and a "wow" of a black eye. No. 2 is having suspicious "in-law" trouble. And Mason finds No. 3 with a bullet through her head! Can No. 2 help Mason prove that No. 1 didn't murder No. 3? Or WAS she the killer?

Purpose: to show consumers that there are periodic style cycles in home furnishings and that the luxury of fashion is now available in every price bracket. . . . Inexpensive Sandran looks like rubber tile, costs $1.75 square yard, comes in 11 colors, in 3, 6 and 9 foot widths. Photographic and engraving process used to reproduce pattern realistically. Asphalt and latex base is topped with design, coated with durable vinylplastic.

Money Management

• "The Food Dollar," 32-page booklet outlines clearly and graphically wise planning of family meals and marketing to get most out of food money. Offered by Household Finance Corporation, Consumer Education Department, 919 No. Michigan Ave., Chicago 11, Ill. 5 cents.

Award of Merit

• The Arthur Hoyt Scott Garden and Horticultural Award of a gold medal and $1,000, given annually by Swarthmore College, went this year to Miss Ellen Eddy Shaw, pioneer instructor in junior gardening, and one-time editor of that department in the American Home.

X-Ray Soil Analysis

• Soil survey of the State of Connecticut, now under way, is being greatly expedited by a machine called a Geiger counter x-ray spectrometer, which determines, in a matter of minutes, kinds and amounts of minerals in soil sample. Connecticut Experiment Station second in country to utilize this new apparatus.

Styptic Caution

• Styptic pencils used to arrest bleeding can, because of alum content, cause holes to develop in bathroom towels. American Institute of Laundering warns all males and wives who look after them to keep that styptic pencil away from shirts and towels.

Young Thrift

• They must spend to learn is one theory developed in the U.S. Children's Bureau's newest publication "Your Child From 6 to 12." Address: Washington, D.C. Free.

Building Costs

• Compilation of answers to a nation-wide builders' questionnaire survey completed this spring by F. W. Dodge Corp. indicates building costs dropped approximately 5% between May 1, '48 and May 1, '49. Builders believe drop will continue to 8% or more in some areas by November. Attributed to drop in prices of materials and an increase in productivity of individual workers of all types. Materials are readily available in most categories throughout greater part of U.S. "Lump-sum" contracts have returned as general practice, whereas "cost plus fixed fee" contracts were rule during period of soaring prices.

You owe it to your daughter to tell her these Intimate Facts of Life!

Before she marries—make sure she has this modern, scientific information . . .

Isn't it a blessing that in this modern age of enlightenment, helpful truths can be outspoken? Today, vaginal douches 2 or 3 times weekly are so widely recommended and practiced for intimate feminine cleanliness that the all-important question has really become—WHAT to put in the douche!

So, mother, make sure your daughter realizes: no other type liquid antiseptic-germicide of all those tested for the douche is so powerful yet so safe to tissues as ZONITE. (If you have the slightest doubt, send for PROOF in the free booklet below.)

Cautions Against Weak or Dangerous Products

If, through old-fashioned advice passed on down through the years, you are still using 'kitchen make-shifts' such as salt, soda or vinegar—let us warn you these are NOT germicides in the douche.

On the other hand, no wise woman would want to resort to dangerous products—overstrong solutions of which may burn, harden tissue and, in time, even impair functional activity of the mucous glands.

Truly, ZONITE is a modern miracle! ZONITE has a powerful germ-killing action yet is ABSOLUTELY SAFE to tissues. It's positively non-poisonous and non-irritating. You can use ZONITE as directed as often as you wish—there's not the slightest risk of injury.

Zonite's Miracle-Action

ZONITE eliminates odor, removes waste substances and discharge. You feel so dainty and refreshed. Helps guard against infection. It kills every germ it touches. You know it's not always possible to contact all the germs in the tract. But you can BE SURE ZONITE DOES KILL every reachable germ and keeps them from multiplying. Available at any drugstore.

How often do you really have 30 days in one month—days you can call your own, free and clear? Or do you spend 4 or 5 days each month being a slave to the old routine of pins, belts, tabs and external pads?.... Why not investigate the Tampax method of internal absorption? Then you can say goodbye to all such outside trappings and fittings!

NO BELTS

WE'RE GLAD WE MODERNIZED OUR HEATING!

In three simple steps you can have the comforts of B & G Hydro-Flo Heating ... with year 'round hot water

You don't have to build a new home to have the comfort and economy of B & G Hydro-Flo Heating! The same equipment used in today's most modern homes can be applied to your present hot water heating system. No structural alterations—all work is confined to a few changes in the basement.

Thereafter, you'll have all the benefits of automatic forced hot water heating. Heat is supplied instantly when needed and smoothly modulated to meet every change in the weather. No chilly underheating and no wasteful overheating. Every bit of fuel does full duty in keeping your home in cheery comfort from Fall to Spring.

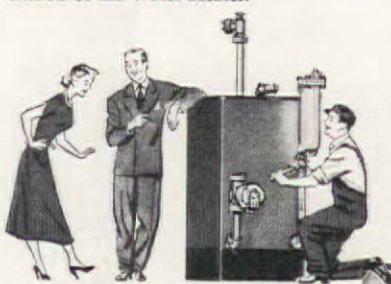

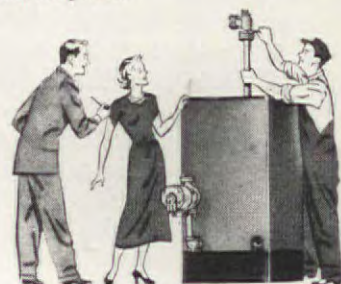

THE CHANGE-OVER IS AS SIMPLE AS THIS—

First, your heating contractor installs a B & G Booster Pump. This is the unit that provides forced circulation under accurate automatic control. It is completely dependable, quiet and uses an insignificant amount of electric power.

2 Next comes the Flo-Control Valve. This Valve remains tightly closed, preventing any heat from rising into the radiators, except when the Booster Pump is running. Hence, it protects against an "over-tide" in temperature and also permits summer operation of the Water Heater.

Finally, the Water Heater. From this unit comes an ever-ready supply of hot water every month of the year. You never have to worry about expense because this is the low-cost way to produce an abundance of hot water. Always plenty for automatic washers and showers.

Shoot them in the sun!

ELIZABETH HIBBS

While Old Sol is still shining bright and long, during late summer and early fall, it's time to dust off your camera and go outdoors to shoot pictures of the youngsters.

It's easy to take your pictures out of the amateur class if you have patience, an observing eye, and a little know-how. A camera is, of course, a "must," but whether yours is a three-dollar "box" or an expensive import, it will do a fine job once you've learned how to use it. Have implicit faith in manufacturer's directions, follow them to the letter.

Chief fault of many child pictures is that they lack punch. A close-up of a blank face is boring—even to fond mothers and dads—while a photograph of a child digging in the garden or absorbed in play is lively and interesting.

Things to remember when you go outdoors to make that perfect shot: Plan pictures with a story-telling angle. Open lens, set shutter speed according to directions. Then shoot!

Most amateurs shoot from too far away. Close in on your subject, make sure figure fills half to three-quarters of area seen in finder. For head shots, get as close to subject as camera will permit

Photographs by author

Be ready to click the shutter at moments like this. And don't be stingy with film. The more pictures you take, the better your chances for one perfect shot well-worth enlarging

while you may!

That is, when the gray-green pods are about to split, but before they discharge their close-packed, silk-tasseled contents—and you have material for year-round arrangements like that shown below (photographed six months after it was made!). Few plants are more fittingly named than the milkweeds, or silkweeds, which comprise some 80 species of the botanical genus, Asclepias. That name, from the Greek god of medicine, suggests the therapeutic value of some of them. The milky juice (which does not, as some believe, cause warts) has attracted attention as a source—still commercially unrealized—of rubber. During the war, youth groups collected millions of bushels of the pods so the silk could be used in life preservers in place of the then unavailable kapok. But the main interest in this common field and roadside weed (as in its relative, the often cultivated, orange-flowered butterfly-weed, or pleurisy-root) is an aesthetic one, because of the odd attractiveness of its habit, flower heads, fruits, and seeds.

Don't denounce "dried flower arrangements" until you try long-lasting combinations like this one—of mullein stalks, bayberry sprays, and, especially, exploding milkweed

Gather milkweed

Odd, hourglass-shaped flowers with petals part up, part down, make up the fragrant, rounded, pink to purplish umbels of our common, native milkweed (A. syriaca).

Bees, seeking honey, often get their feet trapped in slots between the petals. Pulling loose (if they can) they drag with them little blobs of pollen grains

The pods, properly called follicles, are a dusty gray-green, thickly set with soft, innocuous spines. As they mature, they dry, split open along one seam, and curl back, releasing an incredible number of shiny black seeds, like another of Nature's prolific cornucopias. Remember seeking them for pin-cushion filling?

Gradually, the smooth, firm, wonderfully packed mass of round, flattened seeds—each with its parachute of long, silken threads—loosens, comes apart, and disintegrates in all directions. Wind, weather, or we who love beauty, may speed up or retard this dispersal whereby the plant seeks to perpetuate its kind ee varieties can be predicted, as in the chart on page 41 (for the ten-year period after planting), and in the accompanying table (for 20 and 40 years from planting, respectively). It is assumed that the trees, when planted, were about 2 inches in trunk diameter or 8 to 12 feet high. For any tree, rate of growth depends somewhat on its age. In general, trees start rather slowly, requiring from five to fifteen years to reach the inch size usually planted. During the period covered by these studies, they develop more rapidly; then, as they approach maturity, the rate slows down, the growth is less lush.

Not recommended where elm disease is prevalent
Not recommended where better, longer-lasting kinds will thrive

The space requirements noted make clear that a 50 by 100 foot lot does not need more than two or three of these major trees. A few are a valuable asset; too many soon become a liability. Hence, their selection should be made with great care. If you want a high-branched tree with a straight, clean trunk, remember that trees do not expand vertically. If the lowest branch is five feet from the ground now, it will always be at that height. If the trunk is divided into several branches close to the ground, it will always be a "low-headed" tree. In some locations this may be desirable, but if low limbs will shut off important views or interfere with lawn or flower beds, paths or driveway, plant a tree with ample trunk height.

One easy and sure way to determine just what trees are best suited to your location is to "look about you" in local nurseries, parks, arboretums, and the grounds of attractive homes. If you are an adventurous soul, you may want to try other kinds than those commonly seen in the neighborhood; but for the most part stick to plants that have proved good.

The same advice applies to the smaller trees (which are sometimes better considered large shrubs), and to evergreens. Here the choice is wide and the mistakes made are flagrant, as a drive through any suburban residential district will demonstrate. Material intended as a foundation planting will be seen screening the first, and sometimes the second, story windows; overplanting has turned many potentially pleasing grounds into jungles. So consult landscape architect or nurseryman both as to lists of suitable plants for various locations, and as to spacing and arrangement that will give best results.

Any discussion of small properties should include mention of so-called "wooded lots." Most of them suffer from too many trees of the wrong kind, and the advice of a professional tree man should be heeded as to which to remove. He will try to save not alone the best specimens, but, more important still, the ones best located to beautify and enhance your property. This selection should begin when the location of house, drive, etc. are first considered, and it may well continue indefinitely. As underplantings develop, additional thinning of tall trees may become necessary for the general good.

These same principles apply to established plantings on older places. It may be advantageous to remove plants that have outlived their usefulness. Sometimes specimens can be moved to better locations or to form new arrangements. A few new plants may be needed, or it may be that a certain space is more valuable for other purposes than to support trees or shrubs. All these considerations form part of good maintenance.

So in the long view, the problems of the small home grounds are not essentially different from those of the larger place. The owner needs, first of all, an adequate plan, drawn to scale, with all permanent, existing objects accurately located. Have this made by a landscape architect if possible, but have a plan even if you have to draw it yourself. Then develop the grounds, the garden features, and the plantings in a systematic manner. Study your own requirements as to shade and shelter, screening and vistas, and also the requirements of both major and minor trees. Then locate those features accordingly, with due consideration for the all-important elements of time and size.

Here, to supplement the large trees in the table, is a list of useful smaller kinds: Hedge, Japanese, and Columnar Maples; Silk-tree (Albizia); American and European Pyramidal Hornbeams; Redbud; Dogwood; Gordonia or Franklinia; Hawthorns; tree forms of Euonymus; Sourwood; Silverbell (Halesia); Magnolias; and Flowering Crabs and Oriental Flowering Cherries in wide variety.

How to put heat in its place

"No plumbing in OUR living room!"

That's a must. And that's why Trane "Active Air" Convectors replace old style radiators in so many new homes. Slender, sleek convectors add floor space, because they hide in the wall.

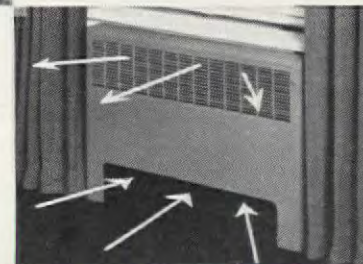

Good-bye dust and dirt! Good housekeeping is easy with Trane Convectors. Curtains and walls stay cleaner, because convector heat is cleaner. Convectors make the most of any steam or hot water system.

"Layer cake" heat? Not here!

Unlike methods which waste heat overhead and leave the floor cold, Trane Convectors spread heat evenly throughout the room. No exposed hot surfaces to burn hands or scorch furniture. Not a radiator cover—the cabinet is a part of the unit.

"Active Air"—the modern heating idea. 1. Air is drawn in at the bottom of the Trane Convector. 2. Instantly warmed by aluminum fins and copper tubes. 3. Warmed air passes into the room and diffuses evenly, from floor to ceiling.

How to Make a Lawn (Begins on page 110)

hot, humid weather that favors fungous growths. Don't let leaves pile up on the lawn over winter, especially on a new lawn. If the soil becomes compacted, or bakes, use of a spike-tooth roller or tamper will help aerate it and aid the entrance and seepage of water when it comes.

7. A lawn likes to be rolled—lightly—because this firms the soil around newly sown seeds and around the feeding roots thereafter. This is especially desirable in early spring when frost leaves the ground loose and spongy. But never roll while the soil is wet, or use such a heavy roller as to pack it and mash the plants.

8. In a man-to-man fight, a grass plant might not defeat a weed. But a strong, vigorous collection of them—that is, a thick, well-fed sod—can effectively repel weed invasions. So plant clean, top quality lawn seed, and use only wholly rotted, weed-free manure (if any) to avoid bringing weed seed in. Prevent, if possible, the draining onto your lawn of water from weed-infested areas. If weeds appear, destroy them while they are young and few, whether by hand or by the use of selective chemicals, or the combination product that kills weeds and feeds the grass at the same time. In short, prevention is the best weapon against weeds, and a good lawn is the best preventive.

9. Mowing helps grass, in addition to improving a lawn's appearance. But mowing a lawn and mowing a golf green are quite different things. When your new grass gets to be more than two inches high, mow it with the mower set so it will just snip the tips of the blades. Repeat once or twice a week until cold weather checks the growth. In spring, start cutting when growth begins again, setting the blades at two inches the first time or two, then gradually lowering them—but not to less than one and a half inches. Mow often enough so clippings are not undesirably long and thick. (See 6)

10. Grass needs water. But a flood can do damage, and a mere sprinkling is worse than useless as it promotes a shallow root system that is especially vulnerable in times of drought and water scarcity. Instead of the daily evening "watering," give a good soaking to a depth of four inches or more once or twice a week.

11. Grass prefers sunlight to shade, so don't waste good seeds in spots where, if you don't already know it, books and catalogues tell you grass won't stand a chance. Better use a ground-cover substitute. However, grass will survive a surprising degree of shade if it's not caused by trees or big shrubs whose roots are competing for the moisture and food in the soil, and which are by far the bigger and hungrier. So if you must or want to grow both on the same ground, feed the grass from above (see 4), and the trees from below by putting plant food in punch bar holes a foot or two deep scattered two feet apart over the area covered by the tree spread. Similarly, on steep banks that are likely to dry out fast, and to wash in heavy rains, a ground cover may be better than grass. But wherever a lawn is possible and appropriate, there's nothing like it.

As the late E. H. Wilson wrote, "I hold with the greatest of living gardeners, William Robinson, that the lawn is the heart of the garden and the happiest thing there is in it, and I believe that there should be in front of every home a piece of green grass as spacious as means permit." EDITOR'S NOTE: For lawn makers on poor or sandy soils, here's encouragement from Edgar J. Hunter, who supervises maintenance at the Brookhaven National Laboratory on Long Island with its nearly 400 acres of grass. He is growing tough sod of 80 percent red fescue and 20 percent Kentucky or Canada bluegrass on almost clear sand and subsoil without topsoil or artificial watering.

About Sept. 1, he fertilizes with enough 10-6-4 plant food to provide 80 pounds of nitrogen per acre (on old grass he uses 1/4 to 1/2 as much). By Sept. 15, he seeds at the rate of 40 to 75 pounds per acre (about 2 pounds per 1000 sq. ft.); mows not more than once a week, never lower than two inches. He finds his high mowing and generous fall feeding with a high nitrogen fertilizer an easy and effective way to defeat crab grass! He avoids spring fertilizing because it would stimulate growth and add to his mowing problem, which he handles with six men and machines.

To establish grass on a crab-grass infested area and crowd out the pest, he recommends using a spike-tooth roller longways and across plot before seeding. For home lawns in cooler New England, he thinks bent grass might be used instead of fescue, but emphasizes that the bents are fussier, special purpose grasses. He does not include clover in his seedings; says it will come and go in your lawn whether you sow it or not.

He says not to be worried about the browning of grass in dry weather, calling it a sort of natural dormant condition; and urges lawn makers to "take it easy, don't work too hard at it." However, he stresses (1) high mowing and (2) regular, generous feeding, preferably in early fall, with a high nitrogen formula plant food.

(For additional helpful information applicable to all sections, send five cents to Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. for a copy of 1948 Yearbook Separate entitled, "Pointers on Making Good Lawns.")

4. Grass welcomes and responds to regular feeding with good fertilizer or lawn conditioner. A week or so before feeding, work into the soil about 25 pounds per 1000 sq. ft. of one of the familiar, balanced 4-12-4, or 5-10-5 formulas (the figures indicating the percentages of nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash respectively). Of other analysis mixtures, use proportionately less, depending on the soil fertility. On established lawns, spread out the same amount evenly in early fall, and again in early spring. Do this when the grass is dry, then soak well to carry the food down to the roots. In many cases, a thin, sad looking lawn is more in need of real feeding than of more seed or the top-dressing with manure or compost that is frequently advocated.

5. Grass likes good drainage. Low spots in a lawn could be corrected, or, better, prevented by carefully grading the subsoil during its construction. In heavy clay, subsoil tiling may be necessary. Or perhaps the incorporation of sand or sifted coal ashes and of humus will drain it up sufficiently. Excessive sand and too free drainage will mean insufficient moisture and should be corrected by mixing in clay and lots of that double-duty humus.

6. Grass likes plenty of air. If the clippings are long and thick enough to smother the grass, or look bad, rake them up for mulching or the compost heap, especially in possible start in life. Early fall—the first half of September—is that time for most of the United States north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers, and other sections of similar climatic conditions. A good fall start goes a long way toward insuring a thick, vigorous sod the next summer. However, where severe freezing occurs early, as in northern New England, very early spring seeding is advisable.

2. Grass needs soil of good depth. By going deep—in some varieties as much as seven to twelve inches—the roots tap extra sources of food and moisture and enable the plants to build up reserve strength and withstand heat and drought. A lawn made in an inch or so of good soil smack on top of hard pan has two strikes against it.

3. Grass needs good soil, well supplied with available plant food. The surface quarter-inch should be rich enough to give the young seedlings a flying start. The next few inches should be reasonably rich, also loamy or friable. And this good soil should, if possible, extend several inches deeper. Well-rotted manure, or any kind of thoroughly broken down humus helps to create this physical condition. Bone meal is slow-acting but long-lasting, and entirely safe. Unless you know your soil is not acid, about 75 pounds of ground limestone per 1000 sq. ft. can well be added, since most good lawn grasses prefer a neutral, or at most very mildly acid, soil. # a Lawn...

ARCHIE BLIRER

The story of the English gardener who explains the secret of his fine lawns as "mowin' and rollin' for a hundred years or more" has been told so often that many people have come to accept it as true. But it definitely isn't. The real explanation of those lush overseas lawns is the normally cool, moist English climate. It provides ideal conditions for maximum growth and long life of many desirable kinds of grass and makes all of man's planning and work to that end doubly effective. It comes pretty close to meeting Mother Nature's lawn requirements.

Well, the cool, wet days of Autumn are approaching, and with them a real opportunity for you in your quest for greener grass and a handsomer lawn in years to come. Whether this is your first attempt at lawn making or another try after seasons of what may have seemed like bad luck, now is the time to start a successful campaign—one in which, by obeying some simple, natural laws, you can enlist Old Mother Nature as a powerful ally. Here are some of those simple, yet wonderful, basic laws . . .

1. Grass does best in cool, damp weather. We cannot provide rain at will or always supplement it adequately, but we can sow the seed at the right time to insure the young plants the best

Capture Fragrance

and even the cynic, Diogenes, patronized a perfumer, leaving his tub at the door while he shopped.

"The earliest recipe I know of for drying rose petals and 'To make an Especial Sweet Powder for Sweet Bags,' is in a tiny volume called 'Delights for Ladies,' by Sir Hugh Platt, one of Queen Elizabeth's courtiers. These bags were mainly for scenting linen, but others were 'to cause one to sleep,' for use 'against venome and the Plague, and for other uses.'"

Intent upon what she was saying, I had almost forgotten to watch what Mrs. Rowley was doing. Having filled a nasal spray with oil, she was spraying the mixture in the bowl. "Some prefer the pure flower fragrance, but that's a matter of taste. As heavy oils are sometimes oppressive, I do not use them for gift potpourri. But one of the most fascinating pastimes I know is to play the perfumer, trying a drop of this and one of that, on bits of blotter until the perfect mixture is achieved. Then the next year, I do it all over again as my tastes change."

As Mrs. Rowley poured the finished potpourri into tall glass jars to season for the next six weeks, I copied one of her recommended recipes: "1 quart rosebuds, 2 quarts rose petals, 1 pint rose geranium leaves, 1 pint lemon verbena leaves, 6 tablespoons sachet (with sandalwood base), 5 tablespoons gum benzoin, 5 tablespoons orris powder, one-half cup calamus root, 1 cup fruit skins (dried), one-half cup vetiver root, a few tonka beans, 6 tablespoons coriander seeds, 1 tablespoon imitation bergamot oil, and/or 1 tablespoon rose compound oil."

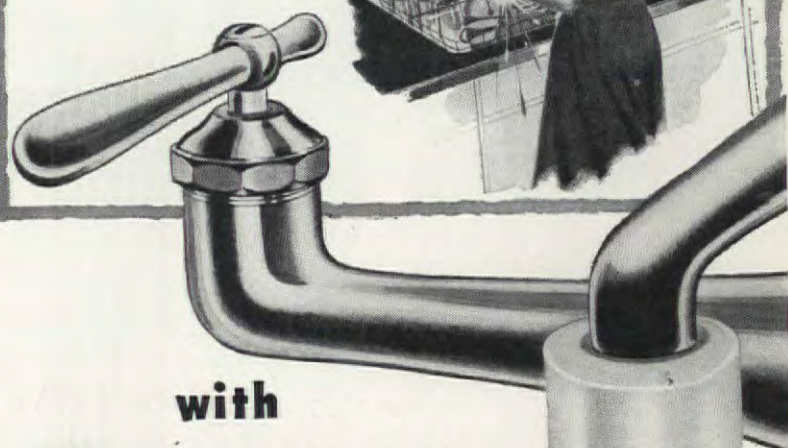

"And that takes care of next year," I said. "But, what about this year?"—and I cast a meaningful glance at the tall glass jars.

"Wait until Christmas," was all Mrs. Rowley would say. And with that, and one last, long, delicious sniff, I had to be content.

Basic ingredients: tiny rosebuds and petals of, preferably, old-fashioned, fragrant roses

Capture Fragrance

English often dry them outdoors; I find they retain more fragrance and color if dried indoors—here in the dining room, in fact, for in summer we eat on the porch; the sweet scent lingers in the room. I rarely pass by without stopping to enjoy the lovely colors and sift the cool petals through my fingers. Nothing else in the world has the texture of a rose petal... Finally, when perfectly dry, they are stored away in covered boxes or jars until mixing day.

"Roses are, of course, the major part of the potpourri, but many other flowers can be dried in the same way to add their bit of scent and color. It's fun to try different ones each year and see what happens. I found this summer that buddleia stays a beautiful color and retains its odor, but Vitex does not. Nor does mignonette (much to my surprise, for it is called for in most old recipes), or bergamot, though the red color of the latter is good. Honeysuckle is good, both color- and scent-wise, but it takes a long time to gather enough. Herbs are good—ambrosia, marjoram, rosemary, bay, thyme, sweet woodruff (with its fresh hay smell), and all the basil, but especially the large-leaved purple. Artemesia must not be gathered until after the first frost; and be careful with the mints which are rather strong, and lavender which is even stronger. Next year I am going to try sweet violets and more shrubs."

Meanwhile she had been mixing in with the roses the herbs, gum benzoin, and orris powder; also a sandalwood sachet. "Other woods are aromatic, too," she remarked, "such as cedar and rosewood. They not only add their own scent, but absorb and retain other fragrances. So if you want to expand your potpourri, add sawdust or tiny chips of such woods. Or make a new kind, by impregnating such chips with various flower oils."

Next, she poured the dried fruit skins into the coffee mill, along with the pickling spices, tonka beans, coriander seeds, vetiver, and calamus root. This last can be bought, or dug in boggy places where it grows, scraped, sliced, and dried like fruit peel. "Calamus is an ingredient of one of the oldest perfume formulas in existence," remarked Mrs. Rowley, as she ground away, "a holy anointing-oil mixture, referred to in the Bible. Even then, 'the savour of sweet odors' was desired by man and God for religious and other purposes. Jesus cleansed the leper with oil of spikenard, and in Proverbs we find, 'I have perfumed my bed with myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon.' And the Wise Men bore frankincense and myrrh."

"Aromatics have been an integral part of most religions. The Greeks believed that the 'recipe for health is to apply sweet scents to the brain,'

Arranged— to cut costs

Marigolds. Green vase, brass wire base, Wilmer James

Asters. Coral Se pitcher. Calpott

Gaillardia. Silver water goblet. Wallace Silversmith

Liatris. Blue and green ceramic basket. Hedi Schoop

Photographs by F. M. Demarest

Whether your garden is North, South, East, or West, at some time one or all of these flowers may be yours to cut. And to suggest a few of their indoor uses, we have arranged marigolds and liatris for a buffet supper, asters for a breakfast nook, and a goblet of gaillardia for a coffee, tea, or bridge refreshment table.

When cutting your own flowers, always use sharp shears or pruners if you wish blossoms to remain crisply fresh. Plants are injured by pulling, tearing, or blunt cutting by dull scissors. It is best to gather your flowers in early morning or late afternoon, then to soak them up to their chins for a few hours to fill stems with water. To prevent rotting, remove decayed, frayed or shabby leaves plus any underwater foliage. To prevent wilting, avoid leaving flowers out of water too long or placing arrangements in strong sun or chilly drafts. Flowers will also last longer if holders and containers are treated kindly and are cleansed and sterilized.

Hardwood Floors (Begins on page 100)

the wood dowels used to fasten the planks down in colonial days. The "dots" may be oak or a contrasting color such as walnut to emphasize their presence and add interest to the floor. Sometimes spikes or boat nails are used instead of screws, and the heads are left exposed, creating a certain salty or nautical atmosphere.

Pattern or parquet floors have been in fine homes since the 14th century. All types of woods have been used individually or combined to provide intricate and interesting effects. Today it is more or less standardized in squares, rectangles and herringbone designs, but the more elaborate patterns can still be had and will be seen in more expensive, formal homes.

Block flooring, in squares and rectangles, is related to pattern or parquet. While parquet is laid in individual pieces, block flooring is laid in units which are assembled at the factory. Blocks are available in a number of square and rectangular sizes and thicknesses.

The principal manufacturers of oak flooring have formed the National Oak Flooring Manufacturers Association to promote uniform high standards of quality and sizes. The rules adopted by this organization have been approved by the Bureau of Standards of the U. S. Department of Commerce. Similar rules have been formulated by the Maple Flooring Manufacturers Association for the producers of maple, beech and birch flooring. Other associations have designed official grading rules for the makers of other wood floorings.

Oak flooring grades are based principally on appearance. The poorest grade is adequately strong, and wear-resistant, so these factors aren't susceptible to any great degree of variation. Thus the grading rules deal chiefly with such appearance imperfections as too many short pieces, knots, streaks, worm holes, sapwood, and imperfections in processing.

For quarter-sawed oak there are three grades: clear (first); sap-clear (second); and select (third). The four grades for plain-sawed oak are: clear (first); select (second); No. 1, No. 2 common (third and fourth).

The clear and sap-clear grades require 80% of the lengths to be 4 feet or more, a minimum length of 2 feet and an average length of 5 feet. In clear oak the amount of sapwood is limited, otherwise color is disregarded. No other imperfections are permitted.

In the select grade the minimum length is 2 feet, and the average length is at least 4 feet. Pin worm holes, streaks, slight imperfections in processing, or small tight knots, not to exceed one to every 3 feet of length, are permitted.

No. 1 common permits minimum lengths of 2 feet. No. 2 common permits 1½ foot lengths. Otherwise common grades are similar, have average length requirement, and permit many defects as long as the stalled floor is serviceable and so.

Red and white oak are ordinarily separated and so mentioned in laying, but this doesn't affect the grading. There is little, if any, difference between these two oaks in utility quality. Both are light in color, white oak being a bit more uniform shade. Close inspection will, however, show that white oak has a brown tinge in the darker pieces, while red oak dark pieces have a pinkish cast.

Some flooring mills make block and strip material with the factory finish already applied. Factory-finished flooring comes in standard thicknesses and sizes. The edges of strips or blocks are beveled slightly to overcome the very small irregularity in thickness that may exist. The manufacturer usually has his own name for each combination of wood grade and type of finish, rather than the grade names of the N.O.F.M.A. rule.

Factory-finished flooring can be laid the last thing in a new house and thus reduce the danger of staining and damage. Flooring is often laid in bad shape when it has been underfoot while workmen are still around, tramping dirt into the wood as they take care of painting, patching and last minute details.

Where a new floor is to be installed in an old home, factory-finished flooring is especially desirable. Furniture can be pushed to one side of the room and the floor laid in the exposed area. Then the furniture is shifted on the newly laid floor, and the rest of the room completed. There is no mess other than sweeping up the cuttings and sawdust, a minor item. The need for a place to store the furniture while the floor is being laid is scraped and finished is eliminated and there is no delay in getting the room back into service.

When there is no wood underfoot or base into which nails can be driven, block or parquet flooring can be laid in a bituminous asphalt mastic. This is excellent in basement homes that have concrete floor slabs and in fireproof concrete buildings. It is necessary to insure that dampness from beneath the slab is excluded by a waterproofing membrane or other damp-proofing treatment. And there must be provision for expansion of the floor beneath the trim in severe damp weather.

As you can now see, "hardwood floors" is not a definite description or specification. Under this name you may find wood from a number of different trees, used in many manner that have involved rather extensive designing to provide comfort and certain decorative and structural results.

Hardwood Floors (Begins on page 100)

These oak squares may be parquet pattern or unit blocks. Once laid it's usually difficult or impossible to tell one from the other cut ran parallel to the radial rays. The quarter-sawn oak has a great resistance to wear and expands less due to moisture than plain oak, making it also for locations where traffic is particularly severe and where dampness may be a problem.

Oak flooring has been developed in a number of styles: strip, plank, pattern or parquet, and block, either a cause or result of its popularity for home floors. Strip flooring may be 1½, 2, 2¼ or 3¼ inches wide with 2¼ inches the most common in recent years, and the 3¼-inch width gaining in popularity of late. These widths have been combined with a thickness of 25/32 inch. The two narrower widths also are made in thicknesses of ½ and ¾ inches. This strip flooring is tongued and grooved and is usually nailed along the tongue, with the nails hidden. There is also square edge flooring that must be face-nailed, which comes in a thickness of 5/16 inch and widths of 1½ and 2 inches.

Plank flooring is really an old type dating back before the machine age to Medieval Europe and Early American homes. Its charm lies in its rugged informality which is sometimes increased by rough finishing of the surface and V joints between planks which emphasize the size of the boards. Solid oak planks vary in width from 3 to 9 inches, but veneer planks are made in greater widths. The standard thickness is 25/32 inch. It is customarily nailed along the tongue and screwed down at the butts and sometimes over floor joists in the middle of the boards. The screws are countersunk and covered with inlaid "dots" which simulate nail heads.

A well-laid strip floor has the end joints staggered and scattered. Short lengths are used in closets as far as possible. In a clear, plain oak floor such as this, there will be variations in color, but no imperfections other than a few small sap spots

SIMMONS: We guaranteed you years of luxury rest with your Beautyrest. Did Beautyrest fully live up to the promise?

MRS. YATES: My Beautyrest is still as comfortable as the first day I bought it!

SIMMONS: Did Beautyrest pre-built border and no-sag edges hold up all these years?

MRS. YATES: Well, just look at my Beautyrest. Not a sag or lump anywhere!

SIMMONS: How often do you have to turn your Beautyrest?

MRS. YATES: Only occasionally. Three or four times a year at most!

SIMMONS: Would you recommend Beautyrest to your friends?

MRS. YATES: I have—often! In my opinion Beautyrest is the best mattress you can buy.

From us to you: Start your first ten years Beautyrest luxury rest soon.

What Are Hardwood Floors?

Surely you've seen them. No, not the hardwood floors, but real-estate advertisements that say a house has "hardwood floors" to establish the quality of the building. Attractiveness, easy maintenance, resistance to wear, and strength of hardwoods have made such flooring a "hallmark" of gracious living. But, do you know what variety in wood species, textures, patterns, sizes, and quality may be encountered under the label of "hardwood floors"? You should be familiar with what is available when buying, remodeling, or planning a future home.

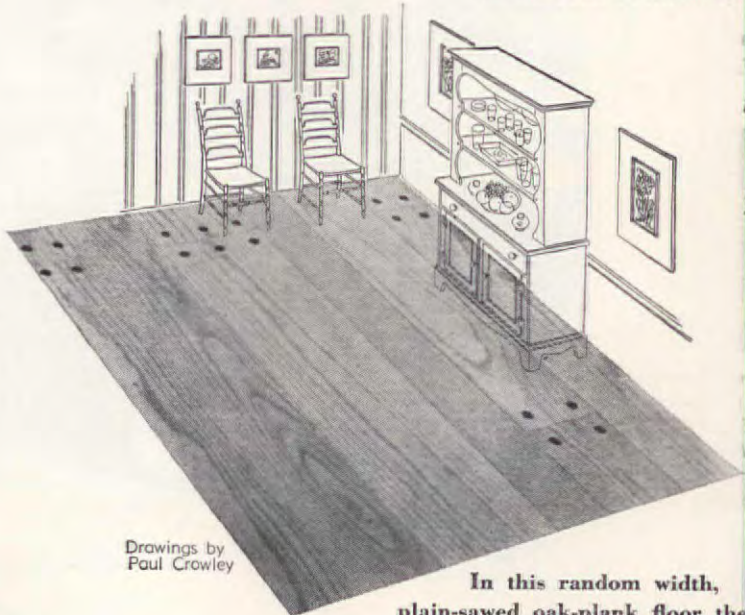

There are more than 100 different species of American hardwoods used commercially for one purpose or another. Five of these—oak, maple, beech, birch, and pecan—are commonly used for flooring. In addition, you may find examples of walnut, cherry, ash, hickory, mahogany, teak, and other native and foreign woods where certain effects were desired.

Perhaps you've wondered what woods are considered hard. The term is not an indication of actual hardness, but rather is related to the forestry classification in which, generally, hardwood trees are broad leaved, and softwood trees are needle bearers. Some hardwoods are comparatively soft, and certain softwoods are hard and long wearing.

Of the hardwoods mentioned, oak has been by far the most popular for residential use. The interesting grain, texture, natural color, ready availability, and fine serviceability of oak are probably the principal reasons for its pre-eminence.

In addition to the flat or plain-sawed oak which has the beautiful figure and texture of the annular rings, there is quarter-sawed oak that has a distinctive "flash" due to exposure of areas of the medullary rays which run radially from the center of the tree to the outside. This is produced by quartering the log and cutting it in a different manner, or by selecting boards, from the regular mill run, through which the

the room is furnished in rare and beautiful pieces of furniture and favorite accessories collected by the owners in their various jaunts about the country. An unusually fine specimen is the Chinese chest.

Mrs. Weiss's favorite iron trivets decorate the walls of the small music room, and the painted piano and colorful parrot add gaiety and charm to the scene. The bedroom, with its blue and white striped walls and flower-garden draperies, opens out to the gardens; the floors, except for the small Oriental rug, are kept bare for easy cleaning of dirt tracked in from the garden. It's just a step down from the small hall off the bedroom to the warmth of the recreation room with its vaulted roof, its brick floor, and its cheery fireplace. Here, walls are white and bright-red casement curtains of a calico print contrast nicely with the pine of the woodwork, the bookshelves, and the beamed ceiling. Here, too, is Mr. Weiss's collection of autographed baseballs and framed pictures of teams and players of past and present fame. Even the globe on the shoe cobbler's bench, turned coffee table, suggests a baseball.

This room opens out to a brick-floored terrace with gaily painted table and chairs where cool drinks are served under the shade of a colorful umbrella.

A delightful green-white-and-pink plaid wallpaper covers the walls of the upstairs guest bedroom. Mrs. Weiss is shown here painting a small merry-go-round horse in the same shades of green, white and pink to be used as a clothes hanger for her infant grandchild.

Here's a house whose inner charm is reflected in the beauty of its outer decoration. No wonder the white gate in the encircling hedge beckons to the imagination of the passer-by!

the quiet of their country retreat after the excitement of a baseball season

A way from the crowds and hurly-burly of a nation's favorite sport, Mr. and Mrs. George Weiss relax in this low, rambling house at the bend of the road. In its hillside setting of box-wood, flowering shrubs, and old trees, few people can drive by it without pausing for a minute or two to admire its beauty.

Its owners planned as carefully for outdoor decoration as they did for inner furnishings. In spring and summer, when the many French doors are open, there's an harmonious blending of both atmospheres which adds immeasurably to the beauty and livability of the house.

Ivy-bordered flagstones lead up to the front door and then on beyond the living-room wing to a hedge-enclosed garden where a lily pool mirrors the weeping willow above it. Here birds assemble for their daily sun-rising and sun-setting concerts.

The front door opens from a small vestibule into a long living room done in celadon-green with crisp white organdy curtains at the casement windows. A green carpet covers the entire floor, and
