you'll love Armstrong thick and shaggy.

We've just created a whole new line of carpet: the Lancaster Line™.

It's not just one kind of carpet. It's shaggy carpet like the one shown here (we call it "ShagnificentTM"). It's sculptured carpet, patterned carpet, plush carpet, with hundreds of glorious colors to choose from. And we've tried to make choosing a little easier. There's no confusion about fiber types or brands. Lancaster Line fibers are especially selected and labeled "Armstrong Approved."

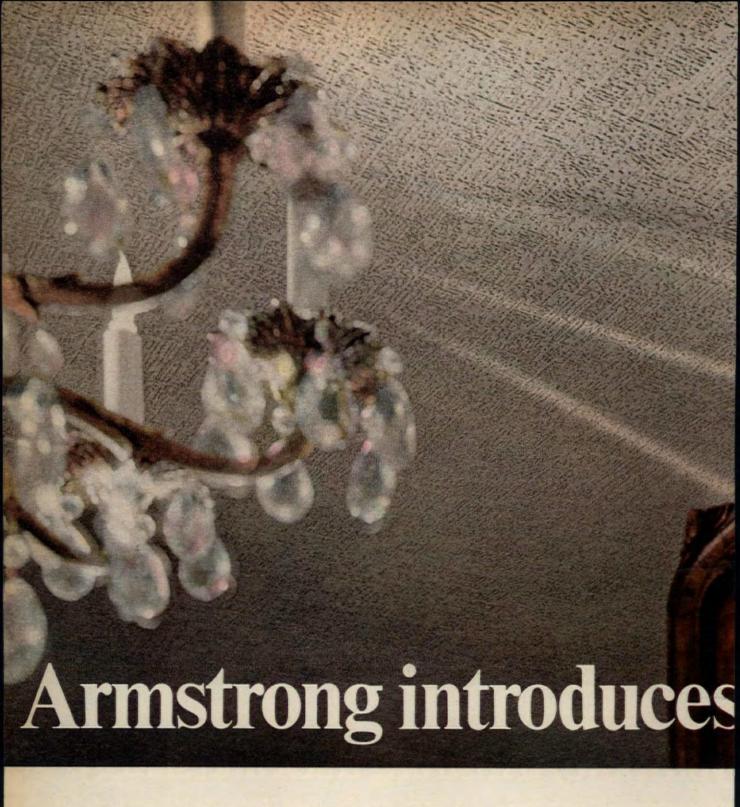

We want to be as famous for our carpet as we are for our floors. The only way to do that is to make the best carpet possible. And that's what we're doing.

See our Lancaster Line right now. Call this number toll-free for the name of the Armstrong carpet man nearest you: (800) 243-0355. In Conn., call collect: 853-3600.

THIS MONTH IN AMERICAN HOME

Mary Anne Guitar, a regular battler for the cause of conservation in our pages, points out on page 54 that there is a good cause for all of those who have feared that America is going down the drain to give thanks this Thanksgiving. The Sierra Club and the Audubon Society are no longer crying alone in the wilderness. They have been joined by armies of aroused supporters, and the achievements they have made in 1969 make this what Mary Anne calls a "turn-around year." Private citizens have been at work too-building pocket parks, preserving landmark architecture, introducing underprivileged children to the beauties of a mountain or seashore. The job is big enough for everybody, the cause worth it. Perhaps there is a neighbor or a member of your own family who is making America a more perfect place to live. If so, won't you write us and tell us about it? We plan to continue to report these projects as we go into the 70s. We predict that the decade ahead of us will be one in which Americans will rededicate themselves with vigorous pride to improving the American scene.

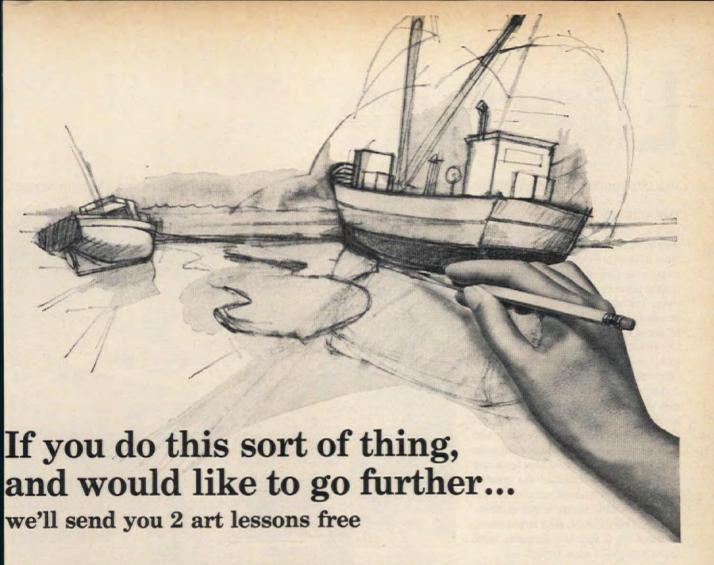

Editor Smith and Writer Evans select museum silver for next month's American Treasury.

One aspect of this pride will be a renewed admiration for the best contributions of our past. We have received an overwhelming response to our article on Shakers in September, the first of a new series we have named The American Treasury. As we go to press with our Thanksgiving issue, we are busily at work preparing the second American Treasury. Next month we will take you on a private tour of the incredible furniture and decorative objects in the American Wing of the Metropolitan Museum, Photographer Richard Meek and Contributing Writer Mary Evans, who collaborated on the Shaker essay, have been surrounded by Revere silver, Stiegel glass, Philadelphia highboys-and museum guards-night after night all month long. The glories of the American Wing will be our Christmas present to youand our birthday card to the Met which is now celebrating its 100th Anniversary. The date is actually April 13, 1970, but the Met has already started its gala Centennial. Any of you coming to New York should be sure to catch the exhibitions that will mark the year.

But we are getting ahead of ourselves-the magazine you hold is unusually festive itself. Food and drink overflow from its pagesgame birds for the Thanksgiving table, red wines to accompany them, all sorts of picnic fare for the football season and an ingenious new go-anywhere picnic kit designed to reorient the disorientation of all the weekends from now till February when football takes over the man of the house-and sometimes the house itself.

Let us prove that you can become a good artist, at home and in your spare time.

Mail the coupon and we'll send you our helpful booklet, Art for Pleasure and Profit. We'll also send you two valuable art lessons free.

We make this offer to demonstrate how easily you can develop professional skill in drawing and painting . . . through the Washington School of Art, America's oldest home-study art school.

As a WSA student, you learn from lessons prepared by 11 master artists, including internationally famous Prof. Otto Dix, the German Expressionist, and Mario Cooper, N.A., President of the American Watercolor Society, who share with you the skills and know-how they use themselves

Your course covers all these branches of art: oil and watercolor painting, advertising art and layout, illustrating, cartooning, fashion illustration, figure drawing, fine art, television art.

You get individual appraisals of your work from highly qualified instructors who treat you as a class of one. Their personal encouragement and corrections on transparent overlays, show exactly where you went wrong and how to improve your art.

As your skill increases, you can start to earn money-full- or part-time-by exhibiting your paintings or in one of the exciting and profitable fields of commercial art. There are 370,000 American firms who buy such art: advertising agencies, commercial art studios, corporations department stores, newspapers, magazines, TV graphics departments. Most employ full-time artists at jobs that pay $150, $300, or more a week. Most of them also buy artwork from freelance artists who work at home.

Hundreds of WSA students and graduates are now earning money with their artwork. Richard White of Zelienople, Pa., was promoted from the welding department to the art department in his company. Alicia Jane Bailey of Miami Beach, Fla., opened her own art and decorating shop with some friends. Mrs. Wallace T. Ahlborn of Munising, Mich., reports she has sold over $2000 worth of paintings in just two summers alone. Ben Blackson of Pittsburgh, Pa., is now a successful muralist, and has sold his work to General Electric. And there are many other success

If you really want to expand your horizons. and if you'd enjoy the sense of fulfillment that comes from earning an extra income at work you love to do . . . mail the coupon today.

In a Lifestylist's world everything goes-from battling food prices to charting stars and shoeing horses.

THE COST OF FOOD is what everybody's talking about and in Detroit they're doing something about it. The Near East Side Buyer's Club was started to provide food at lower prices to Detroit's inner-city poor after the city's riots. Without access to chain stores, people were forced to pay as much as 75 cents for a loaf of bread. Now the Buyer's Club, a cooperative buying service, takes orders for fruits and vegetables, collects the money (at $1 a bag), and at five a.m. each Wednesday morning club shoppers take the order money and go directly to the wholesalers at the East Market. They buy vegetables and fruit by the case and the sack. Then the food is divided into individual bags; the $1 vegetable bag a family has ordered may contain 4 pounds of potatoes, 2 pounds of string beans, a pound of tomatoes, 5 ears of corn and 2 large onions, or more on a day the shoppers have found especially good buys.

On a smaller scale, retired Detroit schoolteacher Lilliam Reinke performs the same kind of service for five families who are short on time and money. Mrs. Reinke, who does have time, uses it to search the stores for specials and bargains. She takes only what is a good buy in a store then moves on to another, instead of cancelling out the money saved on a special by paving regular or higher prices for other items on her list. This is precisely the kind of shopping one of her friends, a working mother of four, does not have time to do. Too many cooks may spoil the broth, but buying the ingredients is another story. The more cooperation here the better.

Onea.

HOW DO YOU ENTERTAIN when your husband and four children must be in bed early? Start early, of course. Jeannie Thomas, wife of New York Giants' receiver and flanker-back Aaron Thomas, invites guests for six or so. She serves them shish kebab done on a hibachi outdoors, with an easy meringue-like pie made with soda crackers. After dinner Aaron does card tricks and everyone talks football and eats popcorn -all activities okayed by Jeannie for the kids and Coach Alex Webster for their dad.

IF YOU'VE GOT A COLD WAR, you want an ice-breaker, right? Right, says National Distillery's Munson Shaw Company, which is now importing a new Russian vodka and sending Old Grand-Dad bourbon to Russia. It may take both countries a while to adjust-Russian vodka has a distinct taste all its own and Americans may have to work out the problem of just what mixes go with it. The Russians' problem, of course, is the lack of branch water.

"Electric heat costs us a few pennies extra a day, and it's well worth it. When you add the time and money we save on cleaning... well, electric heat actually works out to be a bargain."

"Electric heat runs us just about the same as our old system . . . almost to the dollar. But that's not all we like about it. It's clean, gentle heat . . . we never have cold spots or hot blasts."

Let PPG Glass give you an open house.

The dark ages are over. Today, people are moving out of their closed-up boxes into houses that let the sunshine in. They're becoming enlightened. People no longer think that a man's home should really be his castle—dark, enclosed, and dreary. Castles are out now—spacious living is in, with glass.

Glass opens your home and brings in the outdoor world. Everything becomes wide open, and spacious. Sliding glass doors open on private enclosed courts off the bedroom. A glass wall frames a landscape in the living room. And today's new glass insulates to make a house comfortable in any kind of weather. Fuel bills are reduced, too.

Here on these pages are a few of

A wall of glass adds drama. With a breathtaking view such as this, there's no other choice than glass. Glass can frame a living picture in any room of your house. And PPG Herculite® K makes the biggest view practical. This tempered safety glass takes terrific impact. And if it ever breaks—it won't shatter into large dangerous pieces. It crumbles into small fragments. Wherever you live, open up your home with Herculite K.

Windows let in the sunlight. Bay windows are as warm and charming as ever. But one thing about them has changed. Now they're made with PPG Twindow® insulating glass Twindow is two panes of glass with a slice of dry air sealed in between. It stops the flow of heat towards cold and does away with storm windows forever Keeps your home comfortable and cuts fuel bills, too. And that's pretty warm and charming.

A mirror doubles a dining room.

Mirrored doors in a split-level cupboard add beauty and utility to this formal dining area. It's a decorating trick worth looking into if you want your home to live up to its full potential. PPG High-Fidelity® mirrors give an accurate image of what your home is really like, and add glamour to a dull wall when used in hallways, bedrooms, living rooms, or even kitchens.

Sliding doors feature safety. Here, glass patio doors bring the outside into a family room. And the family will be safe if the doors are PPG Herculite K. Sliding glass doors open a house anywhere they're used. For open patios, private enclosed courts, expansive screen porches, or pools. This use of glass makes staying home a lot more enjoyable.

THE ART OF FARRIERY may not be lost, but it isn't easily found either. There are only three schools in the country where the shoeing of horses is still taught and one of them is the Martinsville School of Farriery in Martinsville, Virginia where Mr. L. C. "Smokey" Ward, the founder, teaches two courses a year. A three-month course, open to men or women, costs $1500. This fee covers tuition, textbook and practical experience, and room and board if the student wishes. You learn everything from "how to approach the horse without injury to either the animal or the farrier" to "a complete knowledge of equine foot anatomy." Son of a blacksmith and wheelright, Mr. Ward wants to pass on his father's and his knowledge for the sake of the horse. He'd like to "put an end to some of the crude work of amateurs who are taking advantage of the shortage of trained farriers." Mr. Ward's school is GI-approved and licensed by the State of Virginia. The diploma it issues, he says, will assure the new farrier a profession with unlimited opportunity. This is doubtless trueand it will mean a profession of less limited opportunity for a lot of horses, too.

ASTROFLASH HAS MADE IT to New York from Paris and a great success it is, too. Astroflash is the astrological computer which was introduced to America in the concourse of New York City's Grand Central Station. It casts horoscopes in a matter of minutes. You simply provide Astroflash with the place, date and hour of your birth and it provides you with eight to fifteen pages of information (from $3.50 to $5). More than 800 people are asking it to do so every day. Pretty Stephanie Michaeloff, 21year-old hostess at the Grand Central installation, was not an astrology buff when she took the job, but after huddling with Astroflash, she has become one. Now she knows that the things that have perplexed her were due to her spontaneous Aries traits juxtaposed with her more submissive Cancer characteristics, and she feels much better about everything. You don't have to believe in the stars, says Stephanie, but you should keep an open mind. People who say astrology is unscientific must admit that with this new Astroflash, enthusiasts are at least being scientifically unscientific.

AN AVID WILD TURKEY HUNTER.

David Cochrane of Tuscaloosa, Ala. is very successful at his hobby and, consequently, Mrs. Cochrane always has a freezer full of the birds. Because the wild turkey runs around a lot, it has long, strong and tough legs and the catch in cooking it is the legs. Mrs. Cochrane's advise is to start cooking the bird standing up on top of the range (the bird, not the cook). Take a deep, 8- to 10quart lard bucket, stand the turkey in it and fill until water just covers the legs, then parboil. When they are reasonably tender, you roast the bird breast down (all the fat is in the back) and turn it breast up for the last 1/2 hour to brown, covering the legs in foil because by this time they are hopefully too tender for 30 minutes more of full heat. While the turkey is breast down, baste with salt, pepper and bacon grease; when the turkey is breast up, baste with a sauce of boiled giblets, neck, onion. This isn't the way the pilgrims did it, but they should have.

THE BASKET SOCIAL is alive and well in California where it has evolved into the Gourmet Auction, a party for which each woman prepares a true gourmet dinner for two, complete with appropriate wine. As in the old days, the men still bid for the baskets of their choice, with no assurance that the girls of their choice will have put them up and thus turn out to be their dinner partners. To raise money for the Children's Hospital, Hillsborough hostess Mrs. Owen Spann invited ten couples (black tie and hostess pajamas required) and the ladies put up "baskets" with such goodies as poached salmon garni, roast stuffed cornish hen and cold Chateaubriand. The gentlemen bid for all this with genuine enthusiasm. One of them was so enthusiastic about a bottle of Bordeaux alone that he went straight to the $25 limit.

Ten best answers to the most-often asked questions

How do I find the best STYLE for me?

Have your hair stylist show you the hairdo possibilities for your face shape—or experiment in front of your mirror. But always keep in mind how you want to look. Naturally, you want a contemporary look but one that fits your individual style, and not just the latest coiffeur creation. Whatever works with the shape of your face, your height and your lifestyle is the hairdo for you. If you and the latest hair fashion coincide, fine and dandy. But if not, make the necessary modification in the style and keep your look.

Where can I get a good CUT?

A good haircut is crucial so shop around for a hair stylist carefully. Get recommendations from friends. Investigate the salon in your local department store; large department stores in major cities usually have well-trained stylists. Generally, the reputation of a salon is a good guide. However, even in the same salon some stylists are better than others. When making an appointment, request one with the stylist who specializes in haircuts. A cut and styling by a top man can cost $25 or more, but it's worth it. Distrust the salon that offers to "squeeze you in" for a cut when you call them; a quality haircut simply cannot be fast.

What's the best way to COLOR my hair?

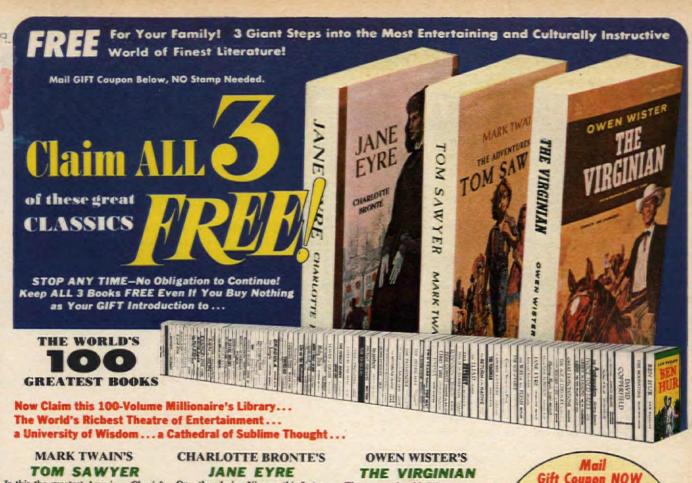

For a major color change or for problem hair a good professional colorist is advisable. However, the many home products available make hair coloring at home easy. The most important thing about hair color is naturalness. A hair color succeeds if it looks as though it could have grown on your head. You should not pick a shade for yourself because you liked it on the sample card or on someone else. What counts is how it looks with your skin tones. Because natural hair is never one solid shade but a blend of several, top colorists are putting more and more emphasis on tone-on-tone coloring. This is a matter of blending two or three shades of the same color so that the palest shades reflect light just as they do on lovely virgin hair.

Can I be a little bit BLONDE?

Yes. You can have the effect of blondeness around the face without an overall color job with frosting, tipping or streaking. You can do it at home or have it done in the salon. Frosting, tipping or streaking look best on hair that is medium brown, muddy blonde or graying. Streaked black hair tends to make you look hard. If your hair is dark and you still want the blonde touch, you or your colorist can first lighten your hair color a little before streaking, frosting, or tipping it. Revlon's Frost and Glow is one of the latest products among the home kits

Why doesn't my hair SHINE?

First: Are you sure you're rinsing your hair thoroughly? Some experts claim that most women don't rinse as much as they should. However, even after a normal rinse, shampoo residue may remain. Cold water will rinse shampoo out and make hair shine, as do the many after-shampoo rinses. Sometimes changing your shampoo helps. Naturally using the right shampoo for your hair type is important. You should wash your hair as often as you feel is necessary.

How can I CONTROL my flyaway hair?

Setting gels or lotions and hard-to-hold sprays help, but the real solution is to add body to your hair. You can do this with a product like Clairol's Great Body—designed to add body—or with a salon or home body permanent. A new salon treatment called Bodi-Endure requires no winding on rods, goes on much like a shampoo, and adds substance and texture which last up to six weeks. It has a bonus effect in reducing snarls, the plague of baby-fine hair.

How can I style with a HAND-DRYER?

This professional salon technique is being used by more and more hair-wise women at home. With a brush in one hand and the electric hand dryer (also called hand blower) in the other, you brush a lock of your wet hair in the shape and direction you want. The jet of warm air from the blower both dries and sets the lock. Blowing air into and under the hair also adds some fullness and gives shape.

How do I use an ELECTRIC COMB?

The electric comb works very much like the hand dryer. Some combs come with different attachments. Use a wide-tined comb to create all-over shape, a narrow-tined comb to style the details, a brush to provide bulk and fullness. Remington's new Hairdresser comes with a set of two combs and a brush to be used interchangeably in the wand handle that provides the warm air. There are also four rollers and clips included. The complete set costs $20.

How can I restore HEALTH to my hair?

Stop doing whatever you did to bring it to such a dismal state. And, begin a careful conditioning program to revitalize your hair. Don't over-bleach, over-tint, over-permanent, over-expose hair to sun and water. Sitting too long under dryers, rolling hair too tightly and teasing to an extreme all spell hair in trouble. A series of scalp and hair treatments at a good salon helps a great deal, but you can accomplish a lot at home too, by following a faithful program of protein conditioners (by Wella or Pantene, for instance) and a policy of treating your hair more gently.

How often should I BRUSH?

You don't have to do the sacred "100 strokes daily," but brushing is a good way to stimulate the flow of natural oil from a normal or dry scalp. It is also a good supplementary way to clean hair. Brushing does the most good if you bend over and let blood flow to your scalp. END

If this is how you start...this is how to finish.

You bought a piece of furniture that's bare raw wood. Now what do you do?

Finish it? But isn't that a lot of trouble?

And what'll you do about cleaning up those ugly brushes?

The answers are yes, no, and nothing.

Because Weldwood® has

Because Weldwood® has all the answers when it comes to staining and finishing.

To make everything easier, we put everything for you into one kit. The Weldwood Stain 'n Finish Kit. The stain is Foam-n-

GOLDEN BOOKS
For the magic of childhood...

Golden Press, A Division of Western Publishing Co., Inc.,
Great Neck, New York 11021

Sinuous swirls and floral forms are back. Art Nouveau has crept into today's graphics craze with all the aplomb of a good thing that knows no time limit. The decorative-arts movement that flourished from around 1890 to 1920 has inspired anew patterns of natural forms with that asymmetric, haunting quality of design. Its bold patterns, very distinct outlines and bright colors fit in so beautifully with contemporary furnishings.

Many antique collectors are charmed by original art-glass creations, but are turned off by their prices. If you like the look but not the cost, you will be interested in Art Nouveau pottery. Easy to find, easy to afford, individual ceramic vases were made with the same painstaking care as art-glass pieces. However, the long and popular history of art glass and distinguished studios such as Tiffany's have largely obscured the equally artistic ceramic movement. The latter sprang up in studios throughout the United States at the turn of the century and has been energized by many inventive, creative artist-potters in the decades since.

Many of the principal personalities in American pottery were women. Historically, men tended to monopolize artistic fields, but in the 19th century women began to actively participate in the ancient craft of making decorative, ornamental vessels rather than the strictly utilitarian bowls used only for housekeeping needs.

Victorian women discovered pottery through porcelain decoration. During the late 1800s feminine hands made idle by the industrial revolution sought diversion in needlework, wig-making and hand-painting china. Soon the painting of factory-produced china became the fashionable thing to do among the socially elite. American women took their handcraft a step further. Whereas European women never went beyond painting porcelain, American women became ceramists who designed their own pottery and established studios.

In 1875, Benn Pittman organized a class in china painting for idle gentle-women whose ceramic wares were displayed to considerable acclaim at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition in 1876. One talented woman in the class, M. Louise McLaughlin, was a ceramist as well as a china painter. She developed Losanti ware, a hard porcelain with a glasslike quality. In 1879 she organized the Pottery Club of Cincinnati. All 15 of the charter members were women. (continued)

Who'd ever think of planning a bedroom around a 150 year old quilt?

This happy girl for one. Ethan Allen for another.

The woman who brought her greatgreat grandmother's quilt to our Ethan Allen gallery thought we might scoff at her idea. She wanted to redecorate her bedroom, using the quilt—with its exquisite colors—to set an overall mood of "heirloom" charm.

We thought it was a splendid idea, and set about planning with her this beautiful room.

To begin, we suggested the simplicity of American Traditional furniture in mellow, antiqued pine. Timeless and authentic, pine evokes a nostalgic mood that complements—never detracts from—the beauty of the quilt.

Notice the accessories, used for muted effects only. And how we created broad areas of color...grand reflections of those in the quilt.

Have an heirloom you'd like to feature in a room? A cherished painting or china piece? If so, come talk to us at our Ethan Allen gallery. We're not just furniture salesmen... but skilled home planners... anxious to help.

We have over 2,000 beautiful American Traditional designs to help with. All open stock. All "in style" forever.

You'll find them all pictured in color in complete room settings, along with many important do's and don'ts on decorating, in our new 9" x 12", 358-page Ethan Allen Treasury. You'll also see our many lamps and accessories. For your free copy, stop by your nearest Ethan Allen gallery.

A year later, a Pottery Club member and prominent socialite, Mrs. Maria Longworth Nichols, founded her own pottery line and named it for her family estate, Rookwood. Through a succession of directors, potters and decorators, Rookwood produced a distinctive style of highly individualistic and artistic ware. The Rookwood you find in antique shops will almost always be vases, since other pieces were seldom made. They were thrown on a potter's wheel and fashioned into simple shapes strongly suggestive of Oriental ware.

It was in the decoration that Rook-wood distinguished itself. Much of Rookwood design was inspired by Art Nouveau. The basic technique was always the underglaze method taught at the Pottery Club by Miss McLaughlin. The wet clay pieces were covered with colors mixed with clay and water (slip) so that the colors became part of the very substance of the piece. Simple bas-relief modeling was often used. On most Rookwood vases, the surface modeling and coloring expertly enhance the clay's basic shape.

The creative process of trial and error resulted in several new directions in ceramics during its formative stages. An example in the Rookwood school is tigereye, a glaze whose translucent masses seem to have trapped flecks of gold. This became so popular and admired that French, German and Danish potters later learned to imitate the effect. Still later, Rookwood introduced a mat finish to appeal to touch as well as the eye.

Each Rookwood piece, a unique creation by one artist-potter, is marked on its base with the decorator's monogram, date and studio mark. Early ware is incised or painted with "Rookwood Pottery." A few are marked "Rooks," others have the letters RPCOMLN stamped on, which stand for Rookwood Pottery, Cincinnati, Ohio, Maria Longworth Nichols.

The Rookwood mark you will find most often is a reversed R back to back with a P which came into use around 1886. A year later a flame was added for each year until 1900. After that, Roman numerals were placed below the mark and its halo of 14 flames to denote the 20th century year. Pieces are often lettered for size and color or numbered for shape and signed by the decorator with his initials. If you find a Rookwood vase with the monogram AVB, you have a piece by Artus Van Briggle, the finest potter of the Art Nouveau era.

In 1895 Sophie Newcomb College, the woman's division of Tulane University, decided to take advantage of the pottery popularity and adopted the unorthodox policy of establishing a retail outlet for its art pottery students. The venture was a success, and it spurred Newcomb to become another outstanding center for fine ceramic ware. Its decorators used only the motifs of the Bayou country, employing a distinctive style of incised outlining.

Early Newcomb naturally resembles Rookwood. Mary G. Sheerer, Newcomb's director, knew many Rookwood decorators and was familiar with their slip-painting technique. However, she was also one of the innovative forces in the field whose influence in American art-pottery distinguished it radically from European styles. Newcomb decorators scratched their designs on the partly dried clay with flattened sixpenny nails held in penholders. Occasionally, they scraped away background clay. Each piece was then sponged, to bring out a fine sand to the surface, forming a satin finish. Color applied to this surface had a distinctive cast-Newcomb was known for its hazy and streaky blues and greens-colors that were favorites on the Art Nouveau palette, whatever the art form.

You can identify Newcomb easily by its mark—an N surrounded by a C. All Newcomb pottery bears the college's monogram and decorator's initials. If you are fortunate enough to find a vase with a paper label proclaiming "Designs are not duplicated," leave it on. That bit of paper adds to the value of your piece. In addition, an important member of the Newcomb group was the man at the potter's wheel, Joseph F. Meyer. The JM you find on the base of Newcomb pieces is the monogram of this masterful potter who threw the vases that Miss Sheerer sketched and the college girls decorated.

Early Newcomb is glossy and has a glazed underside with hand-incised ciphers filled with color. On later Newcomb pieces, the undersides are not glazed and the ciphers are uncolored. These later pieces have Newcomb's mat-glaze finish.

The mat-glaze craze, which by 1910 had revolutionized the ware at Rookwood, Newcomb and other pottery studios, was begun by a Boston potter, William H. Grueby. His yellow or purple-blue pieces, with low-relief decoration, and a satin-smooth, lusterless finish were widely copied. Part of Grueby's trade was making the lamps that Tiffany's studio sold with its own glass shades.

Grueby lamps and Tiffany shades went well together because art-glass and art-pottery have so much in common. Both were inspired by floral forms and both evolved the special effects in color, finish and design that make them diversely popular today. Also, both represented individual creativity in an era that spawned mass production. However, while art-glass today has soared to rare heights in both price and availability, art-pottery maintains the same expertise in unrecognized corners of the craft world.

finish. It takes an opaque coating to get a white floor. What you can get with transparent coatings are attractive offwhite tones. If your floor is too dark, you may want to bleach it.

Bleaching involves the application of two solutions. The first solution is applied freely and allowed to stand for five to 15 minutes before being wiped off. The second solution is then applied and allowed to stand four hours or overnight. On old wood you may have to scrub in solution A with a 3/0 fine steel wool. Repeat bleaching if required. Sand floors. When you use a bleach, protect skin, eyes, and clothing.

After bleaching, for a white effect, thin a flat-white paint, apply, wipe away when desired depth of color is achieved. Then apply one, preferably two or three, clear protective finishing coats. For a pastel effect, the flat white paint may be tinted.

For the finish coat polyurethane is the "in" varnish. It is far more durable than many traditional varnishes and is available in both high gloss and satin. For average home use, the satin type is preferred. However, gloss polyurethane is more durable. If you're putting on two coats, it's best to make the first one gloss and the second satin. The last coat is what determines the degree of gloss Never allow more than 48 hours between coats, or there may be adhesion -David X. Manners problems.

bare or stockinged feet cling to them exactly the same way they cling to those wooden clogs and exercise sandals that everyone is wearing.

To go with American traditional. The Ethan Allen label, long associated with American traditional furniture, can now also be found on the backs of Oriental design rugs. About 100 Ethan Allen retail stores will carry the rugs. They have an all-wool face and come in a variety of designs such as Heriz, Bokhara, Kerman Sarouk, Kerman Savonnerie and Chinese. Our favorite, for its patchwork look, is a Boktiari in antique red. The rugs are offered in a variety of room sizes from 4 by 6 up to 9 by 14 feet and will retail from $269 to $429 for the 9 by 12 size. The firm plans to expand its floor coverings package to include braided and hooked rugs plus wall-to-wall carpeting.

It doesn't have to be brown—wood, that is. Seen at the New York Gift Show: colorful wood serving pieces done in the brightest of primaries with just a suggestion of grain showing through. Stained wood is also making a strong showing in occasional furniture.

Coming up purple. Purple, this fall's fashion color par excellence, is equally important in home furnishing. (See it in action on page 69.) Purple, let's face it, isn't an easy color to use. It can look gloomy or gaudy except in the proper context. For a flowery fresh room we'd like to see a mix of purple with lots of white and dabs of bright leaf green. Combined with neutrals or with a black and white scheme, it is marvelously contemporary.

We noticed lots of purple while leafing through the fabric racks in the Boussac of France, Inc. showroom. (Sorry, it's Decorators Only—but what the interior designers do does eventually influence the whole home furnishings picture.) A plummy red-purple makes a romantic background for several prints while mauve, with other pastels, looks beautifully Edwardian in a full-blown flower pattern. At the New York Gift Show, purple showed up timidly: in clear glass jars filled with cones of purple incense or in purple plastic combs. Incense, incidentally, was a big thing at the show. While we're all for houses that smell pretty, a lot of incense, especially the cheaper kind, doesn't. Sniff before you buy.

Three cheers for Sears. As part of its successful imagechanging process, the Chicago-based mail-order house has introduced a total environment designed by Lawrence Peabody (see page 71). The loosely coordinated home furnishings package gathers everything from furniture to decorative accessories under the umbrella "Many Moods of Contemporary." Furniture is usable, middle-of-the-road contemporary-neither too modern nor too ornately traditional. Some upholstered pieces, for instance, a fat, tufted Chesterfield sofa, give it style. The real excitement, though, lies in the fabrics, floor coverings and accessories. Design inspiration here is international. Ceramic lamps and pottery pieces all have strong Italian modern shapes and come in basic colors-black, white, royal blue, orange and sharp pea green—that are repeated throughout the group. Fabric patterns to be sold by the yard or as ready-made are especially lively. In the group are a Haitian fruit print, a stylized tulip and two geometrics that are at once young and sophisticated. Rugs and carpeting are imaginative, too, with a printed shag, woven and tufted designs, some of them repeated in towels and bathroom accessories. The collection had its premier showing in a series of three room settings by some young members of Sears interior design END department.

Why did the Dave Brubecks, who could afford the world's most expensive dryer, want a Kenmore from Sears?

Pianist-composer Dave Brubeck lives in a huge Japanese-style house in Wilton, Connecticut, with 5 pianos and 6 children.

Mrs. Brubeck runs this big musical household without any help except for a cleaning lady one day a week.

"With 6 children, I needed the best dryer there is," says Iola Brubeck, standing in her kitchen next to her new Lady Kenmore dryer from Sears, Roebuck and Co.

"Naturally, I try to buy everything permanent-pressed. Or I'd spend my life ironing. The great thing about our Lady Kenmore dryer is that it adjusts automatically for permanent-pressed fabrics.

"And this Sears dryer has something remarkable they call Wrinkle-Guard. It actually prevents wrinkles from setting in if you're not right there to take clothes out when the drying cycle is through. The Wrinkle-Guard automatically gives clothes a good tumble every 5 minutes for over 2 hours or until I have time to take them out.

"I know we could have paid more for a dryer, but you just can't beat the Sears Kenmore."

MAKE YOUR OWN BEADED FLOWERS

Nearly everyone loves the color and gleam of these exquisite, ever-blooming beaded flowers. They are normally very costly, but now you can make them for about a third of the cost of "store bought" flowers. Virginia Nathanson, author of Art of Making Bead Flowers and Bouquets, designed these exclusively for us and her easy instructions come with each kit. To keep your flowers shining, just dip them into sudsy, tepid water, then shake and pat dry. Field Flowers kit includes 29 flowers and the wicker basket. The Lilies-ofthe-Valley and Pansies (5 lilies and 22 pansies with 5 beautiful big leaves) can be arranged in a pretty cup, goblet or any favorite container.

PUT YOUR MONEY IN THE GROUND

Property values are going up but land may still be your best investment

In the current tight-money market, obtaining a mortgage may loom as for-midable as a blast off to Mars. But home loans are still available, particularly at the small bank or savings and loan institution where you keep an account or do business. "Banks are not as rigid as they're cracked up to be," says Curtis Hagen, one of the reigning multimillion-dollar real estate brokers and developers in northern Westchester

County, New York. In cities such as St. Louis, Dallas, Hartford and Miami, home mortgages are being granted "right along." At a price, of course. You'll pay from 7½ to 9 percent interest, probably plus a few "points" in advance. (Points in banking terminology are loan discount fees—one point equals one percent. On a $20,000 mortgage, therefore, three points come to $600.)

"I'm all for buying," Hagen says.

"If you have cash beyond a cushior it's the best hedge today."

That's hardly surprising, coming from a realty specialist. For more objective views of this special money game, we talked to economists, bankers, other for nancial experts. Smart money is reall moving toward everything from exurbat pastures to condominiums in ski country. Starting with homes, here's the current inflation-coping picture for the average middle-income family:

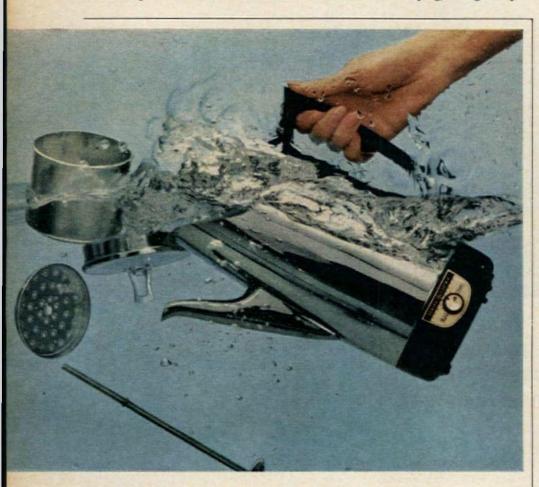

If you already own your home, in good neighborhood, it can be expected to grow in value at least as fast as, a faster than, the buying power of the dollar drops. In the past four years, the sale price of existing homes has spurted an average of 35 percent. One house New Canaan, Connecticut, purchase for $38,500 only three years ago, we sold the other day for $65,500 after the owner had put in $3000 for improvements. Such a pleasant profit, relative smaller for lower-priced dwellings, common.

Cooped up in an apartment with growing family, should you serious think of buying a home now? "Don hold off because mortgage interest rat are high," advises Allen Thomas, tre surer and mortgage officer at New Yorl Union Dime Savings Bank. Mr. Thom points out that if an additional one pocent must be paid on a $20,000 convetional mortgage for 30 years, it mea only $13.80 a month. "This will be copensated," he assures us, "by the futuincrease in the home's value."

VALUES ARE RISING

Aside from a finished home, r (undeveloped) land can turn into sound inflation hedge. Chosen wise a land purchase this year could flow the trend of the past two decad during which values appreciated average of at least 10 percent a year And demand for good land is stead mounting.

"Put your money in the ground," of grandparents used to say. True, too raw land can often be bought with I than 30 percent cash and it offers greatest chance for ultimate gain. When the buying power of savings dollars can't erode the earth. But to invest raw land you need the know-how—or expert's help—to pick a well-local region bound to be built up. It take careful probing, plus a solid hunch foresee growth trends. (continue)

Usually your investment is locked in and the land can't be sold quickly.

Buying a finished lot (with utilities, roads, water) for a future homesite, has fewer risks. In many parts of the nation, a developed lot purchased 10 years ago is worth three times as much today. The value of well-selected homesite land in California has shot up an average of about 15 percent a year. Thus, buying a lot now for a house you're thinking of building a few years later should save you money in the long run. Calls for choice homesites are expected to continue through the 70s.

Snares in buying any land lie in such overlooked problems as improper drainage, lack of water or drastic zoning changes. For instance, you could buy 2½ acres in a half-acre zoned area, allowing for five building lots. Perhaps a year later, the town rezones for two-acre minimum. Only one house can be built on your land, which may now be worth only half of what you paid. Obviously, you're least likely to go awry on "pre-developed" land where use for building sites is in the offing.

THE SECOND HOME

Land can also be bought as an investment in a projected second home or vacation retreat. More often, Americans are buying ready-built seasonal homes on a lake, in the mountains or at the shore. The shift, these days, is away from isolated weekend hideaways to vacation homes in planned resort communities within reach of major cities. "The average well-built second home at or near recreational amenities should appreciate in value between 7 and 10 percent a year," says Eugene L. Colman. the low-keyed entrepreneur of Mt. Snow's Dover Hills, Vermont, "In 1967 we sold vacation-home land for $1500 an acre. Today, we're getting an average of $7000 an acre."

Many families believe a vacation home just about pays for itself. That is, if they count what is ordinarily paid for vacations at a hotel or trips abroad, weekend jaunts, summer cottage rentals and camp for the youngsters. Moreover, there is possible income from renting the house. At Jamaica Beach on the Texas Gulf Coast, moderate-income owners have recouped their entire investment in a few years by renting for the summer. At Mt. Snow, a winter rental of four months may run as high as $3500 while the non-skiing owner enjoys the home the rest of the year.

Financing a vacation cottage is tougher than for a first home and interest rates are higher, the term shorter, more cash is called for. Many banks regard a seasonal home as a luxury. Cabins in remote areas are not considered good security risks. But local banks, especially in California and New England, are friendlier to year-round vacation homes at a complete leisure-time community, particularly where the builder or developer obtains the mortgage for the buyer. The Federal Housing Act passed last year permits FHA mortgages up to $5000 for eight years on vacation homes, but savings and loan guidelines still have not been fully worked out.

World's Fastest Way to Remove Stomach Bulge!

Designed by a leading physician to help carve inches off your waist line (without diet or weight loss) in less time than it takes you to smoke a single cigarette every day!

How? In a completely different way than you have ever dreamed possible before... as easily and logically as this:

Builds You An Invisible "Muscle-Girdle" That Automatically Holds In Your Waist-Line AT THE SAME TIME THAT IT STRENGTHENS YOUR LOWER BACK!

Quite frankly, the development of this SLIM-WHEEL is based on this simple fact: That the Number One Sign of Ageing (and the Number One Cause of the low-back pain that makes you feel, as well as look, ten years olders than your age) is the bulging, protruding, bloated-looking stomach that sets in in your twenties-and destroys your posture, your appearance, and your vitality from that moment on.

What causes this bulging stomach? Gravity! The fact that the older you grow, the more gravity pulls down your internal organs—presses them against those weak stomach muscles—draws your lower the stomach muscles—draws your lower than the pulls of line. spine forward, twisting it hopelessly out of line.

And what can you do about this bulging stomach, to pull it hard and flat again, permanently? Only one thing, of course—EXERCISE! The kind of exercise that builds you a permanent muscle-girdle clear around that vital mid-section—that coaxes those internal organs back where they should be—that straightens that terribly-vulnerable spine right up again—and then gives you the DAY-LONG HOLD-ING POWER to keep that mid-section flat and hard and firm and straight, right up until the wee hours of the morning, if you decide to go out and do the town!

Now, there are dozens of good exercises that will do this for you. But — until today — almost all of them had a "hidden handicap" that kept them from giving you the real benefits you need for your stomach!

You could, for example, jog. But jogging is mainly an exercise for your lungs and legs, and you would have to religiously use it for at least a half hour a day before it could pull in your stomach.

You could try knee bends, toe touches, and other standing exercises. But they still take ten to fifteen torturous minutes a day, and they can easily injure

Or—even better—you can try sit-ups or a slant board. Ten minutes a day will do here. But again, all your weight is focused right on that lower back —and you can be terribly hurt.

Or—now, this very next week, and entirely at our risk—you can try a completely new kind of CONDENSED exercise, in which you exercise ONLY the great holding muscles of your center stomach... in which NOT ONE OUNCE OF WEIGHT presses down on your back... and which you are ABSOLUTELY FORBIDDEN to do more than two or three easy minutes a day!

It's as simple as this-

First You Warm Up For 30 Seconds. Then You Exercise For 60 Seconds. Then You Admire Yourself All Day Long!

This Muscle-Girdle Exercise Plan consists of a simple wheel with a handle through it, and an in-genious, medically-developed and medically-proven idea.

What you do, every morning for two exhilerating minutes, is this:

You put the wheel on the floor and stand above it. Take a deep breath and greet the morning. In two minutes you'll be in your shower or at breakfast, and it's going to be a wonderful day. You'll prove that to yourself in the next ninety seconds.

Now, put your hands on your hips and do the simple shoulder warm-up we show you. You do it three times with the left shoulder, and three times with the right. You don't bend from the hips. You don't twist your spine. There is no conscious exertion. You won't even take a deep breath, But you will have warmed up and loosened your stomach muscles; you will feel better, and you'll be ready to zip right through your real exercise.

Now get down on your knees. Take the handles of the SLIM-WHEEL in your hands. Roll out the wheel as far as you can comfortably stretch, in the way we show you. Then roll it back again. That's it! You've done it! Five more times in the morning ... six times at night ... and you're finished!

(Later, you'll work your way up to twenty times. To do any more would simply be ridiculous.)

To do any more would simply be ridiculous.)

Now—what happened in those five or six little wheel-out, wheel-in exercises? Quite simply, you have stretched tight, automatically, without your own conscious effort, muscles in your stomach and back that you may not have exercised for years! You will absolutely FEEL the effect of that stretch the first time you roll that wheel out! It is NOT a gentle feeling! It is a feeling of firmness and hardness and good strong exercise (and, above all, CONTROL) so exhilerating that it may be difficult for you to stop with a mere five or six roll-outs!

But stop you must because that's all you'll need.

But stop you must, because that's all you'll need at the beginning! Because this exercise will only work for you if you do it EVERY SINGLE DAY! And that's why it's been made so simple . . . so easy . . so quick! So you can do it every single day in less time than it takes you to smoke a cigarette—and get every one of these benefits to boot:

You See The Results-OVERNIGHT!

Of course you'll look slimmer, in a mere week or two. Of course you'll have to start taking in clothes—one inch...two inches...three inches...maybe four. Of course friends will start pestering youto find out what kind of "diet" could take off that kind of bulge, that quickly, without caving in your level.

These are all the obvious benefits, But there are even deeper and more meaningful benefits, that will stay with you for years. There's the marvelous feeling of control, and looking young again.

But most of all, there's the drain-off of back pain and back-caused fatigue that could take ten years off the way you feel! Nothing drains vitality as

The gift that ties a family together with fun.

You'll remember the Christmas you gave your family a Wurlitzer piano or organ as your best Christmas ever. Because a Wurlitzer ties your family together with music . . . with enjoyment everyone can share. And music never sounded better than it does on a Wurlitzer.

Case in point: More people choose a Wurlitzer piano than any other. The rich, resonant tone and classic cabinetry are the results of more than a century of experience in fine-instrument making. And over 50 styles and finishes to select from!

Space problem? Solve it with the Wurlitzer Electronic Piano. It's coffee-table size. Legs detach for storage or travel. And earphones attach for personal pleasure.

But for excitement, nothing tops a Wurlitzer Total Tone organ. It's a whole festival of music—clarinet, marimba, chimes, harpsichord, Hawaiian guitar, banjo, drums—and many more authentic musical sounds, all inherited from the immortal Mighty Wurlitzer Theatre Organ. And with our Hobby Lesson Course, everybody can play.

three or four years. This also applies to co-ops and some condominiums in large cities. Such apartments often offer substantial income tax advantages. For a co-op, all cash is generally required, above the mortgage granted to the co-op as a group. A bank, however, may give you a personal loan on collateral such as stocks or bonds. An individual mortgage is more feasible on a condominium apartment, which is owned outright. In resort areas like some of those in New England, mortgages for $25,000 second-home condominiums are obtainable on a 25 percent down payment.

WHEN TO BUY

Whatever the property investment, is now the right time? "Young couples should buy a new home now, rather than wait and see," advises George Hitchings, an economist at C.I.T. Financial Corporation. Waiting for building prices and mortgage interest rates to relax or slide down seems to be an exercise in wishful thinking. The consensus of financial experts points to a prolonged period of high interest rates. Nationwide, building-material costs have been soaring. Thus far this year, wages in certain building trades have mounted approximately 15 percent.

It's reasonably safe to predict that property values will continue to outleap living costs. Across the country, during 1967 and 1968 prices of homesite land, for example, advanced almost 10 percent a year, compared to an average annual rise of 4.2 percent in consumer prices.

By and large, property has proved to be a better hedge than investment in common stocks. One study, based on U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics and Dow Jones averages, shows that over a 20-year period funds put into real estate in a New England resort area rose about three times as much than if they had been invested in common stocks. Moreover, owning property provides income tax deductions from mortgage interest and realty taxes.

"If we ever get into a runaway inflation," Curtis Hagen reminds us that "a house is good security. With the interest fixed, the mortgage can then be paid off with relatively cheap dollars."

Evidently it's not too late to cope with creeping inflation by buying property, particularly for the long haul. But in the long run sound investing in real estate calls for thorough investigation, canny judgment—and maybe some kind of crystal ball.

GIANT 12-16. CHEDDAR WHEEL

Now this is the true country cheese, and we're one of the few still willing to age the big ones. None are pasteurized, colored, processed or artificially flavored. They're just fresh whole-milk cheeses aged in the dark even coolness of our Vermont caves. We can't give a blanket age on these. Each is different and each is individually watched. When we feel a cheese has developed its full flavor, and has the right sharp taste, we put it up for sale. But we can say they usually run about two years. Sharp, crumbly, special.

HOW WE PUT UP CHEESE IN VERMONT

The answer is with care. The foot-long bars, for instance. Take time to prepare, but then you get perfect cracker-size slices. And the way we put the bars up—each is handwrapped in foil (perfect moisture barrier), dipped twice in a special microcrystaline wax which keeps cheese from drying out. And the different color waxes—one wax pot would be easier, but we think each cheese should have its own bright package. Finally, each bar is wrapped in cellophane. That gives you an idea. We hope you, and your friends, will try our country-cured cheese.

NEWS NOTES

There are many moments of pleasure during the holiday season. Certainly one of them is coffee time, whether it is the first morning cup or the one at the end of a memorable meal—a special coffee brew with a glorious little cake. For example, it would be a pleasant experience to be served café brûlot in a New Orleans home where the gracious traditions of hospitality are lovingly preserved. In one home, the traditions for this ceremony have been handed down for generations. A large 18th-century silver tray holds a wide china brûlot bowl, demitasse cups and a gleaming silver ladle. There are little china containers for thin slices of lemon, orange rind, spices, small lumps of sugar and brandy that go first into the bowl. Over and over again lumps of sugar and brandy are ladled out and set aflame, then carefully put back into the bowl until the entire surface is covered with blue flames. Then, a little at a time, the hot strong coffee is added and the mixture is gently stirred until the flame dies and the brew is ready to be ladled into the special demi-tasse cups.

We like the idea of baking our French toast instead of frying it. Beat 4 eggs slightly; stir in 1 cup of milk and ½ teaspoon salt. Pour into flat, shallow dish. Dip 6 slices of day-old bread in the mixture, turning to allow both sides to take up liquid. Place on well-buttered cookie sheet and pour ¼ cup melted butter over tops of slices. Bake at 500° for about 8 minutes. Turn slices over and bake 5 minutes more or until golden brown. Serve hot with butter and syrup.

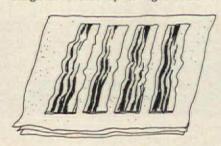

Add the pizza craze to another trend, toaster cookery, and you'll come up with Toasta Foods' newest discovery: Toasta Pizza. A new process holds the pizza ingredients in vertical suspension, so there is no drip or running to the bottom of the toaster. This one is open-faced just like a regular pizza. All the others are sandwich types. Available in cheese (80¢) or sausage (90¢) in cartons of 6. The kids should go for them!

The new massager from Saunda, Inc., Masseuse, has a handle that makes it easy to reach any part of the body with the unique quilted massaging head. It is approved by the Underwriters Laboratories, and sells for $25.

The new Eureka upright vacuum is engineered to adjust suction automatically no matter how high or low the carpet nap. It sells for around $140.

Sunbeam's new automatic 12-cup percolator is made of glass. Its features include a strength selector; stainless-steel pump, stem, basket, well and base; snap-tight top; coffee-level numerals and a large comfortable handle. The glass vessel is removable for easy cleaning. About $20.

An automatic bacon cooker from Westinghouse called the Bacconer was designed to cook up to eight slices of extra-thin to extra-thick slices of bacon in five to ten minutes. It looks like a toaster with a control that has infinite settings for varying heats. It will be available in markets throughout the country in late 1969 or early 1970, and will sell for around $22.

The National Football League invited us to lunch at New York City's St. Regis Hotel to tell us about the foods that are served at their players' training tables. (What we didn't tell them was that we were busy planning our own menus to serve to their fans at tailgate picnics during the football season; see page 100.) At the luncheon we ate some of the foods the players eat while they are in training: shrimp and avocado salad, black bean soup with garlic-flavored, shredded-wheat croutons, ham pie, banana raisin bread and coffee. (Who says training is rough?) New York Giant players, Pete Gogolak, Ernie Koy and Steve Wright answered questions—both football and nonfootball, sensible and nonsensical.

Nicholas Roosevelt has this very important message about seasonings in his book, Good Cooking. "Just as anyone who wants to paint a picture must have many colors, or a mechanic must have a variety of wrenches and other tools, so the person who wants to cook well must have on hand those seasonings with which simple dishes can be improved. This need not mean a large outlay, either of space or money. Nor does it demand such luxuries as truffles, foie gras or caviar. But the right seasonings can point up so many well-liked dishes that to be without them is a serious handicap. In the final analysis seasoning is the decisive factor in good cooking. Rarely is a dish served which hasn't been seasonedif not with anything else, then at least with salt or sugar. The skill with which seasoning is carried out plays a major part in the success of a dish." (continued)

On developing discriminating taste in food

There is a challenging paradox in food attitudes that exists today: At one and the same time there are children who think milk originated in waxed cartons but who also know all about the energy foods, fruit bits, toast squares and meat tidbits that our Apollo 11 astronauts took to the moon with them. We are in the midst of a revolution, both in the supermarket and in the kitchen—convenience foods are leading the uprising against time-consuming, old-fashioned ways; we must learn to compare the two.

It was not many weeks back that I found myself involved in a rather lengthy discussion of food tastes and standards. The gist was how can one tell the difference between good food and mediocre (downright lousy) food and is there any compromise in this vast range of taste? In my opinion, there is no compromise. How can one compromise with mediocrity? Food is either good or bad—no in between. This is true whether you are cooking from scratch, buying a convenience food or dining in a restaurant.

It is really a very difficult question to tackle because everyone's taste varies and for different reasons. As for cooking from scratch, some like food overcooked, others like it undercooked, some hig spiced, others bland. Taste is develor by one's sociological background, scope of travel, ethnic knowledge a exposure to variety and cultures.

There are ways to measure good ta I like to call them built-in standar That's what recipes are for. A good of well written and followed precis should give you repeated and perfect sults time after time (all other thi being equal-a good range, proper ut sils and correct techniques). On other hand, you must experiment taste-test, and develop your own st dards as you learn to be more creat Once you've mastered a recipe to nique, don't be afraid to try this that, to add or delete. Get to know difference between underdone and or done and "just right." Learn the sub ties of flavoring, the nuances of seas ing and aroma and contrasts of text Discover how the temperature at wi foods are served affects their taste.

On the other side of the coin, there over 7000 quick-preparation foods, quiring little or no preparation at that allow us to widen our repertoir menus and recipes. But there seem be a growing tendency to compare taste, aroma and texture of convenie foods to those prepared from scra You really cannot and should not do because it is impossible to prepare on a mass-produced scale, with the essary additives to prolong storage create flavors and, expect them to t like prepared foods. Time-saving tures, consistent results and storag pantry or freezer are the worthw standards for which convenience for were primarily designed. with substance, seasoned as only their personal taste dictates. Some will never know what the real taste of a vanilla pudding is, made with a vanilla bean, savoring the true essence of a creamy, smooth texture. Can you judge canned versions without trying the original?

It is nice to know the differences and accept (or not) each on its own merit. The sad commentary is that some people will never really care to know the differences, while others will go to great lengths to seek perfection. We can separate women into three kinds of cooks:

1. The open, heat and eat set: They want to spend the minimum of time in the kitchen. Cooking is a necessity and little more, so they serve precooked foods that you simply open and heat—frozen fried chicken, a TV dinner.

2. The embellishment set: They are essentially purists who have accepted change. Time is a factor to them, yet their standards will not allow them to compromise completely. They will accept certain of the better convenience foods and add embellishments. They will shortcut the classics, using a yeast roll mix to make a baba au rhum or instant potatoes to make Duchess potatoes.

3. The purist set: This is the classical cook who insists the original way is the only way and follows the recipe exactly.

There seems to be all kinds of cooking in today's way of life. It is a comfort to know that you can pluck a package of pie-crust mix from the pantry shelf, embellish it slightly and come up with a delectable French pastry. Security is knowing you can use a white-cake mix and create an almost perfect Lady Baltimore cake. Or that you can make a better biscuit from a package if your own technique is not up to par.

On the other hand, think of what you might have missed by not knowing how the original was made or how it is supposed to taste. Discovering these differences and developing your own educated tastes can be a source of consistent culinary pleasure. Just as one's taste in wines grows from sweet to dry as it becomes more discerning, so will one's comparisons of tastes in convenience food versus those prepared from scratch become more sharply critical.

One final reminder: Don't compare the taste results of a recipe cooked from scratch with the same food out of a can, package or jar. Find your own measurement of "good taste" based on timehonored recipes. Then develop your own good standards. Virginia T. Habeeb

As Americans sit down to Thanksgiving dinner this year they have much to celebrate. Not only did we land a man on the moon, but we began to make earth more livable.

It was a turn-around year for all who had written the home planet off as polluted, ravaged and just plain abused. Mercifully, we stopped talking about what was wrong and began doing something to set it right. Surely, that is cause for thanksgiving. As the 60s close, we might well pause and count up some of the surprises, the big wins, the credits on the balance sheet.

Saved: Kentucky's Red River Gorge, called by some the "Grand Canyon of the East." Thanks to strenuous efforts by Kentucky's Senator John Sherman Cooper and Governor Louie Nunn, plus protests from the Sierra Club and Audubon Society, the Army Engineers abandoned their plan to build a dam there that would flood the gorge.

Pushed: The GIVE A DAMN campaign by the New York Urban Coalition. Like the other 43 coalitions (of business/labor/community leaders), the New York organization is out to bridge the gap between the haves and the havenots. John Gardner, chairman of the National Coalition, says, "A common piece of ground to stand on is an immensely powerful and effective thing."

Suspended: DDT by the Department of Agriculture pending study of its toxic effects on wildlife and man.

Spared: Storm King Mountain and the Hudson River from Consolidated Edison's proposed power plant.

Stopped: The controversial Lower Manhattan Expressway in New York City fought by such advocates of sensitive city planning as Ada Louise Huxtable and Jane Jacobs.

Killed: The New Orleans Expressway which would have run through and destroyed much of the character of that city's historic French Quarter.

Launched: A Citizens' Crusade for Clean Water to press Congress to appropriate $1 billion for sewage treatment.

Projected: A four-state recreation/conservation area for the Connecticut River Valley, giving New England a much needed national park.

Proposed: A cabinet-level post for Human Environment and Natural Resources. Senators Ribicoff, Muskie, Jackson and other legislators are all offering some variation of this idea.

Pioneered: Overview Group by former Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall. As consultants on ecology and planning, his experts will devise strategies to keep natural resources from being destroyed by industrial growth.

Clearly this has been a banner year for the citizen conservationists, the ones who send the telegrams, wear Ban DDT and Keep Mineral Spring Natural on their bumpers, raise the cash for Sierra and Audubon, nag their public servants to be better stewards of the nation's treasures. They include celebrities such as Pete Seeger and Arthur Godfrey who cry the conservationist's call like modernday Paul Reveres. Pete Seeger sailed the polluted Hudson in a sloop called the Clearwater all summer, rallying citizens along its shores to a cleanup campaign. Arthur Godfrey flies around the country making speeches on pollution, directs his foundation's funds into ecological research. He is dead serious about how much needs to be done, says simply, "Let's not look for a scapegoat. No person or group in particular is to blame. We are all equally culpable. Now that we know our mistakes-somebody had better start doing something."

Government agencies, large organizations and public firms are not the only forces at work improving the quality of the American scene. The country is alive with quiet doers, people who care, people like you who can perform small miracles in their own backyard. We'd like to say thank you to just a few of them. Their energy, imagination (continued)

Harry L. Coe is now known as "the bicycle man" in Seattle, Washington. When he was a boy Coe used to pedal around town with ease. After he retired he set out to chart a protected network of cycling trails so that youngsters could enjoy what he had once known. He persuaded the city fathers to lay out the routes, put together a pamphlet showing points of interest for cyclists and pushed for Bicycle Sundays, closing streets to automobiles. An engineer by profession, he went at the project with precision but what really got it rolling was his enthusiasm for the outdoors.

George Millar Jr., executive director of the Little Rock (Arkansas) Housing Authority persuaded local merchants to finance a portable park. Complete with benches, trees and flagstone, it is being used to brighten up an urban-renewal site, will be trucked to another project when this one is complete. Millar talked businessmen out of "asphalting everything for a giant parking lot." The park was his idea instead. "We thought we ought to have some beauty," he says.

Mrs. Ruth Wright of Boulder, Colorado, has sparked a drive to acquire Enchanted Mesa, a 160-acre tract in the foothills. She was also a prime mover in the Citizens for Greenbelts Committee, an action group that has pressed successfully for open-space acquisition by the city. The point, says Boulder's city planner is "to provide an environmental quality of openness." To Mrs. Wright goes a good share of the credit for keeping Boulder clean and green.

Jocelyn Shaw, housewife and mother of three, set up a year-round conservation-education program for the children of Fairfield, Connecticut. She started with "one school, one teacher, one principal and one botanist." Last year she and her 41 volunteers guided 2000 children and their teachers (from 14 schools) on a continuing ecological tour of the Old Mill River. "They learned how the Indians lived, saw the dramatic change in the river when it was used for power." Mrs. Shaw wants to dramatize the relationship between man and nature. "You just feel that this kind of program should be in every community. When you get right down to it, what's ruining our environment is our own values. You can't just look and say, 'This really turns me on.' You've got to try to save it."

Mrs. Clark Kerr has formed a citizens' organization to Save the San Francisco Bay. The movement has enlisted some 13,000 members since 1961 and this year the campaign was won when Governor Reagan signed a law to protect this beautiful and historic waterfront from uncoordinated land-fill operations and from dumping.

Dr. Samuel F. Hulbert, a Clemson (N.Y.) University professor is developing a new bottle which will "hydralize" and after a few days turn into a puddle of water. What a breakthrough when you consider the tons of glass that must be disposed of each year. Now, if only Dr. Hulbert could do something about cans, cardboard and plastic.

Dr. George Georghiou has been recording the mating call of the beet leafhopper in his lab at the University of California. Once he gets it down pat he hopes to lure female leafhoppers into a trap and thereby eliminate the need for insecticides. Two other scientists at UC have discovered that sticky weed seeds can kill mosquitoes by the millions. "The potential is rather fantastic," said Dr. Eldon

L. Reeves. "Theoretically, a pound of seed could eliminate as many mosquito larvae as are produced by four acres of marshland."

Herbert H. Mills, executive director of the World Wildlife Fund, gleefully announced the acquisition of 5000 acres of South Jersey marshes this year, saved from draining, dredging and over-development. Mills says, "The miles of water courses running through these marshes will provide healthful recreation areas for fishermen and boatmen."

Helen Mary Williams, who is a Pasadena, California, teacher, wanted to expose ghetto children to the great outdoors. Twelve years ago she and three other adults started Outward Bound Adventures which has since led 50,000 voungsters from Watts and Spanishspeaking East Los Angeles into the desert, up the mountains, onto the beaches. Mrs. Williams says "we did it because we were interested in total conservation and people are our most valuable resource. People in ghettos are prisoners. They don't know about parks and seashores. We want them to know there is something in the world that is worthwhile and that it can belong to them if they care to make it theirs."

These are only a few of the doers, the movers and shakers, the people who make things happen. We invite you to send in your own nominations. We'd like to know about the people who care, whether they are housewives, scientists, politicians, garden club members, Scouts, businessmen, inventors. If we could spread their good ideas, help them take hold, the world could be a cleaner, more beautiful, happier place.

Tell someone you like about Lark's Gas-Trap filter. He may remember your anniversary.

Use your head.

Maybe your husband already knows that almost 90% of cigarette smoke is gas. And, that Lark's Gas-Trap filter not only reduces "tar" and nicotine, but gases as well.

But you can still tell him a thing or two. For instance: Lark's Gas-Trap filter reduces certain of those harsh gases by nearly twice as much as any other filter on any other popular brand!

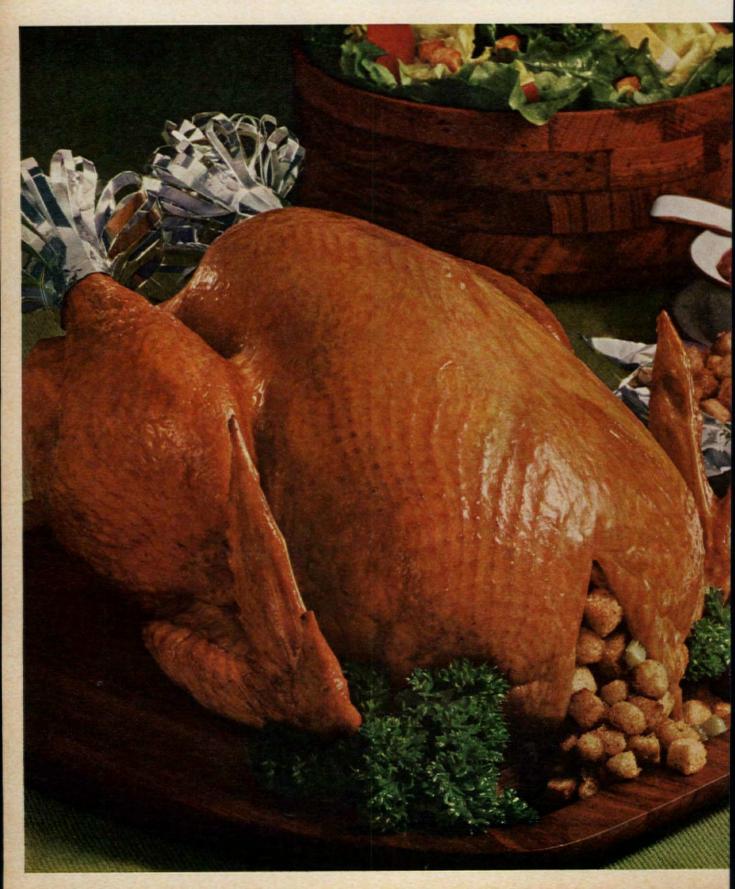

And that Lark spent enough research money on the Gas-Trap filter to buy full-length minks for all the girls in the Junior League.

Here's your Pièce de Résistance: tell him Lark's Gas-Trajö filter is patented (U.S. Patent No. 3,251,365) so it's unique—just like him.

He'll listen.

A tastier turkey, the with real old-time

easy modern way,

1. Stuff your bird with perfectly-seasoned Kellogg's Croutettes Stuffing.

Here's real old-time stuffing that's even tastier than Grandma used to make. So easy to fix, too. You start with Kellogg's Croutettes Stuffing Herb Seasoned Croutons, the modern croutons with the old-fashioned flavor of eight different seasonings. They're made from herb-seasoned bread baked especially for Kellogg's Croutettes, then neatly cubed and slowly oven-toasted. All you do is add liquids and the stuffing is ready to "pop" into your bird.

Festive Suggestion: Most families want more Croutettes Stuffing than their bird will hold, so satisfy 'em all by baking some foil-wrapped "Stuffin' Muffins", too. The easy recipe is on the Kellogg's Croutettes package.

2. Roast it golden brown the easy, no-baste way under a "tent" of Reynolds Wrap.

Your turkey browns beautifully, stays moist and tender, when you roast it under a "tent" of Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. The foil eliminates the need for basting and prevents oven spattering. And, if you line your roasting pan with Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap, you'll save yourself a scouring job. What could be easier?

Strong, tear-resistant Reynolds Wrap is Oven-Tempered for Flexible Strength.

1-2-3 GUIDE TO BUYING LAUNDRY APPLIANCES

By Stanley Schuler

It used to be easy to buy laundry equipment. All you had to decide was whether you wanted a wringer washer or a spinner; and from then on it was just a question of which make you liked best. Dryers, of course, didn't exist, although there was a marvelous ironing contraption called a mangle which has since gone the way of the dodo bird.

Things are different now. When you set out to buy a washer-an automatic, naturally-or a dryer, also automaticyou must consider more than just the makes and features available. You should also consider what you have to launder and what kinds of laundering aids you like to use.

How come things have gotten so complicated? Because, everyone in any way connected with laundering is coming up with a stream of wonderful new ideas. The textile industry is introducing new fabrics and fabric processes. The soap and detergent industry is introducing new kinds of cleaning agents and fabric conditioners. And the appliance industry not only must keep up with what the textile and soap people are doing, but is also introducing new features that it dreams up on its own.

No wonder that a young homemaker who wanted to buy a washer said to us: "I simply don't know what I need."

Here, based on our tests and research, is a one-two-three suggestion that should help you make your own decision.

1. Take a look at your laundry basket. What do you find? Cottons, linens, woolens, silks, nylons and acetates, of course. You've been laundering them for a long time, and the way you did it in the past is pretty much the same way you do it today. In other words, these fabrics do not require washers and dryers that are very different from the ones you purchased in 1960. But look at the new fabrics and fabric processes that have come along. Several have unusual washing and drving requirements.

Permanent press, for instance: Items made of permanent-press fabrics are filling a bigger and bigger part of the laundry basket, and for one very simple reason-they do not need ironing.

That is, they don't need ironing if you wash and dry them properly. This, alas, is no toss-them-in-and-pull-them-out process. To keep permanent press fabrics from setting undesirable wrinkles and creases to which they cling stubbornly thereafter, three things are important: First, you must not overload them into your washer and dryer. Second, they should be allowed to cool down at the end of the drving cycle. (It is also highly desirable to let them cool down in the washer at the end of the rinse cycle.) Newer machines, as you will note later on, will accomplish this. Finally, they must be removed from the washer and then the dryer as quickly as possible.

Textured polyester knits and laminated fabrics, two other new items that are found in the laundry basket, are laundered in the same way.

So is washable rainwear. But in this case an additional precaution is called for: You must rinse the garments extra well. If you don't, the water repellent with which they are treated will become less repellent and more absorbent.

Two more new textile developments you should at least be familiar with are Qiana (by DuPont) and a whole lot of nonwoven fabrics made, like felt, by bonding fibers together rather than by weaving. These, however, have no effect on your choice of laundry equipment today. Qiana is a nylon, and although it has the lustrous appearance and feel of the most beautiful silk, it is laundered like ordinary nylon. The nonwoven fabrics, as presently made, are not washable. This situation will undoubtedly change, and when it does appliance manufacturers may have to make further changes in their equipment. But that's a bridge still to be crossed.

2. Take a look under your laundry sink. Do you see some new laundering aids tucked in among the old? You bet.

Fabric softeners, for instance. In five years, more or less, they have come from nowhere to a point where they are now used by better than half of all owners of automatic washers. Dispensers on many washer models save the bother of adding softeners at the proper time.

Enzyme presoakers. Everyone seems to be talking about them-even at cocktail parties. That's a good indication of what they will do. However, there is some divergence of opinion: Understandably, the people (continued) making presoakers are more enthusiastic about them than appliance and textile manufacturers. But even the latter agree that these are genuine aids—especially to get rid of protein stains.

Enzyme-active detergents. These detergents also contain enzymes and other additives to aid in soil removal.

Bleach. For liquid chlorine bleach users, dispensers on washers help in the addition of the bleach at the proper time.

3. Now take a look at the washers and dryers available today. You'll find you can launder everything in your laundry basket, and you can also take good advantage of those new laundry aids under the sink. And you can make wash day easier in other ways too.

Permanent-press cycles have been added to all but the very simplest dryers and washers. In dryers, the drying cycle is extended to give a ten-minute cooldown period during which tumbling continues but the heat is turned off. This prevents wrinkles that might appear if hot permanent-press articles were allowed to cool off in the bottom of the dryer drum. It is the most important single permanent-press feature to look for in laundry appliances.

For the benefit of forgetful home-makers, some dryers sound a signal at the end of the cool-down period as a reminder to remove the laundry from the drum at once. And a couple of dryers even go so far as to sound a reminder signal every five minutes for two-and-a-half hours after the cool-down. Between signals the dryers start up again and fluff the clothes for a few seconds.

Washers have a comparable permanent-press cycle. In these, however, cold water is injected near the end of the final rinse. Then, after the clothes are spun damp-dry, a signal sounds.

Washer flexibility has been increased once again. One of the marvels of modern laundry equipment has long been its extraordinary flexibility. In washers you can adjust the water level from minimum to a tubful. You have a choice of five water temperatures: hot, warm and cold wash; warm and cold rinse. You can change agitator and spin speeds. And, of course, you have several cycles in addition to permanent-press.

In dryers, you can select different cycles and heats. You can tumble-dry or dry at lowest heat in a stationary drum.

All these features have been developed over the years to allow homemakers to wash and dry more and more kinds of articles—from the sturdiest dungarees to gossamer handkerchiefs. And now, a new kind of washer flexibility has been introduced: agitator flexibility.

This is provided in completely different ways by two manufacturers. One uses adjustable agitator vanes. You just twist the top of the agitator and the vanes extend or retract to give four different wash actions ranging from vigorous to gentle. In the other case, the washer has two agitators, one nesting inside the other. The outer agitator, which is used for normal washing, lifts off to expose the inner agitator when you want to wash delicate fabrics.

Capacities are up—and down. Not so long ago the biggest washers and dryers handled 12 pounds of clothes in one load. This year there are many makes that handle 18, although the dimensions of the machines have not changed.

Appliance dealers selling these new behemoths sometimes claim that the extra capacity makes for better washing of permanent-press materials. But this must be put in the category of exaggerated truths. It's true that the more room you give permanent press to tumble around, the less likely it will be to set wrinkles. But if you overload an 18-pound washer, it will not do as good a job on permanent press as a 12-pound washer with a normal load. In other words, it's not washer size that counts; it's the way the washer is loaded.

At the same time that washer and dryer capacities have been increased, two manufacturers have made special provisions for you to wash very small loads in small amounts of water in their largest washers. Both washers are equipped with a small, removable tub which fits on top of the agitator post.

In one machine, when you set in the small tub, you can wash only in that tub for a ten-minute cycle.

The other machine is more versatile. In this you can wash clothes in the small tub only or in the small tub and large tub at the same time. Since there is no water transfer between the tubs when used together, you can put bleach in one and not in the other or you can wash colored clothes in one and white in the other. Each tub also has its own water-temperature control.

For good measure, a third manufacturer has just come up with a radical dryer which also allows you to handle two loads at once or separately. Standing 51 inches high (15 more than other dryers), it has a deep bottom drawer that is used for drying shoes, newspapers and other articles that can't be tumbled. In the top is a tumble-dryer. Meatloaf was meant to stick to your ribs. Not ours.

Six years ago, food stopped sticking to our oven walls.

That's when General Electric produced the very first self-cleaning oven and offered you your first escape from the messiest job in the kitchen.

Since then our P-7® Automatic Self-Cleaning oven has outsold all comers.

And no wonder. We offer you this amazing work-saving feature in more choices than any other range manufacturer, all available with a window, and most in your pick of 4 decorator colors; Harvest, Coppertone, Avocado or White.

Compared to other self-cleaning ovens, our pyrolytic system cleans the complete oven... the oven door, the racks, the inside of the window, the reflector pans from the surface units, and even the racks and liner panels from the upper oven (if you have a double oven model with panels).

And all so thoroughly you'd have a hard time matching it by hand (even if you had the time).

If you're tired of cleaning messy ovens by hand, GE can help. Nobody else gives you anywhere near as many choices in selfcleaning oven ranges.

After all, we're the home of the self-cleaning oven.

Soak cycles are longer to let you use enzyme presoakers in the washer instead of a laundry tub or bathroom basin. An important point about these soak cycles should be noted, however: For enzyme presoakers to be fully effective, fabrics must soak in them for at least 30 minutes and preferably much longer. But some automatic soak cycles last only about 15 minutes, and the only way you can lengthen them is to turn off the machine and then turn it on again. By contrast, a few new washers have extended soak cycles which automatically take care of everything up to the time you think the soak should end. Then you must turn a dial to restart the washer.

Rinsing has been improved so you can be sure of getting all the detergent out of washable rainwear, diapers and other articles. In most washers, rinsing is actually a long, continuous series of actions involving deep soaking, agitation, spraying and filtering. Some washers can be set for a second rinse.

Automatic fabric softener dispensers have joined the automatic detergent and bleach dispensers you have been using for years. All top-model and some middle-priced washers have automatic fabric softener dispensers.

Top-of-the-line washers and dryers do your thinking for you. In appliance industry parlance, such washers are said to be "programmed." All you do is push a single button—for the type of load you are washing (permanent press, delicate fabrics, etc.)—and the machine automatically takes over. It sets water temperatures, wash and spin speeds and cycle sequences, then goes into action. You can relax till it's done.

Top-of-the-line dryers have electronic sensors which continuously measure the amount of moisture in the load. When the load is dry, the machine stops.

Combination washer-dryers are still with us—but just barely. In our opinion this is a shame. Combinations fill an important space need.

Three types are available this year for the first time: 1) Front-loading, counterheight models. 2) A full-size dryer that is stacked on top of a full-size, front-opening washer. 3) A small-size, top-opening washer with a small dryer on top. END

Manufacturers who have supplied us with information about their washers and dryers are: Barton, Blackstone, Easy, Frigidaire, General Electric, Hamilton, Hotpoint, Kelvinator, Maytag, Montgomery Ward, Norge, Philco, Sears Roebuck, Speed Queen, Westinghouse, Whirlpool.

A patchwork rug on a marbleized floor adds to the pattern pile-up in this country living room. For more pattern, needlepoint cushions and a quilt are played against printed and woven upholstery and slipcover patterns. Such old-fashioned handiwork as quilting and embroidery are having a great revival today. Room was designed by Paul Krauss, A.I.D.

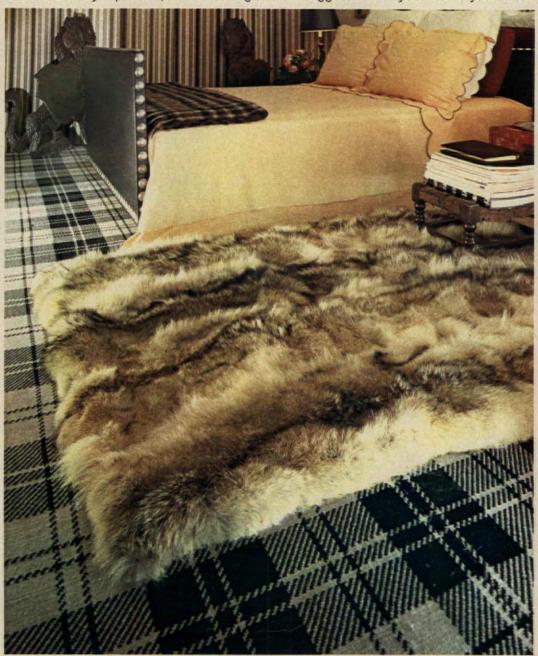

A VERY NOV

An open fire, patchwork quilting, needlework—the very essence of a cozy November afternoon at home in times past is also the essence of now. So are rugs and carpets, antique and modern, piled on decorated floors. Here begin seven pages of exciting new ways to use them. Children's rooms clothed in bright fabrics, Thanksgiving feasts of wild game birds and the best of red wines, football games and the picnics that go with them-these, like autumn leaves, color this warm-hearted season.

THE BIG PILE-UP

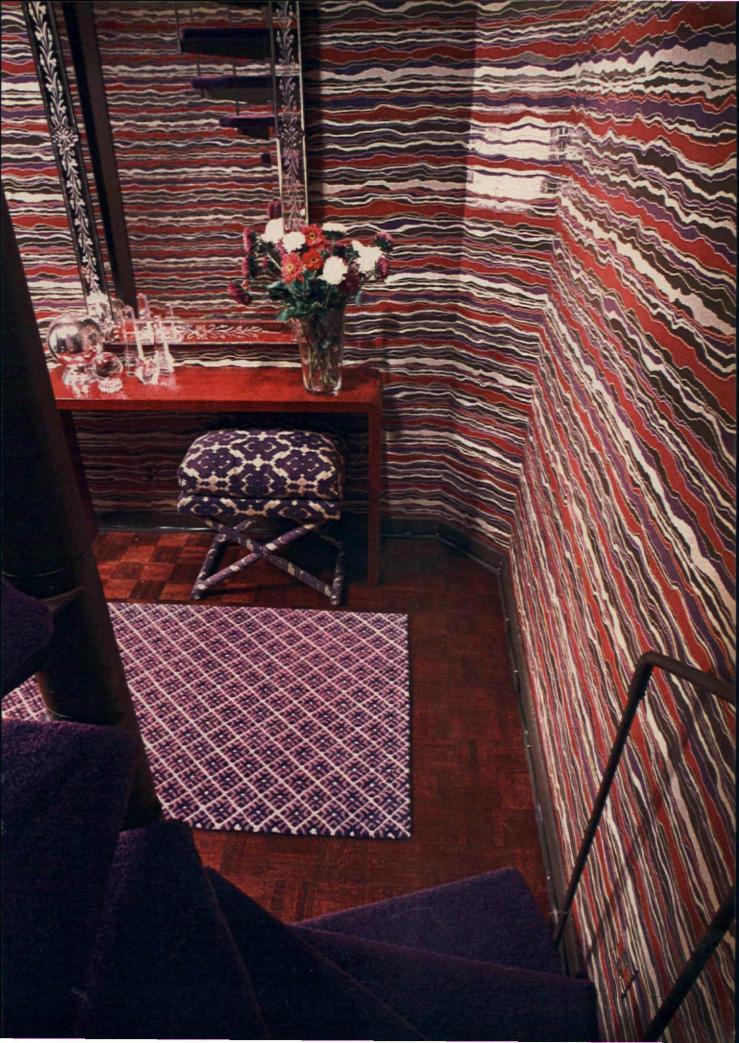

Today's new look in floors is layered—rug on rug, rug on wall-to-wall carpeting, rug on tile—rug on wood—a happy mix of pattern and color, texture and shape.

If you are considering doing or redoing a floor think in terms of using more than one floor covering per room. Suddenly, even the prettiest floor looks naked without something to cover it. The rooms on these pages suggest all kinds of colorful combinations underfoot. Some are richly expensive, some are bargains. All suggest new ways to clothe your floors.

Siberian wolf rug on black-and-white wall-to-wall carpeting is country dressing for this in-town bedroom. The fur rug comes from Harmony Carpet, the plaid carpet from Stark Carpet. Apricot linen sheets, scalloped in burgundy, pick up tawny colors of the fur. Black leather bed has pewter nail-head trim. Lions are copper. Designer is Melvin Dwork, A.I.D., an associate of Burge-Donghia.

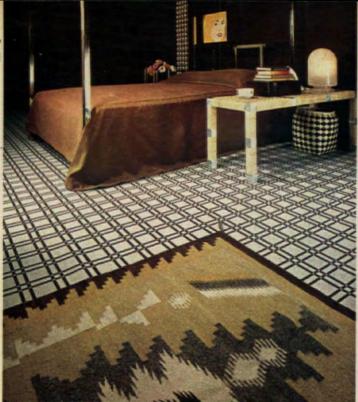

Parquet floor stained red is topped with a purple-patterned wool rug from Saxony Carpet. Color scheme, initiated by the horizontally striped wallpaper, continues up the purple-carpeted stairs. The console is wrapped in faux alligator and x-base stool in a purple print. Designer is Bebe Winkler.

THE BIG PILE-UP

Wall-to-wall carpeting of deep royal blue wool is partially covered by a brightly patterned Tibetan Dharrie rug. Custom carpeting is by Edward Fields; rug is from Stark. This master bedroom in the Long Island home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Boslow is what every bedroom should be-a retreat from the world, a haven of relaxation and calm. White and lime green, lively additions to the basic blue of the scheme, are from the stylized tree-of-life print that covers large areas of the room-walls, draperies, bedspread and headboard. Designer is Melvin Dwork, A.I.D., an associate of Burge-Donghia.

Wall-to-wall carpeting, a flat-weave modern geometric, makes a stunning background for an American Indian rug in the master bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. Tomas K. Owen's Chicago apartment. The nylon carpeting, by Scientific Carpets, has an affinity for the traditional geometric of the Indian rug from the American Indian Arts Center. Painting over the bed is by David Hickman.

Needlepoint rug with a tiny overall pattern shows up as a border for the shaggy Moroccan rug and both set off the pattern explosion in this study. Rugs are from Stark and Morjikian respectively. To make this intimate room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Seltzer as exotic as a harem, pattern even covers chair legs. Designer is Ronald Bricke, associate of Burge-Donghia.

A super-shaggy, 100 percent polyester rug colored grasshopper green rests like a giant lily pad on a floor of terrazzo-textured vinyl. Paisley shape of the rug by Armstrong Cork, like the vinyl, repeats the Pucci pattern of the drapery fabric and creates a seating oasis in this family room.

CHILDREN'S Color, used in strong doses, works magic. The transformation is immediate; the effect, exhilarating. In a child's room, colors should be bright, should contrast with one another and should have impact. Color makes an appearance in these rooms in furniture made of plastic or coated with vinyl paint, in bright cotton fabrics, in carpets of easy-care fibers. Pattern is also important. The little girls' rooms on the preceding pages, wrapped in fabric printed with lots of flowers, are immensely feminine, without being frilly. The boys' rooms shown here contrast simple backgrounds with the strong colors and bold patterns of posters and space-age toys.

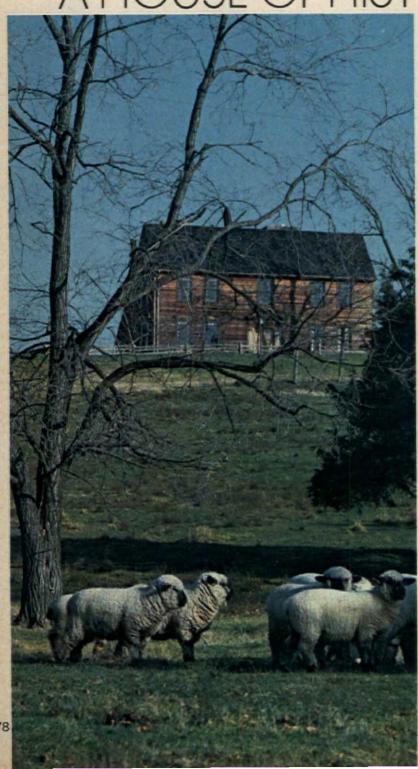

This house looks as if it has been on this hillside in Virginia for at least a century and a half. It is located near Fort Defiance, in the Shenandoah Valley, with a view of the Blue Ridge Mountains on one side and the Alleghenies on the other. Built by Mr. and Mrs. Dean Wilson, it reflects their love for the flavor and detail of early New England architecture and their fondness for the rolling Virginia countryside. The interior is an eclectic collection of all things American which have caught their fancy. The house sprawls back from the crest of the hill in a series of wings, dependencies and "additions" that is typical of early farmhouses that housed generations of self-sufficient farmers. HOUSE OF HISTORY

ONLY FIVE YEARS By Marcia Spires

The house and a flock of suffolk sheep bask in late autumn sun which also throws into high relief the imposing entrance. The doorway is a careful reproduction of the broken-arch pediment style of the Connecticut River Valley.

Master bedroom, left, like most rooms in the house, has beamed ceiling and working fireplace. Paneling is from New Hampshire. Furnishings include a half-canopy bed with linsey-woolsey spread, William and Mary chest, three signed Windsor chairs, and a Connecticut tea table.

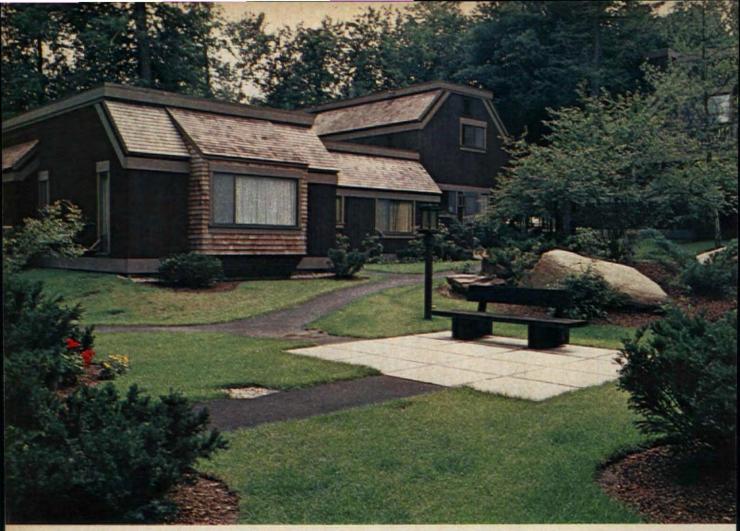

The library is furnished with a Chippendale desk with a mid-18th-century English portrait over it and a Hepplewhite game table. The candlestands are from Connecticut.

The dining room, right, has a balcony reached by a steep, ladder-like stairway, salvaged in Plymouth, Massachusetts. Brick floor, paneling and beams were also salvaged. The wood and iron chandelier is late 17thcentury English. Dining table is Queen Anne mahogany. Chairs are Country Chippendale.

A new generation of garden apartments sprouting in the suburbs combines excellent architecture with wise and careful use of land. Two of these complexes, one in Connecticut (shown here) and one in Washington State (shown on the following pages) won awards in the annual Homes for Better Living program sponsored jointly by House & Home Magazine, the American Institute of Architects and American Home. These, the Heritage Apartments in Simsbury, Connecticut, are a five-minute walk from the main street of a small, 300-year-old town. John M. Payne of the California architectural firm of Callister and Payne placed the 121 apartments in 43 buildings on 24 acres—or five to an acre. How much better a place to call home than a one-family house on a fifth of an acre.

CLUSTERED IN A GARDEN

Apartments are carefully detailed with contrasting fascia boards, interesting bay windows and coordinated rails.

William Maris

The buildings were placed where they best fit on the terrain. The developers, the Paparazzo Heritage Corporation, made every effort to save the trees; and they do the gardening. Trees that had to come down for clearing land were used in log retaining walls. Buildings of rough-sawn cedar were finished in a variety of "no-color" stains. Roofing is cedar shakes. Grassy dells and winding paths link the different clusters of buildings which branch off a serpentine road. There is a community lake.

The Lakeridge View Apartments in Bellevue, Washington, are just a 15-minute drive from downtown Seattle, 45 minutes from skiing and boating territory. They are a welcome alternative to single-family houses on jammed-up lots and high-rise apartments. This award-winning plan shows what can be done on a difficult triangular site—five acres of sloping land between two well-traveled roads. The Portland, Oregon, firm of Zaik-Miller arranged the 88 units in 17 buildings which climb the hill in staggered rows. Tilted roofs (see below) periscope out to the view, giving most living rooms two-story height. Careful planning lends this densely settled land a sense of privacy plus a casual neighborly atmosphere and a view.

The first Thanksgiving bird was naturally a wild bird, three and a half centuries before the turkey became the super-civilized, hyperfattened and selfbasting tour de force that dominates today's holiday tables. Why not emulate the Pilgrims and make a wild bird the center of your Thanksgiving feast this year? Wild turkeys are rare today, even from the game purveyors flourishing in our gourmet-conscious society. But pheasant and partridge, grouse, quail and mallard are easy to find-even when there is no hunter in the house. Here, three plump mallards, crisp and golden on the outside, flesh pink and rare, garnished with apricots, make a Thanksgiving dinner mindful of a festive past. For more about wild game birds, see page 94. Recipes begin on page 96.

COLLECTOR A Thanksgiving game bird needs a great bottle of wine and California can provide it. The wine country around San Francisco reds has always been wild-game country. Wine producers, their sons and friends have spent the summers fishing for steelhead in the narrow rivers and the winters hunting for deer and game birds among the oaks, pines and red-limbed, bushy manzanitas of the hills overlooking the vineyards. Perhaps one of the motivations that went into the development of fine California reds, besides the almost instinctive professionalism of those committed to the trade, was the desire for something superlative to drink with the game hunters brought in from the foothills.

The good California varietal wines are very good indeed and already have the experts solidly behind them. One expert, a European one at that, Hugh Johnson, has written that California's "best red wines are great wines, within a strict understanding of that difficult word." And he goes on to say that California will ultimately become one of the finest vineyards in the world because of the Cabernet Sauvignon grape. Since the Cabernet Sauvignon is the red-wine grape of Bordeaux, this is high praise.

The fact of the matter is that there is hardly any better deal in the U.S. at the present time than a small investment in really good California reds from the best of the producers—to be put down for a few years until they mature into great wines. This requires some self control. The wine lover has to be willing to spend his money now for the enjoyment of a great bottle five or six years from now. He also has to be able to resist opening the wine for next week's Thanksgiving bird.

The fine California reds, like the French reds, are the result of hard and painstaking work; they are produced in small amounts by small vineyards. If they are genuinely fine wines, they will take a long time to mature, and they will continue to live and improve in the bottle over a long period of time.

Unfortunately, tax laws in California discourage the producer from keeping his wine for more than three or four years, because a tax is paid on the entire inventory each year. So the producer sells it unaged to the retailer, who sells it quickly (most retailers don't keep a great deal of storage space) and the consumer consumes.

A wait of four, five or six years will make, in many instances, a great wine of a good one. What the wine producer and the retailer are unable to do, the consumer can do for himself—if he has the proper strength of mind. To put a price tag on it, if you paid $3 or $4 for a bottle of Cabernet Sauvignon or Pinot Noir (California's great Burgundy grape) six years ago, it might be worth $20 today. Looking at it this way, $4 is a small price to pay for a red wine of distinction, to go with a future pheasant.

For those who want to look to the future, and still enjoy contemporary drinking, here is a summary of the wines, the region and the vineyards:

The districts to seek out are Napa, Sonoma, Santa Clara and, in some cases, Livermore (which is better known for its white wines). Wines are named for the variety of grape from which they are made—Cabernet Sauvignon and Pinot Noir for collectors (and if you can't wait, some are still very good when young) and Zinfandel and Barbera for instant drinking.

The names of the wineries are Beaulieu Vineyard, Heitz Wine Cellars,
Inglenook Vineyard Co., Charles Krug
Vineyard, Louis M. Martini, Robert
Mondavi Winery and Souverain Cellars from Napa; Buena Vista Winery and Sebastiani from Sonoma; Mirassou
Vineyard from Santa Clara, Concannon
Vineyards and Wente Bros. from Livermore. The districts ring San Francisco Bay. Napa and Sonoma are side by side to the north. Livermore is east. Santa Clara lies southward, with its extension into San Benito and Monterey Counties sprawling farther south still.

There are some general standards for measuring a red wine's claim to excellence, or if such is the case, greatness. It should age well. A sip should leave the flavor behind after the sip is gone. It should make a good meal memorable.

The wines in the following list meet these requirements. They are the ones where the desire for improvement is constant and the ones on which California should be judged. The list is not complete. There are other manufacturers of good California wines—wines that can be opened and used immediately.

CABERNET SAUVIGNON

Beaulieu Vineyard Charles Krug
Buena Vista Louis M. Martini
Concannon Mirassou
Vineyards Robert Mondavi
Heitz Cellar Souverain

Inglenook

Cabernet Sauvignon from a child's birth year is a wine to keep for celebrating his 21st birthday.

Of course, a wine strong enough to endure two decades is likely to bite back when it's young. Cabernet Sauvignon does, whether the grape is grown in Bordeaux or California. It takes ten years for a bottling of real merit to reach its full potential as an aged wine.

The austerity of Cabernet can be tempered by blending with other grapes, or by shortening the time it spends in the fermenting vats.

Of this list, Louis Martini, Charles Krug, Mirassou and the regular (not the Georges de Latour) bottling from Beaulieu are all likely to be pleasant for drinking within four years of the vintage. Souverain, Beaulieu's Georges de Latour reserve and vintage-dated bottlings from Heitz are the ones to put down. Eight years is not too long to wait.

PINOT NOIR

Beaulieu Vineyard Louis Martini Heitz Cellar Wente Bros. Inglenook

If the flavors of Cabernet Sauvignon go well with rich meats, then the lushness of Pinot Noir enhances beef or the dryly grainy flavors of many game birds in a reverse pairing of lean and fat.

There is more range of quality in California Pinot Noirs than there is in Cabernets. Each in this list is likely to come up with a full-bodied example.

Andre Tchelistcheff of Beaulieu probably has the record for getting the most out of this grape, year in and year out. Heitz has made a couple of beautiful wines in the five years it has been in buiness. The Martini Pinots live longer than the usual six to eight years.

ZINFANDELS

Buena Vista Mirassou
Charles Krug Robert Mondavi
Louis Martini

Zinfandel, because the traces of its origin have been lost, is a grape that California can claim as its own. It does not need to age, but can and does age well. Young, it is a sprightly wine with some Cabernet-like qualities, making it take care of today's wild duck while waiting for the Cabernet.

Zinfandel is also less expensive.

BARBERAS

Louis Martini Sebastiani Barbera, from an Italian grape, relates to Pinot Noir much as Zinfandel relates to Cabernet Sauvignon. It is a big, full-bodied wine and unlike Pinot Noir, it has a tart side which goes well with tomato sauces or stuffings for game.

Age does not appear to have much effect on Barbera one way or another. Its healthful vigor makes it a natural choice for a hunter to take with him. August Sebastiani takes a bottle of it along when he goes deer hunting.

As a general last word of advice about collecting California wines—vintages do matter. If some wise old uncle leaves you a cellar full of 1951, 1955 or 1958 Cabernet Sauvignons, or 1962 or 1965 Pinot Noirs, don't feel pressed to get through them quickly. They are getting along very well indeed.

THE ART OF COOKING GAME BIRDS

By Jacques Jaffry

Chef Jacques Jaffry prepared the roast mallard duck you see on page 88. Here, Jacques discusses game birds, how they are cooked here in America and in his native France.

The best, and for most of us, the most pleasant way of getting game on our tables is to hunt for it. This is as true in France as it is in America. But we cannot all go hunting, and the taste for game is still with us, a survival from our ancestors. Federal regulations in the U.S. unfortunately do not permit the sale of game caught or shot in the wild state. However, game specifically raised for that purpose on wild game preserves has, in the last 10 years or so, made its appearance on the frozen-food shelves of butchers' shops, so that we have now, in the U.S. at least, a constant and stable supply of game birds, quick frozen, ready to cook. France is still lagging behind in that respect, but the game fanciers there are not about to complain -for fresh killed game, hung with feathers and all for several days, is still superior to the frozen variety.

But whatever the source of supply, cooking methods and times are still very important. The main point in game cooking is that any kind of bird, large or small, should always be served sizzling hot and cooked just to the indicated point. There are two simple rules to follow: Remember to wrap the breasts of all but the fattest birds (wild duck and goose) with fresh larding pork, and above all, never overcook. In America people seem to think that long cooking makes game birds tender, but this is not true. On the contrary, too much cooking makes the meat stringy and takes all the flavor out. To be on the safe side, whatever your recipe may say, keep your birds rather underdone, particularly the small game, and you'll seldom have a tough or dry meat. At least it won't be your fault if you do. All birds of the air, field and forest have layers of muscle, pure lean meat, and little of the fatty tissue of domestic ducks and chickens. Some are tougher than others, and nothing at all can be done about that.

The most common game bird on the French table is the perdreau—the gray or young partridge, to be exact. This bird is not found in the U.S., although to add to the confusion that surrounds the nomenclature of game birds, some varieties of grouse—like the ruffed grouse—are called partridge in some parts of the U.S., and the quail, or bobwhite, is incorrectly called partridge in the southern states. In any case, my French recipes for grouse and quail are entirely suitable for American "partridge."

Grouse is found on both sides of the Atlantic, the ruffed grouse being the best known of the numerous species here. In France grouse is represented by two species, the gelinotte, or hazel hen, and the coq de bruyère, literally heather cock, which are found in high, wooded mountains. French and American recipes for grouse are interchangeable, the birds being very closely related, but again I believe that the American recipes overcook them. Grouse should be cooked rare to be really appreciated.

And so, of course, should wild duck. It will be tough and tasteless if cooked too long. This is one of the most popular game birds the world over, and from more than 100 varieties the most popular seems to be the mallard, known in France simply as canard sauvage or even just sauvage (wild) for short. Wild duck is often treated in the same manner as the domestic bird, using fruit stuffing or sauce. The time-honored sage dressing is excellent and so is wild rice. Canvasback and mallards have a special affinity for celery, so use it freely.

The wild turkey, to me, is the most delicious of all American game birds—in a young bird the skin is soft, fine-grained and velvety and the meat more juicy and flavorful than in its domestic counterpart. Its origin is uncertain, although most authorities believe that its original habitat was North America—in any case the North American continent is the only place where it is found. We have no dinde sauvage in France.

The wild goose is a splendid game bird but not what I would call a splendid food. The best-known varieties in North America—the brant, the Canada goose and the blue goose—are at best rather tough and dry. They should always be hung several days, and if there is any doubt about the age of the bird it should be braised rather than roasted. Oie sauvage is seldom eaten in France—my countrymen complain of its fishy taste—but I have successfully stuffed the American bird with prunes and raisins.

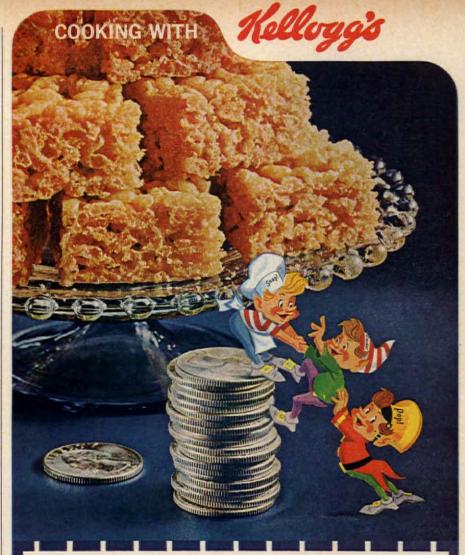

Pheasants have existed in Western Europe from time immemorial-the story goes that the Argonauts brought them from Asia, and there is a thirdcentury BC Etruscan metal mirror carved with a pheasant. The bird arrived in the U.S. from China in 1881. Pheasant is one of the birds—the others are the French partridge, woodcock and snipe-that should be eaten faisandé, meaning aged by hanging. (The word comes from the French for pheasant, faisan.) When hung and eaten at the right time the roasted bird is sublime. But if the pheasant arrives in the kitchen frozen and not hung, my advice is to make a salmi or a pâté. Otherwise you will find that your freshly killed and frozen pheasant, when roasted, doesn't even taste as good as a supermarket chicken. It is truly extraordinary that a country that hangs its beef cannot do as much for the king of game birds. However, the salmi is specially suited

However, the salmi is specially suited to the American bird, since the sauce provides the missing flavor. A pheasant pâté or terrine is good too, since for this the bird should not be hung.

Quail is always prepared in the fresh state. Hanging doesn't suit these fragile birds. America has seven species of quail and Europe only one, the common quail, or caille commune. The best-known American quail is the bobwhite, found mainly in the South. In France, the plump little quail, one of the smallest and most agreeable of game birds, is highly considered and belongs to the grande cuisine. We usually wrap it in a vine leaf, with a thin slice of larding fat, and sauté it. But in the U.S., where quail are more plentiful than in France, you have more recipes than we do.

The woodcock, or bécasse, is about the size of a small quail, but with darker meat and a gamier taste (it is always hung in France). Three varieties are found in France and one in the U.S. Broiling or roasting are the usual ways of preparing woodcock here, although it is not too well known as an eating bird. In France woodcocks are never drawn before being cooked, and the cooked intestines are pureed and spread on the toast squares on which the small birds are served. The French also apply pheasant recipes to woodcock, including salmi, which is the way it usually comes to the table in restaurants.

Snipe, the bécassine, an even smaller bird than woodcock, can no longer be taken in the U.S. I am not sure of the laws governing such tender morsels as larks, thrushes, wood pigeons and ortolans, but sentiment plays no part in a Frenchman's food, and these tiny birds are stuffed with grapes, braised in cream, perched on foie gras, and devoured. In fact we have trapped, shot and eaten so many game birds in France that we have practically exhausted our own resources. For instance, we are now obliged to import quail from Algeria. The way things are going the day of the frozen French bird is not far off.

1/4 cup regular margarine or butter 6-10 ounces regular marshmallows (about 40) or 4 cups miniature marshmallows

5 cups KELLOGG'S RICE KRISPIES cereal

1. Melt margarine in 3-quart saucepan. Add marshmallows and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until marshmallows are melted and mixture is syrupy. Remove from heat.

2. Add Rice Krispies cereal and stir until well-coated.

3. Press warm mixture evenly and firmly into buttered 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Cut into squares when cool.

Yield: 24 squares, 2 x 2 inches

Note: About 2 cups marshmallow creme may be substituted for marshmallows. Add to melted margarine and cook over low heat about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Proceed as directed in step number 2 above.

ROAST MALLARD DUCKS WITH APRICOTS

1/2 cup water

3 mallard ducks (about 2 pounds each)
Salt
Pepper
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 can (1 pound) whole apricots

Heat oven to 425°. Wipe ducks dry with paper towels. Sprinkle insides with salt and pepper. Truss. Brush with butter or margarine. Place birds on a rack in large, shallow roasting pan. Roast 15 minutes. Pour off fat from pan. Roast 15 minutes more, basting frequently with juice from can of apricots. (Wild duck is usually cooked rare or medium rare, never well done which will toughen it.) Remove birds to serving platter. Arrange apricots around ducks. Discard fat from pan. Add water to pan. Bring to boiling. Season to taste. Strain into sauceboat. Garnish platter with watercress, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS WITH CELERY

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cups thinly sliced celery
½ cup finely chopped onion (1 medium)
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon celery salt
1 can (13¾ ounces) chicken broth
1 pound fresh Brussels sprouts or,
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen
Brussels sprouts, cooked and

Melt butter or margarine in large saucepan over low heat. Stir in celery and onion; cook until just tender. Stir in flour, celery salt and chicken broth. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Add cooked Brussels sprouts. Heat thoroughly. Place in serving dish. Sprinkle with chopped parsley, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CARROTS AND POTATOES MOUSSELINE

1 pound carrots (about 12 carrots), pared and quartered
6 medium-size potatoes, pared
1/4 cup butter or margarine
Warm milk (about 1 cup)
Dash of freshly grated nutmeg

Cook carrots in boiling salted water until tender; drain. Cook potatoes in boiling salted water until tender; drain. Mash vegetables in large bowl with potato masher or electric mixer or put through food mill until no lumps remain. Beat in butter or margarine. Beat in just enough milk to make fluffy. Season with nutmeg. Makes 6 servings.

SPICED CRANBERRY-APRICOT RELISH

- 1 pound (4 cups) fresh or frozen whole cranberries
- 2 cups chopped, dried apricots
- 1 cup chopped, seedless golden raisins
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 21/2 cups water
- 1 cup sugar

Combine cranberries, apricots, raisins, orange rind, ginger and water in large saucepan. Bring to boiling over high heat. Reduce heat. Simmer 10 minutes or until cranberries have popped and are tender. Remove from heat. Stir in sugar. Cool. Store, covered, in the refrigerator until ready to serve. Makes 5 cups.

HAZELNUT TORTE

6 egg yolks
1 egg
3/4 cup sugar
1 cup finely ground hazelnuts
1/3 cup packaged bread crumbs
1 cup sifted cake flour
6 egg whites
Buttercream Frosting (below)
1/2 cup chopped hazelnuts

Heat oven to 300°. Beat egg yolks, egg and sugar about 5 minutes on electric mixer or until mixture is pale yellow in color. Gently fold in ground hazelnuts, bread crumbs and flour. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into batter. Butter 9-inch springform pan generously. Pour batter into pan. Bake 1 hour and 15 minutes or until cake is lightly browned and begins to shrink from sides of pan. Remove from oven; remove side of pan; cool cake thoroughly. Slice horizontally into 2 equal layers with a long, sharp knife.

Reserve ½ cup frosting for decoration. Spread about ½ cup over bottom layer; set top layer in place. Frost sides and top of cake. Sprinkle top and sides of cake with chopped nuts. Fill pastry bag with reserved frosting; attach medium-size star tube. Pipe rosettes around top of cake. Store the cake in a cool place.

BUTTERCREAM FROSTING

½ cup butter or margarine
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1 package (1 pound) confectioners' sugar, sifted
 3 to 4 tablespoons milk or cream
 2 egg yolks

Blend butter or margarine, vanilla and half the sugar. Beat in remaining sugar. Add milk or cream gradually, adding only enough to make a smooth frosting of good spreading consistency. Blend in egg yolks. Enough to fill and frost two 9-inch layers.

BRAISED PARTRIDGE WITH RAISINS 6 partridges Salt Pepper

1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup Madeira or sherry
1/2 cup orange juice
1 cup raisins

Heat oven to 400°. Season birds with salt and pepper. Melt butter or margarine in large skillet over medium heat; brown partridges on all sides. Remove to ovenproof casserole or small Dutch oven. Combine wine, orange juice and raisins in saucepan. Bring to boiling. Pour over partridges. Cover. Bake 30 minutes or until birds are tender. Remove to serving platter. Correct seasoning of sauce to taste. Pour over birds. Makes 6 servings.

WILD TURKEY WITH CHESTNUT STUFFING

1 wild turkey, 8 to 10 pounds

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

1 cup chopped onion (1 large)

1 cup diced celery

1 pound sausage meat

2 cups soft bread crumbs

2 cups cooked, peeled chestnuts

1/4 cup chopped parsley

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/8 teaspoon pepper

1/4 cup melted butter or margarine

Wipe turkey dry with paper towels. Melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine in skillet over medium heat, Sauté onion and celery until tender. Add sausage meat. Cook, stirring frequently, until meat has lost its color. Place mixture in colander to drain off fat. Combine meatvegetable mixture, bread crumbs, chestnuts, parsley, salt and pepper. Mix well. Heat oven to 450°. Spoon stuffing lightly into neck and body cavities of turkey. Sew up opening or lace closed with skewers and cord. Truss turkey with cord. Season with salt and pepper. Place, breast up, on rack in roasting pan. Brush with 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine. Roast about 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Reduce oven temperature to 375°; roast for 2 hours, basting frequently. Allow a total roasting time of about 15 minutes per pound. To test for doneness press thick part of drumstick between fingers protected with paper towels. Meat should feel soft. Or, move drumstick up and down. It should move easily. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

TAILGATE PICNICS By Virginia T. Habeeb Fall is open season for that great America

institution—the tailgate picnic. Whether it's the journey back to the big homecoming game or a crisp day' outing in the country, tailgating is one of the joys of the season. If fried chicken is your whole repertoir for a tailgate picnic, you're behind the times. Here and on the pages that follow are some menu ideas the will make the clan in your Pontiac the envy of the gang next door in their champagne-laden Bentley

Pumpkin pie and all the trimming.

Holiday desserts call for something special.

Something deliciously decorative. Like Cool Whip.

Non-dairy Cool Whip topping comes already whipped.

Rich and creamy. There's nothing to fix or mix.

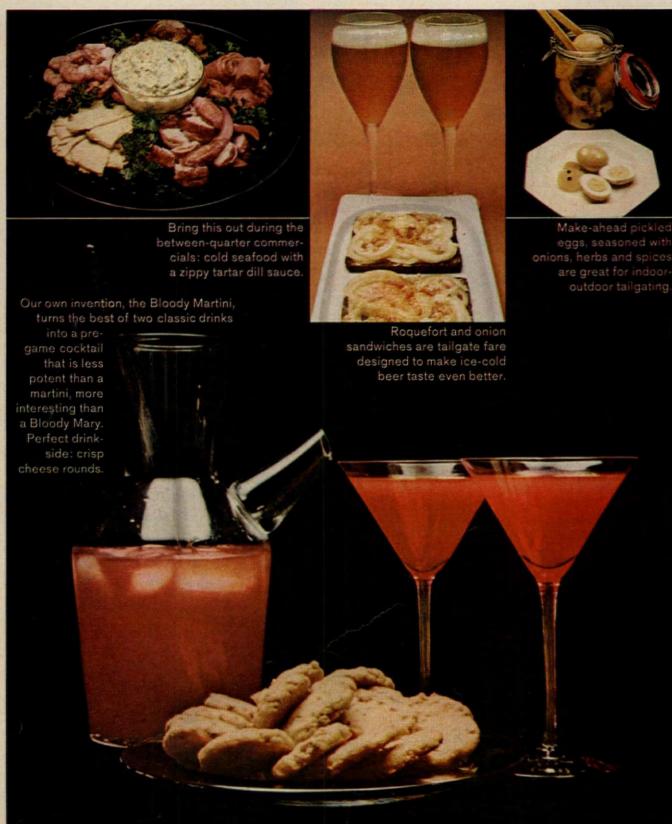

It's all the trimming you need for holiday desserts.

Or any dessert anytime.

pub food the whole game through

Since the football festivities may well start before noon and last until the wee hours, a football hostess can't be expected to serve a meal every hour on the hour. The answer is to have an appealing assortment of appetizers, snacks and drinks on tap where guests can serve themselves. Pub fare makes perfect fare for a TV-tailgate. We've developed a new drink, the Bloody Martini, designed for both male and female tastes. Recipes, page 106.

CHIPPED BEEF-HORSERADISH DIP

1 jar (3 ounces) chipped beef 1 cup dairy sour cream 1 tablespoon chopped green onion 1/4 teaspoon pepper Salt to taste

Empty chipped beef into small bowl; pour on boiling water to cover. Let stand a few minutes. Drain; dry with paper towels; chop beef. Combine with remaining ingredients. Chill. Pack in container with tight-fitting lid. Makes 1½ cups. Recipe may be doubled.

CORNISH LAMB PASTIES

These may be prepared ahead, refrigerated and baked just before serving.

3 packages pie-crust mix
2 pounds boneless lamb, coarsely
ground or chopped
2 cups diced onions (2 large)
½ cup chopped parsley
2 cloves of garlic, minced
¼ cup shortening
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
1½ cups cooked, cubed potatoes
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen mixed vegetables, cooked and drained
Butter or margarine
2 egg yolks

Prepare pie-crust mix according to package directions. Wrap tightly in plastic wrap until ready to use.

1 tablespoon water

Sauté lamb, onions, parsley and garlic in shortening until onions are golden. Add salt, pepper, potatoes and vegetables; toss; remove from heat.

Heat oven to 425°. Roll out pie crust on floured board to ¼-inch thickness. Cut into 6-inch rounds. (Use a saucer as a cutting guide.) Spoon meat mixture onto front half of each circle; dot with butter or margarine. Moisten edges; fold over. Scallop edge or crimp with fork. Prick top several times with fork. Place on greased cookie sheets. Mix egg yolks and water; brush on pasties. Bake 18 to 20 minutes or until golden. To keep warm when toting to a picnic, cool pasties slightly and pack in napkin-lined box or basket or wrap each one in aluminum foil. Makes 16.

PICNIC PORK CHOPS

16 rib pork chops, 1-inch-thick each
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/3 cup pure vegetable oil

Trim all fat from chops. Combine flour, paprika, salt and pepper in paper or transparent plastic bag. Shake chops, 2 at a time, in seasoned flour to coat them. Heat oil in large skillet. Brown chops on both sides in hot oil. Reduce heat; cook chops 30 to 35 minutes or until done. Cool completely before wrapping or packing to carry to picnic. Makes 8 servings.

CUCUMBER AND RED ONION SALAD

3 medium-size cucumbers
2 tablespoons salt
2 cups water
1 large sweet red onion
3/4 cup white vinegar
1/4 cup pure vegetable oil
2 tablespoons sugar
Few sprigs fresh dill, chopped or 1/2 teaspoon dill seed
Pepper to taste

Remove ends from cucumbers. Slice unpared cucumbers lengthwise thinly. Mix salt and water; pour over cucumbers; let stand 1 hour. Drain well. Slice peeled onion thinly; separate into rings. Toss with cucumbers. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over vegetables; toss until well coated. Chill. Carry to picnic in container with tight-fitting lid. Makes 8 servings. Recipe may be doubled.

SUGARED CRISPIES

Sugar

2 cans (9½ ounces each) refrigerated cinnamon rolls

Heat oven to 375°. Separate rolls. Sprinkle board generously with sugar. Roll out rolls in sugar, one at a time, until they are 5 inches in diameter. Add more sugar to board as needed. Place on greased cookie sheets. Bake 8 to 10 minutes or until light brown. Remove from cookie sheet with broad spatula. Cool completely on wire racks before packing to take to picnic. Makes 16.

PICKLED EGGS

- 1 dozen eggs
- 2 medium-size onions, sliced ¼ inch thick
- 2 cups white vinegar
- 1 tablespoon peppercorns
- 1 teaspoon whole cloves 4 sprigs fresh tarragon
- 4 bay leaves
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 2 cups water

Place cold eggs in warm water and let stand a few minutes. This helps keep shells from cracking during cooking. Transfer eggs to large pan of boiling water (there should be enough water to cover the eggs). Reduce heat; simmer 8 to 10 minutes. Cool eggs promptly in cold water. Peel. Place in hot, sterilized jars. Combine remaining ingredients; simmer 10 minutes. Pour over eggs. Seal jars. Store in cool place.

CHEESE ROUNDS

- 1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 cup oven-toasted rice cereal
- Dash of salt
- 1/2 teaspoon hot-pepper sauce

Heat oven to 350°. Let cheese and butter or margarine stand at room temperature to soften. Combine in mediumsize bowl. Blend thoroughly. Stir in flour, cereal, salt and hot-pepper sauce. Pinch off small pieces of dough. Place on lightly greased cookie sheets; flatten with spatula. Bake 15 minutes. Store in covered container. Makes 2½ dozen.

SEAFOOD WITH TARTAR DILL SAUCE

2 tablespoons finely chopped dill pickles

- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 2 tablespoons minced fresh dill
- 2 tablespoons drained, chopped capers
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- Salt
- Seafood

Stir pickles, parsley, dill, capers and pepper into mayonnaise. Add salt to taste. Chill. Serve with fish. Shown on page 104 are shrimp, lobster, smoked oysters, sturgeon, and smoked salmon. Makes 1 cup sauce.

YOU'VE GOTTA BE A FOOTBALL HEROINE By Jeanne Lamb O'Neill

In Niagara Falls, a young wife invited 30 people to an informal Sunday buffet and cried into her leftover lasagna when only three couples showed up. The rest of the husbands refused to leave The Game on TV.

In Baltimore, Maryland, a couple filing for divorce agreed amicably on everything except who was to get the two Colt season tickets. They postponed the divorce until football season was over.

In Grosse Pointe, Michigan, ten charming, attractive people sat around a gala postgame supper table tossing uncharming daggers at each other and speaking not a word. The Lions lost the game; Mr. Smith lost the battle of the Bloody Marys; Mrs. Smith despised football anyway; Mr. Brown called Mr. Green a near-sighted nincompoop. Mr. Jones said to Mrs. Jones: "I told you not to invite the Smiths"; and Mrs. Jones was sorry she'd invited anybody.

Am I exaggerating the way football has disoriented the American weekend, disrupted American social life, discombobulated the American housewife? A little perhaps. But, when you think of just the normal mix-up in mealtime hours and mores, the topsy-turvy TV games that turn day into night, the crazy traffic jams at the stadium, the wild endurance contest that goes from pregame brunch to game-time snort to postgame cocktail party—maybe I'm understating the case. Face it, wives of America, you're behind a silly, blown-up, ellipsoidal football.

Remember the crisp, lovely, togetherly autumn weekends of old? Husbands and wives raked leaves together, cleaned the garage together, planted tulips together—and maybe took in one or two nostalgic games at the old Alma Mater together. Remember when football was a haze of plaid blankets, marching bands, hip flasks and chrysanthemums—and nobody cared if a pretty (continued)

Coconut makes the pie crust that makes them remember the pie.

They'll flip over the whipped topping.

And the generous mounds of ice cream will drive them mad.

But just wait until they get to the coconut crust.

Baker's has come up with a deliciously different idea for a pie crust. Just fill it with ice cream or any of your favorite chiffon, sherbet or cream pie fillings. A Baker's Coconut crust or coconut added to any dessert creates a dessert that your family or your guests won't soon forget. We feel that if you're going to make a great pie, you might as well begin with a great crust.

Baker's Coconut. Desserts deserve it. Festive Strawberry Pie.

Combine ¼ cup melted butter and 2 cups Baker's®, Angel Flake® or Premium Shred® Coconut. Evenly press into an ungreased 9-inch pie pan. Bake at 300° for 20 to 35 minutes, or until evenly browned. Cool. Fill with 1½ quarts strawberry ice cream. Garnish with fresh strawberry halves. Top center with prepared Dream Whip® Whipped Topping and sprinkle with additional coconut. If desired, serve with a strawberry sundae sauce.

girl knew a field goal from a touchback or a halfback from the water boy? Remember 'way back when they played football in the fall—on Saturday afternoons?

Now the backs start tearing by at the crack of August. And they don't block that last kick until sometime in January. You might as well face it—the only parties you'll be giving or going to are football parties. How is a wife and hostess to cope? The awful truth is that the only way to beat 'em is to join 'em. You've got to pull up your socks, girls—knuckle down, Winsocki! and fight, fight! You've got to tote that blanket, lift that Bloody Mary.

Of course, there are all kinds of football parties. If it's a home pro game, you can give a brunch—and only disrupt the Sunday school and church routine, miss reading the Sunday papers, and stay up so late Saturday you sleep through the game. Or you can throw a postgame dinner party and pray that the home team wins and that you're not too bone-chilled and battered to move.

Then there's always the TV party. Does chaining a whole roomful of people to a little lighted box for three hours with tape across their lips seem an asocial, if not sadistic, form of entertainment to you? Never mind—just keep the glasses full and your mouth shut. Later or sooner, the game will end and all the merry laughter and chatter can begin—unless, of course, the home team loses. In which case, dinner will be a fiasco and your exquisite quenelles de brochet might just as well be dog biscuits.

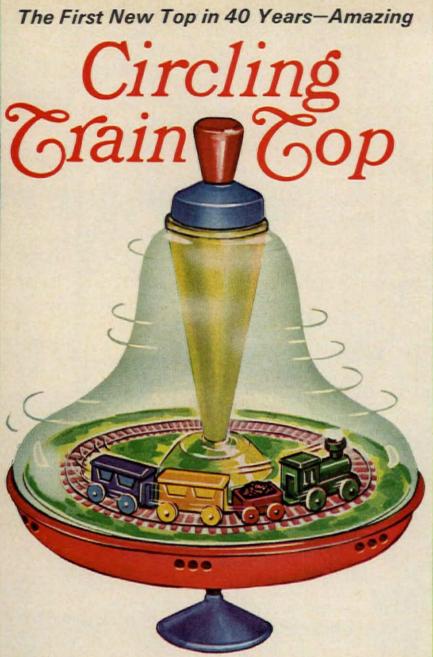

But suppose it's not the brunches or buffets or boobtube pigskin marathons that you hate about football? Suppose it's the real, live, in-the-gooseflesh game itself that turns you off? Well, nobody says you have to sit for hours on end, on your bench-bruised own, sipping warm beer or cold coffee in the freezing cold or blistering heat, bitter winds or drenching rain. You can always stay at home by your stony-lonesome and sulk. Let's say you go to the stadium with the rest of the shivering idiots. You might as well dress for comfort, not looks. Better safe than sexv. Men go to football games to watch football. They don't go to hover over poor little, feminine, freezing you. (Likewise, you could stand in front of the TV set screaming "Fire!" topless and get nothing more than a surly "move over.") Worse still, the days of dumb Dora are definitely over. Maybe you don't understand what "off-side" means and never will; maybe you still keep asking where Joe Namath is when the defense is on the field; maybe you can always tell who the good guys are because they wear white helmets-if you're smart, you won't talk at all. If you must talk, try collecting slippery gambits like "I don't think O.J. could ever hold a candle to Y.A." or "Well, if he's a Heisman Trophy winner, I'm Bronko Nagurski!"

I assume that most people know the difference between college football games and pro football games. Oh, not that business about the goal posts or one knee touching the ground. The difference is tailgate picnics. At least I've never seen anybody tailgating in a big city stadium lot, next to all those big smelly buses. Ask any woman—tailgate picnics are the best part about football. But remember, they're not all beer and skittles these jet-set days—they're more likely to be whiskey sours and filet mignon, fancy portable bars and elaborate grills, cloth-decked tables and folding chairs. Especially since you have to get up at dawn if you don't want to picnic in the shade of somebody's exhaust fumes on the highway. If you plan to join friends for a tandem tailgate, (continued)

you have to leave even earlier. You have to work harder, too. You can still get away with packing an anti-heroin picnic in the bosom of your family, bu it's embarrassing to dig peanut butte sandwiches out of a paper bag while the lady next door is serving vichysoisse and buttered croissants out of a fancy picnic hamper. (That's one reason we've be dazzled pages 100 to 104 with one mouth watering, status-making tailgate menu after another.) Actually, the only trou ble with tailgate picnics though is tha they're too much fun. Have you eve noticed how many wives there are be hind the wheel driving home from football game? (That's not really the reason we include indoor tailgate pic nics. We just think they're fun al fresce or al family room.)

Maybe women aren't supposed to lik football. Maybe men intended it to kee us out of their hair, like poker. Well, don't mind tending to my knitting ever other Thursday night-but not si months out of the year! I'm afraid Pet Rozelle and all the rest of them hav gone too far. What's more, they're goin even further. Would you believe Mon day night pro games every week is 1970? Did you know more teams may b added to the professional leagues? O that already more college games are be ing played at night-so George can go t one game in the afternoon and watch another one on TV at night? Would yo like to bet against late-late games and post-post playoffs and maybe a fev more Bowls some day? Let's see, w don't have a Fish Bowl yet.

Oh, I can read the writing on the wal and the stadium scoreboard and Mr Neilson's rating sheets. Item: footbal attendance at the stadium has almost doubled just in the past 10 years. Item the NCAA signed a TV contract for ove $10 million this year. Item: 6 years ag the N.Y. Jets sold for about $1 million—guess what now? Conclusion: football is not going to just go away like hool hoops and zoot suits, if we close our eyes

The way I see it, even if you've alway hated football (like me) and never un derstood football (like me) and get col feet (like me), you'd better jump of the brunch wagon. But, you knowfootball's not so bad once you get the hang of it and once your toes drop of In fact, many mature, intelligent, antifootball females even get to like the game. In fact, there's a fan born ever minute (like me). Go Joe! Kill him Bubba! Whaddaya mean, clipping? O side, my elbow!

BAKED CHICKEN ROSEMARY

2 broiler-fryers (2½ pounds each), cut up Salt

Pepper

1/4 cup butter or margarine 1/2 cup minced onion

(1 medium)
1 clove of garlic, crushed
½ cup water

- 1 envelope granulated chicken bouillon 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon leaf rosemary, crumbled
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice

Heat oven to 375°. Sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. Brown chicken on all sides in butter or margarine in skillet; remove chicken to shallow baking dish. Cook onion and garlic until golden in fat remaining in skillet. Add water and bouillon. Cook, stirring, until bouillon and all brown bits in pan are dissolved. Add parsley, rosemary and lemon rind and juice. Pour over chicken. Cover. Bake 45 minutes or until chicken is tender. Makes 6 servings.

MINTED FRUIT AND SHERBET

1/3 cup sugar

1 pint strawberries, washed, hulled and sliced balls 2 tablespoons chopped mint

11/2 cups honeydew melon

1 pint fruit sherbet

Combine sugar and water in small saucepan. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Bring to boiling. Boil 5 minutes without stirring. Cool. Combine fruits in large bowl; add sugar syrup and mint; mix gently. Chill. Serve over sherbet. Makes 6 servings.

SUBURBIA'S NEED: GOOD APARTMENT DESIGNS

It doesn't take much imagination to see what an asset garden apartments like the ones on page 82 would be to a community. But it won't take much looking around to convince you that apartments of this caliber are very rare indeed. The problem is that where garden apartments are concerned, suburban America is afflicted with schizophrenia. Some communities recognize the need for apartments, but in a completely indiscriminate way, allowing builders to put up any kind of design, regardless of how ugly it may be. Conversely, others dig in their heels and refuse to allow any apartments at all.

The fact is that despite the grave suspicions many suburban communities harbor, garden apartments can bring enormous benefits. That they can enhance the town esthetically is amply demonstrated by our award-winners. What is not so apparent is that apartments can also bring financial help to suburban towns that more often than not are taxed up to their eyebrows. While it is often thought that apartments tend to bring what are loosely referred to as "undesirables" into town, the truth is that they are the very thing that keeps "desirables" in town-young couples with few, if any, school-age children and older couples whose children have grown and who now appreciate the ease of apartment living over maintaining a large house. These families put little strain on the school system while the apartment's property taxes contribute considerably to the community till. Other town services follow the same pattern. On a per-unit basis, the cost of maintaining and plowing roads is much lower. And police and fire protection are also less expensive when spread over the denser population of the complex. So the question becomes not whether to build apartments, but how to build them well.

Most communities already have the municipal machinery by which apartments can be regulated; zoning boards which control where they can be built, planning boards which must approve the physical layout and architectural review boards which to some degree have a veto power over the actual design. The trouble is, these boards too often act as rubber stamps, approving any project which meets basic, functional requirements and sometimes actually opposing new or unusual designs. The battle here is to a considerable degree political and must be fought differently in every community. But if public interest can be aroused, the town fathers may be pressured to replace the rubber-stampers with people really concerned with raising apartment standards-architects and plannerswho can bring some real expertise to the situation. With the boards thus staffed, builders can be gently but firmly pushed in the direction of better design.

Oddly enough, the communities that adamantly refuse to allow apartments now are the ones that probably will construct the best planned apartments of the future. Once the towns are convinced that garden apartments are desirable they will be super critical of the ones they allow to be built. As a result, the whole community will benefit.

THE AMERICAN FUNERAL:

Useless tradition for the dead... or useful therapy for the living?

In an age of change and challenge it is healthy to re-examine traditions . . . to appraise whether they are useless relics of the past or have become customs because they serve human needs.

What about the traditional American funeral?

Beyond providing the dignity of a proper burial certainly it can do nothing for the person whose life is ended.

According to leaders in medicine, psychology, sociology and religion, the funeral ceremony does a great deal, however, for those whose lives go on. The bereaved family. Their friends. Their close circle in the community.

One thing it does is help those who grieve accept the reality of death. They know it happened. But a part of their mind rejects it, runs away from it.

The funeral service takes them gently by the shoulders and turns them to face it. And having faced it, having viewed it, things are easier.

Things continue to be easier (though it may not seem so at the time) as the arrangements have them talking with sympathetic friends at the visitation.

Unburdening ourselves seems to make room for courage. As surely as sharing joy increases joy, expressing and sharing grief lightens grief.

That's why even those without deep religious convictions adjust more quickly to life when they have observed the funeral rites. To the religious family, of course, the funeral ceremony, presided over by their clergyman, is not only a personal but a public profession of faith. In its sharing with others, it is a source of strength that passes understanding. For the family . . . for friends . . . for society.

Doctors Find Way To Shrink Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases—to stop burning itch, relieve pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids.

In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain and itching, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

The answer is Preparation H® – there is no other formula like it for hemorrhoids. Preparation H also soothes inflamed, irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

CATEANCY is down-to-earth! Tells you what to feel

CATFANCY is down-to-earth! Tells you what to feed your cat; dangers of meat-only or fish-only diets; what to do about cats that won't drink milk; about feeding dog foods, or baby foods, to cats and what to do about cat malnutrition. What to feed pregnant cats; what are best overall cat diets. CATFANCY is scientific: tells all about medication, anesthetics, tranquilizers, surgery; also facts about veterinarians.

CATFANCY travels you 'round the world and in history
... tells of cats that orientals feel 'waiver on the borderline between the natural and the supernatural" — of cats in Chinese Art, in paintings and ceramics, in Ancient Egypt and in Persian Art.

All You Want to Know About Cats.

CATFANCY prints Cat Poetry, Fables, Stories of Cat Personalities that ride high on owner's shoulders, keep a pet mouse, make friends with almost any animal alive. In CAT-FANCY you'll find almost everything about cats – the beau-FANCY you'll find almost everything about cats – the beautiful phenomenon of odd-eyed cats, how coat color mutations change a cat's psychology, and amazing how-to-do-it cat projects like how to build your kitten his own "Inside-Out-House." CATFANCY fights for cats, against anything that endangers cats – for good legislation to protect cats from accidents, starvation and scientific torture. Approved, supported, recommended by all authorities.

DEAR AMERICAN HOME

When a magazine undergoes such a complete face-lifting as AH has, beginning with the September issue, mail is bound to come pouring in. We are happy to report that most of you are delighted with our new size, our new look. Of course, there are those of you who loved us a little more the way we used to be, and we listen with just as attentive an ear to the sour as we do to the sweet music. We print an orchestration of both.

We've always liked American Home but talk about an improvement! Wow!

> Mrs. D.O. Lutes Portland, Indiana

Like most mothers and housewives, the only time available to me to do any reading is after I retire at night. The old size was just too large to hold comfortably while attempting to read the magazine in bed.

> Mrs. Sue A. Fisher Asheville, N.C.

It fits comfortably on a bookshelf and is easier to store and thumb through later for more enjoyment. Mrs. Glenn H. Chapman Durango, Colorado

I'm delighted that I'll now be able to relax in the tub with American Home without getting the corners all wet.

> Mrs. John L. Krause Riverdale, New York

What's happened to you
Cannot be a crime
You were the size of Life
But now, you're as big as Time.

Mrs. Margaret Blutreich Columbus, Ohio

My sincerest compliments for reducing the size instead of increasing the price. I consider this to be one of the very first blows to hit inflation. I hope the other large magazines follow your lead.

Mabel E. Gleeson Ballston Spa, New York A while ago I had decided not to renew my subscription when it expired. Since receiving the September issue of your remodeled magazine, I have changed my mind.

> Mrs. Agnes T. Defenbaugh Columbus, Ohio

If American Home continues in this vein, I may never let my subscription run out.

Mrs. Carl Baker Klamath Falls, Oregon

It's terrific! The ease of scanning through the magazine is now a complete pleasure.

> Mrs. Marcel Mancini Oak Park, Missouri

AND THE DISSONANT NOTES

In my opinion you have goof!

Mrs. J. A. O'Donnell

Topeka, Kansas

I wish to protest the new format. I do not like it.

Mrs. M. J. Bloch Little Silver, New Jersey

Some time ago I purchased your April, 1969 issue and subsequently became a subscriber. September was the first issue I received. Do you have two different publications? If so, I prefer the larger issue.

Burt P. Augustsen Paramus, New Jersey

I am pleased by the prospect of extra issues but frustrated by the smaller size. I felt I was looking through the wrong end of binoculars.

Mrs. Don Hart Boone, Iowa

ANSWERS FROM THE KITCHEN

Can you tell me how to keep bananas from turning dark in banana cream pie?

Mrs. Clara Gamble Phoenix, Arizona

Slice bananas just before they are added to the custard. If they are not going to be used immediately, dip the slices in or sprinkle them with canned or fresh pineapple juice, orange juice or lemon juice.

How can I keep the crust of my homemade bread crispy? It always softens as it cools.

Emily Watson Shohola, Pennsylvania

Make your dough with water instead of milk for a crispy crust. Set the baked bread in a cool place and do not cover it.

How long may whipped cream be kept in the refrigerator? Can I whip it before dinner to serve for dessert? Miss F. Crawley

New York, New York

Whipped heavy cream will keep in the refrigerator for 24 hours if kept well covered. If it starts to separate, rewhip with a wire whisk.

Are the dried seeds from California poppies edible? They look a lot like the poppy seeds sold in grocery stores, but are they safe to use in cooking?

Mrs. Calvert Redlands, California

The seeds from the California poppy are not the ones you find at the grocery store. They do not have the same flavor and are of no culinary value.

Please tell me what to do when the ingredients in Hollandaise sauce separate.

Mrs. W.H. Ballering New Berlin, Wisconsin

Curdling can be caused by too high cooking temperature, too long cooking time or too long standing over the heat before serving. It can be made smooth again by adding 1 tablespoon boiling water very slowly while beating with a rotary beater or a wire whisk. If sauce cannot be served immediately, it should be made in advance and allowed to cool. When you are ready to serve, reheat the Holiandaise over hot, not boiling, water for five minutes.

It sure is a load off Roy, since I lost 59 pounds.

By Kerry Chesney—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

Think I've changed?

If you've got a husband who likes you to sit on his lap—like my Roy does—all I can say is he better have fat knees. Or else don't eat the way I did, because poor Roy, being skinny, really got sat on when I reached 180 pounds.

You see, we live in the country. And we don't have all the fancy things folks have in the big cities. So for something better to do, I'd eat. Especially in the first years of my marriage, when I had two babies on bottles and in diapers at the same time. Why, I got myself so nervous, I just ate and ate.

Bread is mostly what I filled up on. For breakfast, I'd have four or five pieces of buttered toast, an egg, and maybe a pound of fried bacon. What's more, I'd have bread snacks between meals. Well, that kind of eating got to be a habit with me. As the kids grew, so did my appetite, until I reached 180 pounds.

Oh, I tried reducing lots of times. Mamma, who had a weight problem, bought all sorts of products. Then she'd pass them on to me, but I usually gave up before I got anywhere.

I guess it was having my two children go to school that finally made me take a good look at myself. Kids can be so cruel and I didn't want mine feeling ashamed of me because I was fat. So after a lot of looking around and reading catalogs and magazines, I decided to try that reducing-plan candy, Ayds. I bought the chewy vanilla caramel kind, but I noticed in the drugstore that they have a chocolate mint fudge and a plain chocolate fudge type, too.

I knew right off I had to change my eating habits, if I was going to lose weight. Couldn't be stuffing myself with bread all day long.

Well, I started taking Ayds like the directions say. One or two 15 minutes before meals with a hot drink. And Ayds really helped me curb my appetite, so I was able to eat less and lose weight.

Of course, I didn't rush things on the Ayds Plan. Losing was kind of gradual, so my skin didn't get all saggy. Matter of fact, when I got down to 140, I went off Ayds for a bit. Later, I went back on the plan and took off about 19 more pounds.

That's when Mamma told the whole CB radio audience I reduced. CB, incidentally, means Citizen Band. It's a two-way radio we have. And everybody, within 150 miles of me wish our CB radio could flash a picture of me over the air. Course one person who doesn't need any picture is Roy. He gets to look at me anytime. And I've kept that weight off for more than a year. Why, Roy's so proud, you know what he does? When we're having

Luttrell, Tennessee, got told I lost

It sure set people talking. Made company, he picks me up and shows everybody how light I am. So now you understand why I say: "Thanks to my reducing with the help of the Ayds Plan, it sure is a load off Roy."

Here I am on my husband's lap during the holidays. Some fat package, at 180 lbs.

DEAR AMERICAN HOME continued

I would like to know how long one may keep frozen foods in the freezer. I made a large pan of lasagna several months ago and now I am afraid to serve it for fear it has spoiled.

Mrs. Cory Briggs Castroville, California

If you select top quality foods, package them carefully, using moisture-vaporproof materials, and seal tightly, most foods can be kept six months. However, the length of storage varies with each individual food item. For more specific information about freezing foods, write Publications Division, Office of Information, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. Also, the American Home Cookbook has a chapter on the freezing of foods.

Please tell me why recipes call for ground beef to be browned in oil or cooking fat. I thought the meat had enough of its own grease to brown.

Mr. R. T. Horton Knoxville, Tennessee

As soon as the meat starts to brown, a certain amount of fat will drain out, but some extra oil or fat is needed initially to prevent sticking and burning. Could you tell me where I can find soft maple sugar? I would love to have some for Christmas cookies.

> Mrs. Maxine Castle Colton, California

Write to the State of Vermont Information Center, 1268 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10020. They have a product booklet listing stores in Vermont from which you can order maple sugar.

Why do manufacturers of potato flakes tell us to add cold milk when preparing them? I have always used warm milk when mashing regular potatoes.

> Mrs. Earl Johns Belvidere, Illinois

Cold milk is added to the boiling water to cool the water to the correct temperature for rehydrating the flakes. If the liquid is too hot, the final consistency of the potatoes suffers.

NURSERY BLUES

We are expecting our first child in January and have just started to shop for nursery furniture. I'm dismayed to find a wasteland—style and quality are totally absent. Our home is furnished with Scandinavian pieces and I'd like to keep the nursery in this same style.

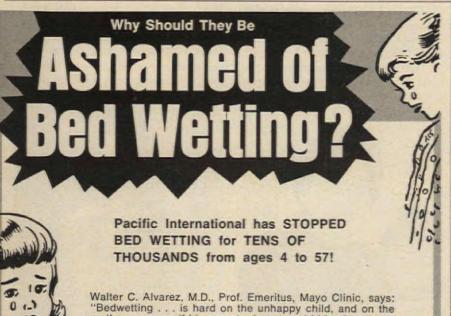

Mrs. R. W. Hilmer Bloomfield Hills, Michigan

We agree wholeheartedly about the dearth of good design in nursery furniture. It is a mistake, however, to think in terms of furnishing a room for an infant. It would be much more practical to buy storage pieces in the Scandinavian design you favor and add to them as the child and his needs change. Keep the colors and accessories young as these can easily be changed.

My boys are two and four years old and we have just moved into a new home with tiny bedrooms. Theirs are 9 by 10 and 10 by 11 respectively. I find them difficult to decorate; do you have any suggestions?

> Mrs. Bingham Kansas City, Missouri

Look at the boys' rooms on pages 76 and 77 of this issue. Although they are larger than the ones in your new house, you can easily adapt the simple, clear-cut style of decorating in the red, white and blue room. The room with the built-in bunk beds has more pattern but often a multiplicity of patterns can enlarge a small room. So can one pattern be used all over. Above all, don't worry, most small children feel most secure in small rooms.

Walter C. Alvarez, M.D., Prof. Emeritus, Mayo Clinic, says: "Bedwetting... is hard on the unhappy child, and on the mother... even if his parents do not scold him, he cannot help feeling that he is a terrible nuisance and a disgrace to the family." And bedwetting can go on and on!

The late Joseph G. Molner, M.D., Master of Public Health, who was a widely syndicated newspaper columnist, fully researched our program and stated: "Pacific International Ltd. does a better job of ending bedwetting problems than anyone else."

Pacific International—the largest organization of its kind in the world—has, over the past 19 years, ended bedwetting for countless thousands, ages 4 to 57. We can help you too providing the bedwetting is not caused by organic defect or disease.

Pacific International is approved and prescribed by many doctors. FIND OUT WHY MANY MEDICAL DOCTORS HAVE US HELP THEM WITH THEIR OWN BEDWETTING CHILDREN!

IDEA FOR A SNIFTER

We received an oversized brandy snifter for a gift and I would like to know what to do with it.

> Patricia B. Stuart New Orleans, Louisiana

This can be used very nicely when entertaining. Fill it with a mixture of nuts, dried apricots and raisins for pleasant nibbling or heap it with ice cream balls in three different flavors—strawberry, pistachio and peach, set it on a silver tray and surround with small bowls of mixed fresh fruit, chocolate sauce and whipped cream for making your own gooey concoctions. But best of all, why not just use it for good brandy.

WHAT'S "IN"

In your September issue you told a reader that an avocado-gold scheme is on the way out. What is an "in" color scheme?

> Mrs. Barbara Meyer St. Louis, Missouri

Schemes that include purple are considered very new this season, so are ones built around a collection of neutrals like putty beiges, taupe, khaki, all rather "muddied" colors. These look marvelous with a dark royal blue (almost navy) and some touches of lacquer red. Black and white is still going strong and the grays are making a comeback.

A GIFTED PEOPLE

Thank you so much for reminding me once again that my Yankee heritage is colorful and something to be proud of. I especially want to thank Mary Evans for her article "The Shakers: A Gifted People" (AH, September). Her sense of humor kept a realistic view of these people from becoming all negative.

Mrs. Konni DePaolis Pacifica, California

TRAVELING HOMES

I especially enjoyed the piece on double wide mobile homes (AH, September). My husband's job requires that we move frequently, which we all enjoy. But I am worried about the future. House prices won't go down but our needs will remain the same: a yard for the kids and dogs, privacy, 2 baths and at least three bedrooms. Maybe part of the answer lies in what can be evolved from the possibilities and opportunities in mobile homes. Please show more mobile homes and sectional housing innovations. Encourage your designers to work on them and help consumers visualize the decorating possibilities. You can perform an invaluable service in helping housewives like me answer the question: where will my family live five years from now?

> Mrs. Richard A. Carter Austin, Texas

A PAINTER'S NEED

I was especially impressed by your article on factory-built houses (AH, September). I am a painter in need of a studio, and if I were to build or remodel an old barn on my property, I would have to give up painting for six months—and I have three oneman exhibitions coming up. If the interior of the Deluxe Home Model can be tailored to fit my needs for a live-in studio, this is what I have been looking for. And the price is just right!

> Emilio Sanchez Water Mill, New York

KIT FANCY

I am so thrilled with my crewel map of the United States that I must say a special thanks for creating such a lovely design. I worked a total of 125½ hours on it and every moment was sheer pleasure. I look forward to many more exciting kits in your future issues.

Mrs. Felix N. LeBlanc Dayton, Ohio

The Fun Begins When The Lights Go Off!

Christmas Ornaments Glow in the Dark, Cost Five Cents! Won't Shatter, Wear Out, or Burn Out! Guaranteed!

(HOLLYWOOD) Now, for the first time, you can decorate your Christmas tree with amazing Magi-Glo ornaments that "come to life" when the lights go off!

Glow, Float in Space!

These unique gold, red, green and white ornaments add a festive spirit to the most elegant tree, under ordinary lighting conditions. But listen to the delighted gasps of surprise when you turn the lights out.

Then, in total darkness, your Magi-Glo ornaments continue to glitter, gleam, and glow and give the illusion of gently floating in space!

Won't Wear Out or Burn Out!

Magi-Glo ornaments will brighten your Christmas year after year! That's because your Magi-Glo ornaments can't wear out or burn

Magical Figures!

Magi-Glo designs embrace all the traditional, wonderful, magical figures of Christmas: Cuddly Santa Clauses! Darling Christmas angels! Sparkling stars! Delectable candy canes! Shimmering Christmas trees! Gleaming candles! Caroling bells! And many, many more!

'Accidental' Discovery!

A TV and motion picture producer accidentally discovered the secret process that makes this spectacular effect possible, while investigating special effects for a sciencefiction movie.

Because he didn't know that it "couldn't be done" he developed new methods using high speed lithography and injection moulding.

Then, inspiration! He found that his secret process made it possible to produce multicolored ornaments with sharpness of detail and delicacy of design that were never possible before.

They glowed in the dark - and could be turned out at the breath-taking speed of 200 per minute! Shatterproof Ornaments!

Next, he ruled out breakable materials, so even the children could share the thrill of trimming the Christmas tree. The final choices included specially treated, shatter-proof materials (durable enough for outdoor display!) and colorful metallic laminates on heavy stock.

Excited by the enthusiastic comments of his normally blasé movietown friends, he arranged for exclusive distribution by a reputable mail order firm. "I wanted to keep the price down,"

Set of 72 Only $3.50!

The successful result is the availability of Magi-Glo ornaments that glow in the dark with radiant, luminescent color. And they are priced so low that you can decorate your tree lavishly or even trim packages you want to 'outshine" the rest.

A deluxe assortment of 72 individual Magi-Glo ornaments, (averaging over 3 inches in height!), is bargain-priced at only $3.95. That's less than five cents apiece! And quantity discounts make Magi-Glo ornaments ideal for Christmas gifts. You save $1 on each additional set you order!

Magi-Glo's Guarantee!

You must be completely and unconditionally satisfied with your Magi-Glo ornaments -or you may return them within 10 days for a prompt and unquestioned refund of the purchase price!

Offer Is Limited!

Because supplies are limited and time is short OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED! Order NOW to insure delivery! Magi-Glo ornaments are available ONLY by mail!

DAYTIME PROTECTION

Give your dog the same protection famous sportsmen use on their valuable hunting dogs. You can see 1" wide PROTECTO twice as far as an ordinary dog collar. Brilliant Orange leather collar works like a policeman's orange as used for signals and signs. Makes it easy for hunters to see your dog.

At night, the scotchilite centerband reflects auto head-lights as far as 1,300 ft. Protects your dogs while crossing highway. Easily spotted with flashlight beam if you must search for your dog.

Your name, address, phone number, city and state are deepy stamped into the brass identification plate. Name plate double riveted to collar. Can be read by anyone inding your lost dog. PROTECTO collars identify and safeguard dogs that accidentally escape their kennel.

Hung up over dry taste?

Cleaning blackened bluejeans has made Tide XK No.1 with women.

Women are warm for Tide XK because of cold hard cleaning facts. They've seen the way Tide XK, with XK enzymes, goes after grubby ground-in dirt and grass stains. That's why number one isn't just a number with them. It's the powerful detergent that soaks out stains while it washes out dirt.

Norge packs No. 1

...in every new Norge VHQ washer. What a great washday team...Tide XK and a new Norge VHQ. Big 18-pound capacity, bigger than ever before. Multi-speed flexibility, extra slow speed for delicate hand washables. Automatic cool-down for permanent press. Norge VHQ—for trustworthy service year after year.

Tide has agreed with washer makers to supply Tide XK samples packed by them and to feature their washers in Tide XK advertising.

The makers of 25 leading washers pack Tide XK in every top-loading automatic.
