2022 AIA LOS ANGELES BOARD OF DIRECTORS SHOT ON LOCATION AT MITRA'S LOUNGE. PHOTO: TIBBY ROTHMAN

I am a child of a revolution. When I was 8 years old, the governing regime in Iran changed in what was called "the movement by the people, for the people." At this early age I became aware of the injustices and discrimination people faced due to their social and political views—and took to the streets to express hope for the future of my country and people.

Unfortunately, history had a different path for us. For safety, my family decided to immigrate to the United States. As an immigrant, even though I looked different, spoke with an accent, was the only woman and often was the youngest in the room, my experiences at 8 years old instilled in me a passion for ADVOCACY, RESILIENCY, and INCLUSIVITY and propelled my successful career in architecture.

Today, as a Partner at ZGF Architects, I strive to create a culture of belonging and personal value for everyone as we create meaningful human experiences with creative solutions for the built environment.

Although my story is unique, I represent many architects who didn't think they had a place in this profession. I would like them to know: they DO belong; AIA|LA is here to support their journey. Being part of AIA|LA has given me greater resources to use my knowledge and experience and pay it forward. I feel a personal responsibility to be of service to others in our profession and community.

As I have shared from my youth, ADVOCACY in our communities is critical. AIA|LA is a conduit for civic engagement. As design and technical professionals, and thought leaders, we have the expertise and responsibility, to advocate for solutions that foster the well-being of communities within the City of Los Angeles. The region will continue to confront issues such as climate change, a shortage of affordable housing, and racial injustice, all of which are impacted by the work we engage with daily. One particular opportunity of impact and influence for AIA|LA members is this year's mayoral race. AIA|LA is hosting conversations with candidates to provide members with an understanding of their positions, and candidates the value of our expertise.

In RESILIENCY we see the human ability to accept adversity as part of life. For 22 months we lived in an uncharted world of isolation, working from home, and concerned about the wellbeing of ourselves and loved ones. As we slowly walk into yet another new normal—hybrid work—AIA|LA, which provided resources to firms and practitioners throughout the pandemic, will provide expertise and knowledge-sharing accessible to everyone.

I believe in creating a profession through EQUITY by making room at the table for everyone, and by acknowledging the existing inequities and different paths we have all taken. We need to provide an environment where people who have differing backgrounds are heard. And, I personally, want to hear from ALL our members on how we can together address the challenges and opportunities that your unique point of view sees in the profession and in our city. This year, four uniquely-talented women representing different minorities hold positions on AIA|LA's Executive Committee. We say what we mean by being representative of the city we live in.

Finally, at the AIA|LA's scale, one year is too short to accomplish a true agenda of change and impact. I am working with the AIA|LA President Elect, Leslie Sydnor, AIA|LA, NOMA, who brings her own perspective, to ensure that mutually established goals carry over into next year.

I invite you to get involved and to stay connected to our membership that is growing above 4,500 members. I encourage you to reach out to our current Board of Directors if you are interested in getting involved but unsure how or where to engage. We have 14 committees, each with a different focus, that can be a place for you to contribute and learn. With challenges come great opportunities, and we are stronger together!

Change:

"the act or instance of making or becoming better"

Whereas 2021 was a year of transition, from the depth of complete isolation to happy moments of interpersonal in-person exchanges, 2022 is, for AIA|LA, a year of "change".

The Chapter has committed to making its newly created educational branch, Architecture for Communities Los Angeles (ACLA), operative, effective and successful in reaching out to communities, engaging in listening and conversing about architectural education and equitable urban design, and becoming part of the texture of our larger city conversation.

To this end, AIA|LA is moving to a much larger space that will become not only the home of the Chapter for the next decade, but also a hub for community connection. Our new home will be a square for idea exchanges, a destination for education, and an opportunity to network and to engage in productive and status-quo-changing discussions.

ACLA will be instrumental in programming the activation of the space – our Board of Directors are excited about the potentials and we look forward to the opening of this venue, in the Fall, to welcome not only the community of architects and designers but all communities to join us and help us "change", grow and become better.

May this be a year of positive changes all around.

Architecture for Communities Los Angeles (ACLA)

We bring the world of architecture to students, residents, and communities.

ARCHITECTURE FOR COMMUNITIES LOS ANGELES

Mission

Architecture for Community Los Angeles (ACLA) was formed to support the efforts of our schools, institutions, and practitioners to inspire, educate, and engage a wider spectrum of society in the design of our built environment. Our mission is to communicate the value of design to all people, including future generations, so that they can participate with us in making our communities better. Our outreach to K-12 students, their families, and others in the community is designed so that everyone can learn to understand and love design.

What We Do

ACLA enhances public appreciation for architecture and design, both locally and internationally, through outreach to students and the many communities of Los Angeles, exhibitions, lectures, tours, films, and other programs that reveal the richness of the design arts. The ACLA is a collaborative environment where architects and designers share ideas with communities.

Design by Diversity: Paul R. Williams Day

DxD is a once-yearly event that connects professionals to students across many experience levels to introduce interest in design professions at a young age and encourage retention of diverse design professionals at all stages of their career. This year's program was dedicated to the work and legacy of Paul R. Williams, FAIA.

On April 2, 2022, this Block Party style event at Los Angeles Trade Technical College, free and open to the public, included a variety of ways to engage, from information and activity booths to mentoring sessions, exhibitions, speakers, and more. The program welcomed students of all ages, parents, educators, professionals, and community members.

Keynote speakers Rachel Jordan Bascombe, AIA and Khan Muhamed shared their experiences and insights into design, equity, and the importance of serving the community. The PBS SoCal documentary Hollywood's Architect: The Paul R Williams Story was screened throughout lunch hours. PRW Day 2022 hosted nearly 40 partners from across the fields of architecture, art, design, construction, and engineering, all of whom offered amazing activities for students of all ages. Nearly 100 volunteers were available to share their experiences and perspectives on how to pursue potential career paths. More details on the event and the generous sponsors and partners who made it possible are available at https://www.ac-la.org/paul-revere-williams-day.

2x8 Student Competition and Exhibition

In 2021, ACLA & AIA Los Angeles presented 2x8: Assemblies, the 15th annual 2x8 exhibition. The opening and exhibition were hosted at Helms Design Center, and featured exemplary student projects from 19 architecture and design programs throughout California, to celebrate the diversity of architectural philosophy and encourage conversation around our central theme of Community. Please see the 2x8 chapter of this Directory for more information on last year's program, and please visit https://www.ac-la.org/ to learn more about the 2022 program.

About ACLA

The ACLA is a 501(c)(3) public charity. The ACLA's focus is to advance charitable initiatives on behalf of the architecture and design profession that benefit the community at large. ACLA President's Letter

Hello!

We are ACLA, Architecture for Communities Los Angeles, a non-profit charitable spin-off of AIA|LA and we are thrilled to properly introduce ourselves to the profession and the community. I am honored to be the 2022 ACLA President and look forward to meeting all of you at an upcoming event.

Our mission is to share the value of design with all people, especially future generations, so that they can participate with us in making our communities better. To do so, we want to engage in a meaningful way with the residents, youth, business owners, leaders, and other contributors of LA's diverse communities. Because we see young people from all neighborhoods as the future of design, we want to inspire and support them along the way so they may one day help strengthen their communities or even consider a career in architecture. To better serve our diverse city, our underlying goal is for our profession to better reflect our population by encouraging more people from underrepresented backgrounds to enter the design profession and help facilitate a pathway for them to do so.

In this light, I've created our Design by Diversity (DxD) Committee to produce programs and foster partnerships that help achieve these goals. We believe that great design requires a diverse team. Our ideal Los Angeles is filled with exemplary design created for and by all Angelenos.

We have established two committees to accomplish these goals: The Academic Outreach Committee (AOC) and the Community Engagement Committee (CEC). Both committees are open to everyone, and I encourage you join us and get involved in any of our initiatives.

The AOC will focus on education: from inspiring young people about architecture, to supporting current students of design, and educating the community about the benefits of good design. We currently have two annual flagship academic events, the legacy 2x8: Student Exhibition and Scholarship Program and the inaugural DxD: Paul Revere Williams Day. In addition, we plan to host our first Student Summit this year bringing together college and university students from the vast array of programs in the region for a day of discussions, seminars, and workshops.

The 2x8 program celebrates its 20-year anniversary this year and we are excited to celebrate with our biggest show yet. We will be showcasing exemplary student work from 20 different design schools across California and reflecting on the evolution of the program. I'm calling it 2x8x20, and I am proud to have been a part of the 2x8 program since its inception and can't wait to honor this milestone in person with all of you.

The Design by Diversity Committee hosted their inaugural amazing block party style event 'Paul Revere Williams Day' this April. We were thrilled to see students engaged and inspired by the many enthusiastic professionals, partners, and volunteers that made the event so meaningful. The team is already looking forward to next year's event and are hoping to reach many more students, from K-12 to community college and university students of design.

The Community Engagement Committee is planning several programs, resources, and events that will help us better connect our architecture & design community with the broader community of all Angelenos this year. We strive to listen directly to feedback from the community so that we may learn how to best serve, inform, empower, and collaborate. Currently in the works are a pilot program for informational/interactive pop-up tents at local farmers' markets, mapping workshops to engage a breadth of different perspectives on LA, an interactive online GIS map as a search tool for the community, and design-related resources that are readily and freely available to everyone.

Lastly, but perhaps most importantly, the AIA|LA and ACLA are thrilled to be moving into a new space centrally located in the West Adams neighborhood. For the first time, AIA|LA will be headquartered in a freestanding building, complete with a flexible indoor event and exhibition space, and large adaptable outdoor space. We look forward to using this opportunity to become an architectural community center as a semi-public resource facilitated through architecture.

With an exciting year ahead of us, we can't wait to see you at our upcoming events, welcome you to our new building, and get to know the people in our new neighborhood!

Advocacy/Government Affairs

AIA|LA Legislative Day at City Hall 2021 Connecting Architects & Designers with Civic Leadership

The architecture community is an essential voice to help shape policies that impact planning, land-use, zoning, and the building code. Because most local policies and regulations impact the built and natural environment, including the perspective of architects & designers earlier in the process achieves more optimal outcomes.

In addition to meetings, programs and initiatives throughout the year, we met with city and regional leaders during the month of December 2021 to present our issue briefs, reaffirm where our objectives align with theirs, and advance our platform.

The 2021 AIA|LA Advocacy Platform

1) ADOPT THE ZERO CODE TO ACHIEVE CARBON NEUTRALITY

Our Request:

As an integral part of that goal, we request to have City Council officially adopt the 2022 Zero Code for California. At present, 52+ cities in California have adopted all-electric reach codes and the City of Los Angeles has the opportunity to go one step beyond. The Zero Code for California expands on the 2022 energy efficiency standards adopted by the California Energy Commission by:

+ requiring on-site or off-site renewable energy,
+ eliminating the direct use of fossil fuels in buildings, and
+ specifying beyond-code energy efficiency

Adopting the Zero Code will also directly benefit LADWP's renewable energy programs with both on-site generation and/or off-site procurement of 100% clean energy.

We look forward to collaborating with the Neighborhood Council Sustainability Alliance, the Climate Emergency Mobilization Office, and the LA Cool City Challenge Team to integrate the Zero Code and other building decarbonization strategies into the plan.

2) STREAMLINE, FOR REAL THIS TIME!

Our Request:

For LA City Council to champion and financially support a comprehensive audit of the inter-departmental clearance process with the aim to:

+ Streamline the process to clarify outcomes, save time, and lower the cost overhead of city personnel
+ Sunset clearances that are either no longer socially relevant and/ or at cross-purposes to our larger goals for housing affordability and community resilience.
+ Optimize a technological interface (Build LA) to quicken interaction and improve customer service
+ Update and modernize the policy & regulatory outcomes that City Council is hoping to achieve and re-assign the policy agenda upstream so that goals and objectives do not rely so heavily on project-by-project feasibility.

This request aligns in support of the recent motion (CF 21-0658) from Councilmembers Nithya Raman and Marqueece Harris-Dawson to expedite the approval process for affordable housing and a motion (21-0054) Councilmembers DeLeon, Price, Rodriguez, and Blumenfeld to streamline the permitting process for permanent supportive housing.

With more architects at the table, we will be able to share on-the-ground insight about how the existing departmental clearance process is causing severe snags, delays, and uncertainties that damage our ability to deliver housing to all Angelenos.

3) INVEST & PRIORITIZE TREES FOR RESILIENCE, SHADE EQUITY, & ENVIRONMENTAL JUSTICE

Our Request:

AIA|LA requests that City Council update its Capital Improvement Expenditure Plan to ensure more equitable, safe, and healthy communities, and to establish a viable funding source to expand tree canopy, especially in underserved neighborhoods.

Furthermore, to ensure that we are prioritizing our investment in trees, AIA|LA recommends:

+ Prioritize urban forest equity at the front-end of reviewing development projects and analyze its relationship to trees at the inception of the permitting process.
+ Create a "save/protect the tree" & "grow the canopy" culture
+ Integrate the concepts of LASAN's 2020 Biodiversity Report across all city departments.
+ Fully fund a street-level prioritization plan with an inventory of each street in Los Angeles.
+ Maximize space for larger trees by re-designing our streets, sidewalks, and parkways.
+ Expand the equity framework to include parks, expand tree canopy in existing parks and on all public facilities), and add additional park space in underserved communities.
+ Update the Street Tree Space Guidelines to optimize flexibility and ensure more locations for street trees.
+ Collect GIS data for all infrastructure (such as utility meters, pipes, poles, overhead power-lines, street signs, etc.), consolidate their placement/ impact on the public right-of-way, and optimize more space for trees.

4) EXPAND ACCESS TO HOME OWNERSHIP FOR BIPOC COMMUNITIES

Our Request:

AIA|LA requests to have City Council support the "Accelerated Equity Housing and Transit Development" Pilot Program.

The program will create a 65/35 loan ratio for Black and Brown people to afford a home, plus 3-income units. If adopted, the program will create nearly 300,000 rental units, improves the quality of life around transit stations, and generates $2 billion in new county tax revenues.

The pilot program will create a new business model and advance urban design solutions for underserved communities. This model will occur through a facilitations team in a public-private partnership with local and county government that serves as a master developer. The master developer can utilize existing Metro TOD visioning and strategies for underserved communities combined with scattered site developments of four-plexes as new homes for Black and Brown first-time home buyers. It includes existing single-family homeowners who wish to add accessory dwelling units, along with first-last mile corridor improvements, development of commercial, industrial, technology and retail facilities adjacent to and in proximity to transit stations.

This pilot program aims to: (1) replenish the culture of communities of color, (2) grow household incomes safely, (3) bring a new generation of the existing culture home to create a new vibrancy along the commercial corridors and be role models for the young children, and (4) provide affordable rental units for family and friends of the existing neighborhood and most important, (5) for government and banks to make amends and correct economic damages caused though historical redlining practices.

To create success in the absorption of Black and Brown families to afford a four-plex or remodel Mom's house and add 3 ADUs, the pilot program seeks a 30% federal subsidy for each buyer and/or remodeler. This enables a person or family to make a low down payment of approximately $50k. In addition, we are making a business transaction that is mutually beneficial to community, government, and business market. It generates new revenue and grows local market economies while mitigating the impact of gentrification, creating vibrant diverse communities that still reflect the local culture.

AIA|LA and ACLA Strategic Plan 2021-2024

How can the American Institute of Architects Los Angeles chapter better serve you, our members, and increase the value of your membership?

What should be the goals, strategies, and tactics we pursue to elevate individuals and increase the influence of the field?

Beginning in 2020, AIA|LA began to look again at our Strategic Plan and update it for the coming three years. Part of this process involved assessing what people and groups we need to engage with (including any missing segments), and what types of programs, initiatives and resources we should add or enhance to fulfill the five major goals of our mission. Our Board also discussed how AIA|LA's mission and vision relate to and intersect with those of Architecture for Communities Los Angeles (ACLA.)

AIA|LA would like to thank the following Board members who have taken the lead on reviewing and revising our strategic plan to effectively serve our members and the wider Los Angeles community over the next three years:

Pooja Bhagat, AIA, poojabhagat architects+planners, Director (through 2021)
Ziba Ghassemi, AIA, Unibail-Rodamco-Westfield, Director
Wade Killefer, FAIA, KFA LLP, 2021 Chapter President
Fabian Kremkus, AIA, CO Architects, Director (through 2021)
Mitra Memari, AIA, ZGF Architects, 2021 Vice President and 2022 President

As well as our 2022 Strategic Plan Task Force, who continue to manage and develop this effort:

Ziba Ghassemi, AIA, Unibail-Rodamco-Westfield, Director
Nathan Bishop, AIA, KoningEizenberg, Director
Chava Danielson, AIA, DSH // architecture, Secretary
Ismar Enriquez, AIA, HED, Director
Christiana Kyrillou, AIA, Woods Bagot, Director

Based on these goals, strategies and tactics are being developed for the Plan to serve as fundamentals for programming, advocacy and activity through 2024 and beyond:

- Value – Increase the value of membership and engagement
- Relevancy – Proliferate the power of design and architecture to the entire LA community
- Inspiration – Promote the significance of architecture as an integral part of life
- Inclusivity – Increase diversity, equity and inclusion across the profession
- Advocacy – Advocate to improve the life of communities through design

Our Members' Voices

Design Matters

The work we do – our designs, our buildings – are increasingly called upon to address, and provide an avenue for, solutions to some of society's most intransigent problems. We should be clear minded as practitioners, understanding the consequences our projects have, not only on the quality of life of our clients, but on the neighborhoods, urban contexts, and material environments they inhabit and impact. The social issues are significant; our projects are often on the front lines of neighborhood anxiety over gentrification and displacement. The burdens buildings and construction impose on the health of our planet compel us to reassess materials and methods the profession has been relying on for decades.

And yet, within and amongst these conversations - and the charges placed upon our projects - we cannot set aside the responsibility to create beauty, to embrace and assert the place for architectural vision; when we fall short, our world is poorer for it.

It's time to take a minute and remember why we're here. The art of architecture is one of synthetic thinking and original solutions. Amid this sea of voices our responsibility as professionals lies in crafting projects that are at once thoughtful, intelligent, lasting - and beautiful. When we transform all the demands put upon our efforts into something that goes beyond a simple solution and enters the realm of the beautiful, the striking, the inspiring, we communicate to each person that experiences those ineffable qualities of architecture that the world can be transformed, that the world can be different.

Our education as architects is a process where we are given and taught tools empowering us to project realities that do not yet exist. This is remarkable. Unlike the creation of a painting or a novel, our work is required to incorporate the full materiality of our lives – the legal structures, material properties, human occupation, environmental qualities – into a form that has never before been realized.

In my practice one of the most constrained but important project types we undertake are sites for early education, which often rely on federal funding and very limited budgets. After every real-world demand takes its bite, a small window remains. It is an opening, an opportunity to assert a point of view, a vision of the possible. I have seen that expression, that instance of architecture open minds in a profound way. Delight, inserted in the world of these children, resonates immediately. The message that the world can be different is loud and clear.

In the narrowest of circumstances, where there appears to be little space and few opportunities for this voice to be heard, is when it becomes most important. Architecture is powerful; design matters.

2×8: Assemblies

2021 Architectural Student Competition & Exhibition

ON November 6, 2021, ACLA & AIA Los Angeles were proud to present the opening reception for 2x8: Assemblies, the 15th iteration of the annual 2x8 exhibition.

Designed to support next generation designers, 2x8 introduces student work to architectural firms, architects, and the public--while recognizing exemplary work by awarding scholarships. Initiated by ACLA's sister organization, the AIA|LA, 2x8 was launched in 2002.

Students, faculty, families were once again able to gather in person at Helms Design Center to view exemplary student projects from 19 unique architecture and design programs throughout California, to celebrate the diversity of architectural philosophy and encourage conversation around our central theme of Community.

This year, 2x8: Assemblies presented more than $25,000 in scholarship awards through its annual scholarship program, raised from community members in the AEC industry. As in past years, a respected jury evaluated the submitted projects and awarded prizes based on merit.

This year's theme regards the dialogue surrounding Community in Los Angeles and other urban centers across the country in the face of Covid and all things socially distant. The name refers to a group or community of people, and also to the process of building where disparate parts become a whole. Students submitted presentation materials and 3D models that responded to the theme with innovative solutions.

Exhibition Design

PORO-City, a colorful modular crate system, was designed by Martha Kriley, Assoc. AIA; Kyoung Eun Park; Chieh-Ting Chuang, Assoc. AIA; and Yushan Men, winners of last year's 2x8 Exhibition Design Competition.

You can read more about 2x8 in the article by Katherine Guimapang in Archinect:

Emerging Professionals at AIA Los Angeles

In 2021, AIA|LA was honored to receive the AIA California's Academy for Emerging Professionals Chapter Award—the highest award given by the AIA CA AEP to an AIA Chapter in California for the development of programming and for fostering the highest qualities of leadership within the Emerging Professional membership.

As a very active Chapter, with a large and dynamic group of Associate and Student members, we constantly challenge ourselves to create relevant experiences and resources, and to provide support at crucial stages of their careers.

The 2x8 Student Competition and Exhibition, now under the umbrella of Architecture for Communities Los Angeles (ACLA), returned to an in-person opening and physical exhibit for its 2x8: Assemblies program in 2021. The competition will return with a new theme in 2022.

Led by a group of Associate and recently licensed AIA members, the Emerging Professionals Committee co-presented "Training the Next You" with the Practice Committee in July 2021. Last August, EP also hosted an in-person tour of the Arroyo Bridge Project (a joint venture of USC and Autodesk, along with the sponsorship of MADWORKSHOP, a nonprofit design education foundation co-founded by David and Mary Martin.) In November 2021, they launched an intensive ARE study group that is providing review sessions, online study materials, mentors and guest speakers for a cohort of 17 members, as well as mutual support and encouragement through the preparation and testing process.

In addition to their annual POWERFUL conference, focusing on women as design and thought leaders, AIA|LA Women in Architecture also present Speed Mentoring, employing small group discussions and a speedy exchange of information to discuss goals and professional challenges. The program is an efficient way to rapidly build your network and exchange strategies of success in the design profession.

The past several years also saw a surge of interest among Emerging Professionals in Encompass and the programs of the J.E.D.I. Committee and Latinx Subcommittee, discovering ways to further awareness and change in the areas of justice, equity, diversity and inclusion within the architecture profession.

We want to make membership, programs and events as affordable as possible to all—to ensure a place for EPs and all they have to contribute. AIA|LA offers free Chapter membership for students, free Associate membership for recent graduates for up to 18 months after leaving school, and graduated dues when Associates become licensed and advance to Architect membership.

We also encourage Emerging Professionals to lead or participate in Committees alongside Architect members, based on what interests them: whether that's a particular knowledge community, building typology, demographic, or core value. We invite you to contact Committee chairs or the Chapter Office with your questions and ideas.

AIA California Academic Summit 2021: Making Architectural Education a Path to Prosperity

How are we preparing students for the realities of practice? In October of 2021, AIA California's Academic Summit brought together educators, practitioners, emerging professionals, and students for an important discussion about finding opportunities for our future professionals to prosper. A dynamic group of speakers featured Derek Leavitt, AIA; Angela Brooks, FAIA; Sarah Lorenzen, AIA; Jonathan Segal, FAIA; Aaron Greene, NOMA; and Doris Sung, AIA. The discussion was moderated by AIA CA Architectural Education Task Force Co-Chair Don Caskey, FAIA.

AIA California VP of Professional Development and Education, Mark Graham, AIA, introduced AIA CA Architectural Education Task Force Co-Chair Michael M. Hricak Jr., FAIA as facilitator for the Summit. Lauren W. Bricker, Ph.D., Assoc. AIA, provided an overview of the role of architectural education.

Task Force Members also included Annie Chu, FAIA, NCARB, IIDA; John D. Ellis, AIA; Kurt C. Hunker, FAIA; Keelan P. Kaiser, AIA; Robert R. Murrin, FAIA; and Mark A. Roberson, AIA; supported by AIA California Staff: Nicki Dennis Stephens, Hon. AIA, LEED Green Assoc. and Debbie Salindo.

From financial literacy to the access and value an architectural education offers, big questions were asked. How does one educate the next generation in the business of design? How does one incorporate value, ideas, and modern day technologies into education so students are set up for success? Why is there a distinct separation between studio and professional practice?

Planning is underway for further conversations and summits in 2022 and beyond. These conundrums, and others sure to arise within the higher education context, will continue to be discussed. For now, we leave a larger question to consider: Can the discipline and the profession be transformed to be inclusive whilst creating graduates who are of even greater value to practice, to the industry, and to society at large?

AIA Los Angeles will also continue to explore many aspects of the academic experience through discussions with faculty and students, our Board, our firms, and our members.

Earlier this year, we asked several of last year's panelists to expand on their thoughts regarding the study of architecture, and how it can better prepare students for the practice and the working world.

My thoughts on architectural education and the economic well-being of our graduates:

A majority of architectural educational models today are "progressive," based on the teachings of American philosopher John Dewey. Basically, this means an architectural education that is organized around having students ask questions and test their answers through their design projects. At Cal Poly Pomona we even use Dewey's dictum "learn-by-doing" as the motto of the university.

A more radical educational model that emerged after Dewey, called "social reconstruction," pushes his ideas further. It asks that together, teachers and students alike use school to question the rules and social structures that govern the world that we live in. For example, asking students to question the causes for inequality or questioning the role that government plays in determining how we live.

I believe that this is a worthy effort. To do this, students should begin to understand the systems that influence what we build and who we build for. Helping students understand the economic and government instruments that are at play in shaping architecture is also a way to have them become engaged citizen architects once they graduate.

At Cal Poly Pomona Architecture (CPP ARC) we work hard to have students learn the discipline and give them a common professional knowledge base (including construction methods, new technologies, materiality, and form-making techniques), not to be at the service of conventional practices, but to give students the necessary grounding for them to question, reconsider, and shape architectural rules and conventions.

One of the ways that we can make the profession more equitable and financially sound is for us to have a seat at the table when local, state and federal governments shape the laws and codes that determine how we build and how we permit what gets built. This is a pivotal role for the AIA at the national, state and local level. In 2021 I was Chair of AIA LA's Government Outreach Committee (GO!) and one of the things we worked on was pushing our building department to streamline the permitting process. Entitling and permitting place an enormous financial burden on firms, particularly small firms. This seriously cuts into profits and as a result, this limits what firms can pay employees. The complexity of the system also makes it difficult for architects to strike out on their own to become small business owners.

I find it puzzling that even though as architects we are the ones designing what gets permitted, planning departments are almost exclusively made up of urban planning graduates, building departments are made up of civil engineering graduates, and lawyers write the policies that govern the built environment. Why aren't we architects involved in these agencies? Partially because we aren't training students to understand the rules and laws that govern what gets built. We place little value in teaching these subjects, so we are relegated to only following rules instead of shaping them.

My suggestions for changes to a curriculum that architecture schools should consider include:

- Add more content about codes and rules, the history of these rules, how and why they were written, and the processes used to shape (and change) them.
- Encourage students to take urban planning courses.
- Encourage students to take business courses.
- Teach courses that explain the financial structures behind development – pro-formas, structure of financial instruments, etc. When I was chair at CPP ARC we added a required course called "The Architect and the Development Process" that was designed to give students knowledge on the ways that projects are financed.

Creating programs that allow students to prosper once they graduate involves helping students understand how rules, regulations, and financial instruments shape the built environment. It is through this understanding that architectural graduates will be able to question the status quo and have greater agency in shaping what we build, how we build, and who we build for. Placing architects at the center of these conversations is critical if we want to improve our influence on our society and the economic well-being of all people (including architectural graduates).

Our current society exists in an extraordinary state of flux, data exchange, and the merging of virtual and tangible realities, all while simultaneously continuing to live in extreme growing forms of tremendous inequality. As architects, we not only have the ability to be affected by the fast-paced changes of this era, but we have the opportunity to effect transformation through the power of design. Design permeates every aspect of life. From the cradle to the grave, the built environment acts as the container of life, delineating not only spatial boundaries, but also articulating the quality of humanity's existence. As architects are considered the "master builder" and architecture has been thought of as the "epitome of a society's values, priorities, and faith focus", our ability to affect the present and the future through the value of our services implores us, both academically and professionally, to fully engage in the continuous cycle of recognizing the issue(s), understanding the context, preparing the solution, manifesting its reality, and revolutionizing the process.

It is now more imperative than ever for architects to rise to the occasion by re-interweaving academia and practice in order to wield this power of design, through engaging in deep research; fostering a greater understanding of tectonics; intentionally focusing on cultural awareness and understanding; embracing activities that lead to empathy; comprehending varying economic realities; and assuming our rightful place as "stewards of the earth" through the holistic employment and implementation of sustainable design in order to more fully and intentionally create the future, rather than wait for it.

Inclusive Architecture

From the Block to the Beach, the 6th annual "Encompass: Inclusive Architecture" conference, focused on the expanded access to urban resources and the search for land use justice within two distinct communities in Southern California: South Los Angeles and Manhattan Beach. Encompass 2022 took place on the mornings of March 24-25, 2022.

Though BIPOC home ownership is at its lowest rate in decades, exciting progress was made in 2021 to rectify racist land development, opening possibilities for bigger, bolder action. A deep dive into the mechanics of local reparations efforts and creative community acquisition methods highlighted opportunities for architects and designers to strengthen civil rights in the Southern California region during this historic time.

Creativity Conference 2021
Blurring Boundaries

Presented by the AIA|LA Interior Architecture Committee

Where does your creative inspiration as an architect come from? A favorite building? A beloved city? Or another architect that inspires you? If you were to dig deeper, you'll find the answer entwined in your life story…a transporting novel, a moving music score or an evocative abstract painting. What about other creators? How did they achieve creative success?

Creativity Conference 2021 explored the work and creative motivations of artists and designers outside of architecture, discovering the sources of their intellectual and creative energy. By taking a look at the worlds of product design, art, filmmaking and curation, we saw how alike and different creative processes and lives are. We looked into the parallels with our own engagement with the human experience and explored how the creative boundaries can blur, setting up the potential for multi-disciplinary approaches. In seeing how others create, architects find new inspiration for their own designs.

This virtual conference took place on the evenings of May 18 and 25, 2021.

Design for Dignity 2021
A Conference for Housing

Our 6th annual Design for Dignity conference highlighted best practices and the work of the architects, contractors, housing developers, clients, funders, and service providers who deliver housing and supportive services to people and communities throughout the region.

This year's conference included a new element: a series of 10-minute 'deep dives' (20 individual short talks in all) that showcased built projects and successfully implemented programs (and coalitions), from which we can learn more about what's working well, and identify specific areas where we need to improve processes, procedures, and outcomes.

Design for Dignity took place virtually on June 24 and 25, 2021. The support of abode communities | architecture and Egan | Simon Architecture makes this conference possible. Thank you.

Purposeful 2021
An Architecture in Healthcare Workshop

Does healthcare still work the way we designed it to work? Or is it like a computer with too many apps running in the background? Each of us has our own thoughts about what needs to be reloaded, or quit. At PURPOSEFUL 2021, we shared those thoughts with each other, face-to-face, after a very long time, and exchanged everything from great ideas and revelations, to simple tweaks that might make a big difference in delivering care.

PURPOSEFUL 2021: REBOOTING HEALTHCARE took place – at last in-person, outdoors, vaccinated, and voluntarily masked – on August 18 at DPR Construction in Pasadena. Our annual event featured refreshments, interactive group participation, moderated discussions, and in-person networking with a diverse panel of owner and provider experts. The group shared our collective thoughts and experiences—personal and organizational—and together, sparked some new ideas to take us forward in healthcare design and delivery.

Women's Work: On Our Own Terms

Powerful 8 explored and reclaimed 'Women's Work' on our own terms, through dynamic talks by a confluence of acclaimed designers, firm leaders, emerging voices, and thought leaders from across the country.

Attendees were invited to participate in a 70-minute focus group tailored to their specific career path. (An outgrowth of previous years' lunchtime breakouts, these sessions were reduced in number but increased in length to offer more information, and richer connections with others with shared interests.)

POWERFUL 8 took place virtually, on the mornings of September 24 and October 1, 2021.

AIA|LA Technology Conference 2022

The 2022 iteration of our Technologies Intensive took place virtually on February 25 and covered placemaking of the future, happening now. It presented a slew of emerging technologies that are essential to designers, architects, and built environment professionals striving to provide best services to clients and stay current with new capabilities.

This was a tightly programmed morning full of real-world applications that Architecture firms can leverage TODAY. The Technologies Intensive provided an opportunity for professionals to:

- Walk away with a deeper understanding of how Data Driven Design, Digital Twins, and AR | VR can be tapped to expand client services.
- Discover how to leverage technologies already in use, such as BIM, to offer new deliverables.
- Find out how to widen their own firms' capacity by augmenting existing digital design workflows with real-time business intelligence.
- Access groundbreaking information beneficial to designers and architects at firms of all sizes, but especially helpful for small and mid-size firms with lean resources. And break ground themselves with a virtual hands-on workshop.

The 2022 symposium took place in-person at April 22, 2022, at Zipper Hall at the Colburn School in downtown Los Angeles.

Through expert speakers, we explored diverse regenerative cultures and best practices for transitioning to a circular economy, re-examined how we conduct business, and highlighted rapid and necessary shifts in culture and consumption. The goal was to better manage impacts between the built and natural environments, encourage ways for designers to create balance within these systems, and explore new ways in which we can actively seek to rebuild the social fabric of our cities.

Presentations focused on building equity, emphasized human and environmental health, and instilled future generations with a sense of empowerment and advocacy to influence designs as well as policy.

AIA|LA 2021 Design Awards, Next LA Awards and Presidential Honorees

"Elevating. Exuberant and restrained. Sublime. Living creatures. Materially rich." These are just a few of the words used by a design awards jury to describe the 2021 AIA|LA Design Awards winners, announced by the American Institute of Los Angeles Chapter on October 28.

In all, 21 built projects were awarded, which the jury also characterized as exuding "urban generosity, a sense of dignity, timelessness"; while 16 as yet unbuilt projects were named Next LA winners. The latter were honored for being "subtle yet strategic, fantastic public space, sleek, meticulously crafted, breathtaking"; "bold contributions…and engaging social space", and more.

"What is important to note, as an architect, as President of the AIA Los Angeles, and as a resident of the Los Angeles region, is the expansion of sustainability strategies that are seamlessly integrated in aesthetics," said AIA|LA President Wade Killefer, FAIA, Partner Emeritus, KFA Architecture. "Los Angeles continues to be a forward-leaning capital of architecture. Designers based here, and the architecture realized in the city, demonstrate how design may be harnessed to address the pressing threat of our time, climate change; and the crisis of so many people without housing."

This year, all Design Awards entrants were required to be signatories to the American Institute of Architects 2030 Challenge, which is set off by actions to meet Paris Climate Agreement targets. To be considered for Honor Awards, firms were required to submit energy data in the AIA's 2030 Design Data Exchange platform—a tool that tracks energy usage and other metrics in order to improve carbon performance.

Recipients are awarded with Honor, Merit or Citation awards, with "Honor" being the highest. This year the typology of each building is noted for reference purposes; for instance, Adaptive Reuse/Renovation/Historical Preservation or Commercial/Mixed-Use.

Typology: Adaptive Reuse/Renovation/Historical Preservation

HONOR
Foster + Partners and Gruen Associates
Tower Theatre
Los Angeles, California

The jury really appreciates the care and level of detail taken with the restoration of this existing theater building. It's great to see a company like Apple rethink their standard retail typology to embrace adaptive reuse within existing contexts in an urban area. At the same time, the design still celebrates the kind of volume and spatial characteristics we associate with the brand. It's a real act of urban generosity to restore this, which is pretty much a white elephant, and they've made it this wonderful thing that they're sharing with the city.

CITATION
Good Project Company
Westbrook Residence Remodel

What is great about this home is that they improved the original, while staying true to its character and by really sensitively thinking through all the stages in a very complicated way. That's the issue with any kind of renovation. They're living creatures. They ripped out the pretty nice kitchen and put in something that actually made more sense, but that feels original. The new design augments the original house while retaining the timelessness of Neutra's design. The contemporary interventions feel at home in this place.

Typology: Affordable Housing

HONOR

Koning Eizenberg Architecture, Inc.
Flor 401 Lofts
Los Angeles, CA, USA

This project is very successful urbanistically. The courtyard is not only a sustainable design feature that brings daylight into the interior, but also an environment that feels personable and individual and simultaneously contributing to the scale of the neighborhood. It's really great. The rigorous use of color is both exuberant and restrained. We'd like to see more supportive housing projects rise to this level.

Rainbow Bridge at Seaside Way
Long Beach, CA

Elevating the public works project into something that's really a wonderful place in itself—that stitches together the city very thoughtfully—that's a whole area of design which we could really use more in design. So often, good designers or good designs are excluded from this kind of infrastructure. They did some very creative engineering too. This feels like Long Beach. You can imagine the vibrant activity and use of this bridge in its context. It's nice to see this much creativity stemming from the standard infrastructural template.

MERIT

Zoltan E. Pali, FAIA | SPF: architects
WE3 at Water's Edge
Playa Vista, CA

They really use the pragmatic concerns of shading but maintaining views in a very rigorous way, and generate a real compelling aesthetic from it. It's a very much oriented building. The elevations are reflecting their orientation and they're making the design of it out in a really wonderful way. The approach to the facade is very successful: it feels considered, rigorous and systematic. Both sides relate and contribute to the whole while also differentiating from each other. The primary facades are also responsive to the building's orientation.

One of the most successful parts of this project is how it negotiates its site to break open the campus and to create a new means of entry. The building gathers people in through the really large, welcoming stairs at the entry. The massing and geometry of the building inflects to open up and allow the passage through without becoming overly articulated. This would have been an easy building to do too much [to]. It's restrained, and has a narrative which makes it work. The solid panels are a really great way to not do an all glass building. They came up with a great solution with this very unified but random profile system, which is impressive and creative. Because: the best way to shade glass, is to not have it.

MERIT

CO Architects
Health Sciences Innovation Building

It has a great orientation strategy responding to the various directions this facade is facing but it's doing it in a way that's exuberant but organized. The building uses the strategy of the loft and the porch to successfully break down the scale of a fairly large building. It's effectively done here with the juxtaposition between those two parts — rather than a melding of complexity, the loft and the porch are very complementary to each other. The building is materially rich with a high level of resolution at the macro and micro level, both at the exterior and also with complex interior spaces and finishes.

It's completely appropriate that a campsite like this would embrace passive strategies. It's nice to see that they delivered on that. The jury loves the reinvention of the typical cabin or the tent with this little A frame for the individual cabins. The project is very nicely detailed, using really simple materials, and SIPS for their performance characteristics. This is a very successful new cabin prototype. Mass timber floor system is a great use. It is pretty and really simple. It looks like a really nice place to hang out.

A fantastic connection to the landscaping, which is really wonderful in this sort of facility. Really incredibly flexibility and uses strategies that go beyond simple calculation of energy use per square foot into making a really comfortable space in a truly indoor/outdoor southern California way. This pavilion successfully creates one of the most coveted spaces on a university campus—the large, column free, flexible environment. Passive strategies are on display with the indoor/outdoor spaces the pavilion offers.

CITATION

It has a sense of dignity, but at the same time it's almost a civic scale. It's really a very effective almost monumental building, while being modest at the same time. This is a surgical addition that reinvents the relationship of the existing building to its campus context. In turn, it transforms the experience of the overall building and theater. The building is carefully considered, with a facade that is compositionally very strong within a restrained set of materials and moves.

The extruded building form is really sublime. It's really gorgeous. It's clear that it softens and makes it a more welcoming kind of building on this tricky site, very effectively through contrast and opacity. Having that transparency at street level invites people to come into the Interior.

It's really nice to see a project like this embrace exterior unconditioned circulation space and integrate it with the building with these fins and screening of the facade. Makes a super clear circulation diagram. They're taking the shading and they are making this open air passage. It's just really quite beautiful.

SoFi Stadium and Entertainment District at Hollywood Park

Over the top glam project that it feels like it breaks new ground, in this topology and this sort of sports architecture. This looks like a shelter and stadium where you want to be—like a good place to go. So often the cover stadiums are claustrophobic, and this really has this great feel about it of festivity and celebration and lightness. The success of this project is the roof, which really stretches over the stadium proper and engages its surroundings and landscape. It really feels like the building welcomes people to it and softens the approach to the stadium, in part also because it's providing shelter and shade over a larger territory on the site. The building is also integrated with the landscape strategies surrounding it, so it feels very pedestrian oriented, which is nice.

The Carapace Pavilion
Joshua Tree, California

It's taking a very simple thing, which is a shade structure and making it into something that feels almost ritualistic and wonderful with the way it sits on the land. It's really elevating that simple shade structure; Joshua Tree is a place you want to be in the shade. The pavilion has both simplicity, and playfulness with its perforation and its own shape and geometry. The practicality of knowing it can be fabricated off-site and delivered and assembled all in one day is impressive. All of these attributes transcend its simplicity in a good way.

Typology: Interior Architecture

HONOR

Combines amazing feeling of purity and sleekness, but at the same time it feels warm. When you go to the dentist you don't need to be challenged too much, you want to relax before they start doing things to you. It feels serene. It feels calming. You feel like this really creates an environment of relaxation, almost like you're going to the spa. It really is surprising for this type of clinic, but very well detailed. The interior environment really elevates the experience of visiting this space.

The way they've connected this very simple typical LA strip architecture and connected to the history of the site and made it this really wonderful space, which has a transition from outside to inside. Very well done. The celebration of color with the tile, the mosaic and the vaulted ceiling is a really nice surprise at the entry, compared to what you imagine from the street. It's really transformative for the Interior of the project.

It's just a beautiful translucent place. It's permeable and the idea is air goes through it. It's minimal, but warm. Interweaving these like courts and just gorgeous. The garden is beautiful, low water intensity, but a gorgeous piece that you move through. Effortless, and this is achieved with great effort. It's great to see the massing strategies bring daylight in with this carving of space and these indoor/outdoor relationships. The cladding strategy also brings daylight in and while providing shading. There is an integration of solid walls with the screen surfaces that unifies the expression of the house in a really successful way.

Being off the grid and having this really modest scale–this is a very pristine landscape where it is, and it floats out of it effortlessly. It has to be modest in its needs because it's providing all its own energy. The jury would love to see more houses of this type that are off the grid, in a single-family residential category. This project combines that environmentally appropriate approach with really thoughtful and well executed detailing with the pavilion like structure.

One of the positives of the village is the access to daylight and the outdoors and creating sense of autonomy within the community. This project is also really impressive because it was designed and erected very quickly, obviously addressing a challenging need, not just in Los Angeles but in many cities. It's obviously replicable and it's really elevated beyond many of the tiny home villages which. You want to make them more engaging to the general public, so that they are not viewed as something that they want to get rid of. This really helps that.

The jury appreciate this approach, taking the manufacturing building all under one roof and, with one kind of infrastructural system, accommodating a significant number of housing units, plus the kind of medical services component. It's really impressive. It strikes the right balance of playfulness with its interior roofline that breaks down the scale of the shed to the scale of the human in a way that's appropriate. It feels well oriented in this space. The use of color and graphics helps with a sense of orientation to create a real sense of place at the interior. This Is important in a warehouse structure, which can be disorienting due to less access to daylight.

The design solutions for invigorating a street and a neighborhood have been meticulously crafted. The integration of public life with public art and urban landscaping succeeded in doing more than the ordinary, the familiar. What we have is a bold contribution to a neighborhood that is revivifying its roots. This is a civic investment in urban mobility, commercial revival, and social consciousness. The architects created an urban streetscape and outdoor museum that can have immediate positive impact but can grow and prosper into the future.

Using subtle but strategic intervention, this design transforms an often overcrowded walk into a cohesive streetscape. With the 'more space for people' created by the widened sidewalks and enhanced bus stops, to name just a few of the proposed improvements, the overall effect is a safe and engaging community space. The project master plan addresses the micro and macro design elements that are essential to creating a civic boulevard that lives up to its famous history. 2021 AIA|LA Restaurant Design Awards

The Restaurant Design Awards took a break in 2020, but returned to honor eateries for offering up food and comfort during a challenging year that demanded resilience and ingenuity.

The categories are: Built Restaurants & Cafés/Bars, Unbuilt Restaurants & Cafés/Bars, Built Al Fresco Restaurants & Cafés/Bars, and Unbuilt Al Fresco Restaurants & Cafés/Bars.

The 2021 AIA|LA Restaurant Design Awards were presented in partnership with the Latino Restaurant Association. Nine restaurants, cafes, and bars (selected by acclaimed jury members) and three "People's Choice Winners" were honored for offering stellar design on the West Coast of the United States and Mexico.

Jury:
Timothy Hollingsworth – Restaurateur / Chef

Michael Hsu, FAIA, IIDA – Founder and Principal, Michael Hsu Office of Architecture

Sarah Kuta – Writer and Editor

The 2021 Awards were announced at a party at the A+R Showroom in ROW DTLA on Thursday, August 19, 2021. Seventy-five designers, architects, restaurateurs, clients and team members joined for a lively reception amidst the internationally renowned resource's modern furnishings, lighting, decor, and housewares, sourced from Scandinavia, Japan and points in between.

"This is the fourteenth year that the AIA|LA has organized the Restaurant Design Awards," said AIA|LA Executive Director Carlo Caccavale, Hon. AIA|LA, who was the originator of the program. "The…Awards were initiated to highlight how designers work in concert with restaurateurs and chefs to provide a backdrop that enhances and supports cuisine. These last eighteen months have demonstrated just how much people rely on the community offered by restaurants to enliven their lives. Designers foster community through placemaking."

2021 AIA|LA Residential Architecture Awards

How does an international design jury—London, Milan, Los Angeles—view contemporary residential design in Los Angeles, contextualizing it within the city's reputation as a mecca for designers, a lab for innovation, and a pioneer of solutions addressing societal challenges?

The answer is in the 30 winners of the 2021 American Institute of Architects (AIA|LA) Residential Architecture Awards (RAA), announced on May 26, 2021. And in the words of the jury members who selected them: Peter Culley, Intl. Assoc. AIA, ARB, RIBA—Creative Director, Founder Spatial Affairs Bureau; Monica Mazzolani, Giancarlo De Carlo Associati, and Founder, MTA Associates; and Ruth Wallach—Associate Dean for Public Service, University of Southern California, Libraries.

"I saw the confidence to reference and create something new and quite refined," said the London-based Culley, speaking about this year's recipients as a group. "Here's an emerging contemporary culture that somehow sits within modernism."

From the perspective of European countries, said Mazzolani, who is based in Milan, "Los Angeles is [an] icon of modernity… but also from [the submissions] it is a link to the legacy of the last century."

Culley also noted a uniqueness of approach: "There's a light-heartedness in some of the projects—that, I think, is a bit of an LA thing—through the various genres. We've seen architects who understand how they're operating, take it to a new level, reference back—whether it's to modernism, or even, tongue-in-cheek nods to Spanish revival," he noted.

This was the sixth iteration of the Residential Architecture Awards program, founded to recognize Los Angeles' influence on residential design. The RAAs have expanded over time to seek answers to such current societal crises as the increasing number of Angelenos without shelter, through the addition of categories that support designers and clients providing affordable and temporary housing, as well as accessory dwelling units and multiple multi-family housing types.

The 2021 AIA|LA Residential Architecture Awards were graciously presented by MASS Beverly, Minotti Los Angeles and Thermador. Southern California Edison presented the AIA Los Angeles Climate Positive Residential Design Award.

A good example of adaptive reuse for the social good, providing transitional housing with semi-private sleeping spaces. | Unusual lighting and acoustical scheme modulates what was originally an open-plan rectilineal warehouse. | The building seems to offer an acceptable level of privacy, despite the need to provide shelter to as many guests as possible. It constitutes an excellent example in the use of disused factories for this purpose. | The tone of the inner space is palpable, expressing specific care even in the sobriety of the design. | Both inside and out, a sophisticated use of color and graphic creates, presumably on minimal budget, a self-assured and yet welcoming mood.

The partnership between public and private for the investment in permanent structures recognizes personal dignity [for] this fragile population. There is a calm complementarity to the color scheme. | Commitment to bringing in natural light within the deep footprint and so 'taking on' the existing warehouse space is very effective.

The Project's narrative is compelling and expresses a natural quality in sharing spaces that directly achieve a balanced relationship between sharing and privacy and communicate an identity that belongs to the entire resident community and represents it. | The composition of the volume is well controlled, and the use of open spaces is remarkable. | We applaud the commitment to vegetation, ensuring that the 'treehouse' project name remains a powerful guiding principle. | Very effective response to this emerging typology that builds on earlier examples of part-communal living (early 20th Century Venice hostels) and shared outdoor spaces (ubiquitous Los Angeles ding-bat apartment blocks).

Notably, both turn their narrow sides to the street, humanizing the actual scale of their conversation. | Beautiful and correct–the use of the double wooden-skin related to the perforated sheet metal on aluminum frames of the former house. | The wooden curvilinear sculptural forms feel completely under control in relation to the streetscape, landscape and the other buildings, avoiding the potential realms of the cartoon or one-liner.

Being light-hearted in outlook as well as deferential towards the revered neighbor shows a certain confidence and laissez-faire attitude, and so forms an important exemplar for this relatively informal neighborhood. | The interaction of volumes expresses balance and integration between architecture and landscape. The connections between the volumes interpret the naturalness of the context by relying on natural light and all its variations throughout the day. The wood, metal, and glass surfaces are appropriately integrated and express an extraordinary control of the detail. | Provides a respectful contrast to its historic neighbor while directly speaking to the hillside terrain and the reservoir below. | The main pavilion plays with the idea of a fun-filled family campground outing while simultaneously paying homage to mid-century modern design.

Architect: Atelier David Tellerman, Paris. 2021.

Within this monolithic structure, there is a feeling of peace, solitude, and isolation. A beautiful balance of pattern and repetition while emphasizing the form and space of the image. The synergy of the trio is entrancing! | These images transport us to a land of wonder and imagination - the geometric patterns and the interplay of light and shadow accentuated by the architecture is nothing short of magical, and the formality of the straight lines and hard shadows highlight the wonder of this place. The photographer has seamlessly weaved these images into a storybook - one that fills our imagination and makes us wonder, although we are afraid to go there to avoid disappointment that the site itself could not compete with the photographer's skill and vision. | This collection of images was striking not only for its immediacy of intent but its poetic silence. It brings the viewer in and opens up a new window into a moment of time that was captured with clear intention, sublime composition, and the orchestration of light that ultimately is unmatched in any of the other work we reviewed. Both architectural and aspirational, these photographs have a timeless sensibility and contrast that is profound, soft yet hard, black and white yet colorful, quiet yet loud; they echo in our memory as a reminder of how great photography can impact us all. Truly Amazing!

An outstanding capture highlighting tonal contrast and intersecting and curved leading lines that create a compelling and mesmerizing photo. Absolutely stunning! | The curves of this staircase lend a sensual quality to this image, while the abstract nature of the framing of this image forces us to get lost in its curves and shadows and the various geometric shapes that emerge as you wander through the photograph. It is very difficult to make an image of a location that has been photographed a million times, as in the case of the Arc de Triomphe in Paris. In this case however, the photographer chose to show this landmark wrapped in fabric created by artist duo Christo and Jeanne-Claude, and shows us something unfamiliar about a very familiar subject. What makes this image special is the overall grey tonality of the image that seamlessly 'bleeds' into the sky, along with a plaza almost devoid of people makes its presence otherworldly.

Working with an AIA Architect: Frequently Asked Questions

1. Do I need an architect for my project?
   If you haven't worked with an architect before, you may wonder whether your project really requires it. Particularly if your project is your personal residence, it may not seem necessary. No one can tell you definitively whether you require the services of an architect, but we encourage you to explore this site to learn more about what architects do, and watch the video case studies to see how architects affect their clients' satisfaction with the final building project.

2. What services do architects provide?
   Architects see the big picture when it comes to your project. They help you explore what appeals to you aesthetically and what you require functionally. They coordinate teams of design, engineering and construction professionals; they sort through the maze of building codes and zoning requirements; they ensure your project is built the way it was intended. For a detailed list of services architects provide, please visit https://www.topicarchitecture.com/.

3. Why should I hire an AIA architect?
   Members of the American Institute of Architects adhere to the AIA Code of Ethics and Professional Conduct, assuring you of their dedication to the high standards of professional practice. AIA architects also fulfill annual continuing education requirements to maintain their professional standing and to stay current in the profession.

SVJATOSLAV ANDREICHYN/SHUTTERSTOCK.COM

4. At what point in my project should I involve an architect?
   As soon as you decide you want to build something new, you should start looking for an architect. Architects provide important pre-design services including site evaluation, and can help you explore options you may not have considered. Involving an architect early in the process can help avoid costly missteps, and increase the likelihood of your satisfaction with the project.

5. How do I find the right architect for my project?
   It is critical to find an architect who makes you feel comfortable, and with whom you have open communication. It's also important to find an architect with experience in your project type. You can contact your local AIA Chapter for a list of architects who work in the building typology for your project.

6. Don't architects add substantial cost to a project?
   While it's true that architects' fees are an additional project cost, hiring an architect can actually save you money in many ways. Architects can monitor your budget and negotiate to get the best materials and workmanship at a good price. An architect's design can reduce energy and maintenance costs. They can turn a difficult lot into a successful building site. And they spend time planning and fully developing your ideas to avoid changes once construction is underway.

7. How are architects compensated?
   An architect's compensation can be based on time, a stipulated sum, a percentage of the cost of the work, the project's square footage, unit cost (based on number of rooms/apartments, etc.), or royalty in which compensation is a share of the profit derived from the project. Time-based compensation and stipulated sums are most common.

8. What's my role in the design process?
   Your architect will depend on you to communicate about your design preferences, functional requirements, and budget. Your timely response to questions and design submissions will help keep the project on track. It is also important for you to raise any concerns you have as the project proceeds, so they can be addressed in the earliest stages. Working in partnership with your architect, you will help ensure the best possible outcome for your project.

Twenty Questions to Ask Your Architect

1. What does the architect see as important issues or considerations in your project?

2. How will the architect approach your project?

3. How will the architect gather information about your needs, goals, etc.?

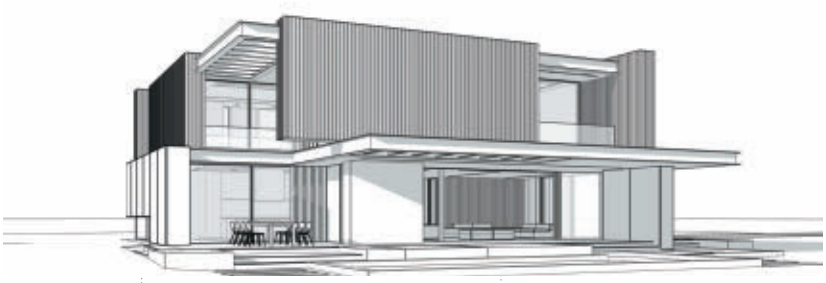

4. How will the architect establish priorities and make decisions?

5. Who from the architecture firm will be dealing with you directly? Is that the same person who will be designing the project? Who will be designing the project?

6. How interested is the architect in this project?

7. How busy is the architect?

8. What sets this architect apart from the rest?

ISTOCK.COM/KORSBO

9. How does the architect establish fees?

10. What would the architect expect the fee to be for this project?

11. What are the steps in the design process?

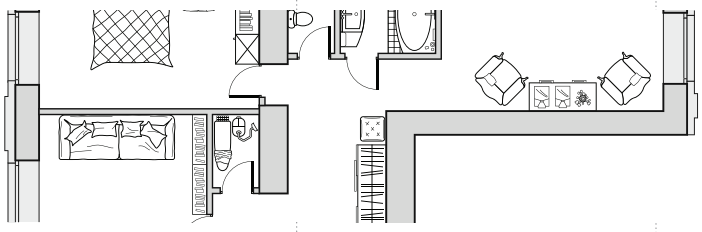

12. How does the architect organize the process?

13. What does the architect expect you to provide?

14. What is the architect's design philosophy?

15. What is the architect's experience/track record with cost estimating?

16. What will the architect show you along the way to explain the project? Will you see models, drawings or sketches?

ISTOCK.COM/YURI PARMENOV

17. If the scope of the project changes later in the project, will there be additional fees? How will these fees be justified?

18. What services does the architect provide during construction?

19. How disruptive will construction be? How long does the architect expect it to take to complete your project?

20. Can the architect provide a list of client references?

Who Speaks for the AIA Los Angeles Chapter?

A Policy Statement

Board members, Committee members, AIA|LA nominees to other bodies, and AIA|LA staff members all represent the AIA|LA in numerous and varied capacities.

From time to time, any one of us may be asked to speak for the AIA|LA. It is expected that each AIA|LA member will be an articulate, forceful voice for the profession as each of us draws on the strength of personal convictions, training, experience, and insights.

However, none of us speaks formally for the AIA|LA unless so empowered by the Board of Directors. To speak for the AIA|LA, to represent the AIA|LA's position to the public, we must secure Board endorsement and be designated by the Board to speak on its behalf.

If time does not permit seeking Board endorsement of a point of view that any of us wishes to express, then we are required to be clear about whom we represent (e.g., "I'm speaking as Chair of the _____ Committee" or "I'm speaking as an individual architect," etc.) Please be clear that you are not representing the opinion of the AIA|LA.

It is also worth noting that Committee members do not speak for their Committees unless empowered to do so by the appropriate Committee Chair.

Of course, AIA|LA members are urged to cherish the right to free expression by employing it, by speaking out whenever appropriate as citizens and professionals. The AIA|LA policy statement is meant to clarify how AIA|LA institutional points of view can be expressed.

Continuing Education (CES) and AIA

The AIA recognizes that continuing education in architecture is crucial to advancing and improving the profession. Architects need continuing education to maintain knowledge and competency, to prepare for the future, to fulfill the continuing education requirements for AIA membership, and to renew state licensure.

For AIA Members

AIA architect members have an annual Continuing Education (CES) requirement to maintain their membership. You need to complete and report 18 hours or learning units (LUs) every year, starting in year two of membership. Of those 18 hours, 12 need to be related to HSW (health safety and welfare.) Emeritus members are exempt from the CES requirement for membership.

Members have until September 30 of the following year to complete and report coursework for any given year (e.g., you have until Sept. 30, 2022 to make up your requirement for 2021.) Approved CES providers will report your credits for you; you can also self-report certain self-directed activities online. Health Safety & Welfare (HSW) coursework needs to be from an AIA approved provider and cannot be self-reported for HSW credit.

For Licensed Architects

All licensed architects in the State of California are required to complete and keep documentation on file for CES for your state licensing board (in California, the requirement is five hours on ADA/Accessibility issues, every two-year renewal cycle.) Other states vary in their requirements. AIA does not report your hours to state licensing boards, but you may request a certificate of completion that you can provide to your state board for approval, if they accept them.

New requirements for the 2023 renewal cycle

A new law, AB 1010, requires all California architects to complete five hours of continuing education in Net Zero Carbon design every two years, and will be in effect for the 2023 renewal cycle. This CE will help architects understand significant changes that are expected to be included in future building codes and standards, and will help position California architects as the thought leaders in Net Zero Carbon design. AIA CA will supply courses for free to all architects renewing their licenses in 2023.

Visit AIA California at https://aia-california.org/about-continuing-education/ for online courses on an array of topics, including Accessibility and Universal Design.

Find Your Transcript (for AIA Members)

Sign in to access your transcript, self-report form, and many other resources online, 24 hours, 7 days a week. Visit https://www.aia.org/ and mouse over the grey Careers tab to find links to Continuing Education resources.

AIA Contract Documents

AIA Contract Documents are the more than 180 forms and contracts that define the relationships and terms involved in design and construction projects. Prepared by the AIA with the consensus of owners, contractors, attorneys, architects, engineers, and others, the documents have been finely tuned during their 120-year history. As a result, these comprehensive contracts and forms are now widely recognized as the industry standard.

Used by industry professionals, including architects, contractors, owners, consultants, and attorneys, AIA Contract Documents are organized into two categories: by families based on types of projects or particular project delivery methods, and by series based on the use of the document.

A Letter from Your AIA|LA Vice President/ 2023 President Elect

One of my favorite songs by The Beatles is "Here Comes the Sun." After two years of physical distancing, masks, hand-sanitizer, Zoom/Teams calls, working remotely, and ordering everything to be delivered, there appears to be an end in sight. As of this writing I am happy to say that the Board of Directors has had two in-person meetings after 21 months of virtual meetings, and that tours and conferences are planned for in-person, including the 2022 AIA Conference on Architecture in Chicago. We are moving towards a new normal.

This sunshine does not erase the darkness of the past two years. We are more aware of the racial and social injustices that oppress many in our society. The pandemic exposed health and housing disparities. The calls for racial justice that began with the murder of George Floyd persist. Job losses due to the pandemic have only served to increase our homeless population and spotlight the extreme economic imbalance in our city. While there were initial environmental benefits to the world shutting down (blue skies, clean air, animals reclaiming old habitats), we also witnessed the collapse of Arctic shelves, and on-going fire, flood, and extreme weather events caused by climate change.

I am proud of the work that AIA|LA has done during this time. The J.E.D.I. committee, formed in June 2020, formalized the partnership with SoCal NOMA to advance issues of justice, equity, diversity and inclusion within the architecture profession. The committee has expanded the focus of Encompass to explore how architects can work to make buildings and spaces more equitable and responsive to the needs of the communities they inhabit. The AIA|LA has supported NOMA's Project Pipeline that seeks to increase the number of BIPOC people entering the profession, and the DEI Challenge that supports firms looking to address diversity, equity, and inclusion in their offices. The Governmental Outreach (GO) Committee scored a huge win with the November 2021 announcement of the Fast Track for Tenant Improvement Program by LADBS. 1.5° and Design for Dignity expanded conversations around Climate Action and the Housing Crisis respectively. The Chapter will again hold an Academic Summit where we talk to the leaders of local architecture schools about how we can better support each other's goals.

AIA|LA is committed to bringing value to our members. We are providing online study resources for emerging professionals seeking licensure, we are working to provide business resources to small firms, we are holding mentoring sessions for professionals at all stages of their careers. We hope to expand the reach of the GO committee by recommending architects for the new Mayor's team, and by encouraging members to join commissions and neighborhood councils.

As we break ground on our new home at 4450 West Adams, we look to the future. As I stated in my election platform, I believe that architecture is a collaboration and I look forward to extending our reach by working with like-minded organizations like ULI, USGBC and others. The Chapter is made stronger by your participation. Your involvement will help us strengthen profession and amplify the voice of all architects. I hope to see you at one of the many events and conferences put on by our amazing committees. Perhaps you will be moved to join a committee or even the Board as we seek to strengthen the profession and make Los Angeles a better place for all.
